A psychological novel. At the Paris wedding of her only daughter Emily Piggett's guests recall fleeting pictures of the Emily they had known since 1900. The portrait built up is of a ruthless, hard-hearted woman, who had spoiled many lives in her drive to dominate her family and friends.

"It's a pretty good story. But the separate episodes are better than the novel as a whole." C. H. Weiss

+ — Commonweal 56:635 O 3 '52 360w

Kirkus 20:385 J1 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1192 J1 '52 50w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 29 '52 130w

"There have been many memorable portraits of women, and some of the best have tantalized the reader persistently for what they withheld or did not know about the inner nature of a nevertheless wholly credible heroine. 'Dear Emily' is one of these. Her story, told with a combination of love-hate and literary finesse, is deadly in its effect—and fascinating." F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 31 '52 600w

"There are today no stakes for witches like Emily. Mr. Fitz Gibbon is too civilized to ask for them, even if he makes us half wish there were. Why he should shuttle so dizzily in time, why, at the end, he had to introduce so many people all at once, is not clear. But he has given us a few hours of such pleasant entertainment that we really don't mind." Richard Plant

+ N Y Times p28 S 7 '52 550w

New Yorker 28:116 S 6 '52 70w

"This is a kind of portraiture that young writers—particularly British—frequently indulge in at least once. . . This one is mildly entertaining, though at the end you may wonder why Mr. Fitzgibbon wasted all his time and words to no purpose. You will also be annoyed by the way he switches you around in time. But maybe that was for the exercise." E. J. F.

Sat R 35:44 O 25 '52 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p293 My 2 '52 80w

FLAGSTAD, KIRSTEN, and BIANCOLLI, LOUIS LEOPOLD. Flagstad manuscript. 293p il $4 Putnam

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-9828

"The great soprano's first published defense of her 'political' behavior during the last war, as well as a partial life story—one of unrelenting labor and artistic integrity. Mr. Biancolli, to whom Flagstad dictated the two sections of the book (the first, towards the end of her first American tour of duty in the early forties; the second, towards the end of her second and last in the early fifties), wisely restricted his activities to encouraging her to speak up and to polishing the text." (Library J) List of roles sung. Index.

Booklist 49:139 D 15 '52

Reviewed by Claudia Cassidy

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 30 '52 440w

"Recommended for public libraries of all sizes." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 77:2006 N 15 '52 90w

"Kirsten Flagstad is a woman of few words, and Louis Biancolli is a man of well chosen ones. So it is no surprise that 'The Flagstad Manuscript' is a terse, compact and to the point account of a great singer's artistic and personal life." Herbert Kuperberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 14 '52 500w

FLANAGAN, GEORGE ALEXANDER. How to understand modern art. 334p il $5.50 Studio 709 Art, Modern 51-14381

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

San Francisco Chronicle p23 F 10 '52 170w

"Traveling gracefully over well-trodden paths in an enthusiastic attempt to tell the 'average person' how to understand modern art, George A. Flanagan presupposes an intelligent reader and does not indulge in the baby-talk characteristic of books for the layman. Complicated issues are taken up and neatly clarified. Time-worn histories and theories retain freshness in this simplified but exhaustive review of the 'isms.' . . Bolstering his text with numerous black-and-white illustrations, unfortunately often juxtaposed with some superfluous little diagrams, Flanagan is at his best when he re-arranges someone else's ideas, and his many quotations are adroitly managed. . . After spending a good deal of concentrated energy in an earnest effort to clear away the layman's bias against abstract art, Mr. Flanagan backslides in his last chapter and supplies his reader with a brand-new set of prejudices." Elaine De Koening

+ — Sat R 35:36 My 3 '52 550w

"A striking feature of the book is its clarity of language. The author, an artist and top flight copywriter, discusses the subject with 'everyday' words—words which give you crystal clear meaning and understanding."

+ School Arts 51:adv Ap '52 130w

FLANNAGAN, ROY CATESBY. Forest cavalier; a romance of America's first frontier and of Bacon's rebellion. 377p $3.50 Bobbs

52-5810

Lance Clayborn came to the Virginia colony as a boy late in the seventeenth century. His first object was to avenge the death of an uncle. The boy quickly learned the ways of the forest and became a hunter and fighter, and played a part in Bacon's rebellion. In the end he has avenged his uncle, won the woman he loved, and cleared his own honor.

FLANNAGAN, R. C.—Continued

"Written with so much zest and masculine vigor that it is hard to believe its author succumbed to a long illness a month before its publication. There are flaws. . . . But it is a living, breathing book, sound history and interpretation, along with a swift-moving story. It deserves readers and is sure to have them." Shirley Barker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 23 '52 320w

"Most of us know that Jamestown was the birthplace of the American nation. But the fundamentally important part played there in 1676 by Bacon's Rebellion in the formulation of an American national consciousness is little understood. In a succession of vividly told episodes, Mr. Flannagan gives us not only an authentic picture of the rebellion but an exciting tale of adventure." Margaret Widemer

+ N Y Times p17 Ap 13 '52 200w

"Handled with skill. But it is the historical material that raises the novel more than a notch above the common level. While keeping his story moving Mr. Flannagan has illumined a chapter of colonial American history. This last of the novels we shall have from him is also his best."

+ Sat R 35:52 Je 7 '52 220w

FLEMING, EDWARD MCCLUNG. R. R. Bowker, militant liberal. 410p $5 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Bowker, Richard Rogers 52-11604

"The subject of this comprehensive biography was an unusual personality whose career touched the life of his times at many points, and often importantly. Richard Rogers Bowker is best remembered for his contributions to the book business and his activities in the movement for independent political action. He also had a successful, though brief, career in industrial management; he was a writer of vigor and imagination, an inventor in the electrical field and a devoted reformer." (N Y Times) The author is dean of Park College in Missouri.

"Too ponderous and weighted with data on Bowker's bibliographic pursuits to be of interest to the general public, but indispensable to the library's collection of professional reading."

Booklist 49:124 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:78 Ja '53 30w

"Most libraries will order the book as a matter of course, as the biography of an honored colleague, though never, in the strict sense of the word, a librarian himself." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 77:1647 O 1 '52 150w

"Mr. Fleming has done a thorough and careful piece of work, and one well worth doing." F. L. Mott

+ N Y Times p10 N 30 '52 400w

"The bulk of his papers is in the New York Public Library. . . . This wealth of personalia naturally provided Mr. Fleming with much of the data which he has sedulously and readably woven into his biography." J. T. Winterich

+ Publishers' Weekly 162:2234 D 6 '52 3100w

FLEMING, HAROLD. Ten thousand commandments; a story of the antitrust laws. 206p $2.25 Prentice-Hall

338.8 Trusts, Industrial 51-5597

"This study of the Nation's anti-trust laws and their enforcement, written by a business reporter for the 'Christian Science Monitor,' discusses all the recent Supreme Court cases in the field and the present attitude of the Federal Trade Commission and Government lawyers who enforce the Sherman and Clayton Acts." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 48:115 D 1 '51

"The antitrust laws probably are not the sort of intellectual diet a layman would choose for leisure reading. The assumptions would be that, first, they are insufferably dull, and, second, that they might also be insuperably complicated, as all legal problems are supposed to be. But this little volume, by Harold Fleming, well-known business writer, does an excellent job of knocking the props from under these formidable barriers to some revealing and urgently needed information." G. R. Ericson

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 My 5 '52 430w

"A clearly written monograph." C. W. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 13 '52 110w

FLEMING, JOAN MARGARET. Man who looked back. 192p $2.50 Doubleday

52-8049

Detective story.

Booklist 48:379 JI 15 '52

Kirkus 20:290 My 1 '52 80w

"A dead loss." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 15 '52 40w

"The high novelistic level of the writing deserves a somewhat more imaginative plot than this conventional 'inverted' detective story—a conventionality which the author seems almost to satirize by labeling her faceless Scotland Yard men as simply 'Inspector A.' and 'Sergeant B.'—but of its familiar type its unusually solid and convincing." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p11 Je 22 '52 50w

"A more than usually persuasive study of a mind in the process of coming apart."

+ New Yorker 28:108 Je 21 '52 100w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 29 '52 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:33 JI 26 '52 30w

"This one is excellent, psychologically possible, set—as few real detective stories are—in a probable background, and uncovered by piecemeal diligence with the method well concealed to the end." Esther Howard

+ Spec 187:684 N 16 '51 40w

FLETCHER, MRS INGLIS (CLARK). Queen's Gift. 448p $3.75 Bobbs

52-10694

"This is the story of a village and a plantation during the years that followed Lord Cornwallis' surrender at Yorktown. . . . It is the last of seven novels in the Carolina Series, which begins with the first attempted colonization by the English on Roanoke Island and ends with the state's ratification of the Constitution in 1789." Foreword

Booklist 49:89 N 1 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 176:312 Ja '53 200w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 26 '52 300w

"The nub of the book is the debates about the Constitution, which sometimes retard the narrative a little but which voice what the author wishes most of all to say—a message of great timeliness today." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 23 '52 750w

"Inglis Fletcher is an able story-teller, and romance, adventure and vivid particulars of the lives of both the high-born and the lowly make this novel lively reading. At the same time, her well documented picture of the issues of the time provokes thought, and its overtones are curiously familiar." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 16 '52 290w

"'Queen's Gift' stands high in Miss Fletcher's Carolina series." Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p51 N 9 '52 150w

"Miss Fletcher evokes a joyous picture of Queen's Gift for the reader. You participate in the activities of the growing season and the harvest, in the curing of tobacco, in the excitement of the hunt. With perceptiveness, Miss Fletcher writes about the life of the Negroes on the plantation, their incantations and superstitions and their loyalties." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 O 19 '52 500w
+ Springf'd Republican p5C D 21 '52 80w

FLEW, ROBERT NEWTON, ed. Nature of the church; papers presented to the Theological commission appointed by the Continuation committee of the World conference on faith and order. 347p $4 Harper

261 Church [52-2314]

"This volume is a collection of 'Statements' on the Nature of the Church, according to the teaching of the chief Christian communions in Christendom. It consists of two main divisions: the first, planned and carried out from Great Britain as a centre, with documents speaking for the Churches of Europe; and the second, from the United States, by the American Theological Committee of which Dr. G. W. Richards was the Chairman, with Professor (now Dean) Clarence T. Craig summarising the results in his Report." (Editorial pref) Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 69:949 Ag 20 '52 150w
Manchester Guardian p5 My 26 '52 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p337 My 23 '52 1850w

FLEXNER, ABRAHAM, and BAILEY, ESTHER S. Funds and foundations; their policies past and present. 146p il $2.75 Harper
061 Endowments, Foundations, Charitable and educational 51-11912

"Briefly but adequately reviews the work of foundations in the U.S., paying the most attention to the Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations. In the author's view the record shows the importance of such funds to education in particular, and to the advancement of knowledge and public welfare in general, and indicates a great need for additional foundations to undertake research in neglected areas, especially the humanities." Booklist

"A small book, written in the direct and lucid style of its author at his best." Raymond Walters

+ Am Hist R 58:124 O '52 190w
Reviewed by P. S. Broughton
Ann Am Acad 284:187 N '52 360w
Booklist 48:222 Mr 15 '52
Bookmark 11:155 Ap '52 30w
Kirkus 19:669 N 15 '51 100w

"Dr. Flexner, as an influential member of such philanthropic foundations as the General Education Board, the Carnegie Corporation and the Institute for Advanced Study, is in an excellent position to discuss the aims and appraise the accomplishments of such organizations. . . To say the book makes fascinating and rewarding reading is a tribute to author's writing abilities." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:529 Mr 15 '52 120w
Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
New Repub 126:19 Ap 14 '52 400w

"It is important that the issues that Dr. Flexner raises be debated, and every one should be grateful to him for the boldness and incisiveness with which he raises them." H. S. Com-mager

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 23 '52 1200w

"This is a thought-provoking book by the 'educational knight errant,' one of the great pedagogical reformers of our time. To some it will be an informed introduction to the changes that foundations have wrought on the American educational front. It will produce violent disagreements in some professional quarters and perhaps a pause for stock-taking." W. D. Ogdon

+ N Y Times p26 Ap 6 '52 310w

"Mr. Flexner's chief concern is not history. He is possessed of a bias and his book was clearly written for the purpose of putting that bias in the record. . . Because of the candor as well as the intimacy of his knowledge, Mr. Flexner's book makes good reading." E. C. Lindeman

+ Sat R 35:26 Ap 19 '52 500w

School & Society 75:254 Ap 19 '52 10w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

Springf'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 90w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:308 S '52 180w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. Get that story; journalism—its lore and thrills. 150p il $2.75 Lippincott

070 Journalism—Juvenile literature 52-9532

In informal style suited to high school readers the author gives something of the history of journalism and then goes on to supply information on the work of reporters today, on both city and rural newspapers.

Booklist 49:36 S 15 '52

"Good reading for wide and wild eyed youngsters who dream of rushing into the composing room shouting: 'Stop the Press.'" + Kirkus 20:461 Ag 1 '52 130w

"This well-known writer of teen-age non-fiction has turned out another valuable book." C. J. Roth

+ Library J 77:1668 O 1 '52 40w

"In a few details, one could differ with the author's judgment, particularly in his use of three tales of news photos. More important matters are well handled, such as Nelson Frank's crusade against communists, and the World Telegram's crusade against polluted beaches. A set of copy rules is given which will hint to the young enthusiast that he might as well mind his grammar lessons." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p22 N 16 '52 320w

FLOHERTY, JOHN JOSEPH. High wide and deep; science and adventure with the Coast and geodetic survey; il. from photographs. 153p $2.75 Lippincott

526.3 U.S. Coast and geodetic survey 52-5173

Popularly written book giving a picture of the various activities, most of them demanding courage, resourcefulness and a zest for adventure, of the members of the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Booklist 48:282 My 1 '52

Kirkus 20:159 Mr 1 '52 90w

"This is usable as career material. Style is clear and the text informative and authoritative." M. I. Ross

+ Library J 77:911 My 15 '52 90w

"Such a book might well be suggested to the more serious young readers of books like 'The Sea Around Us' and 'Kon-tiki.' It will prove a revelation as to possible careers for mathematicians and engineers." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 My 11 '52 210w

"Now and then technical information slows down the pace, but lively human-interest stories invariably accelerate it once more. Boys will like this book for its spirit of adventure, vocational information, and accurate, scientific detail. Many of their elders will enjoy it too." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 17 '52 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 11 '52 120w

FLOHERTY, J. J.—Continued

"The information here is important. Mr. Floherty gives it in a way that makes this book a good story, too."
 + Sat R 35:70 N 15 '52 70w
 + Spring'd Republican p19A Je 1 '52 320w

FLORES, MARIA. Woman with the whip: Eva Perón. 286p $3.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Perón, Eva (Duarte) 52-10995

A biography of Eva Perón which explains her in terms of her birth and background. The author is a native of Argentina, now living in the United States. No index.

Booklist 49:104 N 15 '52

Reviewed by J. F. Rippy

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 O 26 '52 330w

"The author's pungent prose presents the best description to date of that volatile, ambitious, vengeful, and clever woman. There is, as there must be, a lot of surmise and speculation rather than factual reporting about parts of Eva's life, especially her youth. But Miss Flores rises to great heights of writing quality and biographical narration when Eva herself emerges from the shadows of her past onto the public stage, where facts can no longer be obscured or distorted." R. M. Hallet
 + Christian Science Monitor p9 N 7 '52 550w

"Seldom has this reviewer approached a book with more interest than in the present case. Unfortunately, the volume leaves a feeling of disappointment, and perhaps unjustly so. . . . Whether you paint her as a she-devil or as a spirit possessed, it is impossible to describe her in the mild terms that Miss Flores has done, without any evaluation of her acts, and still give your reader any measure of Eva Perón's personality." L. V. Vila
 Commonweal 57:205 N 28 '52 400w

"An inside picture of every phase, every facet, of the nefarious web she has spun. Absorbing though not always easy reading. The author is an Argentinian, a better journalist than biographer."
 + Kirkus 20:489 Ag 1 '52 280w

"Probably as definitive a biography as can be produced with much documentation undoubtedly lost forever. The flamboyantly challenging life of Eva Perón is recorded with vitality and admirable objectivity and good taste." H. S. Taylor
 + Library J 77:1806 O 15 '52 80w

"While hardly the 'first objective biography of the glamorous and dangerous woman' which its press agents claim, [this] is a fascinating, well written and restrained account." Hubert Herring
 + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 30 '52 850w

"Maria Flores, a nom de plume of an Anglo-Argentine novelist, has written of Eva's compulsion persuasively, sharpening the character study with such perceptive lines as: 'In whatever activity Eva has engaged, it has not been the work but the impression she creates that has been of prime importance to her. It is as if a woman in baking a cake cared not in the slightest how the cake turned out but cared only for the pretty picture of domestic busyness.' . . . Perhaps Eva Perón's truest and most enduring monument will be this unpretentious, sensitively written book, and all the other books by honest writers that will come after it." V. L. Warren
 + N Y Times p16 O 19 '52 700w
 New Yorker 28:178 O 18 '52 130w
 San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 30 '52 250w

"It tells us more about modern Argentina and the Perón regime, with its cruel, crooked, and paranoiacally rabble-raising ways to power, than any book which Peronismo has yet inspired. And it tells us about it with a sustained sense of personal intimacy with the principal characters and the exciting impact of unflagging liveliness. Miss Flores, an Argentine resident of the United States apparently writing in English, wins, in fact, as a beginning biographer, spurs with golden rowels." Duncan Aikman

 + Sat R 35:40 O 25 '52 1100w

FLOWER, MILTON EMBICK. James Parton, the father of modern biography. 253p il $4.50 Duke Univ. press

B or 92 Parton, James 51-14735

A biography of the man who was not only a leading American biographer of his time, but who started a fashion for writing vivacious biographies. His first important book was The Life of Horace Greeley, published in 1854; his final work was on Voltaire in 1881. Bibliography. Index.

"All in all, this is a faithful and meritorious biography, and throws considerable light on an interesting, if minor, figure in nineteenth-century America. One carping note, however. Dr. Flower could advantageously have used some of that ease and fluidity which he justly admires in the pages of his subject." Nathan Schachner

+ Am Hist R 57:978 J1 '52 500w

Cath World 175:159 My. '52 100w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 31 '52 500w

"Mr. Flower's biography falls short, perhaps, of one James Parton could have written. But though the man doesn't emerge from the pages for long at a time, they give a passable account of an interesting person." Marquis James
 N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 23 '51 1050w

"Mr. Flower, historian and author, has done a thorough job on a man whose major works are praised by such good judges as Marquis James and Carl Van Doren. He presents James Parton in the round and the period in which Parton lived and worked." W. A. Breyfogle

+ N Y Times p13 D 16 '51 320w

"This portrait of [Parton] based on sounder scholarship than his own, is yet drawn with much of the same vitality and sympathetic interest that Parton himself showed toward his subjects."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:2 Mr '52 200w

FLOWERING trees of the Caribbean; introd. by William C. White [30 paintings by Bernard and Harriet Pertchik]. 125p $10 Rinehart

582.16 Trees—Tropics 51-14841

Thirty full-page plates of flowers and foliage of flowering trees of the American tropics, accompanied by botanical data and folklore for each. Bibliography. Glossary.

"Merely to leaf through this Audubonesque volume, with its painted illustrations done by Bernard and Harriet Pertchik in lengthy jaunts from the Antilles almost to Brazil, is a pleasure. In addition, the folklore and legends which have grown up about these trees are included, plus accurate data on each tree's special characteristics, material painstakingly gathered through the cooperation of a score of botanists in the United States and Latin America." W. H. Stringer

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 8 '52 650w

Kirkus 19:516 S 1 '51 120w

"This is an example of superb color reproduction in an American-made book. It should be welcome to the hosts of winter visitors to the tropics, as well as to all lovers of beautiful volumes." William Beebe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 23 '51 170w

FLYNN, JOHN THOMAS. While you slept; our tragedy in Asia and who made it. 192p $2.50 Devin-Adair

950 Communism—Asia. Communism—U.S. U.S.—Foreign policy. Propaganda 51-14369

John T. Flynn's story "of how the American left wing took over our most influential media

—radio, movies, magazines and books—and persuaded our leaders to support the Communist Plan to turn China and Korea over to the Soviet." (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by J. M. Gillis
Cath World 174:316 Ja '52 450w

"This story revolutionizes thinking on the world of today. A year ago the book might have been shuffled off as the vagaries of a mind fed by the opium of hate. Today it must be recognized as a masterful chiseling of fact from propaganda to present the truth of what Douglas MacArthur termed the greatest diplomatic blunder of a century." Walter Trohan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 9 '51 650w

Reviewed by Gordon Walker
Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 17 '52 750w

"The historians will want to take a long, hard look at Mr. Flynn's theory. . . They will find, of course, many serious mistakes in American policy and American thinking during the past decade, as in any decade. They will identify some conspirators. They will find some dupes. But they will audit Mr. Flynn's statements, on the one hand, quite as carefully as they will Owen Lattimore's, for instance, on the other. Meantime, the evidence is not really all in. Statements and documents are being quoted inexcusably out of context. We are reading political polemics, not careful historical analysis. We cannot possibly get an accurate view by reading either side alone." E. D. Canham

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 6 '52 900w

"John T. Flynn has shed much heat but little light on one of the great issues of our time. . . Mr. Flynn's view of the role played in the recent history of China by the United States is strongly influenced by his belief that the State Department was 'heavily loaded with the friends and agents of Stalin.' With the wisdom of what has been called 20-20 hindsight, he interprets wartime and post-war relations among the United States, Russia and China in terms of subsequent, not then current, events. These may be satisfactory procedures for the polemicist but not for the historian." J. B. Oakes

— N Y Times p6 D 2 '51 1350w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Sat R 35:14 Ja 19 '52 900w

FOLEY, MARTHA, ed. Best American short stories, 1952; and the yearbook of the American short story; assisted by Joyce F. Hartman. 397p $4 Houghton

Short stories—Collections

Contents: That lovely green boat, by Bill Berge; The other river, by R. O. Bowen; The lost, by Kay Boyle; The other foot, by Ray Bradbury; A wreath for Miss Totten, by Hortense Calisher; The unborn ghosts, by Nancy Cardozo; The climate of the family, by N. G. Chalkin; Wood smoke, by Ann Chidester; The motion of forgetfulness is slow, by C. E. Eaton; Children of Ruth, by G. P. Elliott; The first face, by Elizabeth Enright; The conversion of Willie Heaps, by Hugh Garner; Weekend at Grimsby, by Martha Gellhorn; Always good for a belly laugh, by Emilie Glen; Brahmin Beachhead, by Nancy Hale; What's in a corner, by Philip Horton; The searchers, by Susan Kuehn; The call, by Bethel Laurence; Cyclists' raid, by Frank Rooney; Palo, by William Saroyan; I'm really fine, by Stuart Schulberg; The healthiest girl in town, by Jean Stafford; The traveler, by Wallace Stegner; A ride on the Short Dog, by James Still; The letters, by Harvey Swados; Nobody say a word, by Mark Van Doren; Evensong, by Daniel Waldron; Loud sing cuckoo, by Christine Weston; Yonoko's earthquake, by Hisaye Yamamoto.

Booklist 49:89 N 1 '52

"The 1952 volume, although it contains a few stories which only adult readers interested in the craft will find palatable, is an outstanding one. Balanced between writers long known—Saroyan, Kay Boyle, and Nancy Hale, for example—and writers beginning to attract a following, it also presents the first work of authors who may well be heard from again."

Riley Hughes
+ Cath World 176:311 Ja '53 260w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 21 '52 550w

"A rich collection."
+ Kirkus 20:517 Ag 15 '52 130w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 77:1900 N 1 '52 90w

"For a little more than a decade now—since the death of Edward J. O'Brien in 1941—Martha Foley has been tirelessly perusing the periodicals for the 'best' short stories of the year. She always comes up with some very good ones and this collection is no exception. Variety rules the day. There's something for everyone—and possibly everything for some." E. D. Loomis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 5 '52 600w

Reviewed by Robert Lowry
N Y Times p13 D 21 '52 550w

"The 1952 volume is up to standard and maybe a little bit better than most. And if it is better (which seems reasonable), because American short-story writers are writing better than ever, then that is a very encouraging thing." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 O 21 '52 600w

Reviewed by William Peden
+ Sat R 35:14 N 15 '52 420w

FOLEY, MARTHA, ed. Best of the Best American short stories, 1915-1950. 369p $3.75 Houghton

Short stories—Collections 51-8996

Contents: How the devil came down Division street, by Nelson Algren; I'm a fool, by Sherwood Anderson; The blue sash, by Warren Beck; Nothing ever breaks except the heart, by Kay Boyle; Horse thief, by Erskine Caldwell; Sex education, by Dorothy Canfield; The enormous radio, by John Cheever; The wind and the snow of winter, by W. V. Clark; Boys will be boys, by I. S. Cobb; Christ in concrete, by Pietro di Donato; Hand upon the waters, by William Faulkner; My old man, by Ernest Hemingway; The peach stone, by Paul Horgan; Haircut, by Ring Lardner; Man on a road, by Albert Maltz; Prince of darkness, by J. F. Powers; Resurrection of a life, by William Saroyan; Search through the streets of the city, by Irwin Shaw; The interior castle, by Jean Stafford; How beautiful with shoes, by W. D. Steele; The women on the wall, by Wallace Stegner; Dawn of remembered spring, by Jesse Stuart; A wife of Nashville, by Peter Taylor; The catbird seat, by James Thurber; A curtain of green, by Eudora Welty.

Booklist 48:171 Ja 15 '52

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 13 '52 300w

"Good fiction should, and does, illuminate life. No one can read this collection of good short stories without increasing his understanding and savor of life." Horace Reynolds

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 31 '52 550w

Kirkus 19:645 N 1 '51 130w

Nation 174:236 Mr 8 '52 100w

"Some of the works and authors omitted were obviously not included because they did not appear in the annual collections from which Miss Foley made her selections. But a more modest title would introduce you less expectantly to a fine anthology of modern American short story writing which brings into one volume many a piece you will want to read again and some you may have missed. I was particularly pleased to rediscover Dorothy Canfield's delightfully wise Sex Education, Walter Van Tilburg Clark's The Wind and the Snow of Winter and Albert Maltz's Man on the Road."

E. J. Fitzgerald

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 6 '52 450w

FOLEY, MARTHA—Continued

"This reviewer will not attempt to select the best of 'The Best of the Best.' The impression left by these stories is one of vitality, artistry and a promise of a good time coming."

John Brooks

+ N Y Times p22 Ja 6 '52 390w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 17 '52 600w

"A collection of some very, very good stories. As such, it is a welcome anthology which readers not over-familiar with the major writers of the period will find both a pleasure and a surprise. As a trustworthy reflection of the recent American short-story writers' achievements, however, the volume is far from satisfactory. . . I fail to see how any editor can justify an anthology supposedly representing the best in American short fiction since 1915 which fails to include a single story from Katherine Anne Porter, John Steinbeck, Willa Cather, Scott Fitzgerald, William March, Robert Penn Warren, and Caroline Gordon." William Peden

+ — Sat R 35:12 Ja 12 '52 430w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7D Ap 13 '52 550w

Time 59:103 Ja 21 '52 400w

"The uniformly high quality of the collection attests at once the flourishing condition of the short story in the United States and the extraordinary critical insight of the editor, Martha Foley."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:356 D '51 250w

Wis Lib Bul 48:94 Mr '52

FOLEY, RAE, pseud. See Denniston, E.

FOOTE, DONALD K. Aerodynamics for model airplanes. 158p $3 Barnes, A.S.

629.123 [629.1323] Airplane models 52-6339

"How and why a model airplane flies; a complete explanation without the use of formulas or mathematics." (Subtitle) Diagrams. Index.

Booklist 49:6 S 1 '52

Kirkus 20:561 S 1 '52 60w

"Fifty-four excellent, well-labeled diagrams are used. Well bound, though poor quality paper." M. I. Ross

Library J 77:1413 S 1 '52 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 19 '52 20w

FOOTE, DONALD K. Model airplane engines. (New model ser) 177p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

629.1435 [629.13435] Airplane models 52-6338

"This companion to Aerodynamics for Model Airplanes presents a complete, clear explanation of the theory, principles, design, and workings of the internal combustion engine and will enable the enthusiast to build his own engine for plane, racing car, or boat." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 49:6 S 1 '52

Kirkus 20:561 S 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by M. I. Ross

+ Library J 77:1413 S 1 '52 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 19 '52 20w

FOOTE, SHELBY. Shiloh. 226p $2.75 Dial press 52-5614

A novel about the battle of Shiloh. Describes the events just before the battle and the battle itself as it appeared to six soldiers, Union and Confederate. The Louisiana officer who opens the story also closes it.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 189:81 My '52 380w

Booklist 48:265 Ap 15 '52

"A rattling good story of one of the bloodiest battles in history." R. P. Basler

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 6 '52 250w

"This is an original and interesting way to write history and fiction." Avery Craven

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 6 '52 650w

"In this refreshingly modest historical novel, written with honest and unaffected craftsmanship, Shelby Foote handles the facts well. But they are almost too interesting to him. He has allowed Shiloh, the real Shiloh, to dominate his fancy. The battle is, as the jacket proclaims, the hero of this book." George McMillan

+ — N Y Times p6 Ap 6 '52 450w

New Yorker 28:135 Ap 12 '52 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 11 '52 160w

"Mr. Foote writes a clear, unaffected, and telling prose and he has kept his eye on his main purpose: to recreate the battle for us. In this he has succeeded admirably. He has not, however, succeeded in investing his material with novelistic purpose or any larger significance."

+ — Sat R 35:33 Ap 26 '52 180w

FORBES, DUNCAN. Liberal Anglican idea of history. 208p $4 Cambridge

907 Historiography [52-8196]

"This book analyses the change in English historical thought that followed the entry of the ideas of Vico and the German historical school, early in the nineteenth century. . . Mr. Forbes examines the part played in this profound change by a group of men—Thomas Arnold, Whately, J. C. Hare, Thirlwall, and Milman—whom he calls the Liberal Anglicans." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Preston Slosson

Ann Am Acad 282:170 Jl '52 330w

"It is a little difficult to sustain interest in a group of historians none of whose books will ever be opened again; but Mr Forbes has made a gallant attempt." A. J. P. T.

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 21 '52 120w

"Mr. Forbes is wise to draw our attention to the influence of Historicism upon the Liberal Anglicans which made them far more aware of the problems historians ought to face than were their opponents. . . Even more important, Mr. Forbes has taken possession of a field of inquiry which will fructify other nineteenth-century studies. He is learned, has read deeply and mastered the voluminous primary sources. Thus equipped, he will be able to move through the century and show how the different conceptions of history held by Victorian thinkers affected their ideals, their vision of society and their morality."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p321 My 16 '52 3650w

FORD, MRS KATHERINE (MORROW), and CREIGHTON, THOMAS HAWK. American house today; 85 notable examples; selected and evaluated. 239p il $7.95 Reinhold

728.6 Architecture, Domestic—Designs and plans 51-8761

Floor plans, photographs of exteriors and interiors, and descriptions of eighty-five houses built during the last five years and following modern ideas of structure, design and use of materials.

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 6 '52 110w

"Anyone who wants to have in his hands the essence of what has been accomplished in the design and construction of the modern house in this country to date could hardly do better than to get this book. The eighty-five houses included have been well selected, and the discussions of them make sense. The book is primarily for potential homeowners and secondarily for architects."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:2 Ja '52

"Judged as a picture book, 'The American House Today' has its merits. It is a cross-section of our domestic architecture in 1952, and if you keep in mind that the West Coast has been the happiest environment for our modern architects, you won't be too disappointed with the efforts of those who have done the best they could in the Middle West and in the East."

Wayne Andrews

+ — Sat R 35:55 Mr 1 '52 400w

FORD, LESLIE, pseud. See Brown, Z. J.

FORESTER, CECIL SCOTT. Lieutenant Hornblower. 306p $3.50 Little

52-5530

"This is the seventh novel in the saga of Horatio Hornblower, in which the central character emerges from his apprenticeship as midshipman to assume the responsibilities thrust upon him by the fortunes of war between Napoleon and Spain. It follows the career of the young lieutenant from his arrival aboard H.M.S. Renown to his promotion to captain." Publisher's note

"Lieutenant Hornblower has the swift action and the colorful authenticity of the best of the Forester novels." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 189:78 Ap '52 300w

Booklist 48:221; 247 Mr 15 '52; Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:158 Ap '52 40w

"The present novel will be zestfully read by a multitude of old Hornblower fans and by a host of new ones since he has made his recent and arresting appearance in technicolor. 'Lieutenant Hornblower' is a good novel to begin the series with. . . The action of this novel is various and absorbing." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 30 '52 280w

"As a novelist he still interprets the navy, certainly in its Napoleonic period, with the help of a character that represents the navy at its best and action that is grandly exciting without being melodramatic; helped, too, by a sense of order and a mastery of technique that put his work on a high plane of artistry." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 27 '52 650w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:187 Je '52 70w

"The young Hornblower is all one can wish of a naval hero at the start of his meteoric career. From Beat to Quarters to this the seventh of the Hornblower stories, Forester has given us stirring novels of naval adventure in a sound tradition."

+ Kirkus 19:707 D 15 '51 270w

Library J 77:1215 J1 '52 50w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 F 15 '52 120w

"As usual, the book is crammed with gunnery and navigation. It also contains a superbly paranoid captain. The final chapters make one realise for the first time just what it meant to be a half-pay officer in the Napoleonic Wars. Playing whist for a living is a new and harrowing role for Hornblower, and the rubber with which the book ends is its most exciting incident." John Raymond

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:225 F 23 '52 120w

Reviewed by Alfred Stanford

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 30 '52 550w

"Rather thin gruel, but Hornblower fans will enjoy it." William McFee

N Y Times p5 Mr 30 '52 260w

New Yorker 28:129 Mr 29 '52 90w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 28 '52 750w

"Mr. Forester will never be able to alter the immutable facts of Hornblower's character and career, but he may be able to find neglected incidents for future books. Like A.

Conan Doyle, who was forced to keep Holmes alive through popular demand, Mr. Forester must never permit Horatio Hornblower to die." Harrison Smith

Sat R 35:13 Mr 29 '52 600w

Spring'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 310w

Time 59:108 Mr 31 '52 460w

"The Hornblower books are uneven, but this is one of the best."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p121 F 15 '52 460w

Wis Lib Bul 48:86 Mr '52

FORMAN, HARRISON. How to make money with your camera; foreword by Ivan Dmitri. 235p il $3.50 McGraw

778 Photography, Journalistic 51-13605

"Author Forman, who has been a freelance cameraman for more than 20 years, offers advice on what sells, where to sell it, and how best to work in such fields as news, candid, animal, child, and travel photography. There also are chapters on equipment and marketing and a list of the better markets. Illustrated." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 48:334 Je 15 '52

"Lively, informing book by a successful writer-photographer."

+ Bookmark 11:180 My '52 20w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 1 '52 40w

Kirkus 20:209 Mr 15 '52 130w

"The average good photographer, with a generous stock of technically excellent and imaginative negatives already on hand, could discover by the index method scores of available markets. He is no longer 'shooting blind.' He need not race out and try to make negatives to fit a certain type of periodical—he needs only to match up with hundreds of index-ideas the negatives he already has."

D. A. Pitt

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 18 '52 300w

FORSTER, ARNOLD, and EPSTEIN, BENJAMIN R. Troublemakers; an Anti-defamation league report. 317p $3.50 Doubleday

301.45 Minorities. U.S.—Race question

52-7114

A report on racial and religious intolerance in the United States prepared by the Anti-Defamation League. Index.

Booklist 48:330 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Je 15 '52 460w

"It is rather humiliating to read of the fanatical and often malicious attempts of some Americans to foster ill will toward certain groups of their fellow Americans; but, since the facts exist, it is a real service to expose them to public view. . . The Anti-Defamation League does not strengthen its own excellent cause by trying to tell Catholics that they are being 'persecuted' in America. They know better." W. E. G.

+ — Christian Century 69:1161 O 8 '52 270w

Reviewed by Kimmis Hendrick

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 18 '52 700w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell

Churchman 166:17 N 1 '52 80w

"This book should be read by everyone interested in the preservation of our democracy, and then passed on to a friend or family member whose concept of his civic or religious responsibility in human relationships is limited more by circumstance than by malice. I feel sure that its shocking impact will help greatly in developing greater understanding and tolerance where the slightest good-will exists."

P. V. Farrell

+ Commonweal 56:276 Je 20 '52 550w

FORSTER, ARNOLD—Continued

Kirkus 20:249 Ap 1 '52 220w

"Recommended for all public and educational libraries." H. H. Bernst

+ Library J 77:889 My 15 '52 130w

"A Who's Who and What They Do of the purveyors of prejudice and the sowers of confusion at work in this country. . . Two who fought back are Anna M. Rosenberg and Loretta Chappell and the accounts of their counter-attacks make excellent reading. The book as a whole is effective because the drama is in the material and the writing is calm."

+ Nation 175:37 J1 12 '52 250w

"This is a valuable volume to have handy on your desk when you are reading the daily newspaper. And it is an important one."

+ New Repub 126:18 Je 9 '52 1150w

"The Trouble-Makers' is an enormously valuable book. It is a careful, factual, highly informative account of the peddlers of racial and religious bigotry in the United States." H. M. Kilgore

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 25 '52 1100w

Reviewed by R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p33 Je 8 '52 550w

"The Trouble-Makers' is well worth reading, even if it admittedly tells only part of the story." Irving Babow

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 22 '52 460w

"Senator Wayne Morse has said of 'The Trouble-Makers' that it is 'an exciting exposé of the subversive leaders on the right and the left, whose aims are to confuse and divide the American people.' But it is, I venture to think, more than that; it is an important contribution in the everlasting fight to bring closer the realization of a fundamental goal of our society—freedom from fear." B. C. Crum

+ Sat R 35:14 Je 28 '52 800w

School & Society 76:15 J1 5 '52 30w

Spring'd Republican p6D Ag 10 '52 130w

FORT, MRS MARIE JOHNSON. Flower arrangements for all occasions; an informal and practical discussion of modern flower arranging; ed. by Robert L. Sommerville. 237p il $8.50 Rinehart

635.96 Floral decoration 52-8079

"The purpose of this book is not to tell people what they must do to arrange flowers properly; it is wholly intended to show what they can do." (Foreword) Contents: Flower arrangements in the home; The value and use of color; The Japanese tradition and influence; Period arrangements and flower shows; Fruit and vegetables in arrangements; Arrangements for parties, dining tables and other occasions; Church arrangements; Flower mechanics.

Bookmark 11:155 Ap '52 40w

"Close to 100 plates, 32 in full color, make this a book all amateurs who want to qualify for prize winning flower arrangements will want to own. The text . . . is sound, comprehensive, informative, but for the complete amateur it lacks any inspirational quality."

+ Kirkus 19:720 D 15 '51 210w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 77:1014 Je 1 '52 50w

"Here is the richly done volume on flower arranging that many women have wanted—64 black-and-white photographs and 32 in full color—and at the same time the text matter that is a solid and sensible contribution to the art." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 19 '52 290w

"Exceptional quality in text, design, and reproduction." C. H. W.

+ Sat R 35:36 Ag 2 '52 20w

FORTUNE (periodical). See Whyte, W. H. Is anybody listening?

FOSCA, FRANCOIS, pseud. See Traz, G. de

FOSDICK, HARRY EMERSON. Faith for tough times. 128p $1.75 Harper

248 Christianity 52-8471

This volume comprises three lectures delivered on the Earl Foundation at the Pacific School of Religion in February, 1952.

Booklist 49:59 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:30 N '52 20w

Reviewed by J. W. Nixon

Christian Century 69:1126 O 1 '52 700w

"If you want a sample of really beautiful book-making for a friend as a present, here it is. If you want to encourage him greatly along the often rough Christian road, you will find strong and beautifully-made thoughts here too." J. F. Davidson

+ Churchman 166:13 D 15 '52 180w

"Thousands of clergymen of all denominations will welcome these inspiring messages by Dr. Fosdick."

+ Kirkus 20:466 Ag 1 '52 160w

"No living American clergyman, unless it be Bishop Sheen, has induced so many of his countrymen to give serious attention to the claims of religion as has Harry Emerson Fosdick. This compact book proves that even though Dr. Fosdick has retired from the pulpit of Riverside Church he has lost none of his ability to discover the questions men are asking at the deepest levels of their thought or to bring answers they will respect." Paul Hutchinson

+ N Y Times p24 O 5 '52 650w

Spring'd Republican p7C D 7 '52 80w

FOSDICK, HARRY EMERSON, ed. Great voices of the Reformation; an anthology; with an introd. and commentaries by [the editor]. 546p $5 Random house

270.6 Protestantism. Reformation. Theology 52-5550

"This anthology endeavors to present, within the limits of a single volume, the major emphases of Protestant thought from John Wycliffe to John Wesley." (Pref) Partial contents: John Wycliffe; John Huss; Martin Luther; Philip Melancthon; John Calvin; John Knox; The Anabaptists; Cotton Mather; Jeremy Taylor; Roger Williams; George Fox; John Woolman; John Wesley.

Booklist 48:310 Je 1 '52

"The impact of these fairly ample selections is reinforced by the carefully studied and vigorously written biographical introductions. Students of Reformation history who lack either the time or the library resources to acquaint themselves with the full texts of the classic writings of the pioneers of Protestantism will find here a very useful body of source material." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:1321 N 12 '52 300w

"Only one thing seems to me to be lacking in this important anthology. The student will want an index for reader reference." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 2 '52 600w

"A volume which will be appreciated by clergymen and others interested in the development of Protestant thought as well as by scholars in the field."

+ Kirkus 20:121 F 15 '52 200w

"A valuable contribution. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:793 My 1 '52 110w

"Dr. Fosdick, introducing each of the authors, has supplied a valuable commentary. . . Mysticism—the aspect of religion which interested William James so much—is not stressed here. If one may assume that religious feeling is the product of doctrine, a revaluation of Protestant mysticism is surely as important as a restatement of theological views. My only serious reservation about the book is that it is not sufficiently concerned with the effects of the Reformation." R. E.

New Repub 126:21 Ap 21 '52 300w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 22 '52 230w

"The task of re-establishing connection with the Reformation is being undertaken today by the Protestant phase of the current religious revival. To this end this anthology will make an enormous contribution. . . In his selections the editor has aimed at being interesting as well as adequate." Paul Ramsey

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 6 '52 1000w

San Francisco Chronicle p31 Ap 20 '52 140w

FOSDICK, RAYMOND BLAINE. Story of the Rockefeller foundation. 336p il $4.50 Harper
060 Rockefeller foundation 51-11913

A study of the aims and plans of operation of the Rockefeller Foundation, and the men who have been responsible for its success. The author is a former president of the Foundation. Index.

Reviewed by Raymond Walters

Am Hist R 58:124 O '52 420w

Am Pol Sci R 46:603 Je '52 30w

Booklist 48:190 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:130 Mr '52 30w

Foreign Affairs 30:671 Jl '52 20w

Kirkus 19:696 D 1 '51 190w

"Excellent book."

+ Nation 174:114 F 2 '52 140w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 126:19 Ap 14 '52 400w

"Mr. Fosdick has given us the record of how one of the greatest American fortunes devoted itself to the benefit of all mankind. This is an absorbing chronicle of men and money dedicated to making a better world. . . Mr. Fosdick, president of the Rockefeller Foundation from 1936 to 1948, is obviously an authority on the subject. But he is a layman, and his book is meant for laymen. Here is social history—personal, warm and yet objective, of Americans at their best." L. L. Engelking

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 F 10 '52 850w

"It is a great story which Mr. Fosdick has to tell here, and an enthralling one. . . For the most part [he] gives us sober analysis, but the narrative of the fight on the African gambiæ in the forests of Brazil is as thrilling as anything that Paul De Kruif has to tell." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p1 Ja 20 '52 1500w

"The book is one answer to the question: 'Is bigness always bad?' One wishes it would be widely read in Russia, that it would be studied by the Aga Khan and the Nizam of Hyderabad. One hopes that it will be widely read in America, for it tells a proud and hopeful story." Eleanor Breed

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 F 17 '52 500w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman

Sat R 35:26 Ap 19 '52 500w

Reviewed by B. F. King

Springf'd Republican p6D F 10 '52 450w

Time 59:55 Ja 21 '52 900w

"Mr. Fosdick's book is valuable and significant."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:155 Je '52 230w

FOSDICK, RAYMOND BLAINE. Within our power; perspective for a time of peril. 114p $1.75 Longmans

901 Civilization—Philosophy. Conduct of life 52-8130

"A realist who knows the worst that can deservedly be said of our generation, and who has had as many disappointments as any, voices his confidence that history is not at its ultimate hour and that it is still 'within our power' to make the 20th the greatest of centuries if we will muster the determination and the intelligence to make it so." Christian Century.

Bookmark 12:30 N '52 30w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

Christian Century 69:973 Ag 27 '52 40w

"This is a wise, experienced, idealistic book. It is a useful antidote to the mesmerism of the times." E. D. Canham

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 4 '52 750w

"This is not a religious book, but religious leaders of all faiths will find in it aid and comfort and much illustrative material and quotable phrases, for Fosdick writes with great felicity."

+ Kirkus 20:466 Ag 1 '52 200w

Reviewed by L. R. Miller

Library J 77:1187 Jl '52 60w

Reviewed by F. T. Schumacher

N Y Times p3 S 7 '52 430w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 31 '52 240w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

Springf'd Republican p9C N 2 '52 140w

FOSTER, CECIL PATRICK THOMAS. 1700 miles in open boats. 190p il maps $2.25 British bk. centre

910.45 Trevesa (steamship). Shipwrecks

"The captain of the S.S. Trevesa relates in matter-of-fact language the story of the founding of his ship in mid-Indian ocean in 1923 and the subsequent lifeboat journey to safety. The voyage of the Trevesa's two lifeboats rivals that of Captain Bligh, after that unfortunate captain was set adrift by the Bounty's mutineers." (San Francisco Chronicle) No index.

"One of the volumes in the excellent 'Mariners Library' series, this classic account of a sea voyage should be on every collector's shelf." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 28 '52 160w

"Along with the agonies of weather, thirst, and starvation, Captain Foster's story is filled with the kind of detail that seamen find fascinating. . . These modestly-told details testify impressively to the seamanship and discipline that form the tradition of the British Merchant Navy, a tradition strong enough to carry the polyglot crew of the Trevesa through an ordeal that is the equal of that of Captain Bligh." T. E. Cooney

+ Sat R 35:45 S 20 '52 220w

FOSTER, JOSEPH O'KANE. A cow is too much trouble in Los Angeles. 248p $3 Duell; Little

52-9082

"Pictures the life of the Rodriguez clan, a Mexican peasant family, and the vicissitudes they endure in Los Angeles after their illegal entry into the United States. With deep understanding the author highlights the differences between the two cultures and shows how the sensual, highly principled and deeply innocent rural Mexican is duped and betrayed into crime and vice." Kirkus

"A book with an emotional impact that resembles The Grapes of Wrath and Cry The Beloved Country, which readers will find expands their humanity and their understanding and which has much to offer libraries in communities with any sort of rural immigrant groups. Sociologically based, this has a humor along with its sadness and a pathos with its grim reality."

+ Kirkus 20:567 S 1 '52 240w

"On the whole it is a dreary tale in a dreary style that doesn't come off." C. J. Roth

— Library J 77:1655 O 1 '52 80w

"These are not Mexicans. They are not any people that ever walked on the face of this earth. They are a convenient literary figment,

FOSTER, J. O.—Continued
and fill the book with an unfortunate, salacious salability. Mr. Foster has let us down."
Oliver La Farge

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 2 '52
450w

"Mr. Foster, a ranching writer who lives in Taos, and who has a deep and sympathetic understanding of the Mexican mind and spirit, presents the tale in a series of poignant if not always persuasive vignettes. His story, charming in itself, throws vivid and entertaining illumination on the war of cultures underlying many salient social and economic problems of the Southwest today." Gladwin Hill

+ — N Y Times p31 O 26 '52 330w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Spring'd Republican p8C N 9 '52
150w

FOSTER, MARIAN CURTIS (MARIANA, pseud). Miss Flora McFlimsey and the baby New Year. [26p] $1 Lothrop

51-8071

In which the old-fashioned doll, Miss Flora McFlimsey, entertains the baby New Year for a little time before he goes out in the world. For ages 4 to 8.

"Little girls will love to add this tender tale, enchantingly illustrated, to their Miss Flora collection." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 D 30 '51
120w

+ Kirkus 19:633 N 1 '51 100w

"Eight-nine-year-olds can read this story for themselves. Has possible value for holiday collections. Recommended for large collections and libraries where interest in doll stories is strong." Grace Shakin

+ Library J 76:2120 D 15 '51 80w

"The idea of this doll actually holding the baby New Year is truly childish and charming, and the little tale is a happy one to read aloud to very small children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 25
'51 50w

+ N Y Times p20 D 16 '51 100w

FOSTER, MARIAN CURTIS (MARIANA, pseud). Miss Flora McFlimsey's birthday [il. by the author]. [34p] $1.60; bds $1.25 Lothrop

52-12509

The further adventures of the old fashioned doll, Miss Flora McFlimsey. This time she goes on a visit to Puffin Island because she thinks the doll house inhabitants have forgotten her birthday. But when she comes home again she finds how mistaken she has been. Ages 4 to 8.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52
70w

Horn Bk 28:397 D '52 70w

Kirkus 20:599 S 15 '52 100w

"Suitable for preschool age where birthday stories are needed." F. M. Henssey

Library J 77:1662 O 1 '52 70w

"This latest McFlimsey story, though somewhat paler than usual in its reproductions of Mariana's pale illustrations, is as delectable as its three predecessors. Little girls will hope that Miss Flora has yet more holidays and festivities." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p48 O 19 '52 110w

FOULK, CHARLES WILLIAM, and others. Quantitative chemical analysis; an introduction to the science and practice of chemical measurement. 484p il $5 McGraw

545 Chemistry, Analytic—Quantitative

51-12606

"There is more space given to exposition of theory and background information than to procedures in this new text and laboratory manual. Furthermore, theory and procedures are discussed separately—an advantage to the student or out-of-college reader who wants something for review or self-instruction. The authors are faculty members of Ohio State University." (Library J) Index.

"The laboratory directions are far more detailed than usual, and are particularly good for fundamental techniques in the first experiments. The 48 procedures provide ample material for selection. Technically the book is well done and merits careful consideration. It will undoubtedly fit many courses as they are now offered. It should be particularly valuable for terminal courses." R. L. Pecsok

+ Chem & Eng N 30:4080 S 29 '52 270w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1209 J1 '52 30w

FOWLER, BERTRAM BAYNES. Men, meat and miracles. 245p $3 Messner

338.476649 Meat industry and trade 52-9903

Popular history of the meat packing industry, particularly that centered in Chicago, from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present.

Booklist 48:331 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by Philip Hampson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 4 '52
370w

"A dull, loosely, and carelessly written chronicle of the meat packing industry which smiles indulgently on its big names and achievements which synchronized with a time of vast opportunity as well as opportunism."

— Kirkus 20:212 Mr 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:2001 N 15 '52 40w

"A readable, informative study despite the heavy-handed, bias of the author's viewpoint. Pressing his thumb down hard on the scales in favor of management, Bertram B. Fowler pictures the leaders of the industry as giant-striding titans, supermen overcoming all the onerous obstacles placed in their way by nature, labor, government and the press." W. B. Bracke

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 21 '52
380w

Spring'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 60w

FOWLER, HENRY WATSON, and FOWLER, FRANCIS GEORGE, eds. Concise dictionary of current English; adapted from the Oxford dictionary; 4th ed, rev. by E. McIntosh. 1528p $4; on india pa ½ mor $12.50; ¾ cf $17.50 Oxford

423 English language—Dictionaries

[51-14439]

"This work was first published in 1911, first revised in 1929. The 3d edition (1934) had re-printings in 1938, 1940, 1942, 1944 ('with revised Addenda &c'), 1946, and 1949. The 1929 edition was reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin October 1934 [Book Review Digest 1934]. . . In this edition the system of pronunciation used for the Pocket Oxford Dictionary has been adopted. Other changes are the numbering of the senses, the collection of general abbreviations into an appendix, and the free use of the swung dash (~) to conserve space by representing part or all of the word heading the article. By this practice ~board stands for 'keyboard' in the article key. Forms and compounds are therefore under the first word listed." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 5 '51
550w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 34:23 J1 7 '51 180w

"Within the self-imposed limitations, the definitions are clear, accurate, and complete. . . Based upon a work of unimpeachable scholarship and authority, its own usefulness long established, The Concise Oxford Dictionary of Current English is again recommended to all libraries and persons needing a small one-volume dictionary that is concerned primarily with British usage."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 23:18 Ap '52
1050w

FOX, SIR CYRIL SANKEY. Water; a study of its properties, its constitution, its circulation on the earth, and its utilization by man. 148p il $8.75 Philosophical lib.

551.46 Water. Water supply 52-28234

"A general book for lay readers. A considerable part of the text is filled with such facts as one might turn to an encyclopedia for, but these facts are fitted into a narrative that is fairly readable but not exciting. Most of the chapters are shorter than might be expected from the titles. For example, the chapter on water supply engineering runs to only seven and one-half pages. The book originated in England, and is the initial volume of a planned series of nontechnical books on water supply." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"All in all, the volume would be of considerable interest to a student of the subject or to anyone who wanted some dramatic background information. It would have quite limited practical value to the sanitary engineer or other member of the health department staff." F. B. Elder

Am J Pub Health 42:1138 S '52 220w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:47 My '52

FOX, GEORGE. Journal; a rev. ed. by John L. Nickalls; with an epilogue by Henry J. Cadbury and an introd. by Geoffrey F. Nuttall. 789p $4.50 Cambridge

B or 92 [52-11870]

"This new edition of George Fox's Journal is designed to replace for the general reader the text prepared by Thomas Ellwood, which was first published in 1694 and has been many times reprinted without substantial alterations, in England until 1902, and in America until 1892. . . The present edition is as complete as Ellwood's within the same period. And it expresses the story in Fox's own words in preference to Ellwood's more polished presentation of it. . . In transcribing the text for the present edition the punctuation and spelling, including personal names, have been modernized, and many capital letters occurring in the sources have been dispensed with." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 49:108 N 15 '52

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 7 '52 50w

"John Nickall's The Journal of George Fox ought to win many readers for a spiritual classic: it gives 'a full text . . . sufficiently modernized to appeal to the general reader.'" E. L. Allen

+ Hibbert J 51:87 O '52 30w

"A most valuable publication." M. P. A.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 12 '52 100w

Reviewed by H. R. Trevor-Roper

New Statesman & Nation 44:453 O 18 '52 1700w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R 35:23 D 13 '52 120w

Time 61:34 Ja 5 '53 600w

"Though Mr. Nickalls presents the story in Fox's own words and style, some concessions have been made to a present-day reader's ideas of punctuation and spelling. Unfortunately, many of the capital letters which give so vigorous and emphatic a reflection of the seventeenth-century way of writing have also been dispensed with."

Times [London] Lit Sup p669 O 17 '52 2900w

FOX, JAMES M., pseud. See Knipscheer, J. M. W.

FOX-SMITH, CICELY. See Smith, C. F.

FOYLE, KATHLEEN. Little black calf; il. by Anrid Johnston. 45p $1.25 Warne

Picture storybook about a little black calf brought up on an Irish farm where he was the pet of little Peggy Ann. One fine day when he was feeling very frisky the little black calf got into so much mischief, with such sad results, that he resolved to reform. Ages 5 to 8.

"A fresh flavor of Irish storytelling and sprightly drawings, many in clear green and black, give charm to this little story of a frisky black calf with a fancy for adventuring." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:238 Ag '52 60w

Kirkus 20:280 My 1 '52 100w

"This story, printed in England, is appealing but certainly not a necessary first purchase for American children's collections. . . Writing has a fine lyrical quality which will make it excellent to read aloud." C. S. Gilbert

+ Library J 77:907 My 15 '52 70w

"This well-worn theme is so delightfully handled, in a style with no condescension to the possible easy reader and the two color pictures are so good that the little square English book stands out. It is recommended for those homes which like to read aloud Beatrix Potter." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 My 11 '52 130w

Reviewed by Miriam James

N Y Times p16 Ag 17 '52 70w

"The drawings of the black calf are delightful. Miss Foyle tells the story in words that make it important as a told story. The dialogue among the pigeons sounds like pigeons cooing. The remarks made by the gray donkey are just exactly what an Irish donkey would say. It is a fine choice for a story hour."

+ Sat R 35:34 Jl 19 '52 110w

FRAENGER, WILHELM. Millennium of Hieronymus Bosch; outlines of a new interpretation; tr. by Elthne Wilkins and Ernst Kaiser. 164p il $10 Univ. of Chicago press

759.9492 Bosch, Hieronymus 52-11051

"Bosch was a 15th century Netherlands painter (died 1516) whose best known painting, among several that rate deservedly as masterpieces, is generally called 'The Garden of Earthly Delights.' It hangs in the Museo del Prado, at Madrid. This is the picture which the author calls 'The Millennium.' He finds in it a meaning precisely opposite to the orthodox and edifying message which has been the standard interpretation. It is subtle propaganda for the 'Adamite' heresy." Christian Century

"The book is based on scholarly research in art and in the history of religion. It is illustrated with many pictures, some in color, representing details of this painting and other cognate and contemporaneous paintings and engravings." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:804 Jl 9 '52 750w

"The illustrations, including four details in color, are the best yet published in all the books on Bosch, and the translation is excellent. I shall look forward to the comment of specialists on the ideas contained in this book. Even if they are demolished, which I very much doubt, I shall never regret the fascination with which I read it. I had planned to look through it in a cursory way. The reading time for me turned out to be twelve hours." S. L. Faison

+ Nation 175:96 Ag 2 '52 800w

"The Millennium is a very complex composition, embracing literally hundreds of significant symbols. Dr. Fraenger's task is to elucidate these symbols in detail, and this he does with the aid of his great erudition. It is a fascinating voyage of exploration, and in the end it induces in the reader a good deal of sympathy for this exterminated cult. . . The book is fully illustrated in color and half-tone, and exceptionally well translated."

+ New Repub 127:18 S 1 '52 950w

"An American art spy would have listed the symbols in the triptych, one by one, and rightly. Dr. Fränger picks and chooses and leaves as many unexplained as explained; yet if the book needs to be read with a little Anglo-Mediterranean sense and needs lifting from a

FRAENGER, WILHELM—Continued

German over-ripeness and too-muchness, probably this illumination of Bosch could only have come from a compatriot of Agrippa, Paracelsus, Boehme, Novalis and Goethe, so we must not complain. There is no doubt at all that it reveals in Bosch a new extent and depth of imagination." Geoffrey Grigson

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:279 Mr 8 '52 1050w

"The translators appear to have carried out their task in a workmanlike way."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p170 Mr 7 '52 300w

FRAENKEL, HEINRICH (ASSIAC, pseud).

Pleasures of chess [Eng title; Adventures in chess]. 192p il $3.50 Simon & Schuster

794.1 Chess 52-8559

"This is not meant to be a primer on Chess, nor a guide to acquaint the advanced player with the more subtle points of end-game technique or the merits and demerits of the Grünfeld Defence and the McCutcheon Variation. It is rather an attempt to convey something of the sheer beauty of Chess, its perfect harmony, its inexhaustible wealth of ideas." (Intro) The author conducts a Chess column for the New Statesman and Nation.

Booklist 48:316 Je 1 '52

"The most charming of recent books on how to play the royal game has just arrived from England. . . Throughout the book, in which instruction combines with entertainment, the tantalizing sport is presented through figurative speech that masters might read for pleasure and profit. For even they have much to learn from Caissa." Alfred Kreyborg

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 20 '52 230w

"A little book of great charm." R. O. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ag 17 '52 100w

FRALEY, OSCAR. Golf in action; pictures by Charles Yerlow. 121p $2.95 Wyn

796.35 Golf 52-6926

"Starting with a demonstration of the proper grip by Harold [Jug] McSpaden, this volume then discusses each club in succession as used by one of its outstanding masters: Jimmy Thomson [driver]; Lawson Little [brassie]; Bob Hamilton [three wood]; Vic Ghezzi [four wood]; Ray Gafford [two iron]; Jack Burke Jr. [three iron]; Claude Harmon [four iron]; Craig Wood [five iron]; Toney Penna [six iron]; Johnny Spence [seven iron]; Buck White [eight iron]; Herman Keiser [nine iron]; Al Ciuci [wedge]; and Horton Smith [putter]." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"Excellent volume. . . Illustrated with more than 770 action photographs and with text by a veteran golf writer, this is a notable addition to the list of golfing text books."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 13 '52 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 8 '52 50w

Springf'd Republican p8D My 11 '52 80w

FRANCOISE, pseud. See Seignobosc, F.

FRANK, ANNE. Diary of a young girl; tr. from the Dutch by B. M. Mooyaart-Double-day; with an introd. by Eleanor Roosevelt. 285p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—Jews. Netherlands—History—German occupation, 1940-1945 52-6355

Diary of a German-Jewish girl who for two years lived with her parents in a warehouse in Holland during the Nazi regime. After the Nazis discovered their hiding place the members of the family were sent to concentration camps, and Anne died in Bergen-Belsen in 1945. The diary, which was discovered and saved by friends, covers the years 1942 to 1944, three days before the arrival of the Nazis.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 190:70 S '52 230w

Booklist 48:318 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 12:5 O '52 30w

"Her writing is as rich as her character. Poetry, insight and humor mark every entry; longings for peace and tranquility, for the fullness of life, for the fame of a writer, for a friend of the heart are expressed in language beautiful and womanly." J. D. Casgrain

+ Cath World 175:395 Ag '52 260w

Reviewed by M. B. Snyder

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 22 '52 350w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 3 '52 650w

"The picture assembled shows Anne's thoughts and emotions to have been typical of her age; their articulation is astonishingly mature. She is interested in all the usual objects of an intelligent teen-age girl's consideration—studies and parties and presents and frocks; abstract ideas of courage and virtue; her family, and, of course, her boy friends. Against the grim background of the Jewish pogrom, these commonplaces are much more than usually touching. Anne's romance with Peter Van Daan is the very type and model of early love, all innocent experiment and wild surmise—but with death itself standing just beyond." Jean Holzhauser

+ Commonweal 56:297 Je 27 '52 650w

"Written with honesty and liveliness, it cannot fail to impress all young people who read it." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:248 Ag '52 200w

"This record is incredibly wise in its assessment of human relationships and revealing in its picture of a girl growing up. I wondered, however, whether the intense introspection and the almost painful honesty would be too much for young people. I should have remembered that young people are themselves introspective as a group; that such a book would mirror for them some of their own feelings." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 28:425 D '52 320w

"Of permanent usefulness to the small public library." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 77:589 My 15 '52 130w

"Anne's journal is not only highly interesting as a vivid factual record of life in Amsterdam during the most oppressive and terrifying years of the war, it is also a remarkable study in the psychology of a small group of people forced to live together in almost unbearable proximity." Antonia White

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:592 My 17 '52 650w

"Her book should be read for a long time, especially by parents and others who want to understand young people or remember how it feels to be young. Few persons ever gain the insight into themselves and others that Anne had already. Her straightforward picture of adolescence and of war is enlightening and deeply moving." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 15 '52 1100w

"Anne Frank's diary is too tenderly intimate a book to be frozen with the label 'classic,' and yet no lesser designation serves. For little Anne Frank, spirited, moody, witty, self-doubting, succeeded in communicating in virtually perfect, or classic, form the drama of puberty. But her book is not a classic to be left on the library shelf. It is a warm and stirring confession, to be read over and over for insight and enjoyment." Meyer Levin

+ N Y Times p1 Je 15 '52 1900w

New Yorker 28:106 Je 21 '52 120w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Je 29 '52 850w

Reviewed by Ludwig Lewisohn

+ Sat R 35:20 Jl 19 '52 950w

"It is a touchingly naive and also a valuable revelation." O. B.

+ Spec 188:726 My 30 '52 300w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springfld Republican p6D Ag 10 '52 600w

"The diary is one of the most moving stories that anyone, anywhere, has managed to tell about World War II."

+ Time 59:102 Je 16 '52 1150w

FRANK, GEORGE HERBERT. Manufacture of intermediates and dyes; an introduction to works practice. 177p il $4.50 Chemical pub. co.

667.2 Dyes and dyeing [51-33256]

"The practical aspects of the manufacture of dyestuffs and dyestuffs intermediates are covered in this short book. Selected general aspects are discussed in the first part, but most of the space is devoted to compact statements on the commercial manufacture of particular compounds. Quantities are usually stated in terms of hundreds of pounds or gallons and commercial rather than laboratory apparatus and procedures are described. The work originated in England, hence there are minor differences in terminology in comparison to American writings on the subject." N Y New Tech Bks

"Anyone interested in intermediates and dyes should become acquainted with this practical and helpful book."

+ Chem & Eng N 30:2932 Jl 14 '52 260w
N Y New Tech Bks 37:37 My '52

FRANK, JOHN PAUL. My son's story. 209p $3 Knopf

616.8 Children, Abnormal and backward 51-11980

Describes the first few months of life of the author's son, his sudden illness; the discovery that the child was mentally defective; and the decision to place him in an institution run by Catholic sisters.

Booklist 48:224 Mr 15 '52

Bookmark 11:180 My '52 30w

Reviewed by V. P. Hass

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 23 '52 180w

"A bare, direct record of the tragedy of a defective child which has been transcribed with great sincerity and containment, primarily in the hope of helping other parents who are faced with a situation such as this."

+ Kirkus 20:24 Ja 1 '52 260w

"Mr. Frank relates this story of his personal tragedy without sentimentality, without bitterness. His approach to his problem is intelligent, well-considered. Books such as this should be made available through libraries."

E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:529 Mr 15 '52 100w

"The sincerity and directness with which Mr. Frank (and in one chapter, Mrs. Frank) tell their child's story makes it appealing, rather than lugubrious, to even the ordinary reader and should prove of great comfort and aid to the parents and friends of other unfortunate children. The Franks' honesty and intelligence and self-control, and the love with which they and the Sisters have surrounded John Peter, give dignity to the figure of the little boy whose plight lies beyond the bounds of scientific knowledge." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Mr 16 '52 600w

"This book, written with simple dignity and admirable courage, is a great human document." Hermann Vollmer

+ N Y Times p16 Mr 9 '52 460w

Reviewed by Ernest Cady

+ Sat R 35:20 My 31 '52 800w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert

Springfld Republican p21A Mr 23 '52 110w

"The book is written with much restraint, and consequently, great power. Aside from its value as a human document, the searchlight that is turned on institutions—or rather the lack of them—may well make civic leaders more conscious of the responsibility of the community. It is also a tribute to Roman Catholic institutions in general and to the Felician Sisters of St. Rita's Home, to whom the book is dedicated." Hannah Kahn

+ Survey 88:233 My '52 300w

Time 59:82 Mr 24 '52 650w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:116 Je '52 200w

FRANK, PAT. Hold back the night. 210p $3 Lippincott

51-11197

This novel relates an incident of the war in Korea, telling "the story of Dog Company, a Marine unit, whose mission it was to cover the retreat of an American regiment from the Changjin reservoir to Hungnam on the Korean coast." (Commonweal)

"Hold Back the Night is a skillful and honest piece of documentary fiction."

+ Atlantic 189:86 Ap '52 140w

Booklist 48:189; 196 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:158 Ap '52 30w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:74 Ap '52 240w

"It is a tense and thrilling tale, faithfully recreating the miserable conditions under which men have fought in Korea and elsewhere. . . . However, the author is so obviously in love with his marines that they emerge as idealized prototypes of men, lacking the depth and roundness of individuals." J. H. Thompson

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 9 '52 300w

Reviewed by Gordon Walker

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 6 '52 650w

"Despite limitations, the novel is worthwhile. If the author's intention, as he seems to indicate, was to paint a glowing tribute to American fighting men, he has succeeded admirably." Jerome Smiley

+ — Commonweal 55:596 Mr 21 '52 400w

+ Kirkus 19:500 S 1 '51 170w

"Though the characters are well drawn, it is rather a memorable piece of war reporting than a novel." H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 S 26 '52 100w

"The background against which Mr. Frank makes these men move is a remarkable one. For the Korean War, to the fighting man, is something different from wars that have gone before, and Mr. Frank has caught all its agonizing heartbreak and heroism. . . . Through Mr. Frank's story one can share both the exhaustion and exultation of soldiers who have accomplished a grim mission at frightful cost." Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 16 '52 320w

"Pat Frank, who wrote 'Mr. Adam,' that top-drawer fantasy about the last fertile male in the A-bomb Era, is dead serious in 'Hold Back the Night.' He dedicates his latest novel to the United States Marines. As a factual reconstruction of their bravery, this book comes through with banners flying, but a reader often gets the feeling that he's being bracketed by a propaganda barrage—for our side, of course—from a very hot type-writer." Herbert Mitgang

N Y Times p21 Mr 9 '52 550w

"A flatly told, likable, but somehow thin novel."

+ — New Yorker 28:133 Mr 22 '52 70w

"Mr. Frank negotiates the long leap from the droll fantasy of 'Mr. Adam' to the raw reality of the Korean War in 'Hold Back the Night' with unexpected skill. What is more, he achieves certain unusual merits in his handling of the war novel. For one thing, he is brief. For another, and without loss of 'toughness,' he has his say without overdoing either obscenities or horrors. Best of all, his Marines seem to know what the fighting is all about." Charles Lee

+ Sat R 35:13 Mr 8 '52 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p625 S 26 '52 130w

FRANKEL, CHARLES. Bear and the beaver; il. by Bill Crawford. [27]p $1.75 Sloane

51-13201

"The bear, a little sleepy and most nonchalant, changes places with the beaver while the latter goes off to the bear's cave for the winter. The bear goes furiously to work and in the process learns great truths about food-getting, personal responsibility and efficiency. More important to the bear, the beaver and the reader, however, is the discovery that hibernation is a most important way of life." N Y Times

Bookmark 11:85 Ja '52

Kirkus 19:578 O 1 '51 120w

"A humorous story a little like The Bear That Wasn't by Tashlin, and for the same audience, mostly adult. And yet, right around seven and eight years there is an appreciation for the less subtle parts of this type of story." Recommended—with above reservations." S. J. Johnson

Library J 76:2120 D 15 '51 70w

"A book which will be as popular with adults as with children and one which incorporates a whole philosophy of life." C. E. Van Norman
+ N Y Times p50 O 21 '51 130w

FRANKEL, LILLIAN, and FRANKEL, GODFREY. 101 best action games for boys 6 to 12; with drawings by John Fischetti. 128p $2 Sterling

793 Games 52-10512

Collection of games, ice-breakers, stunts, etc. for boys of six to twelve. Includes both indoor and outdoor games.

Booklist 48:383 J1 15 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 J1 6 '52 80w

Kirkus 20:340 Je 15 '52 190w

"The directions are clearly and quite simply written, so that the book will be used by children themselves. Recommended for all who work and play with children." O. R. Way
+ Library J 77:1212 J1 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p36
N 16 '52 20w

FRANKEL, LILLIAN, and FRANKEL, GODFREY. 101 best games for teen-agers; with drawings by John Fischetti [introd. by Edward C. Lindeman]. 127p $2 Sterling

793 Games 51-14217

"A collection of usable games for teen-agers, or any age, some for parties, some for picnics, some for the family drive on Sunday. There are many of the old familiars and many with a new twist. Just the thing for an anxious hostess." Library J

Booklist 48:146 D 15 '51

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 24 '52 50w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 N '51

Reviewed by R. M. McAvoy

Library J 77:69 Ja 1 '52 40w

"All have been tested out in group work by the authors, and the introduction to all this fun is by the social philosopher, Edward C. Lindeman." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 13 '52 40w

"Lillian and Godfrey Frankel have rendered a real service to educators and parents in helping to meet the changing problems of boys and girls of high school age. In the past the 12-20 age group may have been neglected in simple but interesting games for their social gatherings and group meetings, leaving it up to leaders and teachers to use their individual resources in figuring out suitable programs." J. W. C.

+ Springfield Republican p8C D 16 '51 60w

FRANKEN, ROSE D. (LEWIN) (MRS WILLIAM BROWN MELONEY). Fragile years [Eng title: Those fragile years]. 319p $3.50 Doubleday

52-10410

This seventh novel in the series about Claudia and her David is filled with tragedies: the death of their oldest son; David's illness; Bertha, the perfect maid, breaks her leg; the trials of their beloved friend Candy. But Claudia manages to come up smiling, helping others on the way.

Booklist 49:105 N 15 '52

Reviewed by M. B. Snyder

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 28 '52 430w

Kirkus 20:428 J1 15 '52 130w

"Miss Franken has exploited this young couple for many years, at first with a civilized brand of sentimentality which made them appealing. More recently, however, her formula has grown weary. The tragedies mount almost to a soap opera level, and the small details of living which used to be the skillful counterpoint to drama, have become trivial without charm. As is plain in this most recent book, one must face the fact that Claudia and David cannot remain young forever."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 O 19 '52 410w

"The delightful badinage-without-wisecracking in which David and Claudia have always communicated has lost none of its comic savor. . . Miss Franken's touch is as sure and unexaggerated as ever in the homely details of family life, but she has thought up an inordinate number of catastrophes, considering the brief time-span of 'The Fragile Years.'" Nancie Matthews

+ N Y Times p45 O 19 '52 380w

Springf'd Republican p5C D 21 '52 70w

FRANKLIN, BENJAMIN. Bird in the hand; sayings from Poor Richard's almanack; pictured by Maud and Miska Petersham. (This is America bks) [36p] $2.50 Macmillan

51-8266

After a short biographical sketch of Franklin, the Petershams have selected and illustrated in color twenty-four of the sayings from Poor Richard's Almanack.

Booklist 48:149 D 15 '51

+ Cath World 174:321 Ja '52 50w

"Good Americana, though somewhat of a luxury item." Claire Nolte

+ Library J 76:2014 D 1 '51 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 F 3 '52 70w

"The combination of the great Franklin and one of America's foremost author-illustrator teams results in a beautiful picture book, the fourth in the Petershams' 'This Is America' series." C. E. Van Norman

+ N Y Times p28 Ja 13 '52 160w

Reviewed by K. T. Kinkead

+ New Yorker 27:172 D 1 '51 50w

"An irresistible humor runs all through these spirited drawings that illustrate Benjamin Franklin's wise and witty 'sayings.'"

+ Sat R of Lit 34:46 D 15 '51 140w

Wis Lib Bul 48:40 Ja '52

FRANKLIN, GEORGE CORY. Mining the iron mask; il. by William Moyers. 204p $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

A story of adventure and hard work in a Western mountain country. Heroes are two high school boys who try to earn money for college by working during the summer. For ages 10 to 14.

Kirkus 20:192 Mr 15 '52 130w

"Story would be more convincing if the heroes did not overcome the rigors of outdoor life so easily and if their characters were more fully developed." A. B. Martin

Library J 77:541 Mr 15 '52 80w

"A good story based on possible facts." L. S. Bechtel
 + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 11 '52 120w

"Along with a number of exciting incidents involving a rival pack train of mules, blizzards, searching for ore, the author presents a picture of mining which is so obviously based on fact that boys will probably not mind too much the fact that the story line is weak. A glossary of mining terms is included." Iris Vinton

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '52 110w
 "A good outdoor story that glorifies enterprise and honest hard work." M. P. Allen
 + Sat R 35:57 My 10 '52 110w

FRANKLIN, GEORGE CORY. Shorty's mule [pictures by William Moyers]. 45p $2.25 Houghton

52-5914

Story of a western cowboy who adopted a mule as a pet, and how the mule became a hero. Ages 4 to 8.

Booklist 49:74 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:498 Ag 15 '52 80w

"Satisfactory addition to the western shelf if more stories of this type are needed." A. B. Martin

Library J 77:2076 D 1 '52 40w

"It is obvious that both author and artist know the southwest and its animals well. The result has quality and realism." L. S. Bechtel
 + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p5 N 16 '52 70w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p48 N 30 '52 120w

"The drawings of Smokey are so good that small boys will envy Shorty. They are very clear, vigorous black and white drawings, so many of them that they almost tell the story without the text. This will undoubtedly be a popular picture book."

+ Sat R 35:67 N 15 '52 60w

FRANKLIN, SIDNEY. Bullfighter from Brooklyn; with an evaluation of Sidney Franklin from Death in the afternoon, by Ernest Hemingway. 245p $3.75 Prentice-Hall

B or 92 Bull fights 52-10661

Autobiography of the first American bullfighter to attain fame in Mexico and Spain. He writes of his friendship with Ernest Hemingway and of their part in the Spanish civil war, as well as of bullfighting. No index.

"I do not know whether the hand that manipulated the cape has itself tapped the typewriter, but what matters is that the fantastic story of the one and only great American bullfighter has been told simply, swiftly, and vividly." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 190:107 N '52 400w

Booklist 49:124 D 1 '52

"If Sidney Franklin were half as good at writing as he is at bull fighting, this might be twice the book it is. As it stands, it is a painfully unremarkable account of a remarkable man's exploits in a bizarre profession." V. P. Hass

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 N 30 '52 200w

"Franklin's autobiography is, in brief, the story of a man. And as the words of the old W. C. Handy tune have it 'a good man nowadays is hard to find'—if by 'man' is meant someone who aspires to the word 'stature' in the Spanish sense and brings courage, discipline, talent and decency to the attempt." John McKeon

+ Commonweal 57:233 D 5 '52 900w

Kirkus 20:693 O 15 '52 280w

"Author has almost as much facility with words as with the cape, and his descriptions of the perilous hours in the ring are often eloquent. Highly recommended for all collections desiring to cover subject adequately." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:1895 N 1 '52 100w

"A good many people knew Franklin had a remarkable story to tell and for at least ten years have been trying in one fashion or another to get him to tell it. Now that it has been told, one can wish it had been told better and with the kind of detail and consciousness of motivation that a good novelist might supply." Harry Sylvester

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 14 '52 500w

"Though edited, the book was not ghost written, and the story is told with gusto and color and vividness. There are parts that are harder to swallow than others. . . . Several Americans have tried their hand at this, the most dangerous game in the world, but only one has become a full matador. He is an extraordinary person and he has written an extraordinary book." Barnaby Conrad

+ N Y Times p7 N 9 '52 480w

"Mr. Franklin is nothing if not glib, and he emerges from this autobiography more as a performer—and a star, at that—than as a believable human being. Photographs, mainly of the author in action."

New Yorker 28:180 D 13 '52 160w

"All this is told pleasantly, with perhaps more than a trace of pride, but why not? Franklin was good; he made his way in the face of natural hostility; an American was not supposed to beat Spaniards at their own game. He is entitled to what pride he displays." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 10 '52 700w

Springf'd Republican p7C D 7 '52 110w

FRAZIER, MRS NETA (LOHNES). My love is a gypsy. 183p $2.50 Longmans

52-5638

A novel for girls. The heroine is a young high school girl living near Spokane. During a summer while her father and mother are in South America she has to solve some important problems.

Kirkus 20:75 F 1 '52 150w

"Though this is not remarkable in plot or style, it is, nonetheless, pleasant to encounter a heroine with a sense of responsibility beyond finding herself a date every night. . . . Recommended." C. A. Hulton

+ Library J 77:802 My 1 '52 80w

"Even to fill a reader-interest need, purchase is unjustifiable because of the shadowy characterization, childish repetition of the horizons idea, and trumped-up opportunities for bringing in historical interest. Not recommended." F. W. Butler

— Library J 77:802 My 1 '52 80w

"It all offers girls of twelve up a healthy story of hard work and first love, perhaps without as much of the love as they would like, but with a very happy ending." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 13 '52 130w

"This is an unpretentious story somewhere between the straight boy-meets-girl and the girl-finds-job types, with a slight mystery which surely will not puzzle readers as much as it does Skee and Linden. The lesson that everything is interesting if you only look at it in the right way seems somewhat underlined. However, for 12 to 14 year old girls interested in the simpler books this offers pleasant reading." M. C. Scoggin

N Y Times p28 Je 8 '52 160w

"Interesting characters, good writing, and a deep feeling for the country round Spokane and its history make this a rewarding story."

+ Sat R 35:61 Ap 12 '52 140w

"Should be of interest to teen-age girls in any part of the country."

+ School & Society 75:221 Ap 5 '52 40w

FREEMAN, DOUGLAS SOUTHALL. George Washington, a biography; 7v; v5; Victory with the help of France. 570p il $7.50 Scribner

B or 92 Washington, George (48-8880)

The fifth volume of this biography of Washington covers five years, from April 1778 to

FREEMAN, D. S.—Continued

Christmas Eve, 1783, when the General came back to Mt Vernon. Bibliographical note. Index.

Reviewed by R. E. Danielson
Atlantic 190:76 D '52 1850w
Booklist 49:57; 66 O 15 '52

Reviewed by Paul Engle
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 19 '52 500w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 6 '52 500w

Current Hist 23:395 D '52 100w
+ Kirkus 20:585 S 1 '52 210w

"Recommended, of course." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 77:1647 O 1 '52 110w

Reviewed by George Genzmer
Nation 175:388 O 25 '52 700w

"The accounts of his last actions as commander—his farewell to his officers at Fraunces Tavern and to Congress when he resigned his commission—are deeply moving. At the end Mr. Freeman sums up Washington as a commander and a man. Many of the points he makes are implicit in the previous story of events, but the long summary is most illuminating." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 O 19 '52 1200w

"The clarity and precision of the writing denote a mastery of the material, within the limits imposed by the conception of the work. An effect of greatness is achieved without resort to the grandiose." C. P. Nettels

+ N Y Times p6 O 19 '52 1150w

"A wholly commendable work."

+ New Yorker 28:154 O 25 '52 100w

"It is not alone the drama of the period that creates the degree of interest peculiar to this volume; Washington comes alive as never before." W. M. Wallace

+ Sat R 35:14 O 18 '52 1200w

Time 60:106 N 3 '52 490w

FREEMAN, KATHLEEN (MARY FITT, pseud). God, man and state; Greek concepts. 240p $3.25 Beacon press

180 Philosophy, Ancient [52-3386]

"The purpose of this book is to present in non-technical language, for ordinary intelligent men and women, what the Greeks said about five fundamental matters with which modern thought is much preoccupied, and over which modern theory is often wildly astray, namely, God, Man, Society, Education and Law." Pref

"Kathleen Freeman knows all that is important about ancient Greece. She has made the thinking of the Greek masters so completely her own that she is able to accomplish a difficult task of condensation and exposition with lucidity and perspective that merit the admiration of scholars." C. E. Smith

+ Ann Am Acad 282:188 J1 '52 290w

"Dr. Freeman is an experienced classical teacher who can communicate her enthusiasm for the world of ancient Greece engagingly and with accuracy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p317 My 9 '52 460w

FREEMAN, MRS MAE (BLACKER). Fun with ballet. 60p il $1.50 Random house

792.8 Ballet 52-9963

Instructions in simple text illustrated fully with photographs for the beginner in ballet dancing. The photographs are by the author and her ten-year old daughter posed for them.

Booklist 49:112 N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:83 Ja '53

Kirkus 20:659 O 1 '52 120w

"Inexpensive and extremely accurate, this is a ballet book for every library where there is interest in the art." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 77:1907 N 1 '52 30w

"This is a simpler, shorter book than the several good ones which have preceded it, and gives no background information about ballet." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 14 '52 90w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p14 D 21 '52 70w

"This is the very first book for girls who want to study seriously the art of ballet dancing."

+ Sat R 35:68 N 15 '52 30w

FREEMAN, WILLIAM. Concise dictionary of English idioms. 300p $2.95 Crowell

423.1 English language—Idioms [51-2718]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The definitions are consistently clear, without ambiguity, and the illustrative sentences are apt. . . . Less inclusive than other books of its kind, the selectivity of this title constitutes a point of value, since the idioms included are in current and universal use among English-speaking peoples. Because of its ease of use, clarity of definition and illustration, and price, the book merits recommendation for circulating and reference use."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 23:17 Ap '52 900w

FREEMAN, WILLIAM. Oliver Goldsmith. 286p $4.50 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Goldsmith, Oliver [52-2335]

A full-length biography of this Irish author, based in part on sources which have hitherto not been readily accessible. Bibliography. Index.

"[Goldsmith is], even now, slightly mysterious, for his works are not widely read, his burial-place is unknown, he left no family, and his relations in Ireland long ago sank back into oblivion. But the contrast between success and poverty, fame and oblivion, adds flavour to Goldsmith's biography; and no one who reads Mr. Freeman's book will doubt that Master Noll is endearing and entertaining." J. R.

+ Spec 188:60 Ja 11 '52 260w

"In his own lifetime, Goldsmith charmed and irritated everyone who met him, and most of his biographers have found themselves in the same emotional predicament as his contemporaries. Mr. Freeman is content to let the events speak for themselves and, by happy or unhappy chance, many details of Goldsmith's life are known."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p270 Ap 18 '52 450w

FREIDEL, FRANK. Franklin D. Roosevelt; 6v; v 1, The apprenticeship. 456p il $6 Little B or 92 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano

(52-5521)

The first of a six volume biography. This covers the period from F.D.R.'s birth thru the first World War, when he was assistant Secretary of the Navy under Woodrow Wilson. Index.

Booklist 49:124 D 1 '52

"This work was begun by Dr. Freidel 10 years ago. It was undertaken as a labor of love and the approach, while humble in view of the mountainous mass of Roosevelt documentation—a lifetime of reading to say nothing of evaluation and writing—is frankly adulatory." Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 2 '52 460w

"For the general reader, Dr. Freidel during many years of research has developed a wealth of material—much of it previously unavailable—and skilfully fashioned it into a well-paced, consistently readable story." P. V. Farrell

+ Commonweal 57:236 D 5 '52 430w

Kirkus 20:622 S 15 '52 240w

"A distinguished biography and basically important as source for historical data." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1647 O 1 '52 200w

"Professor Freidel, who teaches history at the University of Illinois, has been working on his monumental study since 1945, and the first volume impressively attests the thoroughness of his research and his complete mastery of great masses of material. . . The chief values of Mr. Freidel's opening volume are the comprehensiveness of his reporting and the objectivity of his evaluations." Peter Gay

+ Nation 175:528 D 6 '52 550w

"Here is the substructure for a fine, perhaps a great biography; but it is only the foundation. What is actually presented in this volume is an account of an amiable, interesting and fortunate young man, pleasant enough, but with no claim to distinction above a thousand others of the Groton-Harvard types." G. W. Johnson

New Repub 127:21 N 10 '52 850w

"Despite the enormous researches which went into this volume, the pages are never clogged with petty detail. Mr. Freidel writes easily and has a nice appreciation of the anecdote, although some of his and F. D. R.'s best stories have been relegated to the footnotes. This is a pleasant and instructive book to read, and future volumes are sure to be awaited with eagerness by its readers." G. A. Craig

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 30 '52 800w

"Throughout, the author has freed himself from the processes of judgment. Apparently he has not learned that facts are not in themselves clear, transparent and unquestionable, or that their mere statement is sometimes as much of a problem as a solution. Buzzing over the massive accumulation of papers at Hyde Park, Mr. Freidel alights on every flower of fact, regardless of whether he can extract the honey of truth. Consequently, his book becomes slightly a monotone. It has a few high-lights; it never works to a climax." H. B. Swope

N Y Times p10 N 9 '52 750w

New Yorker 28:56 Ja 3 '53 120w

"Mr. Freidel has done well for his Volume I. He sifts out some gold and paints an attractive portrait of the young Roosevelt. But if ten years went into the preparation of this volume, one wonders when such a large scale undertaking will be complete and whether six volumes will be enough." Lindsay Rogers

+ Sat R 35:17 N 15 '52 650w

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas

Springfd Republican p6D D 28 '52 500w

FRENCH, PAUL, pseud. See Asimov, I.

FRENCH, THOMAS MORTON. Integration of behavior; 5v; v 1, Basic postulates. 272p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

131.34 Psychoanalysis (52-7329)

"This is the first of a five volume work in which the author aims to identify the components of the process whereby motivating energy is channelled into goal-directed activity. The author states that there are two determinants of behavior: motivation, and insight. It is with the latter as it operates to direct behavior, consciously or unconsciously, within 'integrative fields,' that the work is concerned." (Am Soc R) Index.

"This is a thoughtful volume meriting careful study. The author builds each step in his logic painstakingly on the preceding steps, defining and illustrating his terminology carefully as he proceeds." R. H. Turner

+ Am Soc R 17:513 Ag '52 600w

"The task Dr. French sets himself is a difficult one, but in the careful thought and clinical observation manifested throughout this initial volume, the author demonstrates his competence to meet it. The complete work should represent a signal contribution to psychiatry."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:189 Je '52 200w

FREUCHEN, PETER. Law of Lariion; tr. from the Danish by Evelyn Ramsden. 313p $3.75 McGraw

51-13606

Historical novel based on the life of Lariion, an Alaskan Indian chief, who ruled the Yukon region a hundred years ago.

Booklist 48:297 My 15 '52

"This somber novel is written in a style of powerful simplicity. It is a tale of terrible hardship and of desolate defiance in a land of harsh and austere beauty. It offers a fascinating picture of primitive life—the native crafts and traditions, the fighting and the feasting, the endurance and the defeat of a proud people in their encounter with the world of civilized men. No one but Peter Freuchen could have told this rich, somber, deeply ironic tale." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 25 '52 330w

Kirkus 20:211 Mr 15 '52 210w

Reviewed by E. L. Acken

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 4 '52 450w

"Peter Freuchen, who knows Alaska as a housewife knows her kitchen table, has written a gripping and moving tale." R. L. Neuberger

+ N Y Times p22 My 18 '52 460w

"Mr. Freuchen, an abrupt and somewhat off-hand writer, gives a very thin and wavering impression of Lariion's character and personality but leaves an unexpectedly vivid picture of some of the lesser people who surrounded him."

New Yorker 28:138 My 10 '52 150w

"Toward the final third of his book, after having consistently told the story from the Indian's viewpoint and allowed us to see the white men through their eyes, the author switches viewpoint frequently. This is a let-down, as technically it is a weakness. And I venture to doubt the Russians dispensed distilled liquor in the measure Mr. Freuchen indicates. . . But these are minor considerations. How the translation compares with the original I've no idea, but the English face for the most part has the air of an original. I recommend this book to those liking their reading matter readable." Hector Chevigny

+ — Sat R 35:17 Je 28 '52 650w

FREUD, SIGMUND. On dreams; tr. by James Strachey. 120p $2.50 Norton

135 Dreams. Psychoanalysis 52-6730

A new translation of a short book by Freud which was first published in German in 1901 (later editions in 1911 and 1921) and in an English translation in 1914. "Almost exactly a year after the publication of The Interpretation of Dreams—during the last two or three months of 1900—Freud wrote the present short discussion of the same topic. . . The immense accumulation of detailed observations is represented here by only a few specimens; the elaborate dissection of the theories of earlier writers is entirely absent; and the discussion of the bearing of Freud's study of dreams upon our understanding of the whole structure and functioning of the human mind is no more than slightly touched on in these pages. Nevertheless, within the narrow limits which he here imposed on himself, Freud succeeded in giving a comprehensive but easily intelligible account of his views on the nature and mechanism of dreams." (Translator's note)

Booklist 48:258 Ap 15 '52

Reviewed by Bernard Harris

New Statesman & Nation 44:244 Ag 30 '52 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 30 '52 120w

"It may be regarded as a summary restatement of the more important portions of The Interpretation of Dreams, shorn both of their extensive empirical background and the more involved theoretical issues which Freud considered them to raise. As such, it fulfils its purpose admirably and was doubtless widely read during the earlier years of the present century. It is, however, rather difficult to see any real justification for a fresh translation. . . It is a pity that the translator of this book did not see fit to preface it with some account of recent developments in the study of dream mechanisms."

FREUD, SIGMUND—Continued

Times [London] Lit Sup p381 Je 6 '52
480w

FREUD, SIGMUND. Totem and taboo; some points of agreement between the mental lives of savages and neurotics; authorized translation by James Strachey. 172p $3 Norton
572 Psychoanalysis. Taboo. Totemism 52-6145

"This work, a classic of psychoanalysis, is here presented in an entirely new translation in which quotations and references are verified and inaccuracies corrected. In addition, the present book contains the preface especially written for it by Freud in 1939. The four essays that make up this volume, as Freud explains, seek to bridge the gap between such subjects as social anthropology, philology, and folklore on the one hand, and psychoanalysis on the other." Publisher's note

Reviewed by S. K. Weinberg
Am Soc R 17:523 Ag '52 230w
Booklist 48:180 F 1 '52

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 10 '52
180w

"One of Freud's most exciting works, if not his best. . . It has an authorized translation by John Strachey, which guarantees a deft and lucid English. Though at points the book has been questioned by specialists, particularly in anthropology, it hardly matters; of greater significance than its specific accuracies or inaccuracies is the light Freud throws on primitive societies and mentalities." Harvey Breit
+ N Y Times p29 F 3 '52 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 30 '52
110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p361 Je 8 '51
1450w

FREY, CHARLES WEISER (FERGUSON FINDLEY, pseud). Man in the middle. 217p $2.75 Duell; Little 52-5863

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:139 F 15 '52 60w

"Mr. Findley manages a kind of control over his plot to about the midpoint after which action at any cost is his means of stretching it out to the final page." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 8 '52
40w

"Findley has improved a great deal in storytelling vigor and movement—enough so that this tale of a vengeful Marine on the rampage might make good entertainment if the actions of any of the parties involved from the Communist agents to the F. B. I. possessed the faintest plausibility." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p20 My 4 '52 50w

"The whole set-up is notably silly. C minus."
L. G. Offord
— San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 4 '52
40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:47 My 24 '52 20w

FREYDBERG, MARGARET HOWE. The bride. 217p $2.75 Harper 52-8472

A short novel which explores the character of Mary Madden on her wedding day and at the beginning of her honeymoon. Mary had been too much sheltered by her parents, but she was intelligent, and Philip, her young husband, was an understanding person. After surviving the big storm in Long Island Sound, where they were honeymooning on a sloop, it looked as if Philip and Mary would make a success of their marriage.

Booklist 49:67 O 15 '52

Reviewed by Maureen Daly

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 31 '52
270w

Kirkus 20:328 Je 1 '52 190w

"Recommended reading for brides, bridegrooms, and parents of marriageable daughters." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 77:1302 Ag '52 40w

"A simple canvas for a delicate, sensitive, extremely well executed portrait of girl-into-woman—a delicately convincing day-long study of maturity in the making, à la femme. A delightful novel for any woman, and especially recommended for the perusal of all bridegrooms." Margaret Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 10 '52 400w

"'The Bride' fails, despite the seriousness of Miss Freydberg's intentions, because she has oversimplified both her characters and her situation. It must be said, however, that she writes skillfully and that she has handled what might have been a thoroughly sticky situation with delicacy and good taste." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 10 '52 280w

"This is a good deal to attempt in a short novel, and the author does not always bring it off perfectly. An example is her handling of the brief, sharp quarrel between Mary and Philip. This was necessary to show Mary's still-childish side and Philip's still-immature obstinacy, both in the process of change, but the episode seems to me badly overwritten. Nevertheless, in most ways, 'The Bride' succeeds beautifully in doing what its author wants it to do. It is a remarkably perceptive, penetrating piece of work for anybody's first book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 12 '52 650w

"Our interest in the fine shadings of feeling which the characters are constantly exploring is constantly being shattered by gaucheries of dialogue which sound completely improbable. 'Wow,' the heroine is constantly saying. These faults apart, Mrs. Freydberg's study is a pleasant and often perceptive look at some of the problems that arise as people strive to establish intimate personal relationships." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:55 N 8 '52 200w

FRIEDEL, ROBERT AUGUSTINE, and ORCHIN, MILTON. Ultraviolet spectra of aromatic compounds. 52p il $10 Wiley

535.8 Spectrum, Ultra-violet. Spectrum analysis—Tables, etc. 51-8747

"A collection of the ultraviolet spectra of 579 polynuclear aromatic compounds together with some expert discussion of the use of such spectra in chemical analysis. According to the authors, about half of the included spectra have been taken from the published literature, and the other half are original determinations by the authors and other workers in Bureau of Mines laboratories. Graduate chemists interested in the use of ultraviolet absorption spectra in organic analysis will use the book as a reference tool and as an introduction to ultraviolet spectroscopy." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"We welcome the appearance of this beautifully executed catalog." W. G. Brown

+ Am Chem Soc J 74:1873 Ap 5 '52 120w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:27 Mr '52

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:214 Je '52 220w

FRIEDMAN, ROSE. Tim Tomkins, circus boy; pictures by Polly Jackson. [26p] $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury 52-11649

Story of a small boy who thought he wanted to join the circus. But the thought of leaving home cured him and he learned to do stunts in his own backyard. Ages 4 to 8.

Kirkus 20:365 Jl 1 '52 80w

"Story appeal: younger children. . . Recommended." Averil Randall
+ Library J 77:1410 S 1 '52 70w
N Y Times p52 N 9 '52 80w

FRIEDRICH, CARL JOACHIM. Age of the baroque, 1610-1660. (Rise of modern Europe) 367p il $5; college ed $3.75 Harper

940.22 Europe—History 52-5435

"The author, a professor of political history at Harvard, places the baroque period in Europe between 1610 and 1660. . . His study ranges over the fields of politics (Richelieu, Mazarin, Cromwell, and James I are discussed), religion, art, music, letters, and the sciences." (New Yorker) Bibliographical essay. Index.

Booklist 48:336 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p5 Jl 31 '52 470w

"It is beyond this reviewer's more limited capacities to judge whether all this is always done with authority. The chapters on the political life are certainly excellent and even give some new viewpoints in the judgment of a time as often written about as the English Restoration. The chapters on sculpture and poetry and on the religious life of the period are not always on the same high level." Max Fischer

+ — Commonweal 56:229 Je 6 '52 1150w

"An admirably expressed collection of data on the times, this is a period lover's gift to his followers and potential followers—a wonderful characterization that is as pleasing though not as compact as Burckhardt's study of the Renaissance."

+ Kirkus 20:108 F 1 '52 230w

"Highly recommended for college and larger public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 77:592 Ap 1 '52 160w

"Forty-nine illustrations of Baroque art and portraiture vivify this valuable addition to a most useful series. The impressive scope of Professor Friedrich's research is attested by nearly four hundred footnotes and a twenty-eight-page bibliography. German titles predominate, the Germans having shown 'a peculiar affinity for the Baroque style.' American contributions are slighted." Geoffrey Bruun

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ap 20 '52 800w

"An informed and stimulating piece of popularization. It falls short of being a first-rate one only because of the author's deficiency in appreciation—and perhaps knowledge—of art. He takes up some of the great masters of the baroque, including Rubens, Hals, Rembrandt, and Velásquez, but he fails to be very illuminating about them, and makes no mention at all of El Greco, the archetype of the baroque painter."

+ — New Yorker 28:137 Ap 12 '52 150w

"Whether the author's thesis is valid, whether his enthusiasm will prove infectious may be open to question, but there is no question that he has presented his case for the inner unity and the uniqueness of the Baroque with truly baroque forcefulness. This is revisionism with a vengeance and with verve, a striking and challenging effort to establish a new synthesis. The illustrations, some forty-nine black-and-white reproductions, complement the word pictures of this unruly power drive, so nakedly sensual and so mystically devout, so ornately splendid and so poignantly naturalistic." Leo Gershoy

Sat R 35:51 Ap 19 '52 700w

School & Society 76:31 Jl 12 '52 30w

"The literature of the period, as is well illustrated by the excellent bibliographical essay which concludes the study, is not only vast, but is distinguished by the number of monumental works it includes. Out of a thorough study of this material, Dr. Friedrich has made a new synthesis. Moderate but critical in his judgment, he has developed a rich portrait of the baroque mentality and of an age in which, although it was 'intoxicated with the power of man,' religion was a powerful spring of action."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:156 Je '52 230w

FRIEDRICH, OTTO. Poor in spirit. 246p $3 Little

52-5021

Story of a love affair which runs its course in Berlin in 1947. The man is an American Jew; the girl, a German whom he met at a performance of Mozart's Marriage of Figaro.

"The telling is undistinguished, the story dull."

— Kirkus 20:46 Ja 15 '52 160w

"He can write beautifully, he has tension, and at moments suggests the moral pregnancy of Camus, the stringent paucity of Henry Green. His view is valid, if negative. He succeeds at times in the avant-gardish trick of intensifying reaction by making the reader angry at his method. But this is at most the material of a short story dragged out into a novel. One does not have to kill readers in conveying death; this novel succeeds too well in portraying a fishlike vacuity." Meyer Levin

+ — N Y Times p24 My 25 '52 340w

"This novel, which is sensible, thoughtful, kind, and frequently clever, ought to be much shorter. It is not that the book is actually bulky but that the amount of detail—reverie, mostly—obscures the story, which is slight but important."

+ — New Yorker 28:134 My 10 '52 90w

"If one wants to use the author's own approach, it might be suggested that here is a story derivative of Kafka, Mann and Rilke (the woman in the book is actually named Magdalena Rilke), but which has little to offer of its own. The book needs editing and the author needs a few maturing years." A. K.

— San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 18 '52 200w

"To be frank, this young novelist abuses his undeniable talent. His writing is pretentious—in the mannerisms of his style, in the mixture of storytelling techniques he adopts and adapts, as well as in the sagacities of his inner monologues, and their recherché high-brow references."

— Sat R 35:36 My 10 '52 300w

Spring'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 50w

FRIENDLICH, DICK. Line smasher. 194p $2.50 Westminster press

52-7119

"Throughout their high school years, Cliff Gear and Bill Devlin had been friends and football team-mates. Bill, brilliant and self-assured, has come to dominate Cliff's life, make his decisions, protect his interests. The latter becomes increasingly disturbed at Bill's attitude. When their relationship is most strained, the versatile Bill is threatened with expulsion from college. Cliff helps Bill to clear his name, and together they lead Ferris College to a successful season." N Y Times

Booklist 49:72 O 15 '52

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 16 '52 90w

Kirkus 20:512 Ag 15 '52 120w

"Good fast football story." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1523 S 15 '52 40w

"Junior sports novels usually combine accurate technique, fast action and plausible plot with a praiseworthy theme. 'Line Smasher' is superior to many of them for, in addition, it furnishes a picture of progressive character development." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times pt2, p26 N 16 '52 90w

Reviewed by W. H. Baker

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 16 '52 40w

FRISKEY, MRS MARGARET (RICHARDS). Mystery of the broken bridge; pictures by Jean Edgerton. [24p] $2 Childrens press

52-2853

A story for beginning readers, containing a vocabulary of forty words. Tells the story of some children and how they discovered who broke their bridge.

FRISKEY, M. R.—Continued

"A good book for the beginning reader, since the vocabulary used is based on standard primary list vocabulary."

+ Bookmark 12:11 O '52 20w

"An expensive book when content is considered, but valuable for schools and libraries where very easy reading material is needed. Recommended under those conditions." H. E. Walker

+ Library J 77:1661 O 1 '52 40w

"Here are picture concepts unusual and interesting for a small child, and a story which, for all its brevity and simplicity, has humor and even something to think about afterwards besides its action. It is recommended to first-grade teachers." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p38
N 16 '52 40w

FRISON-ROCHE, ROGER. Grand crevasse; tr. from the French by Janet Adam Smith [Eng title: Last crevasse]. 243p $3 Prentice-Hall

51-14882

"Zian Mappaz, supple-shouldered and strong-muscled member of the brotherhood of Chamonix guides, introduces Baron Collonges' lovely but willful daughter, Brigitte, to the mysterious allure of mountain-climbing. He takes her to the top of one of the lesser peaks, and then to the summit of Mont Blanc. Love rises irresistibly amid the irresistible impulses of the higher mountains. Their marriage, separation and their final reunion in the pure spirit of their love fill out the remainder of the book." N Y Times

Booklist 48:159 Ja 1 '52

Bookmark 11:108 F '52 20w

"M. Frison-Roche, it is almost an impertinence to say, knows his mountains and his weather, knows their delight and their deceptiveness. His book, though it does not achieve either the grandeur or radiating significance of C-F Ramuz' When the Mountain Fell, is a stimulating, liberating experience." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 174:471 Mr '52 210w

"The love story is hardly profound, but is told with unexpected simplicity and restraint—and something of a hint of Victor Hugo's theme of man triumphant over nature but betrayed by society. . . . However, the dizzy climbs themselves are the chief excitements of this story." Fritz Leiber

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 27 '52
460w

Kirkus 19:639 N 1 '51 200w

"A magnificent Alpine-mountaineering novel, superbly conveying the spell of the mountain, the ecstasy of achievement over incredible obstacles, its subtle uplift on those who climb. . . . Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1929 N 15 '51 100w

"Mr. Frison-Roche is not a deft or subtle limner of character. . . . But these should not be the reader's chief concerns, any more than they are the author's. For it is when he puts the valleys beneath him, when he ascends to where the snow is white and the wind is free, that Mr. Frison-Roche enters his natural element." J. R. Ullman

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 20
'52 500w

"Of far greater interest than the narrative plotting, which shows clear evidences of mechanical manipulation in the clinches, is the crystalline beauty of the descriptive passages. Written with a glacial sharpness, a naturalistic transparency akin to the ice-coated, snow-capped background, the book abounds with sentences, paragraphs and extended portrayals which, despite their translation from the French, lose nothing of their rugged forcefulness." Henry Cavendish

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 13 '52 290w

"Mr. Frison-Roche is a very direct, ingenuous writer who is at his best when he talks of mountain-climbing, its terrors, and its rewards."

New Yorker 27:78 D 22 '51 50w

"Frison-Roche writes powerfully and well when he is describing the use of the ice ax, crampons and climbing ropes, but the atmosphere of realism vanishes when his characters climb down off the mountain." J. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 F 24 '52
220w

"A novel of constant excitement. . . . In the technical details of each ascent Frison-Roche achieves a mastery all his own. He brings to his climbs, like the magnificent one of Mont Blanc, a flawless accuracy. Each scene he describes exists, and exists precisely as he describes it. Unfortunately, however, the author draws upon too slender a fund of drama." Charles Spielberger

+ Sat R 35:14 Ja 12 '52 220w

Springf'd Republican p4D Ja 27 '52
140w

Times [London] Lit Sup p433 J1 4 '52
110w

Wis Lib Bul 48:36 Ja '52

FRISON-ROCHE, ROGER. Lost trail of the Sahara; tr. from the French by Paul Bowles. 262p $2.95 Prentice-Hall

52-9032

Adventure story describing the experiences of a French officer who leads an expedition into the Sahara, ostensibly in search of prehistoric cave drawings, but secretly to track a criminal.

Booklist 49:67 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:56 D '52 30w

"The tale of this expedition, its hardships, its struggle for life in the face of murderous treachery is splendidly, grippingly told. Over it lies a spell of ancient mystery and discovery, grounded in the true history of Saharan exploration. Paul Bowles has done an excellent translation." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 12 '52
350w

"An effective transcript of a mission, the harsh travail of survival which is sustained by the mirage and mystique of the desert."

+ Kirkus 20:472 Ag 1 '52 210w

"A first rate story. Translation excellent." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1505 S 15 '52 80w

"There is no trace of either 'Beau Geste' or 'Under Two Flags.' It is the French army at its toughest. It is a novel of murder, adventure, of man's struggle against incredible physical conditions, shot through with authentic and fascinating detail. It is magnificent." William McFee

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 12
'52 600w

"This is the kind of reading that brings a strange region to vivid life, and when it combines, as it does here, with a first-rate yarn, then you have a highly unusual book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 1 '52
300w

"The communication of pity and of terror, in unfamiliar garb but classic shape, is completely successful. So successful that the novel's earlier faults may, nay, must be forgotten and forgiven. Even half a masterpiece in any genre, heaven knows, is rare enough." J. W. Vandercook

+ Sat R 35:23 O 25 '52 300w

Springf'd Republican p6D D 28 '52
100w

"Much the best new adventure story I have read is The Lost Trail of the Sahara." Paul Pickrel

+ Yale R n s 42:18 winter '53 120w

FROMM, ERICH. Forgotten language; an introduction to the understanding of dreams, fairy tales and myths. 263p $3.50 Rinehart

135.38 Dreams. Mythology. Fairy tales
51-13653

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"No one can help appreciating the warm humanism that informs this book, just as it did 'Escape from Freedom' and 'Man for Himself.' But a little misanthropic balance, order, and scientific caution would have been equally welcome." Charles Spielberger

Nation 174:160 F 16 '52 950w

"Dr. Fromm's book contains much that is of interest, but it strikes me as altogether too democratic. Wisdom-for-all is the slogan of our time, but the wise have always known that 'narrow is the path and strait is the gate, and few there be that find it.'" Kathleen Raine

New Statesman & Nation 43:680 Je 7 '52 900w

New Yorker 27:100 Ja 26 '52 120w

"The author is a man of very wide and deep learning, and he has the talent of writing on complicated subjects in a lively, human and extremely interesting manner, without the slightest trace of pedantry or dogmatism." I. B. + San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ja 20 '52 120w

"The Forgotten Language' rises to a strong climax of interest in its later chapters, where Fromm reappraises the significance of various myths and tales, and the famous Oedipus myth in particular. Years ago, Clarence Day wrote that even though a man has all sorts of virtues he still 'belongs with the animals' unless he is capable of 'depth after depth of sincerity in self-confrontation.' It is to such sincerity in self-confrontation that Erich Fromm invites us in each book he writes; and this new book ranks high among those that have put us in his debt." B. W. Overstreet

+ Sat R 35:15 F 2 '52 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p537 Ag 15 '52 750w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:76 Mr '52 250w

FROST, BARBARA. Corpse died twice. 186p $2.50 Coward-McCann

52-6119

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:109 F '52

Kirkus 19:667 N 15 '51 60w

"This has more animation than life in freshets of conversation circling more or less around one corpse and then a couple of others." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 10 '52 60w

"The first murder novel set in Coney Island, and it features Miss Frost's charming and credible lawyer, Marka de Lancey. There its virtues end; the plot is neither novel nor ingenious, and the characters are so nebulous and the narrative so lacking in forward impetus that page-turning becomes a chore." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 27 '52 30w

"There's a neat gimmick about a witness's signature and some good local color; other murders and a menace occur before everything works out smoothly. Hard to say why it seems so slow, and—with all this—so conventional." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 10 '52 70w

"Placid." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:55 F 16 '52 30w

FROST, ERNEST. Lighted cities. 253p $3 Harcourt

52-7084

"The story of an old musician and his protégé, and of a young writer and his mistress. Linking the sets of partners is Professor Amanis, who has supplanted the old musician, Rainham in the affection and admiration of the protégé Godwin, and who is also the husband of Katherine. Rainham is a gifted, kind but disappointed old man; Amanis is distinguished, impotent, and perverted; Bernard Austel, the writer, is frustrated and intense." Times [London] Lit Sup

"One of the characters in this book remarks that the students in the university where she lectures wear their poetry like a school scarf, and that is precisely the way in which The Lighted Cities wears its violent images (deriving from the early Auden) and its dislocated language." A. E. Malloch

— Canadian Forum 31:71 Je '51 200w

"Another one of those competently written English novels which would probably make more satisfying reading if almost all of the characters involved were not quite so sick of themselves and their times."

Kirkus 20:137 F 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 N 17 '50 80w

"Mr. Frost is, almost too self-consciously, professional. The book is set in post-war London, and it must be said at once that of all the attempts by young writers since the war to get that tattered and jaded, yet strangely affecting, old butterfly into the net, this is the most determined and ambitious. Not that it is wholly successful. . . Mr. Frost is first-class at conveying the feel of contemporary London in its squares and streets. . . It is when he goes inside the houses that he is less good." Robert Kee

+ New Statesman & Nation 40:566 D 2 '50 360w

"While each figure, taken by itself, rings true, there is something too brilliantly calculated about their encounters. 'The Lighted Cities' reads like an always graceful and frequently fascinating verbal spectacle designed to intrigue the intellect rather than to convince the heart." Frederic Morton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 F 24 '52 600w

"Neither a very moving nor engrossing novel, 'The Lighted Cities,' at moments, is a reasonable facsimile of both. The characters are sensitively felt and the writing is facile and perceptive, but it lacks vitality." Eunice Holsaert

+ N Y Times p22 F 24 '52 270w

"A thoughtful and moving novel. . . The writing is easy, economical, and sure, for the most part, although here and there it lingers self-consciously, sometimes on a sentence, sometimes on a situation."

+ New Yorker 28:103 F 23 '52 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 4 '52 290w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R 35:34 Mr 15 '52 150w

"Although a 'story' emerges from the tangle of relationships, this is chiefly a novel of episode and atmosphere. Mr. Frost has, in Henry James's phrase, a great deal of manner; he is fond of a simile, and his similes are not always either just or striking, but, when striking, are sometimes a little too striking. At its worst his writing is strained and affected; when he achieves simplicity . . . he also reveals a talent which his preciosity too frequently obscures elsewhere."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p781 D 8 '50 220w

FROST, FRANCES MARY. Amahl and the night visitors. See Menotti, G. C.

FROST, FRANCES MARY. Little fox; il. by Morgan Dennis. (Whittlesey House publication) 112p $2.25 McGraw

Foxes—Legends and stories 52-9452

The hero of this tale is a small black fox, the odd one in a litter of red foxes. On a trip with his father to steal a hen, Black Fox has a misadventure and is captured by a boy human. The boy treats him kindly but eventually Black Fox makes his escape and returns to his family.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 16 '52 90w

Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 20w

"A well-written nature story enlivened with humor." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:317 O '52 50w

Kirkus 20:504 Ag 15 '52 130w

"There is a nice touch of animals talking to animals, humans to humans, with humans not understanding the animals at all. The print is large. Third-graders on up will enjoy it. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

FROST, F. M.—Continued
+ Library J 77:1665 O 1 '52 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p5 N 16 '52 50w

"The wise child reader will depend on it that the little fox gets away and home to the burrow at last, but this reviewer, a softy, thinks that the little fox is too often lonely, frightened, rebuffed and reproved. The story is told with fine precision of phrase and observation of country settings. Morgan Dennis' drawings add reality to the story." Marjorie Fischer
+ — N Y Times p40 O 5 '52 110w

"The dialogue between the very young and ignorant fox and his father is as funny and natural as good dialogue between a child and his father; but it remains the characteristic talk of two foxes. The little fox breaks his leg in an unexpected hole, and is found and adopted by a boy. How his longing for the wild stays with him, in spite of the care that the boy gives him, is beautifully conveyed."

+ Sat R 35:66 N 15 '52 90w

FRYE, PEARL (MRS L. S. RAU). Sleeping sword; a biographical novel (1798-1805). 400p $3.75 Little

Nelson, Horatio Nelson, viscount—Fiction. Hamilton, Emma, lady—Fiction 52-6793

A historical novel about Admiral Nelson and Lady Hamilton. It begins with Nelson saving the royal family of the Two Sicilies from the French, and ends with Nelson's death.

"Pearl Frye has written an exciting, absorbing story of one of history's greatest figures and has done it with the skill and thoroughness of one who loves her subject." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 J1 6 '52 260w

"A scholarly book, but one designed more for the strategist than the romanticist."

+ Kirkus 20:304 My 15 '52 220w

"Fine entertainment with some worth as history for the uninitiated." R. H. Dillon

+ Library J 77:1304 Ag '52 130w

"Miss Frye continues to demonstrate her skill at depicting the violent confusion of naval battles, and at giving a sense of the times. Her Nelson is naive but great, and Emma an emotional, faintly vulgar, fascinating person. Both are believable." E. L. Acken

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 J1 6 '52 240w

"Miss Frye's story has the sturdy oaken structure of one of Nelson's battle wagons, and needs no veneer to make it authentic." William McFee

+ N Y Times p11 J1 6 '52 550w

"For an entertaining page out of Napoleonic times which will, in a general way, give the reader an idea of this critical period in history this novel is strongly recommended." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 J1 27 '52 250w

"Here is a solid historical novel which suffers as a romance because as a person Nelson intractably remains vain, arrogant, ruthlessly cruel, and ambitious. He probably was as spectacular a naval hero as Miss Frye and the history books agree, but it's still hard to like him or care much what happens to him."

Sat R 35:41 Ag 9 '52 200w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p4C Ag 31 '52 170w

FUCHS, STEPHEN. Children of Hari. 463p il $7.50 Praeger
323.3 Caste

"An extensive anthropological study of a group of 'untouchables'—the Balahis, a weavers' caste in the Nimar district of the Central Provinces of India." Foreign Affairs

Reviewed by D. G. Mandelbaum

Am Anthropol 54:397 Ap '52 850w

"One fruitful way of viewing caste in India is to study a particular caste in a particular area. Although superficial accounts of specific castes abound, full-length and well-conceived studies, especially of the untouchable castes, are scarce. The present account by a Catholic priest who spent ten years among the Balahis of Nimar District is outstanding." Kingsley Davis

+ Am J Soc 58:109 J1 '52 450w

Reviewed by W. N. Brown

Ann Am Acad 281:245 My '52 400w

Foreign Affairs 30:508 Ap '52 20w

"Father Fuchs's introductory chapters on the geographical and historical background, and the physical affinities of the Balahi to other castes, have been well done, as have the sections on the life history of the individual, religion and magic, and material culture. In the discussion of the sociology of the Balahi, a list of the terms of relationship, with some account of their use and significance, and a proper table of family descent to show the degrees within which marriage is permitted, would have been a valuable addition. The author's written account, as far as it goes, is contradictory. . . . Taken as a whole, however, the volume is a valuable contribution to Indian ethnography and will become more valuable as similar accounts of other castes become available for comparison." J. H. Hutton

+ — Pacific Affairs 25:200 Je '52 600w

FUERMANN, GEORGE. Houston: land of the big rich; il. by Lowell Collins. 255p $3.50 Doubleday

976.4 [917.64] Houston, Texas 51-14092

A character sketch of the city of Houston, Texas, by a literary editor and gossip columnist of The Houston Post.

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 17 '52 850w

Kirkus 19:474 Ag 15 '51 150w

"No doubt the city of Houston with its growing pains, its staggering problems, its truly impressive energy and wealth, and its unavoidable gaucheries, is worth a thoughtful, well rounded and even amusing study. Mr. Fuermann's report, unfortunately, is a horse of another color. His story of Houston is in the main a catalogue of trivialities, like an attenuated gossip column; it is skimpy, hasty, inaccurate in spots and written in a peculiar pseudo-Time magazine style." Stanley Walker

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p34 D 2 '51 990w

Reviewed by Morrow Mayo

N Y Times p19 F 24 '52 460w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 27 '52 300w

"Rollicking and informative book. . . Mr. Fuermann gives you Houston: Land of the Big Rich, in an entertaining, sometimes hilarious, revealing volume done in nifty, rat-tat-tat, jet-propelled columnese." C. V. Little

+ Sat R of Lit 34:8 D 29 '51 800w

FUESS, CLAUDE MOORE. Independent schoolmaster. (Atlantic Monthly press bk) 371p $5 Little

B or 92 Teachers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-9092

Autobiography of an American teacher and author, who became famous as headmaster of Andover, and for forty years played an important part in American education. Index.

Booklist 49:104 N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:30 N '52 30w

"Primarily a book for public library teacher and parent shelves. Not provocative enough for the general public."

+ — Kirkus 20:540 Ag 15 '52 130w

"Highly recommended for public, school and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 77:1648 O 1 '52 100w

"Few reminiscences by schoolmasters show so little sentimentality, and few support this sacrifice of illusion with so sturdy a sense of humor." Perry Miller

+ N Y Times p34 N 16 '52 310w

New Yorker 28:190 N 15 '52 120w

"All in all, parents who read Dr Fuess will learn much about the inner world of the good American prep school. Thousands of older men who were so schooled will recognize themselves-when-young, and will often smile. Both groups are likely to agree that American secondary education is in pretty safe hands as long as men like Dr. Fuess are its leaders." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 18 '52 500w

"Members of a school faculty tend to get on each others' nerves. Sometimes they develop jealousies, animosities, resentments, hurt feelings, and other occupational disabilities. Dr. Fuess's book is free from all of them. There is not a trace of venom in it. He does not overlook shortcomings. But he is always charitable toward human foibles. His tolerance expresses his conviction that 'it is doubtless a mistake to attempt to generalize too far.'" A. V. Heely

+ Sat R 35:16 O 25 '52 950w

Time 60:60 N 10 '52 470w

FUESS, CLAUDE MOORE. Joseph B. Eastman, servant of the people. 363p $5 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Eastman, Joseph Bartlett. U.S. Interstate commerce commission 52-8268

In 1918 when Joseph B. Eastman was appointed to the Interstate commerce commission he was the youngest man ever to receive that position. He served under five presidents, and under the New Deal he acted as Federal coordinator of railroads for three years. In World war II he was national director of defense transportation. This biography covers the whole span of his life to his death in 1944. Index.

"In these days when newspapers abound in stories of the misdeeds, questionable practices, and stupidity of federal officials, it is refreshing to read the biography of a more typical public servant. . . . Although the author, Claude Fuess, is no railroad expert, he is an experienced biographer and he writes smoothly and pleasantly." H. U. Faulkner

+ Am Hist R 58:149 O '52 410w

"Eastman, as modest as he was capable, would not regard his modesty as compromised by this careful piece of historical portraiture."

+ Sat R 35:15 Je 28 '52 160w

"This excellent, scholarly biography of Eastman is also a handy survey of many of the activities of the Interstate Commerce Commission."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:117 Je '52 310w

FUNK & Wagnalls new encyclopedia; prepared under the editorial direction of Joseph Lafian Morse, and an editorial staff of experts and with the help of leading scholars, scientists, and educators, United States and foreign government agencies, museums, libraries, research laboratories, and industrial organizations. 36v il maps $72 Unicorn press 031 Encyclopedias and dictionaries

"According to a note on the title page, this set is 'based on the Funk & Wagnalls New Standard Encyclopedia [c1931-49] compiled under the editorship of the late Frank H. Vizetelly.' Editions of that work were reviewed in the Subscription Books Bulletin for April 1932, January 1936, and January 1945. . . . The encyclopedia is designed primarily for home use. According to the Foreword, signed by the editor-in-chief, the 'problem, in this revision, was to suit the work to its use by countless families, in their homes, as a ready source for such information as they would be likely to require. . . . And so we proceeded to build an entirely new encyclopedia, what we conceived to be the ideal encyclopedia for widespread use, salvaging merely a comparatively small amount of material from former editions.' . . . The articles are arranged alphabetically by letter and appear, for the most part, under small headings. Pronunciation is not indicated." Subscription Bks Bul

"The New Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia is not, literally speaking, 'entirely new,' but revision has been accomplished with more than the average degree of success. Although there are some errors and omissions in this edition, it shows great improvement over earlier ones by virtue of its new format, new subjects, more current material, and more numerous cross references and illustrations. It is recommended for adult home use as a moderately priced set, covering a wide range of subjects in a brief and usually popular style. It can be recommended for library purchase, however, only as a supplement to encyclopedias of more comprehensive and scholarly treatment."

+ — Subscription Bks Bul 23:5 Ja '52 1900w

FURNAS, JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN. Voyage to windward; the life of Robert Louis Stevenson. 566p il $5 Sloane

B or 92 Stevenson, Robert Louis 51-12678

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"This is the book for the admirers of Stevenson who wish to know all about him. The author has so completely lived with his hero . . . that on a return from Edinburgh his wife warned him that they would probably set a place for Stevenson at dinner." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 166:17 Mr 1 '52 120w

"It was time indeed that somebody really got at the facts and gave us a full and fair account of Stevenson the man. This Mr. Furnas—an American journalist of the highest calibre with a journalist's skill in ferreting out the facts—has done admirably. Here at last is an adult biography of 'R. L. S.,' accurate, perceptive, understanding, drawing on much unpublished material, the product of indefatigable research and clear intelligence." David Daiches

+ Manchester Guardian p5 S 22 '52 550w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones

Nation 174:91 Ja 26 '52 70w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

New Repub 126:20 Ja 7 '52 350w

"A new, full and patient biography by Mr. J. C. Furnas, who has seen a great deal of new Stevenson material and who has written a Life that is remarkable for its richness and good sense. As a detective Mr. Furnas is exceedingly fine and wise and from a spirited study of Stevenson's life he has been able to find a great deal to support the opinion that many contemporary critics like Mr. Edwin Muir and Mr. Graham Greene have formed from his writing: that, in Samoa, Stevenson began at last to slough off the prolonged adolescence which was responsible for his superficial or undeveloped writing." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:395 O 4 '52 1600w

"An exhaustive biography of Robert Louis Stevenson, aimed at dispelling once and for all the many misconceptions that the author feels have been obscuring his personality and reputation since his death."

+ New Yorker 27:86 Ja 19 '52 170w

"All of 200,000 words in length, his book is endlessly allusive, frequently jaunty and, despite its wealth of new information, its self-confidence and its wholehearted devotion to the memory of R. L. S., becomes in the long run wearisome." Michael Sadleir

+ — Spec 189:433 O 3 '52 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p655 O 10 '52 1150w

"In this fair and accurate full-scale biography, Mr. Furnas has managed to skirt most of the dangers successfully and avoids the extreme either of adulation or of unconscious hostility. He has drawn for his study not only upon the standard sources of information but upon the hitherto unavailable Sitwell correspondence, and even upon his own physical retracing of the Stevenson Odyssey."

FURNAS, J. C.—Continued

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:4 Mr '52 260w

"The new life of Stevenson is the first to make full use of all the available manuscript material, especially that in the Beinecke Collection, and thus it adds considerably to our knowledge of the man and his friends. . . Mr. Furnas' research has been wide and precise. He has visited nearly every place that Stevenson lived, from Edinburgh to Samoa, and out of this exploration he has created a figure that is alive, complex, and winning—and also, in the author's opinion, less qualified to be the saint of the nursery than the friend and peer of Henry James." A. D. Culler

+ Yale R n s 41:306 winter '52 250w

G

GABA, LESTER. Art of window display. 142p il $5 Studio

658.85 Show windows 52-7383

"A chatty style sketches in the author's background, establishing him as an authority in window display and related fields. With the same informality he traces the twentieth-century history of show windows, sets forth the principles of good window dressing and inside display, advises aspirants on becoming displaymen, describes some duties and techniques, and presents some unusual ideas. A section of photographs illustrates his criteria of good display." Booklist

Booklist 49:28 S 15 '52

"Imaginative, zestful and practical volume."

+ Bookmark 12:5 O '52 10w

"Mr. Gaba, never didactic, develops his theory of window display in a text that is as fascinating as it is helpful. It were to be wished that the illustrations did as much. . . This, however, is my only adverse criticism. The author's advice to display men is pithy and pungent in an almost playful way." A. A. van Duym

+ Sat R 35:62 O 4 '52 300w

GABY, ALEX. To end the night. 243p $2.75 McKay

52-9475

The hero of the novel, who is never named, came home one night to find his beautiful, pregnant wife had committed suicide. Because he could not imagine any reason for her death, he went to El Paso, where Fran had been born, to try to discover some reason. His search and discovery make up the novel.

"Mr. Gaby's novel loses much of its force because of the tricky ingenuity with which he has attempted to conceal his purpose until the last moment. His smash ending has power but it has been too long delayed. What could have been an effective short story has been turned instead into an ambiguous melodrama not quite redeemed by the author's evident sincerity of purpose."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 21 '52 250w

"Mr. Gaby's attempt to give his novel a universal and poetic air of melancholy is defeated by its own maudlin tone. One doubts that events of the sort described happen, as the author asserts in a foreword, 'very often'; their happening at all, of course, is deplorable. The pulchritudinous touches of sex, the unnecessary vulgarities of language, and the author's repetitious mannerisms of style do not aid matters, nor does one feel that his hero, usually stumbling with alcohol, has the competence to do the kind of detective work required. But one forgives much for the ending." C. L.

+ N Y Times p25 My 4 '52 250w

"To End the Night' succeeds in generating considerable excitement. Considered purely as a novel of suspense, it is a good thing of its kind. But Mr. Gaby promises a better novel than the one that finally emerges, and in this he disappoints the reader." Martin Levin

+ — Sat R 35:11 J1 26 '52 230w

GAER, JOSEPH. Lore of the New Testament. 371p $5 Little

225 Bible. N.T. Jesus Christ—Biography 52-9075

"Dr. Gaer's fascinating Lore of the Old Testament [Book Review Digest 1951] now has a companion volume, dealing with the lore of the New. It is essentially a retelling of the stories found in the Apocryphal New Testament, with some from the Lives of the Saints, and even a few from such modern apocrypha as The Aquarian Gospel and the Letter of Benan." Churchman

Booklist 49:149 Ja 1 '53

Bookmark 12:53 D '52 20w

"This is rich, variegated fare. Mr. Gaer's introduction and comments are valuable aids to its appreciation. 'The Lore of the New Testament' is for both the common reader and the scholar." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 9 '52 200w

"Dr. Gaer's interest is not theological, but solely literary; he is really a folklorist, enchanted with the tapestries that later fancy has woven about the figures in the Bible. And he has the skill that enables him to pass along the enchantment to others." F. C. Grant

+ Churchman 166:17 N 1 '52 90w

"A companion volume to The Lore of the Old Testament, this is as interesting and as valuable a piece of scholarly research as the previous work."

+ Kirkus 20:636 S 15 '52 230w

"The layman will be surprised at, and captivated by the stories of the The Lore. In collecting and publishing these stories author puts within reach of the layman what has previously been exclusive property of the scholar." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 77:1897 N 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by Chad Walsh

N Y Times p11 D 21 '52 30w

"The book is carefully documented for scholarly use. It also throws light, directly or indirectly, upon the way the personality of the Christ affected His followers throughout the generations." K. D. Miller

+ Sat R 35:32 D 20 '52 200w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 23 '52 240w

GAG, FLAVIA. Four legs and a tail; il. by the author. 150p $2.50 Holt

Sheep—Legends and stories 52-9036

Story of Robin and Roberta, ten-year-old twins, and their pet Sing Wing, a fat-tailed sheep, brought to them from Australia. Ages 8 to 10.

Bookmark 12:83 Ja '53

Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 20w

"A thoroughly childlike and delightful story, with a charming family who share anticipations and worries, good times and responsibilities." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:320 O '52 90w

"Excellent reading matter for the whole family."

+ Kirkus 20:406 J1 15 '52 210w

"Recommended." V. A. Russell

+ Library J 77:1821 O 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p10 N 16 '52 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 7 '52 30w

"This is a gay, lively story illustrated with charming black and white drawings."

+ Sat R 35:66 N 15 '52 50w

GAINES, DIANA (MRS HENRY LESLIE JAFFE). Dr Logan's wife. 307p $3 Random house

51-13243

Character study of a pampered young woman, married to a man who was older than she and determined to shelter her. The love of a young scientist, her husband's death, and psychoanalysis all help her to grow up.

Reviewed by Pat Patten

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 9 '52 130w

Kirkus 19:452 Ag 15 '51 160w

"Mrs. Gaines writes intelligently and interestingly about people one might have known, in particular about Jennet, whose growing up entailed an emotional smash-up and the gradual rebuilding of her life with the aid of psychoanalysis. I have not seen this last process considered so fully and frankly in fiction, and while it may have a slightly over-medical flavor for some readers, Mrs. Gaines' picture seems to me both effective and convincing. 'Dr. Logan's Wife' is a good story and a novel of more than usual interest as a reflection of the contemporary scene." David Tilden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 14 '51 400w

"Though the novel does deviate from the Womrath formula on occasion, and though some of the set speeches and observations on current mores are well taken, it must be added that nearly every punch is telegraphed—and the over-all effect is both foreordained and undisturbed." A. H. Weiler

— N Y Times p27 Ja 13 '52 130w

"A woman's struggle to grow into full emotional maturity has been used as a theme, in countless novels, good, bad, and indifferent. Here we have it with a dazzling array of up-to-the-minute angles." Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 34:20 N 3 '51 260w

GALANTIERE, LEWIS, ed. See Saturday review of literature. America and the mind of Europe

GALAXY SCIENCE FICTION MAGAZINE. Reader of science fiction; ed. and with an introd. by H. L. Gold. 566p $3.50 Crown

Short stories—Collections 52-5675

This volume contains twenty-five short stories and eight novelettes by such writers of science-fiction as Isaac Asimov, Ray Bradbury, Fredric Brown, John Christopher, William Campbell Gault, Fritz Leiber, Murray Leinster, John D. MacDonald, Sam Merwin, Walt Sheldon, Clifford D. Simak, Theodore Sturgeon, and others.

Kirkus 20:16 Ja 1 '52 110w

"What is offered here is inevitably a cross-section: a few remarkably fine stories (notably by Leiber, Simak and Tenn), a number of solidly good ones (Anderson, Asimov, Sturgeon and others), many run-of-the-mill routine jobs and one or two real clinkers. Despite the editorial comments, most of this, good and bad, is imaginative literature which is 'science' fiction by courtesy only." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 18 '52 210w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

N Y Times p19 Jl 13 '52 100w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 30 '52 40w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R 35:44 My 24 '52 20w

Time 59:114 Ap 7 '52 700w

GALBRAITH, JOHN KENNETH. American capitalism; the concept of countervailing power. 217p $3 Houghton

330.1 Capitalism. U.S.—Economic conditions 52-139

"This volume deals with the development of our economy, primarily since World War II.

The author holds up the mirror, permitting us to see ourselves as others see us. Thus he reveals that while we are reluctant to accept or even recognize change, yet we are gradually coming to the realization that despite earlier predictions to the contrary, the country has survived fundamental change in our social, business, and industrial life. Our successive stages of progress through depression, prosperity, inflation, are displayed along with revelation and interpretation of the basic factors in John Maynard Keynes' General Theory." Library J

"[The book has] a profoundly satisfactory style, easy, lucid, witty, yet compact as befits the compactness of his mental processes." P. T. Homan

+ Am Econ R 42:429 Je '52 1850w

Reviewed by D. M. Wright

Ann Am Acad 282:143 Jl '52 1000w

Booklist 48:191 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:115 Ap '52 40w

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 9 '52 230w

Reviewed by G. R. Ericson

Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 8 '52 700w

Current Hist 22:228 Ap '52 140w

"A stimulating and important book."

+ Foreign Affairs 31:158 O '52 90w

Reviewed by C. L. Christenson

J Pol Econ 60:275 Je '52 700w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay

Library J 77:211 F 1 '52 220w

"Professor Galbraith's book should be the quibbler's delight, for it contains many somewhat categorical statements with which issue could be taken with a certain degree of propriety. This however, hardly detracts from the book's importance, and it detracts not at all from its stimulative quality." H. S. Hettinger

+ Management R 41:404 Je '52 800w

Reviewed by Bertrand de Jouvenel

Manchester Guardian p4 N 4 '52 750w

"Conservatives and liberals alike will probably challenge many of the ideas in this book. The first will not relish the author's justification of labor's development of countervailing power and will violently dispute his thesis that the progressive income tax is a stabilizing device. Liberals, on the other hand, may consider that he is too complacent about the effectiveness of countervailing power as a brake on monopoly. But only the most bigoted of both persuasions should fail to admit that he has written a most stimulating book." Keith Hutchison

+ Nation 174:185 F 23 '52 1150w

"This pungent, aphoristic and highly readable essay in social criticism, written for the reasonably diligent layman, will according to the author 'be almost equally unpalatable to liberals and conservatives. This is often the case with reality.'" Theodore Krepes

+ New Repub 126:19 Mr 24 '52 900w

Reviewed by Norman MacKenzie

New Statesman & Nation 44:457 O 18 '52 1200w

"This slim, not too technically written book is one of the most provocative economic essays since the writings of the late John Maynard Keynes. . . Even where one disagrees, his ideas stimulate a spring cleaning of old beliefs and outworn, if cherished, notions—which is perhaps all that can be asked of any new theory." Samuel Lubell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 29 '52 1150w

"In this cheerful little book John K. Galbraith, Professor of Economics at Harvard, has proved, among other things, that American economics can be written with style. We need no longer bewail the absence of an American D. H. Robertson. London, Cambridge and Oxford together would, indeed, be hard put to it to point to any recent attempt at a general reformulation of basic economic doctrine carried out with such verve and skill as Mr. Galbraith's essay." Michael Hoffman

+ N Y Times p3 F 24 '52 1250w

GALBRAITH, J. K.—Continued

San Francisco Chronicle p28 F 17 '52
140w

Reviewed by C. E. Ayres
Sat R 35:33 Ap 12 '52 550w

"I intend high praise when I say that the first half seems to me worthy to be compared with Thurman Arnold's 'Folklore of Capitalism' and might easily have as tremendous an influence on college students of the 'fifties as the earlier book had on their predecessors in the 'thirties. . . If, from time to time, Mr. Galbraith exaggerates a bit in order to shock the bourgeois into opening his eyes and looking around him, no great damage is done to the clearing operation. Indeed, it would be difficult to conceive of the job being better done in so small a compass as a scant hundred pages." T. O. Waage

+ Yale R n s 42:145 autumn '52 800w

GALBRAITH, JOHN KENNETH. Theory of price control. 81p $2; text ed $1.50 Harvard univ. press

338.526 Prices 52-5028

"Discussion of the economic basis of a system of price control; how and why any such system should be formulated to bring about the desired result, mainly to control inflation." (Library J) Index.

"In this well-written and pleasantly temperate little book, Professor Galbraith has set forth a theory of price control. In so doing, he offers a valuable interpretation of recent American events. To the task he brings a fortunate combination of high level administrative experience, and awareness of the main theoretical issues, a measure of idealism, and an engagingly urbane attitude towards the whole episode." G. H. Hildebrand

+ Am Econ R 42:936 D '52 2050w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:599 Ap 1 '52 60w

"The author's brief remarks on controls in a period of 'limited mobilization,' such as has existed since the Korean outbreak, seem less satisfactory than his analysis of World War II experience. . . The psychological problems of extended price and wage control under conditions deserve further analysis, as do also the incentive aspects of wages under direct controls. Nevertheless Professor Galbraith has made a good start on a more correct understanding of the kind of economy we are likely to have for some time to come." Richard Lester

+ New Repub 126:18 Ap 7 '52 490w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:273 S '52 150w

GALDOS, BENITO PEREZ. See Pérez Galdós, B.

GALENSON, WALTER, ed. Comparative labor movements [contributors] John Clarke Adams [and others]. 599p $6.50 Prentice-Hall

331.88 Trade unions 52-8926

"[This] book contains seven chapters on labor movements in seven foreign countries, each written by an authority on the movement in question. Great Britain, Scandinavia, Australia, Germany, France, Italy and Russia have been selected. While each author was free to choose the manner and matter of his presentation the data is sufficiently related to furnish valuable bases of comparison. Historical material is briefly presented but the emphasis is on the machinery worked out by each country for achieving industrial peace." Library J

"An interesting, thought-provoking book, ideally suited to those of us who would like to have a broad understanding of the labor movements in other countries, but who have difficulty even in keeping up with the changes taking place at home." P. L. Kleinsorge

+ Am Econ R 42:678 S '52 1150w

Reviewed by M. J. Segal

Ann Am Acad 282:148 J1 '52 430w

Current Hist 22:379 Je '52 70w

"The whole is so clearly and succinctly presented that the layman or student from high school up will find this an excellent book for both study and reference. Selected bibliography adds further," to this welcome addition to labor literature." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 77:897 My 15 '52 100w

Management R 41:771 N '52 70w

"Because few college courses are devoted solely to comparative labor organization, this book is likely to receive its widest use as supplementary reading for standard courses in labor economics, particularly as the United States is not included in the book. Technical students may find here a step forward in the direction of general theory."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:309 S '52 180w

GALENSON, WALTER. Danish system of labor relations; a study in industrial peace. 321p $4.50 Harvard univ. press

331.15 Industrial relations 52-5029

"Mr. Galenson, Associate Professor of Industrial Relations, University of California, has made another valuable contribution to the understanding of labor relations in one of the much admired Scandinavian countries. . . A brief account of the development of the labor internal difficulties as well as the relation of movement is presented in order to show the movement to the well established employers' associations. These too are briefly described. The larger part of the book is given over to a description of the collective bargaining system and the effect this has had on economic conditions and upon industrial peace." (Library J) Index.

"In my opinion this book is the best example to date of a study that not only describes the labor relations system of a country, but provides a significant economic analysis of it in terms both of its impact upon the workings of the economy and of the extent to which the movement itself is a product of the peculiar economic problems of the nation." A. Morgner

+ Ann Am Acad 281:257 My '52 650w

Foreign Affairs 31:159 O '52 30w

"This work represents both the latest addition to the list of 'Wertheim Fellowship Publications' and a companion volume to Labor in Norway, published under the same auspices by Professor Galenson in 1949. Like its predecessors, this second study in the field of Scandinavian labor relations is competent, stimulating, and provocative." E. P. Hohman

+ J Pol Econ 60:273 Je '52 650w

Reviewed by D. K. Oko

+ Library J 77:601 Ap 1 '52 210w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:180 Je '52 290w

GALLAGHER, JAMES ROSWELL. Understanding your son's adolescence. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 212p $3 Little

136.73 Adolescence. Boys 51-12814

The author, who has been school physician at the Hill School and Phillips Academy, discusses the physical, emotional, and behavior problems of the adolescent boy.

"To read this book is almost to have an interesting, informal conversation with a man who understands boys and has a lot of common sense as well as professional skill and long experience in dealing with them. . . It can be heartily commended to parents for its breadth of view, sound interpretations, and reassuring confidence in the ability of a boy, with understanding and help from parents and others, 'to make a sound transition from childhood to adulthood.' R. E. Dickerson

+ Am J Pub Health 41:1537 D '51 290w

"A good book for teachers and parents."

+ Booklist 48:93 N 15 '51

"With the emphasis on 'lick the problem and not the boy,' this should be helpful guidance for the despairing parent and a good book for the confused boy himself."

+ Kirkus 19:377 J1 15 '51 150w

School & Society 75:110 F 16 '52 40w

Wis Lib Bul 48:85 Mr '52

GALLAGHER, THOMAS MICHAEL. Gathering darkness. 330p $3.50 Bobbs

52-10693

Portrays the lives of a New York city family, the McPeeks, from 1929 to 1942. It traces their course from comfortable living thru poverty during the depression, to sorrow and disgrace for Sheila, the younger of the two daughters.

Booklist 49:48 O 1 '52

"The prose is deliberately turgid as it seeks to capture the turnings and returnings of minds brooding, looking for a bearable way of life or, simply, for surcease, and asking themselves hourly exactly where everything began to go wrong. Mr. Gallagher also knows how to convey a sense of place; the neighborhoods in this novel are very well done, and so, too, is the feeling of New York, cold and impersonal, during the depression years." Ernest Jones
+ Nation 175:215 S 13 '52 290w

"Mr. Gallagher's scrupulous fidelity to routine detail at times slows the narrative—perhaps most markedly at the beginning—and some readers may not be content to travel so far below the speed limit; if so, their impatience will cost them several rare views. I confess, however, I could wish his design had been tighter, his focus more unswerving, and some of the speeches, particularly those of Sheila's lover, less profound. Still, 'The Gathering Darkness' remains a very impressive performance." Frederic Morton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 31 '52 950w

Reviewed by Charles Lee

N Y Times p10 Ag 31 '52 200w

"Sheila, in her growth into decay, seems to me a consummate literary creation. Mr. Gallagher has been able to do this sort of thing because he writes his drama of determinism like a poet instead of a scientist. He penetrates, he perceives, and he pities. This is his first novel, certainly a remarkable one." Nathan Rothman

+ Sat R 35:40 S 20 '52 600w

GALLATIN, ALBERT EUGENE, and OLIVER, LESLIE MAHIN, comps. Bibliography of the works of Max Beerbohm [Eng title: Max Beerbohm; a bibliography]. 60p $5 Harvard univ. press

012 Beerbohm, Sir Max—Bibliography

52-9388

"The predecessor of this work, A. E. Gallatin's Sir Max Beerbohm: Bibliographical Notes (1944), listed, besides Sir Max's collected and separately printed works, some of his uncollected writings and caricatures, certain unpublished writings, catalogues of exhibitions of his caricatures, data on his plays, the introductions he has written for various books, and selected works about him. This present bibliography is not intended to be so complete as to permit the discarding of the earlier work. Its main text confines itself strictly to the collected and separately printed works. To this main body are appended lists of Harvard's present holdings of Beerbohm manuscripts, typescripts, letters, association items, and memorabilia. . . This present work seeks its justification in a new arrangement which, it is hoped, readers will find acceptable." Intro

"The arrangement of the present work is economical, the introduction informative as to the bibliographical procedure employed and the collations full and exact. It should someday be continued and expanded into the full-dress Beerbohm bibliography. Librarians should consider carefully whether the present volume, fine as it is, is worth five dollars to their collections." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:1659 O 1 '52 130w

New Statesman & Nation 44:327 S 20 '52 230w

"It is, first, matter for regret that the editors have excluded all writings for periodicals, introductions and contributions to the books of others, the exhibition catalogue prefaces—everything, in fact, except 'the collected and separately printed works.' And many of those who accept, perforce, this limitation of scope will be irritated rather than consoled by the frequent notes of inscriptions or other details peculiar to the Gallatin copies at Harvard, which were appropriate enough in the Bulletin but have no place in a bibliography. . . Where a book was manufactured on one side of the Atlantic for publication on both sides, the editors' analysis of the result is hopelessly fumbled. There are numerous instances in which they have been content to cite a second-hand opinion or statement on a doubtful point without apparently feeling any obligation to assess the evidence afresh and produce a conclusion of their own. . . It must in justice be said that many reprints and later editions are described here for the first time, though it is not always easy to tell why one is listed and another not."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p636 S 26 '52 900w

GALLICO, PAUL WILLIAM. Small miracle; II. by Reisle Lonette. 58p $1.50 Doubleday

52-10401

A brief story of a little Italian boy and his beloved donkey, Violetta. When Violetta became very ill Pepino asked permission to take her into the crypt of St Francis' church in Assisi, and he persisted until permission was granted by the Pope himself.

Booklist 49:67 O 15 '52

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 S 28 '52 170w

Kirkus 20:424 J1 15 '52 250w

Library J 77:1759 O 15 '52 40w

"It is perfectly told." M. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 6 '51 40w

"It makes pleasant and refreshing reading about nice people; it could be the good Christmas present for the child-like of all ages. Indeed, its appearance in these days of the shoddy, temporary get-by seems the sort of small miracle for which the adage says we are to be thankful." Evelyn Eaton

+ N Y Times p6 S 21 '52 370w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 30 '52 40w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R 35:34 S 27 '52 120w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p792 D 7 '51 40w

GALLICO, PAUL WILLIAM. Trial by terror. 299p $3 Knopf

52-5666

Story of a young American reporter who purposely puts himself into the power of the authorities behind-the-iron-curtain in order to find out why other men had confessed to crimes they had not committed.

Booklist 48:297 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:210 Je '52 30w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:315 J1 '52 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 20 '52 450w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison

Christian Science Monitor p13 My 3 '52 600w

Kirkus 20:131 F 15 '52 250w

"Paul Gallico makes his explanation convincing as well as terrifying. In the process he tells a good tale and gives us an excellent picture of post-war Europe." E. L. Acken

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 27 '52 400w

"A workmanlike job as both reporting and adventure story-telling, but the conflict between its two aspects is its undoing as a novel. . . Perhaps only a writer of Graham Greene's literary stature and awareness of evil can effectively entertain and outrage us within one book." John Brooks

+ — N Y Times p5 Ap 20 '52 600w

GALLICO, P. W.—Continued

"Mr. Gallico, an obvious, sentimental, and high-pitched writer, does no one any credit with this piece of work."

— New Yorker 28:145 Ap 19 '52 80w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 21 '52 600w

"The trouble with the novel is not that the raw material isn't suitable for a powerful study in character and corruption, but that the impulse behind it was so obviously synthetic. This is the work of a carpenter, not of a creative artist. . . . It's only fair to say, all this comic-strip nonsense aside, that the 'documentary' aspect of the novel is grimly fascinating," Charles Lee

— + Sat R 35:30 Ap 19 '52 550w

Reviewed by M. J. Butcher

Survey 88:229 My '52 330w

"This novel has the speed and excitement of a first-rate film. . . . The result is occasionally somewhat far-fetched in detail, but the main action of the novel has since been repeated in real life and Mr. Gallico describes it convincingly and with insight."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p201 Mr 21 '52 110w

GALT, THOMAS FRANKLIN. Story of peace and war; with il. by Erik Blegvad. 202p $2.75 Crowell

341.1 [172.4] Peace—Juvenile literature 52-7860

"In its history of leagues, of diplomacy, of international law, of the recognition of human rights and of international unions, it answers important questions: Why do wars begin? What rights do people have? What did the League of Nations accomplish? What has the United Nations done to prevent war? How can we stop wars that become progressively more destructive? It concludes with a searching look into the UN's future." (Horn Bk) For ages 12 to 16. Index.

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:33 Ja '53

"Presented in a lively, often humorous manner, this lucid study of war and of organized attempts to prevent it offers much to adults as well as to the teen-age for whom it has been prepared," V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:333 O '52 90w

"A 'plain talk' style and short paragraphs makes this readable, entirely lacking in a rosy specs outlook."

+ Kirkus 20:413 J1 15 '52 220w

"Highly recommended for junior and senior high schools and public libraries," M. M. Smith

+ Library J 77:1827 O 15 '52 90w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p32 N 16 '52 100w

"There is a wealth of important material here, but its presentation is disappointing. It is maddening to find seventh to tenth grade material written in fourth to sixth grade language," L. T. Bulman

+ — N Y Times p24 D 14 '52 150w

"This is an important book—important to young people all over the world. We wish that it could be translated into many languages."

+ Sat R 35:73 N 15 '52 110w

GAMBS, JOHN SAKE. Man, money, and goods. 339p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

330 Economics 52-1425

A survey of the fundamentals of economics designed "for mature, earnest, intelligent people who have a sincere interest in economic theory, but have never quite made contact with it; a book that might give readers a few happy hours with the 'dismal science'—for so Carlyle thought of it; a book for inquiring minds." (Pref) The author is professor of economics at Hamilton College, Clinton, N.Y.

"The author's style is frequently lively and, for the most part, stimulating. His approach to the problem of graphical presentation is novel and should be a definite help to the beginner. The illustrative material in the chapter on banking seems likely to make its appeal to many readers. In short, the special virtues of the book are its fluent, vivid style and its clever presentation of concepts which elsewhere frequently make dull reading for even professional readers." P. F. Palmer

+ Am Econ R 42:616 S '52 1000w

Booklist 48:290 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:231 J1 '52 20w

Kirkus 19:656 N 1 '51 240w

"One of the best efforts to introduce the intelligent reader to economic thinking. . . . Recommended for college and public libraries." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 77:588 Ap 1 '52 110w

"Despite the excellence of Mr. Gambs's book, its general effect is depressing. The trouble lies in the current condition of economics. Economists do not agree in method, conclusion, or policy and they still use a bewildering variety of techniques to produce results often unimpressive and contradictory. It is a virtue rather than a fault in Mr. Gambs that his account makes all of this apparent, but it is likely to be small comfort to any reader who hopes to find in one book, even this one, an adequate orientation in modern economics. The very excellence of 'Man, Money, and Goods' proves sadly and once more that economics is no fit subject for the hand of the synthesizer." Robert Lekachman

+ Nation 175:98 Ag 2 '52 650w

"'Man, Money and Goods' certainly is not drab. It keeps technical terminology and methodology to a minimum, deals with important subjects, and is happily free of the bias and propaganda that mar so many books directed to the general reader. It may not be 'economics without tears,' but any tears that it elicits should be less numerous than the chuckles." L. V. Chandler

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 27 '52 360w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p21 J1 9 '52 650w

"Among the chief virtues of 'Man, Money, and Goods' are its concern with theory and its candid recognition of the cleavage that exists between orthodox and dissenting theories. . . . Up to a point [the author's] presentation of the contrary views of 'standard' and dissenting theory is a model of expository clarity. His diction is lively and readable throughout, and the value of his book is enhanced by line drawings symbolizing various aspects of the economy and various predicaments of the economists. . . . Beyond a certain point, however, 'Man, Money, and Goods' is disappointing. As general descriptions of various economic points of view, these chapters are amazingly clear and informative. But what are the decisive issues by which contrary bodies of theory are divided?" C. E. Ayres

+ — Sat R 35:18 S 6 '52 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:273 S '52 140w

GAMOW, GEORGE. Creation of the universe. 147p il $3.75 Viking

523.1 Cosmogony 52-9319

"The present book is the third of [a] cosmological trilogy, being a sequel to The Birth and Death of the Sun and Biography of the Earth [Book Review Digest 1940, 1941]. While the first volume dealt essentially with the place of our sun among the stars, and the second with the place of our earth among the planets, this book is concerned mainly with the universe as a whole." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 48:313 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:200 Je '52 20w

Reviewed by Russell MacFall

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 S 14 '52 150w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Commonweal 56:226 Je 6 '52 450w
Kirkus 20:151 F 15 '52 190w

Reviewed by Charles Spielberger
Nation 175:115 Ag 9 '52 900w

"Dr. Gamow's views do not represent the unanimous opinion of cosmologists. For instance, in his recently published book Fred Hoyle advocated a theory of continuous creation of matter in space. However, Dr. Gamow is recognized as an authority in the field of atomic physics. With his added ability to explain such things in simple and vivid terms, his book should find a wide audience." James Stokley

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 3 '52 370w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:69 S '52

"Mr. Gamow is a skillful and ingenious popularizer of science. His book is not the kind that can be skimmed through, but one that must be absorbed. For all his rigorous reasoning he must be regarded as a scientific poet. To create a universe in an hour and to do it in such a way as to make scientific sense is an intellectual achievement of the first order." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p7 J1 6 '52 600w

"This book is a fascinating one. It advances a theory which differs in some important respects from other theories held by other cosmologists, but the writer isn't at all dogmatic about his own theory. . . . There are some atomic formulas—Chapter III is a little rough for nonphysicists—but otherwise the volume is distinctly readable and highly informative in the Jeans-Eddington tradition." R. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 18 '52 300w

"Dr. Gamow's book is stimulating. It is clearly written and undertakes faithfully to say what is factual and what is speculative. It commends itself especially to the scientist and the general reader who has some preparation in physics. It can also be read with profit by one who has little background in physics; he may not be quite sure of all the details, but can certainly follow the lucid continuity of the account. Critical readers will perhaps not agree with all the conclusions. The building of the universe is not a light undertaking." R. H. Baker

+ Sat R 35:15 J1 5 '52 650w

"As in the earlier volumes, Dr. Gamow has made skillful use of analogy and a clear, bold style. The book is a lively, reliable account for advanced lay readers and for scientists reading outside their own areas of specialization."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:328 S '52 150w

GANNON, RUTH TUTTLE. Decorating with house plants. 136p il $5 Crowell

635.96 Floral decoration. House plants 52-13977

How to grow and care for flowering and foliage plants and vines indoors, with suggestions for their use in a decorative plan.

Booklist 49:119 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:30 N '52 20w

GANTT, PAUL H. Case of Alfred Packer, the man-eater. 157p il $3 Univ. of Denver press B or 92 Packer, Alfred

A retelling of the story of Alfred Packer who in 1874 is reputed to have murdered five fellow gold prospectors and eaten them. He was brought to trial in 1880, and sentenced to imprisonment. Index.

Reviewed by Caroline Bancroft

N Y Times p32 My 25 '52 400w

"There are two things that need to be said about this relatively small but precisely documented book. One is that Mr. Gantt has been utterly conscientious about doing his best to get the details. His bibliography is impressive; his notes are informative and precise. . . . The other thing that needs to be said—and I regret it in a way because a great deal of care has been expended on the job—is that this kind of writing is just not Mr. Gantt's cup of tea." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 16 '52 550w

Reviewed by J. M. England

Sat R 35:20 Ag 16 '52 270w

GARBETT, CYRIL FORSTER, abp. In an age of revolution. 318p $4.50 Oxford

261.6 Christianity. Civilization, Modern 52-13197

"In an Age of Revolution, which is written in the conviction that mankind is in the midst of one of the greatest crises in history, is in three parts. In the first Dr. Garbett writes of the revolution of the last seventy years, and of the effect it has had on religion, politics and society; in the second he describes the alternative faiths which have gained man's allegiance—Communism, capitalism, the god-state and humanism; in the third he puts forward the Christian answer and suggests a radical strategy for the Church." New Statesman & Nation

"This is emphatically a book for all thoughtful people to read." F. J. Moore

+ Churchman 166:13 D 15 '52 160w

"The book as a whole has nothing original about it and yet it has real distinction." Roger Lloyd

+ Manchester Guardian p6 Ap 4 '52 650w

"One wonders how an Archbishop of a province, a Bishop of a large diocese and an ecclesiastical ambassador to the Antipodes, can find time to keep abreast with modern thought and write three formidable books in the space of five years. The most recent is the most stimulating." Mervyn Stockwood

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:473 Ap 19 '52 700w

"Although 'In an Age of Revolution,' written by the Archbishop of York, deals primarily with the British scene and is principally intended for British readers, it is of acute interest and importance to Americans." H. E. Fosdick

+ N Y Times p5 N 9 '52 650w

"In the last eighty pages he deals with the Christian counter-attack; and these, it must be owned, which should be the most important part of the book, are a little disappointing. He has given so daunting a picture of the strength, the energy, the enthusiasm and the tremendous resources of the enemy that the reader's expectations are perhaps pitched too high." J. G. Lockhart

+ Spec 188:452 Ap 4 '52 850w

"A vivid and comprehensive picture of the whole social and political movement of the times, as seen from the point of view of the Church of England."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p1 Ap 11 '52 2300w

GARDINER, HAROLD CHARLES, ed. Fifty years of the American novel; a Christian appraisal. 304p $3 Scribner

813.09 American fiction—History and criticism 51-14154

Essays, written by sixteen Catholic authors, on leading twentieth-century American novelists. The writers discussed are: Edith Wharton, Theodore Dreiser, Ellen Glasgow, Willa Cather, Sinclair Lewis, John Phillips Marquand, F. Scott Fitzgerald, John Dos Passos, William Faulkner, Ernest Hemingway, Thomas Wolfe, John Steinbeck, James T. Farrell, Robert Penn Warren. Notes on contributors. Index to titles of novels.

Booklist 48:182 F 1 '52

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon

Christian Century 69:16 Ja 2 '52 280w

"By and large, Father Gardiner's success is an indication of very good editing. . . . Like all anthologies, the present one cannot bear sustained reading. Even if it were composed of first-rate pieces of criticism, it could not do so. What it can do, however, is to give non-

GARDINER, H. C.—Continued

Catholics a tangible idea of what American Catholic criticism is like and to provide college libraries with what was until recently a very badly needed volume." Serge Hughes
Commonweal 55:405 Ja 25 '52 320w

"This is remarkably restrained in its religious slant, and consequently is a very rewarding study of the 20th century American novel."

+ Kirkus 19:598 O 1 '51 120w

"The fifteen essays are either heavily pedestrian or in very bad taste. The essay on Faulkner is the most successful; it is also, with that on Dos Passos, the most modest, the least self-absorbed in the process of being a Catholic critic. . . . If there is an observable critical trend, it is up with Marquand and down (oddly) with James, who is three times assailed with obsessive irrelevance. . . . The essays on Lewis, Fitzgerald, and Marquand are the worst. Either riddled with cheap jokes or solemnly parading a fashionable currency of critical jargon and a cardfile erudition, they unhappily contaminate the whole volume."

Warner Berthoff
— + New Eng Q 25:116 Mr '52 330w

Reviewed by Dudley Fitts
N Y Times p10 D 9 '51 440w

Reviewed by R. E. Spiller
Sat R 35:20 F 2 '52 500w

GARDNER, ARTHUR. English medieval sculpture; the original handbook rev. and enl. with 683 photographs. 351p il $10 Cambridge

734.2 [734.42] Sculpture, British, Sculpture, Medieval [51-14711]

"The living ideas of the Middle Ages, as expressed in stone rather than in speech, are presented in [this book]. . . . The text has been rewritten for the second edition, and nearly two hundred new illustrations have been added, making 683 in all." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) First published in 1935 with title: Handbook of English Medieval Sculpture (Book Review Digest 1935).

Booklist 48:232 Mr 15 '52

"Recommended," A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 77:596 Ap 1 '52 100w

"While one regrets that the book should cost four times the price of its predecessor, it can still be regarded in these days as excellent value, and it has no equal." C. R. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 9 '51 180w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 6 '52 130w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R 35:24 Mr 3 '52 70w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Case of the moth-eaten mink. 274p $2.50 Morrow

52-5788

Detective story.

Booklist 48:379 JI 15 '52

Kirkus 20:202 Mr 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 8 '52 150w

"A little long and rambling in spots, it still contains some of Perry Mason's neatest detection and a short but stunning preliminary hearing in which Mason dazzlingly doubles as counsel for the defense and witness for the prosecution." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p19 My 18 '52 70w

New Yorker 28:148 My 17 '52 150w

"This yarn seems extra lively, logical and surprising even for Gardner." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 18 '52 80w

Springf'd Republican p7D My 18 '52 80w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Court of last resort. 277p $3.50 Sloane

364.12 Criminal investigation. Evidence, Criminal. Trials 52-9708

A factual account of the origin and work of an organization known as the Court of Last Resort. "Financed by Harry Steeger, head of Popular Publications, which publishes Argosy Magazine, Mr. Gardner himself a former successful trial lawyer, has devoted a good deal of time and energy, aided by other investigators, to reopening cases in which for one reason or another—mistaken or vindictive witnesses, wrong identity, or official lethargy—defendants have been wrongfully convicted." (Library J)

Booklist 49:81; 98 N 1 '52; N 15 '52

Reviewed by W. M. Kunstler

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 23 '52 290w

"The Court's record, as here presented, makes absorbing reading and noteworthy sociological commentary. Of interest to others than Gardner's special following."

+ Kirkus 20:589 S 1 '52 170w

"A fascinating and constructive book. Public and law libraries." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1895 N 1 '52 100w

"You can read 'The Court of Last Resort' simply for the excitement of its case histories, all of which are plainly exciting. But you would be unwise to shut it for its unsystematic but not uninformed amateur sociology. It is the record of an honest if unconventional attempt to attain justice where conventional machinery has failed, and its accomplishments appear to be its own vindication." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 16 '52 380w

Reviewed by Gladwin Hill

N Y Times p58 N 9 '52 320w

"Because Mr. Gardner is a trained storyteller, these accounts are presented clearly and as vividly as you'd expect a mystery-writer to do the job." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 5 '52 650w

"Tops," Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:37 D 6 '52 20w

Springf'd Republican p7C D 7 '52 360w

GARDNER, ERLE STANLEY. Top of the heap, by A. A. Fair. 243p $2.50 Morrow

52-5061

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:714 D 15 '51 80w

"It's a neatly knotted puzzle and Donald unties it very neatly too." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Mr 2 '52 150w

"After a slow start, the story does develop some interesting alibi-complexities and a fine elaborate business of stock manipulation and (to fit in with the current worries of us all) income tax deception. But one wishes that the publishers had chosen a more characteristically sardonic and vigorous item to stress their revelation of the long-suspected fact that A. A. Fair is Erle Stanley Gardner." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p31 F 24 '52 100w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 2 '52 90w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:58 Mr 8 '52 40w

"A fast-paced, action-packed story." J. F. S.
+ Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 70w

GARDNER, LILLIAN (L. S. GARDNER, pseud). From bobcat to wolf; the story of Den seven, Pack four; il. by Stevens. 190p $2.50 Watts, F.

52-11059

"Bill Martin was old enough to be a Cub Scout, but there was no Den for him to join."

After Mother fixed that, Lucky Seven Den started on its lively career. Sound trucks, five-alarm fires and new neighbors helped make an exciting Bobcat year." Publisher's note

Booklist 49:19 S 1 '52

"A wonderful, wonderful cub scout story—strong as the will to win a Jamboree, bright as the gold arrow point, wholly realistic."

+ Kirkus 20:370 J 1 '52 200w

"Recommended for third and fourth-grade children." Juanita Walker

+ Library J 77:1310 Ag '52 50w

"This chunky large book, with its many fine, funny, real pictures, will quickly interest cub scouts, and also parents who would like to help start a 'den' or help with a 'pack.' Bill, age eight, and Shortie, age four, and their Mom and Dad and new friends, and new school, all ring true." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J 13 '52 140w

GARNIER, CHRISTINE. Fetish; tr. by Naomi Walford. 250p $3 Putnam

52-9832

A story of West African life. The narrator is a young Negro woman who has become Europeanized to the extent that she is educated, works as a doctor's nurse, and is a French official's mistress. When the doctor's wife comes on a visit, however, Doellé reverts in some part to native ways.

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 O 5 '52 230w

"Miss Garnier shows great intimacy with the country and customs of which she writes, but her penetration into the human problems that concern her here is not quite deep or true enough to make her story very moving or very memorable."

+ New Yorker 28:133 O 4 '52 60w

"It is a story told in the first person by Doellé, and while it cannot be said that the author contributes much real understanding to the basic problem, she does provide some nice perceptions into some of its manifestations." E. J. F.

+ Sat R 35:44 O 25 '52 140w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 23 '52 70w

"Author Garnier's characters are thoroughly convincing without ever being fully revealed. The most effective quality in Fetish is the African atmosphere, the feeling of black indolence and white frustration, and the briefly flashing native scenes."

+ Time 60:114 S 15 '52 450w

GARRETT, GARET. Wild wheel. 220p $2.75 Pantheon bks.

B or 92 Ford, Henry 52-7392

Neither history nor biography, this is an episodic account of Henry Ford's business career. The thesis of the book is that what Ford did in the earlier decades of the twentieth century under a laissez faire policy, could not be done today because of "big government's" interference with business.

Booklist 48:296 My 15 '52

"This absorbing book makes a valuable contribution to the records relating to one of the greatest enigmas ever to appear on the American scene—the late Henry Ford, farm boy turned mechanic, who in less than a half century built the largest one-man industrial empire in the history of the country. . . . Read Mr. Garrett's book. Were the contents not a matter of record they could well be fiction in its wildest form." Philip Hampson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 27 '52 600w

"Economically exciting and sound."

+ Kirkus 20:245 Ap 1 '52 270w

"With the current interest in the Foundation established in Ford's name, this book should appeal to the curious, although it is not an important biographical contribution." D. K. Oko

Library J 77:898 My 15 '52 130w

Management R 41:770 N '52 60w

"A helter-skelter book, repetitious and disorganized, but with flashes of insight and passages of first-hand observation that cut deep into the Ford mystery."

Nation 174:533 My 31 '52 60w

"This is a book about Henry Ford, whom Mr. Garrett terms 'a divine mechanic, the ultimate child of his era.' It does not pretend to be a biography, yet it gave one reader a much better idea of the kind of man Ford was than several biographies of him." Stewart Holbrook

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 10 '52 340w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson

N Y Times p10 My 11 '52 450w

"Here is another book, and an excellent one, about Ford. . . . If Mr. Garrett had omitted the last chapter, his book would have been a better one. An economist or an historian can question almost every sentence." H. U. Faulkner

+ Sat R 35:14 My 24 '52 750w

GARRETT, HELEN. Polly Roughhouse; il. by Myron S. Hall. 95p $2 Viking

51-14093

The trials of a jolly little girl named Polly, who lived in an apartment where every noise she made seemed to annoy the other tenants. The story is about the way Polly's difficulty is finally solved. For ages 9 to 10.

Bookmark 11:61 D '51

Reviewed by J. D. Lindquist and S. M. Andrews

Horn Bk 27:328 S '51 60w

Kirkus 19:394 Ag 1 '51 100w

"Not as outstanding as the author's previous books. Recommended for ages 9-10." V. A. Russell

Library J 76:2122 D 15 '51 90w

Wis Lib Bul 47:258 N '51

GARRISON, WINFRED ERNEST. Protestant manifest. 207p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury 284 Protestantism 52-6377

"The purpose of this book is to state in clear and simple terms the basic convictions of those Christians and Christian communions that call themselves Protestant. Within this total company there are wide differences of attitude, belief, and practice. Any description or discussion of the characteristics which distinguish the various kinds of Protestants from one another is therefore incidental to the main purpose. One must go to other books for full information as to the specific and distinguishing positions of the different Protestant groups. . . . One of the aims of this book is to make more evident the degree of unity that now exists among Protestants. In my opinion the present degree of unity is not enough. No argument on that point is proposed." (Foreword) Index.

Booklist 48:222 Mr 15 '52

Bookmark 11:155 Ap '52 50w

"Tho there is a lifetime of sound scholarship reflected in every page, here is a book written for inquiring laymen as well as clergymen who want a comprehensive but clear cut guide to the Protestant church." Clarence Seidenspinner

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 F 17 '52 420w

"This is an inside job. So what? We who are here on the Century consider ourselves fortunate beyond measure to have Dr. Garrison on our editorial team, for we doubt whether there's a man in America who knows more about more things than he does or can put his knowledge to better use when he sits down in front of a typewriter. So we knew that when he agreed to write a book on the Protestant-Catholic issue, it would be a humdinger. It's exactly that—a humdinger. And if it is an inside job to say so, the 'inside' part is that one who has worked alongside Garrison for all these 28 years knows that on this subject he couldn't write anything but a hum-dinger." Paul Hutchinson

GARRISON, W. E.—Continued

+ Christian Century 69:221 F 20 '52 1150w

"A little volume which fully deserves the adjectives able, calm, fervent, thorough, and documented. It is not light reading; it is rich in knowledge and provocative in thought. It supplies an admirable brief survey of the historical development of Protestantism and of the framework of orthodox Protestant beliefs today." DeWitt John

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 22 '52 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Titus

Churchman 166:17 O 15 '52 130w

"While Dr. Garrison is at pains to point out the basic differences between Protestantism and Catholicism he is neither negative nor polemical in his treatment, but positive, aiming to help Protestants to know their own faith and its implications for living."

+ Kirkus 20:117 F 15 '52 120w

"Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:435 Mr 1 '52 130w

"Dr. Garrison has lived close to the heart of Protestantism, and has now written probably the best single statement of Protestant affirmations available in the English language. Always faithful to the Protestant spirit, his 'manifesto' is sent forth 'without authority.' The imprimatur of its forcefulness, clarity, comprehensiveness and insight will be sufficient guaranty for most readers that this is written by a representative of the 'teaching church' to which in Protestantism every one belongs by his faith." Paul Ramsey

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 9 '52 650w

"Protestants who are not quite sure why they are, and non-Protestants who wonder what Protestants believe, will both find answers in Dr. Garrison's 'Protestant Manifesto.' . . . Dr. Garrison is excellently qualified to write on the subject." E. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 F 17 '52 140w

"Dr. Garrison deals frankly with ideas and practices which he considers to be alien to the mind and spirit of Protestantism and with positions which Protestants must firmly reject. The book is not polemical in spirit but has the positive purpose of helping Protestants to know their own faith and its implications for living." K. D. Miller

+ Sat R 35:40 Mr 1 '52 120w

GARST, MRS DORIS (SHANNON). Jim Bridger, greatest of the mountain men; il. by William Moyers. 242p $2.75 Houghton

B or 92 Bridger, James—Juvenile literature 52-1014

Fictionized biography of the fur trader and scout who joined Ashley's fur trapping expedition in 1822. He remained in the Rocky Mountain region thereafter and became famous as a mountain man. Grades 6 to 9.

Booklist 48:303 My 15 '52

Kirkus 20:76 F 1 '52 120w

"With a dearth of material on trappers, this exciting story of one of the greatest of them will prove a boon to librarians and readers." F. W. Butler

+ Library J 77:1081 Je 15 '52 60w

"Boys over twelve who never can have enough of tales of the opening of the West will find this a fine book to follow their reading about Lewis and Clark. An excellent map is used as endpaper, and Mr. Moyers' pictures are, as always, very capable. It is one of this author's best books and deserves its sturdy, handsome format." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 11 '52 100w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p18 Jl 13 '52 100w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:259 S '52 60w

Wis Lib Bul 48:178 Jl '52

GARST, MRS DORIS (SHANNON), and GARST, WARREN. Wild Bill Hickok. 183p il $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Hickok, James Butler—Juvenile literature 52-8210

Story-biography of a famous Western frontiersman from the age of eleven, when he gained his early fame as a wolf-killer, to his death at thirty-nine, victim of a "bad-man's" bullet.

Booklist 48:284 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:186 My '52

"Careful source reading and a thorough knowledge of the country, make Shannon Garst's work satisfying and worthwhile."

+ Kirkus 20:77 F 1 '52 160w

"This is the best juvenile biography of this 'greatest gun fighter and most famous peace officer of the frontier.'" Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 77:799 My 1 '52 80w

"Will appeal to older boys and men as a true adventure story." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 25 '52 50w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p18 Jl 13 '52 80w

Wis Lib Bul 48:220 S '52

GARST, WARREN EDWARD. Texas trail drive; il. by Joshua Tolford. 214p $2.75 Pellegriani & Cudahy

52-9362

Story of Texas during and just after the Civil war. Because fifteen-year-old Dave who was left to look after things while his father and brother went to war, did such a good job, he was allowed to drive the cattle to Kansas.

Bookmark 12:57 D '52

"Boys and girls will enjoy this first independent story by the son of one of their favorite authors, Shannon Garst." R. F.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 N 16 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:505 Ag 15 '52 100w

"The story of that drive is full of action and well told. Recommended for all children's rooms." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:827 O 15 '52 40w

"It is a well-written story, a bit transparent as to plot, but interesting and instructive. The illustrations are good, and there is a helpful glossary." M. P. Allen

+ Sat R 35:62 N 15 '52 120w

GARTHWAITE, MRS MARION (HOOK). Shaken days; il. by Ursula Koering. 204p $2.75 Messner

52-13634

Story of the life of one family for two weeks before and ten days after the San Francisco earthquake of 1906. For young readers.

Booklist 49:160 Ja 1 '53

"A story with an authentic flavor."

+ Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 20w

"A delightful family story with the interesting background well pictured." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:411 D '52 80w

"The Bay area atmosphere, plus recognizable problems which are handled with good humor and serenity, and which are heightened and resolved by an act of God, make this absorbing."

+ Kirkus 20:503 Ag 15 '52 130w

"A good family story."

+ Library J 77:1741 O 15 '52 30w

Reviewed by Claire Nolte

+ Library J 78:67 Ja 1 '53 80w

"A fine family story of character, and a vivid telling of the dread of the great earthquake and fire. The author was there." G. C. Castor

+ N Y Times pt2, p35 N 16 '52 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 16 '52 130w

GARVAN, ANTHONY N. B. Architecture and town planning in colonial Connecticut. 166p il $7.50 Yale univ. press

720.9746 Architecture, Colonial. Cities and towns—Connecticut 51-14684

"In this study of land division and town planning in colonial Connecticut, demography is approached from an almost entirely new angle. Mr. Garvan traces the lineage of Connecticut architecture to English colonial practice in Ireland and elsewhere, as well as to the homeland, and establishes its setting within the social and religious pattern of English Puritanism. The colonists were, in the main, English husbandmen, and the author finds their architecture, like themselves, rural, Protestant, and in type, seventeenth-century English." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Index.

"A major weakness of this fine monograph is its inexact title. Yale University Press did Professor Garvan no great service when it broadened the scope of the 151-page volume, in title at least, by implying that it covered the whole of the colonial period. The author himself is more explicit when he says in his conclusion, 'This work has been concerned chiefly with demonstration of the European precedents for the settler's customs.' This chore he does well, so well that he has already received the ultimate accolade of his colleagues and peers, the annual gold medal of the Society of Architectural Historians for the outstanding contribution in architectural history by an American author in 1951. An excellent synthesis of the character of the early Connecticut migration leads logically to a discussion of town and land planning." F. L. Rath
+ Am Hist R 57:1060 J1 '52 340w

"This interesting, well-illustrated, and very fully annotated book by Anthony Garvan shows a deep interest in the work of Connecticut men who planned the layout of domains, towns, and the structure of dwellings and meeting-houses in pioneer days. To tell his story fully, Mr. Garvan is well aware of the endless facts he needs to present, and he spreads samples of them for the casual reader to run over and for historians to use as clues to further research. . . The technical nature of the book and the ardor of the author are apparent from cover to cover. Nevertheless a layman who is chiefly interested in the interiors of Connecticut houses and meeting-houses, will find unusual interest in the broad view which Mr. Garvan spreads with many illustrations for such eyes, whether of New England, Old England, or our changing world." A. A. Shurcliff

+ New Eng Q 25:109 Mr '52 700w

"[The book is] set forth in clear and forceful prose and illustrated admirably by seventy-three excellent photographs and plates, producing an integrated whole which is a major contribution to our colonial history." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Times p6 Ag 24 '52 600w

"Readers of Garvan's chapter on the Protestant Plain Style applied to church building here and abroad will probably agree that this monograph deserves to be placed on the same shelf with Fiske Kimball's monumental study of our early domestic architecture. Monograph, however, may be too narrow a classification for Garvan's book. The author, who is well aware that architecture and town planning are meaningless topics unless related to history at large, tells his story as it should be told, against the framework of colonial civilization." Wayne Andrews

+ Sat R 35:46 F 2 '52 360w

"Mr. Garvan has gathered together a dazzling array of material: early maps of towns, information as to their topography and distribution, surveys of lands, houses, and fields, old sketches of buildings, and, withal, he dispatches fallacies and old errors."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:16 Mr '52 300w

GARVE, ANDREW, pseud. See Winterton, P.

GASKIN, MOIRA. Heaven knows where. 244p $3 Crowell

52-7372

"A romantic novel about a young doctor and the hospital he served. Friends, lovers, wives and husbands form a pattern of many threads as each brings to bear a strong influence on others." Spring'd Republican

Kirkus 20:42 Ja 15 '52 240w

"Even after reading 'Heaven Knows Where' twice, this reviewer must confess to hopeless confusion and an inability to make any comment save of a frivolous nature. This is not because Moira Gaskin is hopelessly untalented. On the contrary she writes rather well, and she has created some interesting characters—or one feels they would be interesting if one could figure out just what they were up to. The trouble is that there are so many people involved in such fervid introspections that it is impossible to make out what is happening, what has happened, and who it is happening to." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p31 Ap 6 '52 200w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:35 Mr 15 '52 270w

"It is a novel which commands sympathy and understanding for the people within its pages." J. F. S.

+ Spring'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 50w

"The trouble is that Miss Gaskin's characters elude her. The sensitive Philip, his callous yet improbably redeemable little wife and the mysterious Louise never emerge as real people. However, Miss Gaskin shows signs of an ability to tell a good story."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p561 S 7 '51 80w

GASSNER, JOHN, ed. Best American plays; third ser., 1945-1951; with an introduction. 707p $4.50 Crown

812.08 American drama—Collections 52-5690

Contents: Death of a salesman, by Arthur Miller; A streetcar named Desire, by Tennessee Williams; The iceman cometh, by Eugene O'Neill; The member of the wedding, by Carson McCullers; The autumn garden, by Lillian Hellman; Come back, Little Sheba, by William Inge; All my sons, by Arthur Miller; Detective story, by Sidney Kingsley; Billy Budd, by L. O. Coxe and Robert Chapman; Medea, by Robinson Jeffers; Mister Roberts, by Thomas Heggen and Joshua Logan; State of the Union, by Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse; Darkness at noon, by Sidney Kingsley; Anne of the thousand days, by Maxwell Anderson; Bell, book and candle, by John van Druten; The moon is blue, by F. H. Herbert; Summer and smoke, by Tennessee Williams.

Booklist 48:357 J1 1 '52

Kirkus 20:294 My 1 '52 210w

"John Gassner's excellent critical 17-page introduction gives pertinence to the fine anthology. . . Highly recommended for all drama collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1208 J1 '52 140w

"This representative collection of plays with useful editorial introductions is of prime importance to serious students of the drama." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 3 '52 170w

Reviewed by Henry Hewes

+ Sat R 35:32 S 13 '52 550w

GASSNER, JOHN, ed. Treasury of the theatre. rev ed 3v 1832p ea $6; set $17.50 Simon & Schuster

808.82 Dramas—Collections 51-8220

"The first volume contains twenty-six plays from Greek drama, Roman comedy, the Hindu and Japanese theatre as well as English, Spanish, French and German masterpieces including 'Hamlet,' 'The Misanthrope,' 'Faust,' Gogol's 'The Inspector General,' and Hebbel's 'Maria Magdalena.' The second volume, devoted to the modern European drama, unites

GASSNER, JOHN—Continued
Ibsen's realism with Rostand's romanticism, Maeterlinck's symbolism with Pirandello's novel eye, Copek's expressionism with Brecht's Piscatorian epic theatre. . . The third volume deals with the plays of English, Irish and American playwrights from Oscar Wilde to Arthur Miller. . . At the end of each volume there is a list of contemporary plays with brief and concise synopses, thus covering the world literature of the theatre." (N Y Times) A revised and expanded edition of A Treasury of the Theatre, edited by Burns Mantle and John Gassner (Book Review Digest 1935).

"Mr. Gassner wishes he might have included twice as many plays as space has permitted. Most readers—with their own favorites in mind—will echo the sentiment. But there is no denying that he has provided a rich treasury from which to draw." John Beaufort

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 D 6 '51 300w

"Admirable anthology." George Freedley
+ Library J 76:2116 D 15 '51 80w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 F 3 '52 90w

Reviewed by Saul Colin
+ N Y Times p6 D 30 '51 350w

"All in all, it's the best drama anthology in English yet produced." Luther Nichols
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 16 '51 1000w

"He has done the most valuable thing any dramatist can do. He has introduced his dramatists in such a way his readers will be stimulated to read other plays mentioned but not included in these hefty volumes." H. H.
+ Sat R 35:40 Ap 12 '52 360w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin
Theatre Arts 36:2 Ja '52 360w

GATES, WILLIAM BRYAM. Michigan copper and Boston dollars; an economic history of the Michigan copper mining industry. 301p il $5 Harvard univ. press

338.27 Copper industry and trade 51-7807

An economic history of copper mining in Michigan from 1843 to the end of World war II. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

"Mr. Gates provides us in this book with the first scholarly history of the Michigan copper mining industry." Sidney Fine

+ Am Hist R 57:775 Ap '52 320w

"Scholarly and yet interesting book." John Ise

+ Ann Am Acad 280:203 Mr '52 300w

"Gates has given a scholarly economic analysis of the life-cycle of an industry. The book also contains some contemporary pictures, 37 pages of well-chosen statistics, 37 more of notes on sources, a glossary of copper-mining terms, and a good index. This is virtually a model study of its kind." D. L. Kemmerer
+ J Pol Econ 60:270 Je '52 500w

"A work for the scholar and a mine for the research student." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 77:54 Ja 1 '52 120w

"A brief but excellent economic history."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:56 Mr '52 160w

GAULT, WILLIAM CAMPBELL. Bloody Bokhara. 223p $2.50 Dutton

Detective story. 52-8241

"Rich background material in exceptionally dramatic mixup, in the telling of which the author has needless lapses in good taste." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 S 14 '52 110w

Kirkus 20:388 J1 1 '52 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 5 '52 20w

"Those who read 'The Bloody Bokhara' simply as a sharp, tough novel of violence will not be disappointed; but readers who usually shun that fare may well enjoy this as a moving sort of Saroyan-with-discipline." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p16 S 14 '52 170w

"Unluckily the problem of who cheated whom over what rug is so involved, and the love-interest is such a melange of Spillane and watered down Hammett that this promise fizzles to nothing." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 21 '52 60w

"Technical data good, but story moves slowly. Average." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:40 S 13 '52 20w

GAULT, WILLIAM CAMPBELL. Don't cry for me. 220p $2.50 Dutton

51-14972

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:648 N 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Ja 27 '52 90w

"The murders entangled with gambling and narcotics are standard stuff; and their solution is acceptable if unstartling. But the important thing is that Gault, as Frederic Brown justly observes in a jacket blurb, 'can write, never badly and sometimes like an angel.' The framework of a conventional medium-tough whodunit becomes an armature for a very nearly full-scale serious novel." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p16 Ja 20 '52 210w

"This one's rather different, and if it gets involved toward the end, it eventually straightens out. Something's going on at all times. C plus." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ja 20 '52 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:59 Ja 19 '52 30w

GAULT, WILLIAM CAMPBELL. Thunder road. 188p $2.50 Dutton

52-8251

Story of a boy who develops from an enthusiastic adolescent interested mainly in speed, to racing mechanic and finally a racing driver. When he wins in a Memorial Day race at Indianapolis, he determines to make automotive engineering his career. For high school boys.

Booklist 49:72 O 15 '52

"Despite the unnecessarily improbable climax of a green youngster winning the big race at Indianapolis, this is a well-written and welcome book for speed-hungry boys. Pete and his parents are real people, shop talk is lively and satisfyingly technical, and safety and know-how, rather than speed and thrills, are unobtrusively stressed." Vernon Ives

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 16 '52 160w

"This is sure fire for boys, both the good readers and the slow ones." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 28:426 D '52 70w

Kirkus 20:606 S 15 '52 70w

"A fast-moving speedway story that is more technical than Hot Rod. Will be well liked by high school boys." M. M. Smith

+ Library J 77:1668 O 1 '52 70w

"Told in the first person, the story moves rapidly. The prose is swift and hard hitting and the reader is swung along at such an exciting pace that he gets the feel and smell of the thunder road." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p36 S 28 '52 150w

"Seldom do literary style and subject matter mesh as smoothly as in this story about racing cars. . . An especially well-written yarn for readers of all ages who like clean, fast sports stories." M. P. A.

+ Sat R 35:62 N 15 '52 90w

GAY, ZHENYA. Look! il. by [the author].
[28p] $2 Viking

52-12233

Pictures of animals for the very young. Included are a rabbit, a duckling, a baby chicken, a bear cub, a kitten, and a pony, among others.

Booklist 49:19 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:83 Ja '53

Reviewed by Marcia Winn

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52
30w

Horn Bk 28:397 D '52 30w

"Here are big, softly toned animal pictures by the author that reach out in direct appeal and ask for a turning and returning of pages . . . A charmer." J. L. G.

+ Kirkus 20:497 Ag 15 '52 80w

"Recommended for ages 3-5." Elizabeth Mitchell

+ Library J 77:1906 N 1 '52 70w

"An animal picture-rhyme-book, 'Look!' uses the sure-fire turn-the-page-and-look technique so intriguing to tiny book-lovers. Though the rhymes are simple and ear-catching, the charm of the book lies in the yellow, brown and black animal drawings, which one 2-year-old at my side found lovable and realistic enough to stroke." Pat Clark

+ N Y Times pt2, p39 N 16 '52 70w

Wis Lib Bul 48:217 S '52

GEAGAN, BILL. Nature I loved; il. by the author; foreword by De Witt MacKenzie. 241p $3 Coward-McCann

574 Outdoor life

52-8023

In an effort to find a job which suited him, the author bought a cabin in the Maine woods and lived there two years alone, except for his two dogs. He had little money, so it was a precarious existence, hunting, fishing, trapping, and working in his garden. This is his account of his experiences, which he has illustrated with his own drawings.

Booklist 48:276 My 1 '52

"Despite the fact that he has written widely for the sporting magazines and conducts a syndicated outdoors column, Mr. Geagan has unfortunately never learned to handle the English language. He worries and frets the syntax of every sentence and goes a hundred yards out of his way at every opportunity to drag in any available cliché. . . But—and let this be a lesson to English teachers—Mr. Geagan has produced [an] interesting book." Walter Harding

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 20 '52
170w

Reviewed by G. P. Lancaster

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 8
'52 150w

"Highly recommended for young and old."

R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1206 Jl '52 50w

"If some of the fishing episodes are a bit too informational for any but the most ardent anglers, many descriptions of the woods and of the secret, curious life of its inhabitants have genuine charm, at times striking a poetic note." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 20 '52
170w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 4 '52
150w

"There are many pleasant passages in 'Nature I Loved' and some preaching, not all of it on the gospel of conservation. In relating, with no little clean, fresh beauty, what he learned about nature and wildlife he also reveals a good deal about himself, and this personal quality helps make his book so readable."

D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 390w

GEER, ANDREW CLARE. New breed; the story of the U. S. Marines in Korea. 395p il maps $3.50 Harper

951.9 Korean war, 1950- . U. S. Marine corps 52-5438

The author had access to the complete file of Marine combat reports and was able to gather material at first hand as an active Marine field officer during the dreadful winter, spring and summer of 1950-51 in Korea. This is the story of men who fought the fight and won battles: the privates, the corporals, sergeants and lieutenants.

Reviewed by Walter Simmons

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 14 '52
250w

Kirkus 20:622 S 15 '52 190w

"The men who swing and swagger, fight, freeze, crawl and too often die through 'The New Breed' are Marines, and none is more purposefully mindful of it than Marine Andrew Geer. The author marched with the First from the old into the new. His pride of corps accounts for some of the great strength and much of the slight weakness of his Korea story." F. W. Yerxa

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 28 '52
550w

"The Marines in Korea have done more than reaffirm their ability to create an epic, as Andrew Geer, a Marine veteran, makes plain in his carefully documented and comprehensive factual narrative. His excellent history shows that Korea gave the Marines a chance to prove in deeds the case for their existence they had been forced to make with words between 1945 and 1950." George McMillan

+ N Y Times p3 N 9 '52 450w

"This is not a finely written book, nor was it intended to be. Some of the transitions are clumsy, the action sometimes seems incredibly confused. But that is the way battles are fought; that is the way war is. And through it all runs one strong thread of continuity, marine courage and the incredible marine bravura called 'esprit de corps.'" Don Hall

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 23 '52
600w

GEER, MARY WARREN. Selling home property. 267p $4.35; to schools $3.25 Prentice-Hall

333.33 Real estate business 52-6315

"A home-selling specialist of twenty years' standing, the author presents what she considers the essence of success in her field. Briefly: Line up your home-selling with existing conditions; The human element is paramount; Success is achieved by expert performance in all the details that make up the total undertaking. With the human equation as the key, the reader is led through the various stages of client-handling, from the original interview, and before, to the final closing, and beyond." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:191 F 15 '52

"This is a sure footed, positive handling of real estate selling problems."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 14 '52
30w

"Interesting, hard-boiled. It will be read." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:599 Ap 1 '52 80w

GELB, IGNACE J. Study of writing: the foundations of grammatology. 296p il $5 Univ. of Chicago press

411 Writing—History 52-10599

"The aim of this study is to lay a foundation for a new science of writing which might be called grammatology. While the general histories of writing treat individual writings mainly from a descriptive-historical point of view, the new science attempts to establish general principles governing the use and evolution of writing on a comparative-typological basis. . . The study relies chiefly on internal structural evidence, placing in secondary position arguments that can be drawn from external formal evidence." (Pref) The author is professor of Assyriology at the Oriental Institute, the University of Chicago. Bibliography. Index.

GELB, I. J.—Continued

Booklist 48:373 J1 15 '52

School & Society 76:144 Ag 30 '52 40w

"The author confesses that he has spent some twenty years, on and off, on the book, and that it contains such diverse matter as an essay composed in his student days and chapters written within the last year or two. This is just the impression that the readers get from a certain incoherence in the argument. . . Sometimes too, no conclusions emerge; for example, the chapter entitled 'Monogenesis or Polygenesis of Writing' leaves it quite uncertain whether he thinks that all the systems have a common origin and have been separately developed. Others, such as those on 'Writing and Civilisation' and on its future development, are slight and of little value. The descriptive parts of the book, which will attract the attention of most readers, however, are admirable, and the text is amply illustrated by excellent drawings and tables." G. R. Driver

+ — Spec 189:168 Ag 1 '52 700w

"Versed as he is in a number of entirely separate ancient and modern scripts and in the basic principles of writing, the author of this volume cannot fail to impress upon his readers his competence and willingness to grapple with generally neglected problems in original and incisive manner. Mr. Gelb's individual theories, on the other hand, may not receive unanimous accord. Although the work is addressed primarily to linguists, philologists, cultural anthropologists, and historians, it can be understood fairly readily by informed laymen."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:252 S '52 150w

GELLER, MAX A. Advertising at the crossroads; federal regulation vs. voluntary controls. 335p $5 Ronald

659.1 Advertising 52-9274

An advertising agency partner and president of an industrial corporation discusses the public criticism of certain advertising abuses. He gives a sketch of the history of advertising in the United States and "finds manifest abuses as affecting the public interest, sees public criticism rising and government agencies charged with enforcement of laws pressing for more punitive regulation. He concludes that the industry is faced with the dilemma of setting up effective voluntary controls, such as was done in Great Britain, or stricter federal regulation." (Library J) Bibliography. Table of cases. Index.

"Timely, and solidly documented with legal cases, statutes, and radio and television codes."

+ Booklist 49:6 S 1 '52

"Clear, interesting, stimulating." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:2001 N 15 '52 110w

GENDRON, VAL. Fork in the trail; decorations by Sidney Quinn. 208p $2.75 Longmans

52-7182

Wint Hanners, a fifteen-year-old boy, is the hero of this California gold rush for ages twelve to sixteen. Wint started with a wagon train but his wagon broke down at the fork of the Platte River. For a year he stayed, trading with passing wagon trains, and making friends with whites and Indians both. At the end of a year he was able to strike out for Texas and cattle raising.

Booklist 49:16 S 1 '52

"A swift-moving and rewarding story." M. B. Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 N 16 '52 160w

Commonweal 57:176 N 21 '52 20w

"The unlooked for twist to the plot and some pretty savvy trail talk takes this a little out of the ordinary."

+ Kirkus 20:460 Ag 1 '52 100w

"Not outstanding, but an interesting and unusual plot." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 77:1668 O 1 '52 50w

"A book that will almost certainly appeal to older boys and girls."

+ Sat R 35:60 N 15 '52 150w

School & Society 76:191 S 26 '52 20w

GEORGE, JOHN LOTHAR, and GEORGE, JEAN CRAIGHEAD. Meph, the pet skunk; il. by Jean George. (American woodland tales) 180p $2.75 Dutton

Skunks—Legends and stories 52-7799

Story of a farm boy who was brought to a better understanding of his father's problems after he found and adopted a small skunk for a pet. For ages 12 to 16.

Booklist 49:92 N 1 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 26 '52 130w

"The book is packed with scientific observations and yet reads like a thrilling adventure. Boys, especially in the country, will love it."

+ Commonweal 57:173 N 21 '52 50w

+ Horn Bk 28:412 D '52 90w

"Boys who like stories of wild life or stories of farm life will find this good. Will be more popular than others by the authors." R. M. McEvoy

+ Library J 77:1413 S 1 '52 60w

"The friendship between boy and animal is well done and not sentimentalized, and the whole country scene is very real." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 21 '52 90w

"This story has the Georges' usual high quality of writing and illustrating." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p31 S 7 '52 110w

Spring'd Republican p9D S 28 '52 80w

GERAHTY, DIGBY GEORGE (ROBERT STANDISH, pseud.) Worthy man. 278p $3.50 Macmillan

52-12449

England and China are the setting for tragedy and adventure when a man with too strong a sense of loyalty comes up against one who has always been a master of deception.

Mr. Standish seems to disbelieve this hash himself; in his final chapters he flees from it and writes the whole thing off." Riley Hughes

— Cath World 176:235 D '52 160w

"Imported soap opera, but a sense of reality in the far eastern scenes."

Kirkus 20:426 J1 15 '52 220w

"The style is archaic, leaving nothing to the imagination, so full of convenient coincidences as to make the tortuous plot almost burlesque, the whole, especially the climax melodramatic to the point of absurdity." R. W. Henderson

— Library J 77:1506 S 15 '52 110w

"An ingenious tale of adventure, suspense and romance that offers a diverting ride to a reader not hypercritically concerned with the probabilities of human nature and experience." Mary Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 28 '52 280w

N Y Times p14 D 28 '52 250w

"Mr. Standish writes with his usual charm, and grace. He creates individual scenes, believable dialogue, credible characters, with deft skill. But this time he's used them all on a rather wobbly structure." E. J. F.

— + Sat R 35:30 D 27 '52 210w

"Mr. Standish has more than once in the past turned his knowledge of Japan and Japanese to excellent popular advantage. Never a very stylish or individual writer, he has deserved attention for what he had to say if not for his way of saying it. A Worthy Man, however, is a toothache of a book." R. D. Charques

Spec 189:198 Ag 8 '52 60w

GERARD, JOHN. Autobiography of a hunted priest; tr. from the Latin by Philip Caraman; with an introd. by Graham Greene [Eng title: Autobiography of an Elizabethan]. 287p il $3.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

B or 92

51-12758

"The Englishman John Gerard (1564-1637) was ordained a priest in the Jesuit Order in 1588. In these pages he modestly and in simple fashion tells of his eighteen years' labor for the salvation of souls in the Tudor underground." (Library J) Index.

"Father Gerard's self-portrait, composed in Latin with an almost Ciceronian sensitivity and the calm stateliness of the medieval Church, has been done excellently into English. . . . Father Caraman deserves great praise for this discovery and this splendid edition." F. X. Murphy

+ Cath World 175:395 Ag '52 110w

Reviewed by Warren Beck

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 F 17 '52 320w

Reviewed by W. S. Hudson

Christian Century 69:400 Ap 2 '52 800w

"It is as thrilling and as beautiful in the simplicity of its prose as the early Christian acts of the martyrs. . . . Father Caraman's translation of this remarkable book is worthy only of the highest praise. In his well-documented and exhaustively annotated presentation, he has enhanced the narrative through his scholarship." J. F. Kittleson

+ Commonweal 55:454 F 8 '52 280w

"The translation has admirably caught the spirit of the author and the days in which [Gerard] lived. Recommended." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 77:209 F 1 '52 160w

"In a world which, as Mr Graham Greene remarks in his suggestive preface, bears a growing likeness to that 'declining and gasping world' in which Gerard fought the good fight and kept his Faith, it is not only Roman Catholic readers of this book who will reach beyond both its entertainment and its instruction to grasp its inspiration, the inspiration of matchless fortitude in a high cause." S. T. Bindoff

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 21 '51 380w

Reviewed by H. R. Trevor-Roper

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:495 N 3 '51 2200w

"For Catholic readers, this will be a volume of keen interest. . . . For the non-Catholic reader, there are fresh glimpses from new angles of the great age of Elizabeth I. . . . Father Caraman's notes, appendices, which draw from historical documents made available since the last English translation of 1870, the index, the simple, almost colloquial English of the translation itself, are a workmanlike performance." E. C. Dunn

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 9 '52 700w

"Father Caraman, S. J., has translated the autobiography from the Latin of the oldest existing complete text, the Stonyhurst manuscript. And he has been able to add admirable footnotes and appendices to his text, and to identify all the characters named by Father John Gerard, and supply details about them. With an excellent brief introduction by Graham Greene, it is a story of sheer suspense and history at its most accurate and intimate." Anne Fremantle

+ N Y Times p10 F 17 '52 800w

"The writing is brisk and colorful, and the whole is an exciting parable, uncomfortably reminiscent of much more recent times. Graham Greene, who wrote a novel about a similarly hounded Mexican priest, has provided an excellent introduction."

+ New Yorker 28:110 F 23 '52 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 9 '52 230w

"Father Caraman's new translation reads very briskly and well; it is in far livelier and more contemporary English than the older version. Where they differ in more than mere phrasing (they never differ in sense), we have no means of knowing which is the more accurate. But there is no doubt which is the more readable. The old translation (though not at all 'Elizabethan' as Father Caraman rather suggests) is a little heavy and slow-moving; and the narrative is broken up with interpolated chunks of information. The new version runs fluently; the high drama of the scenes emerges unclogged." Rose Macaulay

+ Spec 187:440 O 5 '51 900w

"The plainly written account of a spiritual mission as thrilling as a modern spy story."

+ Time 59:72 F 25 '52 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p646 O 12 '51 1000w

GERSON, NOEL B. Cumberland rifles. 314p $3.50 Doubleday

52-6367

A historical novel dealing with the region that soon became the state of Tennessee, but was then, in the years immediately following the Revolution, the "free" state of Franklin. The hero is a Dane, a soldier of fortune, who comes to America to serve the Spaniards, but experiences a change of heart and joins the Americans fighting against his former employers.

Booklist 49:48 O 1 '52

"Noel B. Gerson is a great believer in historical truth, and has stuck to the basic facts while weaving his fictional romance. It is a novel full of color and lusty adventure." R. L. Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 J1 27 '52 250w

"Better than adequate."

+ Kirkus 20:307 My 15 '52 180w

"Mr. Gerson gives an interesting picture of the day, and of the life those early adventurers led, and particularly of the struggle between the United States and Spain."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 J1 27 '52 240w

"Mr. Gerson obviously had a lot of fun concocting this historical thriller, and if you are not too critical you'll have a lot of the same." Charles Lee

N Y Times p14 Ag 17 '52 200w

"The earnest seeker for revelation and interpretation of our rugged past as well as the seekers for history by painless injection and mere adventure in print will be interested in this book." Betty Bredin

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 7 '52 450w

Sat R 35:36 Ag 23 '52 160w

GESELL, ARNOLD LUCIUS. Infant development; the embryology of early human behavior. 108p il $3.50 Harper

136.71 [136.7352] Infants. Child study

51-11915

"A compact volume, introductory to Gesell's other studies of childhood, portrays characteristic patterns of prenatal and infant behavior, illustrated with action photographs done by cinematography. Growth mechanisms are outlined, and principles for diagnosis of development in both normal and deviant behavior are explained and illustrated." Booklist

Booklist 48:178 F 1 '52

San Francisco Chronicle p27 F 17 '52 80w

Time 59:42 Ja 7 '52 450w

Wis Lib Bul 48:85 Mr '52

GESSOW, ALFRED, and MYERS, GARRY C. Aerodynamics of the helicopter. 343p il $6; text ed $4.50 Macmillan

629.1335 Helicopters 52-761

"An introductory but substantial treatment, designed for advanced students of aeronautical engineering and graduate aeronautical engineers. There is one historical chapter, but the remainder all pertain to practical matters of interest in helicopter design. The authors are associated with the Langley Aeronautical Laboratory of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. An extensive bibliography of NACA papers is included along with a selected list of other literature." (Library J) Index.

GESSOW, ALFRED—Continued

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:903 My 15 '52 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:22 Mr '52

GEWIRTH, ALAN, ed. & tr. Marsilius of Padua, the defender of peace; 2v; v 1, Marsilius of Padua and medieval political philosophy. 342p $4.75 Columbia univ. press
320.1 Marsilius of Padua. Political science—History

"This volume, intended as a companion to a forthcoming translation of the Defensor Pacis, contains an extensive and careful analysis of Marsilius' political doctrines. These are placed against the background of contemporary institutional arrangements and the polemics of the controversy over spiritual and temporal powers, and they are extensively specified by reference to likeness and contrast with the intellectual traditions influencing them negatively or positively." Ethics

"The principal attention is given to the doctrines themselves and the arguments brought to their support, so that the result is a presentation which conveys systematically and clearly the structure, orientation and significance of this major political philosophy." William Sacksteder

+ Ethics 62:151 Ja '52 80w

"This introduction to Marsilius is also an excellent introduction to mediaeval political philosophy at large. Professor Gewirth carefully analyzes Marsilius' leading concepts and arguments in relation to those of his contemporaries and predecessors. Since we cannot always be sure that Marsilius' erudition was as extensive and lucid as Professor Gewirth's, what emerges from this analysis is perhaps less an exposition of the Defensor Pacis itself than a setting forth of the range of implications its doctrines acquire when surrounded by much of the mediaeval and some of the classical political discussion." Robert Cumming

+ J Philos 49:481 Jl 3 '52 1100w

"Mr. Gewirth, a young man who teaches philosophy at the University of Chicago, has brought an exegetical skill of a very high order [to this study] and an almost incredible learning." Robert Bierstedt

+ Sat R 35:39 F 2 '52 250w

School & Society 75:415 Je 28 '52 20w

"Professor Gewirth's book contains no startling novelties, but it is admirably thorough, neither too long nor too short, and it must be described as the essential book in English on Marsilius."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p457 Jl 11 '52 600w

GHISELIN, BREWSTER, ed. Creative process; a symposium [by Henri Poincaré and others]. 259p $6.50 Univ. of Calif. press

155 Creation (literary, artistic, etc.) 52-8354

"Thirty-eight writers, thinkers, artists, and musicians, recruited from the past and present, pool their own experiences of the creative process, in the first anthology to include longer and more complete source materials on the subject. Whatever their divergences of opinion, all agree that the creative process is always an automatic and spontaneous one. For the serious general reader as well as the specialist." Booklist.

Booklist 48:289 My 15 '52

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 17 '52 40w

Reviewed by Parker Tyler

Poetry 81:133 N '52 1350w

"Why some imaginations are more fecund than others will probably remain an enigma for some time to come, but 'The Creative Process' is important reading and certainly will furnish fresh insight into the field of human inventiveness for any mind interested in the subject." J. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 4 '52 300w

"It is, in general, a stimulating collection, for it brings together some of the standard pieces on the creative process and adds to them a fresh batch from diverse sources. At the beginning, the editor has provided a long, perhaps superfluous, introduction; and the press has produced an elegantly sturdy volume."

+ Sat R 35:37 Jl 12 '52 400w

GIANAKOULIS, THEODORE P. Land and people of Greece; il. from photographs. (Portraits of the nations ser) 117p $2.50 Lippincott

949.5 Greece—Juvenile literature 52-7465

Short introduction to Greece, its land and people, social life and customs, history and mythology. The author is a Greek, educated in the United States. Map, photographs, index.

Booklist 49:109 N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:83 Ja '53

"This kind of volume serves excellently as quick reference and overall survey material and should, in its intermittent drama, inspire the serious student to further study. Illustrated with photographs."

+ Kirkus 20:456 Ag 1 '52 130w

"Adult in style and superficial in coverage but needed for reference in upper grades and junior high schools. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 77:2012 N 15 '52 60w

"Should be very welcome for high school age." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p7 N 16 '52 90w

GIBBON, EDWARD. Decline and fall of the Roman empire; ed. and with an introd. by Dero A. Saunders; pref. by Charles Alexander Robinson, jr. (Viking portable lib) 691p $2.50 Viking

937 Rome—History 52-11390

An abridgment of Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. "The reduction in bulk has been made chiefly in the treatment of the empire's 900-year survival in the East—a digression from the main line of Western history. Instead, the editorial focus is on the center of the Roman dominion through the vital period up to 500 A.D., plus a few sections from the wider world scene to demonstrate the amazing vigor and versatility of the historian. Deleted material has been summarized by the editor, who has provided a comprehensive introduction." (Publisher's note)

Booklist 49:34 S 15 '52

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 27 '52 30w

Christian Century 69:1258 O 29 '52 110w

"If this volume is taken as a fragment, not as a summary, it has very considerable merits. As an intellectual tour de force it is astonishing and as a contribution to public education it commands admiration if one agrees that to know a little of Gibbon is better than not to know him at all." G. W. Johnson

+ New Repub 127:23 Ag 25 '52 400w

"That it is still readable is due to the fact that Gibbon made it not only a work of history but a work of art. . . It performs the function of all good historical writing: It illuminates the present as well as the past. Mr. Saunders' first-rate introduction provides a critical estimate of the book as well as a biography of its gifted author."

+ New Yorker 28:174 N 8 '52 130w

"For anyone who is outraged by the very idea that 'The Decline and Fall' should be abridged at all, Mr. Saunders has a good answer. "This book," he writes, "is designed to give the reader a taste for Gibbon, in the hope that he will go out and make a glutton of himself." Mr. Saunders's own introduction, let me add, is admirably suited to its purpose, and his narrative bridges and synopses are excellent." B. R. Redman

+ Sat R 35:22 Ag 9 '52 280w

"The Portable Gibbon preserves what has kept best in Gibbon: his sly wit, his stately prose rhythms, his knack for making the mummies of history sit up on the printed page and kick off their wrappings, and his intoxication with the grandeur of Rome."

+ Time 60:102 J1 21 '52 350w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Madeleine (et nunc manet in te) tr. from the French, with an introd. and notes by Justin O'Brien. 98p $3 Knopf

B or 92 Gide, Madeleine Louise Mathilde (Rondeaux) 52-6417

"The posthumous evocation of Gide's wife, supplemented with unpublished pages concerning Madame Gide from his diary, beautifully translated by Justin O'Brien." N Y Times

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:96 D '52 450w

Kirkus 20:692 O 15 '52 160w

"It is hard to believe that André Gide could ever write a thoroughly distasteful book; yet the unctuousness of the language, combined with the calculated cruelty of the events it describes, succeed in creating this effect." Joseph Frank

— New Repub 127:18 D 15 '52 240w

"Ranks among the masterpieces of Gide's vibrating prose. It is also the most tragic personal document to have emanated from Gide's pen." Henri Peyre

+ N Y Times p5 N 30 '52 300w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. My theater; tr. from the French by Jackson Mathews. 274p $4 Knopf

842

51-11098

"This volume contains four plays, a slight opera libretto, and an essay called 'The Evolution of the Theatre,' all translated by Jackson Mathews. Two plays are Biblical—'Saul' and 'Bathsheba.' The others are from classic legend—'Philoctetes' and the tale of King Candaules. . . M. Gide in his critical essay seems in rebellion against what he calls (or rather his translator calls for him) 'episodism' in drama." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 48:168 Ja 15 '52

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 27 '52 120w

Reviewed by C. T. Houpt

Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 6 '52 600w

Kirkus 19:654 N 1 '51 340w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 77:534 Mr 15 '52 40w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 13 '52 310w

"Most of Gide's plays are—as can be seen in this excellent collection of the best among them—works of transition where he has given free rein to his penchant for poetry. . . The last item is 'The Evolution of the Theater,' a very important conference that Gide gave in 1904, and which should be read before the plays. It will afford the reader some sustenance with which to enter Gide's world, where the surfaces are often made of interlocking mystifications and the depths reveal the strange marriage of an astonishing clarity of vision with an all-pervading ambiguity. It is at this point that Jackson Mathews must be congratulated—Gide's style being the most faithful servant of his thought—for safeguarding in his translation all the shimmer and insight of a prose which is unique in subtlety and baffling architecture." Hasan Ozbekkan

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 13 '52 650w

New Yorker 28:147 Ap 5 '52 160w

"The plays of André Gide never reached more than a limited audience of sophisticated amateurs. But they make excellent reading. They embody some of the finest merits of his prose, terse, restrained, subtle, and they express the most valuable message of that perpetual 'être de dialogue,' now moralist, now esthetician, now bent upon disturbing." Henri Peyre

+ Sat R 35:18 F 2 '52 600w

"The posthumous appearance in English for the first time of five of Andre Gide's dramatic works, My Theater reveals that great man to have been no more successful as a dramatist than was Henry James. In fact, reading Gide's . . . dramas, now, convinces one that very few novelists know the first thing about arresting the attention of audiences on the other side of the footlights." Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 36:2 Ja '52 500w

GIEDION-WELCKER, CAROLA. Paul Klee; tr. by Alexander Gode. 156p 128il 13 col pl $7.50 Viking

759.9494 Klee, Paul

52-13848

Study of Paul Klee as an artist, as he first worked under the influence of others, and later as he assumed an independent outlook and way of painting. The author is a specialist in modern art, who knew Klee personally. Copiously illustrated. Bibliography. Index to bibliography.

Booklist 49:100 N 15 '52

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 23 '52 100w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 78:58 Ja 1 '53 130w

"If quality means renewed creative invention whenever a new work is undertaken, then the most outstanding characteristic of Paul Klee is the quantity of quality in his production. So bewildering is his variety that any attempt to give a full view of his work must depend on a generous and skilful selection of examples. On this count Mrs. Giedion-Welcker has admirably succeeded." S. L. Faison

+ Nation 175:632 D 6 '52 210w

"If the fragrance of Klee's person and humanity is not to be found in this book, its publication is nevertheless important for an understanding of this great modern artist. This understanding is helped by judiciously placed excerpts from the artist's journals. Perhaps more was expected from the book because, according to the jacket, the author 'knew Klee personally and has been a friend of his wife and son.'" Clifford Odets

+ N Y Times p5 N 23 '52 650w

"Art books require postscripts for, like people, no matter how elevated their spirits, their material appearance influences our judgment. This one is materially attractive. . . The reviewer is unfamiliar with the original German text, but the English one suggests it had lofty passages; Alexander Gode's translation reads easily except for a few unnecessarily involuted locutions. An indexed bibliography of the excellence one has come to expect from Hannah B. Muller is appended." T. B. Hess

+ Sat R 35:63 D 6 '52 650w

GIJSEN, MARNIX, pseud. See Goris, J. A.

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, KENNETH. Smoke over Skygag; il. by Clifford N. Geary. 145p $2.50 Holt

51-12712

This story for teenage boys tells how Mark Landon got a summer job with a ranger in the Skygag national forest in the Cascade mountains. In pursuit of his duties Mark learns to spot and fight forest fires and has a thrilling adventure with an ex-convict.

GILBERT, KENNETH—Continued

"The story has reality, a feeling for the out-of-doors, and action, not to mention villainy and a mystery." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:419 D '51 50w

Kirkus 19:441 Ag 15 '51 90w

"It is a short tale, factual and well written." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 10 '52 30w

Springf'd Republican p14C N 4 '51 80w

Wis Lib Bul 48:41 Ja '52

GILBERT, KENNETH. The trap; il. by Fred Collins. 182p $2.50 Holt

52-9044

Story for boys of 12 to 16. Steve Brandon made a trip to Alaska to help his uncle who was in the commercial fishing business. Steve got lots of experience on the fish traps when his uncle was injured.

Booklist 49:160 Ja 1 '53

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 16 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:506 Ag 15 '52 120w

"Fascinating information as to the workings of commercial fishing as well as grim adventure. . . An understanding picture, too, of the Thlinget Indians. A good, stout story." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 77:1668 O 1 '52 70w

"Teen-agers will like this well-written adventure yarn with its honest characterization and authentic description of the Alaskan coast. Most of them will find the detailed description of commercial salmon fishing new and fascinating. Woven into the skillfully developed plot is the heartening theme of a boy's development when responsibility is thrust upon him." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p52 N 9 '52 140w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 7 '52 90w

GILBERT, MICHAEL FRANCIS. Danger within [Eng title: Death in captivity]. 244p $3 Harper

52-7283

"The principals are captured British officers. Their problem is to escape. They have been tunneling beneath the camp for some months but they must complete their efforts soon. With the Allied invasion near they may be turned over to the Germans. It is at this point they discover that all of their plans, actions, and secrets are somehow getting to the Italian commander of the camp. One of their number is a traitor. Thereafter Mr. Gilbert skillfully unwinds the twin threads of his narrative." Sat R

Booklist 49:126; 127 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:10 O '52

"Top newcomer in the mystery field."

+ Kirkus 20:353 Je 15 '52 160w

"Mr. Gilbert writes from personal knowledge of the camp and of the remarkable incident which makes the book's rousing finale. Here, as in the tale which preceded it, Michael Gilbert provides remarkable diversion, set down with frequent wryness and a steady sureness of hand." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 21 '52 230w

"Michael Gilbert makes his story as suspenseful and lighthearted as an Eric Ambler novel. His touches of humor and sense of irony give the reader that excellent feeling of being taken on a thrill ride with a professional at the wheel." Herbert Mitgang

+ N Y Times p29 S 14 '52 300w

"In his latest piece of work, Mr. Gilbert proves himself a resourceful writer, as well as a witty one."

+ New Yorker 28:135 N 1 '52 140w

"Michael Gilbert has nicely combined some elements of the straight detective story with plenty of action, suspense, and adventure, to produce a superior thriller." E. J. F.

+ Sat R 35:50 O 4 '52 160w

GILBERT, MICHAEL FRANCIS. Death has deep roots. 251p $2.50 Harper

51-11916

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:109 F '52

Reviewed by Edith Fowke

Canadian Forum 32:118 Ag '52 70w

Kirkus 19:648 N 1 '51 60w

"Gilbert's time-scheme is a very tricky one, arranged to woo every excitement from the situation. The consequence is a tale both wry and agitating which might have been designed to select the strengths from both of its predecessors—a thriller called 'He Didn't Mind Danger' (1948) and a pleasing legal fiction called 'Smallbone Deceased' (1950)—into something that is better than either and very good indeed." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 13 '52 170w

"It's hard to recall any technical tour de force of fusion quite so admirably integrated as this. Mr. Gilbert is one of the most accomplished leaders of the new British school of murder writing." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p21 Ja 6 '52 220w

"Rapidly changing points of view don't minimize the interest of this case, nor mar its crisp and entertaining style. B plus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ja 20 '52 60w

"Trial scenes superb; prow! along Loire vivid chase stuff; funny in right places; a fine performance throughout." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:33 Ja 5 '52 30w

GILBERT, STUART. James Joyce's Ulysses; a study. 2d ed rev 407p $5 Knopf

823 Joyce, James—Ulysses 51-11996

"Revised and slightly enlarged interpretive guide to Ulysses; of interest to literature students and useful because of its extensive quotations as an introduction for the reader who finds the complete text formidable." (Booklist) Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1931.

Booklist 48:341 Je 15 '52

"Of the many efforts made to interpret Joyce's magnum opus, the best by far is that by Stuart Gilbert, first published in 1930. . . The new edition of this authoritative work should be of interest not only to readers of the earlier edition but to those who have read neither it nor 'Ulysses.'" J. M. Flynn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 My 4 '52 200w

+ Kirkus 20:248 Ap 1 '52 180w

"A careful rewriting could have eliminated the extravagance of praise and perhaps corrected some of the credulity. For a man must be an ass or aesthetically numb to imagine that Ulysses needs any defense today, however much he may dislike that novel. It stands, and in my opinion it stands, longueurs and all, very nearly at the head of contemporary letters. However that may be, Mr. Gilbert's study has played a major part in its slowly won recognition—the devoted work of a gifted and eloquent critic." Dudley Fitts

+ New Repub 127:19 Jl 21 '52 1050w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 17 '52 80w

"During the past twenty years, Joycean scholarship has produced many commentaries, which, starting with Gilbert perhaps, have gone far beyond him. It seems a pity that, ignoring almost all of these works, he failed to renovate his book. It is, of course, quite possible that he was convinced that his first word on Joyce was the last. Or, like some Englishmen, he may have been persuaded that what Americans discover is of no importance. In either case, his failure to take account of this material gives his book an air both elementary and outmoded." W. Y. Tindall

N Y Times p6 Ag 17 '52 750w

"A revised edition of this useful analysis. Mr. Gilbert is not a particularly distinguished writer, but he has the unique advantage of having gone through 'Ulysses' with Joyce almost line by line and learned from the author his intentions and sources. The book is full of information that is likely to surprise even those who think they know Joyce pretty well."

+ New Yorker 28:175 N 8 '52 50w

"Most serious Joyce readers owe to Stuart Gilbert their first introduction to the richness and complexity of 'Ulysses.' His monumental pioneer analysis, published in 1930, remains an essential Baedeker. . . With his classical mental clarity and his rare combination of scholarly thoroughness and sophisticated taste, it is no wonder that he proved one of Joyce's most sympathetic friends. His study was written under Joyce's supervision; its authority is unquestioned." R. M. Kain

+ Sat R 35:12 My 31 '52 850w

GILBRETH, FRANK BUNKER. Held's angels [with cartoons by John Held, jr]. 211p $3.95 Crowell

817 Caricatures and cartoons 52-8847

The story of Joe College, Midwestern graduate of the 1920's, and young people of the era, illustrated by John Held's drawings.

"John Held's cartoons—celebrated in the wonderful 1920s for their slick portrayal of college boys and girls—bring a nostalgic twang to all those who can remember that era. But it is Frank Gilbreth's running text that brings them alive again." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 2 '52 290w

Kirkus 20:697 O 15 '52 100w

"There are some people who consider that the human relationship between a father and a college-age son is almost as interesting as that between a male and female cast ashore on a desert island and that even if it isn't quite so interesting it happens more frequently. The authors, or rather the collaborators who constructed this book, think this strongly and demonstrate it with keen memories and keen wit." Fred Schwed

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 23 '52 550w

"Words and art blend as naturally as Five-Fruits and bath-tub gin. But the words could stand alone as an accurate (if gently satiric) picture of life as it was lived in the Era of Wonderful Nonsense—at Midwestern University and elsewhere." C. V. Terry

+ N Y Times p10 O 19 '52 550w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband

Sat R 35:17 D 13 '52 60w

Springf'd Republican p7C D 7 '52 150w

GILBRETH, MRS LILLIAN EVELYN (MOLLER). Living with our children; with an introd. by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. rev & enl ed 254p $3 Norton

649.1 [173] Family. Children—Management 51-12505

"A book published in 1928, reissued with a new introduction and final chapter. Its advocacy of planned home life, with children trained in work habits and responsibility, has fresh interest since the Gilbreth family became known through best sellers." (Booklist) No index.

Booklist 48:67 O 15 '51

"It would be difficult to think of a better wedding present for the modern young couple."

+ Cath World 174:320 Ja '52 50w

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 23 '51

300w

"Young parents are looking for sound principles with which to attack the old but ever new problem of 'living with our children.' Here is wise, intelligent help from one ably qualified to give it, presented in a most interesting manner, and doubly important since the examples are drawn from real life." K. J. McCutchen

+ Christian Century 69:163 F 6 '52 310w

Kirkus 19:420 Ag 1 '51 300w

School & Society 74:366 D 8 '51 20w

"The earlier edition of 'Living with Our Children' was written a quarter of a century ago by a woman who had then been married 26 years, hence it was written while her children were still young. Today her theories and methods are proven, the results are self-evident in the children she has raised, her program of basing family life on the disciplined brains as well as the affection of the parents having born fruit." Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p10B S 30 '51 300w

Reviewed by M. F. Langer

Survey 88:91 F '52 460w

GILES, MRS JANICE (HOLT). Tara's healing. 253p $3 Westminster press

51-14712

"How a neurotic, disillusioned doctor finds a new way of life among the simple, courageous Kentucky mountain folk is the theme of this idealistic, rather sentimental tale. Completes the 'Piney Ridge' trilogy." Bookmark

Booklist 48:159 Ja 1 '52

Bookmark 11:84 Ja '52 30w

"It's a cozy picture, soothing, but lacking stimulation which comes from a well developed conflict either in character or action. In her eagerness to show the healing quality of kindness and goodness, Mrs. Giles overlooked the fact that a touch of black makes white look even whiter." Betty Swords

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 27 '52 200w

Kirkus 19:588 O 1 '51 90w

"Laid in the same country as some of the author's earlier stories, this book too shows great respect for the little-known mountain people of Kentucky, love of its beauty, and appreciative familiarity with its folklore. Not lacking in mystery nor romance, the story is outstanding for character study. Highly recommended." L. R. Miller

+ Library J 76:1929 N 15 '51 140w

"This is not a novel filled with unrelieved sweetness and light. The people in it are real people who make mistakes and forgive each other and go on to make fresh ones. . . And for its glimpses of mountain life, of 'coon hunting under frosty stars; of the soft Appalachian spring; of a girl singing in the firelight, 'Black Is the Color of My True Love's Hair,' 'Tara's Healing' will make homesick all those who have ever come under the spell of the Great Smokies."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 13 '52 320w

Wis Lib Bul 48:36 Ja '52

GILKEY, JAMES GORDON. Here is help for you. 164p $2.50 Macmillan

248 Christian life

51-14304

"The chapters in this book were originally sermons preached in the South Congregational Church of Springfield, Massachusetts. Subsequently each sermon was broadcast from station WSPR in Springfield, and later many of them were delivered from pulpits in various parts of the United States and Canada. Now, after much revision, the material in the sermons is offered to the reading public." Foreword

Booklist 48:165 Ja 15 '52

"Some will feel that the religious emphasis is rather thin. Those who need help for living and ministers who need to give help will welcome this book for its many suggestive ideas and appropriate illustrations."

GILKEY, J. G.—Continued

Kirkus 19:610 O 1 '51 200w

"Dr. Gilkey's books are treasured by a large reading audience and this newest of an ever welcome group furnishes food for serious thought and spiritual uplift." S. M. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p8C D 16 '51 120w

GILLESPIE, KAREN R. Home furnishings; with drawings by Stanley Presnick. 455p $7.65; to schools $5.75 Prentice-Hall

749 [645] Furniture, Household appliances. Pottery, Glassware 51-14581

"This book is devoted to the retailer and the consumer. It is meant for use wherever information about products for the home are taught and wherever information about home furnishings' merchandise is disseminated to retailers." (Pref) Included are sections on: Furniture, bedding, and floor coverings; Tableware and accessories; and Kitchen equipment and plastics. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:260 Ap 15 '52

"Here is a book which gathers into one readable, clearly organized, and fairly extensive form the information necessary to enable a layman to purchase intelligently most types of household furnishings and accessories. . . The format, while uninspired, is acceptable. The index should be more detailed or a glossary should be added, for many technical terms are, at present, buried irretrievably in the text. A rather full bibliography and an excellent series of review projects and questions are included." J. K. Smith

+ J Home Econ 44:303 Ap '52 280w

GILLIAN, MICHAEL. Warrant for a wanton. 246p $2.50 Mill

Mystery story.

52-9692

Kirkus 20:385 Jl 1 '52 100w

"Hypertension slush approaching parody." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p14 Ag 10 '52 30w

"Pleasant style glosses up a contrived and heartily incredible yarn." L. G. Offord

— + San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ag 17 '52 40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:35 Ag 16 '52 20w

Springf'd Republican p16C S 14 '52 80w

GILLON, PHILIP. Frail barrier. 249p $3 Vanguard

52-6777

"A laconic, verbatim chronology of the marginal (moral and financial) activities in which Peter Justin, a young lawyer in Johannesburg, is engaged. Peter, who has inherited from his father the principle that one must never betray a client, along with a very insubstantial illusion of wealth, lends the money of a client to a black native, Daniel Mokwena, to help him fight a boycott against his shops. In order to maintain his aid to Daniel, he defaults on his best friend who suicides; tries to beg and borrow from Iris, a first love and incidental mistress; and as his insolvency increases and bankruptcy looms, he turns down the settlement of the case which will jeopardize Daniel but save his neck, only to have a last minute reprieve when Daniel yields to the pressure against his race." Kirkus

Booklist 48:247 Ap 1 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:154 My '52 200w

Reviewed by Nancy Baker

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 23 '52 150w

"This is an honest record, of doubtful appeal."

Kirkus 20:9 Ja 1 '52 170w

"I understand that 'Frail Barrier' is Philip Gillon's first novel, and to a minor extent it bears evidences of the novice. The important love affair in the story, the relationship that was to express Peter's real choice, is less convincing than affairs into which he floundered while seeking to find himself. On the other hand . . . the story of Peter's development against the background of South Africa makes this a substantial and unusually interesting novel." Mary Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 30 '52 650w

"Mr. Gillon is not a graceful writer, and his web of interlocking sub-plots tends to become topheavy. But from it all emerges a picture of South African urban life that has much of the seamy truth in it. When Mr. Gillon becomes angry or when he speaks for the silent his voice rings with genuine eloquence. In its best moments this story will take you back to Paton's Africa." John Barkham

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 2 '52 500w

"The author's feelings are solidly, if somewhat conventionally, on the side of the good, the true, and the just. Unfortunately he has worked everything out in so wooden a fashion, with such a bunch of irresponsible and unprepossessing characters, and in a prose as rhythmic as the grinding of a pepper-mill, that I doubt that you'll care to find out how it all comes out."

— Sat R 35:38 My 3 '52 170w

Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 70w

Reviewed by M. J. Butcher

Survey 88:230 My '52 250w

GILMAN, WILLIAM HENRY. Melville's early life and Redburn. 378p $5 N.Y. univ. press

B or 92 Melville, Herman 51-12126

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The author obviously has done a thorough research and it is to scholars that he has probably rendered his chief service. He also has established that Melville's creative artistry was not confined to the single book for which he is remembered." Roland Sawyer

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 27 '52 180w

Reviewed by Marcus Cunliffe

New Statesman & Nation 42:738 D 22 '51 280w

Reviewed by Richard Chase

Sat R 35:13 My 31 '52 340w

"As a biographer, Professor Gilman proves himself a cautious scholar, and seldom pushes the facts too far or falls into the psychological error of attributing twentieth-century motivations and attitudes to persons who lived a century ago."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:337 D '51 270w

Reviewed by Charles Feidelson

Yale R n s 41:300 winter '52 210w

GILMORE, ANTHONY, pseud. See Bates, H.

GIRARD, HENRI GEORGES CHARLES
ACHILLE (GEORGES ARNAUD, pseud). Wages of fear; tr. from the French by Norman Dale. 186p $3 Farrar, Straus

52-5799

"As a result of a fire in the oil fields in Guatemala, four men attempt to drive two truck loads of nitroglycerine over rough mountain roads to the fields to be used for demolition work. The reasons for the men risking their lives on trip, the drive itself and their heart-breaking anxiety to reach the end of the journey make an exciting story." Library J

Booklist 48:228 Mr 15 '52

Kirkus 19:684 D 1 '51 140w

"A tough, harsh account, it is carefully told and makes a worthwhile novel. Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 77:142 Ja 15 '52 80w

"This is one of the most exciting stories of the year, and a natural for a good adventure movie."

+ Nation 174:257 Mr 15 '52 60w

"Georges Arnaud, a young Frenchman who was taken prisoner and escaped to Latin America in the last war, knows his background from personal experience. It may be difficult for a reader to sympathize with the brutish characters the author has placed behind the wheels. But the suspense of their ride is well sustained." H. M.

N Y Times p24 Mr 2 '52 180w

New Yorker 28:118 Mr 15 '52 80w

"Exciting reading in the best realistic vein."

J. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 23 '52 200w

"In a lean prose which combines the pace of a good detective story with the brooding quality that characterizes much existentialist writing, M. Arnaud has set forth his spare little tale of suspense. . . He quickly achieves an atmosphere of real suspense and frightening excitement, which he holds throughout the short run of his narrative. Regrettably he was unable to resist an 'ironic' little flip at the end, which betrays the hand of the too artful professional." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ — Sat R 35:34 Mr 15 '52 120w

"The book is marred by a patly ironic ending and occasional banalities of style. But these faults are hardly worth carping about. . . The story marks Arnaud as one of those literary naturals who find their bent the first try. Brutal, violent and good storytelling. The Wages of Fear makes a lot of hard-boiled writers look like children writing for their maiden aunts."

+ — Time 59:102 Mr 3 '52 370w

GIRDLESTONE, CUTHBERT MORTON. Mozart and his piano concertos [Eng title: Mozart's piano concertos]. 51lp $5 Univ. of Okla. press

785.6 Mozart, Johann Chrysostom Wolfgang Amadeus 52-3317

"In this astonishing book, a professor of French in the University of Durham has attempted a frightening task, that of not only providing a geography of Mozart's twenty-three piano concertos, but also of providing detailed maps of them." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 77:1512 S 15 '52 100w

"In the pianist's library, the book may well be placed near Tovey's edition of Beethoven sonatas; and this is meant as a compliment." Bruce Simonds

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 10:100 D '52 360w

"By long labor, by love, and by possessing remarkable insight and unflinching sensitivity [the author] has succeeded to a remarkable extent, producing a book worth placing beside 'Mozart's Operas' by Edward J. Dent. . . Altogether, this is an important and endlessly useful book." Herbert Weinstock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 S 21 '52 600w

GIRVAN, MRS HELEN (MASTERMAN). End of a golden string; il. by Vaika Low. 192p $2.75 Dutton

52-7800

For seventeen years Ronny lived on an Ohio farm and loved it. Then she spent a year in New York city because she had promised she would. Altho she started out hating the idea Ronny found the city was not so bad as she feared, and she found a romance there too. For older girls.

"The style has considerable ease and charm, and girls over twelve will like it." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 17 '52 110w

"The likable young heroine of this novel will be attractive to older girls because she shows good sense in facing new situations. . . Each of Helen Girvan's stories have been popular and this will be no exception. The drawings at each chapter head are amusing and full of character." F. N. Chrystie

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 17 '52 150w

"The story has holding power. The older girls will probably find it well worthwhile."

+ — Sat R 35:62 N 15 '52 120w

GLENDENNING, IAN. British pistols and guns, 1640-1840. 195p il $6 British bk. centre 683 Pistols. Firearms [52-6241]

"A brief introductory history of firearms, notes on powder flasks, glossary of terms, a list of names appearing on firearms with dates, detailed descriptions and photographs of 29 examples from author's collection." Library J

"To the collector of small arms, particularly of the antique variety, this little book should prove interesting and valuable." J. A. Menaugh
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 20 '52 70w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:441 Mr 1 '52 40w

"With a minimum of text, smoothly composed, and an abundance of illustrations, Mr. Glendenning brings the modern gun fancier up to date on a very important period in the history of modern firearms." J. P.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 9 '52 90w

GLICKSBERG, CHARLES IRVING, ed. American literary criticism, 1900-1950. (Hendricks House bk) 574p $5; text ed $4 Farrar, Straus 801 Literary criticism 52-6989

"An anthology spanning forty years of analysis and evaluation, beginning with James Huneker's 'Literature and Art' (1910). In between the reader will find Spingarn and Brownell, Eliot and Mencken, Calverton and Mumford, Babbitt and Burke, Blackmur and Farrell, Ransom and Wilson, Tate and both Brooks (Van Wyck and Cleanth), and still others." N Y Times

"Should be a valuable addition to college library reference collections." Herbert Cahoon
+ Library J 77:434 Mr 1 '52 140w

"Although it has been said often enough not to be true, it is nevertheless true that some of our best talent and vitality have gone into the writing of criticism. A solid witness is herein produced." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p27 Mr 9 '52 180w

New Yorker 28:121 Mr 15 '52 130w

GLORY of our West; see the West in natural color with famous authors and photographers; foreword by Joseph Henry Jackson. 111p il spir pa $2.95 Doubleday

978 [917.8] West—Views. West—Description and travel 52-5963

A collection of fifty color photographs of scenes in the American West, described briefly by some thirty well known writers; Ernie Pyle, J. B. Priestley, Robinson Jeffers, Vardis Fisher, etc. The photographs and texts were originally given away by the Standard Oil Company to tourists to attract visitors.

Reviewed by Seymour Korman

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 1 '52 340w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ap 13 '52 280w

Springf'd Republican p8D My 11 '52 80w

GLUCKSTEIN, YGAEL. Stalin's satellites in Europe. 333p $4.50 Beacon press

949.6 Central Europe—Politics. Russia—Foreign relations—Central Europe. Central Europe—Economic conditions 52-8695

"Ygael Gluckstein, in his study, comes to the encouraging, though by no means convincing, conclusion that the Soviet empire 'has no future.' He sees in the Soviet terror methods a sure symptom of decline and he expects the collapse to come about as result of the 'latent antagonism' between the Kremlin and the Communist Parties outside Russia.' (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

GLUCKSTEIN, YGAEL—Continued

"All in all Gluckstein's work is a useful contribution to the literature dealing with Stalin's captive states." S. D. Kertesz
+ Ann Am Acad 283:227 S '52 600w

Booklist 48:278 My 1 '52

Reviewed by E. S. Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 10 '52
110w

Foreign Affairs 30:678 Jl '52 20w

"Mr Gluckstein's approach is Marxist, which has both advantages and defects. Marxist analysis enables him to say some true and important things about the exploitation of the workers by 'Popular Democracy.' He follows the views of Trotsky on the rise of a bureaucratic ruling class. The defect of this approach is its exaggeration of the economic factor. This is especially true of the section on Yugoslavia, the weakest in the book."

Hugh Seton-Watson
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 18 '52
390w

Reviewed by Mark Gayn
Nation 175:136 Ag 16 '52 110w

Reviewed by P. E. Mosely
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 S 7 '52
750w

"Mr. Gluckstein has compiled an overwhelming mass of facts and figures which show precisely what the men in the Kremlin have done to their satellites in Eastern Europe since 1945. Many of these facts and figures are not new, but Mr. Gluckstein writes with perspective as well as knowledge." Quincy Howe
+ Sat R 35:40 Ag 23 '52 130w

"This is a not very fortunate restatement of the case against Russia's behaviour in Eastern Europe, for it is on the whole superfluous and frequently inaccurate. The pattern—as it is usually called—of Soviet Russia's behaviour in the satellite area is not very complicated, and has been a good deal more clearly described and analysed by writers like Mr. Hugh Seton-Watson." Elizabeth Wiskemann
— Spec 188:378 Mr 21 '52 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p223 Mr 28 '52
420w

GLUECK, SHELDON. Crime and correction: selected papers. 273p $3.50 Addison-Wesley 364.04 Crime and criminals—U.S. Punishment 52-6862

A collection of papers previously published in the Harvard Law Review, Yale Law Journal, American Review, etc. "Four of the articles deal with the administration of criminal justice, two with psychiatry and criminology, two with penal correctional treatment, and one each with crime causation, crime prevention, and war crimes. Although most of the articles were written in the late twenties and early thirties 'the issues they deal with are still vital,' due to the slow progress in putting into practice the findings of criminological science." (Social Forces)

School & Society 76:96 Ag 9 '52 20w

Reviewed by W. B. Sanders
Social Forces 31:91 O '52 450w

GLUECK, SHELDON, and GLUECK, MRS ELEANOR (TOUROFF). Delinquents in the making; paths to prevention. 214p $3 Harper 364.3 Juvenile delinquency. Criminal psychology 61-11917

A simpler version of the findings of the research into persistent delinquency published in the authors' "Unravelling Juvenile Delinquency." The goal of this study was to determine what led half of this group toward a career of crime while their opposites were growing up to be law-abiding citizens.

"In the final evaluation of this volume it must be said that the basic shortcomings of the original research still strike the reader as remaining unresolved." F. M. Thrasher
Am Soc R 17:652 O '52 800w

"The Gluecks themselves make no claim of finality or conclusiveness. Their work, in its present stage, points the way to further research and deeper correlations both within the materials of their own studies and in parallel studies by other students of delinquency problems." D. H. MacNeil
Ann Am Acad 282:157 Jl '52 460w

Booklist 48:267 Ap 15 '52

"An interesting study, for social welfare organizations, teachers and administrators, therapists, etc. in particular, and an absorbing dossier in itself."

+ Kirkus 19:670 N 15 '51 130w

"This study, concerned with finding ways to prevent human maladjustments that make children delinquent, should be read by responsible citizens in general, and educators and parents in particular." Margaret Naumburg
+ N Y Times p14 Ag 3 '52 410w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 75:408 Je 28 '52 100w
Spring'd Republican p22A Mr 2 '52
360w
Wis Lib Bul 48:86 Mr '52

GODFREY, ARTHUR. Stories I like to tell; with drawings by Robert Day [cartoons]. 160p $2.75; pa $1 Simon & Schuster

817.08 Joke books. Anecdotes 52-7307

"306 of the best jokes and anecdotes I have heard in twenty years of radio and TV." Subtitle

Booklist 48:210 Mr 1 '52

Reviewed by Larry Wolters
Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 F 17 '52
260w

Kirkus 19:717 D 15 '51 100w

"Godfrey's published collection of his favorite anecdotes provides convincing proof that there is really nothing new under the sun in the gag market. Some of the jokes, while veneered with a modern twist which fails to obscure their origins in antiquity, are contrived to rate a minimum of hearty laughter." B. F. K.
Spring'd Republican p21A Mr 23 '52
60w

GOETHE, JOHANN WOLFGANG VON. Faust; pts. 1-2; an abridged version; tr. by Louis MacNeice. 306p $4 Oxford
832.62 [51-7069]

"Mr. MacNeice has cut the poem by a third of its length to suit the convenience of broadcasting, since his version was made for the B.B.C.'s Goethe celebrations. He has also scaled down the number of rhymes, considerably loosened the rhythms and exaggerated the informality of Goethe's colloquialisms. Moreover, typical of his time, he appears to view any transposition of the prose order of words as a crime to be avoided at all costs." Spec

Booklist 49:86 N 1 '52

"Granting, as we should, Mr. MacNeice's competence, we seem forced to dismaying inference that even in the original this great work assays a very high proportion of the most boring doggerel. Mr. MacNeice, in his own rather scathing references to the cutting he has done, about a third of the original, lends some countenance to this heretical notion. Still, there must have been some nobility, some eloquence, even some poetry, in the German text; here one finds very little. Sorry." Rolfe Humphries
Nation 175:217 S 13 '52 180w

"There can be no doubt of it—as a translation for broadcasting, Mr. MacNeice's work is a success. It moves fast and easily; it hops over the obscurities of the original; and such elements as there are of a continuous story in the two parts have been knotted together by the skill with which the cuts have been made. But as a poem to be read, Mr. MacNeice's Faust does not do so well, owing, perhaps, to his reluctance to see that Goethe was not struggling, with only intermittent competence, to write an actable play about Faust." Arthur Humphrey

+ — New Statesman & Nation 42:534 N 10 '51 1950w

"Although abridged versions of great books are seldom very satisfactory, this translation of 'Faust' gains a great deal by cutting. . . Louis MacNeice has succeeded in hacking away most of the dead branches and letting us see the still very living trunk of the tree with its roots still in Hell." Lawrence Ferlingh

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 7 '52 110w

"His version is far more readable than Bayard Taylor's accurate translation made a century ago. . . The faults of Mr. MacNeice's translation are attributable to broadcasting technique. In the performance many imperfections were smothered by celestial music and transcendental sound-effects. But they glare out from the silence of the printed page." J. M. Cohen

Spec 187:220 Ag 17 '51 410w

"In spite of the initial disadvantages of 'having next to no German' and 'being somewhat prejudiced against Goethe,' Mr. MacNeice, with the help of Dr. E. L. Stahl, has produced an accurate and animated version of Faust. . . Mr. MacNeice has taken very few liberties with Goethe's verse; and there can be no doubt of his exceptional artistry, tact, and agility of mind. A new translation of Faust has long been called for; the present one, by a distinguished contemporary poet, should make Goethe's great drama accessible to many potential readers who have been put off by the older translations."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p450 J1 20 '51 1150w

GOHEEN, ROBERT F. Imagery of Sophocles' Antigone. 171p $3 Princeton univ. press

882 Sophocles—Antigone. Figures of speech 51-12281

"Study of the poetic language and structure of Sophocles' great drama." Library J

"The Imagery of Sophocles' Antigone' stands an example of the latest in classical criticism. It captures something in the Greek author which he himself may not have been aware of. It advances a theory that may affect today's writing, and may even start a fashion." W. P. Tryon

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 10 '52 500w

"Scholarly and skillful, this study is recommended to the larger university and public libraries." George Freedy

+ Library J 76:1810 N 1 '51 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p107 F 8 '52 270w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:351 D '51 260w

GOLD, H. L., ed. See Galaxy science fiction magazine. Reader of science fiction

GOLDBERG, ISRAEL (RUFUS LEARSI, pseud). Fulfillment: the epic story of Zionism. 426p il $5 World pub.

956.94 [296] Zionism 51-14316

"The return of the people of Israel to the Land of Israel after 19 centuries is vividly portrayed by a discerning student of Jewish history. Maps, photographs. Bibliographical note." (Bookmark) Index.

Booklist 48:114 D 1 '51

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 30w

Current Hist 22:36 Ja '52 50w

Foreign Affairs 30:682 J1 '52 10w

Kirkus 19:595 O 1 '51 240w

"Monumental but always lucid book, 'Fulfillment.' Here is a scholar who combines love of research with a good reporter's objectivity and vivid style. Despite the fact that the author has relied on research—he has not been in Palestine for over twenty years—his book will fascinate the layman and hold students of political social revolt." Gertrude Samuels

+ N Y Times p6 N 25 '51 600w

"The well-informed reader will find in Mr. Lears's treatment little new material, even with respect to the American scene which has hitherto been greatly neglected by Zionist scholarship. The uninformed but serious student, too, will note the absence of penetrating explanations of the causes underlying major events and of the motivating forces behind personalities. . . On the other hand, Mr. Lears writes with verve and lucidity. His volume should effectively supply to a host of 'general readers' a glimpse of that vast and complex movement which has been a stormy petrel of controversy for two generations." S. W. Baron

+ — Sat R 35:37 Ap 12 '52 700w

GOLDEN ages of the great cities, by Sir Maurice Bowra [and others]; introd. by Sir Ernest Barker; pref. by Allan Nevins. 340p il $5.75 Thames

301.86 [323.352] Cities and towns 52-7973

"This collection of twelve articles by outstanding European scholars is an attractive and notable contribution to the study of western civilization. The cities are Athens, Rome, Constantinople, Paris, Florence, Venice, Madrid, Vienna, London and New York; their golden ages, from Periclean Athens to Jubilee London and Twentieth Century New York, form an almost continuous story." Library J

"Students of cultures and of cities will find a majority of the essays in this collection rewarding, each in terms of his own interest." C. S. Ascher

+ Ann Am Acad 282:151 J1 '52 450w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 10 '52 220w

"The articles are informative and vigorous and will appeal to the general as well as the scholarly reader; the 95 pictures in photogravure are excellent. Recommended." R. B. Robertson

+ Library J 77:524 Mr 15 '52 140w

"The essays are naturally of unequal value, but none is dull and the best are very good indeed." D. R. Gillie

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 7 '52 270w

New Statesman & Nation 43:355 Mr 22 '52 190w

"Some fifty illustrations, intelligently chosen and appropriately placed and captioned, illuminate these essays which are themselves so rich in word pictures. The short but penetrating preface written for this edition by Allan Nevins emphasizes the value and pertinence of the volume in this inexorably urban age." Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 22 '52 950w

"It is a handsome job—not the least of its attractions being some ninety excellently reproduced photogravures—and it tempts the voyaging mind with entertainment of fascinating variety." Dudley Fitts

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 23 '52 850w

"The authors, all of them Europeans and most of them English historians and writers, maintain a consistently high level in these essays, each of which is illustrated with photographs of the architectural or other artistic glories of the epoch under discussion. The piece on New York, by Robert Waithman, Washington correspondent for the London News Chronicle, is thoughtful and temperately critical. After the succession of cathedrals, palazzi, and basilicas, though, it makes one a little uneasy to come upon a picture of the Port Authority's new bus terminal as an example of our architecture."

+ New Yorker 28:145 Ap 5 '52 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 7 '52 700w

GOLDEN ages—Continued

Spec 188:308 Mr 7 '52 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p225 Mr 28 '52
700wGOLDIN, HYMAN ELIAS. Treasury of Jewish holidays: history, legends, traditions; il. by Resko. 308p $3.75 Twayne

296.4 Jews—Rites and ceremonies, Festivals—Jews 52-6298

This volume lists the Jewish holy days, relates the history of their origins and tells how they are traditionally celebrated.

Reviewed by F. A. Levy

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 17 '52
80w

"This is a very complete account of this important aspect of Jewish life and, to one who does not claim to be an expert in all these matters, it appears to be a thoroughly satisfactory one. It will doubtless be a useful handbook for reading and reference in Jewish families, and it will certainly help their Gentile friends to understand what goes on when they hear that there is to be a celebration of Rosh Hashanah or Yom Kippur. An interesting feature is a section on new celebrations signaling 'the rebirth of Israel.'" W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:312 Mr 12 '52 150w

"This book done by a specialist in anthologies is one of the best to appear on the subject thus far." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 77:435 Mr 1 '52 150w

"It is Rabbi Goldin's tone that is so unfortunate. Does he think that such a phrase as 'a message of idealism, courage and hope' is going to move any one in 1952? This rubber-stamped verbiage is as drained of concrete meaning today as old wood is of sap." Ludwig Lewisohn

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 9 '52
950wGOLDING, CECIL EDWARD, and KING-PAGE, DOUGLAS. Lloyd's. 220p $4.50 McGraw

368.22 Lloyd's 51-12565

A history of Lloyd's of London and a description of the way their insurance activities are carried on. Index.

Booklist 48:312 Je 1 '52

"A clear non-technical presentation of Lloyd's services, giving an excellent background for study of insurance in general, and marine insurance in particular." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:1200 Jl '52 40w

GOLDMAN, ERIC FREDERICK. Rendezvous with destiny; a history of modern American reform. 503p $5 Knopf

973.8 U.S.—Politics and government 52-6418

A chronologically arranged discussion of liberalism in the United States from directly after the Civil war to the present. The author is on the faculty of Princeton University, where he is associate professor of history. Bibliographical notes. Index.

Booklist 49:102 N 15 '52

"Pleasant and entertaining, yet with a hard core of serious examination and speculation." R. J. Graf

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 26 '52
370w

"A remarkably flavorful history, a highly personal one in terms of Goldman's lively style, but straight from the teeming sources." R. R. Brunn

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 27 '52
340w

"For a thoughtful, liberal audience."

+ Kirkus 20:536 Ag 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by R. P. Bartolini

Library J 77:1806 O 15 '52 40w

"I hope that the staid subtitle of this volume, 'A History of Modern American Reform,' will keep no reader away from a very lively account of some of the most provocative personalities and ideas of the past eighty years in America."

H. M. Kilgore

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 D 28 '52
550w

"[The author's] purpose, he says, is primarily to tell a story, and like a good storyteller he concentrates on his characters. . . This is not to say that Mr. Goldman has forgotten his plot. Through all the confusions and anomalies that beset American liberalism he keeps a firm hold upon the central thread of his narrative. . . Particularly happy is the way in which he puts the extraordinary period of the New Deal within his historical context." E. E. Morison

+ N Y Times p3 O 26 '52 550w

"[The author] has wit and erudition, but his book is flawed with small, irritating errors, such as his reference to Elliott Roosevelt as 'the late President's eldest son,' and his placing of F. Scott Fitzgerald in Indiana, instead of Minnesota, for the first seventeen years of his life. The index is not complete—a sad thing to have to say about an index."

New Yorker 28:190 N 15 '52 180w

"Mainly this is a readable, stimulating story of nearly a century of American reformers." Samuel Lubell

+ Sat R 35:11 D 27 '52 1000w

GOLDSCHIEDER, LUDWIG, ed. See Leonardo da Vinci. Landscapes and plantsGOLDSCHIEDER, LUDWIG, ed. Towards modern art; or, King Solomon's picture book; art of the new age and art of former ages shown side by side. 98pl $5.95 Phaidon

709 Art, Modern [52-9478]

An attempt to prove that modern art is not so revolutionary as it seems, by juxtaposing some fifty pairs of pictures, one in each pair representing modern work, the other being of much older date.

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 My 25 '52
200w

"The book might have had considerable interest if Dr Goldscheider had drawn on his funds of learning to distinguish between resemblances which are significant and those which are not, but, as this has not been done, it remains a picture book, attractive, and amusing, but superficial and indeed misleading. The reproductions (photogravure) are good, though the plates of two of the Picassos have been made from inferior photographs. The sizes of the originals are not given." S. B.

Manchester Guardian p4 My 23 '52
210w

Reviewed by Lawrence Gowing

New Statesmen & Nation 44:142 Ag 2
'52 170w

"Quite apart from the theory involved, the amount of digging that has been done in the obscure corners of art has a value of its own, and a good share of the illustrations are both rare and charming."

+ New Yorker 28:92 Je 28 '52 160w

"Although there is no indication of the principle that guided the selection of the 98 excellent plates, there can be little doubt as to the nature of the appeal: It exploits superficial resemblances between the modern and familiar and therefore acceptable. It is unfortunate that the paintings, sculptures and frescoes that appear in juxtaposition to their (in Mr. Goldscheider's opinion) modern counterparts, bear little more than surface similarities. . . It should not be assumed, however, that 'Towards Modern Art' is not both valuable and rewarding. By presenting the reader with almost 100 plates of little-known works of all times, it deserves shelf space in any comprehensive art library." V. J. Papanek

— + San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 18 '52
300w

"Criticisms of the validity of some of the pairings in such a pictorial anthology as Towards Modern Art are inevitable when the bulk of them prove as stimulating and enlightening as the majority of those Mr. Goldscheider has brought together."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p435 J1 4 '52
1300w

GOLDSCHMIDT, RICHARD BENEDICT. Understanding heredity; an introduction to genetics. 228p il $3.75 Wiley

575.1 Heredity. Genetics 52-5049

An introduction to genetics for mature lay readers. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 48:314 Je 1 '52

"It is clearly written, but the author has stuck closely to scientific facts. Readers who are used to 'romance' in their popular science books may find it too stark for their tastes."

R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:722 Ap 15 '52 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:40 My '52

"Professor Goldschmidt of the University of California is unquestionably well qualified to discuss this subject. His knowledge and erudition are evident from the first page. But his presentation of this infinitely complex subject seems to ignore the fact that the layman lacks the background in the several sciences allied to genetics." J. E. C.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 10 '52
190w

"The crystal-clear manner in which Professor Goldschmidt writes, the great ability which he exhibits in the organization and presentation of the facts of heredity, and his happy avoidance of oversimplification all contribute to make his volume one of the best in the field, and as an elementary introduction to a rather complex subject, an outstanding achievement in scientific popularization. . . . This masterly book makes ignorance of the fundamental facts of heredity hereafter voluntary." Ashley Montagu

+ Sat R 35:16 J1 5 '52 550w

School & Society 75:207 Mr 29 '52 30w

GONZALEZ, VALENTIN R., and GORKIN, JULIAN. El Campesino; life and death in Soviet Russia; tr. by Ilsa Barea. 218p $3.50 Putnam

B or 92 Communism 52-5275

"El Campesino" was a famous Communist Spanish general in Spain's Civil war. After the war he fled to Russia where he was at first lauded as a hero, later fell into disfavor with the authorities, and spent more than ten years in labor camps in Siberia before he made his escape. This book is his personal story as told to Julian Gorkin.

Booklist 48:312 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 10 '52
180w

"[The book] is, I believe, one of the most revealing books ever written on life in the world headquarters of communism. Best of all, it is written by a man whom the Communists themselves hailed as a hero of the working class, of world revolution, and of Russia." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 30 '52
600w

Foreign Affairs 30:679 J1 '52 20w

Kirkus 20:177 Mr 1 '52 200w

"While he contributes little new material Mr. Gonzalez writes with an inartistic, but impressive, brutal directness which lends credibility to details that, of course, cannot be checked. Good translation in spite of some anglicisms. Recommended." H. H. Berni

+ Library J 77:588 Ap 1 '52 140w

"Campesino symbolized the highest reach of communism's romantic appeal. He suffered the worst horrors of its awful reality. The contrasts make his book an ugly and convincing testament." Michael Straight

New Repub 126:22 My 19 '52 330w

"The horror-story of El Campesino is told in the simplest, darkest way, with no embellishments, no comment. It needs none." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 29 '52
550w

"The book under review was told by the author to Julian Gorkin, and it seems that Mr. Gonzalez, while talking, did not always keep close to facts but here and there wandered into fiction. . . . In the present reviewer's opinion, however, this book must be taken as it is—with all its exaggerations, mistakes and indubitable brutal sincerity. It shows El Campesino as such—as a wonderful Spanish fighter, rough willful and stubborn, now sincere, now affected, almost a legendary man from Estremadura who had too much pride and too fierce a belief in human dignity to be a robot in the Communist world." Mikhail Koriakov

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 20 '52 1200w

New Yorker 28:137 My 3 '52 230w

Reviewed by Paul Ucker

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 15 '52
440w

Reviewed by Leo Lania

Sat R 35:15 J1 12 '52 600w

Springf'd Republican p9D My 25 '52
100w

Time 59:120 My 5 '52 460w

GOOCH, GEORGE PEABODY. History and historians in the nineteenth century; rev. with a new introduction. 2d ed 547p $8.50 Longmans

907 Historiography. Historians 52-11719

No major rewriting but in the "present edition the text has been revised and the bibliographical notes have been brought up to date. The task of continuing the survey through the first half of the twentieth century on the same scale must be left to younger hands. The new Introduction merely attempts to indicate the main achievements of the last four decades." (Pref) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1913.

Booklist 49:108 N 15 '52

"The best work on modern historiography available in English. . . . College and larger public libraries which do not own earlier edition should buy this revision. Many scholarly libraries will wish to possess both." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 77:1811 O 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 O 12 '52 70w

GOOCH, GEORGE PEABODY. Maria Theresa, and other studies. 432p il $4.50 Longmans

B or 92 Maria Theresa, empress of Austria. Historiography 51-14318

"Presents Maria Theresa, the great Habsburg ruler, in her correspondence with her brilliant son, Joseph II, her oldest child, and the undistinguished and immature Marie Antoinette, her youngest. The original letters, as far as they are preserved, were written in French. Mr. Gooch quotes long extracts from them in English translation and supplies the historical and biographical background for their appreciation and enjoyment by the layman. . . . Maria Theresa in her letters fills about half of the volume, while seven shorter essays, mostly on historiography and the teaching of history, conclude the book." N Y Times

"Readable and useful volume." W. L. Dorn

+ Am Hist R 57:962 J1 '52 850w

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 16 '51 130w

"The most interesting of the essays deals with the Chair of Modern History in the University of Cambridge. . . . The whole essay gives a deeply illuminating and humanly interesting picture of the development of learning and the public attitude to it throughout the last three centuries." Hans Kohn

+ N Y Times p10 D 30 '51 600w

Reviewed by Alfred Cobban

Spec 188:86 Ja 18 '52 550w

GOOCH, G. P.—Continued

"Dr. Gooch is a scholar speaking to scholars who will not fail to be grateful for his admirable criticism and learned guidance. Dr. Gooch fitly concludes a volume that began with studies of the crowned reformers Maria Theresa and Joseph II with a noble summons to guard 'Our Heritage of Freedom' and a stern reminder inspired by the lessons of history that 'the price of ordered liberty is good citizenship and eternal vigilance.'"
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p766 N 30
'51 1000w

GOODE, WILLIAM J. Religion among the primitives; introd. by Kingsley Davis. 321p $5 Free press

291 Religion and sociology. Religion, Primitive 51-11596

"The author has used the comparative method, basing his conclusions on religion in five societies: the Dahomey of West Africa, the Manus of Melanesia, the Tikopia of Polynesia, the Zuni of our own Southwest and the Murngin of Australia. In each case, he has described the local religion in its functional interrelations with economic activities, political activities and the family, treating each of these on a cross-cultural basis. . . Two appendices deal with 'Variation of Religious Systems in Typological Terms,' and 'A Critique of Primitive Religion.'" (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography.

Reviewed by Ellsworth Faris
Am J Soc 57:394 Ja '52 1300w

"The patient accumulation of detail about the five primitive societies, with liberal passages from Warner, Fortune, Firth, Bunzel, Herskovits, and other ethnographers, is bound, as Goode recognizes, to make tedious reading. He feels that he must present all his materials, so that nothing will be suppressed or taken for granted in testing his theory. It is inevitable, however, that a student will feel inclined to skip liberally in the six chapters that form the core of the monograph. . . I can only assume that, since there are 36 typographical errors in the bibliography and still more in the notes, these sections were not proof-read. The notes, some of which are quite valuable, are lost in the back of the book, where they are difficult to consult." J. G. Leyburn

Am Soc R 16:889 D '51 470w

Reviewed by W. D. Wallis
Ann Am Acad 278:232 N '51 360w
Christian Century 68:1438 D 12 '51 100w

"As might be anticipated in a field which has lain fallow for so long, the author found it necessary to bring his frames of reference up to date and this has resulted in some of the most valuable chapters in the book, including an excellent statement of modern sociological approaches, and a just evaluation of schools other than the author's preferred functionalism. He is particularly to be commended for his discussion of religion and magic. . . The most important criticism which can be directed at this book is the author's deliberate elimination of everything which might relate religion to the individual. Ralph Linton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 25
'51 550w

GOODFRIEND, ARTHUR. Only war we seek; with a foreword by Chester Bowles; pub. for Americans for democratic action. 128p il $3 Farrar, Straus; pa $1 Americans for democratic action, 9 E. 46th st, N.Y.

338.9 Economic conditions. U.S.—Foreign policy 51-14157

"The only war we seek is the good old fight against man's ancient enemies—poverty, disease, hunger and illiteracy.' This book in pictures and succinct captions points out why we have lost part of that fight and how we can still win it." Library J

Reviewed by Sol Pincus
Am J Pub Health 42:1335 O '52 220w
Booklist 48:115 D 1 '51

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 28:125 Ap '52 180w

"This book is highly recommended for all libraries as a prime tool in developing an understanding [of] democracy's mission in this war, and the hope we have for its successful completion." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 76:2005 D 1 '51 140w

"This is a moving and highly effective picture book on the war between communism and democracy for possession of men's minds and a stinging criticism of some of the weaknesses of American foreign policy."
+ Nation 174:133 F 9 '52 240w

Reviewed by Alexander Klein
New Repub 126:20 Mr 3 '52 140w

"Very little text is in this book of photographs, but what text there is, taken with the photographs, makes a point forcefully." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 D 9 '51 270w
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 13 '52 170w

Reviewed by J. M. Minifie
Sat R of Lit 34:8 D 22 '51 500w

"This book carries such a powerful message that it should be read by all persons connected with the social sciences. Even junior high pupils should find it most worthwhile because of its dramatic photographs and succinct sentences. It is a book which can be used to great advantage in the classroom while studying our foreign policy and international relations." J. C. Matton

+ Social Educ 16:142 Mr '52 550w
Springf'd Republican p30A D 2 '51 150w

GOODFRIEND, ARTHUR. What can a man believe? 127p il $3 Farrar, Straus

301.41 [301.153] Social problems—Pictorial works. Photographic books 52-12549

Pictures from life and simple running text show the universal desire for food, land, liberty, and peace.

Booklist 49:42 O 1 '52

"Accompanying with brief text a series of exceptionally fine—sometimes strikingly beautiful—photographs from the files of 'Life', the author of two similar picture-books again states the case against communism."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 28 '52 160w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p18 N 30 '52 290w

GOODMAN, BONNIE V. Tailoring for the family. 408p il $4.75 Prentice-Hall

646.4 Tailoring 51-14586

"This book includes not only instructions for making a strictly tailored coat or suit jacket, but also suggestions for making many types of semitailored garments ranging from suit skirts to raincoats. . . It provides information on some of the fundamentals of clothing construction needed in making a tailored garment, which may be of help to persons without previous training in clothing construction." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:155 Ja 1 '52

"The fundamentals of the tailoring process are presented in a clear, concise manner which is easy to understand and provides an excellent guide for the person with limited experience in the construction of tailored garments. . . This is a worth-while contribution to an area where little up-to-date material is available." Lois Gilmore

+ J Home Econ 44:304 Ap '52 200w

GOODMAN, MAE WINKLER. In time of swallows; 52 American birds; poems; il. by William E. Scheele. 54p $2.75 Devin-Adair

811 Birds—Poetry 51-14158

"A collection of lyrics describing and commenting on fifty-two species of American birds.

The verses are accompanied by black-and-white drawings by William E. Scheele, director of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History." Sat R

"The best review simply says: 'I read this book and liked it—you must read it, for you will like it too.' The reviewer can say this most sincerely about Mae Winkler Goodman's beautiful book. . . I predict that this book will become an American classic of its unique kind." E. M. Root

+ Christian Century 69:73 Ja 16 '52 350w
Cleveland Open Shelf p27 N '51

"This is a charming little natural history classic." Lawrence Ferling
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 9 '52 70w

"A book which will probably have a special appeal for bird lovers. The verses are for the most part informally-patterned rhymed descriptions, accurate in observation, vividly pictorial, and Mr. Scheele's sketches are sympathetic and charming." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R 35:38 Mr 15 '52 190w

GOODRICH, LLOYD. John Sloan; pub. for the Whitney museum of American art [res. by Rosalind Irvine]. 80p il col il $3 Macmillan 759.13 Sloan, John 52-7168

A study of John Sloan, American realistic artist. There are 49 illustrations of his work, 3 in color. Selected bibliography. No index.

Booklist 48:210 Mr 1 '52

Bookmark 11:206 Je '52 70w

Reviewed by Edward Barry
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 2 '52 150w

"The text, which is well illustrated, achieves a good balance of biography and critical appraisal. Of the two, the former is the more interesting, perhaps because Sloan was more admirable as a man than as a creative artist."

+ Nation 175:76 Jl 26 '52 80w

"Here is a story deeply in the American grain. Lloyd Goodrich tells it in this short monograph with understanding and grace. . . Mr. Goodrich's estimates are sound, of Sloan's position in the history of our time, of the quality of his painting and the way it developed from the good gray poetry of the early street scenes to the high-keyed palette of his later studies of the nude." Holger Cahill

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 6 '52 800w

"Excellent short study." J. T. Flexner

+ N Y Times p6 F 10 '52 900w

"Written by the Associate Director of the Whitney Museum, who is a specialist on American painting, this book has an unforeseen timeliness on account of Sloan's death a few months ago, and even aside from that, it shows a combination of authority and perceptiveness that makes it unusual in its field."

+ New Yorker 28:121 Mr 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by R. S. Brooks

Springf'd Republican p21A Mr 23 '52 430w

GORDEY, MICHEL. Visa to Moscow; tr. from the French by Katherine Woods. 419p $4.50 Knopf

947 Russia—Description and travel 51-13223

The author, a French journalist of Russian birth, obtained a Russian visa in 1950 and spent two months in Moscow and Leningrad and other parts of the country. This book contains a sober, restrained report of his observations on life and social conditions, art, sciences and propaganda in the U.S.S.R.

Booklist 48:295 My 15 '52

"The book may be recommended as one of the very few modern 'I was there' books about the soviet union, but it should be taken with several pinches of salt." W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 4 '52 350w

Reviewed by Edmund Stevens

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 28 '52 850w

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin

Commonweal 56:125 My 9 '52 500w

Foreign Affairs 31:162 O '52 30w

"A many levelled, perceptive reporting job." + Kirkus 20:177 Mr 1 '52 260w

"M. Gordey's book is one of the most interesting I have ever read about the U.S.S.R. A Russian-speaking Frenchman with a keen eye for facts and no vestige of an axe to grind, he received, to his surprise, a visa to the U.S.S.R. and, though the correspondent of a French commercial newspaper, was allowed freely to wander in Moscow and, under careful surveillance, to see very much beyond it. . . But because he understood Russian he is able to give an extraordinarily vivid, often happy and always convincing picture of the lives of ordinary people, of the chatter of women shopping and of the classless and unrestrained jollity of a Russian party, starting spontaneously in a public restaurant." Kingsley Martin

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:482 O 25 '52 1100w

"It is extraordinary, in a way, that such a book should be as interesting as it is. Scenes and observations that would be commonplace if made in regard to some other country take on novelty when a people so cut off from us are being discussed; and the author's cool approach is in itself exciting when applied to the topic of the U.S.S.R. Mr. Gordey is a good journalist, a skilled reporter. He would be the first to admit that he could not know the whole truth, but he would be justified in claiming that he reports fairly what he does see and know." August Heckscher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 8 '52 600w

"Mr. Gordey's discussions of the cold war and of the sins and errors committed by both sides are well reasoned, sensible and sensitive. Much of their usefulness, however, is destroyed by his deliberate refusal to go one step further and trace the origins of the conflict. The impression he thus creates, however unintentionally, is that both sides bear equal responsibility and that his is a plague-on-both-your-houses attitude. That way lies the suicidal madness of neutralism." Robert Magidoff

N Y Times p12 Je 8 '52 650w

"A detailed and well-written report."

+ New Yorker 28:142 Ap 26 '52 290w

Reviewed by Paul Ucker

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 15 '52 250w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert

Springf'd Republican p10D Je 22 '52 300w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 36:4 Je '52 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p671 O 17 '52 800w

GORDIMER, NADINE. Soft voice of the serpent, and other stories. 244p $3.50 Simon & Schuster

52-9515

Collection of twenty-one short stories, most of them having South Africa as a background.

Booklist 48:321 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 13 '52 350w

"Nadine Gordimer works a vein of quiet but intensely perceptive observation. Her stories, limned against a background of a well-known and loved South Africa, carry their own spatial and material authenticity. Miss Gordimer is, indeed, so much a mistress of this time and place, so verbally dexterous, so mercilessly accurate in her sensory responses, that one anticipates the performance of a potentially major writer. What Miss Gordimer conveys with all this subtle and marvelous

GORDIMER, NADINE—Continued

art is regrettably, however, of no comparable consequence." Richard Hayes

+ — Commonweal 56:204 My 30 '52 550w

Kirkus 20:95 F 1 '52 120w

"Recommended highly." H. L. Roth
+ Library J 77:590 Ap 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld
New Repub 127:19 J1 7 '52 330w

"Miss Gordimer has reduced confusion to simplicity. The symbols she holds up are good for all times and all places, reminding us of our universal humanity. South Africa pervades all her writing, and yet these tales are never overweighted with their local color. Africa is there, but it seems familiar to us, already our own; no more than a point of departure." Sylvia Stallings

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 25 '52 400w

"This is her first published volume, and her debut is an exciting one. Miss Gordimer is very young—in her early twenties, according to her publishers—and very talented." William Peden

+ N Y Times p17 Je 15 '52 340w

"Told with sweetness, thoughtfulness, and enthusiasm but often without much power or shape."

+ — New Yorker 28:139 Je 7 '52 40w

"Read these stories yourself and see if you don't agree that in Miss Gordimer a fresh and notable talent has stepped on to the literary stage. I think you will. And I believe that you'll be looking forward with eagerness to the first novel on which the author is now working—and which her publisher, so impressed did he find himself with these shorter pieces, has accepted sight unseen." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 26 '52 550w

"Readers who seek in these score or so tales any direct reflection of the headlines will not find them there. Miss Gordimer is a subtle writer who makes her points delicately and obliquely. . . . Easily the best story in the book is 'A Watcher of the Dead,' an account of a family death and its attendant ceremony that is a marvel of selective detail and artistic sensibility. But each of these tales will strike its own chord of significance." John Barkham

+ Sat R 35:22 My 24 '52 500w

GORDON, BENJAMIN LEE. Between two worlds: the memoirs of a physician. 354p $4 Bookman associates

B or 92 Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-9400

"Aside from the facts that 77-year-old Doctor Gordon is a famous medical historian (The Romance of Medicine, 1944, 1949), a founder of the American Zionist movement, and a noted eye surgeon, his autobiography is flavorsome in its portrayal of two opposite environments—a childhood in the native town of Neustadt, Lithuania (later Nazi-obliterated), and a career in America, the New World." (Library J) Index.

"Recommended as a fascinating account of three bygone eras." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 77:889 My 15 '52 110w

"This book contains a great amount of real information, and one cannot help but be impressed by the knowledge, sincerity and idealism of its author." Ralph Colp

+ — N Y Times p16 S 21 '52 450w
'52 190w

GORDON, MRS MILDRED, and GORDON, GORDON. Campaign train. 188p $2.50 Doubleday

Mystery story. 52-9063

Booklist 49:15 S 1 '52

Kirkus 20:331 Je 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 3 '52 140w

"The male half of the Gordons is a publicity man who traveled on a Presidential campaign train four years ago, and is therefore able to draw a singularly convincing picture of the transcontinental train tour of Gov. Wallace X. Martin, 'the next President of the United States.' From the hasty memorizing of the names and hobbies of local bigwigs to the long-distance phone checks with the Vice Presidential candidate to avoid contradictions in speeches, the picture is detailed, vivid and true. It's a pity that the fictional part of the novel is less convincing." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p19 J1 27 '52 290w

"Interesting background but rather slow-moving plot. C plus." L. G. Offord

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 10 '52 40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:44 Ag 9 '52 20w

Springf'd Republican p16C S 14 '52 40w

GORDON, MRS PATRICIA (JOAN HOWARD, pseud). Quillenback for fire chief; pictures by Garry MacKenzie. 47p $1.50 Oxford

51-13251

Story of the great forest fire, in which Quillenback the porcupine was made fire chief. Thru his organization the birds and animals banded together and conquered the fire. The book ends with the banquet given the fire chief. For ages 5 to 8.

"Well-wrought nonsense sparked by salty and sage animal characters and an ingenious ending. Garry MacKenzie's whimsically stylized drawings are delightful."

+ Kirkus 19:614 O 15 '51 110w

"Recommended." Anne Izard

+ Library J 76:2120 D 15 '51 60w

"It is unusual good fun for the look-and-listen age, and for eight-year-olds to read." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 11 '51 170w

"Joan Howard's deft touch and the detailed black and white illustrations help make this book suitable for children who have learned to read. It is not recommended to hold the interest of large groups." E. B.

N Y Times p42 N 11 '51 150w

GORDON, ROBERT AARON. Business fluctuations. 624p $5 Harper

338.54 Business cycles. Business conditions —Forecasting 52-5440

"A comprehensive treatment of business cycles using the business cycle patterns of the National Bureau of Economic Research in describing what happens during cycles. Part 1: 'Income, Spending and Output'—the circular flow of income and spending, national income measurement, and the components of aggregate spending; Part 2: 'The Nature and Causes of Business Fluctuations'—combining statistical, historical and theoretic treatments; Part 3: 'Prediction and Control'—what we can do to keep the economy more stable. Bibliographical footnotes." (Library J) Index.

"The text will find ready acceptance in the business cycles course. The exposition is clear and the arguments competently developed. Its major shortcomings are those which are common to most of the undergraduate economics courses taught in the universities in that they lack historical dimensions." Julius Margolis

+ — Am Econ R 42:961 D '52 750w

"Because of the preoccupation of economists in the last fifteen years with both the great structural changes in the American economy and the revolution in theory wrought by Keynes, there has not been much general literature on the subject of business cycles in recent years. Professor Gordon's book is to be welcomed for that reason, and especially so because his work deserves the highest praise." D. S. Watson

+ Ann Am Acad 284:188 N '52 400w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1406 S 1 '52 80w

GORDON, ROBERT I. (ANNE LONDON, pseud.), and BISHOV, BERTHA KAHN, eds. Complete American-Jewish cookbook, in accordance with the Jewish dietary laws; associate eds: Ethel I. Ugelow [and others]. 623p il col il $4.95 World pub.

641.5 Cookery, Jewish

52-5193

"Offers 'not only the traditional Jewish dishes of many lands but also the great variety of distinctly American foods.' Photographs and drawings. Glossary, useful information, controlling weight and calory table, dictionary of culinary terms, index." Bookmark

Bookmark 12:6 O '52 30w

"This is probably the finest and most complete Jewish cookbook ever published. Its editors, Anne London and Bertha Kahn Bishov, deserve the highest praise." Morrison Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 S 21 '52 220w

+ Kirkus 20:595 S 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis

Library J 77:2073 D 1 '52 20w

GORHAM, CHARLES ORSON. Trial by darkness. 410p $3.50 Dial press

52-10096

Character study of Avery Hollister, from an aristocratic Hartford family. It begins with his early childhood and carries him to his twenty-first year when he enlists in the army.

"Very readable novel of contemporary life, with a rather unsympathetic hero. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1655 O 1 '52 70w

"Throughout Mr. Gorham's briskly paced story there are persistent echoes of F. Scott Fitzgerald. Partly this is because of his settings. . . . Partly it is because he has endowed his principal character with sufficient wealth to provide time for considerable soul searching and to make his actual working seem an admirable idiosyncrasy. More it is because of his style which is brightly polished, full of physical details about the clothes and customs of his characters."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 2 '52 150w

"Despite its wry wit and virtuoso intelligence, 'Trial by Darkness' is not bright-spirited. But Mr. Gorham explores the territory he defines for himself, and literate readers inside or outside the Social Register will probably discover private reasons for enjoying this trip through Snobland and its suburbs." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p4 O 26 '52 600w

New Yorker 28:188 N 29 '52 90w

Sat R 36:58 Ja 3 '53 150w

GORHAM, MICHAEL, pseud. Real book about cowboys; il. by C. L. Hartman. 189p $1.25 Garden City bks.

978 Cowboys—Juvenile literature 52-8115

Discusses the history of the rodeo; longhorns, mustangs and vaqueros; the Chisholm trail days; bronco busting; changes in ranching methods; cowmen and sheep herders; and cowboys' work. For ages 8 to 14.

"This might have some plus value for the 'read to me about cowboys' group."

Kirkus 19:705 D 15 '51 160w

"Considering price and the current demand for cowboy books easy enough for fourth grade, this will probably be a good buy for libraries needing more material on the subject. Undistinguished style and illustrations." A. B. Martin

Library J 77:727 Ap 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by M. E. Martignoni

N Y Times p18 Je 29 '52 20w

GORIS, JOHANNES ALBERTUS (MARNIX GIJSEN, pseud.). Book of Joachim of Babylon [tr. by Fernand G. Renier and Anne Cliff]. 122p $2 Farrar, Straus

[52-10006]

The story of Susanna and the Elders purporting to be told by her husband, Joachim, who found life as the husband of a paragon of chastity something of a trial.

"Only the sophisticated reader will enjoy this evening's reading but it is a bit not to be missed by the reader who enjoys imaginative analysis!" K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:1192 J1 '52 100w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 O 5 '51 30w

"It is Mr. Gijzen's first book to be translated into English, and, let us hope, not his last. Having Joachim himself tell the real story of Susanna was a dangerous task, but Mr. Gijzen succeeded where most historical writers would have failed. He also succeeded in avoiding the usual pitfalls of rewriters of biblica. episodes: he doesn't dress his narrative in pseudoarchaic language, he doesn't sentimentalize and he is not flippantly psychological." Richard Plant

+ N Y Times p4 J1 20 '52 370w

"Mr. Gijzen's retelling of the tale is done with such sly urbanity as to provide delightful reading. And Joachim, the narrator, emerges from the shadows to which Susanna's notoriety had relegated him as a charming cynic, heroically but hopelessly battling with that most powerful of legendary figures, the good woman." E. J. F.

+ Sat R 35:36 O 11 '52 150w

"An attempt at ironic debunking which simply does not succeed. Irony and sensuality are not easily harnessed together; and this joke depends awkwardly on both. But the sensuality wins alas—and it is not Susannah who is debunked in this solemn exercise, but only, as forever, poor old Joachim!" Kate O'Brien

— Spec 188:90 Ja 18 '52 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p725 N 16 '51 30w

GORSLINE, DOUGLAS W. What people wore; il. by [the author]. 266p $7.50 Viking

391 Costume

52-12392

"A visual history of dress from ancient times to twentieth-century America." (Subtitle) The book is divided into three main parts: Costume of the ancient world; European costume; and American costume. There are 1800 line drawings, some with color. Bibliography. Sources.

Booklist 49:42 O 1 '52

"The author-artist of this handsome, valuable quarto has made accurate, chronologically dated drawings, some colored, from source materials of each period, giving clarity and detail to costumes of people 'as they really appeared and acted.'"

+ Bookmark 12:5 O '52 40w

"What People Wore" should interest any layman and serve as a valuable aid to costume designers and museum curators." P. M. Angle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 21 '52 160w

"Those who work with pen and brush will welcome this book for its practical, well-organized editorial content and realistic illustrative material. In this respect it is a dream come true for the artist, illustrator, fashion designer, choreographer, costumer or writer who must usually spend hours in research for facts (and figures) on the history of clothing to inspire, guide or authenticate his work." H. A. Cornelius

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 O 9 '52 450w

"The book will be enormously useful; an excellent acquisition for school and college as well as public libraries."

+ Kirkus 20:396 J1 1 '52 120w

Library J 77:1761 O 15 '52 50w

GORSLINE, D. W.—Continued

"Devoting particular attention to the American scene, Mr. Gorsline's book is also unusual in being no chronicle of the upper classes; Coxey's Army, for instance, who were rather déclassé in their dress, are drawn with as loving care as are Holbein's and Goya's sitters. The contrasts make it a social history as well as a source book. For whatever reader, these hundreds of drawings, and the references to each of them in the back of the book, add up to a very useful service which Mr. Gorsline has performed pleasantly."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 23
+ '52 220w

"It is his section on American costume, a third of the book, that is most notable, for his research consolidates much fresh, useful material, gleaned largely from photographs. No other book offers so many pioneers from 1845 on; sod-house dwellers, frontier marshals, feuding clansmen, lumberjacks, miners, and cowboys, as well as Eastern American dress to 1925." Millia Davenport

+ Sat R 35:62 O 4 '52 750w

"For the theatregoer who likes to check up on the authenticity of costumes, a useful and diverting book." Joseph Carroll

+ Theatre Arts 36:11 N '52 100w

GOSNELL, HAROLD FOOTE. Champion campaigner: Franklin D. Roosevelt. 235p il $3.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Roosevelt, Franklin Delano. Elections—U.S. 52-4277

"Franklin D. Roosevelt sought public office ten times. On eight of these occasions he was successful. . . This may or may not be a record, but the mere recital of his victories at the polls, beginning with his first campaign for state Senator in 1910 and ending in 1944 . . . establishes him firmly as one of the master politicians and champion campaigners of all time. . . What made Roosevelt the champion campaigner? In this book Harold F. Gosnell, an experienced political scientist and historian who has long studied the causes of success in American politics, attempts to answer these questions." (N Y Times) Index.

Kirkus 20:541 Ag 15 '52 200w

"Mr. Gosnell's analysis of Roosevelt's manipulative skills is most penetrating, but one significant ingredient of F. D. R. the master campaigner—his greatness—is lost in this process of dissection." Peter Gay

+ Nation 175:433 N 8 '52 440w

"This is a fascinating little volume, one that many a reader will doubtlessly take at one sitting. It might be supposed that after the recent plethora of books examining all phases of the Roosevelt career there would now be little profit in singling out FDR's campaigns for separate and detailed examination. But this is a remarkably successful book in that Mr. Gosnell carefully limits himself to this one rather narrow segment of the Roosevelt record and yet manages to tell a story that is always unified and significant." R. K. Carr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 26
+ '52 550w

"Interesting, objectively written and informative book." Karl Schriftgiesser

+ N Y Times p3 O 19 '52 850w

Reviewed by L. L. L. Golden
Sat R 35:14 D 27 '52 240w

GOSS, MRS MADELEINE (BINKLEY). Modern music-makers; contemporary American composers. 499p il $10 Dutton

927.8 Musicians, American 52-5304

Short biographical sketches of thirty-seven contemporary American composers. Arranged in chronological order of birth, the book starts with Charles Ives, the oldest in years but in many respects the most "modern," and includes John Alden Carpenter, Louis Gruenberg, Deems Taylor, Walter Piston, William Grant Still, Aaron Copland, Roy Harris, Lucas Foss, and others. There is a photograph of each composer, manuscript specimens of the compositions of each, and verified checklist of each artist's compositions.

Booklist 48:279 My 1 '52

"Excellent reference for the music library and pleasant for occasional dipping into by the interested."

+ Kirkus 20:62 Ja 15 '52 160w

"Mostly non-critical in approach, with emphasis upon giving expression to the intent of the composer. Choice of the 37 is, of course, arbitrary. Good for both reference and reading." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 77:720 Ap 15 '52 110w

"The book is beautifully produced. . . I feel, though, that the comfortably relaxed makeup of the book becomes rather an extravagance. Much more new interest could have been aroused had Miss Goss been less limited in her list of subjects. The biographical pieces are long and rambling compilations of quotations from other well-known books and critics interspersed with a few remarks of her own, often neither particularly penetrating nor revealing of personality or musical style and worth. I would have asked for fewer quoted encomiums and chatty anecdotes in favor of shorter essays and more composers." R. C. Campbell

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:607 S '52 500w

"The author has mercifully refrained from subjecting the music to the devastating treatment she gives the composers. Her biographical sketches are impartial, and, I suspect, conceived without malice, yet calculated viciousness could not be more deadly than her enthusiasm."

+ New Repub 126:23 Je 30 '52 220w

"The pieces are fairly detailed and accurate recountings of their subjects' lives, activities and attitudes. . . Few readers are likely to take the tome in one sitting but, if they do, they may notice some interesting patterns. American composers, for example, tend to specialize rather late, although most show talent early enough. . . The French teacher, Nadia Boulanger, had a hand in the careers of a surprising number. And, finally, the reader will notice that there are more composers (by Mrs. Goss' count) than ever reach importance in New York concert halls." Carter Harmon
N Y Times p22 Ap 27 '52 220w

"I find nothing in this book except the photographs and a few facts to like—or even to masticate. . . Pretensions, page-size, and price are all larger than the value of the actual contents." Herbert Weinstock

+ Sat R 35:32 Ap 26 '52 400w

GOUDEY, MRS ALICE E. Smokey, the well-loved kitten; il. by Meg Wohlberg. 114p $2.50 Lothrop

52-9005

Ellen was an only child who longed for a pet, "something little and alive." A kitten seemed just the thing, only her father did not like cats. The story is of Ellen's attempts to train Smokey not to annoy her father, and the outcome.

Booklist 48:325 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:236 Jl '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Jl 6 '52
110w

+ Horn Bk 28:172 Je '52 100w

Kirkus 20:257 Ap 15 '52 150w

"Recommended." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 77:798 My 1 '52 70w

"Small girls, say from five to eight, might well receive this with their very first kitten. It is a gentle, humorous, instructive tale, with Ellen learning exactly how to prepare for her gift and how to care for him properly." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 11
'52 130w

"The shifting viewpoint robs the story of a certain unity, but Smokey, as described by Alice Goudey and drawn by Meg Wohlberg, is so jaunty that this is a minor complaint."

E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p28 My 25 '52 130w

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. Valley of song; il. by Richard Floethe. 281p $3 Coward-McCann

52-12096

The background of this fable is a shipbuilding yard; the time seems to be the eighteenth century. The ten-year-old heroine is Tabitha, an imaginative child, who thru her enthusiasm leads the members of the shipbuilding fraternity into her beloved Valley and out of a depression.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran

Atlantic 190:102 D '52 60w

Booklist 49:92 N 1 '52

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 176:207 D '52 40w

"The story is a curious blend of fantasy and imagery of beauty and wisdom. Bible verses are here, and here are also the signs of the Zodiac cavorting with life. If you can read it in the spirit of magic, it may be one of the loveliest books ever read; but if realism is your portion and choice, give the book to the nearest child." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 30 '52 250w

"I lost my way in The Valley of Song after the first few pages as I think Elizabeth Goudge has lost hers in writing for children. I was simply inundated by all she presents to be carried along while reading." A. C. Moore

— Horn Bk 28:395 D '52 120w

"Not a book for every reader, but with special charm for those with a lingering taste for make-believe and a willing appreciation of detailed descriptions. (Some young readers have already made enthusiastic comment.) Richard Floethe's delicately imaginative drawings strengthen the story's atmosphere of enchantment, through which the author's spiritual quality and her love of beauty so strongly shine." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:405 D '52 130w

"For all its ethereal color, gem-like scenery, and its warmth—the transitions from reality to illusion make this a book for a particular mood and taste."

+ Kirkus 20:552 S 1 '52 120w

"This slender story holds together a lengthy fantasy depicting the wonders of the valley. The sights, sounds, smells, and creatures of fairyland which fill the delicately beautiful descriptive passages will delight the imaginative and sensitive child. Recommended for this type of reader." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 77:1822 O 15 '52 70w

"This is a densely wordy book, full of pretty scenes and good intentions, which grannies and aunts may enjoy rather better than the children." Margaret Lane

New Statesman & Nation 42:682 D 8 '51 50w

"The patchwork of happy philosophy is sentimental, but it is modern in concept. Its fairy tales of creation of creatures in the 'Workshop' keep it from greatness but it still is a rare piece of imaginative work." L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 7 '52 300w

"It is both an imaginative tale and a guide for understanding one's self and other people."

F. N. Chrystie

+ N Y Times pt2, p12 N 16 '52 120w

"It is probably a story that will be read by the discriminating few rather than by the many. It would certainly give a great deal of pleasure to adults. We definitely do not like Richard Floethe's illustrations. They seem to us ineffective and unrelated to the story."

+ — Sat R 35:51 N 15 '52 170w

"The Valley of Song, like so many books with a symbolic intention, has a slight failure of accord which is difficult to diagnose—the more so since it is written with immense descriptive competence, a sustained excitement, and an excess, almost, of sweetness and light."

Times [London] Lit Sup p15 N 23 '51 160w

GOULD, JEAN ROSALIND. Sidney Hillman: great American. 342p $3 Houghton

B or 92 Hillman, Sidney

52-5904

A popular biography of this famous American labor leader. Written for young adults.

Booklist 48:301 My 15 '52

"The facts of Hillman's basic altruism, his love of the workers, his serious minded boyhood, and his Jewish background, have been sugared in the prose to the point of saturation, but the underlying sincerity and devotion make this a credible presentation."

+ — Kirkus 20:130 F 15 '52 150w

"Recommended for pleasure or collateral reading. Senior high up." E. H. Speer

+ Library J 77:604 Ap 1 '52 50w

"Since there is very little available to introduce high school readers to the story of American labor organization, a book like this is important. It is a biography which necessarily includes and explains the beginnings of the various phases of labor organization with which Mr. Hillman was closely connected. . . Unfortunately this book is not very well written, because it is trying to be very 'easy' in style while handling ideas that are not really 'easy.'" L. S. Bechtel

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 11 '52 280w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p18 J1 13 '52 140w

Wis Lib Bul 48:178 J1 '52

GOVAN, MRS CHRISTINE (NOBLE) (J. N. DARBY, pseud). Super-duper car; with pictures by Lisl Weil. 77p $2 Houghton

52-6899

Three Negro children and their adventures with wagons which always seemed to get smashed are the subjects of this story for ages 4 to 8. Finally they get together and make their own wagon complete with parasol for shade and they are all happy.

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 26 '52 80w

"A story full of rowdy humor and realism touched off by good regional background, a factory worker settlement in Georgia."

+ Kirkus 20:499 Ag 15 '52 130w

"Miss Weil's many pictures match the humor well and give a sense of rushing action that approaches that of Bemelmans." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 5 '52 100w

GOVAN, MRS CHRISTINE (NOBLE) (J. N. DARBY, pseud). Tilly's strange secret; il. by Sari. 184p $2.25 Aladdin

52-9320

Another book about Tilly, Polly and Jenny, who last appeared in The Surprising Summer (Book Review Digest 1951). This story is mainly about Tilly, who is happy in her new home as the adopted daughter of Uncle Ben and Aunt Ellen Spears. For ages 8 to 10.

"This delightful story makes a fine addition to the summer reading of little girls 7 to 11. And Sari's true-to-life illustrations add great pleasure to the book." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 J1 20 '52 160w

"Not important, but a pleasant kind of story for little girls. Sari black and white pictures have zest and verve."

+ Kirkus 20:281 My 1 '52 150w

"Recommended for grades 4-6." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 77:1017 Je 1 '52 70w

"The children's talk is particularly good, and the 'secret' is unusual and thrilling. Here is a timeless country American way of life described in a style well suited to readers under twelve." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p38 N 16 '52 70w

GOVAN, C. N.—Continued

"A story that many little girls will enjoy. It is an attractive book both in size and print, with many clear black and white pictures of natural looking children." Phyllis Fenner
+ N Y Times p10 J1 6 '52 170w

GOVAN, GILBERT EATON, and LIVINGOOD, JAMES WESTON. Chattanooga county, 1540-1951; from tomahawks to TVA. 509p $5 Dut-ton

976.88 Chattanooga, Tennessee 52-5307

Regional history of the country around Chattanooga, Tennessee, covering the years 1540 to 1951. It explains the important part played in our westward movement by this region during pioneer and more recent days. Maps on end papers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:318 Je 1 '52

"A panorama of the growth and development of an area. . . The whole provides a close-meshed survey of specific regional interest, which while not handled in dramatic fashion nevertheless combines thoughtfulness and deep personal interest."

+ Kirkus 20:147 F 15 '52 230w

"This is a significant volume of Americana, for the area on which it centers is strategic and needs contemporary evaluation, and interpretative historical writing of this calibre combining authority, interest and readability with good narrative is rare. This volume should be available to all types of readers. Sufficient footnotes to command the respect of the most fastidious scholars. Excellent bibliography." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:715 Ap 15 '52 130w

"An excellent addition to the growing list of American regional histories."

+ Nation 174:437 My 3 '52 40w

"Sound history, attractively presented. It should possess great popular appeal, and it is a valuable contribution to the nation's historical literature." S. F. Horn

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 11 '52 1200w

"By selecting from the twenty chapters of this book, the visitor to Chattanooga can obtain a good preparation for that moment when he stands on the promontory used by Indian, hunter, soldier and settler to look down on a land of 'manifest destiny.' The full story, which includes much local color and family saga, will have its moments of rapture for even those Chattanoogaans who blithely scale Look-out Mountain daily on the incline railroad." John Popham

+ N Y Times p10 Je 1 '52 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p30 My 25 '52 200w

"Though Govan and Livingood have garnered enough material for several books, they have nevertheless done a splendid job of selecting and integrating the diverse scattered facts into a well-balanced whole and have produced a scholarly addition to regional literature which should do much to make this country better known." Ralph Morrissey

+ Sat R 35:15 Je 28 '52 700w

Reviewed by L. O. Haaby
Social Educ 16:398 D '52 500w

"This book, a pioneer in a neglected field, makes a sound contribution to Southern economic and social history."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:283 S '52 180w

GOYEN, WILLIAM. Ghost and flesh; stories and tales. 183p $2.75 Random house

52-5143

Contents: The white rooster; The letter in the cedarchest; Pore Perrie; Ghost and flesh, water and dirt; The grasshopper's burden; Children of Old Somebody; Nests in a stone image; A shape of light.

Booklist 48:228 Mr 15 '52

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 9 '52 320w

"Exquisitely written; yet these stories are soft in their intellectual foundation. They depend in their motivations entirely too much upon esoteric emotion—and emotionality. There is too little of the matter for communication in despairing cries and symbolic happenings for my taste. I found I didn't care very much; I was not moved very deeply by any of them." William Pfaff

+ Commonweal 55:550 Mr 7 '52 200w

Kirkus 19:686 D 1 '51 190w

"At its outset Mr. Goyen's new collection of stories appears to be yet one more installment of plantation Gothic; in the long run it adds up to a great deal more than that, obliging one to ask why, since he has been courageous enough to introduce some of the questions that most grievously plague mankind, he should choose to mask them with these old stylistic mannerisms: the cripples, the idiots, the recluses, the half-mad old men and the malicious children?" Sylvia Stallings

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 10 '52 600w

"Above the Mason-Dixon line, hardly a ghost to speak of turns up in contemporary American writing. But below that line, ghosts swarm in a thousand forms. . . In his second book, a collection of eight short stories, William Goyen demonstrates that this ghostly Southern literary tradition extends as far west as Texas, where he grew up. His ghosts are lost figures and faces out of his childhood." Robert Lowry

N Y Times p5 F 10 '52 500w

"Eight mournful, formless pieces having to do with people who find the world too strange for them. Mr. Goyen appears to croon as he writes, sometimes with grief, sometimes with mirth. The best of the pieces is 'The White Rooster.'"

New Yorker 27:109 F 9 '52 40w

"While weak in plot, except for 'The White Rooster,' the first tale and perhaps the best of the lot, the stories are written with great beauty and lyric quality." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 6 '52 390w

"Mr. Goyen occasionally apes too sedulously the manner and method of a composite author whom we shall call Thomas Wolfe William Faulkner Katherine Ann Porter. During these periods of fixation his fondness for language results in a lush, impassioned rhetoric; his concern with form becomes an annoyingly contrived barrier to understanding. . . Perhaps it is because of this occasional 'fine' writing and unnecessary technical complexity that one of Mr. Goyen's simplest stories, 'The Grasshopper's Burden,' appears by contrast so powerful and so memorable." William Peden

Sat R 35:17 Mr 22 '52 400w

"All the stories are gracefully written, and some of them break into prose poetry reminiscent of Thomas Wolfe. But they create a mood rather than people."

Time 59:104 F 25 '52 130w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:137 Je '52 250w

GRACQ, JULIEN, pseud. See Poirier, L.

GRAF, MRS NELLY. No vacancy. 223p il $2.75 Univ. of Denver press

647.97 Tourist camps, hostels, etc. 51-14095

"Nelly Graf, a Coloradan, having bought a motel in Boulder, made a roaring success of it, and sold out while still in possession of her health and several lengths ahead of the game. Her experiences were, imaginably, like those of the nation's 35,000 other motor court owners: coping with vandals and 'souvenir'-collectors, zoning and rezoning enthusiasts, movable and immovable clients, and $5,000 mortgage payments (auto courts being no longer small affairs). . . All this, and more, Miss Graf sets down." N Y Times

Booklist 48:117 D 1 '51

"A probably unique work—a handy guide to prospective court owners covering every problem from what size sheets and towels to stock, and what to reply to inquiries about accommodations, to how to detect those undesirables (characteristically in pairs) who once dealt motor courts an almost fatal blow in their reputation." R. C. Lewis

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 27 '52 330w

"All the people who have always wanted to retire from the city's mad rush and just run a little motor somewhere ought to read 'No Vacancy.'" R. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p25 F 17 '52 100w

"Besides being lively entertainment, it is solidly seasoned with how-to-do for court owners, buyers and prospective buyers." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p4D Ja 27 '52 60w

GRAHAM, AELRED. Catholicism and the world today. 234p $3 McKay

282 Catholic church. Church and state 52-7929

"Catholicism presents the world with a series of problems, says the Prior of St. Gregory's, Portsmouth, R. I., until 1951 professor of systematic theology in England. Dom Graham says his inquiry complements Paul Blanshard's two studies of Catholic power. Naturally he controverts Blanshard, yet avoids a real polemic. Aim is to defend Catholicism against secular—including communist—and Protestant criticism; to expound Catholic doctrines without writing a theological treatise; to present Catholicism's solutions to the perplexities of our times." (Library J) Index.

"Not all of this book makes easy reading; and indeed, the author—possibly because he has several types of reader in mind—has crowded into one book material which could with profit be distributed through several smaller volumes written on different levels. Of these (implied) volumes, the most useful would probably be the one addressed to the serious, not technically trained, public." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 175:237 Je '52 310w

"An admirable Christian spirit, an elevated tone, a refined style and a profound faith are characteristics of this discussion of Roman Catholicism in relation to the men and movements of today. Such a book cannot help being controversial in substance, even though the author's intent is that it should not be so." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:1225 O 22 '52 900w

"The book suffers from a structural defect—lack of unity. The author is not writing about Catholicism or about the world today from any special vantage point; he is writing rather about every point of contact between them. That is to say he is writing a brief book about the whole of reality. This is courageous, but is it advisable? The result is a book without organization, a series of unconnected discussions about every problem of modern man. There is no single insight to unify these disparate discussions. It is rare that a tender heart and a tough mind are found in the same person. There is no doubt that Dom Aelred Graham has the first." J. V. Mullaney

+ Commonweal 56:158 My 16 '52 300w

"This is a book which deserves wide attention. . . In Dom Graham Catholicism has an able defender. Non-Catholics will appreciate his clarity and forthrightness and the absence of a controversial spirit."

+ Kirkus 20:120 F 15 '52 180w

"A thoughtful and well written book by a man who knows it is difficult to reconcile the irreconcilable. Should be acquired by libraries that bought Blanshard's books." A. D. Osborn

+ Library J 77:593 Ap 1 '52 130w

GRAHAM, MRS ALBERTA (POWELL). Great bands of America; front. by Kurt Werth. 185p $2 Nelson

788 Bands (music). Musicians 51-13995

"Military, concert, municipal, university, and several other types of bands are described here, with biographical data about the founders and present leaders of the best-known organizations. . . Bibliography of books and periodicals is included. Information about Sousa, Goldman, et al., may prove useful and interesting for instrumentalists in upper elementary and junior high grades." Library J

"Although the focus is on the podium with little said about structural organization, development in instruments and career possibilities as such, this is an entertaining general survey of a beloved American institution."

+ Kirkus 19:619 O 15 '51 110w

"Pedestrian style and material covered are not wholly satisfactory; one would like more information about band instruments and a list, however brief, of compositions and recordings." C. A. Hulton

Library J 77:214 F 1 '52 110w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 6 '52 170w

"Interesting and informative book." Eugenia Garson

+ N Y Times p24 F 24 '52 140w

GRAHAM, MRS ALBERTA (POWELL). Lafayette, friend of America; ill. by Ralph Ray. 127p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Lafayette, Marie Joseph Paul Yves Roch Gilbert du Motier, marquis de—Juvenile literature 52-11650

This biography for young people covers all of Lafayette's life from his youth in France to his last visit to America in 1824. The book stresses his aid to America during the Revolution and his lifelong friendship for this country.

Booklist 49:51 O 1 '52

Kirkus 20:370 J1 1 '52 80w

"A good buy for any library." L. R. Markey

+ Library J 77:1620 S 15 '52 40w

GRAHAM, BENJAMIN, and DODD, DAVID LE FEVRE. Security analysis; principles and technique [3d ed. rewritten] with the collaboration of Charles Tatham, jr. 770p $8 McGraw

332.63 Securities. Investments. Speculation 51-12566

"Intended for all those who have a serious interest in security values, this volume deals not only with methods of analyzing individual issues but also with general principles of selection and protection of security holdings. Critical rather than descriptive. Substantially revised in this edition, rearranged, treatment of common stock appraisal expanded, references to corporate abuses largely dropped because of the sweeping reforms since SEC, new chapters on public utility analysis and valuation." (Library J) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1934.

"Comprehensive and thorough." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:438 Mr 1 '52 100w

"Of interest both to investors and to students of finance, this handbook clearly describes the fundamentals of investment practice and offers the reader practical guidance for appraising the intrinsic value of common stocks and bonds."

+ Management R 41:563 Ag '52 50w

GRAHAM, FRANK. New York Giants; an informal history. 308p il $3.50 Putnam

796.357 New York (city). Baseball club (National league) 52-5277

History of the New York ball team from 1883 to the close of the season of 1951.

Booklist 48:292 My 15 '52

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 J1 13 '52 80w

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ap 26 '52 420w

GRAHAM, FRANK—Continued

"Tops in a good series. Frank Graham makes baseball live."

+ Kirkus 20:207 Mr 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1206 J1 '52 40w

"In 1944, Mr. Graham wrote 'McGraw of the Giants,' which has since served baseball bibliophiles as the standard work on the Giants. . . 'The New York Giants' constitutes a 200-page condensation of the McGraw book, followed by a 100-page account of what happened to the Giants under managers Terry, Ott and Durocher. Although Mr. Graham is informal almost to the point of casualness . . . this lively team biography will more than likely remain as the last word on its subject."

Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 18 '52 230w

Reviewed by D. M. Mankiewicz

N Y Times p3 Ap 20 '52 280w

"The great names are all here and Graham tells of them and their fellows entertainingly, tenderly and carefully. The book is rich in anecdote, though short on statistics, and thoroughly worthwhile." C. X. Larrabee

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 10 '52 200w

GRAHAM, GEORGE ADAMS. Morality in American politics. 337p $3.50 Random house

177 [172.1] Political ethics. U.S.—Politics and government. Corruption (in politics) 52-7142

"A guide to clear thinking about corruption and integrity in government and what is right and what is wrong in politics. The author examines the ethical values which permeate the executive, the legislative and the judicial branches of government, and the influences for good and evil exercised by the parties, lobbies, pressure groups and the public." (Publisher's note) Index.

Atlantic 190:79 S '52 150w

Booklist 49:26 S 15 '52

Bookmark 12:6 O '52 30w

Christian Century 69:1278 N 5 '52 1900w

"It would be easy to find points with which to disagree, and thereby discharge the reviewer's obligation not to be swept away with enthusiasm. But they are minor where so much benefit could come from widespread reading of the book." S. R. Davis

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 23 '52 1700w

"A sound background book."

+ Kirkus 20:362 Je 15 '52 270w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1301 Ag '52 110w

"Despite the partisan clamor that it is an invention of President Truman's associates, corruption has plagued American politics for a very long time. Professor Graham, a teacher of government at Princeton and a former consultant to Senator Douglas's Committee on Ethical Standards, has seen this fact clearly. In 'Morality in American Politics' he goes beyond the deep freezers and tanker deals to view corruption in the broader perspective of American culture." Peter Gay

+ Nation 175:236 S 20 '52 800w

"Graham talks about morality, period, because we are all mixed up in politics in one way or another, and morality in politics is nothing else than public morals. This makes it a disturbing book. . . Before he gets through Mr. Graham has rounded up just about all of us. This will perhaps make him extremely unpopular, but it does not alter the fact that he has exposed a great deal of hypocrisy and emphasized a great deal of neglected truth." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 7 '52 900w

"Though the indictment against the legislative may be somewhat overdrawn and though the remedies proposed therefor may appear oversimple, this is a constructive book. It promotes to a high level the debate, now mounting in tension, as to the integrity of our whole governmental process." T. V. Smith

+ N Y Times p10 Ag 24 '52 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 19 '52 400w

Reviewed by V. O. Key

Sat R 35:13 Ag 30 '52 900w

GRAHAM, IRVIN. Advertising campaigns. 324p il $5 Harper

659.11 Advertising

51-13318

"A practical treatment of the advertising campaign as an integrated operation in the promotion of sales. Includes basic policies, selection of an agency, the advertising budget, selection and use of media, and over-all strategy and conduct. Particularly valuable is the illustrated section presenting eight widely representative and successful campaigns." (Management R) The author is an account executive with the Roberts & Reimers advertising agency, and an instructor in advertising at the College of the City of New York. Index.

"Particularly valuable are the assessments of some of the surveys, and their contribution to better understanding of markets, of results, of various media and techniques. Written on the assumption that terms and basic concepts are understood, the author addresses himself to experience."

+ Kirkus 19:341 J1 1 '51 110w

Management R 41:475 J1 '52 50w

+ Special Libraries 43:30 Ja '52 190w

GRAHAM, LILLIAN S., and WACKERBARTH, MARJORIE. Party fun for boys and girls. 229p il $2.95 Prentice-Hall

793 Entertaining

52-9543

Parties for all ages from toddlers to teenagers. Included are suggestions for games and entertainment, invitations, menus, etc.

Booklist 49:29 S 15 '52

"We object to the patronizing tone but the great number of ideas, presented as being carried out in a natural setting is not to be overlooked."

+ Kirkus 20:418 J1 15 '52 120w

"An unusual and practical book of well-planned parties for many occasions." Harriet Morrison

+ Library J 77:1523 S 15 '52 90w

Springf'd Republican p8D S 7 '52 30w

GRAHAM, MARGARET, pseud. See MacDonald, G. L.GRAHAM, PHILIP. Showboats; the history of an American institution. 224p il $3.75 Univ. of Texas

792 Showboats

51-14160

For descriptive note see annual for 1951.

Reviewed by Hamilton Basso

Am Hist R 57:1053 J1 '52 230w

Bookmark 11:130 Mr '52 40w

"This delightful, beautifully made, and richly illustrated book contains almost everything anybody could ask to know about the grand old showboats which, for many years, were the only means of bringing the theater to the river towns. Philip Graham, a professor in the University of Texas, has done a scholarly job, but his scholarship has not caused him to lose sight of the romantic and human interest aspects of his subject." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 17 '52 260w

"As one who has spent some time on showboats—Bryant's, Menke's, Reynolds—I can testify that this is the way it was. Here, well and definitively done, is an unusual and fascinating episode in American dramatic history." Horace Reynolds

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 20 '52 700w

"Recommended for general as well as theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:147 Ja 15 '52 50w

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 25 '52 170w

"It is to be regretted that the account, so fond and so painfully authenticated, should lack the zest of its subject. It is perhaps Mr. Graham's convictions, or his type of academic training, which makes him bear down so unsmilingly on such romances of showboat life as Miss Edna Ferber's. The showboaters may, in fact, have been models of domestic propriety, as the author would have us know; but such insistence is dull. Nevertheless a breath of the old Mississippi life that Huck Finn and Tom Sawyer knew arises from these documented pages."

Times [London] Lit Sup p239 Ap 4 '52 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:78 Mr '52 280w

GRAHAM, VERA M. Treasure in the covered wagon; a story of the Oregon trail; drawings by Howard Simon. 191p $2.50 Lippincott 52-7459

Story of a covered-wagon journey to Oregon in 1845, based on the author's great-grandfather's journal. The treasure was a small organ which still is in the family. For ages 9 to 12.

"Details of travel, including excerpts from songs sung on the hard trail, make this a rewarding picture of the period." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:322 O '52 80w

"Nice Americana. Howard Simon's swirling pencil drawings successfully characterize energetic pioneer life."

+ Kirkus 20:368 Jl 1 '52 160w

"Recommended for boys and girls of 9-12." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 77:1412 S 1 '52 70w

GRAHAM, WINSTON. Renegade; a novel of Cornwall, 1783-1787. 344p $3.50 Doubleday

51-13530

At the end of the American Revolution Ross Poldark returned to his rundown estate in Cornwall. He found the woman he loved about to marry his cousin, and after a silent rebellion he decided to make the best of it. When he hired a mistreated miner's daughter to help with the housework he was misunderstood by the members of his own class, who could not sanction his championship of the lower classes. In time, however, the girl Demelza repaid his faith in her.

Booklist 48:101 N 15 '51

"Demelza's transformation from kitchenmaid to lady of the manor is well handled and credible. The chief merit of the book lies in its circumstantial historical background, with its fund of information about the trades and manners of eighteenth-century Cornwall, rather than in the slight love story." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 174:472 Mr '52 120w

Kirkus 19:453 Ag 15 '51 160w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 27 '52 170w

"This melodramatic tale has a decided nineteenth-century flavor, style-wise, even though its action takes place a century earlier. Victorianism in literature is not entirely a drawback; the nineteenth-century novel sometimes possessed solid virtues. . . . 'The Renegade' [is] a different and, in its small way, distinctive historical novel." R. M.

+ — N Y Times p29 D 9 '51 400w

GRAMATKY, HARDIE. Sparky; story of a little trolley car; pictures by [the author]. 68p $2.50 Putnam

52-9833

Story of Sparky, a frisky little trolley car belonging to a small town. More than once Sparky got in trouble with the Mayor, and so the town council decided to retire Sparky and turn him into a diner. Then came the great day when Sparky saved a boy from being killed by the Mayor's car. There was no more talk of turning Sparky into a diner.

Booklist 49:145 D 15 '52

Bookmark 12:35 N '52

Kirkus 20:700 N 1 '52 80w

"The vivid, funny pictures, many in dashing colors, will amuse children of around six to nine." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p6 N 16 '52 50w

"Hardie Gramatky's amusing illustrations are more than equal to his charming story of this colorful mechanical personality." A. L. Seekamp

+ N Y Times pt2, p40 N 16 '52 120w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 10w

GRAMBS, JEAN D., and IVERSON, WILLIAM J. Modern methods in secondary education; il. by Robert M. Thomas. 562p $4.75 Sloane 373 Education, Secondary 52-10179

"In the book we have tried first to set forth the overall job of the high school clearly. Then means in everyday teaching, and we spell it out in detail. Further, to make the book effective, we have endeavored to face honestly the hard realities in present-day high schools, high schools that are attempting to adjust to the enormity of their problems." (Pref) Index.

"Dr. Grambs' and Dr. Iverson's current volume may be regarded from one coign of vantage as a compendium par excellence of methodology on the secondary level. It doesn't emphasize limitations and difficulties, but it does suggest definite difficulties. It does go beyond the usual text in bridging the gap between theory and practice. And its findings are firmly grounded in empirical data and in the wide experience of its authors." A. F.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 20 '52 460w

School & Society 75:319 My 17 '52 20w

"It is always refreshing to come across a volume in educational literature which seeks to integrate theory and practice. Grambs and Iverson, on the faculty of Stanford University, have produced an excellent textbook." J. T. Durham

+ School R 60:376 S '52 800w

GRANBERG, WILBUR J. Johnny gets out the vote; il. by Sari. 174p $2 Aladdin

52-12502

"Johnny's father, despite his uneasiness on the platform, is running for the state legislature on the Democratic ticket. His over-enthusiastic son's efforts, ebullient but credible, to get him nominated in the primaries, include rallying his pals to distribute handbills, taking a straw vote, evolving the idea of teaming up with a Negro candidate from the next precinct." Kirkus

"There is plenty of fun in this story, told by a man who has a warm feeling for boys, and there is as well a fine sense of responsibility that will make its own appeal to all future voters. Boys and girls are indefatigable workers when their enthusiasms are roused and this small-size book designed for readers from eight to eleven may prove a useful tool with which they can prod their elders to get out and vote." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 O 9 '52 390w

"Johnny deals realistically enough with problems of race, of false pretenses, and other issues, and in climax takes the stage himself with two speeches that roll them into the polls on primary day. Lots of vim in Sari's drawings."

+ Kirkus 20:551 S 1 '52 120w

"A timely subject entertainingly and clearly presented for 10-11-year-olds." Elenora Alexander

+ Library J 77:1665 O 1 '52 80w

GRANBERG, W. J.—Continued

"A basically good idea is overplayed here, for Johnny has more gimp and gumption than his father. A simpler kind of assistance would have been more credible, if less dramatic. However, since Johnny learns a good deal about the American electoral process, and his knowledge is duly passed on to the reader, the book will be helpful as supplementary reading." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p32 O 26 '52 110w

GRANT, ALINE. Ann Radcliffe. 153p $2.50 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Radcliffe, Ann (Ward) 51-14495

Biography of the author of The Mysteries of Udolpho and other Gothic novels. "Here, the entire life of Ann Radcliffe is seen—her youth and schooling passed in easy circumstances among relatives and bookish people; her marriage to William Radcliffe, a faithful and friendly person and an Oxonian who abandoned law for journalism and the editorship of the 'English Chronicle'; and her meteoric rise and sudden retirement from the literary world." (Springf'd Republican)

"Ann Radcliffe is interesting to read about and in this little book she is attractively presented in an attractive setting." C. G. Stillman
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 15 '52 490w

"The author does an admirable piece of work in that section of the book describing Mrs. Radcliffe's retirement from writing. This slender volume, though, is only a beginning." G. A. Panichas
+ Springf'd Republican p8D My 11 '52 290w

GRANT, PARKS. Music for elementary teachers. 308p $3 Appleton

780.72 School music—Instruction and study 51-13763

"A book written 'first and foremost' for the elementary-education student preparing in college for the career of grade-school classroom teacher, but teachers in service, as well as administrative officials, may also use the book to advantage." School & Society

"The book before us, written by a man with wide experience in music and education, presents essential material in a logical, cogent manner. The compilation of a manual of this nature is basically an organizational task calling for judicious editorial skill. Mr. Grant meets these demands well." W. E. Nallin
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:412 Je '52 350w

School & Society 74:255 O 20 '51 20w

GRANT, ULYSSES SIMPSON. Personal memoirs; ed. with notes and an introd. by E. B. Long. 608p il maps $6 World pub.

B or 92 Grant, Ulysses Simpson. U.S.—History—Civil war 52-5191

"An attractive one-volume edition of General Grant's life through the Civil War. Editing covers correction of errors in figures, dates, and names or indication that other sources vary; new maps are added." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 48:341 Je 15 '52

"If there is a classic among the many volumes written by and about battle leaders of the Civil war, Grant's 'Memoirs' lays first claim to being that work. . . Even in comparison with Winston Churchill, Grant gains by his intimate contact with many battlefields more than he loses by reason of the global sweep of Churchill's sense of destiny, and what he lacks of Churchill's flair for memorable rhetoric he more than makes up by cold analysis." R. P. Basler

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 27 '52 270w

Kirkus 20:246 Ap 1 '52 170w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 22 '52 50w

"The whole style of his memoirs was cold, forceful and clear as a military command. Grant himself had suffered in Army quarrels, and he tells the facts of several cases as he knew them, without rancor and without apparent bias. Yet such restraint was contrary to Grant's nature, for in life he could use strong language and call men names." Jay Monaghan
+ N Y Times p3 Je 15 '52 1150w

Reviewed by Alfred Kay

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 8 '52 1100w

"Grant has a style which is reminiscent of Churchill's; here we find the sonorous, amiable periods suddenly punctuated by a wry crack. Perhaps this is accounted for by the similarity of the two careers, since both greatly gifted men had the experience, in the prime of life, of being put on the shelf—presumably forever." P. R.

+ Sat R 35:48 My 24 '52 550w

GRANVILLE, JOSEPH ENSIGN. Everybody's guide to stamp investment. 240p $2.95 Hermitage

333.22 Postage stamps 52-9401

"Mr. Granville, editor of the Philatelic Investment Letter, believes that a bull market in stamps is surer than one in stocks, and presents a carefully worked-out plan of buying and selling geared to modest pocketbooks." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 48:290 My 15 '52

Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Ap 27 '52 100w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1199 Jl '52 70w

Springf'd Republican p7D My 18 '52 110w

GRANVILLE, WILFRED. Theater dictionary; British and American terms in the drama, opera, and ballet. 227p $5 Philosophical lib.

792.03 Theater—Encyclopedias and dictionaries 52-9717

A glossary of British (and some American) terms in the drama, opera, and ballet, compiled by an English writer.

"This glossary does not claim to be completely comprehensive but its range is nevertheless great, from famous theaters and personages and on to the terms endemic to the theater, and its definitions include examples of how the word or phrase is or was used and how it gained currency in the theater. Some inside dope for the outsider and a useful adjunct for drama and playwriting groups, theatrical schools and classes."
+ Kirkus 20:273 Ap 15 '52 110w

"Too heavily weighted on the British side but nonetheless of incomparable value for the student and practical theatre worker on either side of the Atlantic. Recommended for theatre, opera and ballet collections." George Freedley

+ — Library J 77:899 My 15 '52 30w

"This poorly edited volume furnishes passable definitions of many terms used in the British theatre, but its editor is obviously most at home when he is telling old stories about touring actors. American expressions get the scantest attention." Henry Popkin
— New Repub 126:22 My 26 '52 280w

Sat R 35:32 N 8 '52 100w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 36:87 Jl '52 50w

GRAY, CURME. Murder in Millennium VI. 249p $3 Shasta pubs.

52-9746

Science-fiction novel.

Kirkus 19:687 D 1 '51 70w

"Very few 'future history' novels have been thoroughly consistent with their own premises. It is difficult to write convincingly about a human society whose mores and social values are entirely different from our own, but this one seems to have done the trick. However, even veteran science fiction readers (who can stand anything) will find it tough going and the uninitiated are unlikely to struggle past the first two pages." Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p29 F 24 '52
320w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R 35:34 Ag 2 '52 20w

Spring'd Republican p4C J1 6 '52 90w

GRAY, ELIZABETH JANET (MRS MORGAN VINING). Windows for the Crown prince. 320p il $4 Lippincott

B or 92 Akihito, crown prince of Japan. Japan—Social life and customs 52-5098

Account of the author's four years at the Imperial Court of Japan, where she was invited to teach English to the Crown Prince.

Booklist 48:273; 295 My 1 '52; My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:209 Je '52 30w

Reviewed by Edith Weigle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 11 '52
440w

Reviewed by Takashi Oka

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 15 '52 750w

"Windows for the Crown Prince is an adult publication which is sure to be read by boys and girls of high-school age, for the double reason that the author is known and loved by them already, and that the Crown Prince is a contemporary, going through the process of education—a subject of more vital interest to them than is generally understood." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 28:234 Ag '52 180w

"Mrs. Vining's writing is intimate and personal, but it is not superficial. Her lightest moments are not given to chit-chat; she sees below the surface of polite conversation." G. D. Stoddard

+ Horn Bk 28:252 Ag '52 750w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:256 Ag '52 40w

"The story is simply and directly told, with much of color and feeling for the cultural beauties of Japan, and with a changing aura as a people take hold and pull themselves out of the devastation of war to a road to peace. . . Mrs. Vining's gift for writing, evidenced in her books for young people, comes to full flowering here."

+ Kirkus 20:173 Mr 1 '52 290w

"Her rare talent for vivid word pictures of people and places gives the book great charm. Highly recommended for all libraries." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 77:789 My 1 '52 130w

"The job Mrs. Vining did in Japan has already become a part of history, though its effects still lie in the future. Meanwhile, in the fine, sensitive book she has written, the world has a preview of the kind of emperor young Akihito will be." Bradford Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 My 11 '52 900w

"'Windows For the Crown Prince' is interesting not only as the story, told without artifice, of a unique mission well accomplished, but for its picture of the contemporary Japanese." John Gunther

+ N Y Times p1 My 11 '52 1000w

"Mrs. Vining's account of how, over a four year period, she managed to let quite a few gusts of Westernized air into the royal premises, which had previously been shuttered up by protocol almost to the point of suffocation, is written quietly and with considerable discernment. When she deals with what she learned from the experience, however—the process of window-opening obviously worked both ways—the author is less successful."

+ New Yorker 28:145 My 17 '52 160w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 4 '52
650w

"The author has had the good taste not to make the usual humorous comparisons between ourselves and a people strikingly different from us. . . Her general observations scattered through the book incline to be excessively fair rather than profound." L. H. Crockett

+ Sat R 35:18 My 17 '52 700w

"Has a charming candor in its style and a gentle lack of assumption which lends the book considerable importance. Moreover, it is beautifully written and delightfully perceptive." L. S. Munn

+ Spring'd Republican p19A Je 1 '52
600w

Time 59:75 My 26 '52 900w

Wis Lib Bul 48:214 S '52

GRAY, JOHN STANLEY. Psychology in industry. 401p $5 McGraw

658.38 Psychology, Applied 51-12612

"A book about work analysis, wages and merit ratings, monotony, rest periods, music, lighting, ventilation and other things that affect worker efficiency. It is introductory to the subject, nevertheless a wide range of information is covered and hundreds of references are given to pertinent literature." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:314 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:904 My 15 '52 40w

GRAY, THOMAS. Selected letters; ed. with an introd. by Joseph Wood Krutch. (Great letters ser) 170p $3.75 Farrar, Straus

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-6980

Selections from the letters written by the author of Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard. They date from 1734 to 1771, and are to his father and mother, and to various of his college friends and colleagues. Index.

Booklist 49:11 S 1 '52

"Krutch's introductory essay is an able and sympathetic one, reminding us, if any incline to take a serious view of Gray's peculiarities, that 'few men appear sane when their lives are well documented.' But it is unfortunate that there is negligible editorial matter except the general introduction." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 J1 13 '52
130w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 4 '52
270w

"A rewarding volume that will be welcomed by scholars of the period."

+ Kirkus 20:271 Ap 15 '52 190w

"Offers a fine selection of memorable letters by Thomas Gray, a superb poet who wrote but little, and a semi-recluse whose contacts with the world have always been subjects for speculation." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:889 My 15 '52 130w

Reviewed by Willard Thorp

New Repub 127:18 S 15 '52 1200w

"For the volume under review Professor Krutch has decanted a few less than one hundred letters from the noble edition that was begun by Paget Toynbee and completed after his death by Leonard Whibley. . . This volume, however, is considerably shorter than its predecessors in the Great Letters Series, and its editorial apparatus has been skimmed unduly. Those who meet Gray the letter-writer for the first time in its pages will have reason to be grateful for it, but many readers will be dismayed at coming so quickly to the end of such entrancing reading." George Genzmer

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 J1 20 '52 750w

"It is at least arguable whether 'great' is the right word for the cautious effusions, the arch complaints, and the somewhat delicate enthusiasms with which the low-keyed author of 'Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard' peppered his mother, Horace Walpole, and a few others during his long and largely uneventful life. They are, however, immensely readable, and provide, as Gray's several biographers, from William Mason to Lord David Cecil, have found, a remarkably self-conscious self-portrait of a most remarkable man. A delightful book."

GRAY, THOMAS—Continued

+ New Yorker 28:76 Ag 9 '52 70w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R 35:27 Ag 2 '52 300w

"Editor Krutch considers Gray's letters 'deservedly among the most famous which have come down to us'; but this is strictly a scholar's opinion. On the few occasions when Gray kicked up his heels his letters brightened, but for the most part they reflect exactly the noiseless tenor of his studious way."

Time 60:80 J1 7 '52 460w

GREAT books of the western world; Encyclopedia Britannica, Inc. in collaboration with the University of Chicago [Robert Maynard Hutchins, ed. in chief]. 54v il maps $249.50; lea $750 Encyclopaedia britannica

808 Literature—Collections 52-2133

"54 volumes including the two-volume Synopticon, or index of ideas (2,428 pages), with specific references to tens of thousands of passages in the classics bearing on the intricate subdivisions of the great ideas. Here are the books, by more than 70 authors from Homer to Freud, which, in the judgment of the editors, constitute the backbone of the intellectual history of Western civilization, or which, to use a different figure, have been the most significant contributions to the 'great conversation' that has been going on ever since men began to think and talk about those persistent questions which engage the attention of reflective beings." Christian Century

"Many of these are very sizable volumes: some are wholly unavailable anywhere else, and a pair of them, The Synopticon edited by Mr. Mortimer Adler, are new, unique, and invaluable. . . . The present set of books is clearly intended for the laity and not for scholars, who probably own a good half of them already and are too busy to read or discuss anything so large and unspecialized and ancient as a great book. The new possessors of this set will in many cases want to join or form a discussion group of their own. But they are also given in the volumes the means of individual study and reflection." Jacques Barzun

Atlantic 190:79 D '52 2650w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 14 '52 400w

"Any way you take it, this is an immensely rich body of literature for one who reads for enlightenment rather than merely for amusement. . . . The whole project—great books course, the 54 volumes of Great Books of the Western World, and the plan for independent systematic reading in them—is the most original and most valuable contribution to the liberal education of adults that our time has seen." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:751 Je 25 '52 1800w

"The tremendous preponderance of references to Thomas Aquinas (especially when measured by pages) and the complete absence of the recognized Protestant theologians seems to me clearly inconsistent with the statement (Vol. I, p. xx) that 'the books could not have been chosen with any dogma or even with any point of view in mind.' Obviously this criticism applies to only a small fraction, though an important one, of the total work. That point out of the way, I can return to the mood of enthusiasm for this great enterprise, and of admiration and gratitude for the zeal and competence with which it has been carried through." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:1127 O 1 '52 1300w

"Here, in English, and to the extent that one set of books can put it here, is the thought and imagination of Europe, that blazing peninsula from which most of the light in our minds has come. If Europe should darken and go out, this piece of it, this indispensable piece, the very heart itself, somehow remains—in cold print, for the thought and the imagination, of surviving men to rekindle as they may." Mark Van Doren

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 14 '52 1550w

"Taken all together, they are a noble monument to the power of the human mind. They are a remarkable expression of the will-power and learning possessed by their editors. They are a new and valuable proof of the high level of contemporary American culture, worthy to be set beside our thronged symphony concerts, our uncomfortably but encouragingly crowded art-exhibitions, and other activities which are the reverse of 'U. S. materialism.'" Gilbert Highet

+ N Y Times p1 S 14 '52 2200w

"The selection for all its scholastic whimsicality, is the most successful aspect of the enterprise. Having caught your goose, you must cook it. But the editors are indifferent cooks. They have failed to overcome the two greatest barriers to a modern reader's understanding and enjoyment of the Great Books—that their authors were largely foreigners in both place and time." Dwight Macdonald

+ New Yorker 28:171 N 29 '52 4500w

GREBLER, LEO. Housing market behavior in a declining area; long-term changes in inventory and utilization of housing on New York's Lower East Side. 265p $4.50 Columbia Univ. press

331.833 Housing 52-1322

"A publication of the Institute for Urban Land Use and Housing, Columbia University, first in a projected series of studies of urban real estate markets, designed to lead toward a solution as to the kinds of private or public policies that will deal most effectively and beneficially with the problems of declining residential areas and their redevelopment. The book consists of a large body of data arranged and discussed to indicate trends and obstacles to any easy solution, with a view to further and deeper study." Library J

"This book poses many interesting questions and gives many interesting answers, some established, some debatable, but the whole area of housing is in issue today, and it is only by constructive studies of this sort that the problem can be spotlighted and clarified." Charles Abrams

+ Ann Am Acad 284:202 N '52 400w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:896 My 15 '62 70w

"A succinct scholarly study."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:274 S '52 140w

GREEFF, ADELE. Love's argument; foreword by Mark Van Doren. 43p $2 Macmillan

811 52-6221

A first book of poems by an American writer who has studied poetry under Mark Van Doren.

"A witty turn of mind and a crystalline phrasing characterize this group of brief, skillful poems."

+ Kirkus 19:673 N 15 '51 130w

"'Love's Argument' contains a number of lyrics which show an exquisite sense of pauses, metrical variation, the quality and quantity of vowels; and the perceptions on which this skill is employed are never commonplace. 'Things Are on the Move' and 'Not Yet the World' are perfect in their way. 'Domestication' expertly wrought and affecting. Miss Greeff's sonnets and some of her longer discursive pieces I find less rewarding." Francis Golfing

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 8 '52 220w

"Mrs. Greeff's way with poetic forms seems rather arbitrary, for she neither devises forms of her own nor follows strictly the older forms she employs. Her best work shows a certain originality of conception and expression; but she as often imitates with indifferent results, Shakespeare and the poets of the Silver Age." Milton Crane

N Y Times p18 F 17 '52 50w

GREEN, ABEL, ed. Spice of Variety. See Variety (periodical)

GREEN, ADWIN WIGFALL. Sir Francis Bacon; his life and works. 296p $4 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Bacon, Francis, viscount St Albans 52-131

A handbook to Sir Francis Bacon, philosopher, lawyer, and statesman, who held many legal offices under James I. Bibliography. Index.

"The discussion of Bacon's works, particularly his chefs-d'oeuvre—'Novum Organum,' 'The Advancement of Learning,' and 'The New Atlantis'—are clear and exciting, and the author wastes no time hashing over the theory that Bacon wrote the plays of William Shakespeare. Only the index is a disappointment."

+ New Yorker 28:145 My 24 '52 170w

"On any one of a score of grounds, this new Bacon biography can be unreservedly recommended, and its inevitable effect will be to send many readers to the scores of sources cited in the bibliography." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 13 '52 290w

School & Society 75:238 Ap 12 '52 10w

GREEN, ALAN BAER. They died laughing. 241p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

52-10085

Detective story.

Booklist 48:379 J1 15 '52

Kirkus 20:203 Mr 15 '52 70w

"Pretty satisfactory fooling." James Sandoe + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 15 '52 110w

"Perhaps even television hardly deserves the satiric drubbing that it takes in this study of a TV troupe stranded in a snowbound New Hampshire hotel. For all the absurdity of incident, the characters are firmly believable and acutely overheard." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p21 Je 15 '52 60w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 1 '52 50w

Springf'd Republican p4C J1 6 '52 80w

GREEN, ARNOLD W. Henry Charles Carey, nineteenth-century sociologist. 218p $4 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Carey, Henry Charles 51-6931

"This work is a critical appraisal of Carey the man, his sociological theories, his activities, and to a limited extent of his 'school.' It is made both in the light of the conditions and tendencies of the second and third quarters of the nineteenth century and with respect to the sociological significance and validity of his ideas and actions. . . . Green's substantial work rests not only upon Carey's own books and the biographical materials about him, but also upon an almost complete collection of Carey's pamphlets, and a sizeable array of newspaper materials, documents, and correspondence available to one working in Carey's beloved home city, Philadelphia." Am Soc R

"This is a valuable contribution to the sociology of knowledge and to the history of American social thought." J. O. Hertzler

+ Am Soc R 17:126 F '52 290w

"It will be of value to those interested in the history of social science to have this competent and compact account of Carey's life, with an analysis of his work, available. Apart from some difficulty in ascertaining, on a rapid reading at Green's first chapter which is primarily biographical, which passages refer to him and which ones to his only slightly less distinguished father, Mathew Carey, I find nothing to criticize in this book." F. N. House

+ Ann Am Acad 279:210 Ja '52 260w

"Unfortunately, the author lingers too long on discussions that belong to an era when men debated vehemently over the correct boundary lines of the various disciplines." Joseph Dorfman

J Pol Econ 60:366 Ag '52 350w

GREEN, HENRY pseud. of HENRY VINCENT YORKE. Doting. 248p $3 Viking

52-9321

"The newest object of Henry Green's pen is middle-aged love. When 'happily married' Arthur Middleton gets involved with a friend's 18-year-old daughter, he starts off a series of family philanderings. All this to the boredom of the Middleton son and the advantage of the 18-year-old's confidante." Library J

"There is possibly no novelist in business who punctures human pretensions quite so subtly as Henry Green, or who does so with such affectionate tolerance. In a year whose showing, in fiction, has been exceptionally poor to date, Doting is something to be thankful for. It is, however, certainly one of Green's lesser novels; and the author's wonderfully sly humor is a bit tarnished by the book's over-all tone of somewhat shame-faced and distinctly ineffective middle-aged lechery." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 189:83 Je '52 500w

Booklist 48:205; 281 Mr 1 '52; My 1 '52

"Continuously enchanting [novel]." + Bookmark 11:184 My '52 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:315 J1 '52 190w

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 18 '52 280w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 8 '52 260w

"The whole thing is just a bit too facile, and the facility has often an air of existing for its own sake; as if Green is perhaps as much interested in the neat accomplishment of clever dialogue as in what the dialogue does." F. X. Duggan

Commonweal 56:151 My 16 '52 650w

Kirkus 20:165 Mr 1 '52 150w

"The style, made up wholly of dialogue, seems to be round in much the manner of a dog chasing his tail . . . annoying, yet having a hypnotic fascination for the reader." C. J. Roth

Library J 77:717 Ap 15 '52 80w

"Much of the story is mordantly amusing, but the comedy at times runs thin and the fact that it consists almost entirely of dialogue, lively but mannered, adds to the monotony. A sense of the pity of such worthless living creeps in, and that spoils the fun and dulls our pleasure in Mr. Green's virtuosity." H. I. A. Fausset

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 9 '52 220w

Reviewed by H. P. Lazarus

Nation 174:506 My 24 '52 550w

"With its predecessors Doting is a novel of English upper-class life in which sharp dialogue and a strange, semi-poetic narrative combine to produce what such of my betters as W. H. Auden, Christopher Isherwood and V. S. Pritchett regard in the words of the latter, as 'very important.' In this dissenting report I will submit that Doting will pass a pleasant evening if you're not equipped with television, but in spite of some subsurface ripples of above average sensibility and nonsensibility, there isn't much more here than a highly literate explication of what a pack of fools we all are." George Mayberry

New Repub 126:21 My 12 '52 750w

"Why is this brilliant, moving work a little disappointing? Not because it is slight, because it is not slight; nor because it is repetitive, since it is not more repetitive than the work of many great writers who have been preoccupied with certain themes and situations. It is a little disappointing, rather, because it is not, as publishers are fond of saying, 'an advance on his last book.' . . . With a writer of Mr. Green's quality one is entitled to expect, at this stage in his career, some new departure, the reaching of some new level. Mr. Green has made two such departures, such advances, already; in Living and in Loving, and the time has come for a third. When it comes it will, I believe, be shown forth, among other ways, in a cleaning up of Mr. Green's style, which for all its subtlety, its sinuous flexibility, its poetry and wit, is marred by turns of phrase which have become mechanical." J. D. Scott

GREEN, HENRY—Continued

+ — New Statesman & Nation 43:564 My 10 '52 800w

"Altogether 'Doting' will please those who have enjoyed the author's earlier stories, though it may not win him many new adherents. Catering as it does to the intellectual carriage trade, to the amused titter rather than to the hearty guffaw, it is first-class of its kind—the more certainly perhaps because nothing else being written today is of its kind." James Hilton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 11 '52 550w

"In his first new novel in more than two years, Henry Green tells simply and wonderfully a tale of middle-aged dalliance set against the London of 1949. A highly skilled and wittily penetrating comedy of manners, it will be called, the author notes slyly, 'decadent but it is not. In fact, in fifteen years' time it will be thought quite soppy.' Soppy it is not, and if it is decadent its decadence is civilized, the antithesis of the primitive, as typified, for example, in the aimless violence of the 'average' American novel." John Nerber

+ N Y Times p5 My 11 '52 440w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Yorker 28:137 My 17 '52 1500w

"This is not one of Henry Green's best novels, but it is typical of his manner. It is written almost entirely in dialogue, seemingly inconsequential talk, but the kind that builds up character. No one writing today has a more alert ear for the casual speech of ordinary people and no one knows how to polish this small coin of speech to a brighter glow." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Jl 20 '52 290w

"Though there is nothing in the lives of these people to linger in a reader's memory, before the final curtain he will have watched some amusing social squirming and listened to some empty and very lifelike talk." Walter Havighurst

Sat R 35:18 My 10 '52 440w

Reviewed by Tangye Lean

Spec 188:590 My 2 '52 220w

"Author Green has a famous ear for dialogue. In some of his earlier books, notably in Loving and Concluding, that ear was tuned to the inner music of human personality. In Doting it picks up little more than some pretty tinkles, and a fair amount of surface scratch."

Time 59:110 My 12 '52 380w

"Doting is not a failure. It has some of the best moments of comedy Mr. Green has yet written. It is as hard as a diamond all through. And if much of the conversation is in essence trivial, it is invested with a depth of feeling and a romantic melancholy that suggest, not far behind the trite remarks, the deeper exchanges which are made unspoken, between men and women. Certainly Doting is a light book, and at times, in spite of its penetrating handling of the way in which men and women approach one another sharply frivolous."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p309 My 9 '52 600w

GREEN, MARTYN. Here's a how-de-do; my life in Gilbert and Sullivan. 283p il $3.75 Norton

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-12462

Autobiography of the well-known Gilbert and Sullivan performer. He gives an account of his youth, his war experiences, and covers his professional experiences up to the present. Index.

Bookmark 12:53 D '52 20w

"It was a lucky day for Gilbert and Sullivan lovers the world over when Martyn Green decided in the words of his favorite Jack Point that 'he had a song to sing. O!' This the former principal comedian of the D'Oyly Carte Opera Company has done with great sincerity and charm in the present book." C. C. Craigie

+ Cath World 176:155 N '52 250w

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 26 '52 90w

"The chapters of 'How-de-do,' to be plain about them, are pure shop. They represent the talk of one member of a players' club to another; the other being the reader, treated as brother and as associate in the theater. The relation is pleasant, too, and one to make the associate gape and marvel at such inside, confidential information. Mr. Green leaves criticism to critics, and so proves that critics, after all, have their place." W. P. Tryon

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 O 9 '52 230w

+ Kirkus 20:486 Ag 1 '52 130w

"Light reading." C. K. Miller

Library J 77:1512 S 15 '52 40w

"The writing seems at times a bit self-conscious and even strained, though the actor's feeling for humor and sense of the dramatic are continually in evidence. One could hardly expect, after all, that a Martyn Green would write as deftly as he acts and sings. But if he shows no Gilbertian sparkle he does, as he himself recognizes, show something else: a Gilbertian bitterness, and one which must have been building up for many years. Here, indeed, is a how-de-do." William Lichtenwanger

Music Lib Assn Notes 10:109 D '52 230w

"A simple, modest, and not too eventful book of reminiscences."

+ Nation 175:453 N 15 '52 190w

"Apparently Mr. Green has felt that his breaking off of an established career, and his decision to fend for himself in middle-life, calls for some kind of summary and some kind of explanation. Unhappily, the summary of things past is so sketchily written as to read like an indifferently kept diary, and the explanation, which he seems to promise us throughout the book, is not forthcoming at all." Walter Kerr

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 28 '52 800w

Reviewed by Lewis Funke

N Y Times p49 N 23 '52 330w

"The G and S enthusiasts will read this from cover to cover. They'll put it down, moreover, liking Martyn Green even better than they did before. In this kind of book, that is one of the tests." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 S 26 '52 650w

Reviewed by Newman Levy

+ Sat R 35:36 O 25 '52 650w

GREENBERG, LOUIS. Jews in Russia; v2, The struggle for emancipation, 1881-1917; ed. by Mark Wischnitzer. 213p $4 Yale univ. press 296 Jews in Russia (A44-2218)

"Volume I of this two-volume work, published in 1944 [Book Review Digest 1945], brought the history of the Jews' struggle against discrimination in Russia up to 1881. The increasing restrictions, persecutions, and pogroms of the next 37 years are examined in the present volume, together with the reactions of the Jewish community. Rabbi Greenberg traces the rise of Zionism in Russia and of other movements that originated among the Jews proposing varying solutions for their problems." Publisher's note

"The first draft of this second volume (1881-1917) had been written before the author's death left the work in the hands of Dr. Mark Wischnitzer for completion and editing. Greenberg's earlier work had been done under the guidance of Prof. Vernadsky, whose many-volumed History of Russia is still in process of publication. The use of rigorous historical methods in the present work may therefore be considered as guaranteed." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:312 Mr 12 '52 200w

"Rabbi Louis Greenberg died without completing this book and it greatly lacks a chapter to complete the picture by summing up the inestimable contribution which the Jews of Russia have brought to the Israel of to-day. As it stands it is learned without being exhaustive, arid, impersonal and just a shade provincial."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p488 J1 25 '52 700w

"Imbued with sympathy and detachment, this study has a lasting value for the student of Jewish life and of Eastern European history."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:157 Je '52 220w
(Review of v 1-2)

GREENBERG, MARTIN, comp. Five science fiction novels, by Norvell W. Page [and others]. 382p $3.50 Gnome press

52-9500

Contents: But without horns, by N. W. Page; Destiny times three, by Fritz Leiber; Crisis in Utopia, by N. L. Knight; The chronicler, by A. E. van Vogt; The crucible of power, by Jack Williamson.

Booklist 48:361 J1 1 '52

Kirkus 20:168 Mr 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by H. H. Holmes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J1 27 '52 160w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport

N Y Times p16 My 11 '52 450w

"The gross inadequacies of this book are the more surprising because Greenberg has edited some of the finest anthologies in the field. One cannot help wondering if perhaps he was so busy compiling that he had no time to read the stories themselves." Don Fabun
— San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 15 '52 400w

GREENBERG, MARTIN, ed. Travelers of space; introd. by Willy Ley; il. by Edd Cartier; special feature: science fiction dictionary; introd. by Samuel Anthony Peeples; special story for il. by David Kyle. (Adventures in science fiction ser) 400p $3.95 Gnome press

Short stories—Collections 52-6494

"14 shorts, one article, illustrations about life on other planets than this." Sat R

Kirkus 19:687 D 1 '51 110w

"Two stories by Frederic Brown and H. B. Fyfe are blithely amusing, and one by Hal Clement is an admirably detailed and intelligent study in alien psychology; the rest hardly deserved their original magazine appearance, let alone hard-cover preservation." H. H. Holmes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 3 '52 160w

"The Cartier portraits of extra-terrestrial monsters are up to his usual high standard, but the text that accompanies them is written in the style of a third-grade reader." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 F 24 '52 220w

"Good picture of other worlds." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R 35:44 My 24 '52 20w

GREENBERG, MICHAEL. British trade and the opening of China, 1800-42. 238p $4 Cambridge

382 Great Britain—Commerce—China, China—Commerce—Great Britain [A52-9218]

"This study gives an account of the activities of the British merchants in China in the crucial years before the Treaty of Nanking (1842), which transformed the relations between the Celestial Empire and the Western 'barbarians' and placed them upon a footing that was to last for a hundred years. . . . Our meagre knowledge of these private merchants, gleaned from travellers' tales and odd memoirs, could only be supplemented by information derived from economic documents, the records of the actual firms concerned. The discovery in a Hongkong godown of the old papers of Jardine Matheson & Co., the only firm of 'pre-treaty days' to survive, makes possible the following account." (Author's pref) Bibliography, Index.

"The work is well organized, carefully documented and interestingly written. Although it treats the Chinese side of the trade only superficially, it contributes substantially to our knowledge and understanding of the British side." Knight Biggerstaff

+ Am Econ R 42:625 S '52 350w

"Mr. Greenberg's account is extremely valuable, and so made compressed that one could wish it were longer."

+ Manchester Guardian p6 Ap 4 '52 130w

Reviewed by Aylmer Vallance

New Statesman & Nation 43:253 Mr 1 '52 700w

"In this book, Mr. Greenberg has digested and made available the rich materials of the Jardine Matheson business papers. The discovery of these manuscripts in a Hong Kong godown and their later transfer to Cambridge University Library make possible for the first time a detailed account of any 'private English' firm of the pre-treaty days. Fortunately, this sole remaining file is that of the largest and most influential private English company trading into China down to 1842." Earl Swisher
+ Pacific Affairs 25:415 D '52 500w

GREENBERG, SYLVIA S., and RASKIN, EDITH L. Home-made zoo; with diagrams by Joseph Raskin and William Lubin. 256p $3 McKay

636 Pets

52-9322

Two teachers have written this handbook on the care, feeding, and housing of small pets. Includes hamsters, rabbits, mice, guinea pigs, birds, turtles, snakes, salamanders, frogs and tropical fish. Diagrams of cages, etc. Index.

Booklist 48:301 My 15 '52

"A fine book for home, school or camp."

J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:245 Ag '52 130w

Kirkus 20:281 My 1 '52 160w

"Excellent index. Highly recommended for all collections." V. K. Fitch

+ Library J 77:911 My 15 '52 100w

"If I were 12, I'd ask for this for my birthday. Teachers will find it useful too." G. O. Blough

+ N Y Times p27 Je 8 '52 60w

"The text is clear and the line-drawings helpful." A. K.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 4 '52 80w

"The text makes the entire process of developing and sustaining a successful home zoo a very pleasant and profitable one. It is hard to resist the enthusiasm and the expert attitude of the two compilers."

+ Sat R 35:67 N 15 '52 70w

GREENBIE, SYDNEY, and GREENBIE, MARJORIE LATTI (BARSTOW). Anna Ella Carroll and Abraham Lincoln. 539p il $6 Univ. of Tampa press, Tampa 6, Fla.

B or 92 Carroll, Anna Ella. Lincoln, Abraham

"The life story of Anna Ella Carroll confident and adviser to Lincoln has been told with unrestrained enthusiasm by Mr. and Mrs. Greenbie." Library J

"What the Greenbies have done in their partisan zeal is to inflate a life-sized figure to many times life-size. Yet beneath their fictionalized manner and their perhaps understandable difficulties in check-reining their enthusiasm, the authors have done a service in restoring the historical balance and bringing to light an undeservedly neglected figure." Francis Russell

GREENBIE, SYDNEY—Continued

Christian Science Monitor p7 J1 24 '52
550w

"Students of the Civil War period will be grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Greenbie for their devoted work on Miss Carroll and it is to be hoped that one of these students may some day study her life with a greater degree of detachment and objectivity. For larger historical collections," Herbert Cahoon

Library J 77:793 My 1 '52 110w

"These are rather extravagant claims and the evidence offered is not sufficient to support them. Even where documents are offered they do not always warrant the interpretation given. The book is filled with conversations that are imagined and with details of matters that could not possibly be known. . . . By claiming too much the authors have injured rather than helped the reputation of a good lady who may have been somewhat neglected by historians." Avery Craven

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 O 26 '52
380w

GREENE, GRAHAM. Lost childhood, and other essays. 191p $3.50 Viking

820.4 English literature—History and criticism 52-6427

A collection of the author's essays on literary criticism. Some of the essays, notably the title essay, are autobiographical. Partial contents: Henry James; the private universe; Henry James; the religious aspect; The plays of Henry James; The young Dickens; Fielding and Sterne; Francois Mauriac; Walter De La Mare's short stories; Ford Madox Ford; The last Buchan; Beatrix Potter; Francis Parkman; Samuel Butler; Eric Gill; Herbert Read.

"A collection of essays—mostly literary criticism and literary portraits. In some cases the subjects are of specialized interest, but in most cases it makes little difference whether the subject is specialized or not—what this book offers us is Graham Greene: his roving thought; his fierce integrity; his obsession with the idea of Evil; and, not least, his superb command of English. The most notable feature is, from the literary standpoint, the five pieces on Henry James."

+ Atlantic 189:85 Mr '52 130w

Booklist 48:182 F 1 '52

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 17 '52
270w

Reviewed by J. W. Simons

Commonweal 56:74 Ap 25 '52 3200w

Kirkus 19:694 D 1 '51 210w

"These are fine contemporary essays for all libraries." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:141 Ja 15 '52 130w

"Rather many of Graham Greene's essays read a little like the work of a brilliant lawyer who is for some reason happier prosecuting, and getting a conviction, than defending the falsely accused. But there is at least one important qualification to this: Roman Catholics are to have the benefit of almost any doubt. . . . However, though Mr. Greene's essays are not always good-tempered they are consistently spirited and provocative." P. B.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 20 '51
170w

"As one who gains little comfort from Graham Greene's opinions and looks with skepticism upon his recent elevation to the rank of Living Master, I have been surprised and pleased to find this book a fascinating performance, far more so than his fiction." Irving Howe

+ New Repub 126:19 Mr 17 '52 1150w

"The great creative writer is never likely to be the perfect critic, whom we trust to take everything into account. . . . Mr. Greene is a great novelist who can sting and stimulate us beyond the power of the cool and judicious critic, the connoisseur of form and texture. And if he never says the last word on an author it is because he is, rightly, too much taken up with grinding his own axe." J. A. Smith

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:428 Ap
14 '51 950w

"Excellent reading and Mr. Greene's critical opinions would be interesting even if he had written nothing else." Gouverneur Paulding

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 17
'52 600w

"Greene reveals himself to be a penetrating critic. Most developed are the opening essays on Henry James, where Greene analyzes what he considers the dominant fantasy behind the writings of James: 'sense of evil religious in its intensity.' Some of these pages will take their place in the best Jamesian criticism, especially those on James' relationship with Catholicism and his treatment of supernatural evil. The essay on 'The Young Dickens' is a further example of Greene's critical power of fixing on a principal aspect of a literary work." Wallace Fowlie

+ N Y Times p1 F 17 '52 1150w

New Yorker 27:99 Ja 26 '52 200w

Reviewed by H. C. Webster

Sat R 35:28 F 16 '52 500w

Reviewed by Simon Nowell-Smith

Spec 185:420 Mr 30 '51 600w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springfield Republican p10D Je 22 '52
480w

"It has seemed worth while to concentrate on the pattern and vision revealed by these brilliant, blinkered lantern gleams rather than to describe the individual studies in detail. But it must be understood that these constantly please the reader with wit, stimulate with imagination, move him to admiration by their original thinking, and by the excellence of their writing. The dramas that their author discovers or constructs about his subjects have the vivid plausibility of nightmares; and, since the truth about mankind may be called, if we like, a nightmare shot with light, they often seem, as well as exciting, true."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p208 Ap 6 '51
1300w

Reviewed by Harry Levin

Yale R n s 41:616 summer '52 390w

GREENE, IRVING, and others. Make music live; handbook of quality home sound reproduction. 256p il $4.50 Metcalf

789.91 [681.843] Sound—Recording and re-production 52-678

"The installation of good sound recording instruments is never a cheap operation but this book demonstrates methods of lowering costs and hearing music under superior conditions. Covers record players, tuners, amplifiers, loud speakers, cabinet construction, antennas, preparation of the room, location of equipment, and myriad other details. Should find heavy library usage." Booklist

Booklist 48:260 Ap 15 '52

"The readable style presents facts in a manner the layman can grasp. The book is a necessity for any library alive to audio developments of recent years." P. L. Miller

+ Library J 77:1077 Je 15 '52 170w

"The absence of names in Make Music Live reduces the value of the book to the prospective purchaser of equipment. . . . In spite of this one major defect, Make Music Live is a worthwhile book. It will be the first book in many a high fidelity enthusiast's book shelf, not only because it is a first-book-published but because it contains many pages of helpful information." Charles Fowler

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:610 S '52
450w

Reviewed by B. H. Haggin

Nation 175:58 J1 19 '52 100w

"As one whose interest in the field of recorded music got its start in 1932 with the assembly of a homebuilt playback system, and who has continued to enjoy his listening in this same fashion (albeit with somewhat more refined equipment), I felt a real thrill of sympathy and gratitude while going through the pages of 'Make Music Live.' . . [The book] is to my way of thinking an excellent basic guide." David Hall

+ Sat R 35:19 Ap 26 '52 800w

GREENE, ROBERT STERN. Television writing; theory and technique; foreword by Robert Montgomery. 276p $3.75 Harper

808.22 [029.6] Television authorship 51-11919

"The aim of this book is to supply the writer with those principles he must know in order to write for television. . . It is strictly a book on writing; problems of television production are discussed only when they directly affect the writer." (Pref) Contents: The basic technique of the camera; The script format; Visual writing; Television dialogue; Auditory perspective and sound; Music—the terminology; Structure; Adaptations; Script and analysis; Nondramatic programs. Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:193 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:155 Ap 22 30w

Kirkus 19:670 N 15 '51 140w

"Highly recommended for all collections having demands from writers in this newest of theatrical media." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:534 Mr 15 '52 30w

School and Society 75:415 Je 28 '52 30w

GREENHILL, BASIL. Merchant schooners. 2v v 1 244p il $6.75 British bk. centre

387.5 Merchant marine—Great Britain. Sailing vessels [52-7195]

"A survey of the history of the small fore and aft rigged merchant sailing ships of England and Wales in the years 1870-1940 with something of their previous history and subsequent fate." (Subtitle) A second volume will be concerned with design and management of the small sailing ship. Index.

Reviewed by F. L. Oliver

Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 16 '52 600w

Reviewed by H. A. Wooster

Library J 77:529 Mr 15 '52 40w

GREER, JAMES KIMMINS. Colonel Jack Hays; Texas frontier leader and California builder; with maps and portraits. 428p $6 Dutton

B or 92 Hays, John Coffee. Frontier and pioneer life—West 52-5314

Biography of a prominent leader of men in pioneer days in Texas, where he was a soldier, surveyor, Ranger, officer in the Mexican war, and explorer; and in California, where he was a sheriff, town developer, and gentleman ranchman.

Kirkus 20:147 F 15 '52 160w

"Colonel Jack Hays's name should be as familiar to a schoolboy as Kit Carson's or Davy Crockett's. This fine biography, excellent in its scholarship and writing will make this great frontiersman more well-known to all of us." R. H. Dillon

+ Library J 77:715 Ap 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by J. F. Dobie

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 6 '52 800w

"Excellent, well-documented biography of one of the frontier's most colorful individuals." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p12 Ap 20 '52 320w

"Mr. Greer has written the first full length study of Colonel Jack Hays, a biography that combines the raciness of a Western thriller with the careful documentation of an authentic historical record." Jane Volles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 20 '52 650w

"Professor Greer has rendered a valuable service in making the career of Colonel Jack Hays available to the public, and the nature of his work is such as to reveal that his was a labor of love." W. P. Webb

+ Sat R 35:20 Je 7 '52 700w

"Although the story is told largely through anecdote, the style tends toward the pedantic and stilted. Nevertheless, serious students of Southwestern history, especially, will find the work useful."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:234 S '52 170w

GREER, LOUISE. Browning and America. 355p il $4 Univ. of N.C. press

B or 92 Browning, Robert 52-10513

A study of the literary relations between Browning and America, based on journals, diaries, and biographies. The author, a member of the Department of English at East Carolina college, calls her work "a kind of biography, written from the American point of view." Bibliography. Index.

"Careful, thorough and informative monograph." Samuel Chew

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 14 '52 280w

"Excellent scholarly history of Browning's American reputation during the poet's lifetime." Carlos Baker

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 20 '52 400w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling

San Francisco Chronicle p8 Jl 6 '52 160w

"Louise Greer has written an odd kind of book, one that combines biographical, social, literary, and publishing history. Occasionally her writing is bumpy, when she has not melted her data smoothly. She succeeds, certainly, in illuminating much in Browning and in the cultural temper of America in his time." Robert Halsband

Sat R 35:27 O 18 '52 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p742 N 14 '52 550w

"Miss Greer has drawn upon much new material, including a collection of letters from Americans to Browning. In fullness of coverage, precision of detail, and judicious comment, her work is a model of its kind as far as it goes. Despite its title, however, her book covers the subject only to 1890."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:248 S '52 180w

GREGG, JESS. Other Elizabeth. 278p $3 Rinehart

52-5575

One Elizabeth was Baroness von Schillar, of an old Boston family. The other was Elizabeth Deveny, an intense young poet assigned the task of ghost writing the Baroness' memoirs. In her efforts to write the book the second Elizabeth falls in love with the memory of the Baroness' second husband, whose death by suicide had caused a great scandal. The experience ended in disaster for the Baroness but eventual happiness for the ghost writer.

Booklist 49:67 O 15 '52

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 12 '52 290w

Kirkus 20:568 S 1 '52 100w

"A curious tale (first novel) of ephemeral interest. Recommended for rental collections." H. R. Forbes

Library J 77:1012 Je 1 '52 80w

"The Other Elizabeth' which is Mr. Gregg's first novel, is unusual in theme and sensitive in execution. It is particularly successful in creating and maintaining suspense throughout a story that rests so largely on imagination and the actuality of events long past." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 O 26 '52 470w

Reviewed by Gertrude Buckman

N Y Times p24 O 12 '52 200w

"Mr. Gregg starts his story off on a properly romantic and sinister note, but the story is too long and there is too little flesh and blood in it to sustain the dream that is its reason for being written."

GREGG, JESS—Continued

— + New Yorker 28:152 O 11 '52 100w

"There is demonstrably a wide audience for this kind of balderdash. Its members are hereby notified of the book's availability. Others are warned." E. J. Fitzgerald

— Sat R 35:19 O 11 '52 210w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p9C N 2 '52 70w

GREGG, SIDNEY JOHN. Surface chemistry of solids. 297p il $8.50 Reinhold

541.3 Surface tension 51-13668

"An introductory survey rather than a comprehensive treatment. The treatment is compact and technical. The book will be most useful to such readers as physicists and chemists who find themselves in need of an introduction to the high points and the more important recent literature. The author is a member of the faculty of the University College of the South-West of England." N Y New Tech Bks

"The present reviewer found the book interesting, and regrets that the author did not have more space available for a more extended treatment of many topics." W. O. Milligan

Chem & Eng N 30:100 Ja 7 '52 210w

"The book is a very readable factual survey of a complex field. It is a welcome addition to the literature." G. F. Kinney

+ Chem Eng 59:336 Ja '52 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:84 N '51

GREIG, MAYSIE (JENNIFER AMES, pseud). Date with danger [Eng title: Frightened heart]. 216p $2.50 Random house

52-5153

Mystery story.

Kirkus 20:44 Ja 15 '52 90w

"The mystery plot is fairly foolish and its 'surprise' gimmicks are badly shopworn; but the opulence of life on a luxury liner and the romantic dilemmas of a ship's beautician are handled with such professional smoothness that you may be surprised to find how palatably it all slides down." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p27 Mr 23 '52 70w

"For love-story customers only." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 6 '52 50w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:47 My 3 '52 30w

GRENFELL, RUSSELL. Main fleet to Singapore. 238p il maps $3.75 Macmillan

940.545 World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations, Singapore 52-6585

"Analyzes the rise of Japan from a state of medieval feudalism to a highly industrialized world power; evaluates the importance of Singapore to the British Empire, and questions Churchill's and Roosevelt's actions leading up to its fall. Places blame on the English people for what the author terms a decline of sea sense, without which Britain cannot command the seas; concludes with an account of the Coral Sea and Midway battles." Booklist

"It is a brilliant, thought-provoking book by a British expert of interest to the expert, the amateur strategist, or the general reader, all told with vividness, accuracy, and an unusual command of language." L. P. Lovette

+ Ann Am Acad 282:172 Jl '52 380w

Booklist 48:193 F 15 '52

Reviewed by Robert Nicholas

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 F 10 '52 460w

Reviewed by F. L. Oliver

Christian Science Monitor p7 F 25 '52 650w

Current Hist 22:229 Ap '52 90w

Foreign Affairs 31:155 O '52 20w

Kirkus 19:693 D 1 '51 170w

"Captain Grenfell has the rare gift of expounding strategical questions effectively for the layman. His book is a model of naval history and, as well, a great pleasure to read."

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:162 F 9 '52 200w

"That this is a bitter book may be argued by some, that it is irresponsible, however, cannot possibly be maintained. It is an example of a first-rate intellect, the mind of an informed naval planner with an instinct for skilled use of the strands of history coming against mountains of fact with stirring and courageous impact. One hopes that a wide audience will be reached by this well written, exciting, bitter analysis." Alfred Stanford

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 27 '52 1000w

"Well known as author of 'The Bismarck Episode,' Captain Grenfell has produced another fascinating and provocative book." S. E. Morrison

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 27 '52 1200w

"Captain Grenfell takes it for granted that Roosevelt 'maneuvered' Japan into the war, and his simple, bridge-deck view of history leads him to some other highly debatable conclusions, but when it comes to describing great naval actions—a very difficult thing to do—he has few peers."

New Yorker 28:110 F 23 '52 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Mr 23 '52 470w

Springf'd Republican p8D F 17 '52 430w

"This book is highly provocative and controversial; so controversial that nothing less than another book—several more books, and then no satisfactory conclusion—could deal with the matter."

Times [London] Lit Sup p714 N 9 '51 390w

GRENSTED, LAURENCE WILLIAM. Psychology of religion. 181p $3 Oxford

201.6 Psychology, Religious 52-12536

"A discussion by a scholar who qualifies as an authority on both aspects of his subject. He considers the positions on religion held by each of the major schools of psychology, and states his own ideas on the nature of religion as an individual and a corporate matter. The outlook and treatment belong more to theology than to practical religion." Booklist

Booklist 49:82 N 1 '52

Reviewed by H. J. Simpson

Churchman 166:16 D 1 '52 120w

Hibbert J 51:88 O '52 20w

Reviewed by D. M. Emmet

Manchester Guardian p4 O 22 '52 230w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey

N Y Times p27 O 12 '52 260w

"Addressed primarily to pastors, this work, with its bibliography is a valuable short introduction to its subject." D. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 16 '52 170w

GRETCHANINOFF, ALEXANDER. My life; introd. and tr. by Nicolas Slonimsky. 1td ed 204p $4 Coleman-Ross

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

Autobiography of a Russian composer, now nearly ninety years old, who has spent many years in self-exile, in Italy, France, and the United States.

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 77:2006 N 15 '52 90w

"The translator of the book, Nicolas Slonimsky, has achieved something very rare: an essentially Russian story, largely in Russian surroundings, sounds as smooth and natural in English as anything that could have happened in England or America. This is a great feat." A. J. Swan

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 10:109 D '52 410w

"Although the book centers on Gretchaninoff's musical output, the narrative is replete with fascinating details of the Russian musical scene during the brilliant pre-revolutionary days." Vera Alexandrova

+ Sat R 35:37 O 25 '52 300w

GREW, JOSEPH CLARK. Turbulent era: a diplomatic record of forty years, 1904-1945; ed. by Walter Johnson, assisted by Nancy Harvison Hooker. 2v 1560p il $12.50 Houghton

B or 92 Diplomatic memoirs. U.S.—Foreign relations 52-5262

Extracts from Ambassador Grew's diaries and personal papers, supplemented by official dispatches and editorial comment by Professor Walter Johnson, covering the years 1904 to 1945. Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 191:84 Ja '53 600w

Booklist 49:139 D 15 '52

Reviewed by A. S. Henning

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 23 '52 450w

"A very important publication. . . Not demand reading for the layman, but virtually a concentrated course in what constitutes the making of a diplomat—for professionals."

+ Kirkus 20:625 S 15 '52 320w

"Very important work. . . Recommended."

Donald Wasson

+ Library J 77:1648 O 1 '52 200w

"In these volumes the reader will share the thrill of momentous events with one who helped to make them, but more, he will come to know a great and charming man—truly a faithful servant and ornament of his country and his time." Claude Pepper

+ New Repub 127:17 D 22 '52 1050w

"'Turbulent Era' is a most impressive contribution to the history of recent American diplomacy. It is also an immensely readable one." G. A. Craig

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 16 '52 1150w

"An engrossing and impressive book, it is the stuff that history is made of, and it will add depth and perspective to our understanding of this tragic century." R. B. Fosdick

+ N Y Times p1 N 16 '52 1400w

Reviewed by R. H. Rovere

New Yorker 28:52 Ja 3 '53 900w

"It is impossible in a brief review to do full justice to the richness of this book. Here is a great and devoted public servant giving us a very full account of his experience. Here, too, is one of the most authentic pictures we have ever had of the role of the professional diplomat, and of his relationship to the men who stand at the controls. In observing the limitations as well as the achievements of his long service, we are led to see more clearly than ever before the heavy burdens that rest upon the men who direct the professionals, upon the Secretary of State and the President of the United States." Dexter Perkins

+ Sat R 35:12 D 13 '52 650w

GREY, ZANE. Adventures in fishing; ed. with notes by Ed Zern. 263p il $5 Harper

799.1 Fishing 52-7284

From Zane Grey's eight books on fishing, now out of print, the editor has selected these stories of Grey's adventures in search of big game fish.

Booklist 49:121 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:78 Ja '53 30w

Reviewed by George Strickler

Chicago Sunday Tribune p43 D 7 '52 20w

"A good collection of the thrills and obsessions that drove Grey to dream of bigger and better and rarer opponents, of mastery over monsters and battles, not always to the death, with the giants of the sea. From tarpon in Florida, to swordfish, and salmon and steelheads, to a phantom fish in Tahiti and adventures in New Zealand, this follows a compulsive quest in lively, sometimes breathless fashion. All devout sportsmen will want to wet a line in this."

+ Kirkus 20:542 Ag 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 78:64 Ja 1 '53 30w

"The Zane Grey that emerges is an avid sportsman deeply in love with the outdoors who confessed his thrills and fears (when sharks moved in) with the candor of a small boy." Nathan Aleskovsky

+ N Y Times p55 N 9 '52 450w

"Ed Zern, a knowledgeable fishing writer himself, has pieced together a first rate collection of the Zane Grey fishing adventures from those earlier books." Jack Pegues

+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 30 '52 110w

GRIERSON, MARY. Donald Francis Tovey. 337p il $5 Oxford

B or 92 Tovey, Donald Francis 52-8084

"Even in his own lifetime Donald Francis Tovey, 'the most learned musician that ever lived,' was a mythical figure, and now, twelve years after his death, his story is as overlaid with legend and devotion as the life of some early Christian saint. One is the more grateful to Dr. Mary Grierson, the faithful associate of his Edinburgh years, for [this biography] based chiefly on his letters and the letters of those who knew him." New Statesman & Nation

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

+ Library J 77:898 My 15 '52 90w

"This biography removes any doubts we may have had to the stature of the man who counted among his friends Joachim Casals, and Schweitzer. It not only places him in proper perspective among the notable musicians of his day, but it places his writings in proper relationship to his other activities." Ralph Moritz

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:407 Je '52 650w

"A biography written by one who was personally associated with Tovey during all his twenty-six years at the University of Edinburgh. This personal involvement has resulted in inadequacies of material and faults of tone; but it isn't likely that anyone other than a devoted friend would have taken the trouble to write a biography at all; and even with its inadequacies this one gives us information which not only is interesting in itself to anyone who knows Tovey's writing and would like to know something about the man who produced it, but which also throws considerable light on the strengths of the writing and its weaknesses." B. H. Haggin

+ Nation 175:179 Ag 30 '52 950w

"A lucid and well-ordered biography." Margaret Read

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:278 Mr 8 '52 800w

"Miss Grierson studied with Tovey at Edinburgh University and was one of his professional assistants there during the last year of his life. Her book, subtitled 'a biography based on letters,' is an adoring tribute to his memory, full of chitchat, name dropping and other things that do not matter; nevertheless, it does provide some picture of what Sir Donald was like." Alfred Frankenstein

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 29 '52 480w

"Miss Grierson's book is primarily of documentary interest. But for those who like to examine the workings of the musical mind it provides an agreeably written account of the life of an extraordinarily gifted man." Winthrop Sargeant

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 30 '52 600w

Reviewed by Gerald Abraham

Spec 188:338 Mr 14 '52 950w

"In computing what [Tovey's] life meant for English music this biography is invaluable. It is of absorbing interest as a psychological document and it assuredly contains morals and warnings."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p151 F 29 '52 1100w

GRIFFIN, JOHN HOWARD. Devil rides outside. 596p $4 Smith's Inc, 1008 Electric bldg, Fort Worth, Tex.

52-9277

"First offering by new Texas publisher and first partly-autobiographical novel by blinded veteran. An almost demoniac-sex-possessed young American unbeliever, guest in a French monastery while studying Gregorian music, is contrasted with, and influenced by, the piety of the monks, especially by their Mariological teaching. His tortured moral and religious development is charted through his reactions to promiscuous sexual acts from gratification, through deepening degrees of remorse, social consciousness and final redemption." Library J

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 191:82 Ja '53 350w

"Frank treatment of sex obviously inspired by, and outdoes, Henry Miller, a norm from which deviation is considered Pharisaical self-righteousness. Limited to specialists in psychopathia sexualis or mysticism." R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1900 N 1 '52 130w

"The Devil Rides Outside' is a novel of rare, though purely spasmodic power. If its drive had been better organized, its ardors less ever-incandescent, I would look ahead with even greater interest to those six other books Mr. Griffin has on tap." Frederic Morton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 2 '52 650w

"The heart of the book is well done; it reveals a genuine talent in Mr. Griffin, and one he will no doubt practice with more skill as time proceeds. By violence and by honesty he has in this work achieved what later he will attain by craftsmanship and perception. This is a spate of self-revelation, of memory, of confession; its notions of sex and mysticism are adolescent; but scattered through it there is a good novel about a selfish young man and a possessive older woman." Thomas Sugrue

+ — N Y Times p5 O 26 '52 450w

"The author's style is turgid and clotted, but he does have a talent for graphic description."

+ — New Yorker 28:170 N 8 '52 120w

"Mr. Griffin spares his hero and his readers nothing. He stops at no frontier of good taste—and, indeed, some saltns have not—in his fusion of the sacred and the profane. . . And surely he errs when he has Father Clement violate the secrecy of the Confessional in his talks with the narrator. He errs in another way, and more importantly, when he asks us to believe in the absurd, unendurable, daily relationships of the hero and Madame Renée. . . But, despite its many faults of various kinds, this first novel has in it the power of life itself, for which faultlessness can never be a substitute in literature." B. E. Redman

+ — Sat R 35:16 N 1 '52 650w

"Though [the book] is crudely written as well as overwritten, it has some things relatively rare in U.S. letters: energy, earnestness and unashamed religious fervor."

+ — Time 60:108 N 3 '52 550w

GRIFFIS, STANTON. Lying in state. 315p il $3.75 Doubleday

B or 92 Diplomatic memoirs 52-11622

"The autobiography of a business man whose tours of duty in four embassies—Poland, Egypt, Argentina, and Spain—lay in the disastrous period from July, 1947, to February, 1952, when he retired. Ambassador Griffis' account is important as one of the first published sources of history during this period in our foreign relations." (N Y Times) No index.

Atlantic 191:87 Ja '53 60w

Booklist 49:140 D 15 '52

"His method is to state what he did and why, and let it go at that. Thruout, in fact, Griffis' answer is to smile rather than to grow angry about anything, and it is this that makes his book a consistently lively performance tho the author does not pretend to be any great shakes as a literary man." J. H. Jackson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 30 '52 600w

"The multi-careered businessman herein notes his worldly progress, and an entertaining, engaging and sometimes enlightening tour it is."

+ Kirkus 20:674 O 1 '52 180w

"Should be very popular." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1895 N 1 '52 90w

"Lying in State' is not a ponderous contribution to the history of American diplomacy. It is, however, entertaining and enlightening, with many shrewd remarks on business and world affairs mixed with some debatable matter. And, as the informal record of an exciting life, it can be enjoyed by those who have no concern for drawing morals or appraising policies."

H. W. Baehr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 23 '52 400w

"Here is the American business man as diplomat, doing his best, and not a bad best. Our country owes much to these men." A. A. Berle

+ N Y Times p3 N 23 '52 1900w

New Yorker 28:119 D 20 '52 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 20 '52 600w

GRIFFITH, CORINNE (MRS GEORGE PRESTON MARSHALL). Papa's delicate condition; il. by Katharine Bernard. 178p $2.50 Houghton

818

52-7620

Reminiscences of her childhood in Texas by a former movie star.

Booklist 48:262 Ap 15 '52

"This book was intended to be hilariously funny. It falls far short of hilarity, in the opinion of this writer, altho it has a certain effervescent quality. Perhaps the reason for its failure to amuse is that the author, instead of reminiscing from an adult level, has attempted to tell her story from the viewpoint of a 6 year old. It is difficult for any grownup to see the world clearly thru the eyes of a child that age, and Miss Griffith is no exception." L. K. Miller

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 9 '52 190w

"A fond, to fatuous, puffballing of a year in her life with father. . . That wide-eyed innocence is not quite as winsome as you might think."

Kirkus 20:27 Ja 1 '52 140w

"These are the outlines of a scenario which might have had great charm if it had been more illuminated by character. But the grown-up Corinne Griffith seems to be still lost in her five-year-old past. She sees her adored Papa without comment and her mother with the annoyance of childhood. She has not added the perspective which would have highlighted her romantic story." Anne Brooks

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Mr 16 '52 450w

Reviewed by Bernard Kalb

Sat R 35:38 My 17 '52 280w

GRIFFITH, ERNEST STACEY. Congress; its contemporary role. 193p $3.50 N.Y. univ. press 328.73 U.S. Congress 51-6209

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"Of all the contemporary books about Congress, this is the one I would rather have written. It has competence without erudition, style without flourish, statesmanship without pomposity, philosophy without presumption." T. V. Smith

+ Am Pol Sci R 46:240 Mr '52 1050w

"If Congress awarded an Oscar each year for the best book about itself, the present work would be a worthy candidate. This slim volume is a timely contribution to the voluminous literature on our national legislature." L. H. Chamberlain

+ Ann Am Acad 279:190 Ja '52 430w

"Highly readable, this book is a valuable counterpart of Edward S. Corwin's The President: Office and Powers and is certainly as provocative."

+ Columbia Law R 52:822 Je '52 150w

Foreign Affairs 30:500 Ap '52 20w

"Timely and valuable book." D. W. Brogan
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 4 '52 500w

"Dr. Griffith's book is an excellent antidote to the kind of thinking that is over-ready to write off the Congress as an aggregation of puppets passively reacting to the initiatives of pressure groups. . . Congress is a book of interpretation and of opinion rather than a descriptive report based on systematic research. The views it expresses are in many instances highly controversial, but they are entitled to respect, not only because of the cogency with which they are presented, but equally because of the author's long service as director of the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress." D. B. Truman

Pol Sci Q 67:124 Mr '52 1150w

"The book is popular, brief, fair-minded, and for the most part puts its points sharply. It makes out what is perhaps a not unshakable case for the Congress. Mr. Griffith is by no means totally uncritical of the legislators, but there is another side to the medal. This one, however, is worth showing now and again." J. C. Cairns

+ Sat R 35:41 F 16 '52 310w

"Although the significance of the book rests in its favorable re-evaluation of the broad role of Congress, its value for both the general reader and the specialist is enhanced by its explanations of many legislative practices that often puzzle the observer not intimately acquainted with the ways of Congress. Although the account is somewhat colored by the author's position as a servant of Congress, he writes with discrimination and with no little detachment, and contributes to a better-rounded understanding of the place of Congress."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:385 D '51 270w

GRIFFITH, MAXWELL. Port of call. 331p $3.50 Lippincott

51-11208

Story of the crew of an aircraft carrier, during three days in Caribbean waters and in a Cuban town; days which witnessed violence, death and riot but ended with a green crew turned into a real crew.

Reviewed by V. P. Hass

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 20 '52
420w

"A first novel which casts a cold eye on the life of the uniformed, reflects this world with authenticity, but lacks a central, cementing character to carry the story along."

Kirkus 19:644 N 1 '51 160w

"Mr. Griffith has drawn a faithful picture of Navy life, with a good deal of interesting detail about the inner workings of a carrier, and his picture of a typical, tropical shore-leave town is appallingly true." E. L. Acken

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 13 '52
440w

"This is a superior novel about Navy life, of much the same caliber as James Gould Cozens' 'Guard of Honor', which it resembles in structure and in its striving for verisimilitude. The dialogue is realistic, but not in the least overdone. The physical milieu, which must be exactly realized in this panoramic kind of story, is most powerfully conveyed. Maxwell Griffith, a 28-year-old M. I. T. graduate, is evidently that rarest of personalities, an engineer with the writer's gift." E. B. Garside

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 13 '52 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 10 '52
270w

GRIGGS, EARL LESLIE, ed. See Christophe, H., and Clarkson, T. Henry Christophe & Thomas Clarkson

GRIMBLE, SIR ARTHUR FRANCIS. We chose the islands; a six-year adventure in the Gilberts [il. by Thomas Pomfret] [Eng title: Pattern of Islands]. 340p $5 Morrow

B or 92 Gilbert islands 52-9703

"A memoir of the author's six years in the Gilbert Islands. Sir Arthur, with his bride, went out from England as a Colonial Office cadet in 1914 . . . and became a district officer and, eventually, the Resident Commissioner of all the sixteen Gilberts." New Yorker

Booklist 49:65 O 15 '52

"Mellow, charming volume."

+ Bookmark 12:30 N '52 20w

Reviewed by Mason Warner

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 5 '52
250w

Kirkus 20:441 J1 15 '52 110w

"Recommended for older young people." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1828 O 15 '52 50w

"The writer's mastery of conversational narrative makes the transition easy between fact and legend and carries the reader along on its current, so that once he has begun the book he will find it hard to stop before reaching the end, which lands him, where he began, in the august corridors of the Colonial Office." L. H.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 14 '52 250w

Reviewed by Arthur Marshall

New Statesman & Nation 44:520 N 1
'52 300w

"High jinks and sober recollection, intimate family details against the back drop of Empire make this a surprise package long to remember and to quote from. . . The heaven-conferred privilege of the Bulldog Breed to dominate doesn't irk one, the dominator in this case being a milder breed of pup with the bark of a humorous story teller and the gentle bite of a bird dog." Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 28 '52
800w

Reviewed by Walter Karig

+ N Y Times p7 O 5 '52 800w

"The author writes of this time lovingly and with an engaging humor, and paints a picture of the Colonial service at its best."

+ New Yorker 28:134 O 4 '52 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 N 30 '52
160w

"It is not often that so fascinating a combination of personal history and informal anthropology turns up as this book of Sir Arthur Grimble's. It has adventure and novelty and wit to recommend it and a captivating blitheness of spirit." Amy Loveman

+ Sat R 36:12 Ja 3 '53 600w

"As instructive as it is entertaining, this loosely-knitted book . . . reminds us once again that our Colonial system not only can but on occasion actually does throw up officials who combine the necessary high administrative gifts with the now rarer ones of a truly cultivated and reflective mind." James Pope-Hennessy

+ Spec 189:544 O 24 '52 750w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 9 '52 90w

GRIMSHAW, IVAN GEROULD. How to prepare a speech. 105p $2.50 Womans press

808.5 Public speaking 52-11392

"This book has been prepared with two groups in mind: those who are called upon to prepare club speeches, and librarians who are called upon to help with the assignment. It is especially written for the clubwoman who desires to be better than the average in speech preparation." (Pref) Tells how to gather material, write a speech, and deliver it well. List of tools for further work in speech preparation. The author is director of libraries, Beloit college.

Bookmark 12:6 O '52 20w

"An especially valuable feature of this new book is a listing of standard reference works available in many libraries, with annotations by the author explaining their contents and usefulness to speakers seeking facts and general information to round out their talks."

GRINSHAW, I. G.—Continued

R. D. Innis

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 10 '52
130w

Special Libraries 43:271 S '52 30w

GRISWOLD, GEORGE, pseud. See Dean, R. G.

GROOT, SYBREN RUURDS DE. Thermodynamics of irreversible processes. (Selected topics in modern physics, 3) 242p il $5 Interscience

536.1 Thermodynamics. Chemistry, Physical and theoretical 52-1810

"This book is the first and as yet the only text dealing with a recent development of major importance, namely, the general and systematic application of thermodynamics to irreversible processes in the neighborhood of equilibrium. This development was made possible by a principle discovered by Lars Onsager, and now known as the Onsager reciprocal relations; or more simply as the Onsager relation. Although Onsager's discovery appeared in 1931 in the Physical Review, its exploitation did not begin until 1941, and has moreover to date been carried out entirely in Continental Europe; in this country it has not yet received the attention it deserves. Thus we are fortunate in that Professor de Groot chose to write his important book in English." Am Chem Soc J

Reviewed by F. O. Koenig

Am Chem Soc J 74:2387 My 5 '52
1050w

"Important new monograph." G. F. Kinney
+ Chem Eng 58:330 O '51 450w

"This excellent treatise is to be highly recommended to the attention and careful study of physicists and chemists." F. I. MacDougall
+ J Phys & Colloid Chem 55:1577 D '51
500w

GROSSER, MAURICE RICHARD. Painter's eye. 244p il $3 Rinehart

751 Painting 51-14320

"A well-known artist offers a collection of controversial essays on many phases of painting. Illustrations. Index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:261 Ap 15 '52

Bookmark 11:57 D '51 20w

"This volume is filled with helpful information, with enlightening comparisons, with witty commentaries and aphorisms. It is a civilized discourse telling about the faults in our education, the shallowness of certain of our pursuits. The author perceives so clearly the vision of the artist, undimmed and unmarred by the noisy clamor of commercialism and exploitation." Dorothy Adlow

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 D 6 '51
320w

"In spite of his wide range, and in part because of it, The Painter's Eye will not have too wide an audience. It is not written for the professional painter, and it assumes too much knowledge and interest in the history, techniques and practice of painting to appeal to the average art appreciator, who wants to know just what a good painting is. It is rather written for the dilettante, in the best sense of the word, and will do best in libraries, especially in colleges for supplementary reading. Illustrated with 32 half tone reproductions."

+ Kirkus 19:554 S 15 '51 240w

"One of the best books on modern painting; the first time an able craftsman (artist as well as artisan) risks qualitative judgment instead of retiring behind historical categories."

+ New Repub 125:19 D 10 '51 100w

Reviewed by J. T. Flexner

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 20 '52
450w

"The approach is primarily technical but with a broad intellectual viewpoint seldom found in discussions of this kind. The author avoids, quite deliberately, analysis of art as the result of environment or its interpretation on a neo-Freudian basis. Unfortunately, his feeling that art is influenced more by technical and esthetic considerations than by background or psychological factors tends to leave the art in a vacuum." Bernard Myers

+ N Y Times p6 D 30 '51 300w

GROSSMANN, MARCUS AURELIUS. Elements of hardenability. 164p il $4.50 Am. soc. for metals

669.018 Steel—Metallurgy 52-1601

"In this useful book those aspects of hardenability and hardenability testing that can be measured quantitatively are emphasized. In the first chapter the applicable tests are described and critically evaluated. The other chapters are devoted to the metallurgical aspects. The long chapter on the effects of alloying elements includes discussions of not only the principal alloying elements such as carbon but also minor ones such as arsenic, tellurium, and zirconium. The book is addressed to men who are familiar with metallurgical terminology and have practical interests in the subject." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography.

N Y New Tech Bks 37:43 My '52

"The information to be found in this concise, yet trustworthy and readable, book is of the utmost value for the research metallurgist and graduate student; a great part of it ought to be at the fingertips of every ferrous metallurgist."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:214 Je '52 260w

GROTH, JOHN. Studio: Asia; il. by [the author]. 208p $4.95 World pub.

950 [915] Korean war, 1950—Personal narratives, American. East (Far East)—Description and travel 52-5195

The author-artist of Studio: Europe (Book Review Digest 1945) has done the same kind of book on the Korean war and the East.

Booklist 49:122 D 1 '52

"The pen sketches are typically Groth in their spontaneity, feeling, and ring of truthfulness. The recordings of a fleeting moment, an incident, or some glimpse of tragedy or joy that caught the eye, are all deftly done. The combination of text and drawings lends a mood to this book that will hold you to the end. In your mind you will, with the author, 'limp gratefully' into his New York studio, feeling as tho you had made at least some of the journey with him." Gary Sheahan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 23 '52
250w

"This is a completely fascinating book without a dull word or line to mar any one of its 208 pages. It's much too fine a book to borrow —this is one you'll want to own." Quentin Reynolds

+ N Y Times p7 D 7 '52 850w

"His commentary is brisk, sensible, and wide-awake, but it is the drawings that make the book a memorable one."

+ New Yorker 28:120 D 20 '52 130w

"Here is a close-up of a troubled region and the people caught there, done by a skillful and sympathetic genre artist." E. E.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 N 23 '52
250w

GROVE, ALVIN RUSSELL. Lure and lore of trout fishing; il. by Pearce-Bates. 318p $5 Stackpole co.

799.1 Trout fishing. Flies, Artificial 51-12913

Treats of trout fishing in America, with special emphasis on flies, fly tying, and the relation of flies to natural insects. Bibliography. Index.

"An important book, attractively illustrated with small cuts, by a scientist-angler, who combines his scientific knowledge with his love of sport. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1813 N 1 '51 60w

"In the library of the angling purist there will undoubtedly be a place for this one, but it may be heavy going for the average fisherman." Jack Pegues

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 25 '51
50w

GRUENBERG, MRS SIDONIE (MATSNER), ed. Our children today; a guide to their needs from infancy through adolescence; ed. by Sidonie Matsner Gruenberg and the staff of the Child Study Association of America; with an introd. by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. 366p $3.95 Viking

649.1 Children—Management. Child study
52-6470

"Sponsored by Child Study Association, this symposium by 26 authorities on all phases of child development synthesizes expert information and brings up-to-date, so to speak, a similar study made in 1932, Our Children. Opening with a mid-century view of America's children, this volume faces squarely the myriad problems encountered in a world undergoing profound changes almost constantly." Library J

"In evaluating this book, we must bear in mind that it is intended for parents, not experts. It is, moreover, concerned mainly with establishing values and viewpoints, rather than with providing an inventory of our accumulating knowledge regarding child development. Despite the fact that in a symposium unevenness of contribution is almost inevitable, Our Children Today achieves its objectives with uncommon success." M. F. Nimkoff

+ Am Soc R 17:523 Ag '52 270w

Booklist 48:190 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:154 Ap '52 20w

"The tone is scientific and thoughtful but at the same time practical." F. D. Heron
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 2 '52
50w

Kirkus 19:658 N 1 '51 160w

"What a pity such well-organized, concise, extremely readable information can not be made required reading for every parent. Bibliography for further reading is outstanding in completeness and timeliness. Librarians share the responsibility for getting this volume into parents' hands." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:46 Ja 1 '52 130w

"It would not be so useful a book as it is if every one who read it agreed with all of it. Its chief value to some readers may be that it will make them define for themselves just why, at some point or other, they may not agree. For the open-mindedness of the work and its broad background of experience encourage this sort of reader participation." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 16 '52 250w

"The Child Study Association has performed an invaluable service in making this synthesis of expert opinion available. Any parent who will read it with an open mind will be wiser and happier for having done so." W. H. Baker

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 F 24 '52
950w

"Hardly a book for the beginning reader on the subject, it will serve as an excellent 'refresher' for those working professionally with children and for parents who already have read widely in the field." L. E. Woodward

+ Survey 88:181 Ap '52 200w

GRUENBERG, MRS SIDONIE (MATSNER). Wonderful story of how you were born; with il. by Hildegard Woodward. 38p $2 Doubleday

612.6 Sex—Juvenile literature 52-9361

"From her years of experience in the fields of child development and parent education, Mrs. Gruenberg knows well the questions children want answered and the need parents have for guidance in handling sex education with their children. She addresses her story to children but on the inside of the paper jacket gives help to parents on how they can best make use of the book." N Y Times

Booklist 49:112 N 15 '52

"This wonderful mother and grandmother gives us a book which is the best to date for children on the subject of human birth. A must for all libraries." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 77:1906 N 1 '52 30w

"Its famous author has told the story to her own children and to ten grandchildren. . . Those who have not been satisfied with older books about bees, puppies, flowers, here will find everything." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p28 N 16 '52 70w

"All adults will feel a sincere gratitude to Mrs. Gruenberg for her excellent presentation of a topic which many find difficult to approach." Lois Palmer

+ N Y Times pt2, p42 N 16 '52 140w

+ School & Society 76:207 S 27 '52 20w

Spring'd Republican p13C D 14 '52
50w

GRUENBERG, MRS SIDONIE (MATSNER), and KRECH, HILDA SIDNEY. Many lives of modern woman; a guide to happiness in her complex role. 255p $3 Doubleday

396 Woman 52-5765

The problem of the modern woman, with her choices between study, career, marriage, or a combination of them, studied from all sides, with helpful suggestions for their solution. Index.

Reviewed by E. M. Duvall

Ann Am Acad 283:208 S '52 280w

Booklist 48:332 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Je 15 '52
200w

Reviewed by A. C. Fults

J Home Econ 44:736 N '52 320w

"Mrs. Gruenberg's name, as Director of the Child Study Association for more than 25 years, assures this of a following in homes as well as school and college study groups."

Kirkus 20:215 Mr 15 '52 200w

"Here is understanding and wise counsel, not only for women but also for girls. If more faculty advisers, guidance counselors, psychiatrists and gynecologists were aware of books of this caliber, there would be more well-adjusted females and happier marriages." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:889 My 15 '52 170w

"The Many Lives of Modern Woman' is sound, written way above the level of the usual 'how to' article, and seems the most logical analysis yet available of the development of the American woman's life pattern." Frances Keene

+ Nation 175:335 O 11 '52 550w

Reviewed by Jane Cobb

N Y Times p22 My 25 '52 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 22 '52

270w

GRUNDER, GAREL ATHEY, and LIVEZEY, WILLIAM EDMUND. Philippines and the United States. 315p il maps $4 Univ. of Okla. press

991.4 U.S.—Foreign relations—Philippine Islands. Philippine Islands—Foreign relations—U.S. Philippine Islands—History

51-6997

"The acquisition of the Philippines set the United States in a new role. Previously we had no experience in the governing of peoples outside our borders. The authors have focused their study of the United States' experiment as a colonial power; on the development of our policy of holding the islands as a trust; and on the development of the administrative machinery necessary to govern the Philippines." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"This is a competent account of the political relations between the United States and the Philippines. Its authors have used official documents such as Congressional hearings and reports, as well as the rather scanty secondary literature. . . The writing is clear and straight-forward." J. B. Condliffe

GRUNDER, G. A.—Continued

+ Ann Am Acad 279:245 Ja '52 380w
Booklist 48:98 N 15 '51

"This is a very timely study."
+ Current Hist 21:355 D '51 120w
Foreign Affairs 30:684 Jl '52 30w

"The usefulness of this admirable survey is enhanced by a comprehensive bibliography."
I. B. Powell

+ Pacific Affairs 25:419 D '52 210w

"This is a useful but not definitive study. A full understanding of American policy in the Philippines will require a treatment less limited as to sources."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:378 D '51 230w

GUARESCHI, GIOVANNI. Don Camillo and his flock; tr. by Frances Frenaye. 250p $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy

52-9359

More episodes in the lives of the Italian priest Don Camillo and his adversary the Communist Mayor Peppone. A companion volume to The Little World of Don Camillo (Book Review Digest 1950).

"I found this collection much less amusing than the original one. Still, it's pleasant light reading, and the opéra bouffe happenings reflect a very genuine aspect of Italian village politics." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 190:103 O '52 60w

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:9 O '52 20w

"Don Camillo and His Flock is no feeble sequel to the previous novel in which this redoubtable priest appears; in fact, the episodes in this book have a fierce independence of one another. Mr. Guareschi's nimble inventiveness never once fails him." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:70 O '52 350w

"It is all very amusing, mostly very gay."

Fanny Butcher
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 17 '52 300w

"The inventiveness of Guareschi is inexhaustible. Something of his amazing gift for invention is indicated by his brilliant work as a cartoonist. . . Borrowing background material from the recent flooding of the Po, Guareschi has woven concluding chapters in which his brilliant, satirical, wise, apt, stunning creative power is at its best." Mariella Gable

+ Commonweal 56:492 Ag 22 '52 450w

"Wise, humorous, delightful, these little episodes are full of compassion and humanity." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 28:341 O '52 50w

"It is a longer book than the first one; it has its unevennesses. But the same charm and humor and magic quality endow it with an individuality all its own."

+ Kirkus 20:354 Je 15 '52 250w

"Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:1192 Jl '52 30w

"Author Guareschi has a certain tendency toward coyness, and occasionally, intrusive sentimentality. But these are only temporary lapses. Don Camillo and His Flock is a lazy, rolling, simple sort of spoofing which comes as welcome antidote to the polemic which surrounds so much current 'ideological' writing." Stanley Cooperman

+ New Repub 127:22 S 15 '52 320w

Reviewed by Gouverneur Paulding
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 17 '52 500w

"The stories are set out to be as innocent as Peter Rabbit—though in this their taste may not indeed be as faultless, or their charm as great. The cards are a good deal more stacked in the Little World than in Mr. McGregor's garden. But the stories are kindly, and sometimes engaging." Eudora Welty

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 17 '52 360w

New Yorker 28:89 Ag 16 '52 30w

Reviewed by Ernest Cady

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ag 24 '52 650w

"The stories in 'Don Camillo and His Flock' are what good hot weather stories should be. Unsubtle: no sophisticated, involved arguments, but good, solid kicks in the pants; no wailing, spiraling monologues, but curt, direct." John Sommers

+ Sat R 35:14 Ag 23 '52 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p773 N 28 '52 40w

GUDERIAN, HEINZ. Panzer leader; foreword by B. H. Liddell Hart; tr. from the German by Constantine FitzGibbon. 528p il maps $7.50 Dutton

940.5343 World war, 1939-1945—Germany. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, German 52-7787

A detailed account of the building up of the German war machine by the man responsible for organization of the armored forces. Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 24 '52 450w

"As long as Guderian sticks to his last, the description and analysis of military actions, he makes a most valuable contribution to the history of World War II. Anyone who likes studying past battles while sitting comfortably in an armchair will be enthralled by the detailed and concisely written account of Guderian. But as soon as the author strays from the battlefield, he dispenses little but platitudes and starts writing in a style used in primers for elementary schools at the turn of the century." E. S. Pisko

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 19 '52 500w

Current Hist 23:271 O '52 70w

Reviewed by T. R. Phillips

New Repub 127:18 S 8 '52 1200w

"It is a book which is important, first of all, because it provides the fullest and most detailed account of the German conduct of the war which has yet appeared, one which will probably remain unequalled until General Halder's voluminous diary is published." G. A. Craig

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 10 '52 950w

"The writing is crisp, at times very personal, and has a curiously old-fashioned quality. Some of the details of how the German armored force was organized may bore the average reader, and Guderian perhaps labors Hitler's military ineffectiveness in his last years. But throughout the battle scenes there is an authentic touch. The description of the fighting in Russia as winter came in 1941 is told in brief, sharp sentences which give a strong picture of a great military machine slowly running down in the face of bitter resistance and bitter cold." Drew Middleton

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 10 '52 2000w

"The memoirs of Hitler's foremost tank expert, which contain some of the most interesting writing there has been—from that side—about the last war. . . What the General does not say about the great moral and human issues of his era is as revealing as anything ever written about the mentality of the German officer corps."

+ New Yorker 28:76 Ag 9 '52 160w

"The chief interest lies in Guderian's recital of his personal experiences with Hitler, Goering, Himmler, Ribbentrop, Rundstedt, Todt, and the other main actors, particularly in the period when the walls are falling. All of these episodes are well told, with a due weighting of their dramatic values and a marked skill in character analysis. But there is, nonetheless, the arresting moral that a man may be ever so highly placed and yet know very little of what makes the wheels run. Much of his personal trouble and of the mistakes in policy which Guderian blames on General Halder were in fact the fault of General von Brauchitsch, as study of the German records makes clear." S. L. A. Marshall

+ Sat R 35:17 S 6 '52 900w

Reviewed by Chester Wilmot
Spec 188:83 Ja 18 '52 1200w

Reviewed by B. F. King
Springf'd Republican p26A S 21 '52
600w

Time 60:38 Ag 18 '52 400w

"The book ends with a survey of the leading personalities of the Third Reich and Guderian's portraits of Hitler and Himmler are most interesting, but the value of his book lies mainly in his narrative of his experiences, achievements and ordeals, and it is greatly enhanced by his frankness."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p380 Je 6 '52
1250w

GUMPERT, MARTIN. You and your doctor; a guide to modern medicine, showing you how to be a good doctor's good patient. 258p $3 Bobbs

610 Medicine—Practice. Physicians 52-10273

A discussion of the relationship between doctor and patient. The author, a New York city physician, presents ten rules of behavior for the patient. Index.

Booklist 49:28 S 15 '52

Reviewed by T. R. Van Dellen, M.D.
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 12 '52
120w

"A competent and thoughtful work illustrating Dr. Gumpert's own phrase: 'the feeling of primitive sympathy for somebody else is usually a mutual agreement.'" A. H. Weiler

+ N Y Times p39 S 28 '52 200w

"With some specific case-histories as examples, it provides sound counsel for almost any lay reader. It may well do exactly what Dr. Gumpert wants it to do; by helping people become better patients' it may help them enjoy better health. And if it helps doctors at all, that is certainly all to the good." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 15 '52
550w

GUNNING, ROBERT. Technique of clear writing. 289p $3.50 McGraw

808 English language—Composition and exercises 51-13126

"A readability expert, currently much in demand by business corporations, offers 10 principles to help people write more clearly and effectively. These principles stress brevity, simplicity, familiarity, action, variety, colloquialism, and expression rather than impression. Includes the Gunning fog index to test the degree of obscurity in writing. Appendixes include a readability analysis of the Gettysburg Address, the Dale list of easy words, and a list of short words for long ones." Booklist

Booklist 48:293 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:130 Mr '52 20w

GUNTHER, JOHN. Eisenhower, the man and the symbol. 180p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Eisenhower, Dwight David 52-5442

This work on Eisenhower was originally commissioned by the editor of Look. In a note, however, the author says: "I have greatly extended and revised what I wrote for Look, and the chapters on Eisenhower's career and his job in Europe are totally new and have not appeared in print before. The Look articles only comprise about a fifth of the material that follows."

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 189:82 Mr '52 550w

Booklist 48:195 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:130 Mr '52 40w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 F 3 '52
360w

"In this readable and well-informed book John Gunther tells us of a man about whom many Americans—and others—want to know as much as possible." E. D. Canham

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 28 '52
600w

"John Gunther's latest guided tour through one of the great facts of our time is as timely, anecdote-packed and breathless as most of his others, but not quite as colorful. It uses material drawn from numerous books, reports and magazine articles written by other people—with due credit given—and personal interviews with the general. Most of the facts are familiar but it is good to have them brought together, sorted, and presented in readable fashion to help judge a man who may be one of our choices for President." P. V. Farrell

+ Commonweal 55:452 F 8 '52 600w

Foreign Affairs 30:499 Ap '52 10w

Kirkus 20:50 Ja 15 '52 280w

Reviewed by H. L. Roth

Library J 77:211 F 1 '52 130w

Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by W. V. Shannon

New Repub 126:20 Je 9 '52 300w

New Statesman & Nation 43:442 Ap 12 '52 330w

"John Gunther's new book deserves and undoubtedly will enjoy wide circulation among Americans and many other peoples of this worried world. It is a vigorous, enthusiastic and, to the best of my knowledge, accurate appraisal of the assets and liabilities of the great figure that Dwight David Eisenhower has become; it is hardly necessary to say, in view of its authorship, that it is remarkably readable." R. E. Sherwood

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ja 27 '52
1200w

"Gunther does not gild the lily in this study. It would not be quite fair to call it a campaign biography. It is as simple and unadorned as Eisenhower himself. If it is by no means a brilliant study; many times Gunther has to run hard to keep up with the news, and, even so, the book cannot hope to be up to date." E. D. Canham

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 27 '52 1150w

"A timely biographical snapshot that has caught a good likeness of the General and gives us a glimpse of the work he is doing at SHAPE and a peek into the immediate future. The book grew out of a series Mr. Gunther wrote for Look magazine, and it is handled with his customary skill and fair-mindedness."

+ New Yorker 27:78 F 2 '52 110w

"John Gunther, who knows something about wide popularity himself, having experienced it in nearly all his successful and continuously interesting reports on countries and men, has long been fascinated by the Eisenhower story. Now he has put down his thoughts, impressions, and some of the best anecdotes about this unique figure who is so well liked by both Republicans and Democrats. It is a remarkable piece of campaign literature." C. W. Weinberger

San Francisco Chronicle p28 F 24 '52
230w

"Few reporters in the world can be more confidently counted on for a sharp and vivid picture of any subject than John Gunther. And so far as the picture is concerned he has produced a lively and impressive one in this pertinent portrait of General Eisenhower. Unfortunately, however, it remains a fairly familiar picture, new only in its technicoloring. Gunther is added but not much more Eisenhower." Jonathan Daniels

+ Sat R 35:13 F 9 '52 420w

"All the material Mr. Gunther provides for judgment—the picture of Eisenhower's ancestry, his early struggles in Kansas, the remarkable army career of a man who had never seen a battle or been in combat-command of so much as a platoon till he became Commander-in-Chief in Europe, and his own skilled assessment of the man and the soldier—is of particular value at this moment." Wilson Harris

+ Spec 188:406 Mr 28 '52 450w

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p275 Ap 25 '52 1450w

Wis Lib Bul 48:92 Mr '52

GUNTHER, JOHN. Inside U.S.A. rev ed 1121p maps $3 Harper

973 [917.3] U.S.—Description and travel 51-13816

"This new edition is extensively revised and largely rewritten to bring it up to date. Endpaper map and 10 regional maps." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1947.

Booklist 48:104 N 15 '51

"Mr. Gunther has revised it completely, bringing it up to date as far as possible, and Harper has brought it out in new format—chunky and compact, in the guidebook manner. . . As for the revisions, they're recent enough to include the Kefauver investigations, the loyalty dispute at the University of California, the story of Communist infiltration into Hollywood, the atomic experiments in Nevada, and the Eisenhower book so far. There is much else in the way of new material, of course; Mr. Gunther has added 40,000 words of new material and made 10,000 changes, if you like statistics." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 20 '51 460w

"'Inside U. S. A.' [a] unique and penetrating study of the American nation which first was published in 1947 and received an uncommonly good reception on all sides, has been completely revised and brought up to date by the author." H. H.

+ Springfield Republican p3D D 23 '51 170w

GURIAN, WALDEMAR. Bolshevism; an introduction to Soviet communism. 189p $3.25 Univ. of Notre Dame press

335.4 Communism—Russia 52-11656

An analysis of modern communism which is an attempt to reveal its essential characteristics. The first chapter discusses the differences between the western and the Russian aspects of Soviet communism. The second chapter studies the sources and patterns of action of the Soviet type. Chapter three is about Bolshevism and world power. Index.

"The book is up-to-date and substantiates every important point set forth by the author. Although Professor Gurian's work is very good in its present form, it would have been even better, had he integrated the source material into the context of the book." N. D. Roodkowsky

+ Cath World 176:75 O '52 400w

"Some excellent source material—verified citations from the writing of Lenin and Stalin—supplements and completes this highly valuable and instructive work, which is at once scholarly and unpretentious." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 21 '52 340w

"A brief (slightly more than one hundred pages), clear, and cogent analysis of both the theoretical and practical aspects of Leninism-Stalinism." H. C. Hinton

+ Commonweal 56:514 Ag 29 '52 650w

"Although one may disagree, as I do, with the crucial points of Professor Gurian's book, it undoubtedly raises some of the most significant questions of our industrial civilization and answers them in a manner that demands attention and commands respect." Barrington Moore

+ Nation 175:560 D 13 '52 1100w

GUTHRIE, JOHN, pseud. See Brodie, J.

GUTKIND, ERICH. Choose life: the biblical call to revolt. 312p $4 Schuman

296 Philosophy, Jewish 52-8676

"Here is a Jewish leader writing for Jews and bidding them to stand steadfastly and proudly in their Jewishness. He is saying: 'Resist all temptations to liberalize Judaism. Be not tempted to move toward assimilation with the Gentile world. Normalization, petrification, watering-down, compromise, this way lies death for Judaism and the Jews.' Vigorously and clearly the author sets forth the reasons why Jews cannot and will not accept Christianity. Their own faith is superior, he claims, for it is monotheistic, rational and ethical, stressing social justice here and now and it eschews theological abstractions, mysticism and other-worldliness. There is an elaborate philosophical and practical defense for the Jewish ritual." (Kirkus) No index.

"Vigorously and interestingly written."

+ Kirkus 20:121 F 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by Michael Fraenkel

New Repub 127:20 Ag 11 '52 1950w

"Although the book starts with the wisdom of the Jews, its basic premise is the universality of the Jewish experience and its applicability to all men. It is a book that should appeal to the adventurous spirits of all creeds who look for new meanings in life." P. M. S.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 4 '52 300w

GWYNN, FREDERICK LANDIS. Sturge Moore and the life of art. 159p il $3 Univ. of Kan. press

B or 92 Moore, Thomas Sturge 51-14941

"A concise account of an English poet who was forgotten by the public long before he died. Sturge Moore was born in 1870, lived and circulated through artistic and literary epochs, and wrote incessantly and without success almost until his death in 1944. . . In his two-part monograph Mr. Gwynn records in detail Moore's full life as artist and poet, and then an analysis of his poetry and ideas." Sat R

"Workmanlike, affectionate book."

+ Sat R 35:60 Je 14 '52 230w

"Sturge Moore's renderings of Classical and Teutonic legends flash to us sufficient reflections out of the unknown to justify the claim that he is 'an important poet.' For recalling attention to him in an interesting and provocative book all lovers of poetry must be grateful to Mr. Gwynn."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p392 Je 13 '52 340w

H

HAAR, CHARLES MONROE. Land planning law in a free society; a study of the British town and country planning act. 213p il maps $4 Harvard univ. press

711.17 City planning. Regional planning 51-6659

"Four major aspects of the daring and controversial Town and Country Planning Act of 1947 are reviewed and analyzed in this study in the following sections: The Machinery of Town and Country Planning, State Supervision and Land Use, The Nationalization of Development Values, Public Ownership of Land. Subsections trace the evolution of these and the relations between them." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Index.

"The book is an admirable interpretation of a complicated planning law and will be of very great interest to human ecologists, regional sociologists, city planners, and others who are interested in the social control of land." Walter Firey

+ Am Soc R 17:379 Je '52 470w

"Mr. Haar's tightly written volume is the chronicle of a major revolution, little understood in this country because it is embodied in a highly complex and technical act of Parliament. . . It is the great merit of Mr. Haar's book that he has explained these provisions lucidly and as simply as their technical content permits." C. S. Ascher

+ Ann Am Acad 279:218 Ja '52 550w

"Mr. Haar has written a valuable book. He has not included sufficient general description nor has he organized the book most effectively to make British planning come alive for the casual reader. Most Americans would like more than the occasional reference to our situation. But, with a very few exceptions, Mr. Haar demonstrates thorough competence in matters of land use. His analysis and comment greatly aid in understanding the operation and import of a difficult and complex Act." D. E. Watts

+ Harvard Law R 65:902 Mr '52 2400w

"If there is imbalance in this study, it lies in overemphasis upon clarity of concept and meticulous logic. The British have, indeed, spun theory at least as rapidly as they have developed their land control program. Mr. Haar makes the most of it, and provides a description of the program which also indicates precisely its weak spots."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:385 D '51 250w

HABE, HANS, pseud. [JEAN BEKESSY].
Black earth. $11p $3.50 Putnam

52-9834

"Béla Sulyok, a Hungarian peasant raised as a serf, fights on the side of the Russians during the Second World War, and deserts to join a popular anti-Soviet movement founded in protest against Communist treatment of his countrymen. He also has two love affairs—one with a beautiful Russian and another with a young Hungarian countess." New Yorker

Booklist 49:157 Ja 1 '53

"No character, including the hero, is seen long enough to form an identity; no description rises above the most obvious and the dialogue is disconcerting in its triteness and sentimentality." George Miles

—Commonweal 57:290 D 19 '52 200w

"Habe's best known book was A Thousand Shall Fall. This has much of its sweep and power."

+ Kirkus 20:610 S 15 '52 180w

"Highly readable: living, breathing style (in English, reminiscent of early Cather); superb descriptive narrative; appropriate earthy humor. Solid case against communism." Karl Brown

+ Library J 77:1809 O 15 '52 70w

"Implausible, perhaps, and certainly stretching the imagination, is Bela's subsequent career as a returned Soviet hero in Hungary and Minister of State in the new regime. Yet he retains a certain character, even while being turned by the author into a symbol; he is credible, he is a man. Far less credible, however, is the cold, capricious, little Countess, so improbable in her role as seductress. . . But Mr Habe has bestowed a certain radiancy on the Hungarian scene itself." Virgilia Peterson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 23 '52 600w

"There is more than enough material here for a creditable, pertinent story. Mr. Habe has failed to write one because all the events are set down with predictable and tedious inevitability. Nor does the writing, which is uniformly listless and stale, help matters much." Pearl Kazin

— N Y Times p23 Ja 4 '53 320w

"The writing is labored, and Sulyok's political discussions, which make up most of the book, lack conviction, perhaps because he and his friends are so obviously only a collective mouthpiece for their author's opinions."

New Yorker 28:186 N 15 '52 40w

Reviewed by Egon Hostovsky
Sat R 35:38 N 29 '52 180w

HADAS, MOSES. History of Latin Literature.
474p $5 Columbia univ. press

870.9 Latin literature—History and criticism
52-7637

"Mr. Hadas, who is Associate Professor of Greek and Latin at Columbia University, has written a companion to his 'A History of Greek Literature' [Book Review Digest 1950]. . . The book traces Roman writing from its earliest beginnings down to the Dark Ages, ending with Saint Augustine and the other Christian writers of his time. In this sweep of some seven centuries every writer, and almost every work, is discussed, described, and, in the best sense of the word, appreciated." N Y Times

"Recommended for college, university and large public libraries." J. A. Borome
+ Library J 77:430 Mr 1 '52 140w

"Like its predecessor, it is altogether admirable, scholarly without being pedantic, popular without being written-down. Especially noteworthy is the first chapter, a general consideration of the writing of ancient Rome and the forces that made it what it was, 'the most "literary" of literatures.'" Basil Davenport

+ N Y Times p27 Mr 30 '52 450w

HADER, MRS BERTA (HOERNER), and HADER, ELMER. Little White Foot; his adventures on Willow hill; pictured by [the authors]. [42p] $2.25 Macmillan
Mice—Legends and stories 52-13669

Pictures and story about a little mouse who had a difficult time raising his family until he discovered a way into a nice warm house where they all lived in the attic.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran
+ Atlantic 190:101 D '52 60w
Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

"Told in pictures as enchanting as the prose." Marcia Winn
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 16 '52 50w

Reviewed by M. C. Skinner
Library J 77:2182 D 15 '52 30w

"It is a gentle, happy tale with lovely pictures, half in color, taking you round the year at Willow Hill, from the mouse-eye view." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p5 N 16 '52 70w

Reviewed by A. L. Seekamp
N Y Times p24 N 2 '52 110w
Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 30w

HAGGAR, REGINALD GEORGE. New guide to old pottery; English country pottery [Eng title: English country pottery]. 160p il $3.25 McBride

733.3 Pottery [51-5229]

"Mr. Haggard, landscape painter and authority on English pottery, writes a book for the collector of modest means who is interested in the utility as well as the decorative ware. His object is to show the amateur the artistic merit of objects that were in daily use as tygs, multiple-handled posset pots, fuddling cups, and cream piggins. He suggests ways in which collectors may learn how to respond to form and glaze and how they may develop their powers of observation and sense of touch." San Francisco Chronicle

San Francisco Chronicle p26 F 17 '52 170w

Reviewed by R. L. Howell
Sat R 35:34 My 3 '52 200w

"This book gives you unique research material on peasant-ware pottery in rural England. . . All excellent material for research study on the history of pottery making."

+ School Arts 51:2a F '52 70w

"English pottery is one of the minor branches of the arts that are to-day finding many enthusiastic collectors. The primitive quality of work—methods and designs have been little altered during the centuries—only adds to the interest, though it increases the difficulties of the would-be connoisseur, and much knowledge of social habits and of the history of the craft has to be acquired. Mr. Haggard possesses this in full measure, and presents it in an easy and readable style."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p87 F 9 '51 180w

HAGGARD, LILIAS RIDER. Cloak that I left; a biography of the author, Henry Rider Haggard, K.B.E. by his daughter. 287p il $4 British bk. centre

B or 92 Haggard, Sir Henry Rider [51-8093]

"Rider Haggard was a prolific writer of adventure romances which in their atmosphere and characterization are superior to most novels of that type. Born into a Norfolk squire's family he was sent to South Africa at the age of nineteen on a government assignment, and in his six years there he observed the Zulu people with the sympathetic understanding that came to fruition in his tales, which he wrote after his return to England. . . . Now, twenty-six years after his death, his daughter has written [this biography]." Sat R

"Lilias Haggard's gentle, touching record should revive interest in the man and his books—which Andrew Lang once said were like the literature of another planet." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:593 Ap 1 '52 150w

Manchester Guardian p4 J1 13 '51 240w

"Vivid and well-written biography." Graham Greene

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:45 J1 14 '51 2000w

Reviewed by William McFee
N Y Times p6 Ap 20 '52 750w

"An admirable biography. It is not a monument of filial piety but an interesting, readable memoir (in which she hardly appears). . . . One of the unusual qualities of the book is that Miss Haggard's fluent and expressive style is so much like her father's that it blends with the excerpts from his letters and notebooks, and makes for a unified, moving narrative." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R 35:44 My 3 '52 270w

"Miss Haggard has been able to draw upon [her father's] autobiography, to use the material, letters, diaries, etc., on which her father had based it, and to complete it by telling of the crowded, busy, useful years that were still to come when he put the autobiography away. She paints a vivid, understanding portrait." Arthur Ransome

+ Spec 185:789 Je 15 '51 750w

"The portrait of him drawn by his daughter is dutiful, affectionate, but not pleasing—so that some readers, recalling the splendours which still seem to encumber his name, may find themselves wondering whether this rather glum and busy agriculturist was really the genius who wove the enchantments of old. Yet her labour has not been in vain because her book will remind the present generation of a strangely forgotten personality."

Times [London] Lit Sup p375 Je 15 '51 800w

HAGGLUND, ERIK. Chemistry of wood [tr. by Peter Oesper]. 631p il $13.50 Academic press

620.12 Wood—Chemistry

51-6980

"Earlier editions of this work appeared in Leipzig in 1928 and 1939, under the title, Holzchemie. In the present edition—written in English—there is much new material but the chemistry of lignin and cellulose is still emphasized. Essentially, the work is a critical digest of the published literature. Long bibliographies accompany the chapters, and the names of the authors of cited papers are brought out in the fifty-one page author index. The work is addressed to graduate chemists and other persons with equivalent technical backgrounds. The author is associated with the Swedish Forest Products Research Laboratory." N Y New Tech Bks

"As with any monograph covering a wide field, certain items are missing. The surface properties of wood are barely mentioned, and some of the more recent analytical techniques and summations are not included. However, there are nearly 2000 references, some of them to articles published in 1950. The very satisfactory translation of Hägglund's manuscript was made by Peter Oesper. The typography (work of a Swedish printer) and format are excellent." L. E. Wise

Chem & Eng N 29:4773 N 5 '51 270w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:823 My 15 '52 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:95 N '51

HAGOPIAN, RICHARD. Faraway the spring. 242p $2.75 Scribner

52-8355

Story of a family of Armenians living in a suburb of Boston. The father is a factory worker, often unemployed; the mother patient and long-suffering. There are four children, one of them a cripple. The affection of the various members holds them together, despite poverty and misfortune.

Booklist 48:205; 247 Mr 1 '52; Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:184 My '52 30w

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ap 20 '52 490w

Reviewed by Ruth Wales

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 10 '52 350w

"After reading this poignant, refreshing new novel by another poet laureate of America—Armenia, one is inclined to laud a successful mixture of whimsy, sentimentality and realism. The bard of Fresno himself can do more with the whimsy but less with the storyline than Mr. Hagopian has done." Joe Dever

+ Commonweal 56:77 Ap 25 '52 400w

Kirkus 20:163 Mr 1 '52 230w

"Beautifully constructed story. . . . Recommended for all libraries." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 77:591 Ap 1 '52 130w

"Mr. Hagopian has set down his tale in a prose that is affectionately evocative, sentimental without ever becoming mawkish. His resolution of the problems of the Dinjyan family has perhaps too much contrivance, too much of a fairy-tale quality, to be completely persuasive, yet even here he avoids an excess of sentimentality by his perceptive understanding of the transitory nature of their victory. And the victory Mr. Hagopian would have us share is that of the indomitable human spirit." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 6 '52 600w

"There is a kind of fairy-tale ending which Mr. Hagopian will know enough to avoid when he is older, and a prostitute-with-a-heart-of-gold, a mythical character for whom Armenian writers in the United States seem to have a weakness. But Mr. Hagopian's talent is resilient enough to survive and sturdy enough to grow. He'll get rid of the sentimentalism—and then, who knows, may come up with that novel about the Boston Irish which needs to be written." Harry Sylvester

+ N Y Times p6 Ap 6 '52 400w

"Mr. Hagopian's way of writing is awkward, but he works out of real emotion and shows an honest feeling for the place and the lives that concern him."

+ New Yorker 28:136 Ap 12 '52 100w

"Mr. Hagopian has plenty to give. This is his first novel, coming eight years after his only other book, a collection of short stories. But it was worth waiting for. Hagopian is a writer, and a good one." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 7 '52 850w

"Mr. Hagopian is a sensitive and compassionate writer. His heart is full and heavy for the poor. If he could only cast off this fashionable malaise of defeat he has all the equipment to bring a transfusion of the richness and pungency of the Armenian character to our thinning blood; a character fiercely proud and nationalistic, not basely so about its conquests but nobly about its splendid and unique national culture." Truman Nelson

Sat R 35:23 Ap 12 '52 550w

Wis Lib Bul 48:173 J1 '52

"All of these scenes are handled with an extremely appealing mixture of heartiness and sensitivity, and, above all, with a humor that has real life to it. Because of these qualities, I find Mr. Hagopian one of the most satisfying new writers who has come along recently." James Yaffe

+ Yale R n s 41:12 summer '52 230w

HAHN, EMILY (MRS CHARLES RALPH BOXER). Love conquers nothing; a glandular history of civilization. 315p $3.75 Double-day

920 Love 52-5539

A collection of biographical sketches in which the author attempts to disprove the theory that love has had a great influence on the course of history. Some of those included are: Helen of Troy; Cleopatra; Henry VIII; Admiral Nelson; and Lady Flora Hastings. No index.

Booklist 48:246 Ap 1 '52

Canadian Forum 32:192 N '52 110w

Reviewed by M. B. Snyder

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 30 '52 350w

"Some errant to erotic episodes, in high places, this revives old scandals with a colloquial verve for those who wish to be aroused, rather than instructed or improved. This is not her best."

— Kirkus 20:58 Ja 15 '52 140w

"It is unlikely that Emily Hahn could ever write a dull book, or an impersonal one. In these lively records of thirteen unfortunate females (one may have been a man) she argues persuasively that while the world may be lost for love it is certainly not well lost, nor generally by intent. . . These are sad, wry but fascinating stories, full of human meanness and human weakness." Lorine Pruette
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ap 27 '52 1050w

Reviewed by Harry Gilroy

N Y Times p12 Mr 16 '52 360w

"This thesis almost automatically calls for an arch and skittish approach, and Miss Hahn uses such an approach in her investigations of the classic amatory careers of Helen of Troy, Cleopatra, and Lady Hamilton. Her pieces about lesser-known lovers, on the other hand, are more thoughtfully and sympathetically done."

+ New Yorker 28:134 Mr 22 '52 120w

"Miss Hahn is a very good guide. She enjoys gossip for its own sake. She is humorous without leering, cynical but not callous. Under the smile and the shrug there is a great deal of quiet pity. A very nice touch is supplied to her narratives by her feeling for the varying degrees of annoyance that must have afflicted the peripheral figures. History may not be very encouraging, but it is infinitely moving and Miss Hahn agrees with Byron that there is no sterner moralist than pleasure." Bergen Evans

+ Sat R 35:19 My 17 '52 750w

Springf'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 240w

HAIMAN, FRANKLYN SAUL. Group leadership and democratic action. 309p $2.50 Houghton

301.155 Leadership 51-11851

"A college textbook on leadership in group discussion. . . [It] is divided into three parts. Part One, 'Approaches to Leadership,' is a philosophical discussion of the dynamics of leadership and of authoritarianism as opposed to democracy. . . Part Two, 'Attitudes and Skills of Democratic Leadership,' is, in effect, a discussion leader's manual. The theme of this section is expressed as follows: '... we have arrived at a position which clearly implies that the healthiest kind of leadership for a democracy is that which is diffused throughout the group.' . . Part Three comprises only one chapter which is devoted to 'The Future of Democratic Leadership.'" Management R

"[The book] represents a major contribution to the literature on a most important subject. . . The author's success in developing the concept that the difference between democracy and autocracy is not sharply defined but one of degree, is thought-provoking." Robert Yoho

+ Am J Pub Health 41:1532 D '51 280w

Booklist 49:4 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:81 Ja '53

"While [the book] does not reach the broad goal outlined in its preface, it does, however, provide some practical pointers for persons who are interested in leading democratic discussion groups. The preliminary philosophical treatment of leadership, which it also provides, is very interesting and should encourage a better understanding of the characteristics and purposes of democratic leadership." C. E. Goode

+ Management R 40:708 N '51 500w

Wis Lib Bul 48:211 S '52

HAINES, RAY EDWARD, and others. Woodturning lathe. (Home workshop ser) 132p il $2.95 Van Nostrand

674.43 Lathes, Turning 52-5742

"An introductory book for home mechanics. In it the woodturning lathe, the tools and accessories used with it, and the basic operations on it are described clearly and simply. Both tools and operations are also shown in pictures. The chapter on projects accounts for more than half of the space. It contains detailed descriptions, including lists of materials and dimensioned drawings, for a variety of such simple articles as lamps, salt and pepper shakers and small tables." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 48:224 Mr 15 '52

N Y New Tech Bks 37:73 S '52

San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 20 '52 100w

HALD, ANDERS. Statistical theory, with engineering applications. 783p $9 Wiley

311.2 Statistics—Charts, tables, etc. Mathematical statistics 52-11060

"A fairly comprehensive, mathematical treatment of statistical concepts and techniques that are useful in engineering. Most of the space is devoted to the normal distribution and the associated tests of significance. The slant for engineers is obvious, not only in the selection of topics but also in the selection of the problems that are worked out in the text, and in the assumption of no more advanced mathematical knowledge on the part of the reader than differential and integral calculus. The work originally appeared in Danish in 1948. This is not a translation but a presentation of the same material in English with some revision." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1516 S 15 '52 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:62 Jl '52

HALDANE, MRS CHARLOTTE (FRANKEN). Marcel Proust. (European novelists) 140p $2.50 Roy pubs.

B or 92 Proust, Marcel [51-5473]

A brief biography of Marcel Proust which presents the essential facts about his life and works. Index.

"This slight handbook is more than adequate as an introduction to Proust's 'Remembrance of Things Past,' one of the greatest twentieth-century novels."

+ Sat R 35:32 Mr 29 '52 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p358 Je 8 '51 500w

HALE, GARTH, pseud. See Cunningham, A. B.

HALECKI, OSKAR. Borderlands of western civilization; a history of East Central Europe. 503p maps $6 Ronald

940 Central Europe—History 52-6197

The name East Central Europe is given by the author to those lands and countries lying between Germany and Russia from the Baltic Sea to the Balkan Peninsula. This study covers the history of the region from prehistoric times to the aftermath of the Second World war. The author, formerly at the University of Warsaw, is now professor of Eastern European history at Fordham University, New York. Bibliography. Index.

"Primarily a political history, Professor Halecki's book will serve as an excellent introduction to the study of East Central Europe. The reader will be amazed by the author's knowledge of detail, his skill at integration, and the depth of his interpretations; all of these give evidence of a lifetime of research and of first-hand acquaintance with the area. The book is well organized, it reads easily, and contains an extremely useful bibliography of works in English, French, and German." Charles Morley

+ Am Hist R 58:157 O '52 360w

"The reviewer is impressed by Professor Halecki's ability to grasp and present complex historic phenomena in an alert and frequently lively style. To re-emphasize an earlier point, the major liability of this work appears to be its overly ambitious scope combining two separate books under one cover. The faults of the second practically overshadow the merits of the first." Andrew Gyorgy

+ — Ann Am Acad 284:216 N '52 280w

Booklist 48:357 J1 1 '52

Foreign Affairs 31:162 O '52 20w

"It is possible that, on the whole, the eastern half of the region is more adequately covered than the western half. Yet this hardly diminishes the merits of a book that, mastering so many difficulties, brings the past of the unhappy peoples of Eastern and East Central Europe so close to the historian and to the educated, nonprofessional reader of the West."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:283 S '52 160w

HALL, ALFRED RUPERT. Ballistics in the seventeenth century; a study in the relations of science and war with reference principally to England. 185p il $4 Cambridge

623.5 Ballistics [52-12314]

"This essay was written with two purposes. The first was to relate the foundation in the seventeenth century of the science of ballistics as a mathematical interpretation of some physical problems upon a basis of exact experimental investigation. . . . Secondly an attempt was made to relate this series of researches in applied mathematics to its background, social, economic and scientific, as a contribution to the history of science in society." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:2008 N 15 '52 60w

"An unusual and valuable contribution to the history of science."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:66 S '52

HALL, BORDEN, pseud. See Yates, R. F.

HALL, JAMES NORMAN. Forgotten one, and other true tales of the South Seas. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 246p $3.50 Little 818 Tropics. Oceania 52-5010

Six short stories about people of the South Seas islands whom the author knew during the early period of his thirty years' residence there. The stories have been previously published in magazine form.

Booklist 48:212 Mr 1 '52

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 17 '52 410w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p13 F 21 '52 750w

Kirkus 19:715 D 15 '51 210w

"All Hall enthusiasts will welcome this volume, but those not in this group will find some of the stories a bit thin, perhaps because we have had so much about the South Seas in the past few years. The lead story, 'The Forgotten One' and the Frisbie account are by far the most interesting and prove that Hall is still one of the most sympathetic and penetrating writers on this area." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 77:359 F 15 '52 80w

"'The Forgotten One,' though an uneven collection, has fascinating pages, and reminds the reader that Mr. Hall (together with his late collaborator, Charles Nordhoff) had probably done more than any other writer since Jack London to make Polynesia known to the mainland world." David Tilden

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 16 '52 490w

"In some instances, the explanation of their plight is readily comprehensible, but in others it is obscured by an awful lot of scenic and sound effects. It's possible, of course, that some of these gentlemen were good company in their day; by present standards, unfortunately, they're an uncommonly long-winded and self-centered bunch."

New Yorker 28:93 Mr 1 '52 110w

"Most of these titles concern the early years of Hall's sojourn in the South Seas. . . . Nevertheless, Hall never lost his sensitiveness to the gentle way of life in those Pacific isles, and it is likely that he wouldn't have changed anything in any of the six tales in this book if he had been alive to edit them today. In a very special way they represent Hall himself, his awareness of beauty and of the less obvious aspects of human character and human relationships." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 19 '52 750w

Wis Lib Bul 48:91 Mr '52

HALL, JAMES NORMAN. My island home. 374p il $4 Little

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-9089

This unfinished autobiography contains a good deal of information on Hall's early years—in a small Iowa town and at Grinnell college, something about his war service in the first World War, and something about his years of writing in collaboration with Nordhoff, but little of his personal life after the years of boyhood and youth.

Booklist 49:104 N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:30 N '52 30w

"'My Island Home' is a book to be read slowly with mounting delight; it is superlative autobiography." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 19 '52 300w

"Here is the last of James Norman Hall's books and probably his best. There is less about his island, Tahiti, than how it came to be his home. That is the fascinating part of Hall's story." Roland Sawyer

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 23 '52 800w

"A delightful autobiography."

+ Kirkus 20:535 Ag 15 '52 330w

Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:2069 D 1 '52 90w

"The style is simple, unpretentious to the point of banality, and Hall has an odd trick of using 'will' and 'shall' like the Scotch. He has a yearning weakness for the gentle cliché, so that the sentences are occasionally boneless. . . . Hall died before he was able to revise the book and Edward Weeks has added an epilogue. 'My Island Home' is a revelation of a writer whose books deal with the world outside, a writer whose success was largely due to brilliant editorship and an unusually hard-headed collaborator. But the character of the man himself shines serenely, a gentle spirit of flawless integrity." William McFee

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 19 '52 950w

"His last work was this present autobiography. It is a curious book and he would be amazed to know that it can be read as tragedy. The tragedy is that when he reached the important days in Tahiti time was running out for Jimmy Hall. He lived to complete only two chapters, an inconclusive one on a famous hotel and a haunting verbatim conversation with Nordhoff. The mysteries of the South Seas he does not touch upon and we are deprived of the understanding we sought." James Michener

+ N Y Times p1 O 19 '52 1350w

"The memoir is a curious blend of the dramatic and the idyllic, and is infused with the kindly, unassuming personality of its author—a man who was, if not a great writer, a very pleasant human being."

+ New Yorker 28:66 D 27 '52 210w

"Those who have read and been fond of Hall's books have learned, between the lines, to be fond of Hall himself; the person he was always showed through. Those are the people who must not miss this book. They'll discover in it how right was the instinct that told them 'Here, writing, is that rare human being, a man of good will.'" J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 22 '52 600w

Reviewed by Robert Payne

Sat R 36:13 Ja 10 '53 750w

HALL, MARJORY. Saralee's silver spoon; il. by Catherine Barnes. 306p $2.75 Sloane

52-9165

Career story for older girls. When her scholarship at an art school was not renewed Saralee returned to her New England home and went to work in a silverware factory and made a success of her job.

Booklist 48:323 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:186 My '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 29 '52 190w

Kirkus 20:129 F 15 '52 170w

"On the whole this is a good career story." Claire Roth

+ Library J 77:1019 Je 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 11 '52 140w

"Saralee seems singularly unobservant for a girl who has had a year in art school. However, Miss Hall writes, as always, an entertaining story, with interesting sidelights on the silverware business." E. L. B.

+ — N Y Times p32 Ap 27 '52 140w

"It's all as wholesome as a strawberry ice-cream soda, and about as stimulating." E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R 35:42 Ag 9 '52 150w

HALL, ROSALYS HASKELL. Merry miller; pictures by Kurt Werth. 44p $2.50 Oxford

52-8085

Picture story book for ages 6 to 8. The young miller in a French village came to take over the mill after the death of his predecessor. To the surprise of everybody the pretty widow of the former miller had grown so stout she could not leave the mill. The story tells what they did about it.

Booklist 48:284 My 1 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 30 '52 140w

"Both the story and the unusually fine pictures, many in glowing color, tell in rollicking fashion how one person after another came to help before the widow's problem was solved to the merry satisfaction of all." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:169 Je '52 120w

Kirkus 20:188 Mr 15 '52 120w

"Recommended." L. E. Cathon

+ Library J 77:728 Ap 15 '52 70w

"The story has a truly French point and atmosphere, as have the sketchy, bold, amusing pictures, ten of which are in full color. It is of that genre to which belonged Daudet's 'The Pope's Mule.'" L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 11 '52 140w

"A hilarious diversion for youngsters, although the end, which seems inevitable to an adult, may seem less funny to them than the spirited struggle between space and matter. Kurt Werth's illustrations are all funny though, drawn with great style and reproduced in halftone and in rich peasant colors." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p30 Mr 30 '52 140w

New Yorker 28:192 D 6 '52 40w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R 35:50 My 10 '52 140w

HALLENBECK, WILBUR CHAPMAN. American urban communities. 617p maps $6 Harper

301.36 [323.352] Cities and towns—U.S.

51-11920

A detailed study of the problems of the urban community. The author is professor of education at Teachers College, Columbia university. Index.

"The sector theory (with no mention of Hoyt) and the multinuclei scheme of urban structure are inexplicably separated by nearly four hundred pages from the concentric zone hypothesis. The population of the unincorporated fringe is not discussed. Class structure is dealt with in less than three pages. Barest mention or none at all is accorded Davie, Dickinson, Firey, Hawley, Hoyt, Hurd, Schmid, Queen, Quinn, and others recognized in the urban field. With a distinguished sociologist as editor of the series, it is surprising that well buttressed theories from the sociological literature are not more effectively utilized. In spite of these weaknesses American Urban Communities is a useful text for classes not concerned with the implications of urbanism as a world-wide phenomenon." W. T. Martin

Am Soc R 17:255 Ap '52 400w

"This is an interesting and provocative account of urban social life (in the United States only) in which hardly a single aspect of this complicated problem is omitted. . . The work is thoroughly documented and contains suggestions for supplementary readings at the end of each chapter." G. S. Hart

+ Ann Am Acad 281:208 My '52 600w

HALLIDAY, BRETT, pseud. See Dresser, D.

HALLIDAY, FRANK ERNEST. Shakespeare companion, 1550-1950. 742p il $8.50 Funk

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 52-9326

"This book is more than a handbook to Shakespeare; it is a handbook not only to Shakespeare's life and works, to his friends and acquaintances, to his poems and plays and their characters, but also to the Elizabethan-Jacobean theatre, the other dramatists who wrote for it, their most important plays and the companies that performed them, and to the history up to the present day of Shakespeare's work both on the stage and in the study, to his printers and publishers, players and producers, editors and adapters, scholars and critics. . . Briefly, it is an attempt to cover all aspects of Shakespeare and the people who have been most intimately associated with his works, in whatever capacity, in the course of more than three and a half centuries." (Pref) Matter is alphabetically arranged with cross references where needed. Bibliography.

Reviewed by Milton Crane

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 10 '52 40w

HALLIDAY, F. E.—Continued

"It is a work packed with curious and fascinating information that starts the fancy wandering down strange and curious bypaths, ideal either for browsing, or for more systematic consultation." Harold Hobson

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 5 '52
70w

Reviewed by H. B. Charlton
Manchester Guardian p4 My 20 '52
120w

"Omissions, inaccuracies, and the great number of trivial items are inevitable, and probably unimportant; it is more useful to decide what place the book has in the already excessive number of Shakespeareana. For the experienced reader and student it is too superficial, and its brief entries can be found in standard reference books. But—except for its price—it should appeal to the inexperienced reader of Shakespeare. Not so much for its substance as for its signposts (including a bibliography) pointing to books on Shakespeare which are full and integrated."

+ — Sat R 35:12 Ag 2 '52 270w

Times [London] Lit Sup p376 Je 6 '52
2500w

HALLINAN, MRS VIVIAN (MOORE). My wild Irish rogues. 255p $3 Doubleday

818 52-5755

The wife of a San Francisco lawyer relates the story of her marriage, which started with a twenty-four hour stay in jail for the groom. The story of their six sons, the father who is almost always in hot water, and Mrs Hallinan's own business ventures, end with Mr Hallinan being sentenced to six months in jail in connection with his defense of Harry Bridges.

"A stimulating, if frequently exhausting, parents and children recall whose liberal and tolerant atmosphere is definitely heady."

Kirkus 20:113 F 1 '52 190w

"The pictures of family life are enchanting, particularly the accounts of vacations in the open, and their ability to share the good things in life and literature together." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 77:588 Ap 1 '52 150w

"Both the virtues and vices of the literary beginner are plentifully present in 'My Wild Irish Rogues.' Sincerity, candor and a certain verve are here. So, unfortunately, are roguish plays on words." W. H. Baker

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 6 '52
1000w

Sat R 35:56 Je 7 '52 350w

Spring'd Republican p8D My 11 '52
210w

Wis Lib Bul 48:169 Jl '52

HALPER, ALBERT, ed. This is Chicago; an anthology. 489p $5 Holt

810.8 Chicago. American literature—Collections 52-10300

An anthology of writings about Chicago, both fact and fiction. Partial contents: The gay old dog, by Edna Ferber; How the devil came down Division Street, by Nelson Algren; The strangest place in Chicago, by J. B. Martin; With "King" Oliver on the south side, by Louis Armstrong; Chicago, jazz, Bix and the boys, by Eddie Condon; How a night hawk saved its eggs from being measured, by Leonard Dublin; My Aunt Daisy, by Albert Halper; Fort Dearborn, by E. L. Masters; Mr. and Mrs. Fix-it, by Ring Lardner; Milk bottles, by Sherwood Anderson; Three sketches by Ben Hecht; The life, times, and end of Dion O'Banion, by Herbert Asbury; Chicago, by Carl Sandburg.

Booklist 49:122 D 1 '52

"This is Chicago, all right, with emphasis on its more picturesque and violent aspects. Albert Halper, born and bred in Chicago, and himself a well known author, has edited a notable anthology. Nearly the whole book is written from the inside, by people who have lived here long enough to carry conviction when they write about our city." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 23 '52
340w

"A fascinating anthology."

+ Kirkus 20:591 S 1 '52 150w

"An important Americana addition, it is also a highly exciting and pleasurable reading experience. Recommended for all libraries." R. B. Robertson

+ Library J 77:1648 O 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 D 21 '52
80w

Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p25 N 2 '52 40w

"You should leaf this over yourself to see the extent of its riches. If you do—especially if you have any personal interest in Chicago, then you'll probably put down your money and walk out with the book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 4 '52
200w

HALSEY, MARGARET. Folks at home. 275p $3 Simon & Schuster

973 [917.3] U.S.—Social conditions. National characteristics, American 52-12428

"[The author] views, sometimes with alarm, sometimes with hope, the world in which we are living. Against an autobiographical background, of her own parents and the precepts by which she was raised, of education and social and economic pressures, of her first book, With Malice Towards Some, which took her 'into the ranks of Terribly Solvent', and of her subsequent life of divorce, psychiatric treatment, remarriage and motherhood, she takes issue with concepts too easily accepted, too easily proved false. The American dreams, of money, of a business society, of do-gooders, of the institution of the family and of education, are explored and sometimes exploded; the questions of prejudice, Christianity and of the 'upward step' are examined for their fundamental truths; parenthood and the conflict of current tensions, the fashions in sociopolitical trends, the power of the communications industry, all come in for their share of discussion." Kirkus

"The gist of Miss Halsey's book, in effect, is that the business of America can only continue to be business at the cost of 'chronic unhappiness.' All this, she recognizes, has already been said; and she states it somewhat repetitively. Her case, though, is certainly presented with telling wit and with tremendous spirit."

+ — Atlantic 190:111 N '52 180w

Booklist 49:65 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:30 N '52 20w

"If 'The Folks at Home' has any flaw, it lies perhaps in Miss Halsey's sweet reasonableness. Most of this has been said before, and with memorable vehemence. It has been said by people like H. L. Mencken, almost three decades ago, and, most recently, by Philip Wylie in a biting little book called 'Generation of Vipers,' which ought to make good companion reading. But 'The Folks at Home' is thoughtful and provocative; would that every American could be made to read and understand it!" August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 14 '52
300w

"She sees a basic conflict between the aggressive, competitive, and skeptical nature of American business life and the Judeo-Christian standards of family life. . . This type of thinking only leads her to further extremes, and goaded on by her well-known ability to be sarcastic with humor, she produces a book that can only disappoint any reader who is looking for a careful appraisal of the American culture." R. R. Brunn

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 30 '52
90w

"Miss Halsey's conclusions are as naive as her style, but the book is important because at last the nasty things that have been said for so long about our way of life are said in the style of popular women's magazines. When these truths get down to the Daily News, the coverage will be complete and we'll all be ready for a swing to reaction." Frank Getlein

Commonweal 56:634 O 3 '52 500w

"A think-through book, wider than its own domestic horizons."

+ Kirkus 20:447 J1 15 '52 190w

"I'm on Miss Halsey's side. But I rather wish she had not overstated her case so strongly. By her very vehemence I'm afraid she will alienate many readers whom otherwise she might persuade." Agnes Rogers

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 14 '52 500w

"A very personal, heated and forthright book, but the author, though uncommonly energetic, is no more an original writer than she is a thinker; it would perhaps provide an evening's wry amusement to list the clichés that spangle her pages. Miss Halsey is a woman of valiant and admirable convictions; her sincerity should mitigate the irritating effect of a hopped-up style so perfectly suited to the popular magazines of a business society as almost to make her suspect." Gertrude Buckman

— + N Y Times p20 S 28 '52 380w

New Yorker 28:116 S 27 '52 180w

"Her book is perhaps oversimplified; after all, to cover the situation fully would take volumes, preferably written by a team of sociologists, economists, psychologists, philosophers and ministers of the gospel. But she does put her finger on a few truths, and within limits she's got something." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 S 12 '52 700w

"Author Halsey's arguments are often narrow and sometimes absurd. She writes, in fact, as if the split between God and Mammon had not plagued man from the beginning. Nonetheless, her book is the work of an earnest arm-chair moralist with an honored American tradition behind her."

+ Time 60:94 S 29 '52 700w

HAM, ROSWELL GRAY. The gifted. 215p $3 Crown

52-5669

"Peter Towne, a footloose Air Force captain, is the pivot on which this story turns. He joins four other men and five women in a Chicago apartment house for a drunken and promiscuous New Year's Eve orgy which brings death or degradation to most of the participants—though Towne finds himself in the end." Library J

Reviewed by Fanny Butler

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 17 '52 700w

"A first novel which shows some ability in characterization of the case-history type, and dialogue as heavy in sexual suggestion as O'Hara's A Rage to Live. Like that book, not a novel all libraries will care to stock." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 77:530 Mr 15 '52 90w

"Mr. Ham has set forth his little parable in a brisk and often witty style that is nudgingly reminiscent of F. Scott Fitzgerald's." E. J. Fitzgerald

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 23 '52 190w

"One of the troubles with 'The Gifted' is that the tough-despairing literary pose, in a difficult time when most intelligent people are trying to live decently and constructively, has tended to become downright absurd. However, there are other troubles with it. One is the heavy-handed irony. . . . Another is the absence of dimension that makes the characters practically impossible to tell apart except by their quirks." John Brooks

— N Y Times p21 Mr 9 '52 440w

"Mr. Ham writes well and evocatively, in the staccato nothing left-unsaid style of advertising copy. He knows how undergraduates in the Right Schools talk and look, and he has a pretty informed guess as to what these same privileged boys and girls are headed for in their thirties. . . . But 'The Gifted' never arrives as a probing social document about Eternal Youth or Indifferent Adults. Despite the author's effort to give his characters the lineaments of people you might know, they remain atypical—a group of gawdy, aphrodisiacal Chicago aborigines willingly exhibiting themselves in an erotic peep-show. Who can love them? Neither the author nor the reader, united in mute embarrassment." James Kelly

— + Sat R 35:13 Mr 22 '52 360w

Reviewed by J. F. Rooney

Spring'd Republican p8D Mr 9 '52 140w

HAM, TOM. Give us this valley. 304p $3.50 Macmillan

52-4193

Story of a young Pennsylvania couple who went south to Georgia by schooner wagon in 1837, enduring many hardships in their efforts to establish a new home in a new territory.

Booklist 49:90 N 1 '52

"An appealing novel of pioneer hope and struggle. It is sturdy and warm hearted like the people it portrays. In the confused and anxious year of 1952 it should make heartening reading." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 2 '52 240w

"A pioneering story, which, while not literature with a capital, is good reading and whose characters are real rather than stereotypes."

+ Kirkus 20:572 S 1 '52 160w

"Highly recommended." K. A. Shorey

+ Library J 77:1655 O 1 '52 60w

"A full-flavored and satisfying novel of American pioneer life." Coleman Rosenberger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 23 '52 340w

"A refreshing experience from first to last." Melville Heath

+ N Y Times p6 N 2 '52 300w

Reviewed by Shirley Barker

Sat R 35:44 N 22 '52 130w

HAMBURGER, PHILIP PAUL. J. P. Marquand, esquire; a portrait in the form of a novel. 114p $2 Houghton

B or 92 Marquand, John Phillips 52-9587

A reprinted New Yorker profile on the life of J. P. Marquand, in which the subject of the work is treated in the manner of a character in a novel.

Booklist 49:66 O 15 '52

"There must be literally millions of readers—this reader among them—who have been delighted at various periods during the last quarter century by either or both of the two kinds of fiction produced by John P. Marquand. And a good big percentage of these readers will be delighted by this excellent little 'portrait' of Marquand." Richard Sullivan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 5 '52 410w

"A gem of mimicry and concise characterization, this is almost a literary curiosity in its expert impudence which is softened by its uncondescending compassion."

+ Kirkus 20:526 Ag 15 '52 100w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1397 S 1 '52 110w

"When Hamburger's Marquand pieces were serialized in [The New Yorker] during the Spring, they read like the dutiful fulfilment of a dull assignment. Assembled now as 'A Profile in the Form of a Novel,' they make a piece that is considerably less than the sum of its parts. Instead of using his own usually charming style, Hamburger imitates Marquand's own style, and does it very successfully, but I can't see that this is an admirable accomplishment." R. E.

— + New Repub 127:28 O 6 '52 180w

"Mr. Hamburger uses the Marquand method to distill a bijou biography of its creator; and the result is possibly something new in literary technique. One reason for its success could be that Marquand is in fact a Marquand character, though this opens up an interesting doubt as to whether Marquand has consciously put himself into his novels or has found comfort in modeling himself on his own favorite hero of fiction. . . . Something of this emerges from Mr. Hamburger's brilliant squib, together with enough ironic by-play to prevent a generally kindly view from becoming sentimental." James Hilton

HAMBURGER, P. P.—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 28 '52 600w

"Hamburger has done a noteworthy job in adopting Marquand's difficult 'method of shifting his scenes from the present to the remembered past without noticeable grinding of gears.' He has performed a unique writing stunt which merits a different sort of book review, and I hope this is it." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p10 O 12 '52 900w

"It is much more than just a brilliant tour de force. It is a penetrating study of a man who sublimated through his work the natural-enough resentments carried over from a partially disappointing youth." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 30 '52 550w

"What Mr. Hamburger does, and most successfully, is to tint the stereotype with all the deftness that a sophisticated writer can command. He fails, however, to illuminate it from any fresh angle or with any new exposure." Robert Halsband

+ — Sat R 35:19 O 25 '52 450w

HAMILTON, CHARLES, ed. Men of the underworld; the professional criminals' own story. 336p $4.50 Macmillan

364.2 [364.3] Crime and criminals—U.S. 52-4275

A compilation of experiences related by criminals in America from Colonial times to the present. They include pickpockets, counterfeiters, confidence men, train robbers, bank burglars, murderers, and others.

"Whether the book adds much to the present knowledge of criminal behavior or in devising methods of combating crime may be questioned. By its very nature the book is selective and not necessarily representative. The material is also subjective rather than objective." V. W. Peterson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 N 16 '52 600w

Kirkus 20:541 Ag 15 '52 160w

"As an anthology, 'Men of the Underworld' is full of entertainment. As an organized record of criminal memoirs, it could do with a more complete dating and identification by the editor, of the events described. There are one or two errors of fact in the book." John Lardner

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 9 '52 650w

"Horrorific in many respects, grimly amusing in others, this anguished anthology will certainly reach and disturb a wide audience of thoughtful readers." Frank O'Leary

N Y Times p27 N 2 '52 500w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 36:62 Ja 3 '53 20w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 80w

HAMILTON, HOLMAN. Zachary Taylor, soldier in the White House. 496p il $6 Bobbs

B or 92 Taylor, Zachary

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"After weighing imponderables as well as ponderables, Hamilton assigns Taylor a 'higher than 'average'' rank among the presidents. Historians may question this evaluation and at the same time recognize that the soldier-president who emerges from the biographer's pages has greater stature than history has accorded him. Only occasionally does the author abandon objectivity to align himself on Taylor's side of controversial issues and labor the correctness of his subject's position. . . . Taylor's qualities now stand in bold relief, and the complex mid-century crisis appears in sharper focus. These are Hamilton's significant contributions, and they are sufficient to label his biography meritorious." W. H. Stephenson

+ Am Hist R 57:691 Ap '52 600w

Reviewed by Avery Craven

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 10 '52 220w

"This biography is a fine specimen of thorough, systematic, and judicial scholarship. The author moves with ease through a vast accumulation of material and emerges triumphant. His book, well-documented, carefully organized, and decidedly readable, is a significant contribution to history and an interesting study of a neglected man. The perusal of the book does not, however, as the publishers suggest in their advertisements, settle our current question as to whether a general in high political office is 'a good thing or a calamity for the country.' That still depends on the general!" C. M. Fuess

+ Sat R 35:17 Ja 12 '52 750w

"This scholarly and readable book, well documented and illustrated, provides a full report of the preconvention activities and maneuverings, the strategies and techniques in the Whig Convention, and the campaign of 1848 which ultimately resulted in the nomination and election of Old Rough and Ready to the Presidency. . . . Although Mr. Hamilton writes with gusto, he maintains utter impartiality, and faithfully records even the minutiae of fact."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:4 Mr '52 270w

HAMILTON, MRS LULU (SNYDER). Our children and God. 218p $2.50 Bobbs

248 Children—Religion. Child study 52-5805

"A sensitive presentation of children's need for family love as the basis of healthy spiritual living, illustrated by 'case studies' from everyday situations." Bookmark

Bookmark 11:154 Ap '52 20w

Reviewed by K. B. Cully

Christian Century 69:670 Je 4 '52 550w

School & Society 76:15 J1 5 '52 20w

HAMILTON, PATRICK. West pier. 286p $3 Doubleday

52-10411

The first of a trilogy. It describes the early years of a young English criminal. He begins his career by defrauding a poor seamstress of her savings. The scene is Brighton; the time around 1920.

Kirkus 20:428 J1 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 24 '51 50w

"Mr. Hamilton writes readably and with immense verve. He has a flair for rendering puerile dialogue—the inane exchanges of school boys and the period 'necking' preliminaries of 1922. His characters are simply yet effectively drawn and the wronged girl, Esther, despite the conventional way in which she is portrayed, possesses a pathos and dignity that are moving. Yet the author's method has the drawbacks as well as the advantages of the source from which it derives." John Raymond

+ — New Statesman & Nation 42:235 S 1 '51 500w

"There is nothing in this novel reminiscent of the very sizable talent for suspenseful drama Mr. Hamilton displayed in 'Angel Street' and 'Rope.'" Hugh McGovern

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 N 16 '52 250w

"To its credit, 'The West Pier' is never sensational. It is unadorned and strict as a lecture, the style plain and in its plainness foreboding. Set down in a laudable attempt at dispassion, it is, however, without passion. It is true that a curious effect of reality does somehow result from sheer accumulation of fact; the drearier the facts, the more accumulation it takes, and sometimes the heavier the going. The novel is warmest, or only warm, in the depiction of the secondary characters." Eudora Welty

+ — N Y Times p5 O 5 '52 480w
New Yorker 28:134 O 4 '52 30w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R 35:23 O 25 '52 200w

"For sheer sociological observation the book could hardly be bettered, and whether describing the process of 'getting off' or the details of Gorse's sordid coup, it provides obviously reliable source-material. But both the theme and this mass-observation manner of treating it recall the 'thirties rather than today, and West Pier should primarily be recommended to those who still hanker after the uniformly depressing writings of that era." Marghanita Laski

+ — Spec 187:280 Ag 31 '51 140w
Times [London] Lit Sup p564 S 7 '51 2700w

HAMILTON, WILLIAM BASKERVILLE, ed.
Fifty years of the South Atlantic quarterly.
See South Atlantic quarterly

HAMLIN, TALBOT FAULKNER, ed. Forms and functions of twentieth-century architecture; with an introd. by Leopold Arnaut; prepared under the auspices of the School of architecture of Columbia university. 4v il $75 Columbia univ. press

724.9 Architecture, Modern 52-1511

"Five years in the making, these studies of 'the art and the science of building' draw on the past insofar as the present is based upon it. The four volumes deal with 'The Elements of Composition,' 'The Principles of Composition' and 'Building Types.' . . . Many specialists write about the various types of building, of housing of many centuries and in many places. There are thousands of lucid illustrations, innumerable plans, and drawings of detail; also a general index and a second one of architectural works." Library J

"Of necessity, the appearance of buildings must change as new types of framing are developed, as materials become obsolete because they are too costly to erect, or as new materials are developed to reduce costs or increase service life. Regardless of this shortcoming, however, 'Forms and Functions of 20th Century Architecture,' will undoubtedly become a standard reference for architects and probably also will be a welcome addition to the libraries of many engineers and contractors."

+ Eng N 148:74 My 15 '52 370w

"Truly a monumental work—no pun intended; absolutely essential for any library though it may have to be acquired as a special gift. The first compilation of the sort for many decades; probably the definitive work for this half-century." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 77:796 My 1 '52 210w

Reviewed by Robert Richman
New Repub 126:22 My 12 '52 1250w

"This is the most comprehensive work on architecture to have been published in some years. Its scope is encyclopedic—by reading its four massive volumes anybody could, conceivably, absorb enough information to put him well on his way to becoming an architect." Peter Blake

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 13 '52 1400w
Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 20 '52 110w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:244 S '52 320w

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH. Air bridge, by Hammond Innes [pseud]. 307p $3.50 Knopf 51-11977

Neil Fraser, former R.A.F. pilot, presently a fugitive from the police, becomes involved with Bill Seaton, who is trying to perfect a fuel-saving engine to use on the Berlin airlift. The novel appeared as a serial in the Saturday Evening Post, with title: The mystery of Flight 252.

Booklist 48:214 Mr 1 '52

Reviewed by Milton Crane
Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Mr 23 '52 330w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 28:187 Je '52 30w
Kirkus 19:712 D 15 '51 180w

Reviewed by M. D. Read
Library J 77:733 Ap 15 '52 50w

"Mr. Innes tells an exciting, sudden-death story in a sound fashion, making a complicated plot and violent action seem believable."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 4 '52 270w

"This reader is not terribly clear as to why Fraser, a mucker at some points, should acquire the conscience of a well-fed beadle at another; but he does. . . . Mr. Innes is a whale of a writer; and 'Air Bridge,' once started, will probably make the reader a stranger to wife, pinscher, and television set." Rex Lardner

+ — N Y Times p24 Mr 2 '52 360w

"The author has a lively imagination, and his style, while a little overexcited now and then, is satisfactory enough. On the whole, a superior entry in the adventure category."

+ New Yorker 28:140 Ap 12 '52 120w

"Innes' backgrounds are always authentic and excellent. This time his plot, characters and suspense live up to the setting." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 16 '52 70w

"Mr. Innes's handling of the technical problems involved (which need not worry the non-engineering mind) has a smoothness that may be born of experience or of diligent study, but, whatever its source, it is well managed and effective, and sharpens the edge of reality that gives the story its grip and tenseness."

Anthony Richardson

+ Sat R 35:44 Mr 22 '52 320w

Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 120w

"It is packed with accurate technical detail, always a great help in a story of adventure, and the plot is ingenious, complicated and swift. But it would be better if it contained one sympathetic character."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p609 S 28 '51 90w

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH. Campbell's kingdom, by Hammond Innes [pseud]. 308p $3.50 Knopf

52-6405

Bruce Wetherall, bored with life in post-war London, is suddenly told he has not much longer to live. That very day comes news of his grandfather's death in Canada, where the older man had been looking for oil. Bruce is left the property but he is to carry on the search. The story is of Bruce's adventures in his attempt to prove his grandfather correct.

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

Kirkus 20:379 Jl 1 '52 160w

"Fine adventure story tight and tense, and with a fast pace. For all adventure lovers." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1829 O 15 '52 30w

"Innes manages the whole tale with very considerable skill, silkily but with vigor, evoking mountains and men vividly and manipulating his tensions for and against the hero to an apparently catastrophic climax (defeat seized from victory) which is at least as thrilling as it has been calculated to be. It is all done with an air of seriousness and sweet diffidence which makes such a line as 'There is a destiny in places' as apt and thrilling as a statement from Sidney Carton." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 24 '52 240w

"'Campbell's Kingdom' does not get top marks with this reviewer on one count: it ends on an un-Innes-like note of inspiration. The author evidently feels deeply about the invigorating, even rejuvenating qualities of Canadian life, and he has sought to communicate this, but the unconvincing result seems to compromise somewhat the vitality and authenticity of the rest of his story. Even

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH—Continued
so, the fault is not decisive in so good a book, and one hopes that its appearance does not signalize a trend in Mr. Innes' fascinating work." John Brooks

+ — N Y Times p4 Ag 17 '52 460w

New Yorker 28:147 S 13 '52 90w

"Narration is deliberate, but fine technical and scenic background and some exciting conflict should make this thoroughly masculine novel interesting to nearly everyone, B plus."

L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ag 17 '52 70w

"It is a very interesting production, not only in the sense of keeping the reader out of bed, without too much inciting him to look at the last chapter and find out how it comes out. . . It is also interesting as a straight matter of literature. The characters are not as completely built as in a 'serious' novel, but they are a lot more fun to live with, even when they are on the wrong team." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R 35:12 Ag 30 '52 470w

"The Canadian part of the book, which is, indeed, the bulk of it, is unceasingly thrilling. With a girl, a ghost-town, a bursting dam, dynamiting in the mountains and swinging up and down in precarious cable-cars, here's riches, indeed, and as good an adventure story to take on holiday as any man could wish."

+ Spec 189:170 Ag 1 '52 260w

"The reader is never in much doubt about the outcome, and the tingle of reality which Mr. Innes knows so well how to inject into Bruce Wetheral's adventures does not quite compensate for a predictability which robs the story of suspense."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p529 Ag 15 '52 270w

HAN SUYIN, pseud. Many-splendored thing. (Atlantic Monthly press bk) 366p $3.75 Little B or 92 52-10950

"The author, a young Eurasian woman doctor, met and fell in love with an English newspaperman in Hong Kong in 1949. She tells, with candor, not only of the ups and downs of their affair, which was terminated by the newspaperman's death in Korea just when they had hoped to be married, but of the all-pervasive influence her Eurasian ancestry has had on her life and her profession." New Yorker

Booklist 49:140 D 15 '52

Bookmark 12:53 D '52 40w

"This book has the dimension and authority of life. While the prose is often stylized and florid at times with passion, Han Suyin writes with a triple edge; as a surgeon who knows the resistance of cancer to the knife; as an artist who can project the evil and good that lies in the still centre of the heart; as an Eurasian woman who knows the ancient power of love. This is a remarkable book and I recommend it to all communists, intellectuals, journalists, ex-communists, ex-missionaries, clergymen, society girls, preachers and writers; in fact to all who have thought a little, a great deal, or none at all, about China." Samuel Roddan

+ Canadian Forum 32:164 O '52 800w

Reviewed by A. L. Bader

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 D 28 '52 320w

Kirkus 20:707 N 1 '52 160w

"Not an important book about China but highly interesting. Especially suitable for pay collections' female patrons." C. J. Roth

+ Library J 77:2072 D 1 '52 90w

"This book must have been written in great agony and great joy, for only a book so written can tear the emotions of the reader and break the heart with tragedy and triumph. It is also a courageous book." Margaret Parton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 30 '52 900w

"This is a book for many people—those anxious to understand the fundamental changes taking place in Asia, those interested in discovering a strong and attractive personality through her autobiography, or those who want a well-written love story." M. J. Tweedy

+ N Y Times p10 N 23 '52 410w

New Yorker 28:189 N 29 '52 140w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski

Spec 189:46 J1 4 '52 90w

Springfd Republican p6D D 28 '52 150w

Time 60:109 D 8 '52 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p401 Je 20 '52 110w

HAND, LEARNED. Spirit of liberty; papers and addresses; collected and with an introd. and notes, by Irving Dilliard, 262p $5.50 Knopf

304 Law. U.S.—Civilization 51-13215

"Judge Hand's endowments have long been familiar to readers of the law reports. Now, through the good offices of Irving Dilliard, they may be appreciated and enjoyed, by that larger company of lesser breeds without the law. Mr. Dilliard's editorial task is confined to an appreciative introductory biographical essay and prefatory statements about the occasions for which the various papers were prepared, with now and then a title of his own choosing. The arrangement is chronological." N Y Times

Reviewed by J. R. Pennock

Ann Am Acad 283:201 S '52 350w

Booklist 48:312 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by H. C. Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 29 '52 360w

"More important than his topics is the judge's fundamental conception of life and work. One feels his real concern and serious intention throughout, and in all that he has said there are an interest in truth, a humility, a tentativeness, a critical thoroughness and depth which speak to us not only of liberty but of maturity and wisdom." E. L. Snodgrass

+ Christian Century 69:901 Ag 6 '52 330w

"His writing is more than epigrammatic, for that implies only the clever. His beautifully styled phrases spring from a thinking through, a wrestling with some of the great philosophic questions." R. R. Brunn

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 22 '52 650w

"Learned Hand is beyond question the greatest living American Judge. . . Mr. Dilliard is not a lawyer, but a very distinguished journalist. He presents a man rather than a chapter of jurisprudence, and has done it well." A. A. Berle

+ Columbia Law R 52:811 Je '52 2150w

Kirkus 20:248 Ap 1 '52 200w

"We must be grateful to Mr. Dilliard for bringing the book into being; and he has edited and annotated it with care and intelligence." G. W. Alger

+ Nation 175:307 O 4 '52 950w

Reviewed by Eugene Gressman

New Repub 126:19 Je 2 '52 950w

"By enabling the common reader, the lover of good books, to know Learned Hand through the medium of this attractive little volume, Mr. Irving Dilliard has put us all in his debt." Felix Frankfurter

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 My 13 '52 2100w

Reviewed by T. R. Powell

+ N Y Times p4 My 4 '52 1100w

"Irving Dilliard of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, has performed one of the more useful public services of this or any year by simply gathering together thirty-four nonlegal papers and addresses by Learned Hand, introducing them with what he calls 'a personal appreciation,' and putting them into a book. . . Mr. Dilliard is astounded—and readers of 'The Spirit of Liberty' will be astounded too—at the depth and breadth of the man's wisdom, of his learning, of his compassion, and of his monumental struggle with himself and his era in his pursuit of truth in the deepest and darkest corners of his experience." Philip Hamburger

+ New Yorker 28:132 My 10 '52 1200w

Reviewed by H. W. Jones

Pol Sci Q 67:628 D '52 550w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
 San Francisco Chronicle p20 J1 13 '52
 260w

"By making available to the general reader the stimulating and eloquent non-legal papers and addresses of Judge Hand, Irving Dillard has performed a genuine public service. He has compiled a collection which should serve as a pungent antidote to much of the fuzzy thinking of our time." R. B. Morris
 + Sat R 35:16 My 3 '52 1400w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
 Springfield Republican p17A Je 15 '52
 240w

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:247 S '52 170w

HANDLIN, OSCAR. Uprooted; the epic story of the great migrations that made the American people. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 310p $4 Little

325.73 U.S.—Emigration and immigration
 51-13013

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"Professor Handlin has not fulfilled his promise. Instead of showing the effects of immigration on the 35,000,000 people who came to our shores in the nineteenth century, his book is actually a study of those immigrants only who came from the village background of central and southern Europe and were stranded in our eastern cities, notably New York. It is questionable how far the sweeping generalities of the book have a universal application, even to this group. . . The serious weakness of the book, however, lies in the feeble attempts to include other immigrant groups which, though numerically smaller, are important and have a history all their own." Karen Larsen

— Am Hist R 57:703 Ap '52 450w

Reviewed by H. P. Fairchild
 Am Soc R 17:387 Je '52 280w

"This is not, in either style or format, conventional or scholarly history. . . The style is not pedantic or heavy. The author is imaginative, sensitive, understanding. A tremendous amount of research and real depth of understanding lies behind the book. Laymen will enjoy this book; specialists will find it provocative and will admire the style and synthesis. This is literary history in the tradition of Parkman, Prescott, and Motley. It should be widely read." R. A. Brown

+ Ann Am Acad 281:221 My '52 400w

"I think we should not forget those people. They are part of our blood and our inheritance, and it is a good thing that Mr. Handlin somehow has touched the heart of their experience and recalled them to us. For 'The Uprooted,' besides being one of the best over-all accounts of immigrants yet written, is, I think, an act of piety on the part of the author. His own personally felt emotion, the memory of his own immigrant ancestors, lend a restrained dignity to his writing and give it that conviction of reality that transcends mere scholarship." Francis Russell

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 1 '52
 360w

"Dr. Handlin has discharged his responsibility admirably. An able scholar of immigration history, Dr. Handlin, in the present work, published without footnotes, reveals a mastery of historical data and rare insight and understanding of the manifold problems of the immigrant. The book is beautifully written, and many passages are truly moving." Carl Wittke
 + New Eng Q 25:119 Mr '52 700w

"In the performance of such a work of psychic reconstruction, the author has found it impossible to avoid concentrating upon a certain type of immigrant. The center of attention here is the peasant who bogs down in the slums of an Eastern city and becomes a sweated, unskilled laborer. This individual does represent one of the more important elements of immigration, but is far from being the whole. The author reserves his best eloquence, nevertheless, for a recital of the woes and isolation of such people, and his story is therefore not so much an epic as a kina or sustained lamentation."

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:56 Mr '52 330w

HANKE, LEWIS ULYSSES. Bartolomé de Las Casas: bookman, scholar and propagandist. 119p il $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Casas, Bartolomé de las

"In three well-written and well-documented essays, Mr. Hanke discusses Las Casas, 'the Apostle of the Indians,' as bookman, scholar (particularly, historian), and propagandist; he also examines the use made of Las Casas's works, especially the most famous of nine treatises published 400 years ago (Very Brief Account of the Destruction of the Indies), which was seized upon by Spain's enemies to promote the 'Black Legend' of the Spanish conquest." (Library J) Index.

"Highly recommended for university, large public and scholarly libraries with collections in the field of Latin American history." J. A. Borome

+ Library J 77:525 Mr 15 '52 130w

"In these lectures, given as a Rosenbach Fellow in Bibliography, Professor Hanke presents, in an admirably readable condensation of his years of research, a more objective view of Las Casas as a propagandist and as a scholar."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:159 Je '52 220w

HANSON, LAWRENCE, and HANSON, ELISABETH M. Marian Evans and George Eliot; a biography. 402p il $6 Oxford

B or 92 Eliot, George, pseud. of Mrs Mary Ann (Evans) Cross 52-12318

"In their latest volume of biography Mr. and Mrs. Hanson are concerned to present in modern terms, and in the light of new information now available, the fuller, more comprehensive portrait which has for so long been overdue. They have made full use of the discoveries of Dr. Gordon S. Haight in the Cross collection of papers in Yale University Library, and of the Leigh-Smith, Blackwood, Belloc and Congreve papers in this country. In particular, they have been able to give due weight to Marian Evans's passionate embroilments in the Brabant and Chapman Households." Times [London] Lit Sup

"There have been signs for some time that a George Eliot revival is under way—in England at least—and this fine, new, full-dress biography comes as further evidence of it. The Hansons have earned our gratitude by a diligent study of manuscript sources; they enlarge our previous knowledge of a great writer." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 28 '52
 320w

"For general purchase—and reading." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:1811 O 15 '52 100w

"The story of Marian Evans's transformation into George Eliot and of the relation between the two, which is the heart of the book, is told with sympathy and clarity, with no pressing of an over-simplified psychological solution to solve all the problems of her personality, yet without losing the steady picture of the developing individual in a mass of biographical detail." David Daiches

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 8 '52 400w

Reviewed by Whitney Balliett
 New Repub 127:21 D 22 '52 260w

"The new Life by Lawrence and Elisabeth Hanson puts the character of George Eliot in a plainer, more engaging and less speculative light than has been common with the subject. They are thorough biographers and they write with good sense, sympathy and care. If they have a fault it is too great a reserve." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:75 J1 19
 '52 2000w

"Drawing, as before, upon largely unpublished source material, [the authors] have disinterred a real woman from the stifling layers of eulogy heaped upon her by John Cross, her husband and official biographer. Nor is this any hurried job; Mr. Hanson began the work long before he turned to Jane Welsh, but was unable to proceed because essential

HANSON, LAWRENCE—Continued
manuscripts were until recently inaccessible."
De Lancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 N 23 '52
900w

New Yorker 28:154 O 11 '52 120w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 30 '52
190w

"It is the great virtue of Mr. and Mrs. Hanson's biography that they have brought out the connection between the rather dreary, unattractive woman . . . and the novelist and wife that in her middle life she became. Their method is one of self-effacing devotion to their sources; and, since they have had far more material at their disposal than any of their predecessors, they have produced a book that should be read by anyone who loves George Eliot's novels. It is a better piece of work than their recent study of Jane Welsh Carlyle, being far more modest in length and mercifully free from those raw gobbets of quotation that marred every page of that crowded narrative. Here their material has been digested into a straightforward story, and their list of sources and other references stowed away at the end." J. M. Cohen

+ Spec 189:103 J1 18 '52 900w

"The narrative, for narrative it is much more than new critical appraisal, is full and orderly. All the accumulated detail of so individual an experience and achievement is faithfully assembled and minutely documented here."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p528 Ag 15 '52 1150w

Reviewed by A. D. Culler

Yale R n s 42:316 winter '53 390w

HANSON, LAWRENCE, and HANSON, ELISABETH M. Necessary evil; the life of Jane Welsh Carlyle. 618p $7.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Carlyle, Jane Baillie (Welsh), Carlyle, Thomas 52-10222

"A full-length study of Jane Welsh Carlyle and, by extension, of the almost uninterrupted bout of hypochondria she and her husband shared during the forty years of their marriage. The book is composed almost entirely of excerpts from the Carlyles' letters, in alternation, to each other and to their friends." (New Yorker) Bibliography, Index.

Booklist 48:320 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 18 '52
360w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 14 '52
650w

Kirkus 20:244 Ap 1 '52 170w

"Excerpts from the letters are woven together skillfully and the result is a detailed picture of the puzzling relationship of the Carlyles, their families and friends—a book that is at once absorbing and exhausting—and altogether excellent." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:715 Ap 15 '52 140w

"There is at times too much of it, even when communicated by so captivating a correspondent as Mrs. Carlyle. But the great merit of this overlong biography is that its authors have, as far as possible, left the Carlyles to speak for themselves, individually and as man and wife. They have not taken sides." H. P. A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 F 6 '52 420w

Reviewed by H. M. Lynd

Nation 174:581 Je 14 '52 1100w

"An English-Scottish husband-and-wife writing team specializing in Victorian biography . . . have achieved the scoop that has long tantalized the ambitions of Carlyle students—putting the much-discussed marriage of Thomas Carlyle and Jane Welsh into a new and sounder perspective by giving us the definitive life of the latter." J. L. Davis

+ New Repub 127:20 J1 7 '52 1050w

"It is an important book, fair, delightful and perceptive. Necessary Evil: it was a marriage of wits, and that was Carlyle's excellent phrase for his wife." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:186 F 16 '52 2300w

"The Hansons would have done better to have made a shorter book, for there is much repetitiousness in the correspondence, and one tires of the perpetual hiring and firing of maidservants (to whom our sympathy goes out!) and the all-too-abundantly recorded petty annoyances of housekeeping. . . The final impression is that the real action, which gives significance to this domestic tragedy, is going on behind the scenes. While Jane scribbles her clever letters, her husband is at work upon 'The French Revolution' and 'Past and Present,' 'Cromwell' and 'Frederick.' He had his satisfactions; genius always has, but in this book we hear little of or from him save groans and whimperings." S. C. Chew

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 18 '52
650w

"The authors are scrupulously just to both Carlyles. They have done an excellent job of selection from the huge mass of material the self-absorbed pair left behind. 'Necessary Evil' is composed 'rather more than 95 per cent from manuscript sources,' chiefly letters and quotations from letters, many of them printed here for the first time, and the rest for the first time they were written, without partisan editing." Evelyn Eaton

+ N Y Times p5 My 18 '52 600w

New Yorker 28:139 My 24 '52 160w

"The Hansons have let Jane speak for herself in the letters that are caustic, humorously acid, kind and ruthless at the same time. Perhaps the real tragedy about Jane Carlyle was her complete dependence upon her husband and, at the same time, her insistence upon being the center of attraction which rightfully belonged to him." Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 25 '52
900w

Reviewed by G. N. Ray

Sat R 35:15 My 31 '52 800w

Reviewed by J. M. Cohen

Spec 188:180 F 8 '52 400w

Time 59:118 My 19 '52 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p124 F 15 '52
1300w

Reviewed by A. D. Culler

Yale R n s 42:316 winter '53 390w

HARANG, LEIV. Aurorae. 166p il $4.50 Wiley
523.5 [523.59] Auroras 51-14071

"A scientific study of the natural phenomena more popularly known as the 'aurora borealis,' or 'northern lights.' Accounts of associated phenomena, particularly magnetic storms, are included. It is addressed primarily to astrophysicists and to graduate students preparing for work in this field, nevertheless some passages—for example those dealing with the appearance of auroral displays—are nontechnical enough to be available to general readers." N Y New Tech Bks

"Here is a short, well illustrated book that sums up the current but still rather limited scientific knowledge of the subject." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:60 Ja 1 '52 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:82 N '51

HARASZTI, ZOLTAN. John Adams and the prophets of progress. 362p il $5 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Adams, John. Political science

52-5030

"The main part of John Adams's library, consisting of over three thousand volumes, is deposited in the Boston Public Library, while a number of other books which once belonged to him are preserved in the Boston Athenaeum and in the Adams Mansion at Quincy. More than a hundred of these volumes contain marginal notes by Adams. Some have only a few scattered sentences; others three to four thousand words each, and two no less than twelve thousand. Most of the books on which Adams commented are by eighteenth-century English and French writers—Bolingbroke, Rousseau, Voltaire, Turgot, and a dozen others. The purpose of the present volume is to bring these notes before the public." Pref

"There are a hundred interesting sidelights on John Adams' personality and career in this skillfully compiled and valuable book. Yet its chief value lies in its demonstration that Adams has not only seized upon a permanent political truth but knew how to defend it wittily and with almost infinite resourcefulness." L. H. Butterfield

+ Am Hist R 57:983 J1 '52 600w

"Mr. Haraszti not only has called public attention to this rich and relatively neglected collection of source materials; he has also written a very readable volume. It is to be hoped that this revelation of the value of the informal writings of John Adams will inspire the executors of the Adams Manuscript Trust. A more comprehensive edition of the papers of John Adams obviously is indicated." C. M. Thomas

+ Ann Am Acad 282:129 J1 '52 460w

Booklist 48:376 J1 15 '52

"This is primarily a book for student and scholar, not one for the general reader." R. M. Saunders

Canadian Forum 32:69 Je '52 260w

Reviewed by Melchior Palyi

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 20 '52 230w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 27 '52 750w

"This volume is a valuable addition to American history, dealing with the ideas of a man who contributed much to our early political development, but whose memory has been eclipsed by that of his more popular contemporaries."

+ Current Hist 22:228 Ap '52 70w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith

Ethics 62:302 J1 '52 240w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sinclair

+ Library J 77:525 Mr 15 '52 130w

"In spite of the very evident vanity and rigidity, the reader will hardly fail to find here a great man. The defects of character which are at first sight so striking disappear or sink into insignificance as one reads on." E. S. Morgan

+ New Eng Q 25:274 Je '52 1150w

"This original book is not one to read through at a sitting, but a book that any one who enjoys the commerce of ideas will dip into repeatedly. It is like listening to a 'town meeting of the air' between the greatest wits and philosophers of the eighteenth century." S. E. Morison

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 23 '52 1150w

"The countrymen of John Adams ought to know him better for the man, the thinker and the writer he actually was. . . In the present work Zoltan Haraszti, the Keeper of Rare Books and Editor of Publications in the Boston Public Library (where most of the books of the second President are stored), gives good reasons for this misunderstanding and does a great deal to correct it. He has undoubtedly made an important contribution to our knowledge of Adams, and, in my opinion, has written a fascinating book." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 13 '52 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 13 '52 250w

Reviewed by William Peden

Sat R 35:32 My 10 '52 650w

"A spry, scholarly picture of John Adams in his study is offered by Zoltan Haraszti, curator of the Boston Public Library's rare books section, in John Adams and the Prophets of Progress. Author Haraszti manages to write well up to the expert's mark without writing above the interested layman's head."

+ Time 59:106 Mr 24 '52 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p639 O 3 '52 1250w

"Mr. Haraszti has produced the best introduction to the mind of John Adams, and the best single work that has yet been written about him."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:170 Je '52 220w

HARBAGE, ALFRED BENNETT. Shakespeare and the rival traditions. 393p $6 Macmillan 822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation. Theater—Great Britain. English drama—History and criticism 52-4459

"[The author's] aim is to present a new synthesis of the facts about Elizabethan theatres and the content of Elizabethan plays, as a means of defining Shakespeare's materials and intentions. . . [He concentrates] upon the single central problem: How did the Elizabethan theatrical industry organize itself in order to serve its clientele, what was the view of life which this clientele brought into the theatres, and how was this view of life reflected or refracted in the plays?" (Intro) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:154 Ja 1 '53

Reviewed by W. P. Sears

Churchman 166:13 D 15 '52 90w

"Highly recommended to theatre and Shakespeare collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1514 S 15 '52 30w

"Mr. Harbage's new book is a learned, careful, and sometimes witty attempt to prove that the term 'the Elizabethan stage' is a misnomer." Marchette Chute

+ Nation 175:528 D 6 '52 650w

"Mr. Harbage's book will leave its mark not only upon literary history but upon literary interpretation as well. No discussion of the sort of man Shakespeare was can afford to disregard it." J. W. Krutch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 7 '52 750w

Reviewed by J. G. McManaway

N Y Times p6 N 16 '52 460w

HARCAVE, SIDNEY SAMUEL. Russia, a history. 665p 11 maps $7.50 Lippincott

947 Russia—History

52-1839

"This book is designed as a concise presentation of Russian history for those to whom the subject is relatively unfamiliar. For that reason, an organization neither strictly chronological nor strictly topical has been used. . . The greater emphasis has been given to the periods following the establishment of the empire, those during which there is a marked interrelation of Russian and world history. At the same time, an effort has been made not to slight those aspects of the earlier periods which affect directly the developments in the later." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"The most substantial part of Professor Harcave's book deals with 'modern Russian history.' In general, the threads of political, diplomatic, economic, and intellectual development within imperial Russia are carefully presented. The treatment of the late nineteenth and early twentieth century revolutionary, nationalist, and liberal movements in Russia is first-rate. All in all, Mr. Harcave's book should be welcomed by students as a more than competent effort to produce a usable one-volume text. It will, however, have to be used with caution, principally because of its skimping on the earliest times in Russian history." David Hecht

+ Ann Am Acad 283:224 S '52 330w

School & Society 76:287 N 1 '52 30w

"It is a straightforward, clearly written, and well organized work. Cultural, economic, and social aspects of Russian history are not neglected; political history, however, and foreign relations are given most consideration. While interpretation is not missing, it is rather subdued. The presentation, including the last chapter, 'The Post-War Period, 1945-52,' which traces recent developments and contains a discussion of the Cold war, Korean conflict, is calm and impartial." A. D. Low

+ Social Educ 16:302 O '52 350w

HARCLEROAD, FRED F., and ALLEN, WILLIAM H., eds. Audio-visual administration; contributors: William Allen [and others]. 118p il pa $3.25 Brown, W.C.

371.33 Audio-visual education 51-7548

"Both planning and practical application are covered by this selection of material based on audio-visual administrative conferences held at San Diego State College, 1947-1951. The 23 contributors discuss purchasing, housing, distributing, and servicing functions and the instructional use of audio-visual materials in public school systems and colleges. Some overlapping of material; no index." Booklist

Booklist 48:275 My 1 '52

School & Society 75:126 F 23 '52 30w

HARD, WALTER R. Matter of fifty houses. 90p $3 Vermont bk. shop, 5 College st, Middlebury, Vt.

811 52-12319

A collection of poems in free verse about Vermont, where there are many villages made up of "a matter of fifty houses," and of the people who live in them.

"There is wit, wisdom and down-to-earth common sense in your Vermonter which sees the light of day only through a book of this kind. . . The stories in this book are enriched by unpremeditated talk, talk that is heard around the stove in the country store." W. W. Cunningham

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 11 '52 430w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 77:2175 D 15 '52 70w

"In this last gallery fewer of the pictures are broadly comic, and more of them provocative of smiles or thoughtful laughter. The character strokes are subtler, and the use of understatement more skillful and suggestive." H. E. Woodbridge

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 D 7 '52 550w

HARDING, HAROLD FRIEND, ed. Age of danger [major speeches on American problems]. 561p $3.25 Random house

973.92 U.S.—History—20th century. Speeches, addresses, etc. 52-5157

"The Age of Danger aims to give students of communication and of public affairs good materials and good models. The speeches, many of which have not been previously published, should also be of interest to the general reader. . . The sixty-odd addresses and discussions included here are intended as subject matter for present-day students. More than a thousand speeches were considered—either by the test of reading or listening. Most of those finally selected come within the eventful years 1946-1952." (Pref) Index of speakers and addresses.

Booklist 48:357 J1 1 '52

"Not a book for quick selling, but one that should gradually find its place for study of current issues."

+ Kirkus 20:271 Ap 15 '52 260w

School & Society 75:367 Je 7 '52 20w

HARDY, KAY (MRS DOUGLAS JOHN CONNAH). How to make your own slipcovers; il. by the author. 127p $3.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy 747 [645.48] Upholstery 52-5052

"Step by step directions, with diagrams and drawings by the author, cover chairs, couches, dressing tables, stools, beds, including headboards, cushions, bolsters, and other slipcoverable pieces. The author starts out by telling how to prepare furniture for covering and finishes with tips on the care of slipcovers once they are made." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 49:7 S 1 '52

"Women who have never attempted this type of sewing will be encouraged to brighten up their homes with slipcovers after glancing over this book. It is designed for beginners as well as those who want to tackle complicated problems like odd shaped sofas and chaises longues." Anne Douglas

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 S 7 '52 100w

Reviewed by R. H. Dillon

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 18 '52 30w

HARDY, WILLIAM GEORGE. The unfulfilled. 334p $3 Appleton

51-8664

Story of a Canadian family during the years 1941 to 1951. It is chiefly the story of the husband and father, Gregory Rolph, and his reactions and feelings towards his own family, towards his friends and neighbors in Canada and in the United States, towards the war, economic conditions, and international rivalries.

Reviewed by Ellen Rogers

Canadian Forum 31:240 Ja '52 140w

Kirkus 20:88 F 1 '52 200w

"The Unfulfilled' is a solid, rather old-fashioned novel of problems. It is concerned with three things: the fraternal but not always friendly rivalry between Canada and the United States, with Canada as the younger brother, with the growing pains of North America in the ungentle hands of finance capital and with the struggles of the traditional liberal alternately stimulated and smothered by a world of industrial production, finance and change. . . The author, evidently liberal himself, never slants the tale too obviously, and never forgets to tell it in terms of his people."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 27 '52 230w

Reviewed by Stuart Keate

N Y Times 64 Mr 30 '52 750w

HARE, RICHARD. Pioneers of Russian social thought; studies of non-Marxian formation in nineteenth-century Russia and of its partial revival in the Soviet Union. 307p il $4.50 Oxford

923 Sociologists, Russia—Biography

51-13819

"This is not an exhaustive history of Russian social thought but a collection of portraits of some distinguished Russian personalities of the nineteenth century. The author has deliberately omitted any account of the early Russian Marxists, but deals, of course, with the problems of Russian Marxism in his essays on Herzen and Bakunin. His selection includes Westernizers and Slavophiles, conservatives and radicals." Commonweal

Reviewed by E. J. Simmons

Am Hist R 57:677 Ap '52 550w

"Mr. Hare has given us a highly interesting study of social thinkers whose lives and works are hardly known in the West. The writing is not always in the same class as the scholarship; and for a volume of disconnected studies an index of names is woefully inadequate." David Mitrany

+ Ann Am Acad 281:248 My '52 480w

"His well-written essays offer much interesting material, especially for those who are unable to read the works of the Russian thinkers in the original." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 55:334 Ja 4 '52 80w

"The chief value of Hare's book is the manner in which he relates the representative Russians of the last century to the contemporary political scene in Soviet Russia. He also shows us how those nineteenth-century figures are evaluated in Russia today. . . Hare's book is more than an important volume on history. It is a highly topical and instructive work in the best sense. It throws a good deal of light upon the enigma of Stalinist Russia." Rene Fuenoep-Miller

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 6 '52 600w

"At a time when our knowledge of the ideas and impulses that have shaped the Russian character is perilously deficient an enlightening book, written with insight, animation and assurance, should have a warm reception. By a happy inspiration Mr. Hare has side-stepped the current hostility towards Marxist ideologists and resurrected some Slavic reformers of the last century who were individually significant, authentically Russian, but indifferent or opposed to Marxian formulas."

+ Sat R 35:59 Mr 8 '52 190w

"The best chapters in the book are those that relate to the mid-century Slavophiles. They form an attractive group, and Mr. Hare has gone back to their original writings, and produced his own re-assessment of them. . . Taken in all, this is an uneven book, both in conception and in execution; and it may be suspected that the author could have done better with a more rigidly defined subject. Nor has much attention been paid to the amenities of style."

Times [London] Lit Sup p728 N 16 '51 1000w

HARK, ANN. Blue hills and shoofly pie in Pennsylvania Dutchland; drawings by Oliver Grimley. 284p $3.75 Lippincott

974.8 [917.48] Germans in Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania—Social life and customs 52-9537

Descriptions of the Pennsylvania Dutch country, its people, places and customs. It is arranged as a book of months, and under each month are chapters about festivals during that time.

Booklist 49:87 N 1 '52

"A chatty, and usually charming memoir." + Kirkus 20:537 Ag 15 '52 140w

"Style folksy and as hearty as precious writing allows; too bad to so let it come between reader and attractive subject matter, as to preclude first-rate job. Art work undistinguished. Recommended." Karl Brown

+ — Library J 77:1898 N 1 '52 60w

"A charming book, informal, anecdotal, rich with love and affectionate memories which do not, however, detract in any way from the very deep knowledge and information it contains. . . Any one interested in the United States will find 'Blue Hills and Shoofly Pie' that rare thing, delightful reading and at the same time a necessary and welcome addition to a library of research." Struthers Burt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 2 '52 550w

"A pleasant adventure in Pennsylvania Dutch country (for the most part), and of vanilla-pie-flavored observations concerning the people and their culture." W. M. Teller

N Y Times p20 O 26 '52 300w

"Exploring a rich treasury of folklore and finding fresh beauty in the blue hills of the Pennsylvania Dutch country side gave Miss Hark subject matter for a book that offers escape reading in the best sense." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 30 '52 120w

HARKINS, PHILIP. Center ice. 208p $2.50 Holiday

52-3949

A story about pro-hockey, for boys of twelve to sixteen.

Booklist 49:91 N 1 '52

Kirkus 20:459 Ag 1 '52 110w

"Philip Harkins, himself a former semi-pro player, provides plenty of fast playing scenes that have all the thrills of a box seat at Madison Square Garden. What we miss here is a good plot. When Mr. Harkins gets out of the rink he's on pretty thin ice." J. M. C.

+ — N Y Times pt2, p26 N 16 '52 120w

"An engrossing story of sport on ice." W. H. Baker

+ San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 16 '52 20w

HARKINS, WILLIAM DRAPER. Physical chemistry of surface films; with a foreword by Peter Debye. 413p il $10 Reinhold

541.8 [541.39] Surface tension 52-6111

"During his life (1875-1951) the author carried on many original investigations in physical chemistry; and this volume is essentially a summarized statement of his findings, coordinated with the published results of other workers. The first three chapters have appeared in Alexander's Colloid Chemistry. The fourth and fifth are not reprints, but the sixth chapter by E. J. W. Verwey is also a reprint from Colloid Chemistry." (Library J) Bibliography of the 270 publications of the author. Index.

"In spite of the fragmentary nature of the work it is a collection of basic knowledge that should be added to chemical collections used by graduate chemists." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1210 J1 '52 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:53 J1 '52

"Harkins was an experimenter of the highest caliber, and the possessor of unlimited energy and enthusiasm. He has enriched surface chemistry with precision data in a number of important places. His theoretical contributions consist mostly of the application of classical thermodynamics to surface phenomena, and throughout one feels that he himself is aware that ordinary thermodynamics, when applied to surface energy, contains many inconsistencies."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:330 S '52 160w

HARKNESS, GEORGIA ELMA. Modern rival of Christian faith; an analysis of secularism. 223p $2.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

211 Secularism, Christianity 52-7073

"Defining secularism as 'the organization of life as if God did not exist,' Dr. Harkness provocatively discusses Christianity's rival secular faiths, suggesting practical ways for making Christian hope effective. Index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:310 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:156 Ap '52 40w

"It is a delight to read a book of such clarity, devout spirit and prevailing fairness. A remarkable range of subjects can be found dealt with in this modest volume, often with penetration and wisdom lacking in many a specialized and technically worded book. Moreover, any reader who thinks that only the prophets of doom can be devastating to complacency should try reading this testament of prophetic hope." L. H. DeWolf

+ Christian Century 69:644 My 28 '52 1000w

Reviewed by W. L. Caswell

Churchman 166:17 My 1 '52 250w

"This very readable little book has a secondary title, 'An Analysis of Secularism.' If it seems to be more about Christianity than about secularism, that is because Georgia Harkness, who is professor of applied theology in the Pacific School of Religion, has 'stuck to her last' as a theologian. She has presented a Christian answer to the various 'secular faiths' of our time, which she lists in this order: scientism, humanism, democracy, nationalism, racism, and fascism, capitalism and communism." F. E. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 Mr 9 '52 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 4 '52 70w

HARLING, ROBERT. Paper palace. 248p $3 Harper

52-5924

Deals with life in Fleet Street. "It is a story of the Columnist, the Editor and the Baron, a newspaper Baron who writes an anonymous obituary of a Communist. The researches into the reason why he wrote it, and the resultant blackmailing of the Baron, the elevation of the Editor to Managing Director and Editor-in-Chief and the elevation of the Columnist to a correspondentship in New York, form [the story]." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

Bookmark 11:235 J1 '52 50w

"One of the best stories to come out of England in years is 'The Paper Palace.'" Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 15 '52 360w

Kirkus 20:199 Mr 15 '52 140w

HARLING, ROBERT—Continued

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 15 '51 70w

"Detective story, Fleet Street satire—call it what you will—The Paper Palace is goodish entertainment of a slick kind. Unfortunately Mr. Harling has chosen to write in a sub-Raymond Chandler manner which he cannot manage." John Richardson

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:688 Je 16 '51 180w

"When the jacket of 'The Paper Palace' quotes a British provincial newspaper as declaring this novel to be 'the goods, the real stuff on Fleet Street,' I can only say that I gravely doubt whether that's what it is. It is, though, a memorably well written story with much originality in it. Robert Harling can create atmosphere and tension, and when he feels so inclined, he can make the tale move like an express train." Robert Walthman

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 15 '52 440w

"The author knows his Fleet Street as well as Wensley knew the next day's paper, and he has written a brilliant and original novel. It is at once a cool comment on the craze for power, a relentless study of blackmail in the upper reaches of the fourth estate and a disturbing aside on latter-day romance." Roger Pippett

+ N Y Times p17 Je 15 '52 250w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 29 '52 270w

"Robert Harling's first novel, a tale of suspense built against an authentic English newspaper background, is a slick performance. Told in the first person, smooth as plastic and bright with razor-edge ironies, it's a sure-fire guarantee against the spring slumbers. It won't win prizes but it definitely will win friends." Charles Lee

+ Sat R 35:17 My 31 '52 270w

"Whenever the author remembers, it is written in a perfectly appalling style, a cross between Hemingway and Anita Loos, but his story is so good that he himself is often carried away by it to write simply and well." Marghanita Laski

+ Spec 185:698 My 25 '51 170w

"A racy narrative told in a style faintly reminiscent of Runyon. As real people Mr. Harling's characters are improbable, but they are amusing, and the exaggeration is reduced by the setting in which they are placed and the speed of the narrative. This is not the thoughtful novel of modern journalism that is still to be written, but it is an enjoyable story."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p401 Je 29 '51 180w

Wis Lib Bul 48:173 Jl '52

HARLOW, VINCENT TODD. Founding of the second British empire, 1763-1793; 2v; v 1, Discovery and revolution. 664p maps $8.75 Longmans

942.073 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. (52-11742)

"The first of two volumes in which Professor Harlow describes the Founding of what has come to be known as the Second British Empire. The author takes 1793 as the proper place at which to finish and thereby emphasises one of his chief purposes in writing this survey—the killing of the old idea that Britain lost the American colonies, had a rest of ten years and then set busily about founding an entirely new and entirely different kind of Empire. . . . The first chapters of this volume go right back to the earliest Pacific explorations and all the chapters take into account the parallel social, economic and political events in Great Britain. Of the last six chapters, three deal with Shelburne's Imperial Policy, as it affected America, France, Spain and Holland, one deals with Reciprocity between the United States and the new Empire, and two deal with Ireland." (Publisher's note) Index.

Current Hist 23:393 D '52 130w

"Professor Harlow deserves well, not only of his professional colleagues but of all those who still seek (in spite of cynical professional discouragement) for some guidance through the present perplexities of national policy from the successes and the failures of the past." Max Beloff

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 11 '52 420w

"This is not an easy book to be yawned over in an arm-chair; it calls for sustained attention, and deserves it. Not only is it a monument of learning; it offers a lesson to be applied in the revolutions of our own age, when a plea for reconciliation and a strict concern with utilities may be more prudent than considerations of political sovereignty." C. E. Carrington

+ Spec 189:437 O 3 '52 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p548 Ag 22 '52 1350w

HARNSBERGER, CAROLINE THOMAS. Man of courage, Robert A. Taft; foreword by Lloyd Bowers Taft. 370p il $3.50 Wilcox & Follett

B or 92 Taft, Robert Alphonso. Campaign literature, 1952 52-1590

"A campaign biography of Robert A. Taft. There is no indication that this is an official or approved biography nor does it appear that any new or primary sources have been used. Listed sources include less than two score recent and easily available books and magazine articles. One quarter of the book is devoted to Mr. Taft's antecedents, a second quarter to his own personal and political life." Library J

"As a factual account of Taft's ancestry, life, and political record the book is thoro and accurate. It is illuminating, as far as it goes, in dissecting the Taft personality, but readers already familiar with his political creed may wish that Mrs. Harnsberger had devoted more space to personal glimpses and less to the record." Laurence Burd

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 6 '52 380w

"It is no aspersion to call this book about Senator Robert A. Taft a campaign biography. It is a very useful and interesting document." E. D. Canham

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 7 '52 500w

Kirkus 20:256 Ap 1 '52 170w

Reviewed by Harold Lancour

Library J 77:589 Ap 1 '52 100w

"A campaign biography is not supposed to be a literary masterpiece, and this one is no exception. Its purpose would appear to be to depict the senior Senator from Ohio and peripatetic candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination as a man of wit and humor, stalwart Americanism, warm affections and unswerving principle. To one who has never met Senator Taft, the book will go a small way toward this objective. Actually, it falls short of revealing the genuine charm Bob Taft displays in a small gathering." H. B. Hinton

N Y Times p16 Ap 20 '52 500w

HARRINGTON, MILDRED PRISCILLA. Southwest in children's books. 148p $2.50 La. state univ. press

016.978 Southwest—Juvenile literature—Bibliography 52-8696

"The purpose of this bibliography is to reveal the customs, culture, geography, history, and flavor of the Southwest. In carrying out this purpose, it has been necessary to include some adult material for teachers, librarians, and parents to use, which have little literary appeal for elementary-grade children for whom the list is designed. These shortcomings are recognized by the editor. Arrangement of the body of the booklist is by state. The index by author, title, and subjects is quite complete." Library J

"As a completed whole, this admirably made book is better than the sum of its parts, for the six states represent such diversity in population and geography as to make even a mere listing of books about them colorful and exciting. An index which includes subjects as well as authors and titles added infinitely to the bibliography's usefulness." L. C. Johnston

+ Horn Bk 28:251 Ag '52 140w

Reviewed by E. C. Alexander
Library J 77:802 My 1 '52 80w

"Of obvious value to libraries everywhere."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 27 '52 100w

"Well indexed with good descriptions of the books listed."

+ School & Society 75:207 Mr 29 '52 10w

"This is a distinguished and important work in a field which is still largely unexplored."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:219 Je '52 190w

HARRINGTON, RICHARD. Face of the Arctic; a cameraman's story in words and pictures of five journeys into the far North; maps by Bunji Tagawa. 369p $6 Schuman

998 [919.8] Arctic regions. Eskimos

"A photographer's experience in the Far North where he found the Eskimos had developed a high degree of serenity despite their daily fight for survival." Library J

Booklist 49:123 D 1 '52

Kirkus 20:495 Ag 1 '52 160w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 77:1649 O 1 '52 60w

"Most Arctic books have a tendency to be good along some narrow line, flanked by weaknesses. . . But here is a well-written book by a sensitive and sensible observer who is a magnificent photographer and who describes and interprets in a relaxed and thoroughly likeable, satisfactory fashion." Evelyn Stefansson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 D 28 '52 400w

"The book is attractively written and beautifully illustrated. More than that, it is the story of an artist who has returned time and again to the simple, skillful and courageous Inuit he has learned to admire. The publishers also deserve praise for the attractive design of the book, the high quality of the photographic reproductions, and the simple, effective maps." Trevor Lloyd

+ N Y Times p7 N 30 '52 550w

HARRIS, BURTON. John Colter, his years in the Rockies. 180p $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 Colter, John. Yellowstone national park 52-12137

John Colter was a member of the Lewis and Clark expedition, and is credited with the discovery and initial exploration of the region now known as Yellowstone National Park. It is the purpose of this book to set forth what is surely true, probably true, or fictitious in the great mass of legend and tall tales which has developed around his exploits.

Booklist 49:31 S 15 '52

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 12 '52 140w

Kirkus 20:446 Jl 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown
Library J 77:1397 S 1 '52 110w

Reviewed by H. N. Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 N 16 '52 600w

"The neglected trapper period in our history is achieving a memorable renaissance. John Colter is the latest to be saved from oblivion in a well-annotated study of the man and his times." Caroline Bancroft

+ N Y Times p44 N 23 '52 350w

"Because Colter was the first white man to see the wonders which thousands nowadays visit each year in the Yellowstone, his story has historical importance of the first order. . . Now a careful student, Burton Harris, no professor but a New York businessman who was brought up in Wyoming's Big Horn Basin

—the Colter country—has published [this book] in which he has brought the true story of this extraordinary man up to date."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 10 '52 500w

"Burton Harris has written this book because he was brought up in the Big Horn Basin of Wyoming, where Colter could have been the first white man to set foot. Mr. Harris is not of the school of historians who put words in their subjects' mouths. He sticks with fidelity to such facts as he has been able to distill from the faint remnants left to us of John Colter's past. Where he is not certain of the events which took place, Mr. Harris uses tentative language. . . This unquestionably is not as exciting as relating, word for word, what John Colter said to Meriwether Lewis as they were pursued by a grizzly bear, but Mr. Harris's cautious style does instill confidence in the reader interested in history." R. L. Neuberger

+ Sat R 35:27 S 13 '52 750w

HARRIS, EDWARD. Up the Missouri with Audubon; [his] journal; ed. and annot. by John Francis McDermott. 222p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

978 Missouri river and valley. Audubon, John James 52-6316

Edward Harris was a New Jersey gentleman-farmer and amateur ornithologist who accompanied Audubon on trips in 1837 and in 1843. This is his account of the trip on the Missouri river to the Yellowstone and back to St Louis, April 25 to October 19, 1843.

Booklist 48:194 F 15 '52

Reviewed by John Bayless
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ja 20 '52 150w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates
Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 27 '52 360w

"In his admirable editing of the journal, John Francis McDermott has given needed information, added annotations that set the material in its perspective and contributed a long introduction that provides the reader with the necessary background of the trip." E. W. Teale

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 24 '52 410w

"As editor, Mr. McDermott has done the job exactly right giving us Harris' intelligent, businesslike and often vigorous notes unrevised and uncorrected, for errors in such cases are forgivable. His introduction and footnotes enhance enjoyment of the text, and the University of Oklahoma Press has done its part, adding illustrations both appropriate and charming. Altogether a rare book with the bite and excitement of authentic history in it." W. M. Teller

+ N Y Times p9 D 30 '51 800w

"This book is sound complementary reading for the student of Audubon and for the naturalist, professional and amateur alike. . . Sound history and easy reading for anyone with a genuine interest in the field." W. H. Hutchinson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 10 '52 470w

Springf'd Republican p19A Je 1 '52 120w

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:4 Mr '52 230w

HARRIS, MRS FLORENCE (LA GANKE). Vegetable cookery. 288p il $3 Wyn

641.65 Cookery (vegetables) 52-6924

"Cooking, canning, freezing and pressure cooking of every possible vegetable is included in this reference handbook. . . The vitamin chart makes it particularly good for schools and institutions. Sponsored by the Vegetable Growers Association of America, this book should be an inspiration to many cooks to give the poor, often-neglected vegetable a better break." Library J

Bookmark 11:231 Jl '52 20w

HARRIS, F. L.—Continued

"There have been vegetable cookbooks that were, perhaps, more original, more imaginative, but I know of no other that is such a sound general coverage, including something of some new vegetables (new to the average housewife, such as fennel, leeks, etc.), and new ways of using old ones."

+ Kirkus 20:208 Mr 15 '52 180w

"Invaluable to the cook who is obliged to do things in a big way." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:1202 Jl '52 70w

"Florence La Ganke Harris is a home economist of long experience and she knows that most vegetable cookery lacks even a pinch of imagination. In her book she describes methods of cooking vegetables and gives recipes for everything from artichokes to zucchini. . . . This is a practical book, but there is still room for something with a little more flair." Charlotte Turgeon

+ N Y Times p12 Jl 27 '52 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ag 3 '52 40w

HARRIS, FOREST KLAIRE. Electrical measurements. 784p $8 Wiley

621.37 Electric measurements 51-13122

"A substantial treatment of the principles and techniques of a wide range of electrical measurements. The chapter on potentiometers—to take an example—is 61 pages long and covers the history, principles and uses of all the important varieties of this instrument together with citations of the related literature." (Library J) Index.

"Suitable as a textbook for advanced students and as a reference manual for use in university and industrial laboratories and in libraries." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:722 Ap 15 '52 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:38 My '52

"The present work is a worthy successor to earlier books now outdated and to books dealing with particular aspects of the problem. Indeed, the book offers an unusual combination of virtues. Readers having only occasional use for a particular instrument or metering circuit will find the text most readable and the necessary information presented in a form easy to locate."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:215 Je '52 200w

HARRIS, MARK. City of discontent. 403p $4.50 Bobbs

B or 92 Lindsay, Nicholas Vachel 52-5806

An interpretative biography of Vachel Lindsay. "It is not scholarly, pedantic biography, but instead employs the techniques of fiction to present a more vivid portrait of the man and his times. He tries to catch the spirit, not the letter, of Lindsay's life." (Chicago Sunday Tribune)

Booklist 48:279 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:180 My '52 40w

Reviewed by Walter Harding

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 23 '52 420w

"Mark Harris has accomplished an amazingly good piece of interpretive writing with what would have seemed to this reviewer rather unpromising materials. He has been indefatigable in his collection and arrangement of data; the biography has a real note of authenticity even though it is evident that many of the details of situation and conversation must have been supplied by the author's sympathetic imagination." C. T. Houtp

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 10 '52 650w

"This is not the definitive biography of Vachel Lindsay, not even the book about him. It is colorful and human, sentimental, crudely written. . . . But it is a lively, swift-moving, sympathetic story of a man who deserves to be remembered; in no sense literary or critical, but a book people will enjoy, and suffer over, and not soon forget. Recommended." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 77:526 Mr 15 '52 110w

Nation 175:18 Jl 5 '52 90w

"Mr. Harris has written a stimulating and exasperating book. He has studied all the records of Vachel Lindsay and his times, has provocatively interpreted some of them and has ignored others. The book is exasperating because, to get at its ideas, the reader must penetrate its style. It is written throughout in the historical present, with occasional lapses into fragments of Joycean stream of consciousness." DeLancey Ferguson

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ap 6 '52 850w

"Whether or not you are interested in Vachel Lindsay or his poems, here is a piece of fine writing and here, too, is a piece of America, just about one generation back." A. K.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 18 '52 220w

"We are not chanters and visionaries today, and it may be that for the moment there is no other way, but it is excellent to have this book to jolt us into realizing again that it is proper for a poet to write about Kalamazoo, a broncho, the buffalo, a governor, a calliope. We praise Mr. Harris for the fluent shrewdness with which he has praised Vachel Lindsay." Paul Engle

+ Sat R 35:13 Jl 12 '52 600w

"Interpretive, and to quite an extent fictional, this biography of Vachel Lindsay does not appraise the man, it fashions his likeness. . . . Mr. Harris, a novelist as well as a biographer, manages to convey with an almost startling immediacy the complex individuality and the conjectured experience of Vachel Lindsay. The reader will witness through this bard and mountebank, this troubadour and sponger, this wild and adolescent evangelist what it costs to crusade against Mammon."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:137 Je '52 230w

HARRIS, MARKHAM. High morning fog. 316p $3.50 Lippincott

52-5097

"A comedy of human relations" in which the hero is an editor of a children's encyclopedia. He does not like his job very much, and when he finally resigns, things begin to grow better. He gets a better job; helps his sister; and marries the woman of his choice.

Booklist 48:378 Jl 15 '52

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 13 '52 210w

Kirkus 20:235 Ap 1 '52 160w

"Somewhat over-written in a too-smart style with one or two glimmers of perceptive writing." H. L. Roth

Library J 77:1195 Jl '52 90w

"Here is material for a very good novel, indeed, but 'High Morning Fog' is only partially realized. The trouble is that in his description and narration Mr. Harris tries too hard for subtlety. In spite of all this painful striving for an unusual mode of communication, however, the story does come through for the reader who is patient enough to look for Mr. Harris' competent understanding of people."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 15 '52 260w

"There is certainly nothing here of much significance but, on the other hand, a refreshing wholesomeness comes through the rather ponderously humorous writing. The family relationships are well done, and the publishing house is described with a splendid clarity. Had Mr. Harris' people been a little brighter (something which no amount of niceness need preclude) his book would have been much better reading." Lucia Reiss

+ N Y Times p16 Je 15 '52 350w

"There really seems to be very little reason to encourage novels like this." C. W. W.

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 24 '52 150w

"Pleasant but rather ambling light novel."

+ Sat R 35:20 Jl 5 '52 150w

HARRIS, SARA. Wayward ones. 220p $3 Crown
52-10774

A story depicting life in a reformatory for girls.

"A grim book, strong meat to be sure, but in this reader's opinion, required reading for anyone working with delinquents, certainly for judges and persons working in reform schools." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:1901 N 1 '52 80w

"As in most novels about juvenile delinquency, 'The Wayward Ones' reads like a fictionalized probation officer's report. . . Although Sara Harris shows skill in dramatizing some of her minor characters, and compassion in writing about her distasteful subject, Bessie—and therefore this book about Bessie—is merely a device for making a sociological point."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 9 '52 290w

"While there is undoubtedly a social problem in our correctional institutions, and it may well take the form here indicated, Miss Harris's treatment is more designed to pander to the prurient than to enlighten the genuinely concerned." E. J. F.

— Sat R 35:44 N 22 '52 150w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. Economics of New England; case study of an older area. 317p maps $4.75 Harvard univ. press

330.974 New England—Economic conditions
52-5031

"There has been transpiring a deadly serious economic tug-of-war between the North and the South. A not too encouraging result has been an economic decline in the traditionally powerful northern states especially in New England. The whys and wherefores of this unhappy situation are forthrightly discussed in [this book]. . . The author is a Harvard professor of economics." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Reviewed by L. C. Fitch

Am Econ R 42:996 D '52 1700w

Reviewed by H. F. Williamson

Ann Am Acad 283:203 S '52 330w

"New Englanders and others interested in regional economics should welcome any publication which makes a contribution to the understanding of New England's problems. Unfortunately, this book will not enjoy much welcome on that score. In it the author furnishes no new approach to the solution of New England's problems, but confuses and obscures much of the work of the committee of economists on New England published only last year by the Council of Economic Advisers: 'The New England Economy' (July, 1951)." A. C. Neal

— Christian Science Monitor p9 My 13 '52 650w

"This study of New England highlights the costs of a highly dynamic, competitive society. It challenges us to find ways to reinvigorate older areas. . . Professor Harris' book is a welcome analysis of the problems of New England." Solomon Barkin

+ New Repub 127:22 J1 14 '52 900w

"Notwithstanding [some] unsettled and debatable matters, this book serves to direct attention to the problems of regional economics, to identify the many interrelated factors in these problems, and to suggest many effective uses of already existing statistics and statistical techniques in their analysis." B. P. Whitaker

+ Pol Sci Q 67:608 D '52 850w

"A compelling and timely study, 'The Economics of New England' is a resounding call to action. In its tempered but telling analysis of New England's economic vacillations, this book counsels clear thinking in place of dismay, foresight in place of inertia." G. A. Panichas

+ Springf'd Republican p5C J1 13 '52 600w

"Full of information, the book also argues a point of view with forthrightness and courage, and should interest both laymen and specialists."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:274 S '52 170w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN, ed. Schumpeter: social scientist. 142p il $4 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Schumpeter, Joseph Alois 51-7762

"Eighteen distinguished social scientists have tried to evaluate the works of a great social scientist and to give the high lights of his life." School & Society

"Since the appraisers of Schumpeter's work, whose contributions are included in this volume, are distinguished scientists in their own right, the reader will learn not only of Schumpeter's economics but in addition will find himself in a position where he can trace the reflection of the work of a towering figure in the minds of other outstanding thinkers. This is indeed the principal advantage of a symposium such as the present." H. W. Spiegel

+ Ann Am Acad 280:189 Mr '52 390w

Current Hist 22:104 F '52 50w

Foreign Affairs 30:671 J1 '52 10w

"This volume shares several of the usual shortcomings of multiple authorship: repetition, unevenness and varying levels of discourse. Some deserve a lasting place in economic literature; others are of no more than passing interest. Some can be easily understood by an intelligent layman; others are highly technical. All in all, the volume—edited by Harvard economist Seymour Harris—should be of considerable interest to economists and others interested in the development of economic ideas." L. V. Chandler

+ — N Y Times p22 D 9 '51 450w

School & Society 75:94 F 9 '52 40w

HARRISON, GEORGE BAGSHAW. Shakespeare's tragedies. 277p $3 Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Criticism and interpretation 52-2994

"The eminent Shakespearean critic keeps in mind that Shakespeare wrote his plays to be acted in theaters, not to become sources of philosophical or psychological speculation in universities. He defines tragedy as a 'play which when adequately acted before a suitable audience can produce a complete cleansing of the emotions,' and sets up for its necessary conditions a sense of morality, a feeling for the pathos of human suffering, superb technique, and inevitability. The first of three volumes on Shakespeare's plays." Booklist

Booklist 48:375 J1 15 '52

Reviewed by Milton Crane

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 21 '52 180w

"It is written with ingratiating and readable simplicity founded on sound scholarship. Index. Recommended for large Shakespeare collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1307 Ag '52 20w

New Statesman & Nation 42:511 N 3 '51 200w

"So short a book cannot supply all the assistance needed for complete enjoyment, but occasional remarks about versification, characterization, plot structure, dramatic technique and Elizabethan staging illuminate the plays and suggest the riches that may be discovered by continued reading and, above all, by frequently seeing the tragedies performed. As might be expected of the editor of the 'Elizabethan Journals,' Mr. Harrison gives examples of the intrusion of contemporary events into Shakespeare's texts, but he does not lose himself or his readers in antiquarian lore." J. G. McManaway

+ N Y Times p12 J1 13 '52 360w

Sat R 36:41 Ja 10 '53 140w

"There are several debatable theories, as in the equation of 'a sense of lacrimae rerum' with 'a profound moral sense.' Yet for those who still read their Shakespeare through Bradley's eyes, and are not aware of all that has been written about him of recent years, this book should be both informative and stimulating."

+ — Spec 187:616 N 9 '51 230w

HARRISON, G. B.—Continued

"Here are the seeds of controversy, but every attentive reader will find in Dr. Harrison's pages stimulus and illumination."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p26 Ja 11 '52
800w

HARRISON, JOHN BAUGHAM. This age of global strife. 470p il maps $7.50 Lippincott 909.82 [940.5] Twentieth century. World politics. World war, 1939-1945 52-6211

A history of the first half of the twentieth century written to serve as a textbook for college students and for the general reader.

"The author is most open to criticism for Part I, 'The Coming of World War II,' especially its first three chapters which start with 'The Rise of Germany to Dominance in Europe' and carry the story through the settlement of 1919. . . . On the other hand, Professor Harrison has written well, indeed admirably, about World War II and the 'Cold War' since 1945. These sections, which constitute four-fifths of the book, reflect a firmer grasp of primary sources, a more satisfactory, though a still too narrow, selection of material, and a more felicitous exposition." D. E. Lee

+ Ann Am Acad 281:207 My '52 330w
Booklist 49:10 S 1 '52

"Mr. Harrison will enable the general reader to 'look at the record' of these years from a commanding height and to see vividly the whole pattern of inexorable events which produced the two horrible world wars. What is more important, this record will induce extremely important lessons for today. . . . Whatever the reason, the apparently favorable impression of Russia is there. Somehow his moral indignation grows rather sluggish in face of Russian actions." Philip Locker

+ Social Educ 16:395 D '52 1250w

HARRISS, CLEMENT LOWELL. History and policies of the Home owners' loan corporation. 204p $3 Nat. bur. of economic res.

332.32 [332.313] Home owners' loan corporation 52-161

"The salient facts in the career of one of the New Deal agencies designed to rescue the American economy from the downward deflation spiral of the nineteen-thirties are presented in this contribution to recent economic history. . . . Most of the information presented in the study is from the records and personnel of the HOLC; a further interesting feature offered is the analysis of a sample of cases by the National Bureau of Economic Research." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Index.

"This volume is a scientific study of the lending operations of a government financial institution which can serve as a model for further studies of this type." Homer Hoyt

+ J Pol Econ 60:459 O '52 450w
U S Quarterly Bk R 8:146 Je '52 200w

HART, HENRY ST JOHN. Foreword to the Old Testament; an essay of elementary introduction. 184p maps $2.75 Oxford

221.6 Bible. Old Testament—Introductions 51-5204

"This short book (176 pages) was enlarged from a pamphlet written to help ordination students in the British armed forces during the late war. It was a guide to aid them in the study of the Old Testament. Mr. Hart takes the reader into the heart of the Old Testament religion as it grew, as it changed under stresses. The problems of origins, of conflicts between Baalism and Yahweh, the growth of Yahweh to a universal God, the conflicts of prophet and priest are all treated interestingly and inspiringly from the liberal view." Churchman

"Compresses into less than 200 pages a mass of valuable information. The author displays not only critical acumen but fine literary taste and selective capacity. The minister, student, and general reader for whom this study is written will add not only to their store of knowledge but to their appreciation of the beauty of the Book of Books." F. A. Levy

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p42 D 2 '51
150w

"The book is notably lacking in a grasp of the great cultures which were the matrix of Israel's national life. One need not detail the eloquent silences; it suffices to comment that while scribes and sages were of related activity, they were by no means identical. . . . It is a good book. With a little more of essential qualities it could be better." W. A. Irwin

+ Christian Century 69:281 Mr 5 '52 500w

"To read Mr. Hart's book is to sit in a classroom and listen to gentle wisdom. On almost every page he brings a wide knowledge into the focus of his subject. He covers the dry bones of ancient history with the warmth of humanity." R. E. Donlon

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 24 '52 150w

"Using this text and a bible for reference any layman may gain a sound understanding of the development of Hebrew religion, and many ministers, like myself, will receive new insights into what he thinks he already knows." E. W. Harris

+ Churchman 166:15 Mr 1 '52 120w

"This will scarcely prove an adequate text for college classes in Old Testament, but for more elementary purposes it should be more than satisfactory. Ministers who wish to conduct a course on Old Testament for their laymen may find this to be a good manual for introducing modern biblical criticism in an unoffensive way and without being forced to dwell overlong on the technicalities which undergird that criticism." E. C. Hobbs

+ J Religion 32:291 O '52 450w

"It is no mean feat to produce a beginner's guide to the Old Testament and instill into it an air of brightness and novelty without ever diverging from the beaten track of the 60-year-old critical orthodoxy or lapsing from sound scholarship."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p457 J1 20 '51
500w

HART-DAVIS, RUPERT. Hugh Walpole. 503p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Walpole, Sir Hugh 52-12455

"Long biography of the complex, haunted, touchy but outwardly jovial celibate English writer, whose facile historical romances (the Herries books) and other fiction dealing with youth, sadists, and the clergy sold so well that he could indulge his various tastes, such as collecting books and paintings. Covers two wars, shifting from Cornwall to London, Russia, New York, and Hollywood, and quotes from Sir Hugh's journals as well as the startlingly frank letters he received from Henry James, Rebecca West, Arnold Bennett, Virginia Woolf, and Lady Russell." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:103 O '52 170w

Booklist 49:31 S 15 '52

Bookmark 12:6 O '52 20w

"The book is primarily a well-documented and charming study of a friend whose personality and associations justify such an attempt. . . . Walpole's was a full life, although one could scarcely call it completely happy or pre-eminent in any sense, and by investigating its milieu as carefully as its vagaries Mr. Hart-Davis has produced a far more useful study than one might have dared to anticipate." G. W.

+ Canadian Forum 32:117 Ag '52 600w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Ag 31 '52
350w

"The most interesting, indeed absorbing, literary biography published in Britain for a long time is Rupert Hart-Davis' Hugh Walpole." Harold Hobson

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 10 '52 250w

"There were occasions when I felt that like the subject of his portrait Mr. Hart-Davis found himself with too much material and lacked the awareness of when to cut and what to leave out; so that the completeness became at times, for me at least, rather like that of a railroad timetable. But that may well be an unfair comment. For with the aid of Hugh Walpole's copious diaries, his innumerable letters and also those of Henry James, Arnold Bennett, Joseph Conrad, John Galsworthy, Virginia Woolf and many others, Rupert Hart-Davis has painted in detail not only the picture of a success but the successful portrait of an age." J. A. May

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 28 '52
750w

"An accurately executed and admirably fair biography."

+ Kirkus 20:360 Je 15 '52 270w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1187 J1 '52 170w

"Walpole knew pretty well where he stood, and the best service of this quiet, thorough, and extraordinarily interesting biography is to let him speak for himself." Norman Shrapnel

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 14 '52
380w

"Mr. Hart-Davis by skillful arrangement has succeeded in imparting so much of Hugh Walpole's own nervous boyish enthusiasm to the book that the reader who picks it up thinking only to look up a few references finds himself caught up in the same current." Alastair Buchan

+ New Repub 127:20 D 22 '52 450w

"Fascinating life. . . It is the peculiar merit of Mr. Hart-Davis's book that he presents his subject against a backdrop of this 'Golden Age' so vividly painted that he is almost as successful in portraying the age as the man." Angus Wilson

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:312 Mr 15 '52 1200w

"Mr. Hart-Davis' biography is good enough to be neither an act of worship nor of debunking; his final appraisal is dispassionate and a little withdrawn, but he does convey admirably and entertainingly the immense variety and gusto of a life that seems to have contained none of the inertia that is almost an occupational disease of writers." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ag 24 '52 3500w

Reviewed by James Stern

N Y Times p7 Ag 24 '52 900w

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Yorker 28:79 Ag 23 '52 2350w

"Walpole was not without faults. Mr. Hart-Davis takes his weaknesses into account, yet he emerges in this biography as a genial, warmth-bringing presence, a man conscious of his happiness and ready to share it." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 24 '52
750w

"Rupert Hart-Davis's 'Hugh Walpole' [is] perhaps the best biography of a man of letters our century has produced." H. C. Webster

+ Sat R 35:17 Ag 23 '52 750w

"Fully to appreciate how remarkable an achievement is Mr. Hart-Davis's biography of Hugh Walpole, it is necessary to read the book. No summarised comment can convey the complexity of the task accomplished or the narrative skill, restraint and self-effacement with which it has been carried through." Michael Sadleir

+ Spec 188:300 Mr 7 '52 1000w

Time 60:88 Ag 18 '52 900w

"Admirably executed life of Hugh Walpole. . . His life was perhaps not quite the one he had planned for himself, though its record provides a kind of window looking on to many things that are of absorbing interest. By refusing to disregard his faults, his biographer has most successfully suggested his virtues."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p172 Mr 7 '52 2800w

Wis Lib Bul 48:213 S '52

HARTLEY, PAUL. How to beautify your home with color. 80p il col il $3.50 McGraw

747 House decoration. Color 51-12663

"Starting with the assertions that there are two great classifications of colors—those with a definite yellow or warm cast and those that lean toward the blue or cool side—and that nearly all persons have a natural preference for one or the other of these groupings, this book then goes on to explain the proper methods of choosing colors which will provide the pleasantest and most harmonious home environment. There are suggestions on how to make a cool room seem warmer and a warm one cooler, etc." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Index.

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 25 '52
80w

"Mr. Hartley's book will appeal through its easy, informal style of writing which waves aside all fears and complications and through his awareness of individual differences. His chapters on the use of color as a remedy for the size and proportion ills of a house should be especially helpful." R. F. Davis

+ J Home Econ 44:382 My '52 170w

HARTLEY, RUTH EDITH, and others. Understanding children's play. 372p il $3.50 Columbia univ. press

136.7 Child study. Play 52-1138

Study of children's play activities, such as dramatic play, play with blocks, clay, paints, and music and rhythm plays. Based on an exploratory study of play in fostering healthy personality development of young children sponsored by the National Institute of mental health, and the Caroline Zachry institute. Bibliography. Index.

"The book is interesting and educational, not only for teachers and parents, but for pediatricians, nurses, and social workers who wish to increase their insight into children's behavior." F. A. Browne

+ Am J Pub Health 42:1137 S '52 280w

Booklist 48:310 Je 1 '52

"To those persons who are interested in better understanding 'the inner workings of young children,' this book is highly recommended." Frances Muller

+ El School J 53:243 D '52 500w

Reviewed by H. C. Dawe

J Home Econ 44:736 N '52 250w

"This is an absorbing book in a specialized field, and should prove an invaluable aid to all those who work with (or live with) children of nursery through elementary age."

+ Kirkus 20:58 Ja 15 '52 240w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 7 '52 10w

"Whether your child plays with finger paints or old-fashioned mud pies, you can learn a lot about him from this volume." J. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 13 '52
120w

School & Society 75:141 Mr 1 '52 30w

"Rich in detailed descriptions of play and in concrete suggestions to teachers, the book should be useful also to parents, helping them to understand the meaning of play activities which adult standards might lead them to depreciate."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:177 Je '52 240w

HARTOG, JAN DE. Distant shore; a story of the sea. 309p $3.50 Harper

52-5443

War novel in two parts, the first of which appeared in England under the title Stella. During the war unarmed Dutch ocean-going tugs, manned by British personnel, were detailed to bring back to England crippled cargo ships. The narrator is the captain of one of these tug boats, and the story is of his life during and after the war.

HARTOG, JAN DE—Continued

Booklist 48:329; 49:13 Je 15 '52; S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:9 O '52 30w

"Make no mistake about it, it is a good novel. Yet it is not without its disappointments, which just keep it short of more marked distinction. It comes apart in the middle. It is a book and its sequel, bound together. Not until I had finished it did I discover, tucked away on its copyright page, the information that Part 1 has been published separately in England, under the title 'Stella.' But that is enough of reservations about something which has so much merit." Edmund Fuller

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 24 '52 350w

"It is a gripping story, uneven in the telling, but exciting reading, another tale of man against the sea."

+ Kirkus 20:349 Je 15 '52 390w

Reviewed by W. K. Harrison

Library J 77:1191 J1 '52 110w

"There are no dull pages, whatever they contain, but there is something slightly slapdash about 'The Distant Shore' which suggests that it is the work of vivid and often roguish imagination at least as much as document of war-time and post-war experience. It is certainly unflagging in its liveliness, for Mr. de Hartog has a quality that sets him in the rare minority of writers—superb narrative skill, as artlessly artful as Defoe's and as boyishly exciting as Jules Verne's. What he seems to lack is, oddly enough, the thing he has chosen to describe so brilliantly—depth beneath a shimmering surface." James Hilton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ag 24 '52 600w

"Many authors have lacked the great virtue of omission. So does de Hartog. You don't get the one relevant detail. You get them all and select for yourself. Close editing would have helped the novel a lot. But in its strong and final essence, when it is waterborne, it is as elemental as earth and air and fire and water are. And for this we should read and be thankful." Burke Wilkinson

+ — N Y Times p5 Ag 24 '52 490w

"The writing is in the flat, nonchalantly heroic tone that men of little talent affect when translating their wartime experiences."

New Yorker 28:85 Ag 23 '52 160w

Reviewed by Douglas Mackey

San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 4 '52 600w

"Sometimes incoherent and yet fascinating novel. . . Mr. de Hartog is a gifted storyteller. . . In 'The Distant Shore' he has perhaps had too much to say. . . In the opinion of this reader he would have been well advised to bring his novel to an end in the British harbor where it began. The story of the virtuous and lovely mistress of a series of tugboat skippers who ran away when she discovered that her latest lover was still alive is complete in itself, and it has all of the charm and suspense of an admirable wartime comedy." Harrison Smith

+ — Sat R 35:13 Ag 23 '52 550w

"The hazards and techniques of rescue, the lives and thoughts of the men engaged in it, are admirably described. Mr. de Hartog has a splendid eye. . . Stella and her charms are well described too; but we begin to feel uneasy that she is on a different level of reality from the other characters. . . Symbols are very fine, but they must work perfectly on the apparent, factual level. They must be true here before they can show us anything of value there." L. A. G. Strong

+ — Spec 187:614 N 9 '51 170w (Review of Stella)

Springf'd Republican p4C Ag 31 '52 330w

Time 60:118 S 8 '52 450w

"Like many writers basically concerned with action, Mr. de Hartog is happiest when he is describing it; the romantic interludes, and it must be said that Mr. de Hartog does them better than most, seem in contrast contrived and bordering on the whimsical. Yet Mr. de Hartog has managed, with the deftest of touches, to tell a Dutch story with an English accent and in a manner complimentary to both."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p745 N 23 '51 500w (Review of Stella)

HARTOUGH, HOWARD DALE, and others.
Thiophene and its derivatives. (Chemistry of heterocyclic compounds) 551p il $16.50; to subs $15 Interscience

547.2 [547.6] Heterocyclic compounds
51-13781

"This is the third volume in a series devoted to a detailed review of heterocyclic chemistry. The purpose of the thiophene volume is to depict the actual state of the subject, with special attention to work done since 1944, and to point up the problems outstanding as of 1950. Fourteen of the sixteen chapters were prepared by Mr. Hartough. . . Dr. F. F. Blicke contributes a chapter on biological and pharmacological activity; molecular structure and spectroscopy are considered in a chapter by Mr. F. P. Hochgesang. . . An appendix describes the laboratory preparation of some thirty thiophene derivatives which are needed by the research chemist in the course of synthesizing various thiophene compounds." U S Quarterly Bk R

"The typography and format are excellent. Except for [a few] weaknesses the monograph can be recommended to all organic chemists." S. Archer

+ — Chem Eng 59:342 O '52 600w

"A solidly packed survey of an important family of organic chemicals." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:823 My 15 '52 10w

"The writing is very compact; consequently much more information is included than the number of pages might indicate."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:29 Mr '52

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:207 Je '52 250w

HARTWELL, DICKSON JAY, and ROONEY, ANDREW A., eds. Off the record; the best stories of foreign correspondents; introd. by Bob Considine. 324p $3.95 Doubleday

920 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-10406

"A big, thick volume to which nearly 100 war and foreign correspondents . . . have contributed stories under sponsorship of the Overseas Press Club of America. The result is personal adventure in peace and war on virtually every newsfront in the world. Here are glimpses behind the scenes from Leningrad to Buenos Aires—frequently hilarious, sometimes moving—peeps through keyholes at international meetings, and sidelights on a score of world figures. And at the same time, since this is a book by newspapermen, a hardy but articulate breed, there is a sustained note of anguish over expense accounts, censorship and the depressingly competent work of lady correspondents." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Bookmark 12:78 Ja '53 20w

"From Bob Considine's introduction to the final contribution—Richard J. H. Johnston's tribute to Bill Moore of the A. P., who was killed in Korea—this book is a great treat, not only for reporters but for all those who are curious to know how a newspaper man works under pressure in a land not his own." Percy Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 O 19 '52 500w

Reviewed by Mary Hornaday

Christian Science Monitor p9 O 18 '52 650w

Kirkus 20:490 Ag 1 '52 110w

"Some are good, many are pointless, written with that peculiar hard-boiledness which correspondents believe necessary to create their own caricature. . . Entertaining reading for those who like this sort of thing." R. S. Taylor

+ Library J 77:1649 O 1 '52 90w

"You dip into these pages and you take your choice. Leland Stowe tells of dinner at the home of Madame Chiang Kai-shek, who was never lacking for a bon mot, particularly if it carried a slight coating of arsenic.' Pierre J. Huss discloses how a breakfast of fried kippers with the late Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald helped him scoop the world on Britain's war-debt default. . . My own favorite is the editor's account of George Horne's traumatic experience at the hands of an American Army censor in Japan, obviously young and obviously conscientious." Gerold Frank

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 19 '52
750w

Reviewed by David Dempsey

N Y Times p16 N 23 '52 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 2 '52
90w

Springf'd Republican p35A N 16 '52
260w

HARTWELL, NANCY, pseud. See Callahan, C. W.

HARVEY, EDMUND NEWTON. Bioluminescence. 649p il $13 Academic press

574.144 Phosphorescence 52-6754

"This is an exhaustive discussion of the luminescence of living things by the leading authority on the subject. The sixteen chapters deal successively with the approximately forty different species of bacteria, plants, and animals that emit light. . . The author has attempted a complete coverage of the work published on bioluminescence from 1800 to 1950; his bibliography of almost 2,000 items lists all the significant publications that appeared during that period." U S Quarterly Bk R

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:822 My 15 '52 20w

"The book is of interest first to biologists studying bioluminescence and second to chemists. Among chemists, the interest is not limited to those workers investigating the production of light by chemical means, but includes chemists concerned with enzymology, pharmacology, etc. The comprehensive bibliography runs to seventy-six closely printed pages."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:17 Mr '52

"The book is well written and it is beautifully illustrated. It should be of interest to the naturalist, the zoologist, the physiologist, and the chemist or physicist interested in light production by living organisms."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:202 Je '52 150w

HARVEY, IAN. Technique of persuasion; an essay in human relationships. 193p il $3 British bk. centre

301.152 Propaganda, Advertising [51-13820]

"Mr. Ian Harvey is a Conservative member of Parliament and the head of a large advertising agency, and all three aspects of what he calls 'persuasion' are familiar to him: propaganda, the art of spreading an idea, a doctrine; agitation, the ploughing up of established thoughts and habits; and publicity, the craft of creating a demand for goods, services and the like. He does not make this distinction, but emphasizes rather the similarity of the three aspects and, in his illustrations, lets the third one prevail." (Times [London] Lit Sup) No index.

Reviewed by Irving Babow

San Francisco Chronicle p26 F 3 '52
80w

"As an exponent of advertising techniques Mr. Harvey is always interesting and often stimulating. As the crusader for a new philosophy of social persuasion he need not, I hope be taken so seriously." Francis Williams

+ Spec 187:163 Ag 3 '51 800w

"His study of mass emotions, and of modern means for their discovery and direction, is sound."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p579 S 14 '51
750w

HARVEY, MRS PEGGY. When the cook's away; foreword by Moss Hart [decorations by Franklin McMahon]. 159p $2.95 Regnery

641.5 Cookery 52-12472

"Cookbook that grew out of babysitting! On cook's night out Peggy Harvey and her husband had to baby-sit, and, wanting company, they entertained their friends. Their dinners were masterpieces, and the demand for her recipes grew to such an extent that she set many of them down in book form, principally in self-defense." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"'When the Cook's away' is not a complete and comprehensive cookbook, but it is one that you will want to use over and over again. And it is delightful to read." Morrison Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 9 '52
140w

"An enticing collection of special dishes for special occasions. . . Supplementary rather than basic."

+ Kirkus 20:491 Ag 1 '52 80w

"The recipes have a European touch but are not at all difficult, and although the standards are high the method is simple. Mrs. Harvey's popularity as a hostess-cook is very understandable. Her enthusiasm for friends and food and the apparent ease with which she combines the two leaves the reader with the impression that the time to visit the Harveys is when the cook's away." Charlotte Turgeon

+ N Y Times p40 N 30 '52 230w

HARVEY, WILLIAM FRYER. Arm of Mrs Egan, and other strange stories. 256p $2.50 Dutton

52-5303

Sixteen short detective stories, twelve of which are accounts of the strange cases of a middle-aged nurse.

"The tales are slight (and pretend to be no more), but they are deft and may be taken most usefully one a night just before sleeping." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 6
'52 170w

"Don't expect anything comparable to the author's classic 'August Heat' but even minor Harvey has its attractions." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p35 Ap 6 '52 130w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 13 '52
60w

"Fine collection." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:36 My 17 '52 30w

HARWIN, BRIAN. Home is upriver. 224p $3 Macmillan

52-12875

A first novel. It is the story of poor whites living on a shanty-boat on the lower Mississippi.

Kirkus 20:380 Jl 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by H. L. Roth

Library J 77:1505 S 15 '52 120w

"The reader looks for some flesh of local color, but Mr. Harwin leaves the bones sticking out nobbly and hard. At moments he captures the expansion of the swirling river, and the warmth of its people, but he is in too much of a hurry. A great flood comes out like a newspaper account. It is a pity Mr. Harwin did not deviate further from his course to tell us more of river life, of which he has had first hand experience."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 N 16
'52 170w

"Most of the humor in the book is right off the cob and every once in a while the dialogue blows a fuse, but the action is fast and the smell and the taste of the river are here and they are good and strong. The author knows his river and his shanty-boat people and one only wishes he had eliminated the literary sky-rockets and set pieces and told the story straight." Richard Bissell

+ N Y Times p24 O 12 '52 410w

HARWIN, BRIAN—Continued

"The author never intrudes; the reader is left in pleasant peace to draw his own conclusions, savor his own reflections. Nor does Mr. Harwin, as do so many others, confuse the writing of a novel with the gathering of folklore. His people, though a shade clean-mouthed and grammatical, are never quaint, animated bits of folklore. Humor there is, but we laugh with the characters, not at them. The prose is clean and sharp and strong, economical of adjective and description." Harriette Arnow
+ Sat R 35:18 O 11 '52 550w

HASZELDINE, ROBERT NEVILLE, and SHARPE, ADAM GEORGE. Fluorine and its compounds. 153p il $1.75 Wiley
546.12 [546.16] Fluorine. Fluorine compounds 52-6242

"Modern inorganic and organic chemistry of the fluorine field. The relation between structure and properties of inorganic fluorides. The influence of fluorine on the properties and reactivity of organic compounds. The book's four chapters deal separately with fluorine, hydrogen fluoride, inorganic and organic compounds of fluorine." (Chem Eng) Index.

Chem Eng 59:364 F '52 40w

"The current interest in the very reactive element fluorine and its compounds has brought forth several notable books. The present one is probably the shortest. Nevertheless, it may be the most useful to graduate chemists who want a view of the high points. . . The book is addressed to professional chemists who are not specialists in fluorine chemistry."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:22 Mr '52

HATCH, JOHN CHARLES. Dilemma of South Africa. 255p il $4 Roy pubs.
968 South Africa—Politics and government. South Africa—Race question [52-3405]

"This volume is the result of two fruitful tours of South Africa by the author, a specialist in South African history and lecturer at Glasgow University. This is a good introduction to the formidable and basic conflict between Afrikaner (Boer) nationalism and the growing African self-consciousness." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 49:122 D 1 '52

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 2 '52 120w

"Clear and quietly written."
+ Kirkus 20:617 S 15 '52 230w

"Mr. Hatch's background keeps the book from becoming merely superficial. He bends over backward to give the idea of apartheid a fair treatment, but finds little to justify it. His coverage of the Nationalist and Union Parties is good, but other aspects of the political situation somewhat weak. Recommended for all libraries." R. S. Taylor

+ — Library J 77:1806 O 15 '52 100w
Manchester Guardian p4 J1 4 '52 160w

Reviewed by Leonard Barnes
New Statesman & Nation 44:78 J1 19 '52 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p550 Ag 22 '52 150w

"Mr. Hatch obviously brought to his task both imaginative sympathy and an acute analytical power, and he knows how to wear his learning lightly. The result is by all odds the best introduction to the current crisis in South Africa that the general reader can find. Not the least of its merits is the fact that, by presenting in a logical sequence the standpoint of one organization or social group after another, Mr. Hatch achieves objectivity as well as clarity, without in the least minimizing the painful complexities of the situation or concealing his own opinions." C. H. Driver
+ Yale R n s 42:290 winter '53 650w

HATCH, PREBLE DELLOS KELLOGG. Homer the handyman. 237p $3 Crowell

817 52-8852

The life, loves, and experiences of Homer, a Yankee from Maine, who could fix almost anything from a bicycle to a Model-T, and could turn out birdhouses, clocks, and boats besides.

Booklist 49:45 O 1 '52

"A clutter of prosy Maine doings as home-made as Homer's own contraptions."
Kirkus 20:397 J1 1 '52 160w

"In spite of a title that sounds discouragingly like a children's 25-cent picture book, and a subject that seems remarkably inappropriate to fiction, 'Homer the Handyman' is an interesting and appealing tale." Joanna Spencer
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 28 '52 400w

"The account of his life among the cold chisels and anvils might have been more entertaining if the author had gone a little easier on the facts and offered at least enough fiction to make the reader care what happens." Jane Cobb
N Y Times p26 N 2 '52 190w

"An entertaining, if minor, piece of Americana." Ray Pierre
+ Sat R 35:48 O 11 '52 300w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p11D O 26 '52 120w

HATZFELD, HELMUT A. Literature through art; a new approach to French literature. 247p 100il $7.50 Oxford

840.9 French literature—History and criticism. Art, French. Art and literature 52-6132

A study of the relationship between literature and art in French literature. The author, born in Germany, has been professor of romance languages and literature at the Catholic University of America since 1940. Many illustrations. Bibliography. Index.

"Unfortunately the impact of this interesting survey of inter-art resemblances is considerably lessened by the author's Procrustean tendencies. . . The other weakness of this book is its numerous minor inaccuracies. . . Nevertheless, Literature Through Art affords uniquely profitable experiences for those prepared to read and discuss its findings critically." Robert Finch

+ — Canadian Forum 32:68 Je '52 360w

"Any such trip through the French galleries and the French anthology is enriching, of course; but here our guide happens to be almost the only Catholic in our country who brings thorough scholarship and communicable sensitivity to the fields of both art and literature. Thus, if only for the unusually fine complex experience it manages to offer, Dr. Hatzfeld's book—in an age of specialization—seems an astonishing triumph of a humane man of letters. Two things might improve any future edition of the book. First, even better reproductions of the pictures. . . Second, translation of all the selections, not just of Old French and of random prose selections; more readers could thus share Dr. Hatzfeld's wealth." W. J. Kerrigan

+ — Commonweal 55:429 F 1 '52 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 6 '52 300w

"Such a broad-reaching, assertive work as this cannot fail to arouse discussion and disagreement. Scholars will not all approve classifications (the question of classicism and the baroque, for example). The immensity of the field covered precludes lengthy elaboration and defense of positions taken. This is regrettable since, aside from the broad classifications, many incidental assertions challenge our conventional notions of artists and periods. But in the parallels drawn between works of art, where critics in their impassioned search for analogies are wont to see all sorts of things invisible to the phlegmatic reader, Professor Hatzfeld operates with great restraint." Laurence LeSage

+ — Sat R 35:61 Je 14 '52 300w

"The subject of the study has occupied the minds of a number of scholars, but it seems never to have been approached with the rigid intensity found here. Although he is not entirely convincing, Professor Hatzfeld has made a valuable and often clarifying contribution."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:132 Je '52 190w

HAUSER, ARNOLD. Social history of art [tr. in collaboration with the author by Stanley Godman]. 2v 1022p pl $12.50 Knopf

709 Art—History. Art and society

51-13993

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Booklist 48:193 F 15 '52

"Dealing not only with pictorial art but also with literature, philosophy and history, his work shows a thorough familiarity with all of the authorities of particular ages and styles. The book shows powers of sympathy that are phenomenal, and no one who takes the problems of art seriously can ignore it. . . Yet the unevenness of his brilliance is evident when he approaches the modern world. Alternatives are only between Communism and. . . ? . . . There is a good chance that Marxist thought will not find such a gifted interpreter as Hauser for a long time. If a person is convinced of his deep rooted opposition to Communist ideology, to Marxism, and would wish to know the temper of that conviction, his is the work to read. And then let such a reader be filled with quiet zeal." Serge Hughes

+ — Commonweal 56:560 S 12 '52 1650w

"A wise, tolerant and at all times stimulating book, it is important reading not only for every professional artist or teacher but for every lay trustee who takes his responsibilities seriously." F. H. Taylor

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 27 '52 800w

"[The] author, a Hungarian educated in Vienna and at present a lecturer in fine arts at two English universities, has accomplished a truly extraordinary thing: he has provided the first coherent account of the artistic achievements of Western civilization from the Old Stone Age to the present, on a sociological basis. And he has done so with notable clarity, a sure command of scholarly knowledge, and a fine respect for his material." H. W. Jan-son

+ Sat R 35:43 F 2 '52 800w

Springf'd Republican p4D F 24 '52 60w

"Dr. Hauser's book, with about 150 pictures (scattered most confusingly through the text), is remarkably cheap. It is well produced and excellently translated, and it provides so much which had not been provided before that it should be successful and deserves to be so."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p829 D 28 '51 3400w

HAVEMANN, ERNEST, and LOVE, GEORGE G. I never thought we'd make it. 254p $3 Harcourt

818 Irish in the U.S. 52-11347

An account of the married life of two Irish immigrants, Jim and Lizzie Love, who married in 1895, and had six children, whom they raised to successful adulthood. On their Golden Anniversary day Jim Love could triumphantly announce "Not one has ever been arrested!" The tale is told in the words of one of the sons, George.

Booklist 49:86 N 1 '52

Bookmark 12:53 D '52 20w

"Human and humorous, this lively tale of the tribulations of an Irish family is the sort of little book that makes one say, 'Here, read this. It's good.'" John Randolph

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 30 '52 260w

Kirkus 20:533 Ag 15 '52 160w

"A truly American chronicle told with an appropriately unvarnished style. Recommended for light entertainment." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 77:1649 O 1 '52 40w

"In presenting his parents and his family, Mr. Love remembers them with a candor and honesty that is refreshing as they are. He pulls no punches in incident or language; he has no social fears of exposing a background rich in color if poor in worldly goods." Rose Feld

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 N 2 '52 600w

Reviewed by S. T. Williamson

N Y Times p19 N 2 '52 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 9 '52 700w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 23 '52 130w

"While most American immigrant families prefer to forget their early struggles—or make them sound like Life with Father—the Love tribe remembers the triumphs and tribulations of its hard years with pride, amazement and nostalgia. The result is a wonderful piece of Americana, full of the smell of beer and coal smoke—and of the potato soup on which Ma fed her brood, sometimes for weeks on end, when Pa was looking for a job or 'fighting the interests.'"

+ Time 60:106 O 27 '52 600w

HAVEMANN, ERNEST, and WEST, PATRICIA SALTER. They went to college; the college graduate in America today. 277p il $4 Harcourt

378 College graduates 52-6444

"In 1947, with the cooperation of 1037 colleges, 9064 graduates whose last names began with the letters 'Ta' were queried by Time magazine as part of a survey of its reading public (of which about 77% was college trained). The material worked up and analyzed by West, and the results therefrom written up in lucid language by Havemann, constitute, the publishers state: 'the most complete study yet published of the college graduate in America.' The work shows, with the aid of expert charts, the long continued trend away from the humanities to the sciences; the salary advantage enjoyed by the graduate over the non-college individual; the marital chances of the college man and woman; their attitudes on minorities and on politics; the difference grades appear to make in the choice of a career, etc." (Library J) Index.

"The figures assembled are interesting enough, but speculative imagination with an uneasy conscience is not perhaps the most promising way of adding to our knowledge. This is research but not scholarship." Reinhard Bendix

+ — Am J Soc 58:313 N '52 650w

Reviewed by A. B. Hollingshead

Am Soc R 17:640 O '52 850w

"Anyone who is interested in what college education does to people should enjoy this book. But the authors are the first to admit that while they have answered some questions, they have raised many others. So educational researchers should note this study well, also." C. E. Hawley

+ Ann Am Acad 283:210 S '52 400w

Booklist 48:275 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:181 My '52 30w

"If the book is not conclusive, it is interesting in showing how a sample of 10,000 college people think and act in at least fifty-two different ways—on politics, religion, money, careers, college majors, curricula, working their way through school and the value of their training as a whole." R. H. Murphy

+ Cath World 175:318 Jl '52 240w

Reviewed by Nancy Baker

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 20 '52 280w

"For the thoroughness of its basic research and the crisp clarity of its presentation, this

HAVEMANN, ERNEST—Continued
volume is unique among educational surveys."
W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 69:465 Ap 16 '52
1400w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 166:15 My 15 '52 250w

Reviewed by Doris Grumbach
Commonweal 56:122 My 9 '52 900w
Kirkus 20:256 Ap 1 '52 200w

"Recommended." J. A. Borome
+ Library J 77:718 Ap 15 '52 140w

"Here is a merrily and interestingly written book that makes statistics come as alive as a college cheerleader. And if you went to 'Dear Old State' some years back, and want to know whether or not you are shooting the course of your later career in par, this is a book for you." J. M. Black

+ Management R 41:540 Ag '52 1600w
Reviewed by David Riesman
New Repub 126:19 My 5 '52 850w

"Tremendously enlightening and entertaining. While it does not pretend to have any theory other than the unshakable one that in America there are a great many college graduates, it manages to provide facts in many important areas in which there has been a great deal of 'folklore' and myth." Fred Hechinger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ap 13 '52 1300w

"Mr. Havemann, understandably, had little to say beyond the researched facts; yet by managing to be at once flip and wordy, he sometimes intrudes upon the reader's grasp of them. If he has contributed to easy reading, he has also contributed to vulgarity of tone. No one has solved the problem of a 'style' really suited to such statistical data as these; certainly Mr. Havemann and Time magazine are not alone in their inadequacies. It is a testimony to the excellence of the materials and of their analyses by Patricia West that they survive so well his frivolous attempts to be chatty about serious matters." C. W. Mills

N Y Times p5 Ap 6 '52 1200w
Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 3 '52
900w

Reviewed by Ordway Tead
Sat R 35:25 Ap 19 '52 900w
School & Society 75:207 Mr 29 '52 30w
Special Libraries 43:273 S '52 30w
U S Quarterly Bk R 8:279 S '52 240w

HAVIGHURST, ROBERT JAMES, and MORGAN, HUGH GERTHON. Social history of a war-boom community [Seneca, Illinois]. 356p il $4 Longmans

309.1 Seneca, Illinois 51-11494

"What happens to a sleepy small town when wartime industry increases its population five-fold in two years? This volume is a study of such a community, located at Seneca, Illinois, where 157 LST (landing ship tank) craft were built and floated down the rivers to the sea... The volume does not presume to develop any new social theory. The facts presented, however, document existing sociological theories of social change, institutional inertia, and the persistence of the mores." U S Quarterly Bk R

"The book provides an interesting and valuable account for undergraduates and others who seek to recapture some of the flavor of the times. Whether the categories into which the data are thrown are such as to provide evidence of a systematic theory can be known only when more such studies are available." W. F. Cottrell

+ Am J Soc 57:408 Ja '52 430w

"The book is recommended for supplementary reading in rural and urban sociology courses, and for researchers who are interested in the dynamics of modern community living." S. W. Blizzard

+ Am Soc R 17:112 F '52 1300w

"Under an unpretentious form we have been given an unusually penetrating sociological study, supported on foundations of both quantitative data and qualitative evaluation with scientific objectivity, but without timidity in passing judgment when that seems useful and pertinent. One would wish, perhaps, a bit better use of statistical presentation, but one would not make a fuss." Philip Klein

+ — Ann Am Acad 279:216 Ja '52 480w

"This study has implications for understanding the kind of society in which we are now living. The accuracy and detail of the descriptions make this a valuable document." S. C. Kincheloe

+ J Religion 32:229 Jl '52 340w

School & Society 73:416 Je 30 '51 20w

"The book is well organized and interestingly written. Its major contribution probably is that it offers a good case study to the larger effort to present a history of the United States during World War II." R. W. Kernodle
+ Social Forces 30:356 Mr '52 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:399 D '51 200w

HAVIGHURST, ROBERT JAMES, and others. American veteran back home; a study of veteran readjustment. 271p $3.50 Longmans
355.11 Veterans—U.S. 51-14893

A study of 416 veterans of World War II living in a midwestern community. It describes the men's difficulties in learning military ways, and also their later experiences in returning to civilian life. Index.

"This work will not set social science afire, but it does represent considerable empirical research and is productive of a better understanding of the subjective and objective elements involved in veteran readjustment. It will interest all those interested in community organization, social anthropology, and practical problems which arise in the context of the small community. Psychiatrically oriented students of adjustment will not find the elements of analysis congenial to their frames of reference, but the rich deposit of case material awaits their deeper shafts. However so, one must point out that the general sweep of the title is much too inclusive, and the authors are no doubt the first to realize this." R. W. Habenstein

+ — Am J Soc 58:116 Jl '52 1050w

"On the whole the volume fails either to tie in with work done by others or to follow up systematically the implications of the interview materials presented. Thus, a number of quotations relating to restlessness, impatience and irritability are presented to characterize newly returned veterans, but no attempt it made to study the 'decompression process' or the subsequent carry-over of such tendencies into interpersonal relations with wives, children, associates on the job, etc." J. A. Clausen
Am Soc R 17:249 Ap '52 800w

Reviewed by Francis Russell
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 12 '52
650w

School & Society 74:415 D 22 '51 40w

Reviewed by Read Bain
Social Forces 31:78 O '52 800w
U S Quarterly Bk R 8:183 Je '52 180w

HAVIGHURST, WALTER, and BOYD, MARION MARGARET. Climb a lofty ladder; [a story of Swedish settlement in Minnesota] il. by Jill Elgin. (Land of the free ser) 242p $2.75 Winston

52-5500

In 1890 Hans Bremer's father lost his Minnesota homestead and returned to Sweden. Hans elected to stay in America and work with an elderly man who operated a grain elevator. Contains material on wheat growing and Swedish immigrants in America. For grades 7 to 9.

Booklist 48:383 Jl 15 '52

"Hans is a fine boy who will win liking and respect from young readers. They will find in him the epitome of all youths from other lands who, by their industry and love of the soil, have given so much to our country. The story of how he 'climbed a lofty ladder' to build a good life for himself and others is both moving and exciting." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 24 '52 200w

Horn Bk 28:240 Ag '52 120w

"If at times the vivid handling of background, the period flavor, the integration of the Swedish character with America seem more vital than the story pattern, there is enough of incident and character to weld it into a whole."

+ — Kirkus 20:262 Ap 15 '52 190w

"A good picture of the times, a tribute to the courageous men and women who braved hardships and were eventually well rewarded... Recommended." Sonja Wennerblad

+ Library J 77:1212 Jl '52 80w

"Hans is a very likable boy, and the treatment of his new allegiance to America is well done, and contrasted with other points of view of various immigrants. Both American and Swedish backgrounds are suggested in ways that give the tale depth and point. The information about wheat raising and selling, in the early '90s, is all most interesting. On the whole, it is one of the best books in the series." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 27 '52 270w

Reviewed by Anne Izard

N Y Times p16 Ag 17 '52 120w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:260 S '52 120w

HAVILAND, HENRY FIELD. Political role of the General Assembly. (United Nations. Studies) 190p pa $2.75 Carnegie endowment 341.133 United Nations (organization). General assembly 51-13719

"After a careful study of the documents and a vigilant observation of the General Assembly in action, Professor Haviland presents us with a critical analysis of its organs and procedures, both in theory and in practice, evaluating with admirable objectivity their defects and virtues and their potentialities for the future. He compares the work of the General Assembly with that of the League of Nations Assembly, describes the role of the General Assembly as anticipated at San Francisco, traces the truly remarkable changes in this role brought about in practice, and analyzes the forces which have produced these changes." Ann Am Acad

"In this monograph the author has made an original and invaluable contribution to the literature on the United Nations." J. B. Whitton

+ Ann Am Acad 280:167 Mr '52 500w

Foreign Affairs 30:670 Jl '52 20w

Reviewed by L. B. Sohn

Harvard Law R 65:1271 My '52 700w

"The reader who asks for new political insights will not find them here. What he will find is a large collection of important facts, carefully observed and arranged. The study does, however, provide exactly what material is needed today, so that the United Nations may be examined as a going institution, and not as a dream either good or bad."

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:72 Mr '52 200w

HAVILAND, VIRGINIA. William Penn, founder and Friend; il. by Peter Burchard. (Makers of America) 127p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Penn, William—Juvenile literature 52-8357

"William Penn's boyhood and youth in England and Ireland, his religious beliefs and resulting persecutions and imprisonments, and his experiences and achievements as founder of the Pennsylvania colony are recounted with simplicity and dignity in a biography for younger readers." Booklist

Booklist 48:284 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:186 My '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 My 18 '52 180w

"An excellent brief introduction to the life of the many-faceted founder of Pennsylvania. . . . Peter Burchard's fine illustrations are interesting and evocative." E. G. Vining

+ Horn Bk 28:180 Je '52 100w

"Although the overall color to the chain of events . . . is one of rosy righteousness, there is a certain clarity of expression that makes the biography a smooth one. It is lacking though, in frontier flavour. Illustrations by Peter Burchard are expressionless messages of temporal concepts in their stylized design."

+ — Kirkus 20:127 F 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 11 '52 180w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p18 Jl 13 '52 90w

Wis Lib Bul 48:176 Jl '52

HAWKES, MRS JACQUETTA (HOPKINS). A land; with drawings by Henry Moore. 248p maps $3.75 Random house

551 Geology—Great Britain

52-5138

An imaginative study of the geological evolution of Britain thru the ages, with one chapter on architecture as related to native materials. Maps. Photographs. Index.

Booklist 48:243 Ap 1 '52

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 16 '52 450w

"'A Land' is evocative, argumentative, learned, and beautiful. It is a very unusual book." J. C. May

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 29 '52 600w

"Throughout her book Mrs. Hawkes draws heavily on the poets. It is the more regrettable therefore that she does not always identify the poet she is quoting—a minor editorial negligence that presumably will be corrected in future editions. The illustrations by Henry Moore and others add value to the text." James Rorty

Commonweal 56:250 Je 13 '52 700w

Kirkus 19:698 D 1 '51 210w

"An unusual synthesis of material pertinent to a study of English civilization. Not for smaller libraries or limited budgets." E. M. Cole

Library J 77:430 Mr 1 '52 130w

"Finely conceived book." P. J. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 3 '51 330w

"Original and often stimulating book."

+ Nation 174:532 My 31 '52 260w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman

New Repub 126:19 Ap 14 '52 950w

"This book is difficult to classify either as science or as literature. The science is exact, and the literary style elegant and sensitive, but what is more unusual than either of these distinctions is the fusing of much scientific knowledge, that has been accumulating for a century or more, into something like a culture. . . . Mrs. Hawkes is well fitted to be among the first to give expression to a new phase of culture, for she is a scientist who is also a poet." Kathleen Raine

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:74 Jl 21 '51 1150w

"A moving, beautiful, and deeply significant book." R. L. Carson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 16 '52 1200w

"It is a triumph of skill as well as a work of love." S. E. Hyman

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 16 '52 550w

"A curious, uneven, but often lovely book." + New Yorker 28:130 Mr 29 '52 210w

"You'll find the reading of this book one of those genuine experiences that expand the mind. Mrs. Hawkes' recollections have been guided by no mere dead march of the intellect but nourished by the shaping spirit of an imagination that finds in confusion and chaos the pattern of a whole." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 18 '52 400w

HAWKES, J. H.—Continued

Reviewed by K. K. Landes
Sat R 35:20 Mr 22 '52 650w

"It is impossible to do justice to this rare and fecund book in my space. It is a germinal book and may well herald a change in cultural orientation that bitter experience has made tragically overdue." H. J. Massingham

+ Spec 185:725 Je 1 '51 800w

Time 59:79 Mr 24 '52 550w

"Occasionally one wonders if Mrs. Hawkes's interpretations of these works and of some of the poems to which she refers are quite consistent with the intentions of the artist or the poet. For instance, the Cumberland rivers, in the lines she quotes, are red not because of the Permian sandstone of the coast but because of the haematite ore of the mines farther inland. But these are mere scratches. What matters is that she has written with vision, with passion and with style, and that her book helps us to understand both the land on which we live and the life we live on it."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p383 Je 22 '51 1500w

HAWKES, JOHN. Beetle leg. 159p $2.50 New directions

51-14554

"Novel about a construction worker buried alive during the building of an irrigation dam somewhere out West, and about the effect of his death on all those concerned with him and with the dam." New Yorker

"The writing in this book has the density of poetry, and each sentence is elaborately packed with the concrete, the irrationally observed and rationally recorded, and, at times, the ludicrously ornate, the pretentious. That is the trouble, I think. There is no relief. Everything is posed, nothing is poised." William Pfaff

Commonweal 55:407 Ja 25 '52 300w

"All the New Directions mannerisms are here, and they never seemed more perfunctory. Which is a pity, because John Hawkes has a keen sense of the word, which would probably be glad to tell him what he really feels, and has to say, if he would give it a chance." Robert Phelps

+ New Repub 126:21 F 18 '52 150w

"To assemble discreet fantasies and move toward a mastery of disjointed vividness is more proper to the lyric than to the novel. 'The Beetle Leg,' while rich in random flashes of youthful brilliance, does not achieve the ordered intensity of a lyric poem—nor is it grown-up enough to be novel." Robert Reynolds
N Y Times p12 D 30 '51 250w

"This story is so thin and so faintly realized that the delicate prose breaks off, time and again, into a series of keen but unrelated images, and in the end we have only a tangle of inflexible, pampered wisps of writing. This does not alter the fact that some of the scenes in the book are extraordinary."

New Yorker 27:82 Ja 12 '52 140w

"The avant garde has now taken over the Western story and, I'm afraid, it will never be quite the same again. . . . Unfortunately, before you've gone very far through the bad lands of Mr. Hawkes's turgid prose, you're likely to lose not only your way but also your interest. The very definite promise which appeared in Mr. Hawkes's first novel, 'The Canibal,' is still to be redeemed."

+ Sat R 35:35 F 9 '52 100w

HAWLEY, CAMERON. Executive suite, 344p $3 Houghton

52-9588

"A minute or two before or after two-thirty on the afternoon of the twenty-second of June, Avery Bullard suffered what was later diagnosed as a cerebral hemorrhage. . . . In the instant of that infinitesimal failure, the form and pattern of a world within a world was changed. . . . Quite a few people are directly affected by Avery Bullard's conclusive cerebral hemorrhage, and we visit each of them several times during the twenty-four hours between his death and the political coup which determines his successor." N Y Times

Reviewed by H. B. Taylor

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 30 '52 210w

Kirkus 20:688 O 15 '52 160w

"Too much expository narrative; plot seems contrived by having chapters peppered with time-table subheadings to mark scenes, many of them pointless. Writing however is straightforward, and characters are clearcut and wholesome, though not very warm- (or cold-) blooded. . . . Recommended." Karl Brown

+ Library J 77:1897 N 1 '52 110w

"So subtly and seriously has Cameron Hawley written his satire on American big business that he almost persuades you that his tongue has never touched his cheek as he unfolds his plot and characters. While reminiscent of John Marquand and Sinclair Lewis, his work is completely individual not only in content but in style and treatment." Carol Field

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 9 '52 480w

"An extremely well-informed novel of the financial world and its high-echelon inhabitants." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p48 N 16 '52 550w

New Yorker 28:180 D 13 '52 30w

"This is the world of business snapped in one of its all-out battles with no holds barred. Eventually it simmers down to one man and that's that. Meantime the reader has been entertained by some expert rapid-fire storytelling. Mr. Hawley does put into his novel a bit more than this. . . . As a matter of fact, the novel's weaknesses are in this aspect of it. Mr. Hawley's story, simply because he has been unable to resist sticking in these plums, gets just a touch confused." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 28 '52 750w

"It's difficult really to care who becomes president of the Tredway Corporation, and, because of this, it is difficult to keep up interest in Mr. Hawley's careful dissection of the types of men which keep a great corporation vitally alive." Al Hine

Sat R 35:34 D 6 '52 420w

Time 60:90 D 8 '52 700w

HAWORTH-BOOTH, MICHAEL. Effective flowering shrubs; with forty-seven plates in color photography by the author. 350p $6.95 Crowell

635.97 Shrubs [51-8699]

The author, a prominent English nurseryman and lecturer, describes many varieties of flowering shrubs illustrating his text with colored photographs. Index.

Kirkus 20:338 Je 1 '52 80w

"Can be recommended to potential planters as well as to those who wish to refurbish gardens to get the maximum degree of decoration. Mr. Haworth-Booth combines knowledge, first-hand experience and good taste."

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:194 F 16 '52 190w

"Every gardener with an eye for effective shrub planting will be delighted by the almost four dozen excellent full color photographs in this English importation, and many will welcome the seasonal discussions of the more than 600 species and varieties represented in the text." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 22 '52 70w

HAY, DENYS. Polydore Vergil: renaissance historian and man of letters. 223p $5 Oxford 879 Vergilius, Polydorus 52-8570

"It is amazing that the Italian humanist who was the father of Tudor historiography, in a sense of all modern English historiography, should have had to wait more than four centuries for a book devoted to his life and writings. . . . The want is now supplied. This compact, unpretentious volume not only brings together Mr. Hay's previously published researches, chiefly an account of Polydore's life which yields useful light on his writings and an admirable bibliographical study of the Vatican MS and the important printed editions of the Anglica Historia, with an examination of its value as a source and its influence as a model, but it includes much fresh material as well." Am Hist R

"This is a book henceforth indispensable to students of Tudor history and historiography, a model of conciseness, sound scholarship, and pleasant, unobtrusive prose." Garrett Mattingly

+ Am Hist R 58:95 O '52 420w

School & Society 76:15 J1 5 '52 20w

"This account of a versatile and influential humanist is a model of scholarship and judgment: it will become the standard work in its field. Only one criticism comes to mind: within the compass of the book there is necessarily too little quotation from the originals, so that often the impact of Vergil is tantalizingly at one remove."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p349 My 23 '52 1600w

HAYCOX, ERNEST. Earthbreakers. 405p $3.50 Little

52-6067

A story of the hardships and sorrows, the joys and achievements, of a group of settlers on the trek across the mountains and the first year in a Pacific coast valley. The time is the 1840s.

"Before his death last year Ernest Haycox completed this, his most ambitious novel. It is a solid achievement in story telling. With his 'Bugles in the Afternoon,' that excellent fictional presentation of the Custer story, it serves to point up once again that Mr. Haycox was among the most seriously underrated of contemporary novelists." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 3 '52 300w

"There may be too much outspoken sex in this for Haycox' wide audience, but those who admire his capable handling of personality conflicts against a noteworthy period, regional and historical background, may not cavil at his realism in male and female relations."

Kirkus 19:641 N 1 '51 230w

"Mr. Haycox' main plot is not a radical departure from the formula for a Western—the contest of two men for the love of a pioneer beauty. His minor characters are the ones you remember, for they are the true builders of a new life at the end of the trail." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 27 '52 290w

"Few men who have written of the West knew the country and its history better than Ernest Haycox, whose death last year was a distinct loss to those who recognized his ability. . . . For many years Haycox's ambition was to write what he called a panoramic novel. It was to be, he said, 'A robust story, full of brutality and tragedy, vivid with action and the will-o'-the-wisp of romance.' 'The Earthbreakers' has all of that and more." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 13 '52 320w

"Told with intensity and conviction, and with furious action on almost every page, but somehow with not very much life or humor."

+ New Yorker 27:85 Ja 19 '52 80w

"The story covers one year in the lives of a group that came to Oregon to settle in the middle 1840s, and it shows the author at his best, purely as a storyteller, while it also reflects some of the things he felt and knew about the pioneering days in the country in which he spent most of his life." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 8 '52 700w

"All of the four hundred pages of 'The Earthbreakers' are worth reading. This is, indeed, the best Western novel of the year." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R 35:17 Mr 1 '52 650w

Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 9 '52 140w

Wis Lib Bul 48:91 Mr '52

HAYCOX, ERNEST. Pioneer loves. 177p $2.50 Little

52-5864

Nine short stories dealing with the lives, loves and hates of the men and women who pioneered in the West. Contents: Call this land home; No time for dreams; Cry deep, cry still; Quarter section on Dullknife creek; Custom of the country; Good marriage; Tavern at Powell's Ferry; Smoky in the West; A day in town.

Booklist 48:342 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by Al Chase

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 15 '52 30w

"There's a sturdy, forthright appeal here—for women as well as men."

+ Kirkus 20:164 Mr 1 '52 110w

"The nine stories are simple as to plot line, the action is plentiful but never forced, and the characterizations—particularly of the women—solid and believable. . . . Of this collection I found the two stories that dealt with the homesteading Mercy family, 'Call This Land Home' and 'Cry Deep, Cry Still,' the most moving." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:40 My 17 '52 150w

HAYEK, FRIEDRICH AUGUST VON. Counter-revolution of science: studies on the abuse of reason. 255p $4 Free press

301 Social sciences

52-8157

"A historical inquiry into the errors that social philosophers have perpetrated when they have tried to transfer concepts derived from the realm of physical sciences to the social sciences. This bore fruit, the author contends, in the positivism of Comte, the social physics of Saint-Simon, the religion of science and, finally, Marxism. All of these movements have contributed, he suggests, to the containment of freedom in our time. For the serious reader who likes to track down cause and effect in the history of ideas." Booklist

Reviewed by J. B. Gittler

Am J Soc 58:314 N '52 650w

"Hayek's case is obviously exaggerated beyond the point of cogency and suffers primarily from its own excesses. It exposes him furthermore to the serious charge of methodological and, ultimately, of sociological agnosticism." Robert Bierstedt

Am Soc R 17:629 O '52 380w

"The Counter-revolution of Science is a challenging and highly significant book reinforced by over 600 very instructive and illuminating notes. By its very exaggerations it helps to establish its central point: the dangers resulting from the application of natural science methods to the problems of society." C. J. Friedrich

+ Ann Am Acad 284:208 N '52 500w

Booklist 48:372 J1 15 '52

"[If the reviewer's criticisms] are well taken, Mr. Hayek has not established his central contentions—neither his thesis that the natural and the social sciences employ radically different methods, nor his claim (despite the historical evidence he marshals) that socialism and authoritarianism are logically related to scientism. His book is nevertheless full of acute and valuable comment and criticism." Ernest Nagel

+ J Philos 49:560 Ag 14 '52 2450w

"We have to pay a tribute to Hayek's erudition. We cannot, however, refrain from asking how a sociology which is futile can at the same time be dangerous. This basic inconsistency neither his scholarship nor his sophistication can surmount." R. B.

+ Sat R 35:40 O 11 '52 280w

HAYES, MARJORIE. Robin and company; with il. by Adolph Treidler. 159p $2.75 Little 52-5008

Sequel to Robin on the River (Book Review Digest 1950). In this story Robin and his friends spend the summer earning enough money to go to a baseball game in Boston, and in helping a new friend, Jean, who has had polio. For grades 4 to 6.

Booklist 48:236 Mr 15 '52

Reviewed by Ruth Wales
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '52 70w

Horn Bk 28:105 Ap '52 80w

"The slight mystery moves rather slowly but there are a nice lot of doings in boats which will appeal to those who wish they could get to such a shore but have to take it on paper. Easily read by those of about nine to eleven." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 27 '52 150w

"Miss Hayes tells a good story of youngsters and their sympathy for a handicapped child who wastes no time in self-pity. The easy acceptance of help exchanged between the children and the lack of complaining strengthen the appeal of the story." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p34 F 17 '52 150w

HAYWARD, CHARLES HAROLD. Junior woodworker. (Woodworker handbooks) 203p il $2.50 Lippincott

684 Woodwork—Juvenile literature

Directions and diagrams for the amateur on the choosing and using of essential tools, glue, wood, etc. index.

"Many accurate drawings make this clear handbook one to rely on."

+ Kirkus 20:374 Jl 1 '52 80w

"Explanations are clear and simple; each step is illustrated, and the information is accurate and practical. Excellent for the hobby shelf or shop collection in school and public libraries for ages 9 up." M. K. Walraven

+ Library J 77:1412 S 1 '52 70w

"A fine, serious book for older boys and adults, with many diagrams, including clever ones showing how to avoid faults in handling tools. It will be full of ideas for high school teachers in this field."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 19 '52 30w

HAYWOOD, CAROLYN. Mixed-up twins; il. by [the author]. 125p $2.50 Morrow 52-5932

Vickie, aged four, was very lonely until she met the twins, Ronald and Donald. Life became much more exciting, because not only did Vickie have playmates of her own age, but she could seldom tell them apart. This little story is for ages 4 to 8.

Booklist 49:19 S 1 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 S 21 '52 130w

"This is a light, gay story as full of frolic as the twins of ideas. It will give small children a great deal of friendly pleasure." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 14 '52 110w

Kirkus 20:323 Je 1 '52 160w

"Excellent book for reading aloud to six-year-olds." Elenora Alexander

+ Library J 77:1662 O 1 '52 70w

"The 'Onalds' (R and D) and Vickie, all four years old, provide gay read-aloud material for lively youngsters like themselves. The humor caused by identical twins will also interest good readers of about seven." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 5 '52 90w

"The jokes are just the right speed for a preschool audience, up to second grade." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 10 '52 120w

New Yorker 28:195 D 6 '52 50w

"It is, perhaps, not as funny as the Betsy and Eddie books; but it is a very good story with attractive illustrations."

+ Sat R 35:39 Ag 16 '52 80w

HAZELTINE, ALICE ISABEL, comp. Selected stories for teen-agers for pleasure and understanding. 240p il $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury

Short stories—Collections 52-5383

"Contains excerpts from novels, biographies and autobiographies as well as short stories. These selections range widely in subject-matter, too, from Dostoevski's 'Father Zossima's Duel' from 'The Brothers Karamazov' to one of Jesse Stuart's homely backwoods Kentucky stories. There are selections from the works of such writers as the Papashviliys, Sven Hedin, Ralph Moody, but in general the tone is a shade younger than in the Seventeen anthology." N Y Times

Booklist 49:50 O 1 '52

Kirkus 20:562 S 1 '52 90w

"An odd assortment of stories, historical episodes, and biographical incidents that might be useful to some libraries. . . . Some seem unsatisfactory out of context." R. M. McEvoy

Library J 77:2186 D 15 '52 30w

"Miss Hazeltine's anthologies can always be recommended. One reason is that her sources are made clear, and when they are book sources, that book is urged upon the reader, by brief introduction, or footnote, and by exact reference to copyright. . . . Such a book should be valuable in high school English classes." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 9 '52 150w

N Y Times p36 S 23 '52 120w

HEADLEY, MRS ELIZABETH (CAVANNA), comp. Pick of the litter; Betty Cavanaugh's favorite dog stories. 222p $2.50 Westminster press

Dogs—Legends and stories 52-8182

An anthology composed of fourteen dog stories. Partial contents: Honey and the home front, by Gladys Taber; Choice of the litter, by Roderick Lull; Brag dog, by Vereen Bell; A dog for Miss Boo, by M. L. Runbeck; Blood will tell, by Don Marquis; Eve enters, by F. F. Van de Water; Daggle-tail, by Mary Lavin; Please come home, my lady, by James Street; Verdun Belle, by Alexander Wolcott.

"The tales she has chosen for teen-agers, all rich in this warm relationship, constitute a well rounded cross-section of the best in dog stories, written for dog lovers of any age." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 17 '52 130w

"Unfortunately, the bulk of the material is mediocre in construction or frequently sentimental in the tearjerker category; while one selection, an unpleasant Negro story by Vereen Bell, seems entirely unsuitable in a juvenile anthology. There have been better, though not bigger, dog story anthologies, and we hesitate to subscribe to the assurance of the title."

— + Kirkus 20:80 F 1 '52 110w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 My 11 '52 40w

"An unacknowledged selection chosen for the most part from adult magazines, expertly written and uncloyed by excessive sentiment. Nearly all of them are happy, frequently light-hearted." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 6 '52 110w

HEAL, EDITH (MRS GIL MEYNIER). First book of America; pictures by Fred Collins. 93p $1.75 Watts, F.

973 U.S.—History—Juvenile literature 52-2472

"An introduction to the history of our country with emphasis on ideals and the never-ending struggle for freedom. . . . Additional material [includes] pictures and brief sketches of the presidents, legendary heroes, and American songs and symbols. Ages 9-12." Library J

Booklist 8:383 J1 15 '52

Bookmark 12:35 N '52

Kirkus 20:191 Mr 15 '52 180w

"Recommended." L. E. Cathon
+ Library J 77:1212 J1 '52 80w

"We have here a lot for a little, a short history with many inspirational aspects emphasized. To a younger child it would probably be confusing. To twelve-year-olds it offers a pleasant sort of pictorial review, not very artistic nor with any outstanding quality, but probably useful." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p30 N 16 '52 120w

"This history of the United States of America in the First Book Series is a satisfactory answer to a real need."

+ Sat R 35:39 Ag 16 '52 50w

Wis Lib Bul 48:217 S '52

HEALY, RAYMOND J., ed. New tales of space and time; introd. by Anthony Boucher. 294p $3.50 Holt

Short stories—Collections 51-14220

A collection of science-fiction stories, all written expressly for this anthology. Among the contributors are R. Bradbury, I. Asimov, G. Heard, and A. E. Van Vogt.

Booklist 48:186 F 1 '52

"For those readers who have been waiting for a book to properly introduce them to science fiction, this is the book they have been waiting for; for those happy souls who discovered science fiction long ago, this is an anthology that they must have." Melvin Korshak

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 F 17 '52 190w

Kirkus 19:589 O 1 '51 60w

"Two slightly trying features of the book are the chatty, homey prefatory notes, or blurbs, contributed by the editor, and a story by A. E. Van Vogt written entirely in the historical present tense. Recommended, on the whole." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 76:1804 N 1 '51 130w

"There are three very excellent yarns, probably destined to be anthologized to death in years to come. 'Bettyann,' by Kris Neville. . . 'Fulfillment,' by van Vogt . . . and 'The Quest for Saint Aquin,' by Anthony Boucher. . . With one exception, the remaining stories are typical of their authors' usual work. The exception is Gerald Heard's 'B plus M—Planet 4,' an extension of his theory that flying saucers are piloted by Martian bees. It does not seem to be a story and it certainly doesn't belong in the high-class company this anthology represents." Don Fabun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 25 '51 200w

"In a year when science fiction anthologies have tumbled off the assembly line on a mass production basis, it is refreshing to find one that's not an uninspired replica of all its predecessors. Raymond Healy's collection is no haphazard rehash of stale material but one assembled according to a genuinely creative plan. . . . The list of the ten contributors is an honor roll of contemporary writers of science fiction." J. F. McComas

+ N Y Times p30 D 9 '51 140w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 16 '51 290w

HEARD, ALEXANDER. Two-party South? 334p maps $4.75 Univ. of N.C. press

975 South—Politics and government. Political parties—U.S. 52-8501

A study of southern politics based on a research project carried out with the aid of the Rockefeller Foundation, the Bureau of Public Administration of the University of Alabama, and the Institute for Research in Social Science of the University of North Carolina. "The net result of this inquiry is a confirmation of the belief that much of the South is moving closer to competitive party politics." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by J. B. Shannon

Am Pol Sci R 46:880 S '52 850w

"Good in style and accurate in fact. . . . The author writes and thinks very well. His book deserves the wide reading which it will undoubtedly receive." L. S. Greene

+ Ann Am Acad 283:193 S '52 320w

Booklist 48:262 Ap 15 '52

Bookmark 11:231 J1 '52 30w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 14 '52 600w

Current Hist 22:320 My '52 110w

Reviewed by H. H. Wilson

Nation 175:214 S 13 '52 1300w

Reviewed by Helen Fuller

New Repub 126:23 My 12 '52 750w

"The chief merit of Mr. Heard's book is not the factual information it conveys, but the way it highlights the basic problem of the South, which is essentially the problem of Elre and of Italia irredenta and of Alsace-Lorraine and of a dozen other spots that, like chronically inflamed vermiform appendices in the human frame, have been foci of infection in the body politic." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 6 '52 1300w

"While Mr. Heard's penetrating study can stand by itself, it is additionally a logical and worthy sequel to 'Southern Politics in State and Nation,' V. O. Key's great analysis of the sad causes and sadder results of a one-party South." Hodding Carter

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 13 '52 800w

"The University of North Carolina professor, who assisted V. O. Key in the survey for Southern Politics (1949), has done a top-flight job of research and analysis in the first eighteen chapters and appendices. It is unfortunate, therefore, that the last chapter, which contains his conclusions, seems to have been written by a Mr. Heard who was unfamiliar with the data in the earlier chapters." R. C. Silva

+ Pol Sci Q 67:624 D '52 900w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 J1 6 '52 180w

"It seems to me that this is a valuable complement to Southern Politics and a competent application of ecological or sociographic methods in combination with structure analysis. I wonder merely whether the author does not tend to underestimate the factors of patronage and personal loyalty as social 'ties' within the various factions of the Southern Democratic party." Rudolf Heberle

+ Social Forces 31:84 O '52 420w

"Informed, objective, and thoughtful."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:298 S '52 240w

HEARD, GERALD. Gabriel and the creatures; il. by Susanne Suba. 244p $3.50 Harper

575 Evolution 52-5445

"A collection of symbolic fairy tales dealing with evolution which graphically describe how the various types of mammals developed. . . . While he is describing evolution under the guiding spirit of the Archangel Gabriel, Mr. Heard is also slyly pointing out that some of the choices made by men today are reminiscent of those which led other animals down a dead-end street." Library J

Booklist 48:314 Je 1 '52

HEARD, GERALD—Continued

"On the whole, this is a winsome book and one that should appeal equally to children and adults." Chad Walsh

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ap 27 '52 330w

"Gerald Heard strikes a new vein in this, his latest book. It is a highly imaginative account of the process of animal evolution, including man, done in a gay and whimsical mood but with a solid core." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:782 J1 2 '52 290w

"A delightful book, made the more so by the black and white illustrations of Susanne Suba."

+ Kirkus 20:276 Ap 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by E. M. Cole

+ Library J 77:793 My 1 '52 100w

"Mr. Heard is brilliant, indefatigable, erudite and a little cranky. . . There is that about Mr. Heard's manner, and his superabundance of ideas, ardencies and convictions which confuses and discourages the reader. He seems to consider these myriad concepts of equal importance, though they so patently are not. His contribution would sometimes be a great one if presented singly and directly." L. T. Nicholl

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 J1 20 '52 360w

"If you are weary at the moment with the wretched fumbling and blindness of homo sapiens, here is a book that may lift your heart. But it is also a book to sober you. For, like Toynbee's, it takes the view, at least implicitly, that the easy way is the way to death." Vardis Fisher

+ N Y Times p24 My 4 '52 480w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 9 '52 600w

HEARST, WILLIAM RANDOLPH. Portrait in his own words; ed. by Edmond D. Coblentz. 309p il $3.50 Simon & Schuster

B or 92 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-10863

A biographical study of William Randolph Hearst put together from letters, telegrams, memoranda, and editorial columns, which were turned over to the editor shortly before Hearst's death. Photographs. No index.

Booklist 48:376 J1 15 '52

Bookmark 12:6 O '52 20w

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 29 '52 300w

"The Hearstian self-portrait is not an unrelievedly bad picture. He had tremendous courage. . . But Hearst was, basically, not a great or deep thinker, despite his pretensions in the fields of economics, politics—both foreign and domestic—and social philosophy." Donald McDonald

+ Commonweal 56:416 Ag 1 '52 1100w

Kirkus 20:255 Ap 1 '52 160w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 77:888 My 15 '52 80w

"No book about Hearst could be dull. True, there are no great disclosures offered here. The outline of the man's spectacular career is familiar enough. It is not likely that this portrait will materially change any critical judgments of a highly controversial journalist and public figure. The intent is to make people take a kinder, a more understanding view of Hearst." L. L. Engelking

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 29 '52 650w

"Here is a fascinating picture of Hearst, his career, working methods, his ideas and beliefs—mostly in his own words. It is not, of course, a complete portrait. Many intriguing episodes in the publisher's life are omitted either because Hearst did not write about them or because his deft compiler saw no reason for including them." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p3 Je 29 '52 600w

"Here, reflected in these carefully selected papers, both public and private, is the professional doing his job. No one can say surely, of course, but I have a feeling that Mr. Hearst himself would rather have had the honorary degree of P. N.—Professional Newspaperman—if there were such a degree, than any of the other honors that went to him in his long life. In this book, wisely concentrating on Mr. Hearst's own words, Editor Coblentz has mirrored the man from this angle chiefly, though many letters are included that passed between Hearst and his family and friends." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 J1 4 '52 600w

"It is as a human document that this volume is chiefly valuable." F. L. Mott

Sat R 35:13 N 1 '52 1000w

HEATH, HARRY EUGENE, and GELFAND, LOU. How to cover, write and edit sports; art by Al Papas; photography section by George Yates. 527p $5 Iowa state college press

070.41 [070.446] Sports journalism 51-13952

"Among the facets covered are the history of sportswriting, opportunities in the field, writing tips, how to handle the advance story and sports features, how to cover all major sports, desk work, makeup, the ethics of sportswriting, sports photography [a special chapter by George Yates, chief photographer for the Des Moines Register and Tribune], sports publicity, radio and television coverage, and press relations for coaches. Numerous examples of published stories are offered." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 48:138 D 15 '51

"It seems certain that this will become required reading in journalism courses across the nation. Heath, who is in the Iowa State College technical journalism department, and Gelfand, from the sports department of the St. Paul Pioneer Press, have done a competent and comprehensive job." Robert Cromie

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p26 N 11 '51 170w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:58 Ja 1 '52 10w

HEATON, HERBERT. Scholar in action: Edwin F. Gay. 260p $4.25 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Gay, Edwin Francis 52-5397

A biography of an American scholar, who was for a time active in government service and in journalism (he was president of the New York Post from 1919-1923), and then returned to academic life.

Foreign Affairs 31:158 O '52 20w

"A short, sympathetic, stimulating biography." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:1306 Ag '52 60w

"What Gay did is here set down with clarity, the effect of his work and the names and importance of those who were his collaborators, but why he did what he did, and why he was chosen to do it never becomes apparent, so that it is only by inference that the reader can assume that it was not Gay's knowledge, nor his capacity for hard work, but his enthusiasm and his personality which made him a leader instead of merely a good teacher."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p726 N 7 '52 600w

"The life depicted in these pages can serve both as inspiration and as an example to those who look upon university teaching and research as somehow separated from the hurly-burly of daily life. . . Every college professor should read this book."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:235 S '52 210w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Tragic target. 190p $2.50 Doubleday

Detective story.

52-5537

Kirkus 20:48 Ja 15 '52 80w

"On the whole, unless you care for threats rather specifically cut and can stand the family din, I'd advise against it." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Mr 30 '52 80w

"It's all pretty confusing and unconvincing; and I have a notion that psychiatrists and physicians may raise a few eyebrows over some of the basic plot elements." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p27 Mr 23 '52 60w

"You may not quite believe in old Josh or the murderer, but interest holds up. C plus." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 23 '52 80w

"Characters fall into slots; too much table talk impedes development of story. Pace too slow." Sergeant Cuff

— Sat R 35:36 Ap 5 '52 40w

HEBERLE, RUDOLF. Social movements; an introduction to political sociology. 478p maps $4 Appleton

301.15 Social problems. Social conditions. Political science 51-8413

"The main objective of this volume is to develop 'a comparative, systematic theory of social movements within a more comprehensive system of political sociology.' This orientation, immediately established by the author, distinguishes this work from the conventional historical studies and philosophical evaluations of such movements as fascism and communism." Am Soc R

"The author's command of the European literature is impressive, his European-American comparisons enlightening, and his results in the ecology of voting significant. Nonetheless, it is a hard book to read but one which must be read." F. E. LaViolette

+ Am J Soc 58:104 Jl '52 1200w

"While Heberle has done a notable job of presenting a synthesis of the work of European and European-trained theorists, the task of integrating this with the work of Americans in this field remains to be done." C. E. Glick

Am Soc R 17:376 Je '52 700w

"This is not a book to search for unusual insights but rather should be viewed as a valuable epitome of current thought, systematically organized for pedagogical purposes." C. H. Grattan

Ann Am Acad 281:221 My '52 320w

Reviewed by J. M. Williams

Churchman 166:16 F 15 '52 230w

"A thoroughly scholarly volume."

+ School & Society 74:366 D 8 '51 20w

"A text presenting a genuine sociology of social movements has been long overdue. This one is well worth waiting for. And we are fortunate that this first real effort to develop a systematic theory of social movements is made, not by a tyro, but by a competent, mature scholar whose grasp of the American scene extends from a rich knowledge and experience of European political sociology." F. B. Parker

+ Social Forces 31:172 D '52 550w

HECKERT, JOSIAH BROOKS, and WILLSON, JAMES D. Controllershship: the work of the accounting executive. 645p il $7.50 Ronald

658.15 Controllershship. Accounting 52-6208

"A comprehensive treatment of the duties and responsibilities of the controller, which covers the approach that should be followed in working on typical problems, with many examples of practices and techniques applicable to businesses of all sizes." Library J

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1200 Jl '52 70w

"This comprehensive volume should prove of value to the experienced, working controller. . . It is this reviewer's impression that Messrs.

Heckert and Willson's contribution to current business literature is definitely a 'buy.'" L. W. Garner

+ Management R 41:768 N '52 420w

HEDDEN, MRS WORTH TUTTLE. Love is a wound. 467p $3.75 Crown

52-5684

Beginning in North Carolina in 1884 this story of a Southern Methodist minister, his wife, and his wife's sister who was in love with him, continues to 1934, with the death of David Humiston.

Booklist 48:297 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:235 Jl '52 60w

Reviewed by Warren Beck

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 1 '52 250w

"Often disturbingly poignant, ones sympathies turned now this way, now that, this is unique and effective, and marks a great step forward in maturity of writing."

+ Kirkus 20:161 Mr 1 '52 320w

"Characters are excellently drawn and although it could be considered a psychopathic study it is not—but rather the story of the tumult and tragedy caused by human non-adjustment to events beyond control. Recommended." K. A. Shorey

+ Library J 77:791 My 1 '52 80w

"Rarely have the corrosive effects of love, as well as the beneficent, been so powerfully presented. . . Mrs. Hedden makes us know and understand her characters, and understanding them we have sympathy for them and even admiration. . . Magnificent is the only word to describe Mrs. Hedden's achievement here, her powerful and moving psychological drama, her creation of real and memorable characters, her probing of the human heart." Coleman Rosenberger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 My 4 '52 650w

"Southern readers will delight in the honest-to-goodness rendering of homely speech and familiar ways in Worth Tuttle Hedden's new novel. Some people not born and bred in our briar patch may just possibly be more grudging." Frances Gaither

+ — N Y Times p5 My 11 '52 400w

"Mrs. Hedden writes with intensity and with absolute knowledge of her subject, but although her people are very real, they are too commonplace and too small to stand up under an inspection as searching as this, and the atmosphere of the book is more depressing than tragic."

New Yorker 28:136 My 24 '52 160w

"As Mrs. Hedden handles it, the story is crystal clear. And as she develops it, the book moves powerfully, under beautiful control to its end, a tragedy which attains full dignity at least partly because the author makes no point of 'rightness' or 'wrongness.'" J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 24 '52 750w

Reviewed by Josephine Lawrence

Sat R 35:16 My 17 '52 500w

"Love Is a Wound is too talky, though much of the talk is real and lits with soft Southern music. If it had been trimmed and tightened it would have been a very fine novel indeed. But even as it is, the book is an honest and sometimes dramatic picture of love turning in upon itself. Novelist Hedden herself a Southerner, writes with authority of the post-Reconstruction South. More important, she writes with authority of Ora, David and Ellen, demonstrating through their troubles that the tyranny of the weak can be as oppressive as that of the strong."

+ — Time 59:114 My 5 '52 440w

"Mrs. Hedden's book is crammed with delightful and telling details of Carolinian customs and habits of speech, and she handles the three points of view with subtlety. The novel is overwritten, nevertheless; its base is not sufficiently broad to sustain the heavy overhang of its superstructure."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:253 S '52 260w

HEDGES, JAMES BLAINE. Browns of Providence plantations; 3v; v 1, Colonial years. 379p il $6 Harvard univ. press

929.2 Brown family (Chad Brown)

"The story of the Browns of Providence Plantations is in essence the story of the economic development of this country. It is not surprisingly, therefore, a fascinating chronicle that James B. Hedges of Brown University has to tell in this first of a series of volumes that will describe the role and contributions of America's most important business family. It begins in 1723, when the Browns ventured into maritime trade, and the first volume closes with their successful emergence from the turbulent years of the War for Independence and the 'Critical Period' of post-war readjustment." N Y Times

"For the students of eighteenth-century American history and business history, this is an important book. It presents an excellent picture, in the setting of the times, of one of those mercantile concerns that tied the varied economic life of the colonies into a somewhat unified system and connected it with regions and countries. The volume includes the years of revolution and postwar depression for which there is no comparable study." H. M. Larson

+ Am Hist R 85:129 O '52 350w

"This is a real contribution to American economic history. There is no vital single fact that stands out; it is the homely details, the personal approach, the atmosphere created that make it a classic in economic and business history literature. Readers of this book will await the second and third volumes in the Brown saga with impatience." D. L. Kemmerer

+ J Pol Econ 60:455 O '52 600w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1200 J1 '52 100w

"The Browns of Providence Plantations' is not light summer reading, but it has a fascination of its own." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 17 '52 700w

"The reader's interest is held by the freshness of the facts and the sound interpretation of their meaning, rather than by a superficial raciness of style. This is a major contribution to American business history, and should be read with enjoyment and profit by anyone interested in the development of the American economy." Carl Bridenbaugh

+ N Y Times p9 Je 1 '52 800w

"The story of the Browns is told vividly and concisely from the time that Chad Brown, who came to Boston in 1638, brought his family to Providence Plantations in Rhode Island and established the family business." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 4 '52 140w

Reviewed by J. M. England

Sat R 35:14 D 27 '52 200w

HEERIKHUIZEN, F. W. VAN. Rainer Maria Rilke: his life and work; tr. by Fernand G. Renier and Anne Cliff. 396p $6 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Rilke, Rainer Maria

"Tells the story of Rilke's life from the inside through the poet's poetry and letters and other writings. In his personal relationships it is particularly exemplified in the many attachments he formed with women whose sensibility he understood so well but whose encroachments upon the jealously guarded inner citadel of himself he feared and had to reject." (Manchester Guardian) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by T. M. Longstreth

Christian Science Monitor p5 J1 31 '52 250w

"The style of this biography does not make easy reading, but it is certainly the most revealing which has yet appeared in English." H. I. A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 11 '51 270w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries

Nation 174:589 Je 14 '52 40w

"Professor van Heerikhulzen's book must take its place as the supplement and parallel to Professor E. M. Butler's fine work, and as a corrective to Nora Wydenbruck's many misinterpretations. Although at times repetitious, abstract, and a bit heavy-handed, it is, on the whole, the best full study of Rilke's inner conflicts and resolutions." Kimon Friar

+ New Repub 126:25 My 12 '52 400w

"As far as the ambiguous approach permits, Mr. van Heerikhulzen's study is original and penetrating. Unlike his predecessors, he has taken great trouble to fill in the background; his first chapter, a description of the mental and social climate into which Rilke was born, lends depth to all the subsequent ones. Inevitably—because his book is partly biographical—he is concerned as much with Rilke's failings as with his achievement; inevitably, too, these failings are often defined in psychological (though not in psychoanalytical) terms." Michael Hamburger

New Statesman & Nation 42:763 D 29 '51 750w

"This is a carefully documented biography, generously supported, if not always illuminated, by quotations from the poet's verse and correspondence." Dudley Fitts

+ N Y Times p4 Je 15 '52 550w

"The author presents his thesis skillfully, if repetitively; the prose text is accompanied by the best English translations of the poems included; and the modern tendency to make a cult and religion out of Rilke is carefully avoided."

+ New Yorker 28:203 N 22 '52 160w

"Mr. Heerikhulzen becomes a captive of his own, restrictive categories in dealing with the poet's work as a whole. . . . Instead of sound textual analysis, we are presented with florid and almost lush impressions of Rilke's poetry. Once the reader is warned of the limitations of this scholarly study, there remain many features to commend it, especially the large selection of well-translated poems, extensive excerpts from the poet's diaries, and indications of Rilke's early prose, verse, and dramatic efforts." Siegfried Mandel

+ Sat R 35:42 Je 21 '52 310w

Reviewed by J. M. Cohen

Spec 188:862 Je 27 '52 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p456 J1 11 '52 700w

HEGARTY, EDWARD J. Showmanship in public speaking. 236p $3.75 McGraw

808.5 Public speaking 51-13607

"An experienced speaker, in easy, conversational style, demonstrates how speeches can be planned to arouse and hold audience attention by the art of showmanship. Index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:375 J1 15 '52

Bookmark 11:181 My '52 20w

"Every speaker, Mr. Hegarty believes, must learn to use the many tricks of public speaking to put on an act or a show that will win and hold an audience. In this helpful book, he shows how one can consciously develop persuasive speaking techniques that will insure increased audience response."

+ Management R 41:335 My '52 50w

HEIDE, JOHN D. Industrial process control by statistical methods. 297p $6 McGraw

658.56 Industrial statistics 51-12616

"A practical book on statistical quality control, written primarily for personnel in manufacturing establishments who will be directly concerned with the use or supervision of statistical quality control procedures. Quality control is correctly presented as a logical basis for mass production. The reader is first introduced to its statistical bases and to the design of control charts. In the later chapters, various practical steps in installing a quality control program and using it in factory are treated."

The author holds the position of Industrial-Statistical Analyst with the United States Rubber Company." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"This volume is an elementary account of the Shewhart statistical control chart for variables (continuous measurements) and attributes (e.g., number of 'defectives'). It can be recommended for readers with little education who wish to learn about these ideas, though it would appear to be over-priced. However, it is quite unsuited for members of the ACS."

K. A. Brownlee

— + Chem & Eng N 30:3124 J1 28 '52 280w

Chem Eng 59:343 Mr '52 1500w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:42 My '52

HEIMER, MELVIN LEIGHTON. Fabulous bawd; the story of Saratoga. 244p $3.50 Holt 974.766 Saratoga, New York 52-6626

An account of life at America's most famous spa during the century and a half of its existence as a hotbed of gambling, horse racing, society, and vice.

"It is fascinating history-off-the-cuff, a story packed with color, action, and incredible characters." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 4 '52 450w

Kirkus 20:184 Mr 1 '52 160w

"This strictly once-over-lightly book is amusing in spots, but marred by the author's repetitious use of the glib clichés of New York-come common to so many 'smart' newspaper columnists."

— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 J1 20 '52 220w

"Mel Heimer, author of 'The World Ends at Hoboken' and 'The Big Drag,' is a New York columnist and he suffers from what is apparently an occupational disease of columnists—an extremely irritating condescension." Cleveland Amory

N Y Times p10 Ap 27 '52 400w

HEINE, HEINRICH. North sea; tr. by Vernon Watkins. 95p $3 New directions 831 51-14555

A new translation of Heine's Nordseebilder, written when he was twenty-four; and of a second cycle which he finished two years later.

"Such is their looseness of form, so free are they from tight idiomatic effects, that the translator has his work more than half done for him before he starts; Mr. Watkins, himself an easy-going mellifluous poet with no great hold or bite, has enough sympathy with this kind of rhythm and enough respect for the concrete nouns and verbs not to let the tidal wave of adjectives and the adverbial froth and spume sweep him entirely away: the English version, on facing pages, is substantially just to the German." Rolfe Humphries

Nation 174:283 Mr 22 '52 180w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 27 '52 80w

"It is high time we got some Heine translated fresh. Vernon Watkins, an intelligent and good English poet, has put his sensitive hand to Heinrich Heine's The North Sea, and the result is, I believe, the best Heine in English so far." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p15 D 16 '51 170w

"It is good to have this book. Watkins has shown that we do not, after all, live in the dreadful tribal isolation that our anthropologists of relativist persuasion would have us believe. These poems are as beautiful in mid-twentieth-century America as they were in early nineteenth-century Germany." F. D. Wieck

+ Poetry 81:149 N '52 600w

"Breaking the cold rocks of the original German, Vernon Watkins' translation here echoes that Nordic sea, at once pagan and Gothic, mothering and rude, which furnished Heine with his most moving symbol." Lawrence Ferlingh

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 6 '52 100w

"The moods have been reflected by Mr. Watkins, but the subtle music has been lost. His is, at the best, a competent and fairly literal translation. Since the originals are in an unrhymed free verse, Mr. Watkins did not have to worry about matching vowel sounds, but he might have gone to the trouble of preserving the rolling rhythms, the toss and pitch of the lines themselves. The translator, however, has been careless about the cadences and has reduced Heine's rhythmless verse to a succession of prosy statements." Louis Untermeyer

Sat R 35:39 Mr 15 '52 400w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Green hills of earth; Rhysling and the adventure of the entire solar system; with an appreciation by Mark Reinsberg. (Future history ser) 256p $3 Shasta pubs. 51-8740

Science-fiction.

Booklist 48:215 Mr 1 '52

Reviewed by August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 F 17 '52 190w

"Recommended."

+ Kirkus 19:236 My 1 '51 80w

"Classics for fans and non-fans." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R 35:44 My 24 '52 20w

"Mr. Heinlein is a good writer, one of the three or four best in the science fiction field, and newcomers will find him most entertaining. Veteran fans will find most of this collection already well known to them." R. F. H.

+ Springfield Republican p16A Ja 20 '52 50w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON, ed. Tomorrow, the stars. 249p $2.95 Doubleday

Short stories—Collections

52-5218

A science-fiction anthology.

Booklist 48:215 Mr 1 '52

Bookmark 11:159 Ap '52

Kirkus 19:713 D 15 '51 110w

"A fine book for those who scoff at science fiction and, needless to say, a must for all teen-age collections." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:733 Ap 15 '52 70w

"Fourteen never-before-anthologized stories on such a high level of literate entertainment that it might well be the first such anthology rather than the n + 1st. . . I'd pick out stories by Kuttner, Tucker and Kornbluth as my own favorites, but you may equally well vote for almost any of the others." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 23 '52 230w

"No slap-dash job of cannibalizing previous anthologies, 'Tomorrow, the Stars' is an original collection of literate and entertaining stories." J. F. McComas

+ N Y Times p36 Ap 27 '52 130w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p29 F 24 '52 90w

"Top-notch anthology." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R 35:44 My 24 '52 20w

HEINOLD, GEORGE. Burglar in the treetops [16 drawings by Ralph Ray]. 242p $3 Holt 599 Mammals. Animals, Habits and behavior of 52-7815

Accounts of sixteen North American wild animals, all small except the black bear and deer, describing their habits and behavior, how they are hunted, and how they manage to survive. Included are the raccoon, grey squirrel, red fox, mink, muskrat, skunk, bobcat,

HEINOLD, GEORGE—Continued
black bear, deer, woodchuck, rabbit, snow-shoe hare, weasel, porcupine, otter.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran
Atlantic 189:85 Je '52 400w
Booklist 48:249 Ap 1 '52
Bookmark 11:181 My '52 20w

"'Burglar in the Treetops' is an informative and entertaining book for all readers interested in the fascinating world around them."
August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 23 '52 310w

"More purposeful than many nature books, 'Burglar in the Treetops' might well be called a brief course in natural history; but so thoroughly enjoyable is it that one comes to the end with the feeling that a great deal of knowledge has been acquired by no other means than sheer delight." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 Ap 3 '52 420w

Horn Bk 28:188 Je '52 30w

Kirkus 20:62 Ja 15 '52 160w

"The writer has spent much time watching these animals, and has a high opinion of their abilities. This book will prove fascinating to nature lovers and hunters. Recommended."
J. L. Ross

+ Library J 77:430 Mr 1 '52 100w

"Some readers love this; some abominate it. But there will scarcely be any reader, fond of animal lore who will not find a rewarding abundance of such lore here. Policeman Heinold's lot may or may not be a happy one. Naturalist Heinold's clearly is." Alan Devoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 20 '52 340w

"Altogether this is an easy-reading, informative report not only on wild animal ways but on the ways of a woodman and trapper. . . Some readers may not find this sort of thing, as the publishers seem to, 'fresh good humor.' On the other hand, Mr. Heinold's writing is lively. His first-hand anecdotes and lore should interest especially those who take to the woods for action." W. M. Teller

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 23 '52 220w

HEINSHEIMER, HANS W. Fanfare for 2 pigeons. 220p $2.75 Doubleday

B or 92 Music—U.S. Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-5750

Informal essays on music in America written from the point of view of a music publisher, the author of Menagerie in F Sharp (Book Review Digest 1947).

Booklist 48:280 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 30w

Reviewed by Edward Barry
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 20 '52 220w

Kirkus 20:144 F 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 77:899 My 15 '52 90w

"Mr. Heinsheimer's Fanfare is a spirited and stimulating flourish for any reader, and worth including in a music literature collection of almost any size." Armine Dikijian

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:616 S '52 160w

"[The author] has seen and heard a lot; and much of what he tells is enlightening and important. Unfortunately he seems to have thought it wouldn't be interesting unless he made it funny; and this is unfortunate because humor, for him, is achieved by extravagance and exaggeration—often to the point of distortion and inaccuracy. The distortion doesn't matter when he is telling a funny story about Beecham; but it does matter when he is discussing opera in English and talks about American singers being trained 'to parrot foreign sounds so that they can sing opera to American audiences in a language neither they nor their public understand.' B. H. Haggin

+ Nation 175:283 S 27 '52 1150w

"Since he writes pleasantly and sincerely, 'Fanfare for Two Pigeons' should be of unusual interest to people who enjoy musical conversation as well as musical performance." Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 27 '52 600w

"There is much information as well as wit in this modest book. . . I can heartily recommend this delightful new book, a kind of New World sequel to the author's autobiography." Moses Smith

+ N Y Times p7 Je 29 '52 230w

"The author, who works for a New York music-publishing house, has lots of entertaining, and, at times, important material at hand, but for some reason he has felt it necessary to present it in an exhaustingly frolicsome style. When he catches his breath, however, he's able to talk very intelligently indeed about such matters as the financial woes of composers, which are shockingly acute; the efforts made by ASCAP to put things at least partly right for them; the activities, both good and bad, of the big concert agencies; and the personal quirks of some of the musicians he has known here or abroad."

+ New Yorker 28:145 Ap 19 '52 160w

"The most winning portion of the book—to me the only winning portion—is devoted to a profile, from the author's own reminiscences, of Béla Bartók. . . Here Mr. Heinsheimer dispenses with his frippery style and elephantine efforts at popular humor and tells a human story honorably, straightforwardly, and touchingly. For a few brief pages he escapes from the tone of poorly masked contempt with which he otherwise treats the business that gives him his living." Cecil Smith

+ Sat R 35:20 Ap 26 '52 450w

HEITNER, IRIS (ROBERT JAMES pseud).

Board stiff. 185p $2.50 Doubleday

51-14736

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:647 N 1 '51 70w

"I suppose it could be called a dully honest piece of work suffering from the misapprehension that it is sardonic." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 23 '51 60w

"Is not only chaotically incompetent; it is about as dull a book as the year has produced." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p14 D 30 '51 30w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 6 '52 60w

"Not too lively." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:26 D 29 '51 30w

HEITNER, IRIS (ROBERT JAMES, pseud). Death wears pink shoes. 191p $2.50 Doubleday

52-8046

Detective story.

"Muddle of situations stirred up to throw cobwebs around mildly farcical murder puzzle." Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 Je 29 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:240 Ap 1 '52 60w

"This is a considerable improvement over Mr. James' first novel if only because it lacks the horrible facetiousness that distinguished that. But for all the talk and blood it has only a flickering vitality. For determined readers." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 15 '52 110w

"Ballet slippers turn up to furnish an apparent clue and a title for Death Wears Pink Shoes, but prove exasperatingly irrelevant to the plot, as indeed do most of the goings-on in this episodic and indeterminate novel." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p11 Je 22 '52 70w

"Plot and characters are presented in a slapdash, take-it-or-leave-it manner; nevertheless, this is far better constructed and more amusing than James' first book." L. G. Offord

 + San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 22 '52
 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
 Sat R 35:33 Jl 26 '52 30w

HELD, JOHN, II. Held's angels. See Gilbreth, F. B.

HELLER, FRANCIS HOWARD, ed. Introduction to American constitutional law; a selection of cases and materials. 691p $5 Harper 342.73 U.S.—Constitutional law 51-11922
 "Containing approximately 100 cases and a substantial number of readings, this text is designed for advanced undergraduates in political science. Professor Heller has supplied interpretative comments and summaries of constitutional developments." (Am Pol Sci R) Table of cases. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 46:581 Je '52 20w

"I think this is an admirable textbook for a one-semester course in constitutional law for undergraduate nonlaw students. There is not enough material for a full year's course, and graduate students and law students cannot very well ignore the important jurisdictional problems which this book leaves out. But Professor Heller says at the outset that his purpose was to prepare a book for undergraduate instruction. For a one-semester undergraduate course there is, in my opinion, no better textbook available at the present time." David Fellman
 + Ann Am Acad 282:131 Jl '52 550w

HELM, MACKINLEY. Spring in Spain. 315p Il $5 Harcourt

946 [914.6] Spain—Description and travel. 52-11349

Account of a trip thru present day Spain which combines personal anecdotes, comments on social and political conditions, and loving descriptions of Spain's art and architecture. Author is an expert in Mexican art. Index.

Atlantic 191:87 Ja '53 60w

Booklist 49:81; 123 N 1 '52; D 1 '52

Kirkus 20:738 N 15 '52 190w

"Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
 + Library J 77:2180 D 15 '52 60w

"The author brought his heart with him and his comfortably flowing narrative of a spring pilgrimage in Spain takes rank with the really understanding books concerning that often puzzling but always moving country." Geoffrey Parsons

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 7 '52 500w

"Mr. Helm is erudite. Knowledge has led him perhaps to retell more than is necessary of familiar history, but his understanding appreciation of Baroque art and the zest with which he follows its dizzy descent into the Churrigueresque is exhilarating." Ellery Sedgwick

+ N Y Times p7 N 30 '52 550w

"Often a travel book is more revealing than an autobiography. That was the case, you'll remember, with Eleanor Clark's 'Rome and a Villa' and with Henry Adams' 'Mont St. Michel and Chartres.' Mr. Helm shares some of the qualities of both these writers." Jane Voiles
 + San Francisco Chronicle p12 D 14 '52 700w

HELM, RUTH H. Gwendolyn; pictures by Madeleine Gekiere. 43p $2 Oxford

52-6390

Gwendolyn was a giraffe who was very unhappy in a zoo in America, dreaming of the delicious acacia trees she had eaten in her native Africa. This tale relates how a small boy rented Gwendolyn for a week to help his Uncle Henry trim trees, how Gwendolyn's longing for acacia trees first got her into trouble but finally earned her a trip back to Africa.

"A comical story bound to appeal to 6 to 9 year olds. The pictures are as delightfully ridiculous as the text." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Mr 23 '52 150w

Horn Bk 28:170 Je '52 100w

Kirkus 20:124 F 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 11 '52 160w

"This is a lively story that keeps moving till it comes to the end and then stops, without a pretentious word to it. Madeleine Gekiere's drawings are beautifully patterned, and witty as well, and the design of the book makes each page a pleasure to see." Marjorie Fischer
 + N Y Times p32 Ap 27 '52 120w

"This is a very funny picture book."

+ Sat R 35:46 Mr 22 '52 180w

HELMERICKS, MRS CONSTANCE, and HELMERICKS, HARMON. Flight of the Arctic tern. 321p Il $4.50 Little

998 Arctic regions 52-5523

Account of an early exploring trip made by this husband and wife team, in their first airplane, a small Cessna which they christened The Arctic Tern. The trip took them from Boston, across northern Canada to Alaska and their home in the wilderness.

Booklist 48:337 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:231 Jl '52 30w

Reviewed by August Derleth

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Je 8 '52 300w

"Veracity is stamped on every page, and one is taught a deal about the North, even the salutary aspect of mosquitoes. The book stops short of literature—the only flaw in a reliable and fascinating work." T. M. Longstreth

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 5 '52 380w

Kirkus 20:252 Ap 1 '52 170w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1009 Je 1 '52 100w

"What impressed this reviewer most about 'The Flight of the Arctic Tern' was its air of absolute authenticity. The authors know the North and its people and tell a sympathetic, exciting story, despite what seemed to this reviewer a highly exasperating style." Ralph Chapman

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 8 '52 650w

"Hard work and stubborn endurance have gone into the writing of this book by two young people. All one can say against it is that it does need a map." Peter Freuchen

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 27 '52 470w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 7 '52 280w

"A great many people will envy the Helmericks their life and their enthusiasm for it and still more will simply be glad to hear about it. Mrs. Helmericks is occasionally careless with statements—such as that she reached Boston by flying north from Westport, or that Kotzebue, Alaska, is one hundred miles from Nome (it is almost twice that)—and the publishers were remiss in not providing her book with a map but the story of the Arctic Tern is both refreshing and valuable." Richard Peckham

+ Sat R 35:16 Je 28 '52 650w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 29 '52 250w

Wis Lib Bul 48:170 Jl '52

HELSON, HARRY, ed. Theoretical foundations of psychology; in association with S. Howard Bartley [and others]. 787p Il $7.25 Van Nostrand

150 Psychology

51-10858

"Rejecting the outmoded view that theoretical psychology is concerned with 'schools,' each of the contributors to this volume treats of the fundamental ideas, concepts, theories, and problems in the area of psychology with which he or she is most directly concerned... The topics treated are indicated by the fifteen chapter titles: Methodological Considerations, Some Problems of Nervous Function, Some Neurological Correlates of Behavior, Development and Maturation, Motivation, Feeling and Emotion, Fatigue and Efficiency, Perception, Learning, Thinking, Measurement in Psychology, Intelligence, Personality, Psychological Theory and Social Psychology, Abnormal Psychology." U S Quarterly Bk R

HELSON, HARRY—Continued

"The chapters are uneven in quality. Among the best are Professor Helson's on 'Perception' where he develops his own theory of adaptation-level in perception, and Professor H. F. Harlow's on 'Thinking,' where he attempts to integrate recent theoretical and experimental approaches in terms of 'organised response patterns.' It would seem from this book that the time has not yet come when a text-book on psychology can be written within the framework of a single theory or system and at the same time do justice to all the observations." John Cohen

Hibbert J 50:294 Ap '52 550w

"Presenting psychological theory as an orderly discipline with many specialized subsections, this book synthesizes important material, and should prove valuable to the professional psychologist as well as the advanced student."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:395 D '51 160w

HEMINGWAY, ERNEST. Old man and the sea. 140p $3 Scribner

52-11935

A brief novel about supreme courage. An old Gulf fisherman, overtaken by hard luck, proves his tenacity and courage when he hooks a monster marlin. He kills his catch but is towed out to sea, and then brings what the sharks leave of it back to Havana.

"The old man and the boy are perfectly tuned to Hemingway's purpose: their affection and utterance are true to themselves as their philosophy is true to the sea. I have put this book on the top shelf of Mr. Hemingway's work, and I am grateful for it." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 190:72 S '52 430w

Booklist 49:2; 13 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:10 O '52 30w

"Whatever The Old Man and the Sea is about, whatever its philosophical care, it is a very good story indeed; told with all of Hemingway's usual skill and with a great deal more restraint than he has sometimes shown." A. S.

+ Canadian Forum 32:189 N '52 180w

"This brief novel is Hemingway at his best; theme, tone, and action come together in a wholeness of dignity and power." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:151 N '52 130w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 7 '52 550w

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 11 '52 650w

"Hemingway has already done the significant part of his life's work. . . He is, by our living needs and standards, a true, brilliant, but very limited artist, and I believe that we have gotten all we can from him now. He may write several more good or even fine books of a kind, but it is very doubtful if they will extend our sensibilities and refresh our vision of life as the earlier works did; and the chances are that they will merely repeat or embellish the best of his earlier work, as does The Old Man and the Sea." Seymour Krim

Commonweal 56:584 S 19 '52 1600w

"For most readers this will be a taut, tense, graphic story of an old fisherman who, after a run of bad luck, hooks the biggest fish he has ever seen and in spite of age and weariness fights him to victory, only to have his catch taken from him at the end. Some of the older readers may put into it all the symbolism of human striving and the identification of killer with killed that the critics find. For most of them it will be unforgettable as a picture of the sea and of fishing and of a man's persistence." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 28:427 D '52 50w

Kirkus 20:377 J1 1 '52 270w

"Saturated with its subject and milieu, written in a limpid style and with the surest art, this novella is one of Hemingway's finest pieces of work. No one else could possibly have written it." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1401 S 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 S 12 '52 140w

"On so many counts the book is momentous and heartening. . . Though in his past work Hemingway suggested compassion and humility and love, in 'The Old Man' he gives expression to them in a directer and bolder way, without sacrificing the strength and toughness of the earlier work. And for a final thing, it suggests that the big book Hemingway has been working on in the past, and is still working on, may be his greatest." Harvey Breit

+ Nation 175:194 S 6 '52 1100w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer

New Repub 127:19 O 6 '52 1400w

"The Old Man and the Sea is intended to be a 'universal' book, dealing, however briefly, with the suffering of humanity as a whole. Its compassion is not exclusive. If it succeeded it would be a masterpiece surpassing anything that Mr. Hemingway has written. In my opinion it has not succeeded. Despite its great virtues, its lucidity, its brilliantly compact evocation of the sea, of physical endurance, of the power of the great fish, its compassion and its impact, it does not plumb these depths of primitive tragic simplicity at which it obviously aims." J. D. Scott

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:297 S 13 '52 650w

"I couldn't write even a short report on the book without paying tribute to Hemingway's prose. It is as different from Melville's prose in 'Moby Dick' as anything could be and still remain English. There is no attempt in it to express the inexpressible by inventing new words and turns of phrase; instead Hemingway uses the oldest and shortest words, the simplest constructions, but gives them a new value—as if English were a strange language that he had studied or invented for himself and was trying to write in its original purity." Malcolm Cowley

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 7 '52 2100w

"It is a tale superbly told and in the telling Ernest Hemingway uses all the craft his hard, disciplined, trying over so many years has given him." R. G. Davis

+ N Y Times p1 S 7 '52 1750w

Reviewed by Brendan Gill

New Yorker 28:115 S 6 '52 700w

"Hemingway has never written more cleanly, more precisely, with less waste—not that he is very often a man to waste a word. Here, because he knows so well the background against which he stages his miracle-play of Man against Fate, he evokes both struggle and sea with a skill that very few—oh, well, what few, then? no one else writing today—could touch." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 7 '52 1550w

"The admirable Santiago, Hemingway's ancient mariner and protagonist of this triumphant short novel, enters the gallery of permanent heroes effortlessly, as if he had belonged there from the beginning. . . 'The Old Man and the Sea' is a great short novel, told with consummate artistry and destined to become a classic in its kind. It is a good kind of present for a man to give the world on or about his fifty-third birthday." Carlos Baker

+ Sat R 35:10 S 6 '52 1600w

Reviewed by Tangeve Lean

Spec 189:342 S 12 '52 240w

"The Old Man and the Sea has almost none of the old Hemingway truculence, the hard-guy sentimentality that sometimes gives even his most devoted admirers twinges of discomfort. As a story, it is clean and straight. Those who admire craftsmanship will be right in calling it a masterpiece."

+ Time 60:114 S 8 '52 900w

"Carefully and expressively told in prose that achieves a considerable pitch of excitement during the attack of the sharks. And yet, all the same, the reader closes the book feeling that such an effect might have been achieved, equally well by a writer of far slighter gifts."

Times [London] Lit Sup p593 S 12 '52
280w

Wis Lib Bul 48:215 S '52

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 42:8 autumn '52 310w

HENDERSON, KEITH. Pastels. 96p il $5
Studio

741.2 Pastel drawing 52-7388

Writing in a half-humorous style, author gives instructions in the art, and, in captions for the plates, some of its history. Plates include work by Andrea Del Sarto, François Clouet, Carracci, Terborgh, Liotard, De la Tour, Degas, Eric Kennington, and others.

Booklist 49:34 S 15 '52

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 77:1511 S 15 '52 40w

School Arts 52:12a N '52 50w

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). When the Mississippi was wild [pictures by the author]. [38p] $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

52-3039

Tall tale about Old Al, the alligator who lived in the Mississippi river and made life exciting for anybody who tried to keep him from whipping up storms from the Gulf of Mexico. For ages 6-8.

Booklist 49:20 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:11 O '52 20w

"An authentic bit of American folklore that will please children of all ages." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 11 '52
50w

"Simple prose and pictures in bright green and black make this fourth Le Grand regional tall tale a good one." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:319 O '52 90w

Kirkus 20:366 J1 1 '52 80w

"Easy sentences make this useful for poor readers." Phyllis Penner

+ Library J 77:1412 S 1 '52 60w

"The author gets plenty of action, pioneer-style, into the story, but he fails to cap his climax with the twisty kind of humor which made his other yarns so satisfying." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p40 O 5 '52 110w

"This 'tall tale' in picture-book form is even funnier than LeGrand's 'Cap'n Dow and the Hole in the Doughnut.' The drawings are very funny indeed. Little boys will love them."

+ Sat R 35:50 N 15 '52 50w

HENDERSON, PHILIP. Christopher Marlowe. (Men and books ser) 162p il $2.50 Longmans

B or 92 Marlowe, Christopher 52-9180

This study of Marlowe is half biography, half criticism. The first part is a sketch of his life and death, based on recent research; the second part takes up each play separately and gives all that is known of texts, stage history and sources, summarizes plots, and critical scrutiny. Bibliography. Index.

"Tyrone Guthrie's Old Vic production of Tamburlaine the Great was an event among other things in Marlowe scholarship. . . Mr. Philip Henderson has modestly and learnedly provided a chart of the cyclone, all the more useful for being frankly just that."

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:382 Mr 29
'52 260w

"This little book on the great Elizabethan dramatist is an uneven performance, partly through the difficulty of its subject and partly through the method of its author. . . In general it is a useful and stimulating handbook for a fresh reading of Marlowe's mighty lines." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R 35:38 J1 12 '52 260w

"With four relevant illustrations and a helpful bibliography, this book, though open to question in various details, may be commended as a thoughtful and scholarly introduction to its subject."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p347 My 23
'52 1000w

HENDERSON, RONALD FRANK. New issue market and the finance of industry; with a foreword by Sir Henry Clay. 172p $3.50 Harvard univ. press

332.6 Investments. Finance—Great Britain. Capital. Stock companies A52-9214

"An analytical study of the availability of risk capital for the financing of (particularly small) new enterprises in Britain since 1926. The author discusses the importance in supporting the economy, what conditions have hampered the flow of capital, and certain methods and sources by which it may be assured, especially the investment trust as experienced in management problems and suited to risk-spreading." (Library J) Index.

"Mr. Henderson is able to draw significant background material from hardly more than half-a-dozen sources. Were he writing of the American scene, his citations would be even fewer. Thus the contribution made by this little volume to a neglected but highly important field is particularly welcome." C. C. Abbott

+ J Pol Econ 60:360 Ag '52 370w

"A valuable and suggestive study." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:599 Ap 1 '52 40w

HENDRY, CHARLES ERIC. Role of groups in world reconstruction [foreword by Hugh Keenleyside]. 202p $2.75 Womans press

301.153 Reconstruction (1939-). Community life. Group work 52-13335

"Based on a questionnaire sent to officials engaged in military, occupation, and rehabilitation programs throughout the world, this study investigates the ways that case work, group work, and community organization can be applied to world reconstruction. The first part is a general survey of answers submitted to the questions, the second part consists of the direct field observations of the author in Germany, and the third section states some implications for future social policy. Of interest to social workers and community organizers." Booklist

Booklist 49:83 N 1 '52

"Clear, comprehensive volume."

+ Bookmark 12:31 N '52 40w

"The end impression is that only in so far as specific data is available on the German assignment is the book of general interest. Beyond that the appeal is limited to specific groups concerned in the social and educational problems involved."

Kirkus 20:588 S 1 '52 150w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 77:1649 O 1 '52 100w

HENKLE, HENRIETTA (HENRIETTA BUCK-MASTER, pseud). Bread from heaven. 309p $3 Random house

52-8811

"The story centers around Karel Lindeman, a young stranger with a maimed child, who comes to a New England village, seeking home and friends. Karel gets a job in a local garage. It is Nicky, the child who first makes the village uneasy; a child like that should be better cared for, or kept out of sight. . . With the imaginative insight of art that transcends mere realism, the author has recreated the conflicts of the war-torn world into this pinpoint of humanity divided into two camps:

HENKLE, HENRIETTA—Continued

Those who fear and distrust strangers and those who befriend them." N Y Times

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

"Mrs. Buckmaster invests scene, incident, and character with a poet's sympathy and insight. The reader will agree with Julie Wright that knowing Karel and Nicky does much for 'one's deepest sense of life and its truth and its potentials.'" Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:153 N 52 160w

"'Bread from Heaven' is a fictional sermon on prejudice, delivered by a practiced missionary, Henrietta Buckmaster, whose 'Let My People Go' and 'Deep River' made her one of the best known of the protagonists of tolerance and understanding." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 10 '52 500w

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 7 '52 50w

"Henrietta Buckmaster is a thoughtful and distinguished author who has written three successful novels. So say her publishers and a few fellow novelists who have read her books. But she is also a ladywriter, it seems to me, who likes to daydream in print. Daydreaming probably is harmless entertainment, but for a novelist it is a poor substitute for contemplation." Alfred O'Brien

— Commonwealth 56:492 Ag 22 '52 480w

Kirkus 20:379 J1 1 '52 180w

Nation 175:237 S 20 '52 280w

"A thoughtful and ably written novel." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 3 '52 500w

"'Bread From Heaven' is the sixth of Henrietta Buckmaster's novels and brings to fulfillment the gifts of a mature, distinguished novelist. The quality of the writing, the insight into character, reminds this reviewer of 'Cry the Beloved Country.'" Anzia Yezierska

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 3 '52 400w

New Yorker 28:144 S 13 '52 50w

"I suppose that some readers will say 'Oh, yes, but I'm tired of novels-with-a-message!' There is no answer to that, really, but to reply 'Then you're tired of everything but the second-rate.' No novel worth anything was ever written that did not have something to say. The genuinely first-rate novel both says it and tells a story that genuinely touches the emotions. Miss Buckmaster here achieves both objectives." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 14 '52 400w

"While the village represents the world, and Karel and the child are all the aliens, all the outcasts, all those who have innocently suffered, we are too moved, too swept along by the story and the characters to feel that the allegory is overweighted. This is a richly conceived, sound, and absorbing novel." C. R. Sumner

+ Sat R 35:15 Ag 16 '52 550w

"The author handles the situation with consummate skill and an understanding of human nature which makes the story both exciting and satisfying." Ethel Dexter

+ Springfield Republican p6D Ag 24 '52 500w

HENN, THOMAS RICE. Lonely tower; studies in the poetry of W. B. Yeats. 362p il $5 Pellegriini & Cudahy

821 Yeats, William Butler [51-7616]

"As Yeats's poetry can be understood completely—if at all—only with some knowledge of his life and times, the topical and personal allusions that fill his poetry, either from his life or his erratic reading of history, as well as the more remote experiences in magic or references to esoteric thought, need to be confidently and heavily footnoted. The Lonely Tower provides these footnotes. . . Mr. Henn describes again what has become the conventional pattern of that life: Sligo, Bloomsbury, Maud Gonne, Lady Gregory, Synge, 1916, Civil War, Mrs. Yeats and the automatic writing, the Castle at Ballylee, and so on. But although he himself comes from Sligo, he does not describe the events or personalities with the dangerous enthusiasm of a participant. One finds a merely impartial record." Spec

Reviewed by J. F. Nims

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 F 17 '52 290w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds

Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 12 '52 150w

Reviewed by Kimon Friar

New Repub 126:17 Ap 28 '52 280w

Reviewed by W. R. Rodgers

New Statesman & Nation 41:18 Ja 6 '51 1100w

"The tone of the book is singularly unpretentious, the style simple, clear, and not without charming touches. . . Here and there one might differ from the author's interpretation of a given passage, or possibly enlarge upon it. Now and again he makes a statement that it would be interesting to debate with him. . . These are slight matters, and are mentioned merely to indicate that the book is not too good to be true. It is good and it is true; at the very least, it is absorbing and persuasive." Babette Deutsch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 10 '52 900w

"'The Lonely Tower' is a carefully written and carefully thought-out book, scrupulous in its acknowledgments of debts for material of any kind, and yet not overburdened with notes. The author is a thorough student of Yeats' poetry, and his book is a valuable one." Mary Colum

+ N Y Times p1 F 10 '52 1250w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Mr 23 '52 110w

"Without embracing the literary history of Yeats's poetry, which is a different study, this book will probably remain a permanent and valuable source of information for the interested reader as well as for the future scholar." Richard Murphy

+ Spec 185:390 Mr 23 '51 550w

"Mr. Henn's learned study owes some debts, always acknowledged, to other critics; but no work on Yeats has shown a finer perception of the nature of his poetry nor so wide a range of reference in the tracking down of allusions and images."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p104 F 16 '51 1000w

HENNE, FRANCES, and others. Planning guide for the high school library program. 140p pa $2 A.L.A.

027.8 School libraries (high school)

"Questionnaires and charts enable the librarian or outside surveyors to evaluate a library and to plan improvements. The material covers collection, activities, personnel, and administration; the guide is geared to libraries in schools with grade ranges of nine through 12 or 10 through 12. All guide material is on perforated pages that may be easily removed from the binding." Booklist

Booklist 48:138 D 15 '51

"This planning guide has been prepared by librarians rich in school-library experience and understanding. The questions asked and statements made in pointing up library services indicate an appreciation and knowledge of services needed by pupils and teachers in the modern school. Moreover, they indicate an appreciation of the problems involved in providing these services more effectively." N. J. Day

+ Library Q 22:357 O '52 700w

School & Society 74:336 N 24 '51 20w

HENNESSEY, WILLIAM JAMES. Modern furnishings for the home. 296p il $10 Reinhold

749.2 Furniture 52-9369

Photographs of modern furniture, including chairs, tables, chests, sofas, beds, desks, multiple-purpose furniture, lighting and fabrics.

The author's foreword gives a brief history of modern furniture design and its purpose.

Booklist 49:8 S 1 '52
San Francisco Chronicle p21 J1 20 '52
80w

HENRY, JOAN, pseud. Women in prison [Eng title: Who lie in gaol]. 189p $2.50 Double-day

365.4 Prisons—Great Britain 52-10046

A short account of eight months spent in two English women's prisons: Holloway and Askham Grange.

"All in all a rather quiet record of misspent lives, unrepenting for the most part at leisure, with little that is sensational to attract the vicarious spectator."

Kirkus 20:393 J1 1 '52 160w

"To depict the life of women in prison accurately, with both intimacy and understanding and at the same time avoid sordidness, is an accomplishment; and Joan Henry does this very well. Sharp, clear-cut characterizations and apt comments on prison conditions increase both the interest and value of such a book as this." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:1301 Ag '52 120w

Reviewed by N. M. Roberts
Manchester Guardian p4 S 9 '52 330w

"The broad truth of her picture is well known to anyone who honestly studies our prison system; the only serious criticism is that in conveying the talk and atmosphere she does not always distinguish between fact and gossip."

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:309 S 20 '52 460w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p37 O 12 '52 550w

Reviewed by Lucy Freeman
N Y Times p14 S 21 '52 450w

"Curiously, the reason for her incarceration is never divulged, but her account of prison life is forthright and interesting."

+ New Yorker 28:135 O 4 '52 100w

"Miss Henry's point is that a prison is as good as its warden and the governor of York was an outstanding individual who influenced hundreds of women by a mixture of discipline and humanity that is quite rare but very effective. Most contemporary penologists will agree with this view, presented here not as a sermon, but as a story well worth reading."

S. R. Arnstein
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 14 '52 650w

"Miss Henry has done a fair piece of reportage in recording the speech and behavior of her jailmates whose crimes ranged from the pathetic to the grotesque and horrible. But her book fails to shed any particularly new light on a problem that has long perplexed public and penologists alike. Its choppy, flat style further reduces its effectiveness." R. P.

+ Sat R 35:48 O 11 '52 200w

"Miss Henry's account may be overdrawn, as it is certainly sentimental. But for all that she has written a useful and stimulating book."

Lettice Fowler

+ Spec 189:370 S 19 '52 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p711 O 31 '52 320w

HERBERG, WILL. Judaism and modern man; an interpretation of Jewish religion. 313p $4 Farrar, Straus

296 Jews—Religion 51-13107

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 69:312 Mr 12 '52 260w

"A book profoundly conceived, persuasively argued, and lucidly written." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Churchman 166:14 My 15 '52 150w

Reviewed by Michael Fraenkel
New Repub 127:21 D 15 '52 700w

"Christian as well as Jewish readers will find [this book] highly stimulating and provocative." J. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 18 '51 80w

"With this book Mr. Herberg joins the distinguished company of Martin Buber, Solomon Schechter, and Leo Baeck as a profound interpreter of the teachings of Judaism and of the Biblical theology." M. R. Konvitz

+ Sat R 35:57 Mr 8 '52 750w

HERBERT, SIR ALAN PATRICK. Number nine; or, The mind-sweepers. 286p $3.50 Doubleday

52-5126

A satirical novel of the future—not much in the future—which relates the doings of a dispossessed English earl and his son in their fight against the authorities.

Booklist 48:196 F 15 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 175:75 Ap '52 180w

"'Number Nine' is a very funny book. Do not be thrown off by its slow opening, as I might have been but for the faithful doggedness of the reviewer. It isn't that it opens slowly—probably an illusion of the American reader—but that it is intensely British. Bear with it for the first quarter and you'll stay with it to the finish, with laughter." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 27 '52 550w

"It is a pity that Sir Alan sometimes seems to have lost track of the distinction between virility and vulgarity. He also includes in the book a defense of whisky that may cause him to be rated as a fiction writer of distinction. These failings apart, this is a successful farce." J. A. May

Christian Science Monitor p7 F 14 '52 280w

"Of no particular import, but a sometimes diverting farce."

Kirkus 19:683 D 1 '51 180w

"The novel is full of good humor of [a] kind, but one must confess that the entire joke wears a little thin. It is not that Mr. Herbert's efforts are half-hearted, but rather that the objects of his scorn are only half-hated. Clearly he knows a great many British civil servants for whom he has the highest respect and whose work he has no wish whatsoever to decry; he is very far from the mood in which Dickens wrote 'Bleak House' or Lewis, 'Elmer Gantry.' And this, from the point of view of satire, is unfortunate." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 27 '52 440w

Reviewed by Wilmot Ragsdale
N Y Times p4 Ja 27 '52 300w

"This book, which is meant to be funny, is really not funny."

New Yorker 28:123 Mr 8 '52 70w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p29 F 24 '52 600w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport
Sat R 35:16 F 23 '52 550w

"In Number Nine Sir Alan Herbert has accomplished what he set out to do; but it hardly seems worth doing. Surely no satire on the house parties where psychiatrists select candidates for the Civil Service can be half as ridiculous as the original. . . . The satire is weakened because the Children of Light are as absurd as their opponents; the old Admiral is more dotty than his foes. But there are a number of witty remarks."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p689 N 2 '51 210w

HERBERT, ARTHUR, pseud. See Arthur, H.

HERBERT, DON. Mr Wizard's science secrets [with Willie Watson and Betsy Taylor; foreword by Wilbur Beauchamp; drawings by Robert A. Barker]. 264p $3 Pop. mechanics
507 Science—Juvenile literature. Scientific recreations 52-13772

"One of Chicago's personalities who has captivated children from 6 to 16 [and sometimes up to 60] with his appealing television show is Don Herbert as Mr. Wizard. . . This book explains how, with the simplest of materials and ingredients, most of which you already have in your house, you can entertain and mystify your friends—and learn a great deal about science at the same time." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) No index.

"Here's a fine Christmas gift for any boy or girl." Larry Wolters
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 16 '52 100w

"A boon to teachers of general science. Format excellent. Will stimulate students to try many of the experiments." M. I. Ross
+ Library J 77:2076 D 1 '52 50w

"There are many other such books—this one will bring Mr. Wizard even more watchers of junior high up to adult age, and makes a good gift for those who are already his fans." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p32 N 16 '52 50w

HERBERT, EVELYN. Venus unmasked. 247p $3 Dodd 52-8987

Gently humorous, slightly satirical novel of English country life. The three sisters, beautiful Marjorie, plain Polly, lovely, youthful Elena, become entangled in a series of love affairs and only Polly comes out with unqualified happiness in store for her.

Booklist 49:32 S 15 '52

"Recommended for rental collections and large libraries which have a light romance reading clientele." H. R. Forbes
Library J 77:1302 Ag '52 70w

"The British have a gift for the truly light novel in which few people talk as any one might in real life, but the remarks are so gay and sparkling, the situations so unexpected and amusing and the denouement so absurd but so right that resemblances to what is called reality are quite beside the point. That appears to be the kind of novel at which Miss Herbert has aimed in Venus Unmasked."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 7 '52 340w

"Evelyn Herbert has enough sophisticated wit to carry off an old-fashioned love story with a high, experienced hand. It is a pleasure to find so much worldly romantic innocence still rampant in an England given over to austere planning. Or to find human relationships running amok and rearranging themselves without benefit of an analyst's couch. Throughout this tale of delicate, almost casual enchantment, love plays the lead, not as a problem but as an answer." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 10 '52 320w

"The jacket to this says that Miss Herbert's work has been known in England for some time. If so and if this is a sample, American publishers have been singularly remiss in delaying introducing to America a writer with the rare gift of producing light romantic comedies."

+ Sat R 35:31 S 6 '52 230w

HERLING, GUSTAW. World apart; tr. from the Polish by Joseph Marek [pref. by Bertrand Russell]. 262p il $3.50 Roy pubs

940.547 Concentration camps. World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons, Russian [51-8066]

"Fleeing from Nazi persecution, young Polish student Herling was caught by Russians in March 1940 and spent two following years in Soviet prisons and in labor camp near Archangel, till he was finally released; later he joined Polish army and is now a writer in London. . . His report has the ring of truthfulness." Library J

Reviewed by John Grube
Canadian Forum 31:287 Mr '52 360w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 23 '51 500w

Kirkus 19:466 Ag 15 '51 120w

"Recommended for mature readers in public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 76:2112 D 15 '51 140w

"His experiences are not, alas, unique, and yet the book is more than another contribution to those two great twentieth-century subjects the physiology of hunger and the sociology of the camp. His account does nothing to disguise the inhumanity of the system of which he found himself a victim." Max Beloff
Manchester Guardian p3 O 16 '51 240w

Reviewed by Gerald Sykes
New Repub 126:19 Mr 10 '52 500w

Reviewed by Kingsley Martin
New Statesman & Nation 42:598 N 24 '51 470w

"Perhaps it needs a strong stomach to read about the stench, the swellings, the festering sores, the acrid rags, and the bludgeonings in the infernal microcosm brought so close by Mr. Herling's book. But what he reveals about human nature . . . is of the utmost importance in our knowledge of ourselves. . . Besides the new, absorbing light thrown on human psychology by this book, it also offers all of us here in America, who must pull in our belts to defend our common freedom, an irrefutable proof—if proof is needed—that faith in the value of the individual must be preserved at any cost." Virgilia Peterson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 23 '51 800w

"No person who seeks to understand Soviet Russia today can afford to miss this book." Mikhail Koriakov

N Y Times p18 Ap 6 '52 600w

Reviewed by Goronwy Rees
Spec 187:748 N 30 '51 250w

"Those who refuse to read the books of these witnesses in order to keep their innocence unsullied are guilty of the worst kind of intellectual dishonesty, the true trahison des clercs. To read, then, is a painful duty, remembering that, as we peer through these appalling telescopes, we are seeing only 'the dark side of the moon.'"

Times [London] Lit Sup p658 O 19 '51 600w

HERMAN, LEWIS HELMAR. Practical manual of screen playwriting for theater and television films. 294p $3.50 World pub.

808.23 [029.6] Moving picture plays 52-5175

"This book is a practical manual of screen-play writing. Its purpose is to supply practical rules and suggestions and to describe practices applicable to the writing of motion-picture screen plays, for both theater and television presentation." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 48:211 Mr 1 '52

"Expert, comprehensive volume."
+ Bookmark 11:130 Mr '52 20w

Kirkus 19:717 D 15 '51 120w

"The specific examples of writing techniques are excellent. Highly recommended for television and cinema collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 77:534 Mr 15 '52 30w

HERNDON, WILLIAM LEWIS. Exploration of the valley of the Amazon; ed. and with an introd. by Hamilton Basso; il. with maps and reproductions of contemporary prints. 201p $3.75 McGraw

981 Amazon valley 51-13608

In 1851, the author, a young American naval lieutenant, received orders to explore the Amazon river from its source in Peru to its mouth. This record of his travels, first issued as a government document in 1854, and highly praised and influential, has never been reprinted until now. The editor's introduction contains a summary of the facts of Herndon's life and a critical appraisal of this work including a consideration of its place in American travel literature.

Booklist 48:300 My 15 '52

"His report, published in 1854, was a best seller of its day. . . And today it has every bit of freshness it had when it set young Mark Twain's mind to roaming. With certain unnecessary statistics only of interest to his superiors removed, Herndon's day-by-day chronicle, told in vivid personal terms, is far from anachronistic. If the traveler today should make the same trip he would probably find much that had been unchanged in the intervening decades. For the Amazon still drains one of the last frontiers of the globe." R. M. Hallett

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 27 '52 400w

"Mr. Basso rightly describes Herndon's book as 'one of the best pieces of travel writing in our literature,' and remarks on the author's 'straightforward, manly vigorous style. . . Both the publisher and the editor deserve applause for making it available to modern readers." Hubert Herring

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 22 '52 900w

"Hamilton Basso has on the whole been judicious in his editing and 'striking out of material that seemed . . . to have little contemporary interest,' yet I am afraid that scholars and scientists will still have to go back to the original edition. Passages have been omitted which seem to me as interesting (and certainly as valuable to the scholar) as those left untouched. Furthermore, there is no indication in the present edition where alterations or cuts in the original have been made." Charles Wagley

+ — N Y Times p6 My 11 '52 600w

"A new edition of a travel book that first appeared almost a century ago as a government report by an American naval officer and, because of its literacy and charm, captured the imagination of a large segment of the reading public, including Mark Twain's."

+ New Yorker 28:147 Ap 26 '52 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 27 '52 260w

"It does not have, despite the insistence of Hamilton Basso who writes the introduction to this edition any outstanding place in the history of exploratory literature of South America; but it is good report, well-written and factual. It is good, too, that the publishers make it available to us in modern dress, the only mystery being the reason for their choice of editor. Hamilton Basso, a charming writer, is fully at home in his own American environment, but he knows little about South America. Where footnotes could have been helpful, there are none; and where they are least needed, there they are. But apart from this, it is a delight to have a mid-nineteenth-century narrative on the Amazon." V. M. Von Hagen

+ — Sat R 35:33 Ag 9 '52 320w

HEROLD, JEAN CHRISTOPHER. Joan, maid of France; ill. by Frederick T. Chapman. 24lp $3 Aladdin

B or 92 Jeanne d'Arc, Saint—Juvenile literature 52-9327

"Based on authentic contemporary documents, this is a record of the young maid's inability to accept defeat; her resourcefulness and courage against all kinds of opposition." (Publisher's note) For ages 9 to 16.

Booklist 48:344 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 10 '52 150w

"A fresh and devout statement of the story of Joan of Arc. Without ever talking down, Mr. Herold makes the events of Joan's life important and meaningful for the 9-to-16 group." Mary Handy

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '52 140w

Kirkus 20:283 My 1 '52 200w

"With the shortage of juvenile biographies of Joan, this volume is welcome both for its fresh treatment and as an absorbing story." E. J. Bowland

+ Library J 77:1081 Je 15 '52 90w

"This new biography comes at a time when young and old need to have their memories of Joan's faith renewed. One might think there are too many books already about her. But this seems particularly welcome for readers a bit under and over twelve, being written in an easy-reading style, yet offering fine content of narrative." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 11 '52 250w

"Based on contemporary records, this is a brilliant portrait, showing Joan's faith and her courage in the face of hardship, doubt and treachery. Yet it is never sentimental, for we see her in all her humanity, her humor, her impatience when she was balked, her wistfulness for the simple life of Domremy." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 6 '52 150w

"A clear, movingly written, and on the whole satisfactory chronicle for eleven- to fourteen-year-olds, which goes in for a minimum use of imagined conversations and often employs Joan of Arc's own words. The last two pages, which discuss the reality of her 'voices,' are perceptive and in good taste."

+ New Yorker 28:206 D 6 '52 50w

HERRIOT, EDOUARD. In those days, before the first World war; tr. by Adolphe De Milly. 276p $3.75 Editions A. De Milly

B or 92 Statesmen—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc.

"The first installment of a three-volume autobiography by the President of the French National Assembly. In this book, the author, now eighty, tells of his youth and early manhood, terminating his narrative just before the outbreak of the First World War." New Yorker

Reviewed by Harold Lancour

Library J 77:2070 D 1 '52 70w

"His Memoirs, in three volumes, will undoubtedly deserve a large and sympathetic audience. I deeply regret that the start is not more auspicious. . . And people who know France and the French language will be irritated by the translation. M. de Milly has verve, and even style; but his text is strewn with boners, of the 'Fractured French' type, not invariably amusing. The next two volumes ought to be important: the American version should be checked by a rigorous and competent critic." Albert Guerard

+ — Nation 176:15 Ja 3 '53 260w

"This effective and unassuming narrative of his first forty years by France's veteran statesman suffers from one regrettable flaw: the translation, apparently done in England, is slovenly. . . At a time when American translations from foreign languages have undergone a very marked improvement, this relapse into inaccuracy and incompetence must be branded as regrettable. The book otherwise makes very pleasant reading." Henri Peyre

+ — N Y Times p15 D 28 '52 500w

"The book is lit up throughout by witty asides and critical opinions on literature and on some famous contemporaries; among the last is a fine little sketch of Clemenceau."

+ New Yorker 28:188 N 15 '52 190w

HERSKOVITS, MELVILLE JEAN. Economic anthropology; a study in comparative economics. 2d ed rev & enl 547p maps $7.50 Knopf

572 Economic conditions. Society, Primitive 52-5074

"This book, a thorough revision of The Economic Life of Primitive Peoples [Book Review Digest 1940], is an introduction to comparative economics in the broadest sense of the term. . . The purpose of this book remains what it was when first written—to provide information concerning the economic life of nonliterate peoples, to consider some of the questions in economic science that can be examined by the use of these data, and to suggest lines of attack which may be profitably defined for future use." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

HERSKOVITS, M. J.—Continued.

Booklist 48:380 JI 15 '52

"This is the only available book in a new and significant field of social investigation." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 31 '52 50w

"Those seriously interested in anthropology and economics, and the relations between the two fields, will find this book extremely worthwhile." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 15 '52 130w

HESCHEL, ABRAHAM JOSHUA. Sabbath: its meaning for modern man; with wood engravings by Ilya Schor. 118p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

296.4 [296] Sabbath 51-8400

"This small monograph emerges as a simple and clear exposition of the Jewish Sabbath, despite the fact that the numerous technical footnotes to Hebrew, Latin, and German sources reveal the author to be a very erudite scholar. He is Associate Professor of Jewish Mysticism and Ethics at the famous Jewish Theological Seminary of America (in New York City)." Library J

"Poetic, learned discourse."

+ Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 20w

Kirkus 19:597 O 1 '51 140w

"Fine for Judaic religion shelf," J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 76:1802 N 1 '51 130w

"Gratefully one enters the world of Professor Heschel's brief treatise. His is an altogether noble and consecrated spirit, one of the few in our time and place which bears luminous witness to the spiritual realities of Judaism." Ludwig Lewisohn

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Mr 9 '52 420w

HESELTINE, PHILIP (PETER WARLOCK, pseud). Frederick Delius; rev. ed. reprinted with additions, annotations and comments by Hubert Foss. 224p $3 Oxford

B or 92 Delius, Frederick 52-9915

"A definitive biography of Delius will not be forthcoming as long as access to numerous letters, manuscripts, and documents of the composer is prohibited by the Delius Trust now in possession of them. Thus Hubert Foss justifies this reprint of Heseltine's study of the composer, first published by John Lane in 1923. To the 107 pages of Heseltine's study Mr. Foss has added an introductory essay that surveys the existing literature on Delius, 53 pages of additions, annotations, and comments, a summary evaluation in the form of a postscript, and a chronological list of the compositions (necessarily incomplete) with publishers and details of first performances." Music Lib Assn Notes

"A charming and penetrating study of the composer's personality, written at a time when the author was an ardent admirer and intimate friend of Delius. It therefore presents the composer from a somewhat biased point of view. His concise, nontechnical discussions of the compositions, while in terms of descriptive generalities, are nevertheless perceptive and often eloquent." William Kimmel

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 9:615 S '52 300w

"In his introduction Mr. Foss gives us a short sketch of Delius, with 'memories' contributed by Roger Quilter, Charles Kennedy and Percy Scott; it all amounts to a new and engrossing book. Warlock's study wears well even if we are not taken far into the scores of 'The Mass of Life' and 'Sea Drift' by information to the effect that 'the music is wrapped round in the mantle of night,' or that 'in this music we seem to hear the very quintessence of all the sorrow and unrest that man can feel because of love.' But on the whole Warlock keeps a fairly balanced head; indeed he seems, like other ardent admirers of Delius, to understate the melody of the composer." Neville Cardus

+ Spec 188:718 My 30 '52 600w

"Mr. Foss expresses the opinion that when the original study was made by Heseltine all Delius's important creations had already appeared; so that Heseltine's book has suffered little from becoming out of date. This is true, and the portrait of Heseltine the author, as revealed in his book, has equally not been falsified by the passage of time. Mr. Foss has done both his heroes a service by adding for the sake of completeness some account of the last works in the remaining 11 years of the composer's life, including those dictated to Mr. Eric Fenby."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p343 My 23 '52 500w

HESS, THOMAS B. Abstract painting; background and American phase [a Lee Ault edition]. 164p il col il $7.50 Viking

759.06 [759.915] Art, Abstract. Painting. Painting, American 51-14481

"The managing editor of Art News writes a book aimed at the informed art public. . . Book is divided into three parts, 'Qualifications, Propositions, Contradictions, Definitions'; 'Background and Paris'; 'Foreground and New York.' Interesting color plates; Art News files were the source of illustrations." Library J

Booklist 48:181 F 1 '52

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 13 '52 300w

Christian Science Monitor p15 Mr 27 '52 180w

"A novice in the discussion of art and the controversial topic of 'modern art' might flounder and gasp at the rapid shuttling back and forth in time and place, at the familiar use of names not necessarily familiar to the reader. Ultimately the persevering reader would catch his breath and find enjoyment in text and image."

Library J 77:51 Ja 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by S. L. Faison

Nation 174:111 F 2 '52 550w

"Original, enthusiastic, drawing on a wide historical background, Mr. Hess brings genuine sympathy to his subject."

+ New Repub 125:19 D 10 '51 50w

"This is an important book. While not the most fairly comprehensive survey of the field (Hess is a partisan; an urban fanatic, some might say) it does give us the most searching analysis the subject has so far received either pro or con, and the most up to date." Selden Rodman

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 D 30 '51 1150w

"Thomas B. Hess makes no pretense of being a detached observer. His book is an eloquent and impassioned argument for the importance of the 'American phase' of abstract painting. . . On the other hand, one wonders about the omission of such painters as Philip Guston or Jimmy Ernst. . . And to say that the influence of Hans Hoffman 'may be non-existent on most of the painters discussed here' is a curiously ambiguous way to acknowledge the important role of this 'elder statesman.' However, these minor flaws are more than counterbalanced by passages of brilliant insight, such as the author's 'Joycean' interpretation of the work of de Kooning. Taken as a whole, the volume is an achievement of considerable importance, to be welcomed by all those seriously concerned with the present and future of American art." H. W. Janson

+ — N Y Times p10 Ja 6 '52 750w

"Thomas Hess is to be commended for tackling a book on abstract painting. He has gone at his task with an enthusiasm that reflects the dedicated role of the avant-garde artists of whom he writes. His style, sprinkled with metaphor and many an apt insight, suggests the liveliness of the group of painters in this country who have been caught in the limelight of controversy during the last ten years. . . Too frequently in writing about art in this country objective, or supposedly objective, reporting passes for criticism. Mr. Hess's conviction of the interest and importance of these painters is a happy exception and of great value in introducing his artists to the lay public he is addressing." Robert Goldwater

+ Sat R of Lit 34:14 D 22 '51 950w

HESSE, HERMANN. Siddhartha; tr. by Hilda Rosner. 153p $1.50 New directions

"It is a moral allegory, based on Indian mysticism, which tries to solve the enigma of human loneliness and discontent. The hero, Siddhartha, endowed with all the virtues, goes through the fires of various experiences to emerge to a state of peace and holiness. Before he has achieved this beatitude he has tasted the pleasures of being a mendicant wanderer, then consort to a courtesan, then wealthy man of business, and finally companion to a humble ferryman, whose wisdom comes from the endlessly murmuring river." (Sat R of Lit) "Siddhartha," which is available in English for the first time in the present edition, was originally published in 1923." (N Y Times)

"This book has been a particularly great help to those who had attached themselves to the noisy world and leaders of yesterday, and who are sincerely trying to find their own individuality and peace." Fritz Richter

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 18 '51 450w

"The author's stringent, economical phrasing with its careful rhythms lends the book an air of studied antiquity, refreshing, yet, oddly, new."

+ Kirkus 19:594 O 1 '51 110w

"A superb English translation. . . The cool and strangely simple story makes a beautiful little book, classic in proportion and style; it should be read slowly and with savor, preferably during the lonely hours of the night."

+ Nation 173:430 N 17 '51 70w

Reviewed by Christopher Lazare
N Y Times p52 D 2 '51 550w

"The clarity of this short tale allows one to look through to its profound depth." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 D 22 '51 250w

HEWITT, BARNARD WOLCOTT, and others. Play production; theory and practice, 488p il $6.50 Lippincott

792 Theater—Production and direction. Amateur theatricals 52-850

A comprehensive manual for the amateur dramatic coach based to some extent on Hewitt's earlier Art and Craft of Play Production [Book Review Digest 1940]. "Readers familiar with Art and Craft of Play Production will recognize similarities to the earlier book in viewpoint and in the treatment of many sections. The entirely new matter includes the opening section on the aesthetics of play production, material on various types of theatres, and the practical material on sound effects, makeup, business, and publicity." (Pref)

Booklist 49:29 S 15 '52

Reviewed by George Freedley
Library J 77:1814 O 15 '52 20w

HEWLETT, DOROTHY. Elizabeth Barrett Browning, a life. 388p il $6 Knopf

B or 92 Browning, Elizabeth (Barrett)

51-13218

"The author tells the full story of Elizabeth's life, both before and after she became Mrs. Browning. While presenting the life-giving details, she never forgets that, however interesting the individual, Elizabeth survives because of her talent and art." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:46 O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 20w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 19 '52 280w

"It may seem captious to record final disappointment in a book so full of detail and insight as this; but successful biographies are notoriously temperamental combinations of paradoxical elements. They must be wise, detached, scrupulous—as this one is; they must also integrate their subject, bring him to life from one overriding point of view—a feat which here is not achieved." Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p13 O 9 '52 380w

"A dispassionate, compassionate, scrupulously researched and sensitively reflected life of Elizabeth Barrett Browning."

+ Kirkus 20:438 J1 15 '52 260w

"It has been long since we have had a readable biography of this famous English woman. At last, here is a picture of Elizabeth Barrett Browning as she was, in relation to her family and her friends." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:1301 Ag '52 110w

Reviewed by S. C. Chew

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 O 5 '52 1100w

"There is a good deal of fallacious reasoning here, and no real proof of the author's main contentions. Wisely, she devotes most of her book to the romance, skillfully piecing together the story from a wealth of correspondence and fresh source material, adroitly depicting the ups and downs of the affair."

+ New Yorker 28:129 S 20 '52 150w

Reviewed by Jane Volles

San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 30 '52 200w

"This biography would have been enriched by a deeper and longer treatment of the poetry, and some comparison of Mrs. Browning's poetic achievement with other poets would have been useful. . . We must be grateful, however, for [a] clear and full narrative of Elizabeth Barrett's life which Miss Hewlett has given us, the first in many years." W. C. DeVane

+ Sat R 35:25 O 18 '52 700w

Reviewed by A. D. Culler

Yale R n s 42:316 winter '53 390w

HEXTER, JACK H. More's Utopia: the biography of an idea. (History of ideas ser) 171p $3 Princeton univ. press

321.07 More, Sir Thomas, Saint—Utopia 52-5843

"Professor Hexter re-examines the growth of the idea of the book in More's mind from the time More first thought of it to the time, some eighteen months later, when he sent it to be printed. For evidence, Hexter uses what we know about Thomas More and his times, his literary friends and their opinions, but chiefly the book itself." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"This is admittedly a book for the specialist, and even here the author modestly disclaims any 'brand new insight' and insists that he is merely reviving the view of the Utopia held by More's own contemporaries. All of this is true, but the book should have a wider appeal as a useful and ingenious piece of historical analysis and reconstruction." W. T. Jones

+ Ann Am Acad 284:206 N '52 240w

"Specialists will be delighted with the fresh reconstruction of the order and immediate circumstances of the Utopia's composition, a series of deductions as ingenious and fascinating as a good detective story." Garrett Mattingly

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ag 17 '52 430w

HEYER, GEORGETTE (MRS G. R. ROUGIER). Quiet gentleman. 315p $3.50 Putnam

52-5266

Returning from the Napoleonic wars to claim his heritage the seventh Earl of St Erth discovers he has enemies in his own household.

HEYER, GEORGETTE—Continued
But he is not the top he at first seems to be and he survives several attempts on his life and marries for love.

Booklist 48:228 Mr 15 '52

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 9 '52
400w

"A mannered piece with enough humor and light romance to please older girls." M. C. Scoggin

+ Horn Bk 28:187 Je '52 80w

Kirkus 20:86 F 1 '52 160w

Library J 77:1215 J1 '52 30w

"Purists among historical-novel readers may complain at the ease with which young Lord St. Erth charms all those around him, out-guesses the menaces, and turns enemies into friends in the final pages. It seems unlikely that Miss Heyer's public will mind in the slightest." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p31 Ap 6 '52 140w

"A must for Heyer fans." J. V.
San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 6 '52
150w

"Historical novel addicts, particularly those who read 'Arabella' and 'The Grand Sophy,' and those who love a mystery may find Miss Heyer's blending of the two forms as good as a sedative. There are plenty of not-to-be-taken-too-seriously shivers, period descriptions of clothing, hunting, castles, and love of the most unimpeachable kind. . . . Some of its readers may doubt, however, that it quite gives the fine combination of the best of both Dickens and Jane Austen' one reviewer found in 'Arabella.' I find myself unable to do more than praise it with faint damns." H. C. Webster

Sat R 35:19 Mr 22 '52 230w

HICKS, GRANVILLE. There was a man in our town. 281p $3 Viking

52-8545

"Home from New York to work on his play, Bert Shattuck, narrator of this novel, views with amusement and interest the efforts of a newcomer, a former university professor and dean, to stir up the local politics of Colchester where Bert's family has lived for generations." Bookmark

Booklist 48:189; 247 F 15 '52; Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:158 Ap '52 50w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:233 Je '52 250w

"The trouble with Mr. Hicks' new novel is that, altho it is interesting, it isn't interesting enough. The material doesn't carry enough of a charge to explode effectively." Edmund Fuller

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 20 '52
230w

"Mr. Hicks has touched lightly, but penetratingly, on many of the sensitive spots of a reform movement. This humor warms but does not burn too severely, and a pleasant time is had by all, even by the reformer, if he has a sense of humor." L. E. Cannon

+ Christian Century 69:1288 N 5 '52 160w

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 7 '52
100w

Reviewed by Frank Getlein

Commonweal 56:78 Ap 25 '52 250w

Kirkus 20:45 Ja 15 '52 180w

"Mr. Hicks is quite an authority on the life in small towns. His plot line is a bit too tortuous to make the book a good novel, but as a picture of a representative small town the book should have great value in most libraries." H. L. Roth

Library J 77:433 Mr 1 '52 110w

"The characters are all stereotypes conceived in great high spirits. The high spirits, indeed, are the most engaging thing about this novel, a roman à thèse on a theme so worn that Mr. Hicks should probably be congratulated on having managed to be amusing as often as he is." Ernest Jones

Nation 174:350 Ap 12 '52 90w

New Repub 126:21 Ap 21 '52 220w

"A careful study, often equipped with a cutting edge. . . . The novel as a whole is a timely and useful antidote to political glibness—to the kind of argument in which, as the olive stones grow more numerous in the ash trays somebody is sure to say something about 'grass-roots.'" James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 30 '52
800w

"Beneath the deft, fast-moving narrative, Mr. Hicks is seriously concerned with the fundamental problems of what we call democracy. . . . 'There Was a Man in Our Town' is a political novel that steps upon no one's toes, yet manages insidiously to make its point." John Nerber

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 30 '52 550w

New Yorker 28:145 Ap 19 '52 140w

"Some of the drama is lost by reason of Mr. Hicks's telling his story in the first person; important actions happen off-stage and are reported, sometimes too low metabolically, in Bert's urbanely detached role of 'inside' commentator and spectator. But the net effect is a happy one. . . . Mr. Hicks's novel is not only entertaining; it is also intelligent and useful." Charles Lee

+ Sat R 35:14 Mr 29 '52 650w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p7D My 18 '52
260w

HICKS, WILSON, ed. This is Ike; the picture story of the man; text by Gardner Soule; picture research by Helen Faye. unsp $2.50; pa $1 Holt

B or 92 Eisenhower, Dwight David. Campaign literature, 1952 52-9921

Life story of General Eisenhower told mainly in some 250 photographs.

Booklist 48:338 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:231 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Je 15 '52
190w

Kirkus 20:338 Je 1 '52 90w

"Maybe one reason why so many people like Ike is that he takes such a good picture. His deep poise makes him look natural, always. He just lets his expressive face tell the story. It isn't always the famous Eisenhower grin, either. When he looks solemn, he looks very solemn, and when he looks grim, he looks very grim." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 15 '52
230w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p11 J1 6 '52
110w

"A picture gallery worth owning." P. R. Levin

+ Sat R 35:31 S 20 '52 320w

"This multiple portrait of 'Ike,' grinning and serious, at play and at work, and never camera conscious, adds up to a visual estimate of the man. There are plenty of photos of Mrs. Eisenhower, too, usually smiling." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 170w

HIGGINS, BENJAMIN HOWARD. What do economists know? six lectures on economics in the crisis of democracy. 166p $2.75 Cambridge

330 Economics

"An economist with high academic qualifications plus extensive administrative experience, discusses in a series of lectures . . . for the intelligent layman the proper role of economists in the formulation and administration of economic policy; counters the frequent charge that economists do not agree, by stating the extent of their agreement on fundamentals; proposes that, the electorate deciding the ends to be achieved, the economists be empowered to prescribe the means to be used." Library J

"The wide scope of this thought-provoking volume is best indicated by its sub-title: Six Lectures on Economics in the Crisis of Democracy. It is explicitly addressed to the intelligent layman and to elementary economics students. I should add that the many and controversial questions which it raises should stimulate useful discussion for review and appraisal by senior majors in economics. The special usefulness of the book for readers like these lies partly in its broad perspective and partly in its discussion of material often neglected in the regular curriculum, such as methodology, the various 'schools' of economic thought, and the relation between economics and other social studies." J. W. Conard

+ Am Econ R 42:925 D '52 600w

Reviewed by Edmund Whittaker
Ann Am Acad 284:185 N '52 360w

"Timely and provocative." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 77:2002 N 15 '52 60w

"Professor Higgins's book has the cardinal merits of lucidity and common sense."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p463 J1 18 '52 600w

HILBISH, FLORENCE MAY ANNA. Research paper. 292p $2.95 Bookman associates

029 Reports—Preparation 52-8572

Practical advice on how to prepare reports, from preliminary library research to final presentation of completed articles. The author is chairman of the department of English at Taylor University. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:259 Ap 15 '52

Management R 41:557 Ag '52 50w

"On first impression the approach of 'The Research Paper' seems too unsophisticated for so exhaustive a study; one assumes that anyone desiring this much information on the subject would want it on a more advanced level. However, since Dr. Hilbish has had many years experience teaching college English, she is undoubtedly supplying a need which she has encountered." R. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 4 '52 200w

School & Society 75:238 Ap 12 '52 20w

Special Libraries 43:273 S '52 30w

HILDRETH, GERTRUDE HOWELL, and others. Educating gifted children at Hunter college elementary school. 272p $3.50 Harper
371.95 Hunter college. Elementary school. Children, Gifted 52-9812

"This is the account of what Hunter College in New York City has been doing in education of the gifted. The authors have also included in this book a summary of some of the broader educational problems confronted in our school systems with the children of unusual intelligence." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 49:60 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:435 J1 15 '52 180w

School & Society 76:191 S 20 '52 20w

Wis Lib Bul 48:211 S '52

HILL, AMELIA LEAVITT. Arranging flowers from the roadside, fields, and woods. 151p il $3.85 Studio

635.96 Floral decoration Agr52-440

A guide for those wishing to arrange grasses, mosses, grains, foliage, and unprotected wild flowers.

Booklist 48:332 Je 15 '52

"Attractive volume."

+ Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 20w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 77:1903 N 1 '52 30w

"Here at last is a workable and handsomely illustrated book for those arrangers who appreciate the beauty of our common roadside plants." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 22 '52 50w

Sat R 35:36 Ag 2 '52 30w

HILL, NORMAN LLEWELLYN. International organization. 627p $5 Harper

341.11 International agencies 52-5449

"This text deals with the organization and procedures used for the conduct of international relations. It stresses the actual functioning of international agencies, with principal emphasis on the United Nations. Primarily descriptive in treatment, it covers the historical background of the subject, organizations and procedures designed to settle disputes and prevent war, diplomatic aspects of international organization, international administration, and prospects for the future." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"A sound, if conventional, description of the major agencies of international co-operation, including both regional and global institutions. . . This book lacks the broad legal and sociological perspective of Eagleton's International Government. . . Nevertheless, it gives a lucid, well-expressed survey of the historical development, constitutional features, and methods of action of the League of Nations, the United Nations, the Organization of American States, the Council of Europe, and, briefly, of diplomatic and technical international conferences." P. E. Jacob

+ Ann Am Acad 283:187 S '52 450w

Booklist 48:372 J1 15 '52

Current Hist 23:64 J1 '52 70w

"A commendable feature of this well organized and lucidly written text are the appendices which follow each chapter and contain pertinent documents." A. D. Low

+ Social Educ 16:348 N '52 400w

HILLES, MRS HELEN (TRAIN). Pierre comes to P.S. 20; il. by Jay H. Barnum. (Everyday adventure stories) 64p $1.50 Messner

52-9328

Story of a little French boy who had a hard time at first when he tried to go to school in America. But when he showed his skill in making French fried potatoes at the P.T.A. meeting Pierre was definitely "in." For ages six to ten.

Bookmark 11:236 J1 '52

"An interesting and charming tale, with delightful illustrations." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 J1 27 '52 50w

"It somehow doesn't quite come off, though the theme is a good one. . . There's an engaging description of Pierre perched on a stool, wielding his two frying pans and his frying basket. But in the main there's lack of seasoning, a flatness of telling that kills the jote de vivre."

+ Kirkus 20:225 Ap 1 '52 120w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner

Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by C. E. Van Norman
N Y Times p16 Je 1 '52 40w

HILLMAN, WILLIAM, ed. Mr. President. See Truman, H. S.

HILLYER, ROBERT SILLIMAN. Suburb by the sea. 71p $3 Knopf

811 52-5738

"Mr. Hillyer's new book is a collection of lyrics, mainly satirical, some of them of the sort which would once have been called light verse, and most of which are more closely related to H. C. Bunner and Bret Harte than to Horace." N Y Times

Booklist 48:317 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by W. H. Whittemore

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 4 '52 60w

"This is the work of a major poet in a relaxed and charming mood."

+ Kirkus 20:212 Mr 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald

Library J 77:1513 S 15 '52 60w

HILLYER, R. S.—Continued

"How pleasant it would be if we could remember Mr. Hillyer for only such work as this, free from anxiety, free from rancor, easy, good-natured, skilful, almost courtly, alive to and with the good things of life! Among other excellencies, Mr. Hillyer is to be commended for his knack with the five-beat couplet form, whose return it is cheering to find." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 174:589 Je 14 '52 80w

"The present collection, I regret to say, disappoints the expectations set up by the poet's best work. I would hesitate to speak of decline; for aught I know Mr. Hillyer's powers may be as strong as ever. My feeling in reading these verses is less definitive, yet sadder in a sense; it seems as though the poet had denied his rare gift in order to cultivate more vendable graces: an easy irony, stock sentiment, stock rhythms even." Frances Golfing

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 J1 13 '52 380w

"His work shows the result of a scholarly devotion to the best in English verse combined with a sensitive reception, an excellent ear, unquestionable taste, and a lyric quality which could only be the possession of a true poet." Raymond Holden

+ N Y Times p6 My 4 '52 450w

"His urban, suburban satires are excellent light verse, but the only poem here which at all does justice to Mr. Hillyer's talent, once so striking, now so suburbanized, is the first one in the book." L. F.

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 15 '52 150w

Reviewed by G. P. Meyer

Sat R 35:43 Je 21 '52 230w

HILTNER, SEWARD. Counselor in counseling; case notes in pastoral counseling. 183p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

258 Psychology, Pastoral. Counseling 52-375

"Presents actual cases of pastoral interviews, analyzes the weakness or soundness of each counseling situation, and offers suggestions for improvement. Likely to be useful to young pastors who feel that they need help in understanding and guiding their parishioners." Booklist

Booklist 48:222 Mr 15 '52

"This book renders first aid to pastors who have just discovered their responsibility for giving personal counseling and who do not quite know how to go about it." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:619 My 21 '52 90w

Reviewed by L. F. Wood

Churchman 166:12 Ag '52 150w

HILTON-YOUNG, WAYLAND. The dead-weight. 220p $2.50 Scribner

52-11326

Psychological novel laid in England during the war and post-war years. The chief character is Anna Emerson, who comes to believe that all the disasters that fall upon her family and friends are due to her.

Reviewed by Norman Shrapnel

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 7 '52 100w

"The Deadweight' is a very uneven first novel, convincingly terrifying in some places and pointlessly searching in others."

+ Nation 175:116 Ag 9 '52 360w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott

New Statesman & Nation 43:380 Mr 29 '52 180w

"Since Mrs. Woolfe no one has caught the temper of a young man's London so well as Mr. Hilton-Young, whose first novel 'The Deadweight' is. . . Even Mrs. Woolf had to resolve her story by killing off the hero; Mr. Hilton-Young, more courageous, spares his heroine and leaves the grateful reader to juggle with her fate." Sylvia Stallings

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 J1 20 '52 480w

"This is a false picture of the economy of guilt. Expiation by substitute sin is never merely a mechanical pattern; it is vividly symbolic, and Mr. Hilton-Young, in this carefully written first novel of his, fails to develop either symbol or thing symbolized to any depth." Mary Ahern

+ N Y Times p28 S 7 '52 370w

"A fumbling attempt at a clinical study of adolescent guilt and young love."

— New Yorker 28:83 J1 19 '52 80w

"The power of the obsessive feelings of fear and guilt which haunts and controls the neurotic has rarely been as persuasively recreated as in this first novel by Mr. Hilton-Young, who here makes an impressive fictional debut. His story is slight in form, highly restricted in its concern with a neurotic problem which he fails to universalize, but so deftly written, so graceful in style, so perceptive in its insights as to mark its author as more than a promising writer." Martin Rice

+ Sat R 35:19 Ag 2 '52 500w

"Mr. Hilton-Young's Anna could easily have been tiresome, but is far from it. . . The end, to my mind the one unsatisfactory part of a mature and most perceptive story, brings Anna back full circle to her stepfather and the carpet. I do not think it is sentimental to ask of Mr. Hilton-Young some indication that the youthful Anna could break out of this vicious circle. She could—and the positive turn which such a promise could give would make the story a constructive instead of a purely diagnostic piece of work." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 188:274 F 29 '52 210w

"Mr. Hilton-Young, whose first novel this is, is at present over-earnest and too much inclined to make his young men, when out in the world, still think and behave like undergraduates. But he has a gift for evoking a face, a landscape and a physical situation."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Mr 14 '52 190w

HINDEMITH, PAUL. Composer's world; horizons and limitations. 221p $3.75 Harvard Univ. press

780.1 Music—Philosophy and esthetics. Musicians—Correspondence reminiscences, etc. 52-5033

"The 1949-50 Charles Eliot Norton Chair of Poetry lectures at Harvard, addressed to the intelligent layman for whom it 'aims to be a guide through the little universe which is the working place of the man who writes music.' The distinguished composer-teacher-violist gives his argument a philosophical foundation, continues with the effect of organized sound upon the listening ear (the psychology of music) and goes on to such matters as media of performance, performers, technique (including the twelve-tone system) and style, the education of the composer, and the economic and social milieu which confronts him." Library J

Booklist 48:261 Ap 15 '52

"Paul Hindemith's book is written on a fairly high level of abstraction, but his arguments have a good deal of relevance to our everyday musical life and pose problems which composers, performers and consumers need to solve. . . Although Hindemith credits music with lofty ethical ends, his book is written with a sober awareness, which concerns itself not so much with unlimited horizons as merely with the possibilities, limitations and varied functions of music." Milton Wilson

+ Canadian Forum 32:138 S '52 650w

"Paul Hindemith, whom the late Constant Lambert accused in 1934 of 'reducing music to the spiritual level of billiards and ping-pong,' has given us one of the most profound and convincing books ever written by a master composer." K. G. Roy

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Mr 13 '52 550w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 77:362 F 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by Colin Mason

Manchester Guardian p4 D 9 '52 320w

"Two things are missing from this 'composer's world.' First, there is no composer in it; and the composer-as-author is evident only as a literary style which is sometimes quaint and sometimes charming in its mixture of German sentence structures and American idioms. Secondly, there is hardly any music. . . . Considering these omissions, I cannot believe that Hindemith has shown us the 'real' world from which Mathis der Maler and Nobilissima Visione came. He has shown us only the world of Marieleben—unfortunately in the revised version." Lawrence Morton

Music Lib Assn Notes 9:408 Je '52 550w

"This book tells us what one of our great composers thinks about, what his mind is like. And meeting Paul Hindemith's spirited and learned mind is a real pleasure, not only for the intellectual stimulation it offers, but even more for the infectious enjoyment it takes in its own operation, in finding rational explanations, in 'philosophizing.' Less pleasant though is a recurrent fondness for forcing these meditations together into systems. Again and again, though you are enjoying the brisk intellectual work-out, you wish that Hindemith wouldn't take himself so hard." R. E. Garis
+ Nation 174:434 My 3 '52 1000w

"Paul Hindemith has written a book which seems unique. It is a complicated study of a highly technical situation—the relation of a composer to his art. Yet it is so free of technical jargon and presented in such a gratifying literary style that it can be read with pleasure by anyone who is interested in the subject. The content of the book is serious and frequently grave; the author's brilliant, logical method is constantly in evidence. But the idiom is generally lively and charming—a minimum of esoteric talk." Robert Evett

+ New Repub 126:18 Mr 24 '52 1200w

Reviewed by Alfred Frankenstein

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 8 '52 850w

"It would be hard to think of a happier choice for the Charles Elliot Norton lectures than Paul Hindemith. His long and distinguished career as a 'maker' of music allows him to speak of its nature with an authority no listener or performer can claim, his scholarship and experience as a teacher are worthy of a great academic setting, and his concern for the social position and moral influence of music entitle him to the attentive respect of a public audience." W. H. Auden
+ N Y Times p5 F 24 '52 1350w

New Yorker 28:146 Ap 5 '52 200w

"An honest discussion of nationalism in art both here and abroad would be welcome, but the chiding of Americans for their all-too-meager support of their own art and artists by Europeans who are themselves so frequently the products of their own gargantuan cultural nationalism must be regarded as a subtle form of Pickwickian humor." Howard Hanson
Sat R 35:19 Mr 29 '52 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p678 O 17 '52 750w

"The validity of most of Mr. Hindemith's observations is hardly open to question, and his book is, in the main, both genial and stimulating. Unfortunately, however, the author has given an exaggerated and distorted account of the twelve-tone technique, wherein he goes so far as to make the unjustifiable charge that under such a system the composer's obligations towards his fellow men dwindle 'to a game of double-crosses.'"

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:129 Je '52 240w

"Hindemith claims that as a creative musician he is out of his element when writing on unlined paper and warns the reader not to expect revelations, but this is a good book and well-written by any standards. Its author is not only exceptionally well-read but urbane, witty, and entirely at ease in this medium of expression." P. H. Lang

+ Yale R n s 42:302 winter '53 1200w

HINDMAN, DARWIN ALEXANDER. Hand-book of active games. 436p $6; to schools $4.50 Prentice-Hall

796 Games

51-14321

"A complete collection of active games, well known in the U.S., excepting only those

'dangerous, insanitary or disgusting.' Intended for players and leaders. Boys and girls games. Classified by type, indexed." Library J

Booklist 48:244 Ap 1 '52

"An invaluable guide." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 77:58 Ja 1 '52 30w

HINSLEY, FRANCIS HARRY. Hitler's strategy [the naval evidence], 254p $3.75 Cambridge

940.545 Hitler, Adolf. World war, 1939-1945
—Germany. Strategy [51-5668]

"The subject of this book is Hitler's strategy. I have tried to preserve the distinction between the sphere of strategy and the sphere of operations, and have wished to deal only with the former. Thus Hitler's share in the conduct of operations, in the execution of his plans, figures hardly at all in the book; and the main emphasis throughout is on the formulation of his central or inter-theatre plans for the strategy of the war as a whole. I have set myself a second limitation by confining my use of evidence to contemporary documents as far as possible." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by E. S. Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p9 F 11 '52 600w

Current Hist 22:170 Mr '52 60w

Foreign Affairs 30:497 Ap '52 40w

Kirkus 19:596 O 1 '51 130w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman

New Statesman & Nation 43:42 Ja 12 '52 650w

"Mr. Hinsley has succeeded in producing a thoughtful and entirely just appraisal of Hitler's intellectual and strategical limitations." G. A. Craig

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ja 13 '52 1300w

"This book is extremely well documented. . . . [It] is a scientific and necessarily unemotional analysis. It will not be a popular book, but it is certainly an important one." C. L. Sulzberger

+ N Y Times p10 D 30 '51 600w

New Yorker 27:85 Ja 19 '52 160w

Reviewed by F. W. Deakin

Spec 188:212 F 15 '52 900w

"Mr. Hinsley has used the conferences on naval affairs, the complete record of which fell into British hands, in order to discuss Hitler's strategy. Though he has also used the Nuremberg documents, the emphasis is inevitably on the sea; and, as inevitably, this emphasis gives the impression that Hitler made nothing but mistakes. . . . Mr. Hinsley brings out that Hitler would not have done well in an examination in sustained logic; but for all that he nearly conquered the world."

Times [London] Lit Sup p1 Ja 4 '52 500w

HIRSH, JOSEPH, and DOHERTY, BEKA. First hundred years of the Mount Sinai Hospital of New York, 1852-1952. 364p il $5 Random house

362.11 New York (city). Mount Sinai hospital 52-10550

The history of Mt Sinai Hospital during its first hundred years. Organized in 1852 as the sectarian "Jews' Hospital," it became non-sectarian in 1864. "Since the beginning emphasis has been as much upon research as upon the more routine aspects of medical care—consequently the hospital can claim a long list of medical firsts. Mount Sinai is now embarking upon a new venture in the Carver House project: to a slum population barely able to support itself, Mount Sinai staff physicians will bring total medical care, preventive, therapeutic, and psychological." (N Y Times) Index.

Kirkus 20:540 Ag 15 '52 160w

"The book is really a fascinating panorama of city life, national expansion, and global medicine. Valuable in all library systems, but

HIRSH, JOSEPH—Continued
in New York City, at least, each branch library should possess an individual copy." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 77:1806 O 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by F. G. Slaughter
N Y Times p6 O 26 '52 550w

Reviewed by Ralph Colp, M.D.
Sat R 36:47 Ja 10 '53 250w

HIRSH, JOSEPH, and HIRSH, SELMA G.
Alcohol education; a guide-book for teachers.
107p $2.50 Schuman

616.86 Alcohol—Physiological effect. Liquor problem 52-13199

"This guide-book is the direct outgrowth of five years of teaching in various capacities on the problems of alcohol, at the School of Education, New York University." (Pref) It can be used as a guidebook for teachers, health administrators, counselors, and youth leaders.

Booklist 49:84 N 1 '52

Kirkus 20:399 J1 1 '52 90w

"Each public library should buy several copies because all types of readers (especially parents) will appreciate this simplified but accurate information concerning the true relation of alcohol to crime, delinquency traffic accidents, mental illness, and many other factors." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 77:1397 S 1 '52 130w

School & Society 76:256 O 18 '52 20w

HISCOCK, WALTER GEORGE. John Evelyn and Mrs Godolphin. 202p il $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Evelyn, John. Godolphin, Mrs Margaret (Blagge) [52-10563]

"The platonic friendship between the aging diarist John Evelyn and young Margaret Blagge, later Mrs. Godolphin, is charged with almost as much literary and dramatic interest as the relationship between Swift and Stella. This account, based on previously unpublished correspondence and meditations, corrects the official, highly edited version Evelyn presented in the Life of Mrs. Godolphin. Since much of the correspondence was discreetly destroyed, the author has often had to proceed on hint and conjecture." Booklist

Booklist 48:376 J1 15 '52

"This remarkable book is more absorbing than most novels published since the war, for, although it concerns figures of the late seventeenth century, if you take off their wigs and flounces it could be the story of men and women in almost any age. . . . The book is indeed a powerful essay in debunking; but it is more than that: it lights up the passions and emotional conflicts of human beings and discloses the dangers of religion when it is perverted or divorced from ethics." Maurice Ashley

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 25 850w

New Statesman & Nation 43:282 Mr 8 '52 340w

"Whatever may be the reader's opinion, he cannot fail to find this book one of extraordinary interest, though he may possibly regret the occasional intrusion of the 'might-have-been' style—an intrusion surprising in a book distinguished by so much real scholarship. In view of its importance, a bibliography might have been appended. This is a book to be commended without reservation to all who are interested in the characters of the eminent, and especially of those eminent in literature." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 188:115 Ja 25 '52 850w

"Anyone interested in Evelyn or in the social and devotional life of the time will be grateful to Mr. Hiscock for printing these passages for the first time. Perhaps it is ungracious, then, to wish that he had been content with the role of editor. It is doubtful whether it is within Mr. Hiscock's competence, or ours, to pass judgment on the men and women revealed in this strange dance of courtship."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p106 F 8 '52 650w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Cat and Capricorn [by] D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 191p $2.50 Doubleday

51-14221

Detective story.

"Feminine fare, and a pleasant antidote for the tough school."

+ Kirkus 19:543 S 15 '51 100w

"This begins briskly and then bogs down into a formula which might serve if it had vitality or, at the least, credibility." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 13 '52 60w

"For once Miss Rachel (plus her cat Samantha) is played straight and non-cute; the California desert setting is admirably realized; and the plot involves strong emotional interplays of character and some attractive puzzle-problems—even though the solution leaves a few loose ends still dangling." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p11 D 23 '51 50w

"In spite of a love interest that may depress you mildly and some humorous touches principally involving a pet cat, the author has written a neat and expert book that should serve you nicely enough on a rainy and vacant evening."

+ New Yorker 27:191 N 17 '51 120w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 23 '51 60w

"Pleasantly strung together, but plot rather elaborately contrived; setting and characters nicely sketched." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 D 22 '51 30w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Nets to catch the wind. 189p $2.50 Doubleday

52-8747

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:291 My 1 '52 70w

"The best things about this Crime Club Selection are its title (supplied by the late John Webster) and its scheme, which seems to have deserved a surer hand. . . . The proceeding is busy but pretty haphazard, and although the author is perceptive about dogs and physical properties, she has left most of her people blurred or whimsical so that irritation vies with interest in spite of the eventfulness." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J1 27 '52 150w

"The characters (especially the dead cop) are so nebulously sketched, and the motivations so implausible that the whole exercise becomes pretty dull." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p13 J1 20 '52 120w

"As usual, Mrs. Hitchens's settings and characters are excellent, and her strong and quiet narration makes the suspense all the more valid. B plus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 J1 20 '52 80w

"Painstaking job that has its moments, but over ruminative in spots. Average plus." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:56 N 22 '52 20w

"Nets to Catch the Wind' will challenge the skill of the most experienced amateur criminologists." B. F. K.

+ Spring'd Republican p6D Ag 10 '52 50w

HOARD, F. E., and MARLOW, A. W. Cabinet-maker's treasury. 267p il $6 Macmillan

684.2 Cabinet work 52-12393

"This book is a practical guide to the reproduction of fine period furniture. It is especially designed to serve equally well the home-workshop enthusiast, the expert craftsman, and the lover of antiques. For the craftsman, amateur or skilled, there are abundant working drawings, including cross sections and detail enlargements of unusual or difficult features. The accompanying text explains the required procedures, step by step, and there is a special 'how to do it' section on working processes, including joinery, moldings, carving, inlaying, finishing, and the other 'secrets' of good cabinetmaking." Pref

Booklist 49:44 O 1 '52

"Here is a practical guide to the construction of fine furniture, of value equally to the home workshop enthusiast and the expert craftsman. There are excellent descriptions of period and style characteristics as well as construction details, hardware and decorative details." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 9 '52 80w

"The authors have obviously taken particular pains to portray and describe furniture pieces which are authentic in style and details." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:1815 O 15 '52 70w

HOARE, FREDERICK RUSSELL. Eight decisive books of antiquity. 247p $4 Sheed

309 Classical literature 52-8380

"The books selected for Mr. Hoare's first volume are of the pre-Christian era. Mr. Hoare planned to treat the New Testament in the first chapter of a second series. His one completed volume deals with eminent works of the ancient civilizations of Babylonia (The Law of Hammurabi), Egypt (The Book of the Dead), Israel (The Thora), India (The Laws of Manu), and China (Confucius). It is characteristic that Lao-Tse and Buddha are not included. Greek civilization is represented in three chapters dealing with four books: the Iliad, the Odyssey, Plato's Republic, and Aristotle's Politics." Commonweal

"Hoare is a vivid writer with a remarkably rounded knowledge of facts, so his work is stimulating; but one has the feeling that the author sometimes lost his footing in secure facts and got too involved in lofty hypotheses." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 56:156 My 16 '52 550w

"In a wide sweep the book relates contrasting ways of life to one another, sets the western tradition against alien mentalities far-flung in space and time, and brings to political speculation an outlook of refreshing scope. It is not a book for the specialist, but for the young and the general public it sets the mind ranging over wide horizons. There is a sense of great continents and wide oceans, of contrasting climates and massive antiquity, of Europe as a peninsula of Asia."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p362 My 30 '52 1250w

HOBBS, ALBERT HOYT. Claims of sociology; a critique of textbooks. 185p $2.75 Stackpole co.

301 Sociology 52-157

"Eighty-three nonsectarian texts published between the the years 1926 and 1945 in introductory sociology, social problems, and the family were examined for objectivity and viewpoints on what Hobbs refers to as 'practical' topics; that is, those topics of practicable import to personal and social experiences, including such subjects as personality formation, education, government, economic institutions, family, social controls, war, social disorganization, and social change." Am J Soc

"There is no doubt that Hobbs has raised pertinent questions and will have rendered a valuable service to sociologists if it causes them to re-examine numerous assumptions which are no longer tenable. Hobbs himself may make more valuable contributions to the field if he generates a little less steam and cultivates the calm, scientific detachment which he so greatly admires." J. B. Gittler

+ Am J Soc 58:218 S '52 1000w

"Hobbs would have written a more useful, and a much needed, book if he had attacked the textbooks in a more vulnerable spot—conceptualization—and had pursued his criticism in a more judicial and impersonal manner. Still, in spite of the somewhat too perfervid tone of the book, some serious questions are raised to which textbook authors may well give serious attention." Read Bain

Am Soc R 17:371 Je '52 1600w

School & Society 75:285 My 3 '52 30w

"This book could contribute greatly to the improvement of the quality of basic teaching materials were it to be read, marked, learned and inwardly digested by every sociologist who contemplates inflicting another textbook upon those of his colleagues who are still guiltless of such conduct, and upon their still more innocent students. . . But sociologists will regret that he has weakened his case by his frequent indulgence in biases and sweeping generalizations similar to those he denounces in others." H. E. Jensen

+ Social Forces 31:86 O '52 850w

HOBHOUSE, STEPHEN HENRY. Autobiography of Stephen Hobhouse, reformer, pacifist, Christian [Eng title: Forty years and an epilogue]. 216p $3 Beacon press

B or 92 52-8381

The author of this autobiography, was the oldest son of a well-to-do family of English country gentlemen. In early manhood he came under the influence of Tolstoyan Christianity, renounced his inheritance, lived in London slums as a social worker, served a prison term as a CO during the first World war. This account practically closes with the year 1922 when he was forced by ill health to give up his more active life and retire to country living.

"During his period of social work and as a conscientious objector Mr. Hobhouse's experiences were unusual, but being almost exclusively concerned with his own reactions he fails to convey any clear picture of the events in which he took part." G. B.

Manchester Guardian p4 F 26 '52 280w
Spec 188:156 F 1 '52 330w

"Mr. Hobhouse's autobiography has a curious contrast between matter and mood. It is a tale of resistance, yet its tone all through is of a naive gentleness. . . The reader may sigh for a more vivid picture of Eton in 1900, 'old Stamboul' in 1913, Hoxton in 1915 or Wormwood Scrubs in 1916; the pictorial quality is lacking. The author's literary taste, too, is mildly over-catholic, his own little jingles being quoted with extracts from Whittier, Emerson, Goethe, Boehme and others more or less eminent. But the book is very readable in its quiet way, and it has for these days a most unusual tranquility."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p186 Mr 14 '52 850w

HODGES, RUSSELL P. Baseball complete. 228p il $3 Field, R.

796.357 Baseball 52-9156

"Brief, chatty chapters on a variety of baseball topics, by a TV and Radio sports announcer." Library J

Bookmark 11:181 My '52 10w

"Pleasant reading for an afternoon when the game is rained out." R. W. Henderson
Library J 77:1206 Jl '52 20w

"'Baseball Complete' is full of odd anecdotes and odd statistics, but is told in a style so breezy that it sometimes cools the reader's interest." Herbert Kupferberg

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 18 '52 30w

Reviewed by Wilbur Watson

N Y Times p17 Ag 10 '52 80w

HODSON, JAMES LANSDALE. Morning star. 375p $3.50 Simon & Schuster

52-9995

An English newspaperman, fighting to save his liberal paper from being swallowed up by a great newspaper chain, is the hero. The scene is Lancashire, and the time is the present.

Booklist 48:360 Jl 1 '52

Bookmark 11:235 Jl '52 60w

HODSON, J. L.—Continued

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 175:391 Ag '52 250w

"Unlike many newspaper stories, it would be convincing to a newspaper man or woman, whether from Timbuctoo or Tucumcari. The details differ from an American newspaper but the overall picture is universal. . . Mr. Hodson has managed to write a very good newspaper novel which is destined not only for his confreres but for all novel readers." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 1 '52 460w

"This novel of the English newspaper world, written by a distinguished English journalist, has both warmth and integrity; the picture it paints is authentic from first to last; it is well written; and it deals with an issue of the greatest importance—individualism versus conformity. With all these marks in its favor it is difficult to decide why 'Morning Star' is not a great book but is simply a good book."

J. A. May

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 12 '52 600w

"Offers solid entertainment."

+ Kirkus 20:137 F 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 O 19 '51 160w

"Thoughtful and well-written novel." Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 8 '52 650w

"It is the clash of ideas rather than of personalities that vitalizes this first novel by a British newspaper man. . . The narrative, for all of its occasional creakiness of structure, never allows itself to be swallowed up by the content of its dialectics. Mr. Hodson keeps the disputations well in hand, even though there is never a doubt as to where his heart lies." Alden Whitman

N Y Times p24 My 25 '52 350w

"Mr. Hodson's novel has the integrity of an individual mind and the warmth of personal feeling and conviction. It is a book that must have sprung from long reflection as well as clear-eyed and dispassionate observation. It has the steady ring of truth, both in its outward picturing of contemporary England and in the tangled motives and emotions of its people." Walter Havighurst

+ Sat R 35:16 My 31 '52 500w

Reviewed by Tangye Lean

Spec 187:518 O 19 '51 70w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 24 '52 200w

"The novel as a whole is a pertinent and highly readable piece of work."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p689 N 2 '51 160w

HOEHN, MATTHEW ANTHONY, ed. Catholic authors; contemporary biographical sketches. v2 633p $6.50 St Mary's abbey

928 Catholic authors

This second of a two-volume work contains 374 additional biographical sketches of authors of the Catholic faith. "The two volumes together give an intimate introduction to 994 contemporary Catholic authors. The term 'Catholic author,' as here used, means that the author is a practicing member of the Catholic Church. He need not write on Catholic themes, and his thought does not necessarily reflect the mind of the Church." (Pref) For first volume see Book Review Digest 1948.

"Each biography is informal and largely narrative in style; such comment as there is in a critical direction is on the favorable side. Like the editor's previous study, this supplementary volume will be in great demand in Catholic schools for reference work."

+ Commonweal 56:519 Ag 29 '52 100w

School & Society 76:15 J1 5 '52 20w

"This latest edition is a highly valuable work and can be of helpful use to the reading public, especially as a source of reference."

G. A. P.

+ Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 17 '52

HOEMBERG, ELISABETH (SIMS) (MRS ALBERT HOEMBERG). Thy people, my people. 314p $3.75 Crowell

B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, German 52-7376

The diaries and letters of a Canadian woman, married to a German anti-Nazi, on duty in the Luftwaffe, from 1940 to 1946.

Booklist 48:318 Je 1 '52

Foreign Affairs 30:162 O '51 20w

"The letters of Albert and Elizabeth Hoemberg make a better source than the usual ingrown diary kept by a free spirit through a period of totalitarian rule. . . Clearly Mrs. Hoemberg is a person for whom writing is an end in itself as well as a means. People who are sick of reading wholesale accounts of war and suffering need not avoid this story of what happened to one intelligent, sensitive woman." Farnsworth Fowle

+ N Y Times p10 Ap 13 '52 460w

"In 'Thy People, My People' American readers will get an inside view of an aspect of wartime Germany which will be new to many. Perhaps, too, such readers may find their thinking modified when it comes to getting an accurate idea of today's Germany. If so, then it is all to the good. . . This is an honest book, written under stress and coming from good hearts and intelligent minds." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 19 '52 900w

HOETIS, THEMISTOCLES. Man who went away. 147p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy

52-5375

Written in poetic diction this is the story of the girl Akin Arahk, whose lover Alex has left her to go on a long journey. Akin has written a piece for the oboe to give to Alex, and now playing the work over, she relives their love story.

— Kirkus 20:93 F 1 '52 130w

"Needed only in collections where the avant-garde is required." R. E. Kingery
Library J 77:794 My 1 '52 140w

"Hoetis maintains a firm control over a delicate drift of material and surely he succeeds in doing what he wanted to do: the book 'goes on' after its action stops. Nor does it, despite faint parallels at one point with Brideshead Revisited and the wandering besotted disillusionary of the Africa of Paul Bowles, resort to the specifically religious, the tricky sadism, the violent. He has not succumbed to influences. One wants to commend Hoetis for sustaining what he does with a singleness of tone and intention that makes the book concentrated with that poetry of the unexpected and the original." Jean Garrigue

+ New Repub 127:29 S 22 '52 900w

"Themistocles Hoetis' imaginative way with words and symbols is wasted on his pair of drifting, irresponsible weaklings. (Does his oboe symbolize the two frail reeds?) Apparently this versatile new writer, now 26, belongs to that galaxy of talented young moderns dedicated to the poetic and often esoteric manipulation of words, the evocation of exotic atmosphere and the creation of characters who live in a spiritual wasteland." A. F. W.

N Y Times p14 J1 20 '52 200w

HOFER, PHILIP. Baroque book illustration; a short survey from the collection in the Department of graphic arts, Harvard college library. 43p 1491l $7.50 Harvard univ. press

741.64 Illustration of books 51-14003

"Survey and lavish reproduction of illustrations of books in that period ending with the death of Louis XIV in 1715—an epoch so neglected that collectors and librarians may still exercise taste and acquisitive instinct and still spend relatively little on books with handsome engraved portraits, elaborate decorations, technical diagrams, and ornate scenic design." Library J

"It is Mr. Hofer's aim to kindle a revival of interest in the baroque style; his bright text and the well selected and well printed examples should notably aid him to achieve it." Catherine Steel

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 N 25 '51 140w

"A mixture of court scenes, classic allusion, botanical print and vignette; it is frequently necessary to turn the book sideways. Recommended for larger libraries."

+ Library J 77:52 Ja 1 '52 90w

"Selection of plates is admirable; the quality of the work, breathtaking. There are few lovelier or more surprising books this season."

+ New Repub 125:21 D 10 '51 100w

"Mr. Hofer, curator of the Department of Graphic Arts, Harvard College Library, speaks with authority, since it is because of his interests and energies that Harvard has gathered, within the last ten years, more than one thousand illustrated books of the seventeenth century. . . . The second part of Mr. Hofer's book on baroque book illustration is composed of 150 plates chosen from the one thousand books in the Harvard collection, and painstakingly reproduced by Harold Hugo of the Meriden Gravure Company." Karl Kup

+ Publishers' Weekly 160:2150 D 1 '51 1250w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 4 '52 240w

"Mr. Hofer has produced a long needed and exciting book." A. H. Mayor

+ Sat R 35:26 Ja 19 '52 500w

"Baroque style in all its forms is today enjoying an increasing vogue and Mr. Hofer's book is a splendid addition to this growing circle. There is included a survey of the baroque book in general, with separate attention to the production of individual countries."

+ Special Libraries 43:30 Ja '52 170w

"Mr. Philip Hofer has more right than he claims here to the title of pioneer in a somewhat neglected field of critical study and appreciation. If, like most pioneers, he is moved to over-estimate both the neglect and the intrinsic merits of his subject, his readers will none the less warm to the enthusiasm which has given them (at, for these days, a modest price) this handsome and generously illustrated survey."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p402 Je 20 '52 650w

HOFFMAN, DANIEL GERARD. Paul Bunyan: last of the frontier demigods. 213p $4.50 Univ. of Pa. press

398.21 Bunyan, Paul

52-12005

"This book is an addition to the literature of the gargantuan lumberjack who has become a national obsession among folklorists and pageant masters. The author is a true blue Bunyanite, never wavering in faith in his hero as a genuine creation of the American mass mind." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by Charles Collins

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 2 '52 60w

"Thorough, painstaking and full of stout opinions." Hal Borland

+ N Y Times p30 N 23 '52 800w

Reviewed by Siegfried Mandel

Sat R 35:37 O 18 '52 150w

"Mr. Hoffman has had the wit and the insight to turn the very mediocrity of his materials to account. Recognizing that they are mostly 'inaccurate as folklore and worthless as literature,' he sharply divides the true folk tale from the popularization, and that in turn from the work of art (exemplified by Frost, Sandburg, and Auden). For the first time, Mr. Hoffman clarifies the important concept of popularization." R. M. Dorson

+ Yale R n s 42:298 winter '53 750w

HOFFMAN, FREDERICK JOHN. Modern novel in America, 1900-1950. (Twentieth-century literature in America) 216p $3 Regnery

813.09 American fiction—History and criticism 51-13723

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Booklist 48:182 F 1 '52

"This is a first-rate book. In two hundred pages Professor Hoffman provides an ordered survey of the rich and various flowering of the American novel in the last half century. In so doing he contrives to discuss every novelist of consequence, to mention every important novel, and to make discriminating and succinct comment on each." Carlyle King

+ Canadian Forum 32:42 My '52 440w

"This study should be useful to those seeking an introduction to the contemporary novel in the United States, but it is also valuable as a stimulus to the clarification of the thinking of those who are more widely read in our recent fiction. The views expressed are sane and keen. Prof. Hoffman really offers multum in parvo." L. E. Cannon

+ Christian Century 69:16 Ja 2 '52 280w

Reviewed by Warner Berthoff

New Eng Q 25:115 Mr '52 450w

Reviewed by Rolf Fjelde

New Repub 126:20 Mr 3 '52 260w

"Mr. Hoffman is a better critic by instinct than he is by method. He often chooses the really fine book for critical discussion and then explores its 'fictional strategies' rather than its meaning and value. He often spoils a good idea by use of wrist-smacking patter, and he avoids responsibility for exact critical definition by putting his terms in quotes without giving their source in this special meaning. These are bad habits of some of the lesser of contemporary critics, but good men also fall into a fashion. Fortunately his imperfect sympathy for naturalism influences his pronouncements on individual authors without seriously dislocating his historical perspective. A model of concise thinking and writing, his book has only the faults which its author has adopted as virtues." R. E. Spiller

+ — Sat R 35:20 F 2 '52 500w

Reviewed by A. G. Smith

Social Forces 30:363 Mr '52 190w

HOFFMAN, FREDERICK JOHN, and VICKERY, OLGA W., eds. William Faulkner, two decades of criticism. 280p $3.75 Mich. state college press

813 Faulkner, William

51-13066

"This volume reprints 16 essays on Faulkner, all but one of which have been published in the last 20 years. Among the critics are Malcolm Cowley, Robert Penn Warren, Conrad Aiken, Jean-Paul Sartre and Warren Beck. There are two contrasting reviews of 'Intruder In The Dust,' one by Elizabeth Hardwick, the other by Andrew Lytle. There is a bibliography of criticism of Faulkner, compiled by Olga W. Vickery." San Francisco Chronicle

"Here is an anthology as remarkable for its editorial-introduction as for any of its items, excellent tho some of these are. Particularly worth reissue are O'Donnell's pioneer discussion, 'Faulkner's Mythology,' from the Kenyon Review; Conrad Aiken's early defense of Faulkner, from the Atlantic Monthly; Cowley's revealing introduction to 'The Portable Faulkner,' and Robert Penn Warren's New Republic review of it, including suggestions for further studies in Faulkner." Warren Beck

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 28 '51 330w

"Readers of Faulkner are likely to find a lot of interesting material in this collection, and anti-Faulkner persons are likely to find ammunition here to support their views, even if they aren't impressed by the diversity of reaction to Faulkner." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ja 20 '52 150w

HOFFMAN, F. J.—Continued

"Strangely enough, all the varying views on the main body of Faulkner's works, regional background, and literary method, which are well presented in this anthology, make sense when applied to individual novels or short stories. What is lacking is an overall perspective which would put these views concerning our literary lone-wolf into proper focus." Siegfried Mandel

Sat R 35:63 Je 14 '52 220w

"No serious reader of William Faulkner should neglect this distinguished collection of critical essays about the most gifted of contemporary American novelists."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:25 Mr '52 240w

HOFMANNSTHAL, HUGO HOFMANN, edler VON. Selected prose; tr. by Mary Hottinger and Tania and James Stern; introd. by Hermann Broch. (Bollingen ser) 384p $4.50 Pantheon bks.

838

52-8758

A selection from the prose works of an Austrian writer (1874-1929.) Contents: Andreas; The letter of Lord Chandos; Colours; Fear; Moments in Greece; Journey in northern Africa; Fez; A memory of beautiful days; Encounters; Twilight and nocturnal storm; The Woman without a shadow; Shakespeare's kings and noblemen; Balzac; On characters in novels and plays; Sebastian Melmoth; An episode in the life of the Marshal de Bassompierre; A tale of the cavalry; Lucidor; From the "Book of Friends".

"Hofmannsthal has achieved a remarkable blend of sharp and smooth. . . At times, indeed, he seems excessively conscious of manner, even precious; but evidences of underlying gravity and sincerity regularly recur." Frank Jones

+ New Repub 127:19 O 13 '52 750w

Reviewed by E. S. West

New Statesman & Nation 44:722 D 13 '52 2400w

"Hofmannsthal's scope was remarkably wide, his achievement in almost every genre of composition of the first order; and without playing down his other accomplishments it may be claimed that, lyrics apart, his stature as a classic rests most securely on his narrative works and his essays. Of the two, the prose seems to me while not superior in quality to the poetry more available by far to the foreign reader." Francis Golfing

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 7 '52 600w

Reviewed by Stephen Spender

+ N Y Times p1 Ag 24 '52 1400w

"Von Hofmannsthal, an Austrian, says in one of his epigrams that 'eminent Germans always seem to be swimming under water,' and that is precisely what he seems to be doing himself, with the water by no means clear. Perhaps this should not be held against him, for he lived in a day when symbolism was rampant and the quest for the ideal an aesthetic pastime. These characteristics of his age are most strongly revealed in the first and longest selection, 'Andreas,' an unfinished novel that displays high lyrical gifts."

+ New Yorker 28:117 S 6 '52 240w

"The essays are easily the most interesting of the varied pieces, for despite a tiresome concern with esthetics and introspection (which deaden much of the narrative) they often strike off fresh ideas and images, and often suggest a mythic resonance that is unforced. . . The volume has been excellently edited by the late Hermann Broch, who also contributed a lucid and wide-ranging introduction to it." R. H.

+ Sat R 35:36 O 13 '52 240w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p11D O 26 '52 270w

"A strange anonymity attaches to many of his later writings; and there are critics who believe that he ceased to be a creative writer when, at about the age of 25, he experienced the crisis later recorded in The Letter to Lord Chandos. . . That this is a crude distortion of the truth will be evident to readers of the present selection from Hofmannsthal's prose, excellently translated by Mrs. Mary Hottinger and Mr. and Mrs. James Stern."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p820 D 12 '52 2150w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). We are a family [il. by the author]. 93p $2.75 Dutton

52-5292

In simple rhyme and black and white pictures, this book for young readers tells stories about a number of animal families—monkeys, beavers, eagles, bears, and mice.

"Excellent for reading aloud and for giving children an understanding of the family. . . Large print makes for easy reading at the third-grade level." Elenora Alexander

+ Library J 77:602 Ap 1 '52 80w

"It is the incidents of danger that the youngest listeners will like, and the fine big animal pictures. Whether the human moral will be applied by minds so young, is always a question, but the effort to instill the idea of happy families is a worthy one. The relation to actual nature we shall not explore too critically." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 30 '52 180w

Reviewed by Miriam James

N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '52 140w

Springf'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 100w

HOGARTH, MRS GRACE (ALLEN). John's journey; il. by Nora S. Unwin. 214p $2.50 Harcourt

52-6461

A sequel to Lucy's League, the story of the little English girl who made possible the family's trip to America. In this story, told more from the point of view of brother John, the events and adventures of the trip and the summer visit at Granny Gay's are related.

Booklist 48:236 Mr 15 '52

Reviewed by E. C. Ince

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 15 '52 180w

Kirkus 20:188 Mr 15 '52 160w

"A delightful story. . . The characters are so well developed and the conversations so real that the fact that they manage to find a young English girl missing some six years somewhere in the United States doesn't seem as impossible as commonsense would indicate. A good story." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 77:602 Ap 1 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 27 '52 180w

Reviewed by Irene Smith

N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '52 170w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R 35:54 My 10 '52 120w

Springf'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 70w

HOGBEN, LANCELOT THOMAS, ed. How the world was explored; prepared by Marie Neurath and J. A. Lauwerys. 36p col il $1.50 Lothrop

910 Discoveries (in geography)—Juvenile literature 52-6428

A history of man's explorations of his world from the early hunters who followed wild animals into strange lands to the present century when men are "learning to live" in African jungles and Alaska. Text is fairly simple; illustrations are diagrammatic drawings printed in colors.

Booklist 48:187 F 1 '52

Bookmark 11:109 F '52

Kirkus 19:678 D 1 '51 110w

"Marie Neurath's excellent 'isotype' pictures in color plus the succinct text by her and

J. A. Lauwerys make it a good beginning book for ages 9-12 or for older boys and girls with reading difficulty." Christine Gilbert
+ Library J 77:66 Ja 1 '52 80w

"The jacket says 'all ages'; we suggest that the factual text and chartlike pictures, with all their fascinating, tiny figures, will illuminate review sessions in the sixth to eighth grades. The treatment holds suggestions both for the teacher at the blackboard, and for the child's notebook, also for posters and other displays." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 27 '52 120w

N Y Times p28 Ja 27 '52 110w

HOGG, WILLIAM RICHEY. Ecumenical foundations; a history of the International missionary council and its nineteenth-century background. 466p il $5 Harper

266 Missions. International missionary council 51-11923

"This is a study of Protestantism's 'common cause'—the world-wide missionary movement of the last century and a half. Attention is focused upon the momentous missionary conferences which met at Edinburgh (1910), Jerusalem (1928), Madras (1938) and Whitby, Canada (1947). By fostering united action among the younger churches abroad and the older denominations at home these gatherings helped make the World Council of Churches a reality and a factor to be reckoned with in the present day." N Y Times

Booklist 48:190 F 15 '52

"With the organization of the World Council of Churches there has arisen the question whether the International Missionary Council should not be absorbed into the World Council, or if not (and there is apparently no great body of opinion which goes that way), then how the coordination of the two may be best promoted. The present work furnishes all the historical background which anyone could ask for the consideration of these questions. Aside from that it is also a superbly documented study of the modern missionary movement." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:371 Mr 26 '52 140w

Reviewed by E. L. Allen

Hibbert J 51:87 O '52 20w

"This is a very thorough piece of historical research and is valuable not only on that account, but because of the direct relationship of the development of inter-denominational cooperation on the mission field to the contemporary movement for Christian unity as concentered in the World Council of Churches. Will be of interest primarily to those engaged in the work of foreign missions and to those who are closely involved in the ecumenical movement."

+ Kirkus 20:119 F 15 '52 90w

"Recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 77:212 F 1 '52 130w

Manchester Guardian p5 Je 23 '52 80w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey

N Y Times p28 Mr 2 '52 230w

School & Society 75:207 Mr 29 '52 30w

HOGGART, RICHARD. Auden; an introductory essay. 256p $3.75 Yale univ. press

821 Auden, Wystan Hugh 51-13822

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Booklist 48:182 F 1 '52

"The book is fascinating as the intellectual biography of an unusually intelligent, alert, and earnest human being during two difficult decades." J. F. Nims

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ap 27 '52 200w

"In addition to being a guide to the work of a single poet, this book is a fine introduction to modern poetry generally. It reveals very clearly what the modern poet is up to and what he is up against. For those who cannot keep their mental equilibrium while crossing the stream of contemporary poetry, Mr. Hoggart's study will prove to be a handy stepping-stone." C. T. Houpt

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 8 '52 480w

"With a poet so richly endowed and so committed to tireless communication, the critic's task is less one of explication than of simple ordering of profusion. Richard Hoggart, in this excellent first full-length study, has accomplished the ordering and gone beyond. With good sense he has organized his subject chronologically, relating the early poems to their governing ideas, then showing how these ideas developed and deepened in the later, longer works." Rolfe Fjelde

+ New Repub 126:20 Ap 28 '52 850w

"Perhaps because he is in such close agreement with Auden, Mr. Hoggart tends to see him as a wonderfully humble and sympathetic soul, and also as a far more Rilkean artist than he actually is. Most of the dubious passages in the book result from an unwillingness to recognize that, for better or worse, Auden writes as one free of common responsibilities, and so apart from life. Nor does Mr. Hoggart show, what seems self-evident to this admirer of Auden's work, that its successes, like its failures, are due to the fact that he is a superb technician who is given to thinking rather than to feeling. Its bias notwithstanding, the book is a fine instance of elucidatory criticism and should interest the large but intelligent audience to which it is addressed." Babette Deutsch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 F 17 '52 420w

New Yorker 28:150 Ap 26 '52 160w

"A model of what an introduction to a living poet can be. The author preserves his critical sense throughout; he is neither rapidly worshipful nor defiantly uncomprehending. He distinguishes nicely between instances of real inventiveness and of careless mannerism, both of them frequent in Auden. He supplies a great deal of information, some of it original, about the sources of Auden's thought. And he makes good use of Auden's prose statements; the quotations consistently amplify rather than replace the meaning of the poems." Martin Price

+ Yale R n s 41:460 spring '52 390w

HOGNER, NILS. Lost tugboat; il. by the author. [35p] $2 Abelard

Picture-story book about the Betty Ann, a New York harbor tugboat, showing how she got lost in the fog while on an assignment, but proved a great help as soon as the fog lifted. For ages 6-8.

Booklist 49:37 S 15 '52

Bookmark 12:11 O '52 10w

"A rollicking, nautical tale for youngest readers." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Jl 13 '52 140w

Reviewed by G. M. Shakin

+ Library J 77:1310 Ag '52 40w

"Mr. Hogner's tugboat story will please every small boy who ever crossed a ferry or watched the ships in New York Harbor." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ag 8 '52 100w

"Here is every detail of a tugboat's life. Little children will love both the story and the unusually lovely pictures, in reds and greens, of the tugboat and the harbor. You can almost smell the harbor." Phyllis Fenner

+ N Y Times p14 Ag 3 '52 120w

"This is the first text that Nils Hogner has written for his drawings—and it is a very good story."

+ Sat R 35:47 N 15 '52 70w

HOKE, JOHN. First book of snakes; pictures by Paul Wenck. 67p $1.75 Watts, F.

593.12 Serpents—Juvenile literature 52-7317

A simple science book for young readers setting forth in text and many pictures information on how snakes came to be, how they catch and eat their food, how they hibernate, different kinds of snakes, etc. Index.

HOKE, JOHN—Continued

Booklist 48:284 My 1 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 22 '52
140w

"Illustrations on every page add to the attractiveness as well as the usefulness of this beginner's guide to snakes, their habits and peculiarities." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:245 Ag '52 80w

Kirkus 20:156 Mr 1 '52 140w

"With Paul Wenck's beautiful illustrations in green, red, and yellow, this is a good beginning book for the young reader, though not the best in the field for children." N. S. Chasteen

+ Library J 77:799 My 1 '52 90w

"The weird, slithery, silent world of the snakes is capably introduced on these pages. . . The pictures are superb, and very well printed." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 My 11 '52 170w

Reviewed by G. O. Blough

N Y Times p27 Je 8 '52 80w

New Yorker 28:203 D 6 '52 20w

"This is a very attractive book with excellent illustrations."

+ Sat R 35:62 My 10 '52 50w

Wis Lib Bul 48:218 S '52

HOKINSON, HELEN ELNA. There are ladies present [cartoons]. 87p $2.75 Dutton

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 52-8259

Selection from this artist's cartoons which appeared in the New Yorker over a period of twenty years. They have never before appeared in book form.

Booklist 49:85 N 1 '52

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 10w

Reviewed by J. M. Brinnin

New Repub 127:26 D 8 '52 200w

"Let nobody think this is a collection of 'seconds.' 'There Are Ladies Present' is at least as good as the other delectable books. It is pleasant, again, to meet such thoroughly nice people. . . So 'There Are Ladies Present' proves once more what needed neither proving nor saying again: Miss Hokinson was wonderful. Her 'girls' give her a very special immortality." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 26 '52
350w

"If you can figure out a way to get more out of your two seventy-five, you're a better man, etc. These are all New Yorker drawings, but none of them has been inside book covers before. Describing Hokinson is silly. Go to your bookstore and peek, but have some money in your pocket." Allan Worth

+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 30 '52
40w

"Delightfully entertaining collection." Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p11C O 12 '52
90w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Tomboy Row; il. by Grace Paull. 220p $2.50 Doubleday

52-5762

Row (short for Rowena) was the youngest daughter of a doctor living in Rockport, Massachusetts. Row was an incorrigible tomboy and this book tells of her many escapades during one spring and summer.

Booklist 48:344 Je 15 '52

"The author seems to understand perfectly the inner workings of a 10 year old—she must know someone just like her tomboy heroine. Her humorous affectionate portrait of Rowena, her family, friends and town is a joy and delight." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Jl 13 '52
240w

"The full flavor of the author's own town of Rockport is here (some of its well-known residents are too) but the incidents could be those of any small town, just as real as Rowena, her friends of all ages and her four older sisters who found it no strain to be proper Grace Paull's sketches have caught admirably the spirit of Rowena's adventuring." V. M.

+ Horn Bk 28:174 Je '52 150w

Kirkus 20:155 Mr 1 '52 120w

"Recommended for 9-12-year-olds." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 40w

"The funniness of this engaging story springs partly from the author's accurate and sympathetic reading of 10-year-olds, partly from the gap between Row's intentions and grown-up interpretations of them." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p29 Je 8 '52 120w

Sat R 35:34 Jl 19 '52 100w

Wis Lib Bul 48:176 Jl '52

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. Far corner: a personal view of the Pacific Northwest. 270p $3.75 Macmillan

979.5 Northwest, Pacific 52-1542

Some thirty years ago the author left his native New England to explore the Pacific Northwest. In this "personal view" he explores much of Washington, Oregon, and Idaho, describing the cities, hamlets, myths, and the people of the region. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:319 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 30w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 11 '52
280w

"Mr. Holbrook's narrative of lumbering in the Northwest recaptures the trail-blazing spell of places that even in his time were fairly bursting with the energy and urgency he came to associate with pioneering. His lively ruminations are at times crude if not indeed a little raw—perhaps needlessly so. Out of his rough-and-ready life on the business end of a cant hook, he has recreated the harsh, strident glamour of a fading frontier where lumber is still mainly related to the region's romantic livelihood and solid wealth." Harlan Trott

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 3 '52
550w

"While the bulk of the market will be in the Northwest, anyone interested in a very personal approach to regional writing will find this rewarding reading."

+ Kirkus 20:149 F 15 '52 280w

Nation 175:18 Jl 5 '52 80w

"In order to give full rein to his long and varied list of enthusiasms [the author] needs plenty of elbow room. The result here is as shrewd and informative a survey of the Pacific Northwest and its inhabitants as we are likely to get for some time to come. It is also highly entertaining reading." Oscar Lewis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ap 27
'52 550w

Reviewed by R. L. Neuberger

N Y Times p6 Jl 27 '52 460w

"By now, the author's regional pride in this 'remote but lucky corner' of the country almost makes him a professional old-timer himself, but his style remains refreshingly unpretentious."

+ New Yorker 28:141 My 10 '52 160w

"Mr. Holbrook thinks like a teacher but writes with rare liveliness and common sense. He has simply never known how to be dull. Maybe that doesn't make him a 'historian' in the trade sense. But as far as his wide audience is concerned (an audience which has grown with every book), he'll do very nicely until a historian comes along." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 23 '52
800w

"These stories are creamed with color and vitality, largely because Stewart Holbrook is a man of color and vitality. If he writes many more books like this, making the Pacific Northwest so alluring and attractive, the influx of newcomers will accelerate even more rapidly than it has hitherto. Then he will have to search for some other frontier to settle among the first million." J. W. Goodsell

+ Sat R 35:18 My 24 '52 400w

Spring'd Republican p8D My 11 '52 250w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:306 S '52 210w

HOLDING, MRS ELISABETH (SANXAY).
Virgin huntress. 177p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

51-8201

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:590 O 1 '51 80w

"This is a remarkably persuasive essay upon fear and self-pity whose rather gratuitous final violences come in shocking succession. Mrs. Holding understands her principal character surely and pins him to her specimen-board with detachment. The consequence is a tale superficially absurd and essentially as valid as it is frightening." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Ja 13 '52 190w

"This study of a psychopathic personality, a plausible and attractive young man terribly unsure of his place in life (and uncertain even as to whether he has committed murder), is one of the shortest 'novels' in recent years; but Mrs. Holding's supremely economical technique gives it more terrifying depth and value than most books of twice its length." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 13 '52 90w

"Mrs. Holding's plot is occasionally contrived, but her central character is a very satisfactory study in abnormal psychology."

+ New Yorker 27:76 Ja 5 '52 160w

"One of Mrs. Holding's most merciless portraits. B plus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 13 '52 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:33 Ja 5 '52 40w

Spring'd Republican p16A Ja 20 '52 60w

HOLISHER, DESIDER, and BECKEL, GRHAM. Capitol Hill [the story of Congress]. 143p il $3.50 Schuman

328.73 U.S. Congress 52-2368

A survey of Capitol Hill, containing 100 photographs, and text describing the history of Congress, the buildings in which it met, the historical art within the Capitol, the workings of the Senate and the House, etc. No index.

Booklist 49:20 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:81 Ja '53

"This book should interest Americans of any age, and is excellent material for young people." M. J. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Ag 30 '52 150w

"While images are occasionally vivid, the overall picture is hazy. Better organization here could have turned this into a presentable civics book, especially with its hundred excellent photographs."

Kirkus 20:157 Mr 1 '52 150w

"Ardent flag waving detracts from the flow of the text, but the information and the hundred excellent photographs will prove useful." M. M. Smith

Library J 77:728 Ap 15 '52 40w

"It is a handsome book, useful for twelve-year-olds up, mostly as a reference book. It is an attractive supplement to American history courses." L. S. B.

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 6 '52 190w

"Here is a book appropriate to election year. . . . Written with knowledge of history and respect for our national ideals, it outweighs all ordinary sermons on good citizenship." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p30 S 14 '52 160w

HOLLIDAY, KATE. Troopship [foreword by Walter Karig]. 188p il $3.50 Doubleday

355.12 Transports. Korean war, 1950- 52-5533

A woman reporter's day by day account of her trip on a troopship carrying thirteen hundred soldiers to the war zone.

Booklist 48:245 Ap 1 '52

+ Bookmark 11:156 Ap '52 40w

Kirkus 20:24 Ja 1 '52 110w

"Unfortunately, Miss Holliday can't resist generalizing about the all-too-obvious implications of the trip, and speculating sentimentally about the emotions and possible futures of the men making it. To her credit, however, she has made herself, the reporter (and the female), unobtrusive. And when she writes factually, she lets the reader see swiftly and skillfully dozens of these men and the way they passed the voyage. . . . Sprinkled through the book are dozens of obviously unprofessional photographs of the men, and their amateurishness adds curiously to the book's impact. In fact, when Miss Holliday confines herself to reporting her account of men going to war is moving and effective." Joanna Spencer

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Mr 16 '52 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 29 '52 180w

HOLLIS, ERNEST VICTOR, and TAYLOR, ALICE L. Social work education in the United States; the report of a study made for the National council on social work education. 422p $5.50 Columbia univ. press

360.7 Social work—Study and teaching 52-120

"This report is significant in a number of respects, but especially as an effort on the part of the National Council on Social Work Education to chart a course for the future development of education for professional social workers. Part I is in itself a contribution toward orienting both leaders in the field and the universities and other agencies which must bear a large responsibility for providing the professional education needed in social work today. Part II, Charting a Course for Social Work Education, discusses the functions of the undergraduate college, graduate professional education, and the organization and administration of schools of social work." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 46:275 Mr '52 60w

"The authors have produced a document that is now, and will long be, a taking-off point for discussion in faculties and professional organizations. They have left a substantial and stimulating agenda for the National Council on Social Work Education." Karl de Schweinitz

+ Ann Am Acad 281:232 My '52 1300w

"This book is an excellent reference and challenge for all those interested in the field of social work. It is also valuable for those who are giving vocational guidance and training in the field." M. S. Fry

+ J Home Econ 44:380 My '52 360w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman
Sat R 35:20 Jl 26 '52 390w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 75:266 Ap 26 '52 200w

"On the whole, this is a carefully done piece of research and reporting. However one may disagree with specific findings and recommendations, he will find the book informing and challenging. . . . Here is a book that merits reading not only by social work educators and practitioners but also by college and university administrators of all kinds. The issues discussed are so like those relating to other professions and other aspects of higher education that the book is potentially useful to a wide range of professional people." S. A. Queen

+ Social Forces 30:359 Mr '52 600w

"The report as a whole is a contribution not only to the field of social work, but also to the better understanding of this important

HOLLIS, E. V.—Continued
professional service on the part of social, educational, and political leaders, who must make wise decisions on general social policy and implement these decisions by effective legislative and administrative action."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:50 Mr '52 280w

HOLLISTER, PAUL MERRICK. Beauport at Gloucester; the most fascinating house in America; pictures by Samuel Chamberlain. 84p $3.75 Hastings house

728.3 Gloucester, Massachusetts. Beauport (house) 51-14687

A description in brief text and many pictures of a house in Gloucester, Massachusetts, built by Henry Sleeper during the early twentieth century. "Mr. Sleeper began it as a three-room summer cottage; and then, because he was a gifted architect and a magnetic collector, he went on to build a forty-room labyrinth, each room a period piece—the wainscoting, the paneling, the cabinets, mirrors, authentic down to the minutest detail. It was his genius to shape these interiors and to adorn them so that they became a breathing likeness of the early Colonial, of the Revolutionary, or of the early Republic." (Atlantic)

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 189:76 F '52 120w

"The Hollister description and the Chamberlain photographs do make a handsome book. Perhaps if you try to think you're reading about a museum rather than a house, that's the best way to approach it." J. H. Jackson. San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 1 '51 350w

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews

Sat R 35:49 Ap 5 '52 320w

HOLLOWAY, MARK. Heavens on earth: utopian communities in America, 1680-1880. 240p il $4.75 Library pubs, 8 W 40th st, N.Y. 18

335.973 Utopias [51-6394]

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Am Hist R 57:754 Ap '52 120w

"No new material is apparent, but a few suggestive hypotheses on the reasons for the success of certain sectarian groups appear in the concluding chapters. The chief merit of the work lies in its balanced, objective and sympathetic summaries of a diversity of data on the utopian communities." S. F. Miyamoto + Am Soc R 17:129 F '52 200w

"The story is interestingly told, but there is little new material, few footnotes, and a bibliography that is obviously shorter than the number of works that the author must have used. . . . Tribute is paid also to The American Faith by E. S. Bates, but there is little evidence that Mr. Holloway has done much research in the rich contemporary material for any of the communities." A. F. Tyler

+ Ann Am Acad 280:213 Mr '52 750w

"Mr. Holloway knows how to make them all alive for us and how to give a sense of continuity, throughout the centuries, to this adventure of the spirit whose contemporary representatives are to be found in Israel in the kibbutzim and in France in the Communities of Work." C. H. Bishop

+ Commonweal 55:453 F 8 '52 140w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith

Ethics 62:303 Jl '52 190w

"A concise and well-organized study."

+ Nation 174:140 F 9 '52 70w

New Yorker 27:77 F 2 '52 180w

"As a work of popularization, this shows excellent craftsmanship. Mr. Holloway deals amusingly with communitarian foibles without misrepresenting the basic seriousness of the movement. . . . To produce a readable synthesis has not been an easy task, for many of the older works are diffuse, vague, incomplete, and out of balance. Mr. Holloway uses them with discrimination, and composes their chaotic information into a smooth and well-proportioned narrative." A. E. Bestor

+ Sat R 35:34 Jl 12 '52 450w

HOLLYMAN, THOMAS, II. The oilmen; a photographic story [text by Charles Parker; design by Frederick H. Roberts]. [94p] $1.50 Rinehart

665.5 Petroleum industry and trade 52-9727

Picture-story of the oil industry, with brief descriptive text. It tells the story of oil from the time the field geologists search for a new well to the delivery of gasoline to the consumer.

Booklist 48:382 Jl 15 '52

"An easy and pleasant way to absorb visually a great deal of information on the industry." Philip Hampson

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 1 '52 110w

"The book has accomplished its mission very well. There can be suggestions, however, on how the next attempt by this or any other industry, could be even more appealing. 'The Oilmen' tells about the industry per se but it might have been more interesting if it had photographically told more clearly what, specifically, it means to the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker." H. C. Kenney

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 12 '52 450w

Reviewed by Ruth Teiser

San Francisco Chronicle p8 D 21 '52 200w

Springf'd Republican p9D My 25 '52 90w

HOLME, BRYAN, ed. Horses; introd. by Alleine E. Dodge. 98p il $3.50 Studio

704.9432 Horses—Pictures, illustrations, etc. 51-7117

A collection of 130 photographs, drawings, paintings, sculpture, and prints showing how the horse has been represented in art from the days of the Greeks to the present. The introduction gives the story of the horse in art.

Booklist 48:96 N 15 '51

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 76:1813 N 1 '51 20w

"A nice addition to the animal-lover's library."

+ School Arts 51:adv Mr '52 40w

HOLMES, ARNOLD W. Family problems handbook; how and where to find help and guidance. 191p $3.50; pa $2 Fell

361 Public welfare—U.S. Social problems

"Useful handbook for teachers, nurses, and social workers who may be teaching or leading groups in discussion of community or family problems." (Wis Lib Bul) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:4 S 1 '52

"Personal counselors will find the book a useful reference and individuals can find in it considerable condensed information." F. D. Hicon

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 10 '52 40w

Wis Lib Bul 48:212 S '52

HOLMES, CLELLON. Go. 311p $3.50 Scribner 52-12794

A first novel which describes the life and loves of a group of young New York "intellectuals" who apparently spend most of their time drifting from one party, one dive, or one bed to another.

Kirkus 20:430 Jl 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by W. K. Harrison

Library J 77:1812 O 15 '52 50w

"Mr. Holmes' style is almost appropriately slack and erratic. Occasionally it bulges out into a cramped lyricism—only to retreat fatigued into a bare transcription of happenings. 'A beat generation,' philosophizes Paul Hobbes toward the end. We hope he is not right. But the adjective seems useful. This is a beat novel." Frederick Morton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p33 O 12 '52 600w

— N Y Times p50 N 9 '52 230w

"You're supposed to see these characters as spiritually impoverished tragic figures. Spiritually impoverished they certainly are, but their tragedy eludes me." E. J. F.

Sat R 35:36 O 11 '52 160w

HOLMES, DAVID CHARLES. Young people's book of radar. 189p il $2.95 McBride co.

621.381 Radar 51-14859

"The development of radar is presented clearly and in a way to stimulate further reading. Explains what radar is, its uses in peace and war, its similarity to television, and what the future may bring. Effective diagrams. Grade 8 and up." Booklist

Booklist 48:186 F 1 '52

"Not easy reading but fascinating to anyone with a scientific background. Exceptional junior high school students interested in science will be able to use, if only in parts." M. I. Ross

+ Library J 77:70 Ja 1 '52 90w

"The author is a very good teacher: he can combine actual incidents from his memory with his exposition, also imagined incidents in which the reader is asked to partake. There are excellent photographs and many diagrams." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p28 N 16 '52 50w

HOLMES, JOHN CLELLON. See Holmes, C.

HOLMES, LLEWELLYN PERRY (MATT STUART, pseud). Wire in the wind. 126p $2.50 Lippincott

52-8787

Western story.

Booklist 49:72 O 15 '52

"Recommended reading." Al Chase
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 2 '52 30w

"A western which is really a slice of American history." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1829 O 15 '52 20w

"Grade A all the way." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p35 N 9 '52 60w

HOLMES, URBAN TIGNER. Daily living in the twelfth century; based on the observations of Alexander Neckam in London and Paris. 337p il maps $3.85 Univ. of Wis. press

901 Twelfth century. Civilization, Medieval. Middle ages. Neckam, Alexander

52-62000

A minutely detailed account of ways of living and traveling in the last half of the twelfth century in England and France. The volume is based in large part on the work of Alexander Neckam, an English cleric who went to Paris about 1178 and stayed there until 1186.

"This is an altogether attractive and useful book. Designed 'as background in mediaeval civilization for students of Old French and Provençal,' it gives information about everything from palaces to pastries, from Gothic arches to garde-robe pits." Margaret Hastings

+ Am Hist R 58:87 O '52 360w

Booklist 48:263 Ap 15 '52

"The second half of the twelfth century is here in all its vigor and color. A series of delightfully naive illustrations from the artists of the time opens a window on a world peopled by sinners, demons, and witches. . . And for scholars, the full notes at the end of the book mark out scores of intriguing byways." John Trueman

+ Sat R 35:48 Je 14 '52 250w

School & Society 75:285 My 3 '52 20w

"The book is at its best when it describes details of ordinary life—the length of a day's journey, the construction of a bed, the food served in a student's lodgings—though there may be a tendency to make the medieval standard of living too high. The descriptions of economic and political institutions are less satisfactory; they rely too much on literary sources which have not been checked against official documents. Yet, on the whole, this is the best study of the kind which has appeared in English."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:159 Je '52 190w

HOLMYARD, ERIC JOHN. British scientists. 88p il $2.75 Philosophical lib.

925 Scientists 51-13955

"A collection of very short sketches of famous British scientists ranging in time from Roger Bacon to Sir J. J. Thomson and Lord Rutherford. In the main, the sketches are devoted to accounts of scientific achievements rather than personal characteristics. Each sketch is accompanied by a portrait. Included also are several short essays on such topics as the structure of the atom and British scientific societies. The book can be recommended to readers who wish to get in the shortest possible time a view of the mountain peaks of British science. The author is editor of the well-known scientific journal, Endeavour." N Y New Tech Bks

N Y New Tech Bks 36:93 N '51

"This is an excellent addition to the rapidly growing list of books on the history of science." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 23 '51 90w

HOLT, ISABELLA. Rampole Place. 372p $3.50 Bobbs

52-10278

Novel about the Middlewest during the years 1906 to 1912. Senator Rampole, wealthy descendant of a leading pioneer family, and his two motherless children, are the leading figures in this study of social and political life, during those years.

Booklist 49:68 O 15 '52

"A delightful and authentic period piece of the American midwest in the fertile—and frequently gracious—years from 1906 to 1912." V. P. Hass

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 14 '52 360w

Christian Science Monitor p6 O 2 '52 130w

"'Rampole Place' is a storyteller's story, real, human, told without much subtlety, though Mrs. Holt does bring to it the considerable Freudian knowledge at her command. But the novel remains throughout what it sets out to be—a delightful and honest period piece." David Tilden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 14 '52 600w

"Miss Holt is a mildly entertaining reporter. Her scenes will invoke the elderly reader's nostalgia here and there. There are sides to take, moral condemnations, and less moral ones, noble decisions to be arrived at, several love stories to yawn through, between people with names like Katie and Vic, and Jodie and Lissa." Evelyn Eaton

N Y Times p28 S 14 '52 370w

"Despite a certain slap-dash vitality in the writing and a brisk prodigality with plot, Miss Holt wasn't able to make me feel that her characters and their concerns are more than tedious." E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R 35:51 O 4 '52 160w

Reviewed by William Beauchamp

Springf'd Republican p10D O 5 '52 140w

HOLTHUSEN, HANS EGON. Rainer Maria Rilke; a study of his later poetry; tr. by J. P. Stern. (Studies in modern European literature and thought) 61p $2.50 Yale univ. press
831 Rilke, Rainer Maria 52-10450

"Perhaps the most important thing about this new study of Rilke is that it is postwar German writing and that it represents the best of a new kind of Rilke—enthusiasm in Germany today. It is a eulogy, almost an elegy, on the great modern lyric poet, and it sets him beside W. B. Yeats; T. S. Eliot, Paul Valéry and Paul Claudel." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by Fritz Richter
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 14 '52
170w

Reviewed by T. M. Longstreth
Christian Science Monitor p5 J1 31 '52
150w

"Hans Holthusen, in his study of Rilke, appears to possess that absolute understanding which combines enthusiasm with the sharpest insight into the limitations of the subject." Rudd Fleming

New Repub 127:22 J1 7 '52 300w

"Dr. Holthusen—a prominent German poet and essayist whose criticism shows the influence of Mr. Eliot and of Dr. Rudolf Kassner—judges his subject in the light of absolute, theological criteria; his main contribution to our knowledge of Rilke is his brilliant analysis of the un-Christian character of that 'inwardness' to which many of Rilke's innovations can be ascribed. This part of the essay is a sound antidote to the sentimental excesses of the Rilke cult; but Dr. Holthusen also demonstrates Rilke's mastery as a poet by examining his highly individual use of syntax and imagery." Michael Hamburger

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:142 Ag 2 '52 140w

"Holthusen's essay is indispensable for any one who wants to understand Rilke's poetry, but others should read it too, since it casts a retrospective light on the whole modern movement in literature."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 J1 27 '52 220w

"Struck me as being too critical of Rilke. Arguing from a Christian view, he finds Rilke's poetry deficient in the drama of human personality, history and death. He is right, of course, but too rigid in his insistence, and only toward the end does he seem to recognize that Rilke in his own way has given as much to the religious sensibility as any poet of our time." William Barrett

N Y Times p5 Je 22 '52 60w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling
San Francisco Chronicle p8 J1 6 '52
160w

Spec 189:80 J1 11 '52 60w

HOLTON, GERALD JAMES. Introduction to concepts and theories in physical science. 650p il $6.50 Addison-Wesley

500 Science 52-7666

"A new textbook which reflects some results of the critical examination on the part of leading educators (for instance, James Bryant Conant) of the purposes and contents of introductory college courses in the sciences. . . The history and philosophy of physical science are given considerable attention, and basic physical knowledge is successfully presented as a part of our contemporary culture. The author is Assistant Professor of Physics and of General Education in the Sciences in Harvard University." (N Y New Tech Bks) Answers to problems. Index.

"The range of topics is from classical mechanics to the nuclear atom, but many of the traditional topics in introductory textbooks have given way to such matters as a discussion of opinions on scientific procedure." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:2008 N 15 '52 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:77 S '52

HOLZMAN, ROBERT S., and others, eds. Big business methods for the small business. 323p $5 Harper

650 Business 52-5722

"In question and answer form, 12 specialists offer expert counsel on systematic, up-to-date practices that can be applied to the small businessman's everyday activities . . . Index." Bookmark

Booklist 49:61 O 15 '52

Bookmark 11:181 My '52 30w

"Most of the book is written in pretty high level economic language but it is a comprehensible level where needed information is concerned."

+ Kirkus 20:112 F 1 '52 230w

"The little business man will hardly learn enough from this book to apply big business methods to his operation, but he can get from it an idea of the possibilities. The 12 experts who have combined here to discuss basic techniques do an adequate job in the limited space allotted them, and stimulate an appetite for further reading in the field." M. S.

San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 18 '52

40w

Wis Lib Bul 48:168 J1 '52

HOME, MICHAEL, pseud. See Bush, C.

HOME CRAFTSMAN MAGAZINE. Earning extra money in your work shop. See Wakeling, A., ed.

HOMER. Iliad; tr. with an introd. by Richmond Lattimore. 527p $4.50 Univ. of Chicago press

883 51-14113

"A new translation in a free six-beat line; the translator has attempted to retain the speed and rhythm of the original. Plain modern English is used for the most part." Booklist

Booklist 48:157 Ja 1 '52

Christian Century 69:644 My 28 '52
220w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 18 '52
170w

"The author of this new translation of the Iliad is Professor of Greek at Bryn Mawr College and is already known as translator and poet. He has prefaced his translation with fifty pages of introduction, which I find wholly admirable. . . About the translation itself I am not so clear. . . Pope and Rieu might be regarded as extremes of Homeric translation, both of which serve their different purposes admirably. Lattimore lies between and nearer to Rieu than to Pope; here I find judgment difficult and am perhaps less easily pleased." T. B. L. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 28 '51 240w

"Professor Lattimore's version, while less spectacular than his recent presentation of Pindar, is workmanlike and competent; his introduction is both painstaking and intelligent, and his prosody is cleanly handled."

+ Nation 174:285 Mr 22 '52 70w

"For his translation Mr. Lattimore has chosen an extremely free six-stress line, a hexameter which might be described, in the Hopkins terminology, as heavily counterpointed, with many outriders. . . Is the verse not too free on occasion? Generally it is handled with great skill; but at times there are so many extra syllables attached to the stresses that the line sprawls (or so few that it bucks), with the result that when Mr. Lattimore reasserts the pattern in a conventional hexameter, there is an awkward jerking back into focus." Dudley Fitts

New Repub 126:20 Mr 10 '52 650w

"In translation, something must always be sacrificed. To my ear, the rhythm is sometimes sacrificed to accuracy. A translator, however, has a right to be judged by what he has aimed at, and Mr. Lattimore has succeeded brilliantly. For our generation, it is hard to imagine a better Homer." Basil Davenport

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 6 '52 500w

"The narrative runs on easily, the details of the action are clearly projected, and the emotional key scenes have poignance. The introduction furnishes a variety of scholarly data and analysis."

+ New Yorker 28:128 Mr 8 '52 110w
Times [London] Lit Sup p790 D 7 '51 600w

"Professor Lattimore has given us a nervous, swift-moving version of the Iliad which maintains the dignity and passion of Homer and avoids both an un-Homeric quaintness and an equally un-Homeric colloquiality. . . His lines are bare and clean, and his Homer speaks a precise modern idiom, wanting only the grandeur and sonority of the Greek, but otherwise an excellent approximation." W. E. Brown

+ Yale R n s 41:470 spring '52 180w

HOOD, TORREY, pseud. See Chanslor, T. H.

HOOVER, HERBERT CLARK. Memoirs; v2, The cabinet and the presidency, 1920-1933. 405p $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Statesmen—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. U.S.—Politics and government—20th century (51-13301)

"The new volume of Mr. Hoover's autobiography follows a topical arrangement, covering many public issues of the years 1920 to 1933, when he served eight years as Secretary of Commerce and four as President." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Earl Pomeroy
Am Hist R 58:146 O '52 480w

Reviewed by W. E. Binkley
Ann Am Acad 282:128 Jl '52 600w
Booklist 48:230 My 1 '52
Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 20w

"In reading this volume one is repeatedly struck with the breadth of Mr. Hoover's knowledge of men and affairs, the soundness of his thinking, and the wisdom of his proposals." H. C. Parmelee
+ Chem Eng 59:409 Jl '52 950w

Reviewed by A. S. Henning
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 27 '52 750w
Christian Century 69:925 Ag 13 '52 140w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p11 My 1 '52 1000w
Current Hist 22:376 Je '52 50w
Foreign Affairs 30:674 Jl '52 70w

"Quite frankly, this is less interesting reading than volume one, in which the engineer Hoover emerged as the best type of American in the making, a success story in the old tradition."

Kirkus 20:57 Ja 15 '52 370w

"Most readers will find it less engrossing than the account of his personal adventure as engineer and relief administrator, since it is mainly a series of sober reports on matters of public policy. But this does not detract from its historical importance." G. D. McDonald
+ — Library J 77:718 Ap 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by V. O. Key
New Repub 126:19 My 12 '52 700w

Reviewed by Mark Sullivan
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 27 '52 2300w

"Any writer of the future trying to judge the confused events through which Herbert Hoover lived should take a good look at what the former President has said about them. Like many of our Presidents, he will probably continue to grow in popular stature and national esteem as the years give perspective to the turbulent scenes over which he presided." H. B. Hinton

+ N Y Times p3 Ap 27 '52 1350w
New Yorker 28:139 My 3 '52 190w

"Herbert Hoover mentions that four Presidents before him have ventured into the field of autobiography. He charitably refrains from mentioning that their books possessed no literary merit and only slight historical value. This is not the case with Mr. Hoover's effort which is one of considerable literary merit and tremendous worth as a guide to the formation of the doctrines of the man who has become America's elder statesman." W. H. Baker

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 27 '52 600w

"A significant but in many ways disappointing book. It adds details to the record, and recalls to mind interesting events now half forgotten. Rarely, however, does the author penetrate beneath the surface. Hence many critics and defenders of our only living ex-President will feel that this work is often dull, and contributes little to an understanding of Hoover, or of the years after World War I." F. H. Harrington

+ — Sat R 35:12 Ap 26 '52 750w
Spring'd Republican p8D My 11 '52 210w

Time 59:112 My 5 '52 1050w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:236 S '52 240w

HOOVER, HERBERT CLARK. Memoirs; v3, The great depression, 1929-1941. 503p $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Statesmen—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (51-13301)

The third volume of ex-president Hoover's memoirs covers the years 1929 to 1941. In it he reviews the great depression era and gives his defense of his administration in Washington. Index.

Reviewed by Charles Rolo
— Atlantic 190:92 O '52 800w
Booklist 49:47 O 1 '52

"Dispassionate, unvarnished account of the great depression and the coming of the New Deal." A. S. Henning
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 7 '52 550w

"Mr. Hoover's latest volume is not a balanced survey of a critical period, that comes with the detachment of 20 years' perspective. The major part of it contains all the self-justifications and resentments of the party campaigner. But it does show Mr. Hoover, as he is now generally recognized to be, a great administrator and technical genius, who understood the depression in its immediate manifestations, and had effective remedies to offer, but who lacked the political know-how and adjustable qualities to lead that most complex of all political entities, the great American democracy." Henry Sowerby

+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 4 '52 1000w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 77:1811 O 15 '52 110w

Reviewed by V. O. Key
New Repub 127:25 O 6 '52 1350w

Reviewed by L. L. Engelking
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 14 '52 1100w

"This is the third volume of a fascinating series of memoirs. Mr. Hoover deserves well of his fellow-countrymen; not only for his long and distinguished public service, but because he is such an intelligent spokesman for a position which no longer has leadership to offer us. Mr. Hoover belongs to history and not to contemporary public affairs; nevertheless, this should not minimize his very real significance." L. M. Hacker

+ N Y Times p3 S 28 '52 2150w
New Yorker 28:118 S 6 '52 160w

"Mr. Hoover has turned his pen to a penetrating analysis of the causes of the great depression, that economic catastrophe that nearly overwhelmed the Western world in 1929 and the years immediately after. Unthinking or malicious people have often dubbed this 'Hoover's depression,' one of the basest slanders of this century. The mountain of facts presented in this book should do much to sound the death knell of this calumny." W. H. Baker

HOOVER, H. C.—Continued

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 14 '52 800w

"Interesting; but it is not good history. It contains many doubtful statements. It is badly balanced, and is at many points as grossly unfair to the opposition as the smear-Hoover books were to Hoover. One need not be a Roosevelt admirer to reach this conclusion. There are many first-rate books that have an anti-Roosevelt interpretation; and there are defenses of the Hoover Administration that are more effective than this one." F. H. Harrington

— + Sat R 35:14 S 27 '52 700w

"In what is obviously intended to be a defense of his administration, and the doctrines of the Republican party, Mr. Hoover denies every criticism ever made of his White House policies, and credits himself with a number of constructive steps. To what extent he is right and his detractors wrong apparently must wait for later judges, but at least the heated and often angry Hoover defense makes the third volume of his memoirs rather more lively than were the first two." R. F. H.

Springfield Republican p9D S 28 '52 240w

Time 60:114 S 8 '52 1050w

Reviewed by Carl Bridenbaugh
Yale R n s 42:283 winter '53 280w

HOPKINS, LYMAN, pseud. Real book about baseball; il. by Bill McHale. 190p $1.25 Garden City bks.

796.357 Baseball 51-12215

"Collection of baseball stories and lore, plus some hints about playing the game. Will appeal to those just becoming interested in the game." Library J

Booklist 48:70 O 15 '51

Kirkus 19:321 J1 1 '51 100w

"Recommended for children's rooms for younger boys." M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:2123 D 15 '51 20w

Wis Lib Bul 48:45 Ja '52

HOPKINS, MARY ALDEN (MRS E. H. JESUP). Dr Johnson's Lichfield. 258p il $4 Hastings house

B or 92 Johnson, Samuel. Lichfield, England 52-11805

An account of Lichfield, England, as it was in Dr Johnson's day. Includes chapters on some well-known Lichfield personalities of the time: Anna Seward; Richard Edgeworth, father of Maria Edgeworth; Dr Erasmus Darwin; and Thomas Day, among others. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:123 D 1 '52

"A pleasant book . . . for devotees of Boswell and Johnson, and of the England of their period."

+ Kirkus 20:543 Ag 15 '52 150w

"It may be hard to believe that Dr. Samuel Johnson ever had a boyhood, but the facts about it are all here in this well-written study of his home town."

+ New Yorker 28:190 N 29 '52 150w

HOPKINS, VINCENT C. Dred Scott's case. (Fordham univ. press bk) 204p $4 McMullen 343 Scott, Dred 51-13327

"Primarily a legal study, this very thorough book traces in great detail the story of Sam, who was to be known as Dred Scott, of his various masters, his attempts to secure his freedom, of the judges who deliberated and handed down their decisions, and of Sam's final failure." Sat R

"This book represents a thorough combing of presumably all available records concerning the famous Dred Scott Case. It brings the story together within the compass of a single volume, thereby rendering a service to all who would locate a full statement of the history of the case without resort to volumes concerned in part with other topics. It weighs the evidence carefully and its judgments are restrained and disciplined." C. B. Swisher

+ Am Hist R 57:698 Ap '52 550w

Reviewed by Clinton Rossiter

Am Pol Sci R 46:250 Mr '52 330w

"This book is a work of very careful scholarship; the original sources are cited properly for all statements of fact, and the author has been diligent in studying a wide variety of sources—the opinions, briefs, court records, contemporary newspapers, diaries, legislative records, and various collections of papers of leading actors in this great drama. And he is careful not to push his inferences beyond the limits of his evidence. . . . Perhaps the most unsatisfactory part of this book is the uncritical way in which Mr. Hopkins explains why the Court blew up a case which could have turned on an issue of jurisdiction alone into one involving such fiercely debated questions as the constitutional scope of congressional power over the territories." David Fellman

+ Ann Am Acad 280:182 Mr '52 900w

Harvard Law R 65:1279 My '52 650w

"This little book succeeds admirably in giving a thorough discussion of the case. . . . It is a remarkably complete study." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 27 '52 100w

"Father Hopkins has gone to the sources and come up with an objective, well-written study." J. C. Cairns

+ Sat R 35:33 Ja 12 '52 230w

HOPPER, HEDDA. From under my hat. 311p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Moving pictures 52-10394

The movie, radio, and television columnist here gives a sketch of her own life.

Booklist 49:44 O 1 '52

"Her humor never deserts her. Whether she is describing the grandeurs of San Simeon or cutting some rival down to size or even narrating the telephone call which told her she was penniless, if there is anything an impish eye can see in the story, Hedda sees it and so do we. Yet this is by no means a scatter-brained book. The brain behind it is as keen as the heart is strong." C. B. De Mille

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 24 '52 900w

"I'm sure the author's lawyers have carefully fine-combed all this material and eliminated any references which were definitely libelous, which is not to say that what remains is always in good taste. But then no one supposes that good gossip is ever precisely in good taste. It is, however, in Miss Hopper's eager claws, frequently entertaining." Jean Kerr

+ Commonweal 56:614 S 26 '52 420w

Kirkus 20:396 J1 1 '52 160w

"One of the wittiest books to be written about the theatrical world in years. . . . Highly recommended." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1398 S 1 '52 30w

Reviewed by Richard Lockridge

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 14 '52 900w

"Her book, which perhaps can best be termed an amorphous autobiography, is a breezy compilation of fan magazine confidences, coy candor, amusing or pointless anecdotes and what appears to be a spectacular exhibition of total recall." A. H. Weiler

N Y Times p27 S 14 '52 290w

New Yorker 28:118 S 27 '52 140w

Reviewed by William Hogan
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 14 '52
370w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R 35:30 S 27 '52 200w
Wis Lib Bul 48:214 S '52

HORAN, JAMES DAVID. Desperate women.
336p 1l $4 Ptunam

920.7 Woman—Biography. U.S.—Biography
52-9838

"Brief account of twelve women in American history including some famous female spies and outlaws. Besides giving the story of these women, it relates many incidents of the Civil War and the building of the west." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:124 D 1 '52

"Not literature, but good entertainment."

+ Kirkus 20:620 S 15 '52 120w

Library J 77:1759 O 15 '52 30w

"Mr. Horan has written a most engaging book. Although he makes the most of his entertaining crew, none of them is glorified, and the author is quick to detect the handmade elaborations of past writers to whom a fact was something to be avoided. The volume has a fine Index, and a gallery of good photographs, several new to this writer, including a wonderful view of Calamity Jane blowing the collar off a whopping great tumbler of her favorite light beverage." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 16 '52
600w

Reviewed by Lillian De La Torre
N Y Times p10 D 21 '52 390w
New Yorker 28:181 D 13 '52 160w

HORGAN, PAUL. Devil in the desert. 63p $1.50
Longmans

52-5918

"A long short story about an old priest who meets death in the desert while on one of his dearly loved pastoral missions to isolated families in the Rio Grande country. The old man's strong faith and devotion to his work dominate the story. Appeared first in Saturday Evening Post." Booklist

Booklist 48:229 Mr 15 '52

"Remarkable for its poetically vivid re-creation of the New Mexican scene, its appealing portrait of the gallant old missionary and the almost mystical fervor of its climactic vision, this should make an ideal gift for those who delight in an exquisitely worked literary miniature."

+ Cath World 175:239 Je '52 160w

"This is the sort of simple story, uncomplicated by many characters, by subtle motivation, or by rapidity of action, which depends for its success on a perfectly sustained tone of language. This Paul Horgan has accomplished, as he has in other books not half as widely read as they should be." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 6 '52
210w

Reviewed by J. A. Lynch
+ Commonweal 55:645 Ap 4 '52 350w

"Beautifully told and innocent of sentimentalizing which would have ruined it."

+ Kirkus 20:46 Ja 15 '52 130w

"This is a brief, tender little story. . . One way or the other it makes a provocative tale, with less of the devil than one might desire, but not too much of the goodness of Father Louis, and just the right amount of Texas in the decade following the Mexican War." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p14 Mr 23 '52 500w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springfield Republican p10D Ap 20 '52
140w

"This is a simple little document, but no reader can fail to be moved by the serenity and the logical conviction which characterize the dying priest's testimonial of his faith in the face of Evil." M. J. Butcher

+ Survey 88:230 My '52 240w

Wis Lib Bul 48:173 Jl '52

HORGAN, PAUL. One red rose for Christmas.
96p $1.75 Longmans

Christmas stories 52-9667

Story of a modern Christmas miracle which took place in an orphanage for girls, presided over by Mother Mary Seraphim.

"Tenderly told in a novelette of depth and meaning."

+ Bookmark 12:56 D '52 30w

"A charming addition to the little literature of the Christmas season." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:234 D '52 160w

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 D 14 '52
90w

Kirkus 20:474 Ag 1 '52 160w

"Recommended for Catholic collections and especially for girls of high school age." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 77:1655 O 1 '52 50w

"This little book finds Paul Horgan in the full maturity of his powers, exploiting his carefully garnered competence in narrative and the master etcher's art of spare, economical character portrayal." Francis Sweeney

+ N Y Times p49 D 7 '52 270w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 30 '52
30w

"These are simple materials and in them, as always, there is the danger that truly felt sentiment will slip over the narrow line into sentimentality. Mr. Horgan hasn't quite avoided that danger. His prose occasionally acquires too artless an appearance and a number of the scenes take on the look of staged set pieces. . . The many who enjoyed 'The Devil in the Desert' will however be able to overlook these flaws for the message Mr. Horgan has set down." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ — Sat R 35:37 D 6 '52 120w

HORNE, HOWARD. Concord bridge. 320p $3
Bobbs

52-8310

Historical novel about the beginning of the American Revolution. The scene is Boston and Concord, and among the characters, sympathetically portrayed, are General Gage; Dr Warren; a young British officer, Captain De Lancey; and the beautiful French-American spy, Eugénie de Malmédy-Armagnac.

Booklist 48:378 Jl 15 '52

"There are two virtues in this novel: [1] The warmly human feeling for character, whether English or American; [2] the apparently authentic account of the disorganized and unplanned way in which tension between occupying soldier and resentful colonist ended in the real firing of guns which killed. These are excellent qualities and make all the more regrettable the excessive romanticizing of Eugénie's almost unbelievable hard rides." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Jl 6 '52
350w

"Except for the love scenes, which read like something from a sensational thriller, 'Concord Bridge' is a work of considerable merit. One hopes Mr. Horne, who often writes like a practiced novelist in this his first book, will confine himself to men in battle in his succeeding war novels he may write." H. C. Webster

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Je 29
'52 450w

"Eugénie undoubtedly adds zest to this first novel, which at times borders on mediocrity in spite of romance, battles and marching men. Some scenes strain the reader's credulity, but on the whole Mr. Horne has written a fair and accurate picture of the beginning of the Revolution. Readers interested in this phase of our history will find here considerable enlightenment on the events leading up to the shot heard 'round the world.'" F. G. Fellowes

+ — N Y Times p16 Je 29 '52 360w

"A better-than-average historical novel." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ag 17 '52
120w

Sat R 35:37 Ag 23 '52 120w

HOROWITZ, ISRAEL ALBERT, and REINFELD, FRED. First book of chess. 126p il $2 Sterling

794.1 Chess 52-9565

Introduction to chess which explains the game in easy, step-by-step moves. Index.

Booklist 48:342 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:231 J1 '52 10w

"This is a properly insidious little book; it gives the reader just enough taste of chess fundamentals to whet his appetite for more." G. Y. Wells

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 10 '52 60w

"A clear and simple statement of the fundamentals of the game." R. O. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ag 17 '52 30w

HOSFORD, MRS DOROTHY GRANT. Thunder of the gods; il. by Claire and George Loudon. 115p $2.50 Holt

293 Legends, Norse 52-9038

A retelling of the stories of the Norse gods, for readers thru junior high school. Partial contents: The world of the gods; In the beginning; Thor gains his hammer; Thor's unlucky journey; How Odin brought the mead to Asgard; Thor's hammer is stolen; How Fenris Wolf was bound; The death of Balder; The punishment of Loki; The new day.

Booklist 49:20 S 1 '52

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates

Christian Science Monitor p5 D 24 '52 190w

"Children will pick up this book to read themselves, I think, more readily than they do Padraic Colum's Children of Odin or Abbie Farwell Brown's In the Days of Giants, but as a storyteller I want all three in my collection." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:408 D '52 90w

Kirkus 20:406 J1 15 '52 130w

"This edition of Norse myths should be a first purchase for all libraries. Line drawings by Claire and George Loudon catch and emphasize the spirit of the legends. A book to suggest for home libraries as well as public and school libraries." L. R. Markey

+ Library J 77:1520 S 15 '52 50w

"Her style is good to read aloud to ages seven to nine and the book is recommended as an introduction to the longer ones. The violence and primitive humor and simple grandeur of these old tales has always had appeal for this age." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p26 N 16 '52 160w

"Miss Hosford has a keen appreciation of the lusty good humor of the Norse stories, too, and her version of the celebrated stealing of Thor's hammer by Thrym is broad and boisterous." Eulalie Steinmetz

+ N Y Times pt2, p37 N 16 '52 120w

"Storytellers will find this book invaluable."

+ Sat R 35:51 N 15 '52 70w

Wis Lib Bul 48:219 S '52

HOSTOVSKY, EGON. Missing; a novel tr. from the Czech by Ewald Osers. 249p $3 Viking

52-8817

A story of Czechoslovakia during the months when it was coming under Communist domination. The hero is Paul Kral, a journalist, suspected by both West and East, who never appears in the flesh in the story, but whose fate makes a vital difference in the lives of a number of people.

Booklist 48:257; 265 Ap 15 '52

Reviewed by E. Fowke

Canadian Forum 32:144 S '52 50w

"This is a story in which human character is of an absolute importance, far more than any simply exciting incident. Indeed, the one most regrettable reservation this reviewer has for the book is that it did not go even more profoundly into the minds of the people involved. It is too short. We are given sudden and brilliant insights into every character who appears, but we are not allowed to probe deeply enough into the personalities to gain that final psychological richness which marks the very great book." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 18 '52 480w

Kirkus 20:95 F 1 '52 400w

Reviewed by Ruthven Todd

Nation 175:17 J1 5 '52 150w

"All in all, here is a thought-provoking if not altogether successful job, helped along, it should be noted, by Ewald Osers' most craftsmanlike translation." Frederic Morton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 11 '52 330w

"The book is full of bright flashes. . . Yet it is hard, when one has gone through the web of incidents, to avoid feeling that these are notes, suggestions for the great novel about the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia that could be written." D. A. Schmidt

N Y Times p24 Ap 27 '52 550w

"An ex-diplomat now residing in this country and working for Radio Free Europe, Mr. Hostovsky is a novelist with a growing European reputation. His present book should command much attention, both as a first-hand source of information and as fine fiction." Robert Pick

+ Sat R 35:16 Ap 26 '52 550w

Spring'd Republican p17A Je 15 '52 550w

"Missing is an unusually smooth blend of thriller and moral tale. And page after page, despite a plot that often seems unduly complex, Hostovsky gives a thoroughly convincing picture of a country drifting into Moscow's grip."

+ Time 59:102 Ap 28 '52 350w

"In attempting to be fair to all sides the author diffuses the interest over too many characters; but this bitter, hopeless book is written with great insight into the motives of human conduct, and translated into sound English."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p625 S 26 '52 200w

HOTSON, JOHN LESLIE. Shakespeare's motley. 133p il $3.50 Oxford

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Language. Armin, Robert. Shakespeare, William—Characters 52-11327

"[The author's] topic is Shakespeare's use of the fool as a character. He begins by uncovering the exact meaning of 'motley' (usually misunderstood), and ends by sketching the life of Robert Armin, the actor who played the motley's parts—of which Touchstone, Feste, and Lear's Fool are the purest examples." Sat R

Booklist 49:9 S 1 '52

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 77:1514 S 15 '52 20w

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 17 '52 120w

"Hotson studies the two types of court fool. . . Shakespeare's use on the stage of these two types of sagacious fool was almost unique, and Hotson makes it clear that, as acted by Robert Armin, they greatly differed from the rustic clown of Tarlton and the buffoons of Kempe and Cowley. This much of the book is quite worthwhile, but Hotson's biographical sketch of Armin conveys little of that actor's reputed brilliance, and his conjecture that Shakespeare was Spenser's Aetion seems to be based on a personal acquaintance with the goodness of Shakespeare's soul." Theodore Hoffman

+ New Repub 127:23 S 1 '52 350w

"Dr. Hotson has contrived both to illuminate an important aspect of Shakespeare's dramatic art and to write a fascinating page of social history."

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:782 Je 23 '52 240w

"The conclusions reached are not startlingly significant, but they serve to warn us of the need to be on our guard when we read Shakespeare lest we attribute to some familiar word a sense quite different from that which it had three hundred and fifty years ago."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 23 '52 230w

"Leslie Hotson is a scholar-detective with a rare gift of writing with clarity, suspense, and informality. His previous book on the dating of Shakespeare's sonnets had two disadvantages: the main essay was somewhat equivocal, and the other pieces were too scattered in topic. His new book is both convincing and unified, and more enjoyable as sheer reading."

+ Sat R 35:12 Ag 2 '52 220w

"The argument is based principally on the writings of Robert Armin, a fellow actor of Shakespeare, who played many of the clown parts and seems to have been fascinated by the psychology of fools. Out of this one little 'inert' fact, Mr. Hotson derives a wealth of new interpretation of those passages in the plays where the clowns play a part or where their dress is used as metaphor." Joseph Carroll

+ Theatre Arts 36:10 N '52 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p482 J1 25 '52 950w

HOUGH, STANLEY BENNETT. Frontier incident. 181p $2.75 Crowell

52-816

A bus-load of passengers, including British and American men and women, are caught in a local uprising in Persia, jailed in a loathsome cell, and subjected to an examination by a Russian officer. The outcome is freedom but how and why remains confused.

"Not as intellectualized as Arthur Koestler, this still is a thoughtful, questioning examination of conduct and conscience at a time of crisis."

+ Kirkus 20:42 Ja 15 '52 170w

"There is so much talk and so little action in 'Frontier Incident' that one loses interest in the plight of the prisoners. Mr. Hough's novel is largely a panel discussion of the Middle East muddle."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 25 '52 130w

Reviewed by Herbert Mitgang

N Y Times p32 F 17 '52 140w

"The writing here, the spare plotting and the concentration, has some of the quality of the newer French writers. Unfortunately, Mr. Hough leaves too much unexplained, is too slapdash with his conclusion. As a result his book never rises above the level of a thriller. As such it has moments of genuine excitement."

+ — Sat R 35:44 F 16 '52 100w

HOUGHTON, NORRIS. But not forgotten; the adventure of the University players. 346p il $4 Sloane

792 University players guild 52-258

A history of the five years, 1928-1932, when a group of young students and embryo actors, functioned as the University Players at Silver Beach and Falmouth in Massachusetts and in Baltimore.

Booklist 48:193 F 15 '52

Reviewed by John Beaufort

Christian Science Monitor p7 F 14 '52 700w

Kirkus 19:691 D 1 '51 140w

"Delightfully written but would have been more valuable for reference if indexed. Nonetheless recommended for paid circulation and, of course, for theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:534 Mr 15 '52 50w

Nation 175:179 Ag 30 '52 170w

"Mr. Houghton's informal history, or biography, is a very pleasant blend of gentle nostalgia and the awed recollection, from twenty years afterward, of what young people, just out of their teens, can do." Lewis Nichols

+ N Y Times p12 F 17 '52 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Mr 9 '52 220w

"Absorbing and often amusing history." Erik Barnouw

+ Sat R 35:36 My 24 '52 700w

"A challenging book for those of us in the theatre who can't help but take a gloomy view of present-day proceedings. It should be particularly welcome to those who are just starting in on their theatre careers." Richard McLaughlin

+ Theatre Arts 36:76 Mr '52 450w

HOUSEHOLD, GEOFFREY. Tales of adventurers. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 247p $3 Little

52-5869

"The thirteen stories in this volume range from the West Coast of Africa to the English Channel, with stopovers in the Middle East, the Mediterranean and Europe—on both sides of the Iron Curtain. Adventure is the key word for each, whether Mr. Household's key figure is outwitting the Gestapo in Vienna, searching for uranium in the Iranian backlands, smuggling the best cook in Europe out of Soviet-dominated Bucharest . . . or, more simply, planning the murder of a collaborator on an English moor, the sort of rough shoot at which Household characters are peculiarly adept, no matter what language they happen to be speaking at the moment." N Y Times

Booklist 48:360 J1 1 '52

Bookmark 11:235 J1 '52 10w

"Geoffrey Household's short stories are crisply told, admirably constructed, and designed to hold the reader by means of a skillful combination of violence and subtlety." Milton Crane

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Je 8 '52 320w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:235 Ap 1 '52 170w

"Skillful short stories of adventure. . . One or two of the stories are a little on the spicy side, but the values are good. Recommended especially for older teen-age boys." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1525 S 15 '52 30w

Reviewed by John Raymond

New Statesman & Nation 44:733 D 13 '52 90w

"Without exception these thirteen stories are good reading; most of them are unusually good tales of adventure." H. C. Webster

+ N Y Herald Tribune p5 Je 15 '52 350w

"Ironic humor and a hard-driving pace that never falters are the hallmarks of these tales. Mr. Household's comic touch is sure, even when the laughter hovers on the brink of tragedy—as it does in nearly all of the entries." C. V. Terry

+ N Y Times p14 Je 1 '52 500w

"Mr. Household's insight is cosmopolitan but not universal, and he is not a very good writer."

New Yorker 28:97 My 31 '52 110w

"Tales of Adventurers' reveals his superb craftsmanship for the short story. Some of them have a bizarre climax, others are the essence of danger and fear combined with a kind of gruesome humor." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R 35:19 J1 5 '52 650w

Reviewed by Marghanita Laski

+ Spec 189:712 N 21 '52 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p705 O 31 '52 80w

Wis Lib Bul 48:215 S '52

HOUSELANDER, FRANCES CARYLL. Guilt. 279p $3.75 Sheed

201 Guilt. Psychology, Religious, Psychology, Pathological 51-13263

"The sense of guilt is widespread, and foolish notions with regard to its treatment are prevalent. The author, concerned chiefly with the Catholic egoneurotic, believes that much the same treatment is indicated in the case of all neurotics, Catholics and non-Catholics alike, namely, that the patient should try to begin to learn about God 'as humbly as a newly converted native in the African jungle.'"

HOUSELANDER, F. C.—Continued
Cath World

"This is not quite the book one would expect from this author; but it is a useful, enlightening, practical book."

+ Cath World 175:80 Ap '52 90w

"The book Guilt is a good addition to the literature which reveals the spiritual pathways of Christianity, but its faint allusions to modern psychology are apt to be misunderstood by those who are really interested in modern psychology, and make more biased all those who are already unreasonably biased against it." Gregory Zilboorg

+ Commonweal 55:234 D 7 '51 650w

HOUSTON, WILLIAM VERMILLION. Principles of quantum mechanics; nonrelativistic wave mechanics with illustrative applications. (International ser. in pure and applied physics) 288p $6 McGraw

530.1 Quantum theory 51-12569

"A comparatively short introduction to quantum mechanics. . . In the first three chapters, a series of noted experiments, the results of which illustrate the inadequacies of classical mechanics, are described; the shortcomings of classical physics are further discussed, and two basic postulates of quantum mechanics—one for representing the state of a system, the other for representing change in a system—are presented. Most of the remainder of the book is devoted to applications of these postulates to physical problems and systems. The book is for graduate students of physics who have had an introductory course in mathematical physics." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"This book will be very useful to chemists as an introduction to quantum mechanics. The presentation is exceedingly clear, concise, and surprisingly free from mathematical difficulties. . . Whether any individual chemist should buy this book depends on his personal interests. If he desires chemical applications, the answer is no. If he wants a thorough mathematical treatment, the answer is also no. But if he wants elementary quantum mechanics presented in a simple, palatable form, this book has much to offer." J. O. Hirschfelder

+ Am Chem Soc J 74:2951 Je 5 '52 300w
N Y New Tech Bks 37:26 Mr '52

HOW, RUTH WINIFRED. Adventures at Friendly farm; with ill. by John Moment. 218p $2.50 Coward-McCann

52-635

A story of life on an English farm, of two boys, horses and a dog, and a mystery to be solved. For readers 9 to 11.

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Mr 9 '52 140w

Reviewed by Ruth Wales
Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '52 80w

"The author writes with the same warmth that was apparent in her earlier book [Friendly Farm], and succeeds in recreating a real feeling of the English countryside and the busy farm life that city-born Brian and Patsy have learned to love so much." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:105 Ap '52 70w

Kirkus 20:70 F 1 '52 100w

"Recommended for school and public libraries in areas where the English setting will not be a deterrent to interest." M. E. Martignon

+ Library J 77:728 Ap 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 11 '52 60w

"Interest in the story depends more upon everyday rural life and companionship with animals than upon the solution of a rather weak plot. A pleasant tale for boys and girls who like outdoor atmosphere and horses."

Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 23 '52 180w

HOWARD, ELIZABETH. Candle in the night. 223p $2.50 Morrow

52-8041

Historical novel for older girls. It is the story of Tamsen Bradford, who at eighteen goes out to visit her brother in Detroit, and is caught in the conquest of the city, it being the year 1812.

Booklist 49:36 S 15 '52

Bookmark 12:83 Ja '53

Horn Bk 28:330 O '52 90w

"A happy balance of historical fact with the private lives of the people who lived it."

+ Kirkus 20:341 Je 15 '52 110w

"Another excellent title in Elizabeth Howard's growing list of well-written period stories of America." Elizabeth Burr

+ Library J 77:1668 O 1 '52 80w

"The heroine is appealing, the historical detail well done, yet the book has not either the depth of 'North Winds Blow Free' nor the romantic appeal of 'Peddler's Girl.' However, it is well worth reading, and far better than most." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p36

N 16 '52 120w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker

N Y Times p30 S 14 '52 150w

"Excellent romance, delicately written."

+ New Yorker 28:201 D 6 '52 30w

"Though the background of Detroit in 1812 is soundly portrayed and the prose style far above average, the plot is overbalanced by too much detail in the first half and the characters are never fully developed." B. B. Thorpe

+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 16 '52 30w

"This new tale by Elizabeth Howard, who has written so many excellent stories for older girls, is a bit disappointing. For some reason the theme that gives the book its title does not emerge as she evidently intended. . . It is a well-written story, as are all those that Miss Howard writes."

+ Sat R 35:62 N 15 '52 160w

Wis Lib Bul 48:220 S '52

HOWARD, GEORGE PARKINSON. We Americans: north and south. 148p $2; pa $1.25 Friendship press

278 Protestant churches—Latin America 51-3605

"[The author] was born in Argentina, received his education there and here in about equal parts. . . In what sense, if any, are the republics south of the Rio Grande 'Catholic countries'? How did Protestantism get its start there, why is it needed, what has it done, and how do the people feel about it? What are the programs and what have been the achievements of the various countries in economic and educational progress? How do politics and religion interact in their internal affairs and in their relations with the United States? There are answers to all these large questions and to many others." Christian Century

"Only such a man as Dr. Howard—but there is no other with quite his qualifications—could write so small a book about the Latin American countries and pack into it so much essential information about their cultural and religious condition, so many illustrative and colorful details, so much sympathetic understanding of the people, and such sturdy maintenance of his democratic and Protestant point of view." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:1018 S 5 '51 290w

"This little volume converted me ardently to the necessity of Protestant missions to Americans, both South and North." G. F. Taylor

+ Churchman 165:17 S '51 170w

"It is highly to be recommended for church adult study groups, and can be read with value by clergymen and teachers who need information on a timely and increasingly important subject." K. B. Cully

+ Crozer Q 29:93 Ja '52 260w

HOWARD, JOAN, pseud. See Gordon, P.

HOWARD, JOSEPH KINSEY. Strange empire; a narrative of the Northwest [pref. by Bernard DeVoto]. 601p maps $6 Morrow

971.2 Canada—History. Northwest, Canadian. Riel, Louis David 52-9705

"For his final, most ambitious book Joseph Kinsey Howard, whose death last year was a tragic loss to Western American writing, went across the Montana border into Canada to tell a story little known to most Americans and perhaps to many Canadians too. The story is of Louis Riel and his strange, sad dream of founding a little New France in Northwestern Canada." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:25; 46 S 15 '52; O 1 '52

"Vivid and absorbing. This book describes one of the crucial struggles in the long war for the west. It is sound and significant history, written with ardor and skill." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 19 '52 470w

Kirkus 20:492 Ag 1 '52 160w

"The author has sacrificed neither fact nor detail in bringing to life events which hitherto have escaped the attention of most historians. Recommended." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:1649 O 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by J. B. Brebner

+ Nation 175:385 O 25 '52 1200w

"Even to the most general reader, 'Strange Empire' offers rewarding bypaths by the hundred, with Mr. Howard as eloquent guide." J. K. Hutchens

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 O 19 '52 800w

"A moving and brooding book. It expresses all of Joseph Kinsey Howard's compassion for the dispossessed of the earth and his contempt for those who pillaged under the mask of politics. The reader is stirred even when better judgment warns him that perhaps Mr. Howard is too idyllic, too naive, in his boundless admiration for the wilderness state which the Metis dreamed of creating." R. L. Neuberger

+ N Y Times p18 O 12 '52 750w

"Those interested in the West's history will give 'Strange Empire' a place of honor on their shelves. Historians will draw upon it for years." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 16 '52 850w

"Mr. Howard's book, published a little more than a year after his sudden death, is history reflective of his humanity, as it is reflective of his integrity, his scholarship, his depth, his informed respect for language. It will endure as a contribution to historiography, as a contribution of a kind rare with the professional historian, which Mr. Howard was not. History, whatever else it is, is never dull; the professional historian too often is." A. B. Guthrie

+ Sat R 35:16 O 18 '52 850w

Springf'd Republican p11C O 19 '52 230w

HOWARD, LEON. Herman Melville; a biography [il. by Robert Else]. 354p $5 Univ. of Calif. press

B or 92 Melville, Herman 51-62667

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"Professor Howard is a long way from getting a fish-hook in the nose of Leviathan, but he does provide a careful account of the external events in the life of the author of Moby Dick." Carlyle King

Canadian Forum 32:20 Ap '52 320w

"Howard's biography is an important contribution to the current attempt in Melville scholarship to put the man and his work in the solidest possible context of fact. As a factual reference work, written on the whole with a minimum but genuine literary competence, this biography will long be of value to the reader of Melville. No previous biography comes anywhere near it, of course, for accuracy and completeness." Richard Chase

+ Nation 174:255 Mr 15 '52 600w

Reviewed by Katherine Hoskins

New Repub 126:18 Mr 3 '52 320w

"It is not only the mass of information about Melville's numerous relatives, his friends and publishers, his excursions and journeys which makes this a very dense book. In writing about Melville's novels and poems Mr. Howard seldom indulges in leisurely criticism. What he has to say about the works is again almost entirely factual." Willard Thorp

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 27 '52 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p499 Ag 1 '52 650w

"A great many myths have gathered around the name, adventures, and vicissitudes of Herman Melville ever since he first began to write, and it is the intention of this biography to counteract a lot of them simply by telling the scrupulously factual story of Melville's life, as a human being, writer, and thinker, and to set it within the context of nineteenth-century America. Working chiefly from Jay Leyda's Melville Log, 1951, Leon Howard has succeeded in accomplishing what he aimed to do, and has written a detailed and eminently coherent book in the bargain."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:338 D '51 230w

"We must respect the motive which has led to the search for Melville 'as he existed in reality rather than in the minds or imaginations of later readers.' But we must enter the reservation that the only significant Melville we are ever likely to find will be more an image, a construct, than a factual reality. While earlier biographers made the error of treating their images as objective facts of Melville's life, the new school is in danger of reducing Melville to the simplistic terms of an external chronicle." Charles Feidelson

Yale R n s 41:299 winter '52 550w

HOWARD, LEON. Victorian knight-errant; a study of the early literary career of James Russell Lowell. 388p $5 Univ of Calif. press

B or 92 Lowell, James Russell 52-11395

"A minute examination of the influences and people that shaped Lowell's literary career. In the course of the examination Lowell's character and mind assume definite, but not altogether attractive, shape in the reader's mind. The author sums up with an intricate interpretation of the poet's motivations, presenting him as a nineteenth-century idealist who gradually accepted his limitations, and found his place by adjusting himself to a cultural environment that approved of conformity and solid success." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 49:31 S 15 '52

"Mr. Howard has made a thoro study of Lowell's battle and demonstrates well how he lost it to himself. The book may be too erudite for popular consumption, but students of literature will be grateful to the author for the light he sheds on Lowell's literary career." Walter Harding

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 19 '52 320w

Kirkus 20:434 Jl 15 '52 210w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 77:1398 S 1 '52 150w

"By exhaustive study of unpublished correspondence and of surviving notebooks, as well as of all the collected and uncollected writings, Mr. Howard has traced every step in Lowell's progress towards what the biographer calls his 'state of arrested development.' In so doing,

HOWARD, LEON—Continued

he has also produced a highly illuminating account of the economic and other hazards which beset American authorship in the generation preceding the Civil War. Some of his interpretations will certainly be challenged, but the facts on which they are based are presented in a manner beyond challenge. With such patience and such learning, it seems a pity that Mr. Howard did not have a bigger man to work on." DeLancey Ferguson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p42 D 7 '52 700w

"Describing his book on James Russell Lowell as an experiment, Leon Howard says he has used 'the life and works of a man who is not particularly fascinating to anybody's first glance' to shed a light on human nature and society. The experiment is brilliantly successful. It summons back the state of mind of our northeastern seaboard prior to the Civil War." Robert Hilleyer

+ N Y Times p16 S 28 '52 550w

"It is [Lowell's] early life, 'rich in the human elements of literature,' that Mr. Howard has followed with a steady, unfaltering light. The result is a book that not only the student and the scholar, but any reflective reader, will enjoy." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 O 19 '52 450w

HOWARD, ROBERT ERVIN. Sword of Conan; the hyborean age. 251p $2.75 Gnome press 52-9402

The adventures of Conan, a primitive giant, who roared his way thru the Hyborean age with considerable blood and thunder. For first of series see Conan the Conqueror, Book Review Digest 1951.

Kirkus 20:168 Mr 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by H. H. Holmes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 29 '52 110w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p9 Jl 6 '52 30w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

Sat R 35:44 My 24 '52 20w

HOWARD, ROBERT WEST. Real book about farms; il. by Edwin Herron. 191p $1.25 Garden City bks.

630 Farm life—Juvenile literature 52-12324

"Stone adz to helicopter farming methods are surveyed in a combination of exposition and story telling about American farmers and livestock men. Introductory material about cavemen, and farming in America, are followed by chapters on fish farms and fur ranches, teamwork, types of farms, and methods. These set the scene for the center of the book, the story of an upper New York state family of four who plant, tend, milk, reap and repair through the seasons of the year." (Kirkus) Index.

Booklist 49:93 N 1 '52

"A nice roundup (except that we wish the emphasis weren't so entirely on America and farming for produce alone)." + Kirkus 20:373 Jl 1 '52 120w

"Although based on fact, this mixing of fiction and fact weakens the book. Pen drawings, an index, and a glossary of farm terms add to the reference value. Type and format are good. Those interested in more material for farm units will welcome this. Recommended with the reservation that a factual treatment throughout would have improved the book." M. J. Meade

+ Library J 77:1822 O 15 '52 80w

"The book is a fairly serious survey, however brief, which strikes a new note, combining generalization on crops, plants, the coming of machines, with a record around the year of an American farm family. Mr. Howard has handled a difficult assignment very well." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 2 '52 70w

"Learning how men have grown in farming skills gives the city dweller—and the country boy himself—an increasing respect for the farmer's contribution to civilization. Such chapters as 'Crops Around the Country,' 'Coached by the Sun' and 'Farms Around the World' help toward a true understanding of the role farming plays in the nation and in the world." Iris Vinton

+ N Y Times p11 D 28 '52 170w

HOWARTH, DAVID ARMINE. Across to Norway [foreword by Nicholas Monsarrat] [Eng title: Shetland bus]. 286p il maps $3.75 Sloane 940.545 World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations 52-10198

Author, a British naval officer, was in command of a fleet of Norwegian fishing boats which ferried supplies for the Norwegian underground across the sea from the Shetland Islands. This book contains the modestly told record of the hardship and achievements of the heroic crews of these boats. Index.

Booklist 48:257; 318 Ap 15 '52; Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:231 Jl '52 50w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 1 '52 320w

"For many of us the stories of Beowulf and Siegfried were required reading, but here in this modern saga are tales of resourcefulness, discipline, character and heroism which match the courage of those legendary heroes and excel them by their impulsion of patriotism and brotherly love." Edith Prudden

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 17 '52 500w

Foreign Affairs 31:154 O '52 20w

"Written with humility, and the conscience to avoid irresponsible sensationalism, this 'modern saga' should find many who will want to read and own it."

+ Kirkus 20:217 Mr 15 '52 150w

"Unfortunately, what should be a tale of high and sensitive adventure, turns out to be, with a few exceptions, a dull plodding narrative." R. S. Taylor

Library J 77:890 My 15 '52 130w

"Lt. Comdr. Howarth with simplicity and understanding has told the story of one of the war's greatest small undertakings. The incident of the Arthur's voyage up Trondheimfjord to within five miles of the Trond is perhaps one of the best of the many yarns." Alfred Stanford

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Je 1 '52 800w

"'Across to Norway,' in its simple, straightforward way, is one of the best adventure stories to come out of any war." Burke Wilkinson

+ N Y Times p8 Je 8 '52 450w

New Yorker 28:97 My 31 '52 130w

Reviewed by Walter Karig

Sat R 35:16 Jl 26 '52 290w

HOWE, IRVING. William Faulkner; a critical study. 203p $3 Random house

813 Faulkner, William 52-5147

"In the first half of the book Mr. Howe deftly sets the background of Yoknapatawpha County and considers the social-moral themes of Faulkner's work, with particular emphasis on his changing attitudes in the treatment of Negro characters. The second half is devoted to a minute study of important individual novels as works of art." Library J

"An excellent job. My only complaint is that it is a bit unexciting, by which I mean that Howe, who elsewhere has shown himself an adventurous critic, has possibly erred on the side of restraint in interpreting Faulkner—and many may account this a virtue." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 190:85 Ag '52 600w

Booklist 49:9 S 1 '52

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 20 '52
450w

"Mr. Howe's book will disappoint the cultists, since his admiration for Faulkner, while genuine, is not without reservations. Moreover, in an era in which critical schools are numerous and exclusive, any critical work must risk the label of heterodoxy. Mr. Howe is in the socio-aesthetic tradition of Matthiessen and Arvin, and it is within that tradition that his work will be properly assessed. In the meantime, for the unattached and uninitiated reader, Mr. Howe's book performs a distinct service." J. W. Simons
+ Commonweal 56:440 Ag 8 '52 1200w

"Here is a book that will be received with gratitude by readers who want to make headway in Faulkner's world but feel they need some guidance in their journey. . . . This is surely no definitive work on Faulkner, it will probably evoke comment from thinkers who feel differently about the artist's work or who feel that the book requires supplementation, but it is a thoughtful book which honors (with some reservations) the artist and encourages the examination and enjoyment of his writing, thereby fulfilling Mr. Howe's concept of criticism."

+ Kirkus 20:296 My 1 '52 240w

"Faulkner's place in American literature is now secure and this critical study will serve both as a measure of achievement and as a guide to future work. It will be particularly valuable for college and reference libraries." Herbert Cahoon
+ Library J 77:1183 Jl '52 100w

"Faulkner is not a great novelist, and Mr. Howe's book is certainly not great criticism. But both are important to the program of contemporary American letters." Hayden Carruth

Nation 175:331 O 11 '52 650w

Reviewed by Isaac Rosenfeld
New Repub 127:18 Ag 4 '52 1200w

"It is a valuable and stimulating book. In its detailed examination of Faulkner's writing over a quarter of a century, regardless of one's agreement or disagreement with Mr. Howe's conclusions, it can only enrich the reader's appreciation of Faulkner's achievement." Coleman Rosenberger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 27 '52 1000w

"Mr. Howe is a shrewd critic, and he writes of Faulkner's achievements as a practicing novelist with a wary respect. He has a good many observations to make that should help readers in going through the novels. But he writes as if the height of critical good sense is to stand between those who ignorantly disparaged Faulkner and those who now find him 'a spokesman for traditional values.' His book seems to have been put together with insights gathered from every critical approach rather than from a firm idea of what makes Faulkner the original he is." Alfred Kazin
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 13 '52 1150w

"Irving Howe can do good work as in his studies of Sherwood Anderson and Walter Reuther. I have never seen him quite so prosaic as in his new interpretation of a writer who is, after all, with all his faults, an interesting and colorful artist. What is the matter? My guess is that Mr. Howe, when trying to take a middle position between the present group of Faulkner idolators and a group of almost fanatical Faulkner haters, somehow found himself nowhere." Maxwell Geismar
Sat R 35:10 Jl 12 '52 1050w

HOWE, MARK ANTONY DE WOLFE. Who lived here? a baker's dozen of historic New England houses and their occupants; photographs by Samuel Chamberlain, 139p $5 Little

920 New England—Biography. New England—Historic houses, etc. 52-5872

"Mr. Howe is New England's best-known biographer; Mr. C., its happiest photographer. They have combined talents in an illustrated tour of famous houses in Cambridge, Concord, Providence, and so on; the homes of the Adamses, the Alcotts, Emily Dickinson, Marie Mitchell, Sarah Orne Jewett, and others." Library J

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 189:72 My '52 2000w
Booklist 49:11 S 1 '52
Bookmark 11:232 Jl '52 30w

Reviewed by Anne Douglas
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ag 10 '52
380w

Christian Century 69:1032 S 10 '52 40w

"A most ingratiating blend of well-known history, less known biography, personal appreciation, architectural comment, distinguished photography, and affectionate recall. It is a blend that makes this beautiful volume quite irresistible—not to say, entirely unique." O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Jl 3 '52 600w

Kirkus 20:253 Ap 1 '52 150w

"Their handsome book should stay in print a long time, and be a staple item in public libraries. Many of Mr. Howe's stories are as familiar as some of his shrines, but he has unearthed at least one startling piece of news—that Louisa Alcott once met Oscar Wilde in New York." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1195 Jl '52 140w

Reviewed by Richardson Wright
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Jl 6 '52 750w

"It is a curious fact that in America, in a section actively struggling with the challenges of the economy and of the intellect, these serene places stand, as remote as statues of Egyptian kings, proclaiming a grandeur that does not tarnish. By letting that majesty quietly display itself, Mr. Chamberlain and Mr. Howe have created a delightful book." Perry Miller

+ N Y Times p9 Je 8 '52 700w

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews
Sat R 35:19 Jl 12 '52 130w

Springf'd Republican p10D Je 22 '52 160w

HOWES, CHARLES C. This place called Kansas [developed from the notes, writings, and papers left by Cecil Howes]. 236p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

978.1 Kansas 52-3380

"There's more to Kansas than wheat, sunflowers, and cyclones: there are its people, who, from pioneering days, have had a fighting spirit, a love of individualism, a stubbornness in facing odds, and the ingenuity to provide for themselves from what they had. [This Place Called Kansas] is [the story] of the men and events that made it great. . . . The book was begun by the late Cecil Howes, who, for 50 years, was statehouse reporter at Topeka for the Kansas City Star. It was completed by his son, Charles." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"An amusing, informative story. . . . The story should appeal not only to all with a Kansas background but to those who relish a fresh, sparkling bit of Americana." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 21 '52 120w

"The style of the book is functional and pedestrian while the text itself contains more than its share of errors, not usually expected in a volume from a university press. Even the spelling of Carry Nation's first name is not consistent." W. B. Bracke

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 7 '52 550w

"No one book can tell the whole story, but Mr. Howes has made a good beginning." Hal Borland

N Y Times p7 D 28 '52 400w

"It's a good book, a 'must' for any reader interested in Americana. It's a fascinating book for Kansans." K. S. Davis

+ Sat R 35:33 N 1 '52 450w

HOWLAND, CHESTER SCOTT. Thar she blows! 304p il $3.50 Funk, W.

639.28 Whaling

51-8491

"There is always something new to be said about the glorious days of the New England whalers. Son of a whaling captain, Chester Howland has examined logbooks and musty records and listened to the yarns of old-timers who chased the critters over the whaling grounds. He offers a variety of lively fare—grim battles with wounded monsters, narrow shaves, boats smashed to splinters, tragic death and mutiny on the high seas." N Y Times

Booklist 48:155 Ja 1 '52

"Well illustrated with reproductions of old prints and photographs of pages from ships' logs, and should prove to be a valuable bit of Americana. If you like true adventure, mostly on the lurid side, 'Thar She Blows!' can be recommended for shuddery satisfaction." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 16 '51 150w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 27 '52 180w

Reviewed by W. B. Hayward

N Y Times p16 Ja 13 '52 230w

"Everyone interested in the sea will want this volume. Format and illustrations supplement the theme of the text very well and the writing is an easy-going, rapid style." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 10 '52 200w

HUBBARD, FREEMAN HENRY. Train that never came back; and other railroad stories; il. by Kurt Wiese. (Whittlesey House publication) 127p $2.25 McGraw

52-9453

"Some true and thrilling incidents in American railroad history, including the heroic tales of Kate Shelley and Casey Jones, the story of the real John Henry, and the account of the race between the Denver and Rio Grande and the Santa Fe for the possession of the Royal Gorge in Colorado." Library J

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

Kirkus 20:454 Ag 1 '52 100w

"Particularly useful for retarded readers. Good black-and-white illustrations by Kurt Wiese. Fourth grade up." O. R. Way

+ Library J 77:1908 N 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p4 N 16 '52 20w

Sat R 35:58 N 15 '52 30w

HUBBARD, MARGARET ANN. Thunderhead mountain. 204p $2.75 Macmillan

52-12583

"From the exciting opening, when Cloudy Tawache saves Kip from the wrath of a stallion, the story has action plus realism. The great mountain near the ranch, on which the sculptor (a true portrait) is working, dominates the scene and the plot. It is as much a character story, of the shift in feeling and friendship between an Indian and a white boy, as a horse story." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 N 16 '52 110w

"Fine regional fiction."

+ Kirkus 20:455 Ag 1 '52 130w

"Good regional fiction, accurate, interesting background, and excellent character development." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 77:2186 D 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p16 N 16 '52 70w

"Here is a regional book which is so contemporary and so moving that it should be translated into a wide variety of foreign languages." L. R. Davis

+ N Y Times p48 N 30 '52 130w

"It is an unusual story and one well worth reading."

+ Sat R 35:46 O 11 '52 60w

HUBBEN, WILLIAM. Four prophets of our destiny; Kierkegaard, Dostoevsky, Nietzsche, Kafka. 170p $2.75 Macmillan

190 Kierkegaard, Søren Aabye. Dostoevskii, Fedor Mikhailovich. Nietzsche, Friedrich Wilhelm. Kafka, Franz 52-970

"An arresting interpretation and application of philosophies of Kierkegaard, Dostoevsky, Nietzsche, and Kafka. . . Outsiders in the society that produced them, the author believes that they stood outside the accepted categories of literature in that they united the functions of psychologist, philosopher, poet, sociologist, and critic in the diagnosis of Europe's spiritual disintegration—they were instrumental in speeding up the actual processes of destruction they foresaw." Library J

"Very readable volume. . . Hubben's is a competent, well written and stimulating book, and a bibliography is included for continued study of the interests it introduces." E. L. Snodgrass

+ Christian Century 69:779 J1 2 '52 240w

"This timely book contains a brief but penetrating study of the message for their time and ours of Kierkegaard, Dostoevsky, Nietzsche and Kafka. . . None of these four can be ignored by present day thinkers, and as this volume presents their views in a not too technical exposition it deserves a wide reading."

+ Kirkus 20:38 Ja 15 '52 190w

Reviewed by O. G. Lawson

Library J 77:435 Mr 1 '52 130w

"This small book has a depth of insight and a comprehensiveness of treatment considerably beyond what its modesty of tone and size indicates." William Barrett

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 31 '52 600w

HUBLER, EDWARD. Sense of Shakespeare's sonnets. 169p $3 Princeton univ. press

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Sonnets

52-5845

"[The author's] purpose is to find just what the sonnets mean, and through the meaning to discover the mind and attitudes of their author. In so doing he considers not only the sonnets but a wide range of Shakespeare's work. The portrait which emerges is convincing; he reveals a Shakespeare more interested in substance than in form, in meaning than in poetics." Sat R

Christian Century 68:804 J1 9 '52 180w

"After a prolonged dose of contemporary Shakespearean criticism, the quiet wisdom of this book is refreshing. It should be added to the short list of books about Shakespeare the Man." G. B. Harrison

+ Sat R 35:29 Je 14 '52 200w

HUBLER, RICHARD GIBSON. The chase. 250p $3 Coward-McCann

52-8021

Foreign and American spies, a mysterious scientist, an innocent girl-reporter, figure in this tale of murder and intrigue, laid in the mountainous wilderness near the coast of Southern California.

Reviewed by E. Fowke

Canadian Forum 32:144 S '52 70w

Kirkus 20:98 F 1 '52 80w

"As preposterous a book as I've come on in years. . . It's just possible that it was all designed as a comic book and slipped into print by mistake. Unsuitable for adult reading." James Sandoe

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 20 '52 140w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p25 Ap 13 '52 110w

"There are a great many picturesque characters mixed up in all this—some good and some very bad indeed—but the plot is the primary consideration, and of its kind, in spite of a really outrageous surprise at the end, it is a superior specimen."

+ — New Yorker 28:147 Ap 19 '52 180w

"The plot rises to spectacular heights of idiosyncrasy, and only an experienced reader of freshman themes could credit the sheer awfulness of the writing." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 13 '52 100w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:44 My 10 '52 20w

"'The Chase' is aptly named. Fanciers of crime fiction will find it difficult to set aside the volume until the unravelling of an action-packed plot is completed." B. F. K.

+ Springfield Republican p10D Ap 20 '52 110w

HUCKEL, WALTER. Structural chemistry of inorganic compounds; tr. by L. H. Long. v2 438p il $13.50 Elsevier

546 Chemistry, Inorganic (51-3775)

"Second volume of Dr. Huckel's herculean effort to systematize inorganic chemistry. It comprises such topics as volatility, crystal chemistry, silicates, metals and alloys, chemical reaction in inorganic chemistry, and lines of research in chemical science." Chem Eng

"Many of the discussions are rather lengthy and repetitive. The translation is at times too close to the German phrases and idioms. The author mentions with regret the fact that the book was written during the war and that a certain amount of the literature outside Germany was not available to him. This situation will tend to make the book incomplete and seems unfair to the authors whose work was thereby neglected. However the book does contain a wealth of material and the chemist who already has a good foundation of the modern ideas of chemical binding will leaf through it with some interest. Certain historical sections concerning the development of the theories and ideas of inorganic chemistry add a welcome feature to the book." George Glockler

+ — Am Chem Soc J 74:5554 N 5 '52 500w

"A tremendous amount of information has been gathered together and organized by the author. The philosophical treatment with respect to the development of theoretical concepts makes both volumes of interest to the historian of science." L. F. Audrieth

+ Chem & Eng N 30:4192 O 6 '52 1150w

"There is a wealth of information contained in the present book but it will take patience and skill on the reader's part to find it. Dr. Long has done a nice job in translating the German manuscript. Yet there are some minor shortcomings that could have been eradicated. For example, ions are shown with + and — notation in one portion of the book, and with the European . and , style in another. This can hardly be considered 'systematic.'" F. C. Nachod

+ — Chem Eng 59:412 Jl '52 190w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:36 My '52

HUGHES, MRS DOROTHY BELLE (FLANAGAN). Davidian report; a novel of suspense. 241p $3 Duell; Little

52-6789

A novel of suspense in which the FBI, the Communists, and others race each other for the mysterious Davidian report. The scene is Los Angeles.

Booklist 49:15 S 1 '52

Kirkus 20:308 My 15 '52 80w

"Practically any tale to which Dorothy Hughes has set her hand has, by my records, been lively coursing. This seems to be one of the best in the artful tentativeness of its observation of some pretty sinister doings in and about Hollywood." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 3 '52 190w

"My memory has to grope back almost three years to Hildegard Teilhet's 'The Rim of Terror' to recall as effective and admirable an American spy story." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p18 Ag 17 '52 50w

"Wonderful suspense here, in the tight understated technique that lends reality; not as fantastic as other Hughes stories, but quite as expert. B plus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 3 '52 40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:44 Ag 9 '52 20w

HUGHES, G. BERNARD, and HUGHES, THERLE. Three centuries of English domestic silver, 1500-1820. 248p il $6 Funk, W.

739.2 Silverware [53-107]

"The Hughes take three main factors into account. First, the great demand for domestic silver in English homes from 1500 to 1830; second, the manner in which the craftsmen of these centuries interpreted current fashions, and third, technical developments. Their piece on hallmarks, fully illustrated, will be helpful to all collectors of the silver of this period." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by Russell MacFall

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 O 12 '52 40w

"Not only silver collectors, but also those intrigued by words and customs of earlier days will be pleased with this book." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 77:1903 N 1 '52 30w

"Valuable book." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 16 '52 370w

"Recently three or four popular handbooks on antique silver have been published, and at first glance Mr. and Mrs. Hughes's book may seem redundant. . . A closer study of the book, however, reveals a good deal of historical documentation which is not generally found in such handbooks. Mr. and Mrs. Hughes are social historians of art." John Hadfield

+ Spec 189:482 O 10 '52 450w

HUGHES, GLENN. History of the American theatre, 1700-1950. 562p il $5 French

792 Theater—U.S. 51-7975

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The greater part of the book forms a handy condensation of Odell's monumental but unwieldy Annals of the New York Stage. . . The popular plays of any period, the history of theaters, the biographies, major roles, and ventures of the more important stars and managers are made readily available. Careful attention is paid to the financial problems of theaters, actors, authors, and managers. The deficiencies of the book are those of omission and scope. The failure to describe production techniques is most serious. . . A frothy style and cute section headings slant the book for popular consumption but detract from the impressiveness of Mr. Hughes's research. A History of the American Theatre has long been needed but this account by no means preempts its subject." Theodore Hoffman

+ — Am Hist R 57:994 Jl '52 550w

Bookmark 11:105 F '52 30w

"In attempting to compose a short history that would be both readable and definitive, Dr. Hughes has not really succeeded in doing either. The book, though not annotated, smacks of long hours in the library, and for the most part is a dreary chronology of theatrical productions. Not until the end of this book does Dr. Hughes allow himself to take an editorial point of view. Then he demonstrates that when he has something of his own to say about the ills of our contemporary theatre he can say it incisively." H. H.

+ — Sat R 35:29 Mr 22 '52 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p107 F 8 '52 100w

"The book offers no general discussion of the drama itself, nor of production methods and styles or the relation of the theater to the culture sustaining it. Nevertheless, so many facts are included, so many personalities drawn, and so many plays listed that the volume is a veritable encyclopedia of information. And enough of the vitality and variety of theater performances slips in brief comments and quotations to make good reading for any lover of the theater."

HUGHES, GLENN—Continued

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:26 Mr '52 270w

HUGHES, HENRY STUART. Oswald Spengler; a critical estimate. (Twentieth century lib) 176p $2 Scribner

193 Spengler, Oswald 52-7521

"Though small this book contains almost everything that the general reader needs to know about Spengler and his famous book: personal biography, a critical analysis of the 'Decline,' its relation to other philosophies of history, the controversy aroused by its views, and an evaluation of Spengler's political opinions." Sat R

Booklist 48:266 Ap 15 '52

"Altogether this is a highly competent piece of work, and it can be recommended most strongly to all readers who want to find out a little more about Spengler and about his relationship to twentieth-century thought and feeling." F. H. Underhill

+ Canadian Forum 32:116 Ag '52 350w

Reviewed by T. F. Lindley

J Philos 49:619 S 11 '52 900w

Kirkus 20:27 Ja 1 '52 180w

"The purpose of the Twentieth Century Library is to give the intelligent layman a basic understanding of those thinkers of the last hundred years who have most influenced the intellectual currents of our time. The present volume on Oswald Spengler fulfils this purpose exceedingly well." Hans Kohn

+ Nation 174:303 Mr 29 '52 1000w

"This compact little book admirably redeems the promise of its title. With unfailing intellectual urbanity, with clarity, with learning gracefully modulated, Mr. Hughes . . . accomplishes what he set out to do; to present." Leo Gershow

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 29 '52 600w

"Mr. Hughes has a flair for the salient fact brilliant nor particularly well written. It too often falls into a pedestrian jog-trot. He gives little sense of Spengler's personality and not even much information about his life. . . For all this, the book is fundamentally sound. Mr. Hughes is judicious and fair-minded, virtues not common among writers on Spengler, pro or con. . . He is at best in defining the special, and great quality of Spengler's thought and in dealing with the 'Spengler controversy.'" Dwight MacDonald

+ N Y Times p15 Mr 9 '52 700w

New Yorker 28:107 Je 21 '52 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 11 '52 130w

"Mr. Hughes has a flair for the salient fact and for the significant idea, a gift highly essential to an historian of ideas. Hence his little book is a triumph of condensation, being both informative and readable. . . In these days of revived interest in the philosophy of world history Mr. Hughes's book is to be recommended as a judicious appraisal of 'The Decline of the West' to those who have previously read it—and to those who have not." J. S. Schapiro

+ Sat R 35:25 Mr 8 '52 850w

"Mr. Hughes is refreshingly pithy and pungent. He tells us the little that needs to be known about Spengler's uneventful life, dates and labels his minor works, and notes that, in spite of official Nazi discouragement of his writings, he enjoyed a certain return of popularity in Germany in the Second World War. . . Oswald Spengler and his work are important, and may well survive, not because the view which they uphold will win lasting acceptance, but because they are an outstanding literary expression—one of the first as well as the most powerful—of the mood which settled down on western Europe after the calamity of 1914."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p637 O 3 '52 3400w

"This is a very readable, clear, and scholarly analysis of the enigmatic personality and theories of the German dogmatist who gave rise to a most interesting historical controversy."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:160 Je '52 240w

HUGHES, JACK SMITH. See Smith-Hughes, J.

HUGHES, LANGSTON. First book of Negroes; pictures by Ursula Koering. 69p $1.75 Watts, F.

301.45 [325.26] Negroes—Juvenile literature 52-13852

"Langston Hughes, the famous Negro poet, has written an introductory account of the Negro people which describes their life and culture in Africa as well as on this continent. It is told in semi-fictional form, chiefly through the experiences of Terry a little Negro boy who lives in New York." N Y Times

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:57 D '52

Christian Science Monitor p13 N 22 '52 50w

Commonweal 57:176 N 21 '52 20w

Kirkus 20:659 O 1 '52 180w

"Mr. Hughes has concentrated a vast subject into sixty-nine pages of well-chosen topics, and he has done an excellent job." Augusta Baker

+ Library J 77:2076 D 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p32 N 16 '52 50w

"The space given to explaining the regional differences in the treatment of the Negro seems a little out of proportion. The book does, however, serve to point up the outstanding contributions which Negroes have made to American life." C. G.

N Y Times pt 2, p32 N 16 '52 120w

HUGHES, LANGSTON. Laughing to keep from crying. 206p $2.75 Holt

52-7952

"These short prose pieces concern the Negro, and other minority groups in their relationships among themselves and among the dominant whites." Library J

Booklist 48:247 Ap 1 '52

"Langston Hughes' book of 24 short stories, 'Laughing to Keep From Crying,' shows the effects and some of the slowly maturing fruit of the freedom that has existed for the Negro for nearly a century. The range of the stories is as varied as their lengths, and the different subjects are handled well by one who has in equal proportions a writer's skill and a poet's penetration." Elizabeth Yates

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 My 29 '52 400w

Kirkus 20:9 Ja 1 '52 200w

"Generally in a humorous vein the emotion underneath rings with bitterness. As a whole, the work is of uneven quality though some individual pieces will pierce the toughest hide with compassion. . . Recommended with reservations." M. S. Byam

Library J 77:361 F 15 '52 90w

Nation 174:408 Ap 26 '52 50w

Reviewed by Stanley Cooperman

New Repub 126:21 My 5 '52 290w

"Too often, reading a collection of short stories is like eating too many hors d'oeuvres—one's palate is satiated before one's hunger is appeased. The nineteen stories and five vignettes in 'Laughing to Keep From Crying,' however, satisfy hunger for mental stimulation and emotional involvement and do not impair the sense of taste; one turns the page between the end of one tale and the beginning of another with impatient curiosity."

W. T. Hedden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 30 '52 550w

"Some of the shorter vignettes come alive with a sudden flash of imagery, or the poet's fine ear for the spoken word and the patterns of sound. Though less than two pages long, 'Rouge High,' the bitterly fatalistic story of two Harlem prostitutes, seems to hang in the air long afterward, like a song you want to forget but cannot. Other stories are less successful." Bucklin Moon

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 23 '52 500w

"Mr. Hughes writes easily and chattily, but not to very much effect, about the visit of some white Iowans to Harlem, the viewing of a Negro revival meeting by some white people, the action of a scholarship committee against a Negro schoolgirl, and other such matters and incidents."

New Yorker 28:133 Mr 22 '52 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 13 '52 80w

"Langston Hughes has practised the craft of the short story no more than he has practised the forms of poetry. His is a spontaneous art which stands or falls by the sureness of his intuition, his mother wit. His stories, like his poems, are for readers who will judge them with their hearts as well as their heads. By that standard he has always measured well. He still does." Arna Bontemps

+ Sat R 35:17 Ap 6 '52 500w

HUGHES, MARGARET MARY, ed. People in your life; with a foreword by Isabel Leighton. 278p $3.50 Knopf

150.13 Psychology, Applied 51-11093

"A compilation of outstanding essays on human relationships by a group of 10 leading authorities, prepared under the auspices of Town Hall, New York. Covering a full cycle of personal experiences such as marriage, parenthood, friendship, religion, civic affairs, employment and tolerance, this volume serves to make the reader aware of his psychological shortcomings in normal, everyday affairs." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 48:178 F 1 '52

"Informative and constructive," J. M. Scherr
+ Library J 76:1930 N 15 '51 150w

"This is not a handbook to easy living, nor is it intended to be. But it does accomplish one important thing, even though none of the contributors pretends to exhaust his or her subject in a single chapter. As the editor puts it, 'This book may not eliminate mental road-blocks, but it gives ample evidence of the existence of detours that are passable.' To alter the metaphor, here is a volume which will put into the hands of one who needs them, the tools with which he may attack his particular problem. That it does this, and well, is the best possible recommendation." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 D 13 '51 750w

"The problems involved are approached through psychiatry watered down to the layman's understanding. Particularly revealing are the questions and answers at the end of each chapter which serve to bind together the subject matter and clarify the necessarily general terms of the particular essay." U. K. Alpert

+ Springf'd Republican p6D D 30 '51 120w

HUGHES, PENNETHORNE. Witchcraft. 220p il $4.50 Longmans

133.4 Witchcraft

A British historian examines the whole subject of witchcraft, paying more or less attention to its origins in memories of prehistoric religions and customs, its relations to ancient religions of the Middle East, its recurrence during the middle ages, and the evidence of it still existing in the West Indies and among primitive peoples elsewhere. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:3 S 1 '52

Reviewed by John Astley-Cock

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 S 14 '52 50w

"Mr. Hughes has written what I take to be the best and most comprehensive survey of the subject which has so far appeared. A professional historian, he has read widely and intelligently, and his treatment is both scholarly and humane." Jocelyn Brooke

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:80 J1 19 '52 700w

"The association of witchcraft with almost any type of heresy and with Mr. Hughes' irrepressible 'palaeolithic throw-back' is not particularly convincing, and the whole book is a singular mélange of real scholarship with entirely gratuitous fancies and rickety parallels. But there is much in Mr. Hughes' book, more especially in his account of the practice, history and apparatus of witchcraft in the Middle Ages and later, that is of great interest, and in general well presented." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 189:136 J1 25 '52 550w

"For the student the value of the work would have been greatly increased had there been more notes. . . . There are also signs here and there of careless proof-reading. . . . Much of the book is written in an ironic style, and this occasionally (though not very often) degenerates into something perilously near the facetious; but, apart from these minor blemishes, it is an interesting and thought-provoking study."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p454 J1 11 '52 300w

HULBURD, DAVID. H is for heroin [a teen-age narcotic tells her story]. 122p $1.75 Doubleday

177 [178.8] Drug habit 52-7121

"An expansion of a recent magazine article that was designed primarily to jolt the parents of adolescents into an awareness of yet another of the problems that seem to beset them from all sides these days. In a succession of more or less verbatim chronicles, Mr. Hulburd reports on the bewildered mother of a young narcotics addict he calls Amy, on the girl herself, and on her kindly but singularly obtuse father." New Yorker

Booklist 48:350 J1 1 '52

"A clean, sharp reporting job."

+ Kirkus 20:250 Ap 1 '52 190w

"Recommended," J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 77:890 My 15 '52 110w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 29 '52 260w

Reviewed by Lucy Freeman

N Y Times p34 N 30 '52 340w

"A depressing but absorbing piece of work, which might well have been rounded out by comments, or at least conjectures, from some of the experts entrusted with the job of getting at the cause of this tragedy."

+ New Yorker 28:141 My 24 '52 200w

"This is a tragic and shocking tale. Mr. Hulburd invents nothing; he doesn't need to. Told by Amy and her mother in interwoven chapters, it is a terrifyingly simple story; the mother with her frank bewilderment at the way things have turned out, Amy with her underworld slang that is her crowd's substitute for English—together they produce a narrative that carries utter conviction." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p15 My 22 '52 480w

"This is a sixty-minute book that does a startling effective job of infusing life into those dry, repetitious headlines dealing with teen-age narcotics." Bernard Kalb

+ Sat R 35:40 Je 21 '52 400w

Time 59:50 Je 9 '52 550w

HULL, HELEN (SMITH). Wild flowers for your garden; drawings by Alexander Seidel; photography by Roche. 280p $4.95 Barrows
635.9 Gardening Agr52-446

A book on growing wild flowers in home gardens. Suggestions are given for gardens on hillsides, among rocks, beside brooks, in fields and woodlands. Index.

Booklist 48:333 Je 15 '52

Kirkus 20:338 Je 1 '52 70w

"A pleasant and well illustrated book that contains much useful information despite its tendency to over-simplify a type of gardening which, if the implied results are to be achieved, is far from an easy undertaking. One cannot help wondering how many gardeners will succeed in transplanting club-mosses from the woods by following the author's suggestions." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Je 22 '52 300w

Reviewed by C. H. Woodward
Sat R 35:36 Ag 2 '52 20w

HULL, ISAAC HARVEY. Built of men: the story of Indiana cooperatives; foreword by Harry J. Reed. 212p il $3 Harper

334.6 Agriculture, Cooperative 52-8477

"Claimed to be the first to be devoted to an intensive study of co-operative organization in a single state, the book describes the objectives, failures and mistakes, and the requirements for the future success of a co-operative movement embracing almost the total rural population of Indiana." School & Society

"While the story told about co-operation in Indiana is interesting, and doubtless on the whole historically correct, there are some explicit points and other obvious inferences that suggest a strongly favorable bias on the part of the author." R. S. Vaile

+ Ann Am Acad 234:191 N '52 800w

School & Society 76:63 J1 26 '52 30w

"Teachers can use it to advantage and farm organization leaders will find it helpful." S. M. Neal

+ Springf'd Republican p26A S 21 '52 150w

HUMPHREY, RICHARD DALE. Georges Sorel, prophet without honor; a study in anti-intellectualism. 246p $4 Harvard univ. press

301 Sorel, Georges 51-11337

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Reviewed by Helmut Schoeck
Am Soc R 17:120 F '52 250w

"The author of this monograph makes a convincing case that Sorel should not be judged on one work alone but on his thought as it developed in innumerable books and articles over thirty years. . . This monograph is at its best when the author is synthesizing and expounding Sorel's criticism of Marx, William James, and Bergson or outlining his views on the role of the lawyers in the French Revolution, Socrates' subversion of Athenian greatness, etc. As a work of exposition it is first rate—Humphrey does a better job of presenting the essential Sorel than ever did the master himself. In fact, Sorel the tireless critic of life and letters and friend to Croce and Halévy emerges as a not unattractive character. As a work of criticism, however, the monograph carries little weight." Donald Dewey

+ J Pol Econ 60:83 F '52 500w

"Mr. Humphrey, like the cobbler, sticks to his last and does not raise the wider issues implicit in Sorel's writings: but his book is able, readable, and full of interest." Noel Annan

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 8 '52 750w

"Mr. Humphrey's book, the first full-length study of Sorel to appear in English, forms an admirable introduction to the ideas of the man whom Jaurès called 'the metaphysician of syndicalism.'" + New Statesman & Nation 43:194 F 16 '52 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p160 F 29 '52 1100w

HUND, AUGUST. Short-wave radiation phenomena. 2v $20 McGraw

621.3841 Radio waves 51-12619

"A massive store of information on short-wave radiation is contained in these encyclopedic volumes. Corroboration may be found in a few of the external statistics: 1,382 pages, 394 figures, something more than 1,000 numbered equations, ninety-seven tables, many of an extensive nature, fourteen quite solid pages of references, and a monumental seventy-nine pages of name and subject indexes." U S Quarterly Bk R

"A sound grasp of calculus is required in most parts. Its bulk may scare off the average radio amateur, but there is much in it for the advanced amateur as well as for the graduate communications engineer. It will be used chiefly for self-instruction by those persons who are able to mine a rich work by themselves." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:904 My 15 '52 60w

"Aside from an occasional confusing quality in the grammar, the quality of the work reflects the author's many years as researcher, teacher, and consultant. A very useful feature is the inclusion of appropriate units with every equation not consisting of pure numerics."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:215 Je '52 230w

HUNG, WILLIAM. Tu Fu, China's greatest poet. 300p $5 Harvard univ. press

895.11 Tu Fu, Chinese poetry—Translations into English 52-5034

"This is a unique study of the life and work of Tu Fu, who lived in the eighth century, a period which covered one of the most brilliant moments in Chinese history as well as some of the most disastrous." (N Y Times) Includes translations of 374 poems, chosen to illustrate Tu Fu's life and times. Index.

"The descriptions of court and rural life in T'ang times are wonderfully vivid. A mass of historical background has been distilled, as well as much information about the many editions, commentaries, translations of the poet's work and biographical notes." Mai-mai Sze

+ N Y Times p16 Je 8 '52 400w

"Professor Hung's book is in some ways an advance over its predecessors. In historical and bibliographical knowledge, he has made up for lacks therein of previous writers, as should be expected of a great bibliophile and specialist in documentary literature." S. H. C.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ag 24 '52 500w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:248 S '52 210w

HUNSAKER, JEROME CLARKE. Aeronautics at the mid-century. 116p il $3 Yale univ. press

629.109 [629.1309] Aeronautics 52-9260

Based on the Terry lectures delivered at Yale in 1951. "An aeronautical engineer here gives his views on the past, present, and future of aviation and its impact on our civilization. He outlines the short but technologically vast history of aeronautics. . . He indicates some of the effects that the increasing range and utility of planes will have on trade, travel, culture, and politics." (Publisher's note) No index.

Booklist 49:99 N 15 '52

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p32 N 30 '52 600w

HUNT, GEORGE PINNEY. Story of the U.S. marines; il. by Charles J. Mazoujian. (Landmark bks) 182p $1.50 Random house
359.96 U.S. Marine corps—Juvenile literature 51-14223

An account of the U.S. Marine Corps from its founding in Revolutionary days to the Korean war. For older boys. Index.

Booklist 48:161 Ja 1 '52

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 11 '51
100w

"A stirring record in which individual bravery and bulldog determination are almost commonplace, this is thrilling, sturdy fare for boys and useful as supplementary history reading."

+ Kirkus 19:532 S 15 '51 200w

"The author skims the surface of marine action, picking out a few outstanding men and incidents in each period of U.S. history. It is through these examples that the history of the corps is developed. Book would appeal to boys in grades 6-9." C. J. Roth

Library J 77:67 Ja 1 '52 70w

"It is highly recommended for it brings our true American hero stories up to date." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 N 11 '51
70w

"Because of its broad scope this volume lacks the unity and cohesiveness of others in the series." R. A. Brown

N Y Times p36 N 11 '51 80w

"It is a splendid book. Any American boy should delight in it. If he keeps it for reference, he will appreciate its index." M. P. Allen

+ Sat R 35:53 F 16 '52 100w

Wis Lib Bul 48:44 Ja '52

HUNT, MABEL LEIGH. Ladycake farm; il. by Clotilde Embree Funk. 126p $2.25 Lippincott 52-5107

Story of a Negro family who moved from town out into the country, and how, searching for a name for their farm they finally decided on Ladycake—and what the name signified to them.

Booklist 48:344 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 22 '52
190w

Reviewed by Ruth Wales

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '52 100w

"This heart-warming story of a Negro family just moving to a small farm seems to me one of Miss Hunt's best books and an unusually wise handling of the race question." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:175 Je '52 110w

Kirkus 20:125 F 15 '52 160w

"This book treats with sincerity and honesty the problems that arise when a Negro family moves into a white neighborhood. A heart-warming family story, it proves the value of interracial friendships and is a worthy addition to the books that interpret American democracy to children. Recommended for middle-agers." Augusta Baker

+ Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 80w

"A happy, amusing, touching, and very sensible book. . . The style is sentimental, and the continued dignity and restraint of the family are a bit hard to believe. But the final effect is healthy, for the family life of these very poor people is one to be honored." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 11 '52 240w

"This is a story which enlarges one's understanding, and it is also a happy story, for in spite of setbacks and snubs there is much affection, and in the end comes a sense of achievement from hard work and goodwill." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p24 My 18 '52 160w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

+ Sat R 35:50 My 10 '52 200w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:260 S '52 80w

Wis Lib Bul 48:176 J1 '52

HUNT, P. B. W. STATHER. Primitive gospel sources. 344p $6 Philosophical lib.

226 Bible. New Testament—Gospels

"Hunt's thesis is that the Risen Christ taught the Apostles the testimonial method which was taken down by Matthew in Aramaic. These teachings, according to Hunt, are reflected in Luke 24. They were passed on in the form of testimony books, which later became the basis of the gospels, indeed of all the New Testament writings. This book falls into three parts, the argument, the evidence, and the evidence from dialogues." Crozer Q

"It seems to us that Canon Hunt's argument is one-sided; but we have to thank him for a remarkable book, full of learning and suggestion and acute observation." E. F. Scott

+ Christian Century 69:279 Mr 5 '52 700w

"Much can be said for the influence of the Old Testament on the New. But the phenomena offered in this book admit of other explanations than the one offered here. In other words, the hypothesis is possible, but not probable." P. H. Igarashi

Crozer Q 29:95 Ja '52 200w

"I think that Canon Hunt has shown that we must allow greater weight to the fulfilment-of-prophecy motive in the shaping of the gospel tradition, but not so much weight as he claims. There were other and equally effective motives at work, and a complete and balanced view must take account of them all. At the same time Canon Hunt has done good service in drawing attention to a factor which has perhaps been unduly neglected." T. W. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 27 '52 200w

"Canon Hunt's main argument does not carry conviction; but the discussion is full of interest, and there are many observations on points of detail to reward the careful reader of a book which is clearly the result of prolonged study and wide reading of the relevant literature."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p409 Je 20 '52
800w

HUNT, PAUL, and UNDERWOOD, CHARLOTTE. Eight yards of calico; square dance fun for everyone. 114p il $2.50 Harper

793.34 Dancing—Square dances 51-11961

"Contains easy information and eight planned programs 'designed to develop dancer and caller simultaneously.' Illustrative photographs. Record list, list of dances, index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:199 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:105 F '52 20w

"If you are anxious to learn square dancing or calling, this is the book for you." Vee Mason
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 F 17 '52
60w

"With the rising interest, this handy guide to square dancing ought to reach a considerable audience."

+ Kirkus 19:653 N 1 '51 150w

"A fascinating handbook. . . The repertoire ranges from the simplest to the most complicated figures of both Eastern and Western dancing and calling, and each dance call is accompanied by suggestions for suitable phonograph records for use during the number." Ethel Dexter

+ Springfield Republican p8D F 3 '52 190w

Wis Lib Bul 48:31 Ja '52

HUNT, PETER. How-to-do-it book. 294p il col il $5.95 Prentice-Hall

745 Folk art. Furniture. Design, Decorative 52-10663

Suggestions for renovating and decorating furniture, according to Peter Hunt's instructions. Includes a section on ideas for Christmas decorations.

Booklist 49:63 O 15 '52

HUNT, PETER—Continued

"If you can make one basic stroke with a brush then you can create exciting designs. With this as a premise Peter Hunt has crammed his secrets for working magic with paint and brush into a 300 page book. You take an old eyegore or a piece of unpainted furniture, approach it with a blithe spirit, a brush and a paint can, and presto! You've created a piece to grace any home." William Yates

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 5 '52
50w

"A comprehensive coverage, for home application."

Kirkus 20:628 S 15 '52 250w

"Some may not like the bull-fiddle case made into a hanging shelf nor the carousel-horse a-top two dining-room table pedestals, but all who hanker after more and better hearts and flowers as motifs to live by will find this book useful." A. S. Plaut

Library J 77:1904 N 1 '52 60w

HUNT, WALTER BERNARD. Indian silver-smithing. 160p il $4.75 Bruce pub.

970.1 Indians of North America—Silver-smithing. Silversmithing 52-11328

"The tools and the operations of making with silver and turquoise, jewelry articles patterned after those made by the Navajo Indians and other tribes in the Southwest, are described clearly for beginners. . . . However, the inclusion of such articles as saltcellars and an antique tea steeper indicates that the book is not limited to articles of Indian origin." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 49:46 O 1 '52

"A good book on a class of handicraft articles that should be popular with amateur jewelry makers."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:73 S '52

HUNTER, EDWARD. Brain-washing in Red China: the calculated destruction of men's minds. 311p $3.50 Vanguard

951.042 Communism—China 51-7681

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"Despite its journalistic form and style, which make it lively reading, the book rings true and, in the opinion of this reviewer, it faithfully reflects and interprets the situation in Red China." H. A. Steiner

+ Ann Am Acad 280:238 Mr '52 410w

Foreign Affairs 30:683 Jl '52 30w

"Mr. Hunter points up the basic issue of the struggle between Communism and democracy—that is, that Communism means the end of individual freedom. He says that we must find means of checking the psychological offensive of the Communist world if we ourselves are to be safe from brain washing and brain changing. He does not say how this is to be done. But he has given us at least a clearly drawn picture of the problem to be tackled." A. T. Steele

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 13 '52
600w

"The picture given is true as far as it goes, but suffers from the great handicap of having been written from the outside and at second-hand, and therefore cannot convey the real atmosphere of life in China. . . . The book is superficial because no attempt is made to reach a deeper level by examining the very real attractions of Communist propaganda or by relating it to its historical setting." L. Constantine

Pacific Affairs 25:192 Je '52 700w

"Appearing in a field in which passionately deluded 'scholars' have meticulously documented fantasy, this soberly exciting book represents a return to reality." Julien Steinberg

+ Sat R 35:32 Ap 5 '52 500w

School & Society 75:172 Mr 15 '52 40w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:66 Mr '52 250w

HUNTER, EVAN. Find the feathered serpent. 207p $2 Winston

52-5495

Science-fiction for ages 12 to 16.

Booklist 48:384 Jl 15 '52

Kirkus 20:227 Ap 1 '52 90w

"A gory, fantastic, improbable tale, its chief merit lies in the details of an ancient race and the foreshadowing of Mayan collapse. Only for large collections where more science fiction or light historical novels are urgently needed." M. K. Walraven

Library J 77:1081 Je 15 '52 60w

Reviewed by H. H. Holmes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Jl 6 '52
70w

"There is plenty of action here, but the plot is stereotyped and I didn't believe in those Vikings for a minute." E. L. Buell

N Y Times p15 Je 22 '52 60w

HUNTER, HALL, pseud. See Marshall, E.HUNTER, JOHN ALEXANDER. Hunter; with an introductory note by A. T. A. Ritchie. 263p $3.50 Harper

799.2 Hunting—Africa 52-7287

"A veteran white hunter, for some twenty odd years associated with the Game Control Department of Kenya, British East Africa, here shares a lifetime of adventure, most of it spent in hunting in Africa." Kirkus

Booklist 49:1; 85 S 1 '52; N 1 '52

Bookmark 12:53 D '52 30w

Reviewed by Robert Bean

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 9 '52
150w

"He gives one the sense of the Africa that is no more. When he gets into the more technical aspects of equipment and procedure, the interest for the nonhunter lags a bit. But the sportsman will relish every line. Good armchair escape reading."

+ Kirkus 20:480 Ag 1 '52 250w

"Well edited, Delightful, easy style." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1898 N 1 '52 100w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 78:64 Ja 1 '53 50w

"'Hunter' is written modestly in simple, direct language. Elephant, rhino, lions, buffalo and leopard—the 'Big Five' of the world's most dangerous game—furnish chapters that will long remain in every sportsman's memory. We are indebted to J. A. Hunter for having given us a book out of Africa's vanished past." R. C. Andrews

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 2 '52
650w

"Throughout this unusual book, the reader will find a generous amount of description of the breath-taking African scene in all its richly varied aspects. . . . The publishers have equaled the greatest hunter during the greatest era in history." This dual Book-of-the-Month selection for November deserves every word of this extravagant praise." J. L. Clark

+ N Y Times p10 N 2 '52 550w

"Some of his tales are marvellous, and they are told with humor and dignity. The book also paints a vivid and rather saddening picture of Africa as it will never be again."

+ New Yorker 28:173 N 8 '52 160w

"The book is completely fascinating; the right reader will gulp it down at one sitting, and be well rewarded. There are 16 pages of remarkable photographs that will make the reader wish there could have been more." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 25 '52
550w

"There are many books on Africa and its big game animals, but none that quite equals this one by an author who may well be called the greatest of living hunters. This remarkable volume rounds out the story of the heyday of big game shooting in the most fabulous game country of the world." J. W. Lippincott

 + Sat R 36:14 Ja 3 '53 800w
 Springfield Republican p7C N 23 '52 500w

"This is the age of the hard-luck story, and so, on the rare occasions when a good-luck story appears, the happy release it brings from prevailing anxious chills is likely to make it irresistible. Hunter has this rare appeal. It is the record of a man who has made a success of his life by doing very well exactly what he most wanted to do."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p762 N 21 '52 500w

HUNTINGTON, EMILY HARRIETT. Cost of medical care; the expenditures for medical care of 455 families in the San Francisco Bay area, 1947-1948 [issued under the auspices of the Heller committee for research in social economics, Univ. of California] 146p pa $2.50 Univ. of Calif. press

614.2 Medical economics 51-62617

"Covering the years 1947 and 1948, this monograph reports a study of 455 wage-earning families totaling 1,504 persons living in the San Francisco East Bay area. The sample is composed of painters, grocery clerks, and milk-wagon drivers, and detailed data on medical—including dental—expenditures of all kinds are assembled and analyzed. For the most part the facts unearthed by this study speak for themselves, but Dr. Huntington makes clear her conclusion that compulsory national health insurance is essential for all except those in the top income brackets." U S Quarterly Bk R

"The monograph contains a great deal of valuable information. It deserves careful study by health workers and all other persons interested in objective approaches to the analysis of medical care problems." Milton Terris

+ Am J Pub Health 42:1008 Ag '52 450w

"Anyone interested in medical economics should certainly familiarize himself with this work." E. A. Schuler

+ Am Soc R 17:127 F '52 250w

"When this study could have contributed greatly to the available literature on medical costs, it is unfortunate that the author chose to present such a preconceived idea in her final statement rather than a conclusion based on the findings of the study. . . I cannot agree with the author that 'voluntary health insurance has been tried and found wanting, and that it is not likely in the future to be able to give insurance protection to those who need it most.' On the contrary, it has proved to be the most effective method of meeting medical costs and it is rapidly reaching more and more individuals." F. G. Dickinson

— Ann Am Acad 279:219 Ja '52 800w

"This publication should be of vital interest to the mass of people to whom medical expenses constitute a substantial item in the budget; labor leaders, publicists, and physicians should be especially interested."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:409 D '51 190w

HUNTINGTON, MRS HARRIET E. Let's go to the brook; ill. with photographs by the author. 88p $2.75 Doubleday

574 Fresh water fauna. Zoology—Juvenile literature 52-5753

Large photographs, simple text, tell the young reader what he may find of plant and animal life if he follows the course of a small stream.

Booklist 48:284 My 1 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin
 Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ag 10 '52 110w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates
 Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '52 40w

"A welcome book for young naturalists ready to do more exploring out-of-doors." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:246 Ag '52 110w

Kirkus 20:258 Ap 15 '52 110w

"Excellent choice of material and vocabulary, and the pictures are beautiful and exciting. For all children's libraries." N. S. Chasteen
 + Library J 77:798 My 1 '52 80w

"A new 'easy to read science picture book,' this is beautiful, interesting and very appealing as a family nature book. . . The text is happily not babyfied, but its clear arrangement and large type will lure beginning readers. The photographs are fully as beautiful as in Miss Huntington's other books, the ones about desert, seashore and 'outdoors' in general." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 18 '52 110w

Reviewed by G. O. Blough

N Y Times p27 Je 8 '52 40w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:260 S '52 70w

HUNTINGTON, HELEN (H. H. LYNDE, pseud). Which grain will grow. 433p $3.50 Crown

52-5677

Study of life in Columbia City, a small town in the northwestern United States. In the 1920's Chris Barlow stopped there for a night, but found himself staying for longer, and becoming involved with its people. After his wife's death Chris left Columbia City. Years later he returned for a visit, and found that only one of his former friends had made a real success of his life.

Booklist 48:265 Ap 15 '52

"Because of the many shifts of focus in the book, nothing but a sense of drift and flow emerges." Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:154 My '52 220w

Reviewed by Olive Carruthers

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 6 '52 250w

Kirkus 20:91 F 1 '52 180w

"In 'The Slender Reed' Miss Lynde displayed her powers of characterization and her great skill in the delicate development of a theme within a tightly controlled structure. In this new novel her focus lifts, her proportions spread; what is lost in subtlety and individual characterization is more than gained in the breadth and singularity of her vision of a group of people involved in the shaping dimension of time. As she presents it, Time itself is a character, the most tactile one of all." Hugh McGovern

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 6 '52 650w

"Neither literary nor sensationally sordid in her style, H. H. Lynde writes about this country in honest, thoughtful, unspectacular, malleable prose. She belongs to the school of solid craftsmanship and vivid storytelling, the school of Cronin, Priestley and Arnold Bennett. 'Which Grain Will Grow' is her third novel. It is a good book to give friends abroad who persist in wishfully thinking that all America is divided in three parts, Hollywood, Gangsterland and Faulkner's South, and that 'the Americans are vulgar, barbaric and violent.'" Evelyn Eaton

+ N Y Times p5 Mr 30 '52 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 17 '52 700w

"Solid, distinguished, and most satisfying third novel." Martin Rice

+ Sat R 35:30 My 31 '52 480w

HURLEY, SISTER HELEN ANGELA. On good ground. 312p il $3.75 Univ. of Minn. press 271.9 Sisters of St Joseph of Carondelet.
 Province of St Paul 51-14167

The history of the Sisters of St Joseph in St Paul, which also recounts the growth of the diocese of St Paul over the last hundred years. Bibliographical notes. Index.

"The collection of data obviously required a great, far-spreading effort. The careful fusion of record and memory produces a work of genuine interest and worth. The reader is carried along, delighted, by the writer's refreshing manner and ease of style." R. P. Fogarty

HURLEY, H. A.—Continued

+ Am Hist R 57:774 Ap '52 320w

"This fine study of Sister Helen concludes with a series of excellent bibliographical notes and a complete index. The volume is a first class addition to the history of education in America." F. G. Hochwalt

+ Ann Am Acad 280:215 Mr '52 850w

"These pages sparkle with the brilliance of people like Archbishop John Ireland and his sister Mother Seraphine Ireland, but I feel sure other orders of American Sisters have histories just as rich and moving. Still it is doubtful if the story will ever again be told so well. Sister Helen Angela has succeeded in breathing life into what might otherwise be dead Ph.D. material. Her book is a model for conventual historians." John Cogley

+ Commonweal 55:382 Ja 18 '52 500w

"The story of the order, told here by Sister Helen Angela with a wealth of detail, is closely related to the history of Minnesota as a whole and is a contribution to history both ecclesiastical and regional."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:57 Mr '52 230w

HURLIMANN, MARTIN, II. Eternal France; 216 pictures in photogravure; with an appreciation by Paul Valéry and historical notes. 244p $7.50 Crowell

944 [914.4] France—Views [52-33517]

This volume consists of a brief introduction titled An Appreciation of France, by Paul Valéry, and 216 photographs. "Placing his photographs in the order of a topographical tour, Dr. Hurlimann starts in Paris, crosses Burgundy and the Alps on his way to the Mediterranean, visits Corsica, turns west to the Pyrenees, remounts up the Atlantic coast, traverses Brittany, Normandy and the northern districts of France, finally to end in the shadow of Strasbourg's sombre cathedral." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Brief historical notes on photographs.

"A treasure to possess!"

+ Cath World 176:319 Ja '53 120w

"Those who know France will supply their own color to her ancient stones, and those who have never seen her face—old, seamed, and worn with the years, but still beautiful—will thrill at the views. 'An Appreciation of France,' by Paul Valéry, sets the mood for a finer appreciation of the Pictures which follow it." Gary Sheahan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p25 N 16 '52 160w

"Over two hundred breathtaking photographs. . . Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:2180 D 15 '52 70w

"All in all, a fine book. The price is high but not too high."

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 21 '52 120w

"The dust jacket claims that many of the photographs in this book of photographs are breathtaking. This is a parsimonious understatement. They are all breathtaking."

+ New Yorker 28:191 N 15 '52 130w

Reviewed by Kenneth McLaughlin

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 D 7 '52 170w

"Not forgetting that Corsica is a Département of France, he successfully evokes the savagery of its scenery in a particularly excellent group of photographs. Always his point of view is well chosen and often it is distinctive; only of Paris itself does he fail to produce more than an ordinary likeness. Altogether his display of the variety, interest and beauty of the French countryside enables us to understand why many Frenchmen are content never to voyage beyond their own frontiers."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p263 Ap 18 '52 320w

HURLIMANN, MARTIN, II. French cathedrals. See Bony, J.

HUSSEY, DYNELEY. Some composers of opera. 102p $2 Oxford

927.8 Musicians 52-8680

"These small essays tell the ordinary music-lover pretty well all that he can want to know about the slightly less well-known of the great composers of opera—Monteverdi, Gluck, Weber, Rossini, Donizetti, Bellini, Gounod, Bizet, Mussorgsky and one prime favourite, Puccini." Spec

"This is an excellent book, and should provide music lovers with profitable as well as agreeable reading." Marianne Singard

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:416 Je '52 240w

"The facts are presented in pleasant and easily digestible form, there are nice touches of wit and the author's judgement is unfailingly sound." M. C.

+ Spec 188:868 Je 27 '52 300w

"In one respect at least admirers of Mr. Hussey's biographies of Verdi and Mozart, models of their kind, will not be disappointed by this new, brief book; it is written with that well-bred style which, at much cost to the writer, allows us to consider historical and aesthetic matters without having to fight our way through a dense jungle of jargon, adjectives, parentheses and inversions. All the same, it is an uncomfortable book. Mr. Hussey, it would seem, did not choose the composers here jostled together. . . They were, so to say, chosen for him, thrust on him, being the composers left out of some other book in a series."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p248 Ap 11 '52 600w

HUSTON, MCCREADY. Prodigal brother. 246p $3 Lippincott

51-11209

"The prodigal brother of the title is one Roger Kinlock, a tireless Casanova who returns [to Philadelphia] for a breather and the balm of the propitieties under the benign influence of his rich brother Lawrence. The process of domestication is undertaken not only by Lawrence, a professional do-gooder suffering from chronic attacks of democracy, but also by his witty wife Becky, Roger's former wife Sara, a sultry Austrian refugee named Trudi Kaus, and the mystical Leora Brackett, whose marriage to a fanatic one-worlder is headed for divorce. In the end it is not the manners of the Main Line but Leora's morality that holds the key to Roger's maturity." N Y Times

Booklist 48:153; 171 Ja 1 '52; Ja 15 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 174:470 Mr '52 150w

Reviewed by A. F. Otis

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 30 '52 320w

"A novel which consists of personal convictions and decisions, verbalized rather than dramatized, for a quiet to conservative audience."

+ Kirkus 19:644 N 1 '51 140w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 6 '52 80w

"If you can get by a choppy opening and resign yourself to an unconvincing ending, you'll find Mr. Huston's seventh novel both amusing and intelligent." Charles Lee

+ N Y Times p4 Ja 13 '52 320w

HUTCHENS, JOHN KENNEDY, ed. American twenties; a literary panorama. 480p $5 Lippincott

810.8 American literature—Collections 52-7469

A selection of short stories, poetry, excerpts from novels, biographies, and essays, written by such authors as: Sherwood Anderson; Ernest Hemingway; Robert Frost; T. S. Eliot; E. St. V. Millay; Sinclair Lewis; G. J. Nathan;

Alexander Woolcott; Dorothy Parker; H. L. Mencken; Robert Benchley. In his Introductory essay Mr Hutchens writes: "For survivors of the Nineteen Twenties this volume will be, perhaps, a kind of memory-book. For younger generations it is designed to say, in effect, 'This is how it was'—or something of how it was—with certain American writers and writing in the era that began with the Armistice, 1918, and ended with the Big Crash in October, 1929."

"To those born late enough for its contents to appear newly excavated antiques, Mr. Hutchens's anthology should be a revelation of how much livelier the literary scene was in their parents' youth."

+ Atlantic 190:98 D '52 120w

Booklist 49:102 N 15 '52

"With his poetry selection I have a quarrel. Is it not a false evaluation to assign Frost, Cummings, Eliot, and Crane only one poem each, and give Christopher Morley, Samuel Hoffenstein, and Dorothy Parker three each? For the drama he uses 'Emperor Jones.' Surely O'Neill is the representative playwright, but that is not his most representative play. When he turns to the novel, he adopts the dangerous policy of excerpting—but in this case the excerpts are wisely chosen and carefully edited." Walter Harding

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 2 '52 320w

"The editor's discerning comments add appreciably to a vibrant collection which mirrors the enduring qualities of this generation."

+ Kirkus 20:537 Ag 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge

Library J 77:2172 D 15 '52 120w

"Mr. Hutchens' sound and pleasant anthology is a sort of class reunion, with quite a few of the alumni not only still productively vigorous but entitled to point with pride to their undergraduate accomplishments." J. T. Winterich

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 2 '52 550w

"In addition to the informative and perceptive introduction, Mr. Hutchens provides a list of the best-known works of the contributors. Apart from its intrinsic value, 'The American Twenties' thus provides a readers' guide to what Mr. Hutchens calls 'that mordant, light-hearted, serious-minded, complex and seminal time.'" George Mambery

+ N Y Times p24 N 9 '52 350w

New Yorker 28:67 D 27 '52 170w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 3 '52 650w

"Excellent new anthology." Milton Crane

+ Sat R 35:13 N 1 '52 800w

HUTCHINS, MRS MAUDE PHELPS (MCVEIGH). Love is a pie. 223p $3.50 New directions

"A collection of short pieces, some of them written as dialogues, some as half-fictional memoirs in the first person, and all of them dealing with the nature of love." New Yorker

"Most of the fantasies tend to the arch and the coy." J. H. Raleigh

New Repub 127:28 D 8 '52 160w

"'Love Is a Pie' is an uneven, unconventional collection of the imaginings of a sensitive, raw-nerved writer who can only be put in a category by herself. Wayward alike in innocence and precocity, cultivated, talented, erratic, bewitched, she defies analysis. She is a literary curiosity." Virgilia Peterson

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 28 '52 390w

N Y Times p53 N 23 '52 150w

"Mrs. Hutchins displays some power of observation, some humor, and a rather childlike imagination, but she does not show much talent for writing."

+ New Yorker 28:200 N 22 '52 30w

"For a book devoted to the tender human emotion, 'Love is a Pie' seems curiously aloof and unemotional. It consists largely of strained and wearisome cerebral exercises." Ray Pierre

Sat R 36:58 Ja 3 '53 210w

HUTCHINS, ROBERT MAYNARD, ed. See Great books of the western world

HUTCHINSON, FRANCIS WILLIAM. Industrial heat transfer. 326p $6 Industrial press 536.2 Heat—Transmission 52-8116

"Essentially a reference book for chemical engineers and others concerned with heat transfer problems in industrial processes. The most valuable part is a series of 132 charts representing heat transfer coefficients under various conditions for a variety of substances such as benzene, ethyl iodide, and sugar solutions. These are accompanied by discussion and worked examples. The author is Professor of Mechanical Engineering at the University of California." (Library J) Indexes.

"The title of this book does not indicate the extremely narrow coverage of the heat transfer field which the author considers 'Industrial Heat Transfer.' The book could more properly be entitled 'Heat Transfer Charts for Air Conditioning Engineers.' Even for these specialists, its value lies entirely in charts which are supposed to be 'equal in accuracy to the equations from which they are derived.' The equations, however, are in some cases too simple to require plotting, in others, applied where more complex relationships are readily required." W. E. Lobo

Chem & Eng N 30:1668 Ap 21 '52 230w

"The book does not depict any broad range of industrial practice but instead refers to isolated instances. The book will have little appeal to men of collegiate rank but may conceivably prove useful to operating personnel who would prefer a simple, if not accurate answer." D. F. Othmer

Chem Eng 59:417 Jl '52 400w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:904 My 15 '52 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:41 My '52

HUTCHINSON, RAY CORYTON. Journey with strangers [Eng title: Recollections of a journey]. 431p $4 Rinehart

52-5563

Tragic novel of the suffering of a family of Polish aristocrats beginning with the occupation of Poland first by Nazis, and then by Russians, in World war II. The story of the family begins, with thousands of their countrymen and women across Russia and into Asia, and of their liberation by the British, is told by a daughter-in-law of the old general, whose love of Poland motivated his life.

"Though the setting is drear and circumstances oppressive, this is not a degrading story; it is lit by courage and made warm by compassion of the spirit." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 190:80 Jl '52 380w

"For the discriminating reader."

+ Bookmark 11:184 My '52 40w

"Thoughtful, emotion-charged novel. . . The quality of the Kolbeck's Catholicism is nationalistic and Jansenist, an unfortunate note in a novel which otherwise, without disregarding the sordid and brutal, subordinates them to human values." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:312 Jl '52 300w

"It is a dark journey on which the reader is taken, but there are moments of lightness and of hope and thru it all the sense of the enduring power of the human race, who will survive. It is a book which quietly confronts us with further confirmation, if any were needed, of the sort of mind which so monstrosly threatens us today." Paul Engle

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 27 '52 650w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 22 '52 240w

Kirkus 20:136 F 15 '52 240w

HUTCHINSON, R. C.—Continued

"Recommended." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:794 My 1 '52 100w

"This is a memorable novel, both in its original characterisation and in the epic breadth and detail of its realism." H. I.A. Fausset

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 24 '52 150w

"Perhaps an even firmer restraint, a still finer discrimination would have brought it off, evoked in their full values the cathartic anger and pity? I rather doubt it. This long book seems to me to be as it were muffled anyway in the care with which it has been written, lacking a clear poignant line; dignified, but heavy." J. D. Scott

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:489 O 25 '52 300w

"The perilous device of telling so arduous and heart-breaking a story completely from the feminine viewpoint is justified, here, by its success. It is not just that Stefanie herself, from the very start, is astonishingly actual and convincing. Her constant use of understatement purges the narrative of melodrama, and helps give dignity, meaning and psychological penetration. . . 'Journey With Strangers' has a cumulative power that makes its final episodes overwhelming." Dan Wickenden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 My 4 '52 800w

"An intensely personal, human document. Stephanie's 'private journey toward truth' is a panoramic canvas of characters as diverse and real as life. Seldom does an author catch such flashing insight into the central core of human existence. . . The novel would have gained in strength if cut to half its length. Yet this reviewer feels only a profound humility before the meticulous research, craftsmanship, devotion and compassion it took to write a book of this stature." Anzia Yezierska

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 27 '52 1050w

New Yorker 28:134 My 10 '52 120w

"Despite the fact that it is, as [the author] says, based on fact and on documents seen by him, the total impression the book leaves with me is one of maudlin inconsequence. This is not at all attributable to Mr. Hutchinson's professional competence, which is considerable, but rather to his sense of proportion, or of importance—to the things and people he believes to be important." Nathan Rothman

+ Sat R 35:43 My 24 '52 350w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques

Spec 189:580 O 31 '52 340w

Springf'd Republican p19A Je 1 '52 250w

"Mr. Hutchinson has chosen a subject of magnificent possibilities. . . He writes with a perfect seriousness that does not exclude irony, he has a fine impersonality, and he describes life in Poland and Russia with remarkable conviction. Yet these qualities are not enough: as a narrative Recollection of a Journey lacks the tenseness and horror of many factual accounts written by people who have made such journeys and lived in such camps, and as a work of art it is prosaic to the point of dullness."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p705 O 31 '52 340w

HUTCHINSON, VERONICA SOMERVILLE, ed.

Tales of the rails; il. by Bernard Safran. 329p $2.95 World pub.

52-8435

Collection of fifteen stories of railroading and a dictionary of railroad terms. Nine of the stories are non-fiction. They range in time from the early days of railroading to the present.

Reviewed by William Leonard

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 O 5 '52 40w

Kirkus 20:563 S 1 '52 130w

"This is not a very good collection, and yet many boys might find in it just what they want. It is recommended for cautious purchase where a demand is known." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1827 O 15 '52 60w

"It is an interesting and thorough job. . . Both boys and men will enjoy it. It is a fine addition to the railroad bookshelf." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p4 N 16 '52 60w

HUTTER, CATHERINE. This dear encounter.

313p $3 Holt

52-6627

A gifted actress falls in love for the first time with a suburban doctor, the latter married to a clinging wife. When the doctor goes to war his wife indulges in a cheap affair, but even that does not lessen her dependence on her husband. The doctor's young daughter, who has some theatrical talent, goes to live with the actress' family, and begins the course which eventually opens the way to happiness for several people.

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:394 Ag '52 160w

"In the course of the progress of this story we are treated to some of the best writing on the theater that I have read in a long time. But finally Miss Hutter must try to resolve, satisfactorily, the dilemma she has posed for Thail and Phillip. Here is where she strikes trouble. I find her ending unsatisfactory. Yet it's only fair to say that I see no possible one which could be more so. Not every situation in life lends itself to an artistically pleasing ending." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 18 '52 270w

"A thorough workout, emotional and moral, for ladies, chaise lounging."

Kirkus 20:165 Mr 1 '52 170w

"This Dear Encounter' is not only extremely well written but is rich in both its emotional and intellectual content. It will interest discriminating readers both as a story and for the problems it so frankly faces." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 My 11 '52 550w

"Catherine Hutter is a mature and searching writer whose rather flighty style and loose-jointed construction belie the serious issues with which her book deals. She courageously questions the moral obligations of marriage and divorce. She would have had a better book, however, if she had made less of a slick magazine production of it." E. S. Holsaert

N Y Times p25 My 25 '52 200w

"Miss Hutter takes this rather worn situation and handles it with a distinction rare in the treatment of such slick-paper materials. Part of this is because of her sure hand with her backgrounds. Her theatre world in particular is completely believable though a little more elegantly cultured than many a Broadwayite would recognize." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:30 My 31 '52 150w

HUTTON, CLARKE. Picture history of France.

62p col il col maps $2.35 Watts, F.

944 France—Juvenile literature

Brief text and colored lithographs portray the history of France from the time of the Gauls to the present. For grades 4 to 7.

Booklist 49:74 O 15 '52

"The best I have seen in a long time, text and pictures alike."

+ Commonweal 57:176 N 21 '52 30w

"Attractive and useful both for reference and for 'just looking.'" V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:416 D '52 60w

"Excellent for school or home libraries or Christmas presents."

+ Kirkus 20:602 S 15 '52 100w

"A useful library item because of its pictures illustrating feudal times, renaissance arts and crafts, later industries and inventions, and costumes, as well as famous people and events of France." Virginia Haviland

+ Library J 77:1822 O 15 '52 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p7 N 16 '52 70w

Reviewed by Amanda MacBride

N Y Times pt2, p32 N 16 '52 80w

"This is a beautiful book. The story of France, from the early primitive days down to today, is told so clearly that even the younger boys and girls can follow it."

+ Sat R 35:72 N 15 '52 120w

"Here occasionally the over-lapping picture obscures the lettering. . . It is admirable from an aesthetic point of view, but there are some most elementary mistakes, the English Henry VI being given the role of Henry V, the suggestion being made that Brittany received its name from refugees from the Vikings, Cherbourg being misspelt (though not in the text) and the accents over a restaurant in a street scene running the wrong way. This is a book to possess, but young readers might be asked to pick out the mistakes."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p18 N 23 '51 130w

HUTTON, EDWARD. Florence. 284p il $4.50 McKay

709.45 Art—Florence. Florence—Description

A history and description of the city of Florence in Italy, all of which the author considers "a work of art of the first importance." Index.

"Written with richness of knowledge and impeccable taste. The heart of Florence, writes Mr. Hutton, is the Double Piazza, where the oldest and most beautiful buildings stand; the Baptistery. Giotto's Campanile, and the Duomo. Hundreds of writers have written about them but Mr. Hutton's approach is fresh and untarnished." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 N 23 '52 160w

"Mr. Hutton seems sometimes too dry, sometimes too exuberant. Yet he knows Florence, and even with its lack of good photographs this book can become indispensable to all who have an interest in that magnificent and impudent city." Serge Hughes

+ Sat R 35:31 D 13 '52 110w

"There are few Englishmen better equipped than Mr. Hutton to conduct us round the cities he loves. But every book, unless it frankly presents itself as a guide or simple work of pedantry, must also be judged as literature. And after Mr. Hutton's introduction, which clearly makes greater claims for this book, it is a little disappointing to find that he is really doing nothing more than Murray or the Guide Bleu did 50 years ago, and often in less precise language. . . But perhaps Mr. Hutton does not intend us to see modern Florence; perhaps he is only interested in its past."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p503 Ag 1 '52 450w

HUXLEY, ALDOUS LEONARD. Devils of Loudun. 340p il $4 Harper

132.4 Demonology. Grandier, Urbain. Loudun, France. Ursuline convent 52-8478

A long, detailed and discursive account of an incident in French ecclesiastical history. A priest, overly handsome and easy with women, is accused of witchcraft, a convent of nuns is possessed by devils, the townspeople take sides, the religious rulers of the church send in exorcists, try and condemn the priest and burn him at the stake.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:104 N '52 450w

Booklist 49:82 N 1 '52

"The author seems not to have quite made up his mind whether he is writing a biography or a novel; for, although he introduces a great many historical facts and quotes abundantly from contemporary sources, he also indulges in flights of imagination and makes numerous affirmations that neither he nor anyone else could possibly support with evidence. He has ability; he reads widely; but he presents pictures that are distorted and therefore, unacceptable."

+ Cath World 176:239 D '52 180w

"The Devils of Loudun' is a book which demands intense concentration in the reading. But that demand repays richly the adult reader who prefers a prodding to a lulling of his mental processes, and who is a seeker after the esoteric." Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 19 '52 410w

"Catholic readers may not wholly agree with Mr. Huxley's distinctions. Precisely because of this, they should find The Devils of Loudun worth serious consideration. There is undoubtedly a great deal in the centuries' accretion of superstition surrounding the faith which needs clearing. It is not too much to say that this book should be a means to that end." Jean Holzhauser

+ Commonweal 57:179 N 21 '52 700w

Kirkus 20:489 Ag 1 '52 260w

"Unfortunately Huxley employs so much detail of a scatological nature that the book is apt to delight the wicked, scandalize everyone else and require very careful handling. Large libraries only." R. B. Robertson

Library J 77:1655 O 1 '52 150w

"This is one of the best books of Aldous Huxley, both as a writer and as a thinker. The twenty-five pages describing the torture of Urbain Grandier are, for strength and simplicity of prose, probably unsurpassed in contemporary writing, English or French." Denis Saurat

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 3 '52 400w

Reviewed by Robert Richman

New Repub 127:18 O 27 '52 1500w

"All the contradictions and disturbing shifts of emphasis only illustrate the fascinating range of Mr. Huxley's powers. It is because he still remains so entirely stimulating a writer that he could so easily eschew the obsessive, the sensational and the popular and demand from his readers the difficult discipline that the remarkable intensity of his vision of pervasive Good should claim." Angus Wilson

New Statesman & Nation 44:516 N 1 '52 850w

"Told in a straightforward style this grotesque historical tragedy would make a deeply moving dramatic narrative. Mr. Huxley handles some of the big scenes, especially the exorcisms and Grandier's torture and execution, with vigor and directness. But he is more interested in the thoughts than in the acts of the chief protagonists. . . Interpolated disquisitions on quietism, mysticism, Hindu philosophy, demonic possession, split personalities, and modern psychological techniques interrupt the narrative of events. These didactic essays include some singularly acute passages. . . Apparently Huxley intends to illuminate the peculiar qualities of the seventeenth-century mind by these digressions but the light they throw is alternately too bright or too dim to read by." Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 5 '52 1300w

"In 'The Devils of Loudun,' Mr. Huxley is at his very best. Here is the stuff out of which the more bizarre historical novels are made, but it is solidly based on fact and painstaking research. . . This peak achievement of Mr. Huxley's career reveals his sharp skill at characterization, his ability to re-create the smell and flavor of vanished eras, his preoccupation with roads to salvation and roads to damnation." Chad Walsh

+ N Y Times p1 O 5 '52 1250w

"Mr. Aldous Huxley's new study of religious life in early-seventeenth-century France, is a brilliant piece of juggling. It simultaneously maintains the reputation he won with his early novels as the most elegant and cultivated writer of delicate erotic farces to practice since the eighteenth-century, and that other reputation he later acquired with the publication of 'Ends and Means' and 'The Perennial Philosophy' as a guide to that world—beyond will, appetite, and desire—frequented by the mystic." Anthony West

+ New Yorker 28:146 O 25 '52 1400w

HUXLEY, A. L.—Continued

"It is a beautiful job of combing out an involved story, and Mr. Huxley not only does this admirably but at the same time fills in the reader on the general philosophical, political, and moral climate of the France and the Europe of the period." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 O 13 '52 700w

"Not since Swift has anyone so resented the fact of bathrooms; not since Donne, our decomposition. I die daily, cried Paul, and so do we all. Could not Mr. Huxley, for just one book, cease to hate that fact, which like all others, is (or can be) an approach to The Fact?" Anne Fremantle

— Sat R 189:15 N 22 '52 700w

"The Devils of Loudun [is] a work that will offend most readers. It is true that those who wish to be on the side of the gods are the better for some insight into the devil's methods. One has no right to refuse knowledge of contemporary horrors. It is purposeless, however, to go raking up old corruptions, even though they may, as Mr. Huxley claims, foreshadow those of today. His new book displays a great talent hideously misapplied." J. M. Cohen

— + Spec 189:440 O 3 '52 650w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7C D 7 '52 460w

Time 60:106 O 6 '52 900w

"The whole book is fascinating, erudite, and instinct with intellectual vitality. . . However, though he is a most learned and deep-rooted European so far as humanism is concerned, . . . where religious thought, belief and practice are in question he becomes suddenly remote. He writes in fact of such matters as the artist Chiang Yee used to paint his exquisite pictures of English scenes and people; à la Chinoise, seeing them from the outside, recognizable in general but stylized in an unfamiliar mode where accurate detail is sometimes unwittingly sacrificed to satisfying rhythm."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p692 O 24 '52 1650w

HUYGHE, RENE. Art treasures of the Louvre; text tr. and adapted from the French; commentary by Mme. René Huyghe, with a brief history of the Louvre by Milton S. Fox. 178p $12.50 Abrams

708 Paris. Musée national du Louvre. Art—Paris 52-6134

"Includes brief histories of the Louvre, of Italian, Flemish, Dutch, English, Spanish, German, and French painting, and excellent notes on the 100 works which are shown in color. The color reproduction maintains the standard Abrams has set for his house." Booklist

Booklist 48:181 F 1 '52

Kirkus 19:691 D 1 '51 200w

"One cannot avoid the conclusion that, superior as many of these plates are to other reproductions of the same pictures, the old masters are still reluctant to yield up their secrets to color filters. . . Most of the later painters come off very adequately, especially Rousseau le Douanier. S. L. Faison

Nation 174:283 Mr 22 '52 230w

"The illustrations are a disappointment. Perhaps it is foolish to expect too much of color plates, but these frequently do less than justice to the originals. And the numerous black-and-white reproductions have a disconcerting bluish tone." Stuart Preston

— N Y Times p7 Ja 20 '52 100w

HYAMS, EDWARD SOLOMON. 998 [Eng title: Sylvester]. 207p $2.75 Pantheon bks. 52-7935

A satire on modern world politics and the desire for peace. A young naval officer builds a mysterious instrument out of a perambulator and three pawn broker's balls, dubs it 998, endows it with awful powers, and thereby forges a weapon "to end war."

Booklist 48:265 Ap 15 '52

"'998' is blurbed as 'hilariously funny.' It is true that many episodes are extremely humorous, but the grim subject of a world in post-war confusion is hardly hilarious. I doubt if Mr. Hyams himself wants to be known as a humorist." Robert Nicholas

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 30 '52 300w

"Edward Hyams' ingenious plot is merely a coincidental scaffolding for his rather cynical opinions on a good many contemporary phenomena: politics and politicians, the press, democracy, and on through an impressively catholic list even unto Mr. Churchill's prose. He is an excellent satirist, if an indiscriminating one." William Pfaff

+ Commonweal 55:642 Ap 4 '52 2000w

Kirkus 20:202 Mr 15 '52 170w

"Mr. Hyams' novel is an exquisite jape or a straightforward satire, according as to how strictly one defines the latter. . . Only Mr. Hyams's exuberance saves his book from becoming a first-rate satire. Told at half its present length, it would be a devastating exposure of the modern scientist and his families." John Raymond

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:602 N 24 '51 300w

"Mr. Hyams, for all his irony, turns out to be a pretty sympathetic fellow after all. And it's always pleasant to meet a satirist who has a good word for the human race." Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 6 '52 700w

"Mr. Hyams is against hypocrisy and the atom bomb—fine. But his plot is kind of airy." Rex Lardner

N Y Times p22 Mr 30 '52 300w

"The mechanism of Mr. Hyams' plot, or plotting, is laborious and evident a good deal of the time, and his writing is often awkward, but for all that his book is sometimes funny, and sometimes even moving."

+ New Yorker 28:129 Mr 29 '52 80w

"Here is an often very funny and penetrating satire by an English writer who seems well aware that a little learning is a dangerous thing—and that the inability to admit a little ignorance can be even more so." L. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 11 '52 300w

"'998' is not a good novel. The potentially excellent plot is managed badly, the point of view strays, too many characters and irrelevant incidents make a clutter out of what should have been a unity. Though Mr. Hyams writes with something of the caustic wit of Swift and tells some home truths everyone should ponder, he has not yet mastered his medium." H. C. Webster

+ Sat R 35:17 Ag 23 '52 400w

"My idea of the English public-schoolboy joke taken past all patience." Kate O'Brien

— Spec 188:90 Ja 18 '52 50w

"Mr. Hyams believes science and scholarship have become 'dangerously irresponsible' and that the human race is losing its ability to take a philosophical view of problems by allowing scientific gadget makers too much influence. His spoofing attack on scientific pomposity, government jackassery and public apathy may not prove to be the right medicine, but in its own way it is very effective." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 200w

"Mr. Edward Hyams has got hold of an excellent idea, and although it is blown up somewhat too large to hold the satiric point at its original high level, it is for much of its length witty and entertaining."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p761 N 30 '51 200w

HYAMS, EDWARD SOLOMON. Soil and civilization. (Past in the present ser) 312p 11 maps $4.50 Thames

631.49 Soils. Civilization 52-7988

"The subject and scope of this volume are indicated by its title—it is a study of the influence of soils on men and of men on soils during the course of world history. The author examines the major civilizations, both past and present, and shows how soil fertility or sterility have influenced their culture and way of life." Library J

Reviewed by Gary MacEoin
Commonweal 56:22 Ap 11 '52 500w

"A scholarly work for historians and sociologists." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:593 Ap 1 '52 100w
Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 4 '52 230w

"The book is too short to cover such a wide field adequately, and at times the reader gets bogged down in irrelevant historical detail. There is, indeed, very little about soil in the book, though the word 'soil' occurs frequently." G. V. Jacks

New Statesman & Nation 43:188 F 16 '52 1000w

"A discursive history of agriculture, penned with a fond eye to the far past. . . On transition in the Americas from hunting and pastoral pursuits to soil exploitation, Mr. Hyams has much to say that is provocative and informing; but when he says that the use of commercial fertilizers is responsible for our Dust Bowl, he goes far afield from plain facts." Russell Lord
N Y Times p18 Mr 30 '52 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 22 '52 120w

"The weakness of the book is that it deals so slightly with all that modern science has done and is doing to improve the soils of many different lands. . . The subject is so vast, demanding such breadth of treatment, that errors are unavoidable; there are, however, more than need have been in regard to the soil. On the anthropological side the editor of the series would ensure sufficient accuracy, and the reader interested in soil, whether as farmer or gardener, will find here accounts of the ancient ideas and myths relating to it, not easily found elsewhere, which will show how great an influence the soil has had in forming the pattern of the present." E. J. Russell
Spec 188:210 F 15 '52 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p127 F 15 '52 1200w

HYAMSON, ALBERT MONTEFIORE. Dictionary of universal biography of all ages and of all peoples. 2d ed 679p $17.50 Dutton
920 Biography—Dictionaries

"A Dictionary of Universal Biography, by Albert M. Hyamson, author and editor of many books in the historical and biographical fields, was first published in 1916 in England. This second edition, said to be 'entirely re-written,' is also by Hyamson. . . A sampling of pages throughout the main section of the book revealed comparatively few entries where the date of death is later than 1930, and none later than 1947 were noted. There is, however, an Addenda of eighty-six names taken from the Annual Register for 1948 and 1949. This edition of A Dictionary of Universal Biography features a Key to References, a list of twenty-four reference works in which full biographies of the subjects of the entries can be found. The Key appears on the page immediately preceding the first dictionary entry and is repeated on the two end pages. Each title is keyed to a letter of the alphabet, and one or more of these letters follows every entry. Thus, the key letters O:S:V: following the entry Victor Hugo indicate that full biographies can be found in La Nouvelle Biographie Universelle, the Annual Register, and the Encyclopaedia Britannica." Subscription Bks Bul

"A Dictionary of Universal Biography is a scholarly, accurate work, compiled by an editor with much experience in his field. As a guide to biographies, it supplies brief information about great men and women of the world, no longer living, and indicates sources where more information can be found. It is very useful for ascertaining correct form of name, birth and death dates, and nationality. A Dictionary of Universal Biography is recommended for purchase by university and college libraries, by the larger public libraries, and for all collections stressing historical research. It should also prove a useful tool for catalogers."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 23:39 J1 '52 1400w

HYER, JULIEN CAPERS. Land of beginning again; the romance of the Brazos; il. by Merritt Mauzey. 394p $5 Tupper

976.4 Brazos river and valley. Frontier and pioneer life—Texas 52-2010

The story of the Brazos River in Texas, told by a Texan lawyer. He takes into account the scenic, economic, legendary, and historical aspects of the river and the surrounding territory, and spices it with many anecdotes.

"It is a sentimental book but one that will give pleasure to any man who loves Texas and knows the Brazos. And that's where its market lies."

+ Kirkus 20:294 My 1 '52 160w

"The book is not only devoid of vividness; it is devoid of a standard of evaluation beyond the silver-tonguedness of eulogists who flourished, especially in Texas, about fifty years ago. . . On social changes, 'The Land of Beginning Again' becomes slightly more realistic, except in inability to avoid verbosity. . . The time is not likely to come when the history of localities is not interesting to many people outside those localities. But the time has come when the provincial point of view toward a province can no longer produce a valid history." J. F. Dobie

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 8 '52 750w

"Mr. Hyer, a Dallas lawyer and poet, tells his story convincingly. He writes in poetic prose befitting his heroic romance, but, with a psalm in his soul, he gets in all the legend and lore of Texas and the Brazos all the way from the Yellow Houses to tidewater. The symbolic lithographs of Merritt Mauzey, also a Texan, add greatly to the volume." Lewis Nordyke

+ N Y Times p18 Je 8 '52 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 3 '52 270w

HYMES, JAMES LEE. Understanding your child; il. by H. W. Doremus. 188p $2.95 Prentice-Hall

649.1 Children—Management. Child study 52-410

"A sane, practical discussion of youngsters—the art of living with them and understanding them. Problems are posed and both parent and teacher reactions suggested." Library J

Booklist 48:260 Ap 15 '52

Reviewed by F. D. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 24 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:19 Ja 1 '52 120w

Reviewed by E. P. Nichols
Library J 76:1802 N 11 '51 130w

"They are good ideas and the writer clearly loves and understands children. Any parent or teacher can get a renewed understanding of what makes the growing child act thus and so from this book. The difficulty is that a parent or a teacher is not usually concerned with children in the mass but with a specific child. The parent or teacher wants to be able to go directly to material dealing with the age group of the child, so as to study the problems of that group. This book is not organized to make that possible, a fact which reduces its usefulness greatly." J. E. C.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 16 '52 100w

School & Society 75:110 F 16 '52 10w
Wis Lib Bul 48:85 Mr '52

HYND, ALAN. Murder. 246p $3 Duell; Little 364.15 [364.38] Murder. Crime and criminals
52-6796

Twelve factual murder cases from 1900 to the present told in semi-fiction form. Eleven are reprinted from True: the Man's Magazine.

Kirkus 20:528 Ag 15 '52 120w

"His reasoning is sometimes glib, his curiosity sometimes blunt, but his facts appear to be in order and at least his treatment of the curiously farcical case of the indestructible Malloy compares favorably with the celebrated treatment of it in Edmund Pearson's 'More Studies in Murder' (1936)."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 O 19 '52 220w

"Sketchy and inaccurate rehashes of familiar cases, mostly already definitively treated by better men." Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p31 O 12 '52 40w

"The whole book is thoroughly readable, and true-crime fans will want to see it. If Mr. Hynd isn't another Pearson or Routhead, nor yet another Lustgarten, if he runs rather to the crackle-and-snap of the contemporary magazine style to the more thoughtful study that some enthusiasts prefer—well, he does his kind of thing competently." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 22 '52 550w

"Good collection, good detection, but telling marred by wordiness and wisecracks." Sergeant Cuff

+ — Sat R 35:46 O 11 '52 20w

HYNDMAN, JANE ANDREWS (LEE) (LEE WYNDHAM, pseud). Slipper under glass, by Lee Wyndham; decorations by Vera Bock. 181p $2.50 Longmans

52-5643

The slipper was one which had been worn by Pavlova, and Maggie, aged seventeen, who wanted to be a ballet dancer, kept it under a glass bell. The story is of Maggie's struggle against her father's and brother's gibes, and of her success. For teen aged girls.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 16 '52 60w

"Good picture of what it requires to enter an artistic career."

+ Commonweal 57:174 N 21 '52 20w

"It all seems natural and sure to please and amuse teen-age readers." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:415 D '52 100w

Kirkus 20:415 J1 15 '52 150w

"Ballet studio background is good, also the glossary of ballet terms. Recommended for teen-age and ballet enthusiasts." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 77:1669 O 1 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p24 N 16 '52 90w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p14 D 21 '52 110w

"'Slipper Under Glass' is a superior novel as well as a fine ballet story." B. B. Thorpe

+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 16 '52 20w

"There is humor in Maggie's story, and through it we learn a good deal about the training for ballet. There is a glossary of ballet terms in the back of the book, and Vera Bock has made charming chapter headings and decorations."

+ Sat R 35:64 N 15 '52 160w

School & Society 76:192 S 20 '52 20w

HYNDMAN, OLAN R. Origin of life and the evolution of living things; an environmental theory. 648p il $8.75 Philosophical lib.

574 Life (biology). Reproduction. Evolution
52-10806

"This is an attempt to explain the origin and evolution of living things on a physico-chemical basis and as expressions of the operation of natural law." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

"This nationally-known surgeon, intrigued by apparent insolubles in medicine, presents a well-organized, scholarly work. . . . The book is of tremendous import to university specialists, but in public libraries is limited to a clientele very highly oriented in the biological sciences, especially genetics." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 77:1073 Je 15 '52 100w

School & Society 75:383 Je 14 '52 20w

HYNEK, JOSEPH ALLEN, ed. Astrophysics. 703p il $12 McGraw

523 Astrophysics 51-7351

"A topical symposium commemorating the fiftieth anniversary of the Yerkes Observatory and a half century of progress in astrophysics." (Subtitle) "Each of the papers in this outstanding collection is the work of one or more scientists of international reputation, most of whom have been associated with the Yerkes Observatory. Generally speaking, in each paper the development of a specific area of astrophysics during the last half-century is outlined, its present state is described and there is some discussion of problems that still challenge the scientists. The papers are addressed essentially to graduate students and young scientists who are beginning work in astrophysics." (N Y New Tech Bks)

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 76:1937 N 15 '51 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:81 N '51

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:94 Mr '52 190w

I

IAMS, JACK. Into thin air. 246p $2.50 Morrow
52-9704

Detective story.

Booklist 49:126 D 1 '52

Kirkus 20:522 Ag 15 '52 60w

"This may be flawed by a good deal of rather perfunctorily conventional danger and heroics at the end, but it's a bright flash in a dull season." James Sandoe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 2 '52 120w

"Blitheness and readability are always strongly marked in the novels of Jack Iams. Into Thin Air adds a little more—an extremely interesting picture, at once satiric and sympathetic of the functioning of the Voice of America." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p33 O 26 '52 40w

"Mr. Iams is, as usual, bright as a button about all forms of disaster, and he provides a tidy, if rather abrupt, solution to his tangle, but his editorial asides on witch-hunting and red tape in government slow things up considerably."

+ New Yorker 28:136 N 1 '52 80w

"The final twist shouldn't surprise any faithful reader, but the yarn is plausible enough, brisk and full of gay conversation." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 2 '52 60w

"Good." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:47 O 25 '52 20w

IBN-SAHAV, ARI. David and Bathsheba; tr. by I. M. Lask. 375p $3.50 Crown

David, king of Israel—Fiction 51-12012

A retelling of the love story of King David and Bathsheba. It is supposedly told by the king as he lies dying, and while it covers the whole course of his life, emphasis is on his love for Bathsheba.

"Whether this new interpretation of King David's experience in terms of the fixations and frustrations so dear to the modern novelist will commend itself to readers brought up on the biblical narrative remains to be seen. There is a certain loss of heroic stature, but for that very reason there is a certain gain in sympathetic comprehension. It should be said also that the narrative, which is written in the first person, from David's own point of view, is an admirable one, the work of a born storyteller." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 D 23 '51 400w

Kirkus 19:621 O 15 '51 180w

"A native of Israeli, Ibn-Zahav is well known in Europe and this excellent novel will be a good introduction to American audiences. . . Well recommended." Katharine Shorey

+ Library J 76:1804 N 1 '51 70w

"Though oversentimentalized, the author's writing is sensitive and good. There is compassion and tenderness here—even though too many pages are drenched with tears. And, for the reader who does not care about historical accuracy and whose taste runs to the overemotional (with an abundance of physical passion, that at last makes its peace with virtue and God) this novel has much to recommend it." Vardis Fisher

+ N Y Times p58 N 25 '51 290w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ja 13 '52 110w

"It all adds up to historical nonsense, more pretentious in its treatment than the average soap opera but of scarcely more moment."

— Sat R of Lit 34:36 D 22 '51 140w

IBSEN, FRU BERGLIOT (BJØRNSON). Three Ibsens; memories of Henrik Ibsen, Suzannah Ibsen and Sigurd Ibsen; tr. from the Norwegian by Gerik Schjelderup; foreword by Francis Bull. 184p il $3 Am. Scandinavian foundation

B or 92 Ibsen, Henrik 52-408

"The lives of Ibsen and his son form a single pattern, a pattern reflected in the plays: to learn more of the meagre, bitter story sheds new light on what contemporaries read as social drama. In this little book, Henrik Ibsen's daughter-in-law provides significant material about the dramatist, and tells her husband's story for the first time." New Statesman & Nation

"Her transparent sincerity and simplicity of style make her an excellent witness." M. C. Bradbrook

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:18 Ja 5 '52 700w

"The author writes with apparent artlessness but packs a great deal of information into her pages, not only about Ibsen and his wife—who, contrary to rumor, always did love each other; about her own husband, Sigurd Ibsen, the tragic figure whom Norway rejected; but, incidentally, about her father, Bjørnstjerne Bjørnson. Many of her anecdotes are most entertaining and much of the quoted correspondence is here published for the first time." Llewellyn Jones

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 26 '52 230w

"As source material it is to some extent valuable. Not so much for her memories, since she never knew Ibsen intimately. . . The family letters, which make up the bulk, are without literary distinction. . . The author's own writing is clumsily amateurish, without any ability to dramatize an episode or a personality. . . Other shortcomings of the book are the awkward translation and the absence of either a table of contents or an index."

— + Sat R 35:31 Ag 23 '52 310w

"Her reminiscences—always about others rather than about herself—are simply and charmingly composed. They are not particularly new, so far as the original is concerned, but they have now been excellently translated into English."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p3 Ja 4 '52 650w

ILEANA, princess of Rumania. I live again [with phot. and with drawings by the author; with the collaboration of Dorothy Kunzli Hinchley]. 374p $4 Rinehart

B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, Rumanian 52-7063

Ileana, daughter of Queen Marie and King Ferdinand of Rumania, describes her life as a princess, her work as a nurse during World war II, and her adjustment to life in this country. Copiously illustrated with photographs. Index.

Booklist 48:226 Mr 15 '52

Bookmark 11:130 Mr '52 40w

Reviewed by M. B. Snyder

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 2 '52 350w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer

Christian Science Monitor p7 F 23 '52 650w

Foreign Affairs 30:681 Jl '52 20w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:188 Je '52 50w

Kirkus 19:692 D 1 '51 210w

"Everyone who loves freedom should read this personal narrative of an indomitable princess. . . We, in America, are immeasurably richer for her presence here, for she has forcibly revealed to us, through her own experiences, the deliberate cruelty, misery and horror of life behind the iron curtain. Highly recommended for all libraries." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 77:141 Ja 15 '52 130w

"Wisely, the author does not discuss politics or even history, as such; but she writes vividly of the manner in which different human beings behave as their lives were pelted by both politics and history. . . If Princess Ileana's book has both character and purpose, it would seem to be because the author herself possesses both these qualities, combined with talent and resourcefulness." R. B. Harris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 2 '52 850w

"In spite of faults due to over-editing, Ileana's story will add another page to the American saga. As irresistible as the Horatio Alger myth is Ileana's story of how she exchanged her crown of sapphires and diamonds for the pure joy of cooking and cleaning in her New England kitchen." Anzia Yezierska

N Y Times p6 Mr 9 '52 750w

"An extremely impressive record of piety, industry, and rectitude, presented with rather more heaving of the chest than is really necessary."

New Yorker 28:144 Ap 5 '52 140w

Reviewed by Jane Volles

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 30 '52 320w

Sat R 35:19 My 17 '52 160w

Springfd Republican p7D Ap 27 '52 300w

"It is not on their literary merits or their purely informative value alone that these recollections of Princess Ileana of Rumania should be judged. As a deeply sincere human document, and as the reminiscences of one who has remained passionately devoted to the land of her birth, the book is not only interesting and attractive, but at times most moving."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p794 D 5 '52 500w

ILLINGWORTH, FRANK. North of the Circle. 254p il $4.75 Philosophical lib.

998 [919.8] Arctic regions 52-711

Chapters on travel and life in the various lands north of the Arctic Circle. No index.

Booklist 48:245 Ap 1 '52

"Attempts to illuminate the lands lying within the Arctic Circle and fails, in part, through lack of information. The Russian North gets only nine pages, mostly history, one third of the space devoted to Spitzbergen. The American North is scantily treated, and comparatively too much attention is paid to the shopworn Klondike story. . . These unsatisfying pages fortunately constitute less than a quarter of the book. Other chapters are extremely interesting." T. M. Longstreth

ILLINGWORTH, FRANK—Continued

+ — Christian Science Monitor p13 J1 3 '52
70w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ag 17 '52
200w

"Mr. Illingworth's best chapter is that in which he describes a journey he actually made to Spitzbergen. This is most vividly and racily done. . . In some other parts of his book the traveller and the journalist in Mr. Illingworth are clearly at odds, and it would have been a better one if those in which the journalist wins too easily had been omitted. But there is no lack of judgment about his photographs; these are beautifully selected to illustrate his many-sided theme."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p567 S 7 '51
500w

ILLINGWORTH, FRANK. Wild life beyond the North. 168p $3.75 Scribner.

591.998 Animals, Habits and behavior of. Zoology—Arctic regions 52-8681

An English naturalist describes the wild life and flora north of the Arctic Circle. Included are chapters on snow dogs, reindeer, fox, hare, wolf, caribou, walrus, seal, wolverine, bird life, and the odd little creatures: the lemmings, which periodically commit suicide by millions. Index.

Booklist 48:276 My 1 '52

Reviewed by T. M. Longstreth
Christian Science Monitor p13 J1 3 '52
200w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:796 My 1 '52 30w

"There have been some Arctic experts, I believe, who have quarreled with certain facts in this book. (Illingworth has been north, but hasn't made a life of it, as Stefansson, for instance, has). At any rate, for the interested layman and 'southerner,' this book makes good reading." An Devoe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 O 26 '52
250w

"Although his title calls for 'wild life,' Frank Illingworth has included the sledge dog and the reindeer herded by man in this account of animals of the Arctic. This is well and good, for I do not remember a better chapter about the reindeer than this one. Mr. Illingworth is a gifted writer. His chapter about the lemming is a masterpiece; the one on the wolverine is almost as good." Peter Freuchen

+ — N Y Times p37 Ap 6 '52 380w

"Rachel Carson and a few others may be able to write rings around [the author] to be sure. But his complete sincerity and his complete certainty that a lot of people will enjoy sharing his experiences result in bringing about just what he hopes for—a book that captivates by its honest simplicity and the sheer interest of the factual odds and ends he has to give his readers." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 11 '52
600w

INGLIS, SIR CHARLES EDWARD. Applied mechanics for engineers. 404p $7.50 Cambridge

620.1 Mechanics

"A work based on lectures given to students working for an honors degree in engineering at Cambridge University. It deals with such topics as rigid body statics, the theory of taut wires, stresses in frameworks, friction, particle dynamics, harmonic analysis, mechanical vibrations, and the principles of the gyroscope." Library J

Eng N 147:43 N 22 '51 260w

"The material is well selected, and exposition includes a fair number of worked examples. There is an exceptionally high number of illustrations. This work should be of interest to high school and college teachers of physics and engineering. Also, some working engineers may find it useful as a refresher." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:1708 O 15 '51 90w

INNES, HAMMOND, pseud. See Hammond-Innes, R.

INNES, MICHAEL, pseud. See Stewart, J. I. M.

INSTITUTE FOR RELIGIOUS AND SOCIAL STUDIES. Conflict of loyalties. See MacIver, R. M., ed.

INTERNATIONAL who is who in music; J. T. H. Mize, ed.-in-chief. mid-century ed 576p il $10 Who is who in music, inc, 3177 Broadway, Chicago 14

927.3 Musicians

"As stated in the Foreword by the publisher, this work 'aims to present to the world the musical elect of the world.' The volume contains biographies, necrologies, a number of classified directories of musical organizations, manufacturers, and publishers, a list of English language music periodicals, and a list of theme songs. . . The biography section occupies 439 pages, about four fifths of the 1951 volume. It includes information on music educators, music teachers, musicologists, composers, song writers, arrangers, and artists of both the concert and entertainment fields listed in alphabetical order. There are biographies only for the living." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 76:1809 N 1 '51 60w

"The book contains a great deal of material that cannot be found in other reference works. . . It remains something of a mystery how the book was planned, from the point of view of potential entrants. The full title of the book is a misnomer, for it is simply not 'international' in its coverage. Some foreign musicians are included, it is true, but possibly 95% of the articles concern persons of American birth or residence. . . Large music libraries should, I say with some reluctance, acquire this book, since it provides a vast amount of 'information' not available elsewhere. But it must be used with the utmost caution." C. W. Fox

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 9:123 D '51 650w

"The word 'international' in the title is misleading. It is true that 'international' aspects are represented in the biography and necrology section, and in the lists of orchestras, musical instrument manufacturers and artists' representatives. The general scope and emphasis of the work is American. . . In summary, the 1951 edition is useful as a source of brief information on contemporary American musicians and musical organizations. The International Who Is Who in Music, 1951 edition, is recommended for medium-sized and large public libraries and for university libraries."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 23:20 Ap '52
1000w

INTERPRETER'S Bible; the Holy Scriptures in the King James and revised standard versions with general articles and introduction, exegesis, exposition for each book of the Bible [editorial board: George Arthur Buttrick, and others] 12v; v 1, General articles on the Old Testament; Genesis; Exodus. 1129p maps $8.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury

220.7 Bible. Whole—Commentaries. Bible. O.T.—Genesis. Bible. O.T.—Exodus

(51-12276)

Volume I of this proposed twelve volume work, of which volumes seven and eight have been published, contains Genesis and Exodus, and twenty-two general articles on the Bible.

Booklist 49:41 O 1 '52

Reviewed by John Evans

Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 O 5 '52
370w

"This book, with the other volumes of the set as they appear, is one of the things that even a person with many books will want to keep within easy reach. And he had better get busy and read those general introductory articles before the next volume comes out."

W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:1193 O 15 '52 700w

"There is a great force of good in this world today in the very fact that men have met together to accomplish such a compendium as The Interpreter's Bible. The studies are made and the articles are written for the love of mankind and with the aforementioned grace." R. E. Donlon

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 O 2 '52 750w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller

Churchman 166:18 O 15 '52 220w

"The Interpreter's Bible will prove of surpassing worth. It would seem wise for every library of any size to place a standing order now." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 77:1902 N 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 23 '52 230w

Reviewed by Chad Walsh

N Y Times p11 D 21 '52 70w

Sat R 35:10 D 20 '52 190w

INTERPRETER'S Bible; the Holy Scriptures in the King James and revised standard versions with general articles and introduction, exegesis, exposition for each book of the Bible [editorial board: George Arthur Buttrick, and others] 12v; v. 8, The Gospel according to St Luke; The Gospel according to St John. 811p $8.75 Abingdon-Cokesbury 220.7 Bible. Whole—Commentaries. Bible. New Testament—St Luke. Bible. New Testament—St John (51-12276)

"The Luke-John volume which is now at hand follows the same pattern as its predecessor. For each Gospel there is an ample and scholarly introduction, the text is given according to the King James and R.S.V. translations, beneath which a belt of verse-by-verse exegesis runs across each page, and under that is a section of exposition. The expositors are Walter Russell Bowie, John Knox, George A. Buttrick, Paul Scherer and Arthur John Gossip." Christian Century

Booklist 49:41 O 1 '52

Reviewed by John Evans

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 15 '52 170w

"It is pleasant to know that every six months during the next five years there will be appearing a new volume of this extraordinary commentary. It would not be a bad idea for persons who take their Bible studies seriously to use these volumes in the order of their appearance as a text and guide." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:674 Je 4 '52 270w

"Eight million sincere words have been written into these 12 volumes by 'honest scholarship within the Protestant Evangelical faith.' This is a move in a spiritual direction that carries with it such a momentum of faith-supplying good that thousands must, of course, be blessed. Some students of the Bible will find the Exegesis—that part just below the text—of great value. If nothing else, it will serve to send them to a Bible concordance to check the given meanings for their own satisfaction. This will render the student results that mere surface reading could not have accomplished." R. E. Donlon

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 19 '52 890w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller

Churchman 166:12 J1 '52 250w

"Most preachers and many Bible teachers will regard this as an indispensable addition to their working libraries, the importance of which is not likely to be superseded for many years."

+ Kirkus 20:275 Ap 15 '52 210w

"Recommended for purchase by the medium and large public library and the college and theological seminary library." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 77:1013 Je 1 '52 300w

"To the average reader, as well as the clergyman and scholar, the first two volumes, covering as they do the four gospels, will probably be the most useful in the entire series, but it is not likely that many who have used these two will be willing to miss those yet to come." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p18 My 4 '52 240w

IRISH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

IRVING, LAURENCE HENRY FORSTER. Henry Irving: the actor and his world. 734p il $10 Macmillan

B or 92 Irving, Sir Henry 52-8871

Sir Henry Irving, the almost legendary English actor of the Victorian age, was born John Henry Brodribb, son of a Somerset farmer. This biography by his grandson covers his whole career, from his days as a stuttering, shy troupier in the provinces, thru his rise to fame, to his death and burial in Westminster Abbey. Includes a comprehensive list of the parts played by Sir Henry during his long career. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:377 J1 15 '52

Reviewed by E. V. Wyatt

+ Cath World 175:317 J1 '52 250w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ap 27 '52 420w

"Mr. Laurence Irving does not always, in his individual sentences, write impeccably, but the energy and excitement of his book in the mass cannot be gainsaid. This is a very remarkable work." Harold Hobson

+ Christian Science Monitor p13 Ap 24 '52 650w

Reviewed by P. E. Osgood

Churchman 166:13 D 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by John Cournos

Commonweal 56:124 My 9 '52 400w

+ Kirkus 20:107 F 1 '52 240w

"Highly recommended for large theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:900 My 15 '52 50w

"The new life challenges Brereton with its completeness, Stoker with its intimacy, and Craig with its insight. It has the advantage over the first two of being written later, and over the third of not being written against Shaw or anybody else. Irving's grandson has taken the old material and a lot of new and has produced from them a book which should be the standard work for a generation." Gerard Fav

+ Manchester Guardian p4 D 4 '51 650w

"An extremely solid and able book." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 174:406 Ap 26 '52 900w

"The long, informative and amusing book is a triumph of saturation. Irving has been raised by a brilliant biographical engineer from the deep, and I can think of no other instance in our literature in which the life of an actor has been so solidly made to replace its echoes. Mr. Laurence Irving's book is a major biographical work." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:643 D 1 '51 2150w

Reviewed by W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ap 27 '52 1100w

"This biography of Henry Irving by his grandson will seem long only to those whose passion for the theatre has become tame. The true theatre lover will eat it up. If he is a man of conscience he will also weep. For the narrative of Irving's career is more than just another success story: it is the picture of an epoch of social and artistic expansion, a theatrical era which began in a kind of shabby glamour and ended in moral glory and official triumph." Harold Clurman

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 27 '52 550w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden

New Yorker 28:78 J1 12 '52 2650w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols

San Francisco Chronicle p24 Ap 20 '52 1550w

IRVING, L. H. F.—Continued

Reviewed by Stark Young

Sat R 35:12 Ap 26 '52 650w

"A brilliant biography by his grandson who has turned what might have been a perfunctory piece of pious duty into an inspiring religious rite." St. John Ervine

+ Spec 187:656 N 16 '51 1250w

"Max Beerbohm wrote, 'Irving is but a memory—to be conjured out of the darkness.' Now along comes Henry Irving's grandson proving equal to the neatest conjuring act—with a biography of his famous actor-manager relative which is both entertaining and scrupulously objective." Richard McLaughlin

+ Theatre Arts 36:4 My '52 800w

"A comprehensive modern study of Henry Irving has long been needed. If Mr. Laurence Irving had done no more than reduce to order the existing published work on the subject his book would have been acceptable. Happily he has done far better and produced a spacious study of Irving in his historical context which is both definitive and original."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p722 N 16 '51 1750w

IRWIN, WILLIAM HENRY. History of the Union league club of New York city [completed after the author's death by] Earl Chapin May [and] Joseph Hotchkiss. 297p il $4 Dodd

367 Union league club, New York 52-7337

History of New York city's Union League Club, founded in 1863 to counteract Confederate feeling in the city. Includes a list of officers. No indexes.

"A valuable record of club, social and political life in New York, which becomes a more conventional and 'family' affair when the Club moves in 1931 from Fifth Avenue and begins life in its palatial Park Avenue building. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 76:2001 D 1 '51 140w

"The authors have done a good job, although Will Irwin, who began the project, did not live to finish it. . . . The whole makes a handsome and worthwhile volume." H. I. Brock

+ N Y Times p29 Mr 30 '52 400w

ISAACS, HAROLD ROBERT. Tragedy of the Chinese revolution. rev ed 382p $5 Stanford univ. press

951.042 China—History—Revolution, 1925-1928. Communism—China. 51-12683

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"However the arguments are weighed, The Tragedy of the Chinese Revolution reminds us of the impact of nearly-forgotten historic events, and remains a work of primary historic significance. So far as it incorporates Isaacs' conversations with leading participants it is actually source material." H. A. Steiner

Ann Am Acad 279:246 Ja '52 550w

Current Hist 22:36 Ja '52 160w

Reviewed by Guy Wint

Manchester Guardian p4 My 13 '52 200w

Reviewed by Bruno Lasker

New Repub 126:22 My 19 '52 410w

Reviewed by Nathaniel Pfeffer

Pol Sci Q 67:457 S '52 120w

"Isaacs reminds us, and rightly so, that the tragedy of China is also the tragedy of the Western world. To this we would all agree. Whether or not we would adhere to the program of world socialism, we should take pause at the implications of his final warning that 'we will either transform our parietic world and cast a global society, in which Asia and Africa can thrive with us, or else they will, out of intolerable frustration, create a new set of tyrannies, of which Russia's will have been but the first, and China's the second.'" J. W. Caruthers

Social Educ 16:89 F '52 650w

"The study is adequately documented from both Chinese and foreign sources. This fact along with the imprint of Stanford University give it the earmark of reliability in a period which, so far as this reviewer's knowledge goes, no other English scholar has delved."

W. M. Gewehr

+ Social Studies 43:262 O '52 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p472 J1 18 '52 600w

Reviewed by H. A. Steiner

Yale R ns 41:311 winter '52 500w

ISAACS, JACOB. Background of modern poetry. 94p $2.50 Dutton

821.09 Poetry 52-5313

A series of six lectures broadcast over the BBC three years ago. In them the author, a literary historian, traces the ancestry of modern poetry, describes its heyday, and outlines its historical perspective. No index.

Kirkus 20:207 Mr 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries

Nation 174:589 Je 14 '52 50w

"Professor of English Literature at Queen Mary College of the University of London, J. Isaacs is a Shakespearean scholar of well-deserved reputation. His present excursion into modern poetry, however, is not so much scholarship as it is scholar's talk, and very pleasant and pertinent talk it is. . . . His chapter on the Imagists is certainly the best short essay I have seen on the subject, and the chapter on poetry and science suggests some very rewarding speculations." John Ciardi

+ N Y Times p4 Ap 6 '52 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 18 '52 100w

"Exceptionally lucid and persuasive discussion." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R 35:42 Je 21 '52 300w

"The Background of Modern Poetry' is valuable both to the initiate and to anyone whose understanding runs to more conventional poetic patterns. Moreover, the fact that this collection of scholarly essays is the outgrowth of a series of BBC broadcasts gives the average American reader pause to ponder over the apparently higher level attained by the broadcasts of British radio stations." L. S. Munn

+ Spring'd Republican p6D J1 27 '52 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p167 Mr 7 '52 750w

ISHIMOTO, TATSUO. Art of driftwood and dried arrangements. 143p il $2.95 Crown

634.96 Floral decoration 51-12003

Photographs and brief text explain the principals of making artistic arrangements of driftwood, with cones, dried plants, stones and figurines added.

Booklist 48:119 D 1 '51

"Many of his arrangements are very fine; others are—to me, at least—less satisfactory. Some look like weird animals; others, pictured by themselves, without supporting material, are similar to modern statuary. The amusing Chinese patriarch he uses is the only figure that appeals to me. The horses spoil other effects, partly because they detract from the good lines of the main pieces." Helen Reber

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 F 10 '52 170w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 76:2006 D 1 '51 30w

Sat R 35:36 Ag 2 '52 10w

ITALIAN painting; v2, The renaissance; critical studies by Lionello Venturi; historical surveys by Rosabianca Skira-Venturi; tr. by Stuart Gilbert. (Painting, colour, history, v5) 168p 105 col il $17.50 Skira

759.5 Painting, Italian 52-1918

"The second volume of the Skira history of Italian painting covers the sixteenth century in Florence, Rome, Venice, and northern Italy. All the illustrations are in color. The 105 plates included in the present volume give a fair idea of many of the finest possessions of the galleries of Rome, Florence, Venice, Naples, Milan, Madrid, Paris, London, and Washington. In addition to the commanding figures, lesser masters like Savoldo, Moroni, and Lorenzo Lotto are fortunately included. . . . Venturi's daughter has written the many biographical summaries." Nation

"Superb presentation of the subject; photography and format are of unique excellence and the art criticism, with historical background is of high quality." M. P. Bourne

+ Cath World 174:399 F '52 450w

"The text is rather perfunctory. . . . [As] to the color plates, modern reproduction on shiny paper works reasonably well for bright-hued pictures, especially those of the past sixty years and of the early Renaissance. But the rich echoes of Leonardo's shadow or of Giorgione's color, not to mention the subtleties of late Titian and Tintoretto, are not caught so easily." S. L. Faison

+ Nation 174:16 Ja 5 '52 700w

"With so many great figures to consider, it's perhaps inevitable that some should be scamped a little; the tendency here is to concentrate on the key artists—Leonardo da Vinci, Michelangelo, Raphael, Titian, Tintoretto, and so on—somewhat to the detriment of slighter but still significant men. But though the result is thus less a history than a recapitulation of the period's great achievements, it is a handsome and authoritative book, and the illustrations . . . have been done with unusual care and exactitude."

+ New Yorker 28:147 Ap 5 '52 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 9 '51 220w

Reviewed by Walter Pach

Sat R of Lit 34:13 D 22 '51 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup. p640 O 3 '52 110w

IVANOV, VIACHESLAV IVANOVICH. Freedom and the tragic life; a study in Dostoevsky; foreword by Sir Maurice Bowra [tr. by Norman Cameron; ed. by S. Kononov]. 166p $3.50 Noonday press

891.73 Dostoevskii, Fedor Mikhailovich

A critical study of Dostoevsky and his writings, translated from the Russian of the one-time leader of the Russian symbolists. "His work on Dostoevsky is philosophical in tone and language; special attention is given to major characters in the novels and to mythological aspects of Dostoevsky's fiction." (Library J)

"Evaluation of such an uneven book is, of course, difficult. There is not a sustained excellence to Freedom and the Tragic Life, there are remarkable intuitions. And this, I suppose, makes it worthwhile, for all treatments of Dostoevsky are fragmentary, each point of illumination is important." Michael Harrington

+ Commonweal 57:148 N 14 '52 550w

"Will be of value to the specialist but will have limited appeal in general literature collections." Herbert Cahoon

Library J 77:1649 O 1 '52 50w

"A book which comes to grips with tragic realities and illuminates them." H. I.A. Fausset

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 9 '52 230w

"It is one of the great virtues of Vyacheslav Ivanov's study—and it is certainly the best to have appeared in English since Gide's lectures on Dostoevsky were published—that it frees the great myths which underlie Dostoevsky's novels and sets them in a wider European perspective. Mr. Norman Cameron has made an excellent translation of this wise and stimulating book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p646 O 3 '52 850w

IVENS, BRYNA, ed. Nineteen from Seventeen. See Seventeen (periodical)

IVEY, CAROLINE. The family. 379p $3.50 Sloane

52-9735

The Olmstead family were genteel Southerners, living in Alabama. It was a close knit family, and even after Shelby married her northerner she did not want to leave home. The story is told mostly from her point of view, and during the months from a post-war Christmas to spring Shelby finally learns to understand herself and her husband.

Booklist 48:360 J1 1 '52

"Families often have a private language whose terms are incomprehensible to outsiders; the author of The Family speaks in cryptogram and has not succeeded in making the language of her fable public." Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:392 Ag '52 250w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 29 '52 400w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '52 40w

"Leaving the formless symbolism of Capote for greater practicality, it creates a truer image. But not for the masses."

Kirkus 20:162 Mr 1 '52 240w

"Substantial, mature, and interesting first novel. . . . The drama is heightened because Miss Ivey has told her story largely in dialogue, for which she has a marked gift. . . . Yet her book has its weaknesses. Vivid though it is as it goes along, its total effect is oddly nebulous." Dan Wickenden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 My 11 '52 600w

"Caroline Ivey writes well, with wit and some emotion, but there is a faint smell about 'The Family,' not altogether disagreeable, merely cloying, a whiff too much of sex." Evelyn Eaton

N Y Times p14 Je 1 '52 150w

"A novel which in its framework depends on the moral, simple, yet vitally important tensions of everyday family life, which deals with people such as we all know, is more difficult to write than one with melodramatic plot dealing with the warped, frustrated, violent characters so familiar in modern fiction, especially Southern fiction. Mrs. Ivey has not been wholly successful in her attempt. The characters do not develop, grow richer and deeper with the events of the story." C. R. Sumner

Sat R 35:15 My 17 '52 650w

"Most of The Family is a quarrel-by-quarrel account of a North-South marriage; the rest is a sympathetic picture of the gallant but slipping Olmsteads. As a study in regional contrasts, Author Ivey's book is persuasive; but it is too long and slow, and its main theme need not have been worried quite so much."

Time 59:110 Je 9 '52 140w

"Although the author does not entirely escape stereotyping, she has style and a fund of humor. Her conversations are, if anything, too literary."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:254 S '52 160w

J

JACKSON, ALICE FANNY, and JACKSON, BETTINA. Three hundred years American; The epic of a family from seventeenth-century New England to twentieth-century Midwest. 368p il $4 State hist. soc. of Wis.

929.2 Jackson family. New England—Social life and customs

"The story of an American family beginning with their roots in England more than 400 years ago. The use of old documents—wills, deeds, marriage and birth certificates, entries in old family Bibles, old letters, weathered gravestones—all played a part in preparation of this story." (Wis Lib Bul) Bibliography. Index.

JACKSON, A. F.—Continued

"Genealogy with so much interesting history in it that it deserves the notice of social historians and historians of immigration." G. S. F.
+ Am Hist R 57:1052 J1 '52 400w
"Readable Americana."
+ Wis Lib Bul 48:92 Mr '52

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Clown at second base. 250p $2.50 Crowell

52-6721
"Lots of baseball in this story of an irrepressible practical joker. By the end of the story he had grown up enough to turn a joke against himself, for the good of the team, and see that though there were times clowning helped the team, the demand for a little self-restraint wasn't an affront to his rights." Bookmark

Bookmark 11:164 Ap '52 50w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 22 '52 10w

Kirkus 20:77 F 1 '52 130w

"Bucky is a refreshing hero, neither overly thin-skinned nor overly thickheaded—just a likeable fellow who has us on his side most of the time and plays good baseball. Boys should enjoy. Ages 12-16." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 77:214 F 1 '52 70w
Sat R 35:59 My 10 '52 30w

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Little Leaguer's first uniform; il. by Charles Klinger. 99p $2.50 Crowell

52-7861

"Johnny and his brother Hank are both Little League members. When Hank catches the mumps and cannot play with his team in the series at Williamsport, he chooses Johnny to wear his uniform. Although Johnny knows he is not series size or caliber, he is determined to make Hank proud of him. His pluck results in a spectacular performance." N Y Times

Booklist 49:145 D 15 '52

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 16 '52 50w

Kirkus 20:657 O 1 '52 130w

"This is a fine story for the younger sport fans by a man who knows his sports and what small fry like." M. C. Skinner
+ Library J 77:2012 N 15 '52 60w

"Its very simple style is at the same time funny and real, as are the many clever sketches." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p22 N 16 '52 20w
+ N Y Times pt2, p34 N 16 '52 60w

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Rose Bowl line backer. 184p $2.50 Crowell

51-12881

"'Responsibility,' Coach Etteboon told him time and again, 'has to come from within.' But Al Kudef, University of Michigan football captain, wanted no part of it—on or off the gridiron. It takes a combination of defeats and victories in stiff Big Ten competition plus a disastrous first half in the Rose Bowl before Al finally overcomes his reluctance to assume leadership." N Y Times

"Every game is described in detail, the intricate plays carefully explained; a feature that will especially appeal to fans." E. C. Ince
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 25 '51 170w

Kirkus 19:534 S 15 '51 130w

"Good plot, good football, and quite a bit of suspense. Recommended for all children's rooms and young people's collections." M. D. Read

+ Library J 76:2126 D 15 '51 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 16 '51 50w

N Y Times p22 N 11 '51 140w

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL (COLIN LOCHLONS, pseud). Triple play. 193p $2.50 Crowell

52-6722

Story of a German refugee of high school age who attempts to find his way in an American school. For ages ten to thirteen.

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Je 22 '52 20w

"Willi's is a lumbering story. . . Too bad, for in spite of the heaviness, situations like the English teacher's insistent, unjustified demands and Willi's best pal's admonitions about kidding, provide some genuine hits."
— + Kirkus 20:74 F 1 '52 110w

"An unusual high school story in type and style to appeal to 10 or 11 year olds up." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 My 11 '52 30w

"The easy vocabulary and simple sentence structure make this a good book for the 'not-so-fast' reader. Although stock phrases, pat situations and some stereotyped characters weaken the story, it will be welcomed by the Lochlons fans." S. G. Shaw

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 23 '52 140w

JACKSON, CLARENCE S., and MARSHALL, LAWRENCE W. Quest of the Snowy Cross. 135p il $2.50 Univ. of Denver press

978.8 Mount of the Holy Cross, Colorado. Jackson, William Henry 52-9493

There is a mountain peak in Colorado known as the Mount of the Holy Cross, because of a formation of ice and snow on its slope which takes the form of a gigantic cross. This book contains the story of the first man to make a photograph of the peak, William H. Jackson, written by his son.

"The book is aimed at an audience that prefers its history in fictional form; this account, however, is far too fictional. Pat Casey, a legendary character of Central City, who actually left Colorado in 1863, turns up ten years too late, and Horace Tabor, who was over six feet, is described as 'short.' Yet nothing can destroy the photographic art of W. H. Jackson, the co-author's father whose diaries provide the bulk of the material for this book. His picture-making proved that there really was a Mount of the Holy Cross and this, alone, is worth the book's modest cost." Caroline Bancroft

N Y Times p32 My 25 '52 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 4 '52 80w

"A most interesting and quite valuable account of the 'official' discovery of the Mount of the Holy Cross in Colorado, a breath-taking natural wonder still too remote for the ordinary tourist to bother to find." R. F. H.
+ Springfield Republican p9D My 25 '52 180w

JACKSON, DOROTHY V. S. Bold venture. 245p $2.50 Lippincott

Horses—Legends and stories 52-7462

"The seventeen-year-old heroine receives as a legacy a horse, who because of early cruel treatment, has proven practically unmanageable. Johanna determines to win his love, trust, and obedience, and finally does so." Library J

Booklist 49:50 O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:13 O '52 20w

Kirkus 20:375 J1 1 '52 90w

"Well written." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 77:1669 O 1 '52 40w

"The style is occasionally a bit lush, but it has vigor and frequent flashes of beauty. A girl's awakening to sex is handled with more reality than usual. . . . Any one who is absorbed in the work in the ring and in horse shows will find its details exact and its horses real." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p34 N 16 '52 170w

"Though much of the action takes place in stable and paddock, this is not just another horse story. The father-daughter relationship is exceptionally fine. The characters are sharply drawn and the problem of a young girl's striving for maturity is skillfully handled." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times pt2, p18 N 16 '52 150w

JACKSON, ELMORE. Meeting of minds, a way to peace through mediation; with special contributions by Carl Christian Schmidt [and] Sir Frederick W. Leggett. 200p il $3.50 McGraw

341.63 Arbitration, International. Arbitration, Industrial 52-6539

"This is an attempt by the Representative of the American Friends Service Committee to the United Nations to draw comparisons between the current techniques used in settling labor disputes and those in use in international disputes. The first three chapters are devoted to machinery in the United States, Sweden and Great Britain. . . . The fourth chapter apparently by Mr. Jackson goes into a detailed account of the machinery, past and present, for handling international disputes. This gives not only a clear analysis of procedures but an excellent account of the way these have been used and the results obtained." Library J

Reviewed by Robert Strausz-Hupé
Ann Am Acad 284:168 N '52 800w
Booklist 49:4 S 1 '52
Bookmark 12:53 D '52 20w

Reviewed by C. W. Anrod
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 7 '52 230w

"This book is a useful summary of recent experience in the reconciliation of international differences and a guide to further study and experiment in one of the most important as well as most primitive arts."

+ Christian Century 69:1064 S 17 '52 190w

"Not an easy book to read or follow but worthwhile for those who wish to understand the need and methods of making minds meet. Definitely not a how-to book. For students of the theory."

Kirkus 20:362 Je 15 '52 140w

"The final portion of the book is devoted to comparisons and conclusions. While these are interesting there is nothing definitive about them. From the whole the reader will not get a directive for action but an impetus for further thought and study." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 77:1204 J1 '52 160w

Reviewed by Scott Keyes
Nation 175:498 N 29 '52 700w

"A useful and orderly book." Stuart Chase
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 31 '52 700w
San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 5 '52 140w

JACKSON, JOSEPH HENRY. Glory of our West. See Glory of our West.

JACKSON, JOSEPH HENRY, ed. Western gate; a San Francisco reader. (City and country readers ser) 524p $4.75 Farrar, Straus
979.461 San Francisco. American literature—Collections 52-11608

Selection of materials on San Francisco, historical and descriptive, by such writers as Bret Harte, Mark Twain, Kipling, Stevenson and Norris, and less well known names of Spanish padres, Russian traders, Yankee gold-seekers. Materials are grouped under four headings: Before the gold; The gold rush; The city grows up; City of our times.

Booklist 49:10 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 20w

"Everyone who has sensed the San Francisco legend from afar will enjoy this rich compilation of testimony to the city's fame. Moreover, San Franciscans themselves, whether resident or camping out elsewhere, will dote on this fat volume, which skims off the cream of the evidence to be found in archives, libraries, and newspaper files." Charles Collins

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 7 '52 280w

"For anyone who feels, like Willie Britt, that 'I'd rather be a busted lamp post on Battery Street San Francisco than the Waldorf-Astoria,' this is the book. And if you don't feel that way, you may, if you don't watch out." R. R. Bruum

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 16 '52 650w

"Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 77:2181 D 15 '52 60w

"If you have ever become so interested in a place that you collected every choice bit you found in print about it you will warmly recognize the impulse behind this offering. And if you could get one of the best-read experts on the subject to sort out the most telling items, you would have an ensemble somewhat like this book that the literary editor of the 'San Francisco Chronicle' has turned out concerning his adopted hometown." David Greenwood

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 14 '52 600w

"In this volume, much of what belongs is present, under the masterly touch of Joseph Henry Jackson, veteran literary editor of The San Francisco Chronicle and author of books about California in his own right. His own introductions to each of the four sections are helpful, and the book as a whole will delight anybody who has learned to love San Francisco—especially the faithless and unwise who once dwelt there but moved away." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 17 '52 450w

"It is a portrait well worth becoming acquainted with; few cities have had such a fascinating past."

+ New Yorker 28:120 S 27 '52 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ag 17 '52 800w

JACKSON, MRS KATHRYN, ed. Santa Claus book; pictures by Retta Worcester. 128p $1.50 Simon & Schuster

Christmas stories. Christmas poetry 52-12983

"This 'Big Golden Book' is a collection of forty-three Christmas stories and poems for the young child. Original stories are by the author and other material from new sources, so that most of the content is fresh." Library J

"Every large page is generously decorated with amusing, brightly colored pictures." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 D 14 '52 40w

"Libraries will probably prefer to buy pre-bound. Will be useful for added holiday material." D. M. Blasco

Library J 77:2182 D 15 '52 70w

"It is, on the whole, an attractive, festive collection, unfortunately illustrated with more enthusiasm than imagination by Retta Worcester." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p50 D 7 '52 30w

Spring'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 30w

JACKSON, MARY LUCILLE, ed. See Special libraries association. Science-technology division. Technical libraries: their organization and management

JAFFE, ABRAM J., and STEWART, CHARLES DAVID. Manpower resources and utilization; principles of working force analysis. 532p $6.50 Wiley

331.12 Labor supply—U.S. 51-7042

"The work of a sociologist and an economist, this is the fullest analysis thus far published of manpower and labor force. In the first part of their work, the authors survey the historical, conceptual, and technical bases of working force statistics now in use and show how these data are applied to current problems of manpower and employment. The second part of the book, dealing with the American labor force in its economic and demographic setting, discusses present and historical trends in its size, characteristics, and composition." U S Quarterly Bk R

Reviewed by W. E. Moore

Am J Soc 58:120 J1 '52 800w

"This volume is an outstanding contribution to the literature. The authors have achieved a rare accomplishment in the population field: they provide stimulating analysis for the vast arrays of facts with which they deal. In so doing they do not reduce the analysis to oversimplified generalizations. Indeed, they make every effort to articulate their findings with sociological theory and with economic theory." Robert Dubin

+ Am Soc R 17:252 Ap '52 360w

Reviewed by V. C. Phelan

Ann Am Acad 280:195 Mr '52 500w

"Personnel managers, directors of industrial relations, labor leaders and top management will be interested in this scholarly and somewhat historical study of the U.S. labor force." R. V. R.

+ Chem Eng 59:341 O '52 280w

Foreign Affairs 30:675 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:1933 N 15 '51 80w

"It will interest only the student of this particular area of economic development or the specialist concerned with solving manpower problems with which this country may be confronted in the not too distant future." D. K. Oko

Library J 76:1935 N 15 '51 160w

"Manpower Resources and Utilization is a scholarly work written in a scholarly style; it is not easy reading and would probably be rated 'difficult' on a Flesch reading ease scale. The subject is one of interest to government, management, and labor, although its implications will be employed chiefly at the higher operational levels." J. E. Mangelsdorf

+ Management R 41:472 J1 '52 650w

"This book represents a valuable source of basic data and an important guide to government and industry thinking." R. C.

+ Sat R 35:42 Ja 19 '52 40w

"A brief review can only suggest the rich sources of material in this volume. Even the casual reader will find compelling evidence of the importance of manpower conservation in pages 109-118 where problems in the event of partial or full military mobilization are discussed. If this analysis is correct, its implications should be brought to the attention of all Americans." R. F. Gould

+ Social Forces 30:472 My '52 380w

"This book concentrates on statistics, not on humans. For the student of statistical techniques and analysis of the labor force this book is a valuable reference work. But for the average reader who wants to understand the implications of our drastically altered manpower situation, this book offers little. It deals scarcely at all with the human implications of the manpower problem and its authors take slight risk! They offer few predications as to what the manpower trends of the past and the exigencies of the moment mean for us as families, as workers, and as parents in the future." J. J. Corson

Survey 88:238 My '52 360w

"This well-balanced, unusually perceptive book will prove valuable not only to students of the subject but to all those who must deal with particular aspects of the manpower problem."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:400 D '51 210w

JALOUX, EDMOND. His last friendship. See Rilke, R. M.

JAMES, HENRY DUVAL, and MARKLE, LEWIS EDWIN. Controllers for electric motors; a treatise on the modern motor controller with typical applications to the industries. 2d ed 426p il $7 McGraw

621.3174 Electric controllers 51-13589

"A standard book for electrical engineers and other technically trained persons who select or maintain motor control equipment. . . . The preceding edition appeared in 1945 [Book Review Digest 1945]. For this edition the chapter on the control of crane and hoist motors was rewritten, and numerous additions covering recent developments in motor control have been added in other chapters." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 49:35 S 15 '52

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:2176 D 15 '52 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:70 S '52

JAMES, JOSEPH, ed. Way of mysticism; an anthology. 274p $3 Harper

248 [149.3] Mysticism. Literature—Collections 51-14123

An anthology of passages chosen from writers of all ages and countries, arranged under the headings: God turns towards man; Man turns toward God. Index.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:102 Ja 23 '52 1200w

"The truth is that while many pertinent things are said about their views by the mystics themselves, the volume does not seem to provide a good guide for one who might try to embark upon the mystical pathway himself. Apparently Mr. James felt this was a weakness of the anthological part of the book, for he has appended an epilogue in the American edition, stating that many felt that the Great Britain edition, which ended with the anthology itself, left certain important matters undiscussed. The same impression was made upon me. While the epilogue is an effort by the author to correct this weakness, it would have been much better if the correction had been made by introducing suitable source material into the body of the anthology. Students of mysticism will want to study this anthology. Perhaps in the light of the criticism of this review and that of other reviewers, a more adequate anthology may one day be produced." G. W. Davis

+ — Crozer Q 29:243 Ap '52 500w

JAMES, ROBERT, pseud. See Heitner, I.

JANEWAY, ELIOT. Struggle for survival; a chronicle of economic mobilization in World war II. (Chronicles of America ser, v53) 332p il $5; textbk ed $2.50; subs ed lea $6 Yale univ. press

330.973 Industrial mobilization (for war). World war, 1939-1945—Economic aspects. U.S.—Economic policy 51-7683

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"In its 320 pages the book packages twelve extremely pungent and pointed chapters. It is a lesson in the reality of economics that all of us must recognize as the ultimate translation of economic ideas into worldly activities. The book concludes with an extremely well documented Bibliographical Note which brings together an excellent list of references for those who are interested in or must deal with the economics of industrial mobilization or planning either in war, semi-war, or peace." David Novick

+ Am Econ R 42:459 Je '52 1000w

"Far from examining the economic experience of the nation as it responded to the demands of the war, or gauging the relative contribution of American production to the eventual victory, [the author] barely mentions the world outside Washington. His is therefore a study of bureaucratic politics, not of economic history nor of the war. As such, its value is principally that of a memoir by a man who had much close personal knowledge of the events he recounts. The study has a further interest as a document for what it reveals, sometimes inadvertently, of the evolution in the outlook of some of the New Dealers, who in 1939 hoped to salvage their domestic program of social reform by giving it the guise of national defense and who ultimately came to think of themselves as leaders in a worldwide crusade, whose principal allies were big business and the military." Paul Farmer

+ Am Hist R 57:758 Ap '52 300w

Reviewed by W. Y. Elliott

Ann Am Acad 284:175 N '52 550w

"One cannot read the book without a resurgence of confidence in the durability of the country's economy and the common sense of the American public. These seemingly are sufficient to offset a fearsome amount of bungling and fumbling in Washington." Anthony Wirry

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 17 '52 240w

Reviewed by S. R. Davis

Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 10 '52 800w

"In many ways it is a useful book, showing the shuffling of key figures by the late president to meet criticism or antagonism, the interference of the executive branches with each other and the interference of a politically-astute president with all." J. R. L.

Current Hist 22:102 F '52 450w

Foreign Affairs 30:675 Jl '52 30w

"As management sadly realizes, mobilization has become one of the new master subjects of our time. Eliot Janeway, consulting economist and political analyst, has made an important contribution to the understanding of this growing force in our society." P. R. Kelly

+ Management R 41:405 Je '52 750w

"It is history to which Mr. Janeway is contributing. His contribution has value, but it needs to be read with a good deal of reserve." Bruce Catton

+ Nation 174:113 F 2 '52 600w

Sat R 35:48 Ja 19 '52 80w

"In some ways, it is the least satisfactory of the recent six [of the series]; yet in other respects, it must be considered of the greatest significance. Any study of the transition from a peace- to a war-time economy is complex. But in Janeway's treatment it is made involved and confused. . . . Nevertheless, The Struggle for Survival should be firmly implanted as a warning beacon. Here is a record of an earlier mobilization that could be used as a profitable sentinel against repeating many errors in the present readjustment of the economy." W. G. Tyrrell

+ Social Educ 16:42 Ja '52 180w

"This kind of book has its place, and, in its sweeping statements, offers many new interpretations of just what did go on in executive boards and government bureaus from 1939 to 1942; it does not, however, present a balanced report of economic mobilization, nor is it the sort of comprehensive, brief analysis that has come to be expected in the Chronicles of America Series. If Mr. Janeway's persistently epigrammatic writing annoys some scholars, it is, on the whole, lively and in keeping with the popular aim of the series."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:57 Mr '52 260w

"This is an important and provocative book which can be read for pleasure as well as profit. There are many passages which could be used as texts for sermons of current moral, as well as social, significance." H. M. Somers

+ Yale R n s 41:293 winter '52 850w

JANNES, ELLY. Elle Kari; photographs by Anna Riwkin-Brick. [44p] $2 Macmillan
Photographic books

Photographs and brief text describe the life of Elle Kari, a little girl who lives in Lapland.

Booklist 49:93 N 1 '52

Kirkus 20:548 S 1 '52 50w

"The brief, simple text, translated from the Swedish, may seem too juvenile beyond the second-fourth grades, but the pictures will be enjoyed by all ages, and the book might well find a place in the school curriculum. Must be rebound." Inger Boye

+ Library J 77:1818 O 15 '52 80w

"It is unusual subject matter, beautifully photographed and printed, with appeal beyond the picture-book age, which will love this faraway child for her own sake. It is fine for elementary geography classes." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p7 N 16 '52 70w

"The photographs are always vivid and occasionally strikingly beautiful. A thread of story, concerning Elle Kari's dog, gives a continuity and human interest which are too often missing from photographic picture books." Lavinia Davis

+ N Y Times p36 S 28 '52 90w

New Yorker 28:188 D 6 '52 40w

JANSON, HORST WOLDEMAR, and JANSON, DORA JANE. Story of painting for young people; from cave painting to modern times. 164p col pl $4.95 Abrams

759 Painting—History. Paintings

"The interesting choice of paintings, half of them familiar, half seldom seen in art books, springs from the point of view of the text. Its aim is to help the eyes of the reader who might be any one over twelve, to be freshly opened to the great world of pictures. History, religion, social progress, movements in art, all are woven into an easy-reading story which never is condescending." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"No short review can do justice to this large and beautiful book. It must be seen and studied to be fully appreciated." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p41 D 7 '52 160w

"Written with charm and simplicity, dealing with man-size ideas, but in terms which young people will understand." O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 18 '52 140w

Kirkus 20:742 D 1 '52 200w

"An outstanding gift book of the fall, this is beautifully and intelligently made. It reflects a knowledge of art and ways to interpret it which is a result of years of study, travel and teaching." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p2 N 16 '52 230w

"Generalizations are discarded in favor of concrete discussion of admirably selected pictures. The book represents a heroic job of esthetics made easy without vulgarization." A. B. L.

+ N Y Times pt2, p30 N 16 '52 90w

"An extraordinary volume for children of ten and up that combines sound aesthetics with a scholarly treatment of the history of painting."

+ New Yorker 28:206 D 6 '52 70w

JANTZ, HAROLD STEIN. Goethe's Faust as a renaissance man: parallels and prototypes. 197p $3.50 Princeton univ. press

832.62 Goethe, Johann Wolfgang von—Faust. Renaissance 51-14168

"In brief compass, this extended essay demonstrates that Goethe's Faust is neither a symbolic 'confession' nor an historical projection of eighteenth-century man, but rather a largely objective drama of the typical Renaissance man blended with the personal experiences that go into the creative process. A large number of parallels are adduced for Faust's attitude toward the sciences, his turn to magic, especially the invocation of the Macrocosm and the Earth-Spirit, his translation of the Bible, the presence of aerial spirits." U S Quarterly Bk R

"Within clearly definable limits, this is an illuminating monograph. Unfortunately, the preface and the first and last chapters are apt to confuse the reader with their long discussions of what the author is trying to do, and what he is not trying to do." W. A. Kaufmann

JANTZ, H. S.—Continued

+ J Philos 49:401 My 22 '52 550w
School & Society 74:367 D 8 '51 20w
U S Quarterly Bk R 8:26 Mr '52 180w

JAQUES, ELLIOTT. Changing culture of a factory. 341p $4.25 Dryden

658.3 Glacier metal company. Factory management

"Account of an interesting research project carried on in an English factory. The purpose of the study was to help management improve the working life of its employees. The report gives general background of the factory, history of the firm and its organization. This is followed by detailed descriptions of five case studies carried on in different parts of the plant; the final section deals with the results of the techniques introduced." (Library J) Index.

"Many American academic and industrial students will find the book valuable because of the locale of the study, the formal documents indicating growth of democratic participation by all personnel in decision-making, the discussion of leadership, and as the nucleus of future reports with promised evaluation and development of theory." Melville Dalton

+ Am J Soc 58:312 N '52 410w

Reviewed by Orvis Collins

Am Soc R 17:794 D '52 650w

"The study was conducted under the auspices of the Tavistock Institute of Human Relations by a group of highly qualified industrial psychologists. The very English style of presentation may limit its use to specialists in the field." D. K. Oko

Library J 77:1407 S 1 '52 150w

"The Changing Culture of a Factory is not easy reading. But it is, in this reviewer's considered judgment, one of the most important books to have appeared in the field of industrial sociology. The Dryden Press merits the American reader's gratitude for making it readily available to us." Nathaniel Cantor

+ Management R 41:548 Ag '52 1100w

"It is a commonplace that whilst enormous sums are spent in research into the physics and chemistry of industry, industrial psychology has only been recognised as a subject deserving serious study within the last 30 years, and is still in its formative stages. . . Dr. Jaques' book makes the neglect of the subject at once regrettable and to some extent understandable—regrettable because of its obvious importance; understandable because of its extreme difficulty. . . The main interest of this book to the layman lies in the light it throws on the psychological problems of any democracy." Nigel Balchin

+ Spec 187:132 J1 27 '51 850w

JARMAN, RUFUS. Bed for the night; the story of the Wheeling bellboy. E. M. Statler, and his remarkable hotels. 309p il $3.50 Harper

B or 92 Statler, Ellsworth Milton. Hotels Statler company, incorporated 52-5452

Describes the rise of Ellsworth M. Statler from bellhop in a West Virginia hotel in the 1870's to his death in 1928, when he was head of the great Statler Hotel chain. Includes chapters on the various aspects of hotel management.

Booklist 48:333 Je 15 '52

"The story may prove a bit boring to the reader at first because Jarman recites a list of statistics which sound like a report to the board of directors. But the reader is urged to continue on, for, once over the statistical hump, Jarman's book soars into the realm of downright good reading." Lee Shassere

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 1 '52 280w

"It's quite a tale, of greater interest than might be generally thought, which, in its once over thoroughly, is a happy public relations handling."

+ Kirkus 20:215 Mr 15 '52 240w

"Informative, interesting and often diverting story." John McNulty

+ N Y Times p3 My 25 '52 800w

"In addition to being the story of Statler himself and the story of the Statler hotels, the book is one thing more. It is in essence the story of how the hotel business has changed in half a century. The man who caused the change was E. M. Statler. His ideas—to call them inventions is not going too far—are now familiar everywhere, but they made hotel business in America a wholly new thing. It is this fact, and the fact that Statler himself was therefore a more significant figure than most realize, that makes 'A Bed for the Night' the entertaining reading it is." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 5 '52 650w

"A fascinating story." H. S.

+ Sat R 35:35 S 6 '52 280w

"Anyone who has ever set foot in a modern hotel should find something here to amuse or inform him." J. C. C.

Springf'd Republican p5D J1 20 '52 160w

Wis Lib Bul 48:163 J1 '52

JARMAN, THOMAS LECKIE. Landmarks in the history of education; English education as part of the European tradition. 323p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

370.942 Education—Great Britain [52-253]

A discussion of English education showing that historically it is part of a process which originated with the ancient Greeks. It is the author's contention that the nature and methods of English education reflect the cultural and social character of successive phases of European history. Bibliography. Index.

"There is much merit in Jarman's book. His task in selecting significant landmarks for inclusion was not easy. In the main he has discharged this responsibility satisfactorily." F. E. Ellis

+ Ann Am Acad 283:215 S '52 360w

Reviewed by William Sacksteder

Ethics 62:306 J1 '52 60w

Reviewed by R. H. Tawney

Manchester Guardian p4 O 12 '51 480w

"A scholarly book, largely based on original sources, which makes it suitable for students and others interested in the origin of some surviving practices and views in education. The closing chapter is a well-rounded survey of recent reforms, planned or, in some cases, in effect." G. E. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 J1 20 '52 30w

Reviewed by Siegfried Mandel

Sat R 35:38 S 13 '52 30w

"The bibliography of primary and secondary sources is most helpful to the student; yet the volume as a whole appears to be too advanced for textbook purposes and too elementary for scholars." W. W. Brickman

School & Society 75:341 My 31 '52 230w

Reviewed by W. O. L. Smith

Spec 185:561 Ap 27 '51 1000w

"Although the educationist will find it rather slight, Mr. Jarman's historical review, with its anecdotes and quotations, should satisfy a layman. There are some remarkable gaps—virtually nothing is said about girls' education—but in a volume of 300 pages which begins in ancient Athens, passes through the Middle Ages and Renaissance, and winds up with the 1944 Act some gaps are to be expected."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p393 Je 22 '51 500w

JARRELL, RANDALL. Seven-league crutches. 94p $2.75 Harcourt

811 51-12684
For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ja 13 '52 130w

"The poems seek the rhythm of the speaking voice, and in this there is something very personal about Mr. Jarrell's utterance. His is the voice which knows pity and despair. At present it seems a little submerged by a mixture of grief and overwhelming but rather fragmentary European impressions. Perhaps the most successful of these long poems is one about another poet, Tristan Corbière. It is as though the feeling Mr. Jarrell has for Corbière's poetry had heightened the tone of his own utterance, which tends to become a little monotonous in the poems of pure sentiment. Mr. Jarrell is one of the most interesting poets living, and one of the most alert critical intelligences. He is also a difficult and even baffling poet." Stephen Spender

+ — Nation 174:182 F 23 '52 900w

Reviewed by M. L. Rosenthal
New Repub 126:21 Je 2 '52 800w

"There is something not so much eerie as bloodless in Jarrell's world, inhabited almost exclusively, as it is, with beings too young to have known life or too baffled to act. These creatures revolve in a limbo of pain and fear. It is difficult to animate such shadows or to attach any dramatic substance to them." Louise Bogan

New Yorker 27:107 F 16 '52 180w

"The final interpretation of Mr. Jarrell's dramatic lyricism is that the single tree projects itself into the forest and is the forest—in various particulars and in the mass—and is the ontology, the scene of all action. . . . The basic measure of his achievement as literary artist is that, whatever happens in the poems, he is also, incessantly and musically, the mere air moving in the branches. He knows, this user of the seven-league crutches, that this is poetry." Parker Tyler

+ Poetry 79:335 Mr '52 4350w

"Viewed as a whole, the new volume contains real successes, advances both in technical achievement and in depth and range of content."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:33 Mr '52 250w

"With his fourth volume Jarrell has established himself as a poet of the first importance." Frederick Brantley

+ Yale R n s 41:477 spring '52 310w

JARRY, ALFRED. Ubu roi, drama in five acts; tr. from the French by Barbara Wright; with 2 por. of the author by L. Lantier and F. A. Cazals and several drawings by Jarry and Pierre Bonnard, and 204 drawings by Franciszka Themerson; all followed by The song of the disembarking [tr. by Barbara Wright]. 164p $6.50 New Directions

842 [A52-9383]

"This 'drama in five acts' was originally a French schoolboy joke burlesquing an unpopular master. It was later altered and adapted by Jarry, and produced in Paris by Lugné-Poe in 1896, when it created a considerable sensation. . . . King Ubu, a typical product of a schoolboy imagination, is a monster of brutality and cowardice, who jolted and titillated the refined taste of the French literary world of the fin de siècle and was raised by it to the dignity of a symbol of brazen Philistinism. This [is the] first English translation." New Yorker

"The language does not and probably could not wholly come across in any translation. For this reason, any translation would be likely to expose the inachievment of Jarry somewhat more frankly than they deserve. Yet it is useful to have the play in English, and it is fun to have it so appropriately illustrated by Franciszka Themerson and printed in the extravagantly Jarryesque manner of this edition." W. M. Becker

New Repub 126:21 My 26 '52 350w

"The book itself is a little too fantastic to be comfortably read, for the text is not printed in the usual way but has been reproduced in facsimile from the script of the translator on bright-yellow paper and is entangled on every page with grotesque little pencil drawings. These drawings, by Franciszka Themerson, are, however, admirable and very much in the spirit of Jarry."

New Yorker 28:143 My 10 '52 200w

"Ubu Roi is supposed to have caused riots in Paris toward the close of the nineteenth century. I doubt that it will do any such thing again, when it is put on the boards by the Living Theatre Players in Greenwich Village. The surrealists have claimed it as a kind of primer or source book, so I am told but reading it over today I'm afraid it resembles nothing so much as an over-labored historical pun. It is not very funny." Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 36:76 Mr '52 270w

JASPERS, KARL. Way to wisdom; an introduction to philosophy; tr. by Ralph Manheim. 208p $3 Yale univ. press

100 Philosophy 51-13957

A summary of his philosophical beliefs by a modern philosopher, one of the founders of existentialism and professor of philosophy at the University of Basle.

Reviewed by A. C. Garnett

+ Christian Century 69:561 My 7 '52 750w

"This is a beautiful and puzzling book." T. V. Smith

+ — N Y Times p6 Ag 10 '52 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p569 S 7 '51 1400w

"Whether or not one is disposed to question the adequacy of Jaspers' interpretation of philosophy, this little book is an eloquent expression of a great hope that philosophy may again become an activity really relevant not only to the perennial problems of life and death but to the unusual configurations of such problems in our time." J. N. Hartt

+ Yale R n s 41:461 spring '52 1050w

JAVITS, BENJAMIN ABRAHAM. How the Republicans can win in 1952. 148p $2.50 Holt
329.01 Republican party. Campaign literature, 1952 52-6628

"New York corporation lawyer, brother of Republican member of House, strongly emphasizes that principles, not men, are needed to lead G. O. P. to victory. His ideas, presented in seven planks, correspond somewhat to goals of progressive wing of his party; but going beyond those goals he aims at a modern society serving the consumer and also reducing the overgrown federal and state governments." Library J

Booklist 48:275 My 1 '52

Reviewed by Joseph Hearst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 23 '52 200w

Reviewed by R. R. Brunn

Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 7 '52 410w

Kirkus 20:141 F 15 '52 170w

"Small book which will be criticized by Democrats and Republicans for political reasons, but by many also as impractical, sometimes almost utopian. . . . Recommended for public libraries." H. H. Bernt

Library J 77:594 Ap 1 '52 130w

"Mr. Javits's book deserves consideration, if only because he believes that party platforms should regain a place of meaning and significance in political campaigns, and sets forth a concrete and provocative sample." Harry Baehr

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 30 '52 450w

"Benjamin A. Javits, brother of New York's Republican-Liberal Representative in Congress, has chosen a somewhat misleading title for an otherwise intriguing pamphlet. . . Mr. Javits has gone in for thoughtful consideration of the economic and governmental problems arising from the constantly changing phases of the capitalistic system, but he would be the last to argue that his own plan could be put into effect by the next Administration in Washington, without even more consideration at higher echelons." Warren Moscow

JAVITS, B. A.—Continued
N Y Times p12 Mr 23 '52 370w

Reviewed by Lindsay Rogers
Sat R 35:14 Ap 5 '52 470w

JAY, EDITH. Child's book of knitting; il. [by] Lucille Newman; diagrams [by] Jerry Jay. 92p $1.50 Greenberg

646.2 Knitting—Juvenile literature 52-8123

Instruction for a beginner in knitting, presumably a child, with full details on how to make such articles as a purse, twin dolls, a hat, slippers, and a vest.

"If a knitting book is needed for little girls, this is a good one. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 77:1521 S 15 '52 40w

"Any age beginner might welcome it, but girls of eight or nine would need help and encouragement."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 19 '52 10w

JAYNES, CLARE, pseud. of JANE MAYER and CLARA SPIEGEL. Early frost. 248p $3 Random house

52-5150

Character study of Lann Saunders, the child of divorced parents. It is the story of her last year at boarding school, and traces her lonely way to the threshold of a better future.

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 J1 6 '52 600w

"The Early Frost is put together with precision; it is neat, readable, and sometimes genuinely moving. Avoiding the appearance of ax-grinding, it clearly depicts some of the horrors of multiple marriages, from the point of view of the innocents." Jean Holzhauser

+ Commonweal 56:394 J1 25 '52 400w

Kirkus 20:289 My 1 '52 230w

"It is no mean feat to have written a book almost wholly about a young girl that holds one's interest increasingly, as this does, to the end. 'The Early Frost' stirs imagination as well as sympathies and leaves the robust conviction that the chief thing that is wrong with American youth is their elders." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 J1 6 '52 600w

"'The Early Frost' might have been a mere catalogue of miseries and humiliations, bound up in a bright, skillful picture of a girls' school; but Lann is saved. . . Clare Jaynes has set forth the image of loneliness with so steady but so light a hand, and we have felt for Lann so intensely that we are likely to accept her new maturity (as she accepts her improbable job in a kennel) out of sheer relief." M. M. Ahern

+ N Y Times p4 J1 13 '52 400w

"At times Lann's sorrows seem to be piled on a little thick and the authors seem to be stacking the cards against her, but in general they have an assured hand with convincing detail, real insight into the problems of adolescence, and a pleasantly brisk style. They rush their ending a bit and solve Lann's problems in a storybook fashion that is far from convincing after the pressures to which they have subjected their heroine. This apart, you will find 'The Early Frost' a highly readable and perhaps informative story."

+ — Sat R 35:11 J1 26 '52 180w

JEFFRESS, LLOYD ALEXANDER, ed.
Cerebral mechanisms in behavior; the Hixon symposium. 311p il $6.50 Wiley

131 Psychology, Physiological. Brain 52-6319

"This unusual volume contains the papers and discussion of the Hixon Symposium held at the California Institute of Technology. The papers bear such titles as 'The General and Logical Theory of Automata,' 'Why the Mind is in the Head,' and 'Brain and Intelligence,' and they bear on neurological and physiological aspects of thought and behavior." (Library J) Indexes.

"For the reader who has enough psychological background and vocabulary to study the material, there is a good deal of stimulation. The principal impression, however, must necessarily be of a frontier of knowledge in a state of exciting confusion. . . The findings do render one positive and valuable service—that of revealing the inadequacy of some of the popular and superficial notions of the nature of the reflex arc and its relationship to behavior." R. E. L. Faris

Am Soc R 17:395 Je '52 220w

"The book is above the heads of readers without scientific training, but it does have appeal for neurologists, psychiatrists, psychologists and lay readers who have read extensively in psychology." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:723 Ap 15 '52 80w

"A unified and concrete approach to an important scientific problem—such is the total impression created by this book. As a serious assessment of the frontiers of the sciences that deal with the brain and behavior, it will be of greatest value to workers in the specialized area which it covers. It also contains facts and theories worthy of consideration by psychiatrists and sociologists; and Dr. Lashley's highly original paper will be of interest to students of language because of its illuminating discussion of syntax."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:178 Je '52 280w

JEFFREY, WILLIAM HARTLEY. Mitre and Argentina. 290p $3.75 Lib. pubs.

982.04 Argentina—History. Mitre, Bartolomé 52-3030

"Most Americans who know Buenos Aires are likely to think of Bartolomé Mitre as the name of the street on which the National City Bank and the American Club are located. Few realize that it was the name of united Argentina's first constitutional President, later the first editor of La Nación. Mitre lived to be 84 and his career dominated the Argentine scene for four decades. In his last years, he was a living legend to his countrymen. . . William H. Jeffrey of the Department of History of the University of Maine tells his dramatic story without adornment." N Y Times

"In spite of obvious imperfections, including an annoying number of typographical errors, Dr. Jeffrey's book on this great American is a valuable contribution to United States understanding of the people of the other Americas. The author has gathered his material and organized it commendably, but his writing lacks the vital spark that captures and holds the reader—a quality that should not be too difficult when dealing with a life so full of natural drama, so varied in character and native gifts." R. M. Hallett

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 10 '52 700w

Reviewed by Milton Bracker
N Y Times p4 S 14 '52 450w

JEFFRIES, GRAHAM MONTAGUE (PETER BOURNE, pseud.) Gateway to fortune. 348p $3.50 Putnam

52-9829

A historical novel of the building of the Panama canal, following the adventures, both amorous and technological, of a young American surveyor, Wesley Adam.

Reviewed by R. L. Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 24 '52
260w

Kirkus 20:379 J1 1 '52 290w

"With Young Adam we are taken through the political, financial and technical struggles that beset the builders. As long as the author sticks to that theme, his novel is interesting. Other aspects of the book, the characters, the plot complications and the incidents, fail, however, to sustain that interest."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 17 '52
150w

"The whole thing is strictly cut and dried, with characters out of a Plotto card index, the dialogue windy and unreal. Bourne is at his best rewriting actual history. . . . It's a pity that the author, who has such a nose for old news, is unable to create believable people to make it come alive." Lawrence Martin

+ N Y Times p14 Ag 17 '52 380w

"The novel is not too quick-moving until the denouement is almost at hand and, as the pieces fall together, there remains a little light showing through the interstices. The various coincidences and crossing of paths are not polished and smoothed out quite enough and the reader sometimes sees them coming. . . . All ends well, however, and the novel, which is only so-so, improves as it goes along, which is something." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 26 '52
180w

"If Mr. Bourne is relentlessly romantic in the 'novel' part of his story, he is implacably detailed in its history. . . . Only in the scenes detailing the Machiavellian success of American power politics in the Panamanian revolution does Mr. Bourne succeed in breathing a little life into his researches. Otherwise this olla podrida of sex, melodrama, coincidence, and history is the mechanical counterpart of hundreds of such curiously hectic and lumbering tales, unbelievable in some respects, unbearable in the rest." Charles Lee

+ Sat R 35:16 Ag 16 '52 450w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p26A S 21 '52
230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p561 Ag 29 '52
70w

JENKINS, SARA LUCILE. Year in Paradise.
244p $3 Crowell

52-7033

Novel of the conquest of Paradise, Florida, a small mining town, by the shy young Northern school teacher, Janet Brownlee. Janet was the only daughter of a famous concert singer, and she was lonely and unhappy. What one year in Paradise did for Janet, and Janet for Paradise, is the story.

Booklist 48:265 Ap 15 '52

Kirkus 20:90 F 1 '52 120w

"Miss Jenkins' wholesome little story seems destined to enjoy a brisk circulation in lending libraries." Charlotte Capers

+ N Y Times p15 Je 1 '52 190w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R 35:45 Je 21 '52 160w

Wis Lib Bul 48:173 J1 '52

JENKS, ALMET. Huntsman at the gate; il. by Edward Shenton. 115p $2.50 Lippincott

52-7468

A fantasy about fox hunting in America. A huntsman is killed while jumping a gate. After death he finds himself confronted by a group of foxes who had been killed in the hunt, and he is forced to hear their side of the story.

Kirkus 20:474 Ag 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1401 S 1 '52 50w

"Every one who remembers pleasurably David Garnett's 'Lady Into Fox,' should enjoy Almet Jenks' book, which is equally fantastic in an American setting. If 'The Huntsman at the Gate' does not quite measure up to the literary excellence that made Garnett's creepy little tale a minor classic, it nevertheless makes its own way. And it has humor, lacking in Garnett's work." R. P. Harriss

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 12 '52
400w

"A gentle, witty, relevant and modest foray into the world of fancy and conjecture, and only very lightly grinds an axe or two en route." A. S. Morris

+ N Y Times p5 O 12 '52 650w

New Yorker 28:172 N 8 '52 40w

San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 30 '52
280w

— Sat R 35:34 S 27 '52 160w

JENNETT, SEAN. Making of books. 474p il
$7.50 Pantheon bks

655.4 Books

[51-4094]

"An introduction to the various stages of printing and binding and the art of book design, with much on the history of bookmaking." Publishers' Weekly

Publishers' Weekly p2239 D 22 '51

"A comprehensive and skilfully condensed survey of the developing processes of book-production and book-design from the earliest times to the present day. As a work of reference it will be permanently valuable; for it has something for everyone, and the extent and variety of its subdivision enable a printer, a binder, a publisher, even an author, to turn at once to the section which is his particular concern, and to benefit from Mr. Jennett's knowledge or advice." Michael Sadleir

+ Spec 185:458 Ap 6 '51 900w

"Mr. Jennett might well have done both himself and the student a better service if he had divided his book into, say, half a dozen more appositely and exhaustively illustrated sections and published them at intervals. There is a place for such a series of well-produced primers, but it cannot be too often emphasized that a soundly chosen illustration is always worth a hundred words."

Times [London] Lit Sup p386 Je 22 '51
700w

JENNINGS, JOHN EDWARD. Strange brigade; a story of the Red river and the opening of the Canadian West. 367p $3.50 Little

52-5517

A small band of Scotsmen, evicted from their lands in 1813, are the members of the strange brigade. They signed up with the Hudson's Bay company to settle in Manitoba. The narrator of this historical novel is one Malcolm MacAllister, who went out to become the schoolmaster in the settlement.

Booklist 48:221; 297 Mr 15 '52; My 15 '52

"A first rate, exciting historical novel, with a full complement of villainy, suffering, heroism, and romance." Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 22 '52
300w

Kirkus 20:198 Mr 15 '52 180w

"Mr. Jennings appears to have reflected history faithfully in this novel, though obviously he could give only the part of the long chronicle which concerns his chief characters. Some of his readers doubtless will follow the story for its romance, but more, I think, will find greater interest in this well drawn picture of life in a new continent where the intrigues of white men were an even more serious danger than the hardships and perils of cold, hunger and the wilderness." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 1 '52
550w

"Told in an honest, readable style, the only impediment being Mr. Jennings' not altogether successful jousts with the Scots and Indian dialects. In this regard (like the settlers) he merits a citation for bravery above and beyond the call of duty." Stuart Keate

+ N Y Times p16 Je 15 '52 400w

"The author's good intentions might have paid off had he done a good rewrite job on the manuscript, speeding it up where it dragged. As it is, it's pretty ho-hum for the action fans." R. H. D.

JENNINGS, J. E.—Continued

— + San Francisco Chronicle p10 J1 27 '52 180w

"John Jennings is a veteran historical novelist, a glib tale-teller, and once again he offers us a sound product with no disappointments and no surprises." Shirley Barker
+ Sat R 35:18 My 31 '52 450w

JENNINGS, S. M., pseud. See Meyer, J. S.

JENSEN, MERRILL, ed. Regionalism in America; with a foreword by Felix Frankfurter [the contributors: Vernon Carstensen, and others]. 425p $4.75 Univ. of Wis. press

973 Regionalism—U.S. 51-6901

"This volume, based on papers delivered in 1949, was published in celebration of the hundredth anniversary of the founding of the University of Wisconsin. The contributors were drawn from the social sciences (sociology is most heavily represented), the humanities, and the fine arts. The book is therefore interesting in that it cuts across fields, but synthesis is not entirely achieved." Am Pol Sci R

"Though originally read at the symposium on regionalism at the University of Wisconsin in 1949 and unequal in content and quality, these papers constitute a major contribution to the understanding and use of the regional concept. Historians, even more than their colleagues in sister disciplines, will find this volume of particular value, for many of its essays specifically examine the contributions of regionalism to their craft." P. F. Sharp
+ Am Hist R 57:710 Ap '52 1000w

"The work is, on the whole, a genuine contribution to an American regional sociology, although it blunders along most of the time without any theoretical framework for guidance and with no common heuristic definition of a region." C. C. Zimmerman
+ Am J Soc 57:607 My '52 600w

Reviewed by L. S. Greene
Am Pol Sci R 46:250 Mr '52 270w

Reviewed by M. Zaslow
Canadian Hist R 33:184 Je '52 250w

"A fascinating and remarkable inventory by an impressive array of experts." J. O. Hertzler
+ Social Forces 30:349 Mr '52 1350w

"The outgrowth of a symposium on American regionalism held at the University of Wisconsin in 1949 under the sponsorship of the Rockefeller Foundation, this book should prove of value to business and governmental leaders as well as to social scientists. . . . To single out essays for special praise is difficult when the level is as high as that maintained in this volume. Special mention should be made, however, of Fulmer Mood's brilliant analysis of the origins of the regional concept; Francis B. Simkins' appraisal of regionalism in literature, and Howard W. Odum's stimulating concluding chapter on the promise of regionalism. Merrill Jensen has not only contributed a helpful introduction, but has brought together an outstanding group of authorities on a subject well deserving thoughtful consideration."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:398 D '51 240w

JENSEN, OLIVER ORMEROD. Revolt of American women. 224p il $6 Harcourt

396 Woman—Pictorial works. Woman—Rights of women 52-9856

"Picture history [which] chronicles more than half a century of rapid change which carried the female of the U.S. species 'from bloomers to Bikini—from feminism to Freud.'" Time

Booklist 49:135 D 15 '52

"The book, folio size, is a real collector's item, and should appeal to all who are interested in history, sociology, psychology, or just —women." Olive Carruthers

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 30 '52 370w

Kirkus 20:738 N 15 '52 180w

"The story here is the revolt and there's no gainsaying it's entertaining, often fascinating. The 19th century photographs by Alice Austen are almost worth the book. Yes for solvent libraries." R. B. Robertson

+ Library J 77:2172 D 15 '52 150w

Nation 175:500 N 29 '52 20w

"Not the first historical book with a running accompaniment of sprightly comment, but it is certainly one of the best." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 N 16 '52 650w

"A provocative and absorbing picture book." A. B. Louchheim

+ N Y Times p30 N 16 '52 320w

"Good-humored and highly entertaining pictures and text. The selection is admirable. Some of the photographs are remarkable rarities." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 27 '52 650w

"If Oliver Jensen intended to be funny in assembling this picture-book, he has been remarkably successful. . . . If, on the other hand, Mr. Jensen had intended his book as a serious study of the Revolt of American Women (whatever that is and whoever it's against) the book doesn't add up much funnier than a split lip, if perhaps more serious than one." Rosemarie Redlich

Sat R 35:13 D 20 '52 470w

Time 60:117 N 24 '52 400w

JENSEN, PAUL, ed. Fireside book of flying stories; short stories, fragments, vignettes, observations, reports, essays, a novelette and a science fiction story—selected from the writings of the age of flight. 464p $3.95 Simon & Schuster

808.83 Aeronautics. Short stories—Collections 51-14883

"The stories in this anthology are all concerned with flying and the air. Fictional entries alternate with fact. . . . Selections from St. Exupéry show the great French aviator's narrative power. And Anne Morrow Lindberg [is] represented here by a selection from 'North to the Orient.' . . . Other entries include stories by Guy Gilpatrick and Nordhoff and Hall, a report on the death of Baron von Richthofen by Floyd Gibbons, and a fragment from James A. Michener's unforgettable report on the state of things in the South Pacific during World War II." N Y Times

Booklist 48:182 F 1 '52

"An excellent anthology for the air-minded." + Kirkus 19:558 S 15 '51 160w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p33 My 11 '52 90w

"A generally excellent anthology." Russell Owen

+ N Y Times p22 F 3 '52 220w

Time 58:64 D 24 '51 500w

JERSILD, ARTHUR THOMAS. In search of self. 141p $2.75 Teachers college

370.15 Educational psychology. Child study 52-12030

This book is "an exploration of the role of the school in promoting self-understanding." (Subtitle) It is based on a research project which studied the answers by some three thousand young people, ranging from fourth graders to college students, to the questions: What do I like about myself? and What do I dislike about myself? The author is Professor of Education, Teachers College, Columbia University.

"Ostensibly, this is a book for educators; and I cannot believe that any teacher or administrator can read it without being both disturbed and inspired. But also it is a book for every parent and citizen who is concerned about the growth of children into a fulfilled adulthood." B. W. Overstreet

+ Sat R 35:37 S 13 '52 500w

School & Society 76:112 Ag 16 '52 10w

JOACHIM, HAROLD HENRY. Aristotle: The Nicomachean ethics; a commentary, ed. by D. A. Rees. 304p $5 Oxford

888.5 Aristotle

[52-927]

"In the Oxford of the early 20th century, Joachim exercised a powerful influence in combining the Aristotelian and Hegelian traditions. It is good to have his lectures on the Nicomachean Ethics—the medium through which Aristotelian exposition has been predominantly conveyed to Oxford undergraduates—put into print. The lectures were delivered during the years 1902 to 1917. . . . Intended to guide student reading, the lectures naturally concentrate upon essential background and difficult passages, and skip over parts that tell their own story, but on which we should have very much liked Joachim's reflections." J Philos

"While Joachim has many careful analyses in which passages are divided and subdivided, he does not feel the obligation to explain in detail how every part fits into the whole, and in many cases large portions of the text are handled very briefly or ignored. . . . Much of this can, no doubt, be put down to the unfinished character of the work, consisting as it does of lecture notes constantly revised from 1902 to 1917 and then laid aside. But, happily, no apologies are necessary unless we are purists. Granted its undeniable limitations, this is in the best sense a thoughtful commentary on Aristotle's work." Charles Wegener

+ — Ethics 62:300 J1 '52 850w

"They are rich in specific insights, in textual interpretation, and in bringing to bear upon critical passages the full power of a deep systematic knowledge of Aristotelian concepts. . . . The spirit of the commentary is one of unassuming but exacting scholarship." Abraham Edel

+ J Philos 49:484 J1 3 '52 600w

JOAD, CYRIL EDWIN MITCHINSON. Pleasure of being oneself. 204p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

824

51-8346

"Cyril Edwin Mitchinson Joad, British professor, philosopher, pacifist and pontificator, who is now sixty years old, says that his desire in writing this book of amusing essays has been to discuss the pleasures of the 'fairly recognizable type of man who never quite gets over his surprise at finding himself mildly at odds with his society'—in short, a man like C. E. M. Joad. His objective is not to share these pleasures with the reader, but rather to display them. His delights are grouped under nine general headings: The Pleasures of Mischievousness, of Culture, of Official Baiting, of Not Taking a Sunday Walk, of Outdoor Food, of Hurdles, of Escape and of the Hobby Horse, of Age (this with a question mark), and, climactically, of the Pianola." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Reviewed by J. L. Lewis

Ethics 62:229 Ap '52 60w

"A good part of these confessions are brisk, truculent, and amusing, and they arouse a certain sympathy for his favourite hobby of bamboozling the more pompous sort of officials. Just how pleasant it is to be Dr Joad only Dr Joad can ultimately say. Those at the receiving end may feel that he takes a disproportionate pleasure, leading to a disproportionate share of this slim and rather expensive book, in the pianola."

Manchester Guardian p4 Je 5 '51 100w

"Though a lightweight book dealing with not more than a handful of the author's quirks and whims, is still an excellent illustration of this flight from mystery—a trait of our time which is reflected not only in autobiography and biography at one end, and popular journalism and advertising at the other, but even in the contemporary countenance." Naomi Lewis

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:184 Ag 18 '51 800w

"Occasionally Mr. Joad's pleasures elevate one's eyebrows rather than one's spirits. His frequently expressed approbation of love-making seems curiously emphatic, and when he boasts (in a pleasant manner, of course) of the skill with which he evaded the police as a conscientious objector in World War I, his zest, to put it mildly, seems excessive. He concluded with a passionate defense of the pianola as a musical instrument. It is at moments like these that one is forced to the reluctant conclusion that some of the pleasures are all his." Herbert Kupferberg

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 D 23 '51 550w

"What you have here is Joad alternately contorting himself simply to appear different and backing up into a corner to listen to anything that occurs to him to say on a subject concerning which almost everybody else has already said almost everything. . . . Joad is least good when he is self-conscious—about his personality or about the act of writing—which is most of the time. He can be very good indeed when he forgets himself and becomes really absorbed in his subject; then the style improves and the reader, too, becomes absorbed. But presently there's old Joad again, trying to make an impression." Ted Robinson

+ — N Y Times p16 Ja 6 '52 460w

JOHN, AUGUSTUS EDWIN. Chiaroscuro: fragments of autobiography. 285p il $5 Pellegrini & Cudahy

B or 92 Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-9055

Some years ago a few random recollections of Augustus John's life appeared in the now defunct periodical Horizon. In the present book these chapters have been revised and amplified by the author. "Admitting that chronology is not his strong point and that he has never kept a diary, Mr. John has taken some typical incidents, which he has chosen so as to make a rough cross section of his career, and has interspersed among them some philosophical reflections on life in general, which the context has suggested to his fertile mind." (Manchester Guardian) Index.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:104 N '52 280w

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 20w

"It is the sign of a good craftsman that he should know his own limitations. Working within them with a sure touch, Mr. John confirms on every page the view held by anyone acquainted with his previously rare excursions into print—namely, that he is a writer of genius, moving episodically by fits and starts, with little attempt at continuity but with a painter's eye always alert to character and the salient facts, and with a gift for the use of words which many professional writers will envy." Lawrence Haward

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 11 '52 450w

"If these fragments of an autobiography do not reveal much about the artist, they reveal a good deal of the man—not because he says much about himself but because a gallery of portraits adds up to a pretty good picture of the man who made them." J. W. Krutch

+ Nation 175:277 S 27 '52 800w

"This enjoyable book is no more strictly a book than a saucer of anchovies washed down with pasta is dinner. Much of it is jottings or gossip column and yet it is also an instructive historical document, its value as such being actually enhanced by its daring disregard of chronology; how many autobiographies must have been falsified or killed by their tight chronological corsets." Louis MacNeice

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:408 Ap 5 '52 1000w

"There is something for all kinds of digestions on his table. If you want escape from the present, invitation to the future, old wine in

JOHN, A. E.—Continued
new bottles 'Chiaroscuro' fairly shouts 'Come and get it.' Ernestine Evans
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 21 '52
950w

Reviewed by Geoffrey Grigson
N Y Times p4 S 21 '52 750w

"John has lived his seventy-three years to the hilt, and his reminiscences are full of vivid pictures."

+ New Yorker 28:130 S 20 '52 150w

"This most excellent and unusual collection of autobiographical fragments has appeared at last, and cannot fail in fascination upon all who read it. Eagerly anticipated, it will be found to fulfil all, and more, than was expected of it. In nearly every sentence there is the individual imprint. . . All in all, a book of utmost fascination; and it leaves the reader in impatient mood waiting for a sequel."

Sacheverell Sitwell
+ Spec 188:302 Mr 7 '52 950w

"One of the most fragmentary autobiographies ever written. But the fragments he has gathered up sometimes turn out to be semi-precious nuggets."

+ Time 60:82 S 8 '52 650w

"He writes well and his sentences have a pictorial quality which is effective. . . In these crowded, amusing and frequently shrewd pages Mr. Augustus John tells us of many places and many people: gypsies, princesses, poets, politicians, generals and the like. He avoids all investigation of his own legend; nevertheless, he bears no ill-will towards that extravagant figure of fancy."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p200 Mr 21 '52
1100w

Reviewed by F. C. Flint
Yale R n s 42:299 winter '53 600w

JOHNS, RAY EARL, and DEMARCHE, DAVID
F. Community organization and agency responsibility; a study of the process of community organization for social welfare, and of the role of the direct-service organizations as responsible participants; foreword by Robert H. MacRae. 274p $3.75 Assn. press
361.8 Social work 52-3153

"Based on [the authors'] own rich background and observations and on the thinking and experience of over 500 workers in nearly 60 different cities, the authors present an extensive analysis of the community organization process and the role of direct-service social welfare agencies as responsible participants."

Am J Pub Health

"We commend this book to all for careful reading. By so doing they should have a better concept and understanding of the complex nature of our health and welfare services and, hopefully, a conviction of the values of and need for cooperative effort if we are to achieve our goal of maximum community well-being."

J. J. Albrecht
+ Am J Pub Health 42:736 Je '52 260w

"In general, the book is of most value to people directly related to the processes described, but it is a source of supplementary knowledge for the student of urban life and social institutions."

Arthur Hillman
+ Am Soc R 17:388 Je '52 170w

"For those who are looking for a good, panoramic view of social welfare with highlights on community organization this book will be helpful. Its moving camera covers the field of social work from the history of Social Security in America to methods of conducting community surveys. A most interesting and helpful section presents the findings of an original study made by the authors of interagency relationships."

A. D. Bouterse
+ Ann Am Acad 280:208 Mr '52 360w

Reviewed by Bradley Buell
Survey 87:497 N '51 450w

JOHNSON, ALVIN SAUNDERS. Pioneer's progress. 413p $5 Viking

B or 92 Educators—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-12704

"This is the story of a long and brilliant career in American education, told by the man who lived it. Alvin S. Johnson, who is still going strong in the seventh year of the Atomic Age, was born seventy-seven years ago on a farm in Nebraska. . . During his long life he has seen the country grow up, and has grown up with it. He has taught in eight universities, has brought to vigorous maturity New York's adult educational center, the New School for Social Research, and has assembled refugee scholars for the University in Exile. . . He helped edit two magazines: The New Republic and The Yale Review, and half a dozen encyclopedias, including the great 'Encyclopedia of the Social Sciences'; wrote creditable novels and volumes of essays as well as books on economics; was a chief figure in the adoption of New York's pioneering anti-discrimination law . . . and helped on an important survey of education in Puerto Rico."

(N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 49:66 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 30w

"The volume is intensely interesting to anybody concerned with the history of American higher education and intellectual currents in the first half of the present century." H. E. Barnes

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 O 12 '52
320w

Kirkus 20:443 J1 15 '52 240w

"Mr. Johnson has written warmly human and good-humored document, frank but not unkind in his dealing with personalities. It is abundantly evident Johnson has found it a good life. His prose style is direct and reads easily."

Harold Lancour

+ Library J 77:1498 S 15 '52 120w

Nation 175:612 D 27 '52 170w

"Economics is supposed to be a dull subject, and economists are often dull writers. Alvin Johnson is one of the exceptions; his style is simple and clear, always touched with modest humor."

B. B.
+ New Repub 127:20 S 29 '52 850w

"This is no solemn treatise demanding undisturbed concentration. You can pick it up, lay it down, come back to it at any odd moment, even on the subway, with pleasure and profit. It is as various in content as a good meal of vittles—plenty of nourishing meat and potatoes, also literary, intellectual and emotional hors d'oeuvres, sweets, every kind of the earth's fruits, not to speak of nine kinds of pickles, each one spicier and more appetite-coaxing than the one you just tasted."

D. C. Fisher.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 S 28 '52
900w

"He writes with humor, modesty, and what seems to be total recall, a fascinating report of a useful life." Bruce Bliven

+ N Y Times p35 O 5 '52 800w

New Yorker 28:155 O 11 '52 160w

"This is the story of the scholar in action. Contemporaries should read it for its record of integrity, while newcomers in the academic field should read it for its exemplifying of a fighting faith affecting affairs usefully."

Ordway Tead
+ Sat R 35:19 O 25 '52 400w

Time 60:46 S 29 '52 900w

JOHNSON, CROCKETT, pseud. See Leisk, D. J.

JOHNSON, EDGAR, ed. Heart of Charles Dickens. See Dickens, C.

JOHNSON, ENID. Jerry's treasure hunt; il. by Ursula Koering. 64p $1.50 Messner

51-13236

Jerry lost his stamp album and made a trip to the city dump to find it. He did not find it, but he learned a lot about the city sanitation department, and rescued a lost kitten. For grades 3 to 5.

Booklist 48:200 F 15 '52

Kirkus 19:483 S 1 '51 90w

"Recommended only for its subject value for supplementary material on community workers for the primary grades." L. E. Cathon
Library J 76:2010 D 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by C. E. Van Norman
N Y Times p40 N 11 '51 100w

JOHNSON, ENID. Three J's; il. by Sari. (Everyday adventure story) 63p il $1.50 Messner

52-9332

The three J's were Jessie, Jean and Jo. This story for ages seven and eight tells about the time an aunt came to visit and what she taught them.

Bookmark 11:236 J1 '52

Kirkus 20:225 Ap 1 '52 100w

"Girls of seven and eight will like this story which they can read themselves. Recommended." H. E. Walker

+ Library J 77:907 My 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by C. E. Van Norman
N Y Times p16 Je 1 '52 40w

JOHNSON, EYVIND. Return to Ithaca; the Odyssey retold as a modern novel; with a pref. by Mark Van Doren [tr. by M. A. Michael]. 474p $4 Thames

52-13394

Homer's Odyssey retold in the form of a modern novel.

"A handsome tribute to one of the literary monuments of the west, and an admirable work." Milton Crane

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 2 '52 120w

Kirkus 20:571 S 1 '52 160w

"An unusual and extremely readable work which gives considerable insight into Homeric characters, motives and backgrounds, all compounded with faithfulness and respect to the original. . . Recommended for literary collections." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:1809 O 15 '52 60w

Nation 176:17 Ja 3 '53 80w

"The flawlessness of Johnson's conception is matched by a clean, strong, colloquial style that has suffered not at all in the brilliant translation by E. A. Michael—the kind of translation that every writer must dream of and few are granted." Richard Winston

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 O 26 '52 480w

"The narrative is that of Odysseus, recognizably, and in action, fairly faithfully. . . Unfortunately, the violence and cruelty of the archaic Greek actions are not heroic and inspiring when divorced from the epic and classic pagan viewpoint. Similarly, pagan sex, dwelt upon (as in this book) without the superstructure of a pagan simplicity and sensibility, appears intolerably materialistic and deadening." Philip Burnham

+ N Y Times p18 N 16 '52 260w

"The writing is elaborate, and heavy with presentiments that are never justified. It is hard to understand why Mr. Johnson did not simply put his ideas into a novel of his own."

— New Yorker 28:198 N 22 '52 110w

"The better one knows the Odyssey, the better probably one will enjoy it. One may question some of Eyvind Johnson's alterations. . . Though Mr. Johnson's preoccupations occasionally grow wearisome, he has effected a transmutation of the Odyssey in terms of a technical achievement of sheer bravura." Basil Davenport

+ — Sat R 35:20 N 22 '52 750w

Reviewed by Tangye Lean

— Spec 189:514 O 17 '52 170w

JOHNSON, GERALD WHITE. Pattern for liberty; the story of old Philadelphia. 146p il $7.50 McGraw 974.811 Philadelphia—History. Philadelphia—Views 52-7451

"An appreciation of the spirit that animated the city [of Philadelphia] during the crucial years between Yorktown and 1800, a spirit that helped to mold the Constitution, to stabilize the infant national government, and to impart to the American temperament something of its qualities of tolerance, reasonableness, and confidence." (N Y Times) The text is accompanied by 32 pictures in color which were originally commissioned by a commercial firm for advertising in national magazines.

Booklist 49:57; 64 O 15 '52

"Gerald Johnson and McGraw-Hill have double-teamed to present a vivid portrait of Philadelphia in the last quarter of the 18th century. A beautiful series of color plates bolsters the incisive prose and reflective thought of the author, and does justice to the town and its earlier inhabitants. While this is a volume which Philadelphians will cherish, it has a much broader appeal, for it is more than a handsomely done retrospect." R. J. Graf

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 26 '52 180w

+ Kirkus 20:618 S 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by Adrienne Koch

New Repub 127:21 D 1 '52 500w

Reviewed by E. H. Smith

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 2 '52 400w

"Mr. Johnson's portrait is both lively and learned. His affection makes him at times repetitively dithyrambic, but who will not have more of a good thing? . . . The thirty-two full-color reproductions of drawings of old Philadelphia by Frank Reilly, Simon Greco and James Bingham add enormously to the reader's understanding of the 'atmosphere' in which the United States Government was born." Charles Lee

+ N Y Times p20 O 19 '52 400w

Sat R 36:21 Ja 10 '53 180w

JOHNSON, LEE HARNIE. Nomography and empirical equations. 150p $3.75 Wiley

510.84 Nomography (mathematics). Equations 52-5241

"A short book on two mathematical techniques that are of great value to many scientists and engineers. Both techniques are graphical and are especially useful in representing data so that conclusions can be drawn and problems solved much more rapidly than by conventional computation. The principles of constructing various types of nomographs are clearly explained. The second part is devoted to the elements of curve fitting. The text includes worked examples, and there are also problems for the reader to solve." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The book is obviously not intended to advance the art, provide a broad theoretical background, or promote precise techniques. Instead, it illustrates well the facility of computation which comes with even an elementary knowledge of nomography. It is quite likely that many who have never fancied themselves as needing these methods will, upon reading this book, discover for themselves the great usefulness and interest of the graphical approach to computation." W. H. Burrows

+ Chem & Eng N 30:2647 Je 23 '52 250w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:24 Mr '52

JOHNSON, MRS MARGARET SWEET. Briar, a collie; il. by [the author]. 92p $2 Morrow

Dogs—Legends and stories 52-5064

Story of a beautiful gold and white collie, born in Ireland, but brought to America to be a show-dog. Because Briar is unhappy and sulky she is exiled to a Maine farm and finally finds there a mistress to love.

Booklist 48:236 Mr 15 '52

"A pattern story, with pedestrian writing and the author's usual conscientious but uninspired pictures, it will doubtless be popular with dog addicts, especially among the novice and retarded readers."

Bookmark 11:161 Ap '52 70w

JOHNSON, M. S.—Continued

"Here's a good and credible dog story, which points up the qualities that distinguish the true collie, through plausible adventures."
+ Kirkus 20:1 Ja 1 '52 110w

"Recommended for libraries that need easy-reading material or dog stories." Augusta Baker

Library J 77:364 F 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 27 '52 140w

"There are lovely black and white pictures, as well as the excellent type and spacing which are so important in a book for 8-year-olds. There seem to be almost too many happenings for a story told with such simplicity of style, but this may make it useful with older children who find reading difficult." Phyllis Fenner
N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '52 110w

Wis Lib Bul 48:96 Mr '52

JOHNSON, PAMELA HANSFORD. Catherine Carter. 478p $3.95 Knopf

51-13229

The London theatrical world of the 1880's is the background of this love story of Catherine Carter, actress, and the greatest actor of his time, Henry Feverel.

Booklist 48:369; 378 Jl 15 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:475 S '52 250w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 10 '52 400w

Christian Science Monitor p5 Jl 31 '52 50w

"A rich concoction, with just a touch of naughtiness which could offend only the most Puritanical, a cast that offers a panorama of theatre types, a story that has a certain competence and appeal, all combine to offset to some extent the occasionally heavy footed and ponderous pace of the story."

+ — Kirkus 20:305 My 15 '52 190w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 77:1814 O 15 '52 40w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 25 '52 70w

"This book is far from being a potboiler. It is, rather, a clever writer's purple indiscretion. Miss Hansford Johnson is an accomplished novelist who has surrendered to the impulse to hurl her creative bonnet over the windmill. Her gaslit heroine and twopence-coloured background lie outside the diocese of the critical conscience and one must read her book in the spirit in which she appears to have written it. Certainly, it is an indiscretion that I thoroughly enjoyed sharing." John Raymond
+ New Statesman & Nation 43:133 F 2 '52 260w

"'Catherine Carter' is a three-dimensional novel, revealing in its picture of relationships between a man and woman who loved each other. That each of them was outstanding professionally is incidental. The theatrical background adds glamour to the novel and gives an opportunity for an unusually varied and vivid group of subordinate characters, but the conflicts of emotion and pride that are the substance of the story could have occurred in almost any setting." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 20 '52 440w

"Some readers may feel that 'Catherine Carter' is too special, too much of the theatre. But even these dissenters will be hard put to name a pleasanter way to step out of 1952 for the duration of 478 pages." James Kelly
+ — N Y Times p4 Jl 20 '52 450w

New Yorker 28:83 Jl 19 '52 100w

"The warmth and the understanding with which the author reveals the natures of her characters prevents her work from any accusation of improvisation. It is indeed an absorbing love story with all the embellishments and color of a period when the first plays of Bernard Shaw and Oscar Wilde had not been accepted because the public demanded their actors and actresses appear larger than life." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R 35:14 Jl 19 '52 850w

"It is a fluent and workmanlike job, done with a pretty feeling for the theatre, or at any rate for the glamour of the theatre, and makes an altogether better impression than the earlier novels of Miss Pamela Hansford Johnson that I have read." R. D. Charques
+ Spec 188:122 Ja 25 '52 350w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p5D Jl 20 '52 550w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 36:13 Ag '52 300w

"In a justifiable determination to avoid a too romantic portrayal of 'the Stage,' the author seems at times to miss some of the high tension at which theatrical life tends to be lived. At the same time her novel has the merits of this defect—if defect it is—and presents her story in serious, understandable terms that are never allowed to overflow the barriers of possibility."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p89 F 1 '52 400w

JOHNSON, SHERMAN ELBRIDGE, ed. Joy of study; papers on New Testament and related subjects presented to honor Frederick Clifton Grant. 163p $2.75 Macmillan

225 Bible. New Testament. Grant, Frederick Clifton 51-14486

This is a collection of essays written by students, colleagues and friends of Dr. Frederick Clifton Grant of Union Theological Seminary in honor of his sixtieth birthday. All are concerned with the major field of Dr. Grant's interest—the New Testament and early Christianity.

Christian Century 69:250 F 27 '52 170w

Reviewed by D. M. Beck

Crozer Q 29:195 Ap '52 1600w

Kirkus 19:610 O 1 '51 120w

JOHNSON, SIDDIE JOE. Month of Christmases; il. by Henrietta Jones Moon. 132p $2.50 Longmans

52-8517

Story of Christmas in a German settlement in Fredericksburg, Texas, where Milla, nine, and John, seven, spend a long vacation. For ages 8 to 12.

"An excellent Christmas story. . . It will be a useful addition to special collections."

+ Bookmark 12:12 O '52 20w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 D 14 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:403 Jl 15 '52 130w

"The rather remarkable sense of family continuity and the children's understanding of the rich heritage brought them by their aunt Katrina and uncle Karl are well portrayed. Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 77:1822 O 15 '52 90w

Reviewed by E. I. Buell

N Y Times p50 D 7 '52 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R 35:45 D 13 '52 90w

"All through this book there is a sense of the most potent magic of all: the magic of being just the right age, in the right place at the right time and knowing that whatever happens next will be wonderful."

+ School & Society 76:176 S 13 '52 40w

JOHNSTON, MYRTLE. Robin redbreast in a cage. 274p $3 Houghton

51-13317

"A novelized account of a trial in England. It has all the required elements of a suspense story—love, betrayal, perjury, expiation, and irony. The accused is a military man and it concerns a brutal crime with which he is charged." Wis Lib Bul

"Miss Johnston is no Dostoevski but a sincere and sensitive writer in whom the world's moral plight seems to have produced obsession rather than inspiration. To be blunt, 'A Robin Redbreast in a Cage' does not perfectly come off, and it is the kind of novel in which nothing but perfection will do." James Hilton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p21 N 18 '51 450w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 25 '51 170w

"Miss Myrtle Johnston tells her story with so little relish that at times it seems like a 'popular' study of psychopathic types, oddly illuminated by subtly class-conscious comments. This treatment of a melodramatic and sordid theme just saves it from being unbearably unpleasant." Barbara Worsley-Gough Spec 184:770 Je 2 '50 190w

"It is difficult to decipher a meaning behind Miss Johnston's story, and it would be easy to dismiss it as a clumsy essay in morbid psychology. Nevertheless, many scenes have a remarkable visual power, and the whole book is written with an earnestness which is not the less impressive because the author's intention remains obscure."

Times [London] Lit Sup p337 Je 2 '50 160w

"Recommended."

+ Wis Lib Bul 47:255 N '51

JOLLIFFE, NORMAN. Reduce and stay reduced. 235p il $2.95 Simon & Schuster 616.46 [616.39] Corpulence. Diet 52-1996

"Readers of the words of wisdom from the Herald-Tribune Home Institute have already learned about Dr. Jolliffe's theory on the 'appetstat', that mechanism in the human body that controls the appetite, and that must be re-educated if a diet is going to bear lasting results. . . The basic physiology, disposal of mistaken arguments against reducing, mathematical charts on how to estimate relation of speed of reduction to other factors, discussion of the nutritional needs, the necessity of certain elements in every diet, the importance of variety, and how to obtain it, all this leads up to the kernel of the book, calories, and their relation to diet to maintain proper weight. This is no short cut, but a reasoned, scientific, and meticulously developed pattern of eating 'to reduce and stay reduced'. 72 menu plans will help the harried housewife to put the theories into practice." (Kirkus) No index.

"It is a book which must be recommended by all physicians to the patient who is a fat fighter." Herbert Pollack

+ Am J Pub Health 42:1482 N '52 150w

"The book is for intelligent people. It is a textbook, not a popularized treatment of the problem of reducing." Mary Meade

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Je 1 '52 120w

Kirkus 20:213 Mr 15 '52 200w

"Dr. Jolliffe's book is authoritative, interesting, and informative, and should be a helpful guide to those who wish to reduce." P. M. S.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 31 '52 200w

Time 59:67 Je 2 '52 350w

JOLSON, HARRY. Mistah Jolson; as told to Alban Emley. 257p il $4 House-Warven, 5228 Hollywood Blvd, Hollywood 27, Calif.

B or 92 Jolson, Al 52-6670

"It seems there were two fellows named Jolson—Al and Harry. Both were prominent in the theater, both used blackface makeup, and there was a striking resemblance in their voices, mannerisms, and appearance. As a result, people were forever congratulating the wrong brother. Al Jolson died Oct. 23, 1950, and Harry decided to write the story of their lives." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"A noble, stirring saga of two penniless immigrants whose dreams of achieving wealth and fame in a wonderful new world came true." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 17 '52 330w

"The older brother of Al writes movingly and informally both of their personal and professional lives. There are embarrassing moments when it is difficult to know whom to believe. It is, however, a volume which all cinema and theatre collections will want." George Freedley + Library J 77:534 Mr 15 '52 40w

"This is a curious, defensive, poorly edited and badly proofread autobiography of a man so greatly overshadowed by his younger brother as an entertainer that it is a little difficult to realize that the title, 'Mistah Jolson,' is a reference to Harry and not to Al Jolson. The writing is negligible, but the book does accomplish a couple of things. It contains a solid chunk of theatrical history and it presents a portrait of a man that is perhaps a good deal more revealing than was intended." Gilbert Millstein

N Y Times p23 Mr 9 '52 170w

JONAS, CARL. Jefferson Selleck. 303p $3 Little 52-5171

This is the story of an American business man's life, as dictated by himself during the months he lies dying of heart disease, and edited by his friend and doctor with the co-operation of his wife and children. The time span is roughly the first half of the twentieth century; the scene a small mid-western manufacturing city.

"Because of its conservatism the Middle West lends itself to satire quite as readily as Boston, and in his novel Carl Jonas has responded to this opportunity by writing the George Apley of the Middle West. . . I am not sure that Gateway City and points west will accept this portraiture as always honest and accurate, but Boston with a fellow feeling is enjoying it." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 189:78 F '52 180w

Booklist 48:185 F 1 '52

+ Bookmark 11:108 F '52 50w

"Mr. Jonas would have made a much better job of Jefferson Selleck if he'd thought less about saleability and lovability, and centred his considerable talents on the task before him. But, admitting its faults and lacks, Jefferson Selleck is nevertheless readable, quite amusing in many places, and altogether a good deal better book than it might have been." Larry Rogers

+ Canadian Forum 32:47 My '52 200w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 20 '52 440w

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 24 '52 460w

"The late Jefferson Selleck, in this reviewer's opinion, would have fared much better in a less artificial framework, but Mr. Jonas is a good enough writer to sustain and satisfy the reader's interest, in any package. . . He has some sage attitudes toward love, divorce, the values of family and truthness to self. Its an engaging book if a rather half-baked one." Joe Dever

Commonweal 55:452 F 8 '52 390w

Kirkus 19:667 N 15 '51 200w

"Highly recommended. Excellent for discussion groups." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:143 Ja 15 '52 90w

"For me 'Jefferson Selleck' is like an extended love-letter from the author to his father. I do not mean this in any personal sense—which would be both unfair and irrelevant—but rather as a somewhat exaggerated indicator of the vast distance separating writers like Mr. Jonas from their immediate predecessors, who looked upon their fathers as symbols of repression and whose books were instinct with rebellion against the entire success myth." Harvey Swados

Nation 174:209 Mr 1 '52 500w

New Repub 126:21 My 26 '52 240w

JONAS, CARL—Continued

"Jefferson Selleck, the publishers say, is Babbitt thirty years later. It would be equally true, or perhaps equally rash, to say that Carl Jonas is Sinclair Lewis thirty years later—a gentler satirist, no less observant of the middle-western scene, but as eager to admire as to blame, and of a mind to feel that it needed real guts to be Jefferson, to taste as he did the profound sadness of the American success story, and yet still wish to blow those musical horns into the future. Mr. Jonas has done a notable job; he has added a new portrait to the national gallery, the portrait of a man who will make a good ancestor." James Hilton

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ja 20 '52 1050w

"This time (though the author's scalpel is razor-sharp), Babbitt is presented with real compassion: the author's anger is concentrated on the relentless social molds that processed Jeff Selleck, never on Jeff himself. The result is a full-bodied novel that compels one's attention even when Jeff is at his dullest, a novel that is both hilarious and tragic, often on the same page." William Du Bois

— N Y Times p5 Ja 20 '52 650w

New Yorker 27:85 Ja 19 '52 170w

"There are some false notes, particularly when, in the final chapter, the daughter, Mrs. Selleck and others, put in their own pen-portraits of Jeff. These not only fail to ring true, but seem to destroy the unity of the work. However, these are minor matters. What counts is that Mr. Jonas is a welcome addition to the rather narrow rank of American novelists who can be counted on to produce well-written stories which are both entertaining and are concerned with people whom we can recognize as real." C. W. Weinberger

— San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 8 '52 650w

"'Jefferson Selleck' seems to me an admirable fictional picture of mid-Western folkways—the folkways of the same group that 'Appointment in Samarra' made cruel and inhuman. The book lacks the burlesque of Lewis, it lacks the opportunism of Booth Tarkington's 'The Turmoil,' it lacks the bitterness of radical attack, and it lacks the supercilious intellectual approach. But it is warm, human, enjoyable. Without being profound and without being philosophical, it is a just picture of a characteristic American life." H. M. Jones

— Sat R 35:9 Ja 26 '52 750w

Time 59:77 F 4 '52 450w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:138 Je '52 270w

Wis Lib Bul 48:94 Mr '52

JONES, ADRIENNE. Thunderbird Pass. 222p $2.50 Lippincott

52-7463

Jonathan was a shy, city-bred boy when he had to be sent West to live with an uncle he had never seen, because of his mother's illness. The rugged life agreed with him so thoroly that he was a happy boy when he discovered that he need never leave the West. For ages 10 to 14.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 N 16 '52 110w

Kirkus 20:371 Jl 1 '52 130w

"A warm but average story with enough exciting incidents to interest the young teenage boy, although this is somewhat contrived. Not for first purchase." N. L. Rathbun

— Library J 77:1413 S 1 '52 50w

"The author's knowledge of the mountains and their high passes is well conveyed through the boy's growing love for this dramatic, beautiful and dangerous country. This is the main theme, and well worth while, though the plot is obvious, the villainy melodramatic, and the style uneven." L. S. Bechtel

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 21 '52 190w

"Aside from being a grand tale of adventure this book presents a penetrating account of the development of a teen-age youngster." H. B. Lent

— N Y Times p32 O 26 '52 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 16 '52 40w

JONES, BARBARA MILDRED. Unsophisticated arts; drawn and described by [the author]. 192p il $5 British bk. centre

745.3 Arts and crafts [51-14103]

"The popular, folk or vernacular arts of Britain, carrouseles to canal boats, tattooing and fireworks, charmingly presented in color and prose. Unfamiliar fields (funerals, wax-works, taxidermy) are treated with affectionate respect. The British counterpart to The Index of American Design [Book Review Digest 1950]; we find many ancestors of our own expression here." New Repub

Booklist 48:141 D 15 '51

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut

Library J 77:437 Mr 1 '52 90w

New Repub 125:20 D 10 '51 50w

"The more extravagant her trouvaille, the more scrupulous is Miss Jones's recording of it. This has a charm of its own. She draws beautifully when her collector's interest has been engaged. Yet now and again in this quest among unsophisticated gauds (limited, by the way, very largely to the visual arts) one may scent a certain artificiality or equivocation of mood." G. W. Stonier

— New Statesman & Nation 42:471 O 27 '51 450w

"This is a gay and entirely delightful book . . . I can think of hardly anybody who won't find something to like about it. One could give it—with equal propriety—to one's great-aunt who likes a 'nice book,' or to the undergraduate nephew who only likes books with titles like Whither Positivism or The New Integration. But Miss Jones has produced something more than a suitable Yuletide gift. The Unsophisticated Arts is plainly destined to be an important source-book for that monumental history of taste which, one supposes, will sooner or later have to be compiled—on one side of the Atlantic or the other." Jocelyn Brooke

— Spec 187:306 S 7 '51 700w

"It is a pity that so versatile an artist, and one who possesses such an uncommonly penetrating eye for significant details, should have chosen a deliberately over-sophisticated approach to it—her own phrase—the unsophisticated arts, for these call for a more objective study than is consistent with recurrent flippancy. Forced facetiousness and a hunt for startling adjectives take toll of Miss Jones's determination to be amusing throughout. . . This mars what, in many parts, is a most interesting and informative text, copiously illustrated by her own beautifully accurate drawings."

Times [London] Lit Sup p614 S 28 '51 1200w

JONES, CHARLES, and JONES, EUGENE. Double trouble; the autobiography of the Jones twins; with Dale Kramer. 317p il $3.75 Little

B or 92

52-9067

The autobiography of the Jones twins, Eugene and Charles, who have become famous as cameramen and war correspondents.

"This is a highly readable autobiography of the twins and the type of strict regimen they set for themselves in order to reach a goal. Can be considered a career book of sorts although its language and ideas are suitable for the later teen ager as well as the adult." H. L. Roth

— Library J 77:1998 N 15 '52 90w

"To this reviewer, who acknowledges a prejudice in favor of news photographers, the real joy of the Jones twins' autobiography is not so much their account of the Iwo Jima and Korean battlefronts, good as it may be, but the portrayal of the dauntless soul of the cameraman." Marcus Duffield

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 D 7 '52 600w

JONES, CHARLES, and JONES, EUGENE.
Face of war. 166p il $5 Prentice-Hall

951.9 Korean war, 1950- —Pictorial works
51-14884

"Charles and Eugene Jones are identical twins and crack photographers. They were working for rival Washington papers when the Korean war broke out. They quit their jobs and wangled a new one, for both, from NBC-TV. In Korea, the Jones brothers had one big ambition—to capture on film what Bill Mauldin had caught with his cartoons and Ernie Pyle with his column, 'the professional combat man with dirty face and clean weapons.'" (Commonweal) This book is the result.

Booklist 48:169 Ja 15 '52

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 F 17 '52
110w

"The book is a graphic testament to the fact that war is hell for the few men who actually do the fighting."

+ Commonweal 55:286 D 21 '51 140w

"It is first rate and front line stuff." R. F. Crandell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 D 16 '51
290w

"Men in war do not 'sit' for their portraits, and the 145 photographs here presented are valuable as documentary evidence that war, as usual, is hell. But beyond that, the experiment of enlarging 16mm. motion picture 'stills' to full-page photographs is far from successful. The result is too often nothing but a shadowy blur. Moreover, the quality of reproduction in many cases is so bad that it might have been printed on a country newspaper press. Fortunately, the Jones twins have also chosen to write of the war they saw in Korea. . . It proves that a few hundred well-written words often tell more than one picture." J. K. J.

+ N Y Times p16 D 9 '51 230w

"The Jones Twins' tried to capture on film the nastiest job in the world—that of the infantryman in the field. They succeeded. 'The Face of War' is a selection of stills clipped from these newsreels, some blurred and streaked (like impressionist paintings), some clouded with shell-burst and tracer bullets. They are unretouched enlargements from the small movie frames, not the sharp stills some life cameramen bring back. These are all vivid and extremely effective, nevertheless; some make you shiver to look at them." William Hogan

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 23 '51
350w

"This book, happily, is not all-American; the Joneses have room for the Australians and for the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders. There is as little fine and sharp delineation in the Jones brothers' photographs as there is in infantry action, which is all to the good. The effect is as if the scenes portrayed were really going on at the instant the pictures were made." John Winterich

+ Sat R 35:11 Ja 12 '52 250w

JONES, MRS CONSTANCE (BRIDGES), comp.
Great thoughts of great Americans; introd. by Allan Nevins. 305p $2.95 Crowell

810.8 American literature—Collections. Quotations
51-14415

"From Capt. John Smith to Ike, some 200 of America's leaders and writers are represented by quotations in this book. The thoughts range from the joshing of Josh Billings to the sage observations of Jefferson, Lincoln, and MacArthur. Some of the entries are poems and some are discussions several pages long, but nearly all are sharp sentences or succinct paragraphs." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 D 16 '51
60w

"Our Founding Fathers were a wise, sensible lot. Any bookshelf would be richer with this compilation added." E. R. J.

+ Churchman 165:17 D 1 '51 90w

"Useful reference for speakers and writers."

+ Kirkus 19:557 S 15 '51 80w

San Francisco Chronicle p31 F 3 '52
100w

JONES, ELI STANLEY. How to be a transformed person. 364p $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

242.2 Devotional exercises
51-14737

"This newest daily devotional guide by the famed missionary, preacher and author continues the pattern of his previous page-a-day books. A Bible reference for the day is followed by three or four paragraphs of meditation, a prayer and an affirmation. There are 365 devotions, organized in weekly units, designed to be used in any of three ways: Personal daily reflection; weekly study or discussion groups; reading as a continuous whole." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Bookmark 11:81 Ja '52 30w

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 20 '52
160w

"For this reviewer, the book is essentially a personal, daily devotion, though it is highly rewarding anyway one looks at it." T. F. Opie

+ Churchman 166:16 Mr 1 '52 150w

JONES, ERNEST. Swing the clubhead; as told to David Eisenberg; il. with photographs and drawings. 126p $2.75 Dodd

796.35 Golf
52-8090

"With the assistance of David Eisenberg, and illustrated with photographs and drawings, the author explains the importance of the swing in golf, and how perfection in the art may be attained." Library J

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1408 S 1 '52 20w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 8 '52
110w

JONES, HOWARD MUMFORD. Bright Medusa. 98p $2.50 Univ. of Ill. press

810.9 American literature—History and criticism
52-10463

"In these lectures delivered at the University of Chicago's Festival of Contemporary Arts [the author] begins with a brief reference to the role of mere fashion in literary taste and then proposes to discuss the now legendary decade which came to an end with the depression. What were its actual characteristics? How new and how unrelated to the immediate past does it now seem to have been? Where can we go from there?" Nation

Booklist 49:63 O 15 '52

Reviewed by Warren Beck

Chicago Sunday Tribune p25 N 16 '52
230w

"Professor Jones is certainly on the side of the angels, and his book is both courageous and stimulating. But it is fragmentary, sometimes slipshod and undeveloped. In compressing his argument into three short essays he lays himself open to serious misunderstanding. All this insistence on youth, for example, is unrealistic and unhealthy." David Daiches

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 14 '52 400w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch

Nation 175:303 O 4 '52 1050w

"Howard Mumford Jones attempts to provide a new shield of Perseus in which his university audience might safely gaze at the beauty of Medusa, the dread impersonation of inspired art whose beauty turns the unwary to stone. This book is the collection of well-knit lectures he gave for the occasion. They are designed to develop an informed and wise but still active and enthusiastic approach by youth to art and especially literature." Philip Burnham

+ N Y Times p28 S 28 '52 850w

JONES, IDWAL. Chef's holiday; il. by Roger Duvoisin. 210p $3 Longmans
817 Cookery, French. France—Description and travel 52-10762

A gayly written travelogue interlarded with dozens of recipes for good French dishes, as the author narrates the adventures of Florian, proprietor of a Paris restaurant, on his chef's holiday around France.

Kirkus 20:492 Ag 1 '52 100w

"Besides being packed with recipes, the book has charming little vignettes of French character, one of them a memory of Clemenceau going to market, another of Pierre Loti as a circus performer. The illustrations of Roger Duvoisin are delightful and beautifully wedded to the text." Rose Feld

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 23 '52 190w

"The recipes of the gorgeous regional dishes the three companions stored under their belts are described in loving detail, but not explicitly enough for the culinary tyro. Nevertheless, for those who understand the fundamentals of cookery they will be a source of inspiration for the concoction of new and delicious dishes." E. L. Tinker

+ N Y Times p40 N 30 '52 220w

"These are pleasant, if slightly mad, people to whom Mr. Jones will introduce you, and if you're one who frankly relishes good food and one who is willing to take pains to achieve that difference between cookery that is adequate and cookery that is genuinely fine, then you'll have a very good time indeed." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 29 '52 700w

JONES, LAWRENCE EVELYN. A la carte. 162p il $2.75 British bk. centre 828 [52-7773]

"Among those amateurs who are ever ready with a contest entry, a word of wisdom to the public press; or vers d'occasion, L. E. Jones is undoubtedly the supreme master. In England his initials are known as those of the winner of practically all of The New Statesman competitions. In prose or poetry, parody or paradox, epitaph or epigram, he seems to be in easy command of any style and any subject. Many of his witty and urbane pieces, together with some of his more serious personal poetry, are brought together in this book." Library J

"Delightful book." Gerald McDonald

+ Library J 77:1206 J1 '52 90w

New Statesman & Nation 42:572 N 17 '51 240w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Mr 23 '52 30w

"I wish there were not so much irrationally blank paper in this book, and at least twice as many of the delicious morsels. Mr. L. E. Jones is the best of all doctors for the curing of the blues, even the deepest indigo blues; though he can be gracefully serious as well as elegantly droll. But he is much more than droll. He is a constitutional wit, a wit of nature's making, a man with a scholar's mind and a poet's accelerated fancy; so enticing and so accomplished that he can safely dare to be sentimental—and that is because he reveals, below sentiment, the underlying pattern of a central, generous and urbane humanity." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 187:658 N 16 '51 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p767 N 30 '51 350w

JONES, LLOID, and JONES, JUANITA NUT-TALL. Sentinel in the saddle; il. by W. H. Wickham. 240p $2.50 Westminster press
51-7268

Story of a young boy who gets a chance to try out at an unusual sort of job, that of government hunter in a western state. When he finally "gets his bear" he is told he is assured of a career in the Fish and Wildlife Service.

"March is a likeable boy, with a good sense of humor, and this makes absorbing reading, with a plus for career material." J. L. G.

+ Kirkus 19:397 Ag 1 '51 130w

"Spirited action from page one, excitement of trapping and hunting in the Far West, and well-sustained suspense throughout lift this teen-age novel above the routine story of a boy finding his vocation. . . Recommended."

A. B. Martin

+ Library J 76:1575 O 1 '51 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 10 '52 90w

"The Western background is authentic and the characterization shows the authors' sympathetic understanding of teen agers. The hunting scenes are exciting and readers will also acquire an appreciation of a valuable Government agency." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p16 N 11 '51 130w

JONES, MRS LOUISE (SEYMOUR). Human side of bookplates. 158p il col il $5 Anderson & Ritchie

097 Bookplates

"A remarkable lot of gossip and lore about book-plates, book-lovers who use them, artists who design them, and enthusiasts (of which she is one) who collect them. But this is not a technical book, of which there is already a plenty, but a sort of by-product which she accurately describes as the human side of bookplates." Sat R

"If you're a bookplate collector already, you'll want this full-laden volume of human tidbits on the subject. If you're not, but have ever thought of being—well, this may well make an addict of you. Mrs. Jones writes with so much enthusiasm, and covers so much ground without once becoming too technical, that I can hardly conceive of her interest not communicating itself to almost any reader." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 18 '52 700w

"Many plates are reproduced; too much reduction of size for the more detailed ones is the only flaw in this charming book. It will be enjoyed as good reading by almost anyone, no matter how remote his interest in the ostensible subject; he will be both entertained and informed." E. E. Calkins

+ Sat R 35:20 Ag 16 '52 350w

JONES, PERCY MANSELL. Background of modern French poetry; essays and interviews. 196p $3.75 Cambridge

841.09 French poetry—History and criticism [52-7623]

"Explores the nature of literary influence, and its part in literary creation, as found at work in some aspects of French poetry since Baudelaire. Part I contains an essay on Swedenborg and Baudelaire, an essay on Edgar Allan Poe, Baudelaire and Mallarmé, a third on the "imposing but frequently miscalculated effects" of Baudelaire's discovery of Poe, and a fourth on Whitman and the Symbolists. Part II is concerned with prosody, and contains four essays entitled: From poetic prose to the prose-poem; The development of the vers libéré; The first theory of vers libre; Whitman and the origins of the vers libre." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"His writing is in the best sense popular; the general reader will find nothing arid in the critical skirmishes incidental to the fixing of detail; the main shape and outline of each exploration remains engaging and suggestive." A. G. L.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 8 '52 370w

"Professor Mansell Jones's book is serious, scrupulous and intelligent but it is pitched in a key of half-conviction, as if he were wondering at every step whether he ought to be writing it at all. And, having completed it, he adds a preface in which, with remarkable integrity, he declares outright that this kind of careful probing of 'sources' should give way to more 'intuitive scholarship,' based on a keener sense of literary values. One can only agree, at the same time regretting that he did not produce a manifesto to this effect earlier."

New Statesman & Nation 43:194 F 16 '52 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p167 Mr 7 '52 1650w

JONES, PERCY MANSELL. Baudelaire. (Studies in modern European literature and thought) 63p $2.50 Yale univ. press

841 Baudelaire, Charles Pierre 52-10452

"Fundamentally [the author's] view is that of T. S. Eliot, that Baudelaire and his poetry were at bottom Christian, but Mr. Jones, who teaches at the University of Manchester, succeeds in documenting this view past disbelief. His book is a necessary corrective to Sartre's recent demolition of Baudelaire, but perhaps errs in not taking Sartre's negative version into consideration." N Y Times

Reviewed by Fritz Richter

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 14 '52 50w

"Mr P. Mansell Jones' study of Baudelaire is learned and expounds with interest the architectural coherence of Les Fleurs du Mal." Rudd Fleming

+ New Repub 127:22 J1 7 '52 70w

Reviewed by Michael Hamburger

New Statesman & Nation 44:142 Ag 2 '52 140w

Reviewed by Malcolm Cowley

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 J1 27 '52 500w

Reviewed by William Barrett

N Y Times p5 Je 22 '52 40w
Spec 189:80 J1 11 '52 60w

JONES, RAYMOND F. Son of the stars. 210p $2 Winston 52-5494

Science-fiction novel.

Booklist 48:384 J1 15 '52

Kirkus 20:228 Ap 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 J1 6 '52 70w

"As contemporary in mood as the latest rumor of a flying saucer." E. L. Buell

N Y Times p15 Je 22 '52 120w

JONES, RICHARD FOSTER, and others. Seventeenth century; studies in the history of English thought and literature from Bacon to Pope, by Richard Foster Jones and others writing in his honor. 392p il $7 Stanford univ. press

820.9 English literature—History and criticism 51-6438

This volume is published in commemoration of Professor Jones's sixty-fifth birthday. It is composed of a number of reprinted articles by the author plus articles by Marjorie Nicolson, Louis I. Bredvold, E. M. W. Tillyard, Basil Willey, George B. Parks, Herbert Davis, et al.

Sat R 35:32 Mr 29 '52 180w

"All these are pleasant, well-informed and often revealing essays, but the most thoroughgoing are those by Professor Jones himself on the change in language so largely due to science. . . This volume, if not an indispensable addition to our knowledge, once more shows how fascinating it is to delve into this inexhaustible century." Bonamy Dobrée

+ Spec 188:446 Ap 4 '52 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p143 F 22 '52 350w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:27 Mr '52 280w

JONES, SIR RODERICK. A life in Reuters. 496p $7 Doubleday

B or 92 Reuter, Auguste Julius Clemens Herbert, baron de, Reuters, limited. Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-8950

"An autobiography, and also the story of Reuters, the worldwide British news-gathering agency founded in 1851 by Paul Julius Reuter, and headed by the author from 1915 until his retirement in 1941. Sir Roderick started with Reuters as a correspondent in South Africa just before the Boer War and became its director and part owner after the death of the founder's son. He gives many glimpses into the rarefied realm of the lords of the press, and permits himself a few delightful excursions into personal reminiscences." (New Yorker) Index.

Reviewed by Gilbert Twiss

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 21 '52 60w

"This is a long book of possibly restricted interest to an American audience since much of it deals with South Africa, a land which seems more distant to Americans than should be the case. Much of it deals also with the British press and names familiar only to a handful of American newsmen. But it is the story of achievement, and of a happy and successful life." Roland Sawyer

Christian Science Monitor p9 O 14 '52 300w

"Sir Roderick Jones's book is a valuable supplement to the official centenary history of the agency."

+ Manchester Guardian p4 J1 6 '51 650w

"The telling is sometimes rambling and even repetitive, but it has the merit of being a personal account rendered by a vivid, frank and generous personality. To those who know nothing of newspaper history, especially in Britain, the amount of detail may be deterrent. But there is included, along with the history of Reuters, the adventurous career of the author and some fascinating pictures of South Africa before, during and after the Boer War." Ivor Brown

+ N Y Times p7 S 21 '52 800w

"The author is a man of intelligence and integrity, and the writing is good."

+ New Yorker 28:72 Ag 30 '52 160w

Spec 187:72 J1 13 '51 180w

Times [London] Lit Sup p431 J1 13 '51 750w

JONES, RUTH FOSDICK. Boy of the pyramids. 140p il $2.50 Random house 52-5854

A mystery story of ancient Egypt, for ages eight to eleven. It is the story of a small, determined boy, son of a nobleman of the time of Khufu, and the lovely little slave girl, playmate of the hero.

Booklist 48:325 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 4 '52 160w

Reviewed by Mary Handy

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 15 '52 120w

Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 20w

+ Horn Bk 28:176 Je '52 120w

Kirkus 20:30 Ja 15 '52 100w

"Excellent background reading. . . Recommended." Helen Perdue

+ Library J 77:728 Ap 15 '52 80w

"The style is clear and easy, and the information kept subordinate to plenty of action." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 27 '52 170w

"Like children of any time and any place, Kaffe and his devoted slave are inquisitive and this leads them through various adventures in the desert and in Khufu's pyramid, to the discovery of a criminal, all of which tells a good deal about Egypt." E. L. B.

JONES, R. F.—Continued

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '52 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R 35:50 My 10 '52 120w
Wis Lib Bul 48:219 S '52

JONES, WILLIAM THOMAS. History of western philosophy. 2v ea $4.25; also in 1 v $8.75; text ed $6.75 Harcourt

109 Philosophy—History 52-1836

"Three main principles guide the writer: (1) concentration upon major figures; (2) extensive quotation from sources; and (3) full presentation of cultural background. Philosophy is an integral part of a general culture. About one third of the book consists of direct quotations. These key passages are bound together by a connective text of comment, criticism, explication, and interpretation." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

"Mr. Jones has told his story in an interesting style. He avoids jargon. He tells his story in his own words but gives his authors about a third of the space to speak for themselves. Students of special fields—political philosophy, as an example—will find much of interest in his selections and comments." M. R. Gabbert

+ Ann Am Acad 284:207 N '52 490w

"The author says that the inclusion of selections from the philosophers themselves makes the book 'halfway between a textbook and a source book.' It does contain a good sprinkling of short selections, but not enough to make it even halfway a source book. It is definitely a textbook, and one which teachers of philosophy will do well to think about seriously for possible use with their classes." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:1380 N 26 '52 280w

JONEZ, HINTON DENNY. My fight to conquer multiple sclerosis; as told to Miriam Zeller Gross. 227p $3.50 Messner

616.83 Multiple sclerosis 52-10015

The author, a Tacoma, Washington, general practitioner, relates how for a number of years he has studied and experimented with possible cures for multiple sclerosis.

Booklist 48:333 Je 15 '52

+ Kirkus 20:248 Ap 1 '52 240w

"Highly recommended for every library and to be read generally." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 77:890 My 15 '52 140w

"The demonstrable effectiveness of each element in Dr. Jonez' 'cure' has been questioned in Dr. George H. Schumacher's brilliant monograph, 'Multiple Sclerosis and Its Treatment.' Dr. Jonez himself freely admits that he hasn't proved anything basic. But by the time he has done with his moving tale, describing obstacles like the suspicions of colleagues as well as heartening support from the Sisters of St Joseph's, one realizes that research is not all of medicine. The prose style in which this tale is set down by Dr. Jonez' collaborator is something less than distinguished and the book would have benefited by better organization of the material. The sincerity of Dr. Jonez survives these defects." Moses Smith

+ N Y Times p20 My 18 '52 350w

"The book is not a medical monograph, and physicians will desire further and scientific reports substantiating Dr. Jonez' work and results; they will, however, find the present book both interesting and stimulating."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:320 S '52 180w

Wis Lib Bul 48:168 J1 '52

JORDAN, ELIJAH. Business be damned. 267p $4 Schuman

301.2 Business. U.S.—Civilization 52-9981

"A critically constructive examination of business and its methods as they affect American industry, politics, religion, law, art, and education by one of America's well-known social philosophers." (School & Society) No index.

Reviewed by Edward Gross

Am Soc R 17:800 D '52 120w

"To offer a neat evaluation of such a book would not be easy. One cannot reproach a reformer for putting things in bold terms, for that is the secret of his efficacy. On the other hand, we always have misgivings over a 100 per cent job of destruction. No society has been quite so hopeless and excuseless as the one Jordan depicts." R. M. Weaver

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 22 '52

300w

"This is a formidable book: a brilliant polemic, a finely articulated social philosophy, and a therapy." Fred Wieck

+ Commonweal 56:226 Je 6 '52 550w

Kirkus 20:209 Mr 15 '52 150w

"Behind the extravagances are some basic kernels of truth, and mature readers may well benefit from such a philosophic catharsis." J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1306 Ag '52 90w

"The entire book displays a profound lack of understanding of human history and economics. One will search it in vain for any admission that human beings may have been something less than completely unselfish and wholly devoted to the public good even before the advent of business, that business itself may have contributed something to improving living standards, and that Adam Smith, the moral philosopher, may not have been completely mistaken in thinking that individualism would promote the intellectual and moral development of people as well as their economic productivity." L. V. Chandler

+ N Y Times p23 My 25 '52 280w

School & Society 75:319 My 17 '52 20w

Reviewed by J. F. Rooney

Springf'd Republican p6D J1 27 '52

110w

JORDAN, ELIJAH. Essays in criticism; with an introd. and synopses by Robert D. Mack. 384p $7 Univ. of Chicago press

801 Literary criticism. Esthetics 52-7236

"The author informs us that his book 'lays the groundwork of a system of objective principles for the interpretation of literary art and submits to a devastating logical analysis the prevailing notions of literary criticisms, which Jordan finds are based largely on subjective criteria.'" Times [London] Lit Sup

"The collection of essays by Mr. Jordan, perhaps because they are all by one man, is highly controversial; indeed his book might even be called cantankerous; for he is against all modern art, criticism and philosophy; or, rather, he denies that there is any modern art, criticism or philosophy. . . . In the general modern dialectic over art and morals, Professor Jordan's book goes well with an old volume of essays by Herbert Read called Poetry and Anarchism." Rudd Fleming

New Repub 126:20 Je 2 '52 600w

"The programme sounds interesting; but it has to be said that the analysis of these 'prevailing notions' fails because one nowhere gathers what exactly is being analysed, while the 'system of objective principles' never emerges in any form that is humanly relevant or amenable to literary application. . . . A reader's final impression is that while Professor Jordan is here too exasperated to write good philosophy, his work has no positive value for literary theory because its first premise is that Man was created for the sake of Language and the Reader for the sake of Literature."

Times [London] Lit Sup p534 Ag 15 '52 650w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:249 S '52 200w

JORDAN, EMIL LEOPOLD. Hammond's nature atlas of America; with the assistance of a group of specialists in the various branches of the natural sciences; 320 original paintings, 282 by Walter Ferguson and 38 by John Cody. 256p $7.50 Hammond

574 Natural history—North America
Map52-904

Reference work in which text and illustrations describe the best-known species of minerals, trees, wildflowers, birds, animals, fish, reptiles, and insects of the United States and southern Canada. Maps show distribution. Includes chapters on rainfall, temperature, and vegetation. Maps. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 49:28 S 15 '52

"In valuable addition to the main part of the book, a 'classification key' gives 'an outline of our natural environment by orders and families.' This provides a systematic and thorough coverage of natural objects. In short, here is the book that in its color, range, and variety makes an appealing invitation to learn more—from this comprehensive book; from other, technical or specialized books, and in the field—about outdoor America." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 26 '52
350w

"A worthwhile introduction to the leading families of our plant, animal and mineral kingdoms." H. B. Nichols

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 O 2 '52
550w

"The chief value of this will be in schools and children's rooms in the libraries, or as a 'family reference book' in well-supplied households. Inevitably, the material is sketchy. . . . Some of the material is more successfully handled than others. I found trees the least successful, for example, after reading all that was said about the pines, one could not learn to distinguish one from another except in sweeping generalities."

+ Kirkus 20:596 S 1 '52 180w

"Recommended for all libraries." Elsie Dobbins

+ Library J 77:1665 O 1 '52 130w

"The 'Nature Atlas' has something for almost every one: simple data for beginners, nature geography for travelers, detailed maps and scientific information of permanent reference value for full-time naturalists. For any one at all, it has a great deal of beauty. It is quite a book." Alan Devoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 S 28 '52
450w

"Some of the illustrations—notably those of trees—are outstanding for their imaginative quality, while others are less successful. But on the whole a very satisfying job has been done by the artists. The text is written in entertaining, readable and non-technical language." J. B. Oakes

+ N Y Times p38 O 5 '52 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 30 '52
180w

Special Libraries 43:418 D '52 60w

Springf'd Republican p8D S 7 '52 130w

JORDAN, GEORGE RACEY, and STOKES, RICHARD L. From Major Jordan's diaries. 284p il $3.50 Harcourt

940.5373 World war, 1939-1945—Economic aspects. U.S.—Relations (general) with Russia 52-6448

"From 1942 to 1944 Major Jordan served as Lend-Lease expeditor and liaison officer for the Russians. His foreboding that Lend-Lease would one day be investigated caused him to keep detailed diaries of all his transactions with the Russians. These records are used to document his allegations that the activities of Lend-Lease exceeded beyond all reason the actual agreements. It is a story of Russia demanding and receiving an assortment of non-military supplies, to the extent of hampering this country's war efforts." (Library J) Index.

Cath World 176:157 N '52 140w

"It is a tale surpassing belief and one to make shivers of apprehension race up and down the spine in contemplating the threat of World War III. The diaries of Maj. Jordan present an astounding account of arrogant soviet connivance and of blind American trust, with ominous overtones of treason." Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 14 '52
550w

Reviewed by E. S. Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p9 O 7 '52
600w

Kirkus 20:627 S 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 77:1499 S 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by Harry Baehr

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 14 '52
800w

"What emerges in the way of self-portrait is an earnest, conscientious, deeply patriotic and limited man—a World War I 'retread,' as he wryly calls himself—who has got mixed up in an argument whose end is not in sight. If he is suggesting that a good many people were flirting about with the Communists, he is at least suggesting it as a man who is not an ex-Communist." W. S. White

+ N Y Times p6 S 14 '52 650w

Reviewed by Oliver Pilat

Sat R 35:29 O 4 '52 550w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p11C O 19 '52
340w

JORDAN, RUDOLF. New perspective; an essay. 315p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

110 Metaphysics 51-14114

"A search for a philosophic world view is attempted in this essay which embodies findings of the arts and sciences of our generation. Written in the tradition of Whitehead, this book displays deep and wide learning by a man who was educated at Heidelberg, has been a lawyer, judge and soldier, and is now farming in South Africa." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 48:190 F 15 '52

"In spite of his persistent use of 'correctness' as a criterion throughout, and his tendency to use abstraction as a whipping-boy, Mr. Jordan has written a stimulating essay on the sins of philosophers as seen by one who finds 'more philosophy in some of the geographical magazines than in most of the philosophical ones.'" H. A. Larrabee

+ J Philos 69:362 My 8 '52 1200w

Reviewed by Y. H. Krikorian

New Repub 127:18 Ag 11 '52 1250w

Reviewed by Irving Babow

San Francisco Chronicle p26 F 3 '52
80w

JORDY, WILLIAM H. Henry Adams, scientific historian. 327p $5 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Adams, Henry 52-5362

"William Jordy, an instructor in art history at Yale has examined, first, the earlier, formal histories, the histories that recounted from various points of view the emergence of a new nation and the triumph of the forces of American nationalism and democracy over the forces of fragmentation and of Old World habits and traditions. . . . The body of Mr. Jordy's book however, is given over to a careful study of the philosophy of history which Adams propounded, in his 'Letter to American Teachers of History,' in his 'Rule of Phase Applied to History,' and in the 'Education' and—almost incidentally—the 'Mont-Saint-Michel and Chartres.'" (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

"Adams' virtues have never been revealed more clearly, but then his failings have not been overlooked—which means that this study comes close to deserving that dangerous word, definitive." Wayne Andrews

+ Commonweal 56:517 Ag 29 '52 700w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson

New Repub 127:22 J1 28 '52 420w

JORDY, W. H.—Continued

"Mr. Jordy judged it worth his time to investigate the 'abracadabra of authoritarianism' with which Adams defended the 'curve of degeneration' he postulated to amuse himself and confuse his contemporaries. A profitless task, one would think. Yet Mr. Jordy attacks it with such zest, such a competent grasp of nineteenth-century science, such an inventive and evocative style, that he transcends the limits of biography, transcends Adams' petulant paradoxes, and produces a work of genuine distinction in the field of intellectual history."

Geoffrey Bruun

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J1 6 '52 800w

"The most penetrating study of Henry Adams yet written." H. S. Commager

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 3 '52 1550w

"The novelty and value in Mr. Jordy's study lie in its central thesis, that Adams was a 'disillusioned Comtist.' It has been pretty generally assumed that Comte was a primary influence on the later and theoretical aspects of Adams's life and that the 'History' was to no great degree influenced by the French philosopher. Mr. Jordy demonstrates that the reverse was actually the case." R. E. Spiller

Sat R 35:11 Ag 2 '52 700w

School & Society 78:31 J1 12 '52 40w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:236 S '52 190w

JOSEPH, ALICE, and MURRAY, VERONICA FRAZIER. Chamorros and Carolinians of Saipan; personality studies; with an analysis of the Bender gestalt tests by Lauretta Bender. 381p il $5 Harvard univ. press

136.4 Chamorros. Caroline Islanders in Saipan. Ethnology—Saipan 51-14648

"Drs. Joseph and Murray make no claims to a detailed analysis, but it is clear that they have relied on the available historical and anthropological material for a background. The authors spent seven months on Saipan administering psychological and physical tests, to produce the first extensive personality study of a Micronesian people. The results are sufficiently significant to justify the close working alliance between psychiatrist and anthropologist now employed in many investigations." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Bibliography, Index.

"This is an interesting and important book: interesting because of a mass of field observations freshly reported; important because of the significant conclusions drawn from the field material." Ernest Beaglehole

+ Am Anthropol 54:547 J1 '52 650w

"The most penetrating aspect of the total study stems from the way in which the results of the tests and surveys are analyzed. Instead of restricting the interpretation to a description of what patterns of behavior are found in a particular cultural setting, the authors have used a dynamic approach to explain the nexus between personality structures and the dominant social systems of Saipan. It is here that the project is so revealing of the impact of power on the individual." John Useem

+ Am Soc R 17:378 Je '52 1100w

"Drs. Joseph and Murray have written a wise and thought-provoking book which should interest a wide public." Ian Hogbin

+ Pacific Affairs 25:314 S '52 380w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:46 Mr '52 200w

JOSEPH, MICHAEL. Charles; the story of a friendship. 110p il $2.50 Prentice-Hall

636.8 Cats 52-10664

The author, a British publisher and a cat-lover writes of his best-loved cat, a Siamese, which was his friend and his close companion for thirteen years, 1930-1942.

Booklist 49:25; 100 S 15 '52; N 15 '52

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p19 N 9 '52 120w

Kirkus 20:494 Ag 1 '52 120w

"It is a fascinating book for all felinephiles and is recommended for cat collection." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1650 O 1 '52 60w

Springf'd Republican p13C D 14 '52 20w

JOSEPH, RICHARD. World wide travel guide; the year round handbook of pleasure travel. 398p $3.50 Doubleday

910.2 Travel. Europe—Description and travel. Latin America—Description and travel 52-5129

"An expanded version of a handbook entitled 'Your Trip Abroad' [Book Review Digest 1950]. Chapters on Spain, Germany, Israel, and Finland have been added, along with one by Dr. Morris Fishbein on how to stay healthy while a rover." New Yorker

Booklist 48:267 Ap 15 '52

"Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:901 My 15 '52 90w

Reviewed by Robert Payne

N Y Times p7 My 18 '52 110w

"His style, unfortunately, is a bit breathless, but he probably offers enough solid tips on how to get about comfortably, as well as the more usual Baedeker facts, to justify his publisher's claim that no other single volume is so comprehensive."

+ New Yorker 28:133 My 3 '52 140w

Reviewed by Raymond Walters

+ Sat R 35:43 My 3 '52 230w

JOSEPH, RICHARD. Your trip to Britain; maps by Rafael Palacios. 446p $4.50 Doubleday

914.2 Great Britain—Description and travel 52-5754

A detailed guide book to the British Isles. Gives information for all kinds of travel: by rail, plane, car, and hiking. The first section is on planning the trip; the second is about the actual visit. Index.

"The author's avowed love affair with the British Isles leads him to discern enticements in places which, as a former resident of this territory, I would heartily dis-recommend. But even a native of Britain would find this sprightly manual, with its vast fund of folklore, a very helpful source of reference on a trip around his own country."

Atlantic 189:84 Je '52 100w

Booklist 48:295 My 15 '52

Reviewed by J. A. May

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 17 '52 300w

"An excellent, up to date, tourist guide, particularly for the complete novice."

+ Kirkus 20:144 F 15 '52 230w

"A handy book for consultation because the practical information is up-to-date, but it misses the mark when it begins picking out and describing places of interest." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:901 My 15 '52 100w

"Outside of the Baedeker-type guidebook, this is probably the most comprehensive volume for the visitor to the United Kingdom."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 18 '52 210w

Reviewed by Robert Payne

N Y Times p7 My 18 '52 100w

"His style is arch, but this failing is probably more than offset by the wealth of data he offers on England, Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland."

+ New Yorker 28:147 My 17 '52 120w

"This is a fat 450-page volume filled with exact, specific information of almost every conceivable kind." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 31 '52 350w

"His book is written specifically from an American standpoint, and as such is the best guide to the isles I've yet come across, well worth its twenty-six ounces in anybody's airplane luggage. . . Mr. Joseph strikes a happy balance between the breezy and strictly informative styles of travel writing. . . . There's plenty of sauce served throughout this guide, but it never overwhelms the good solid meat." Roland Gelatt

+ Sat R 35:56 Ap 12 '52 270w

JOSEPHSON, MATTHEW. Sidney Hillman; statesman of American labor. 701p $5 Doubleday

B or 92 Hillman, Sidney 52-11080

The life story of the man who for thirty-five years was the guiding spirit of the Amalgamated clothing workers. Index.

Booklist 49:156 Ja 1 '53

Bookmark 12:79 Ja '53 40w

Received by Philip Dodd

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 28 '52 270w

"This book is more than a biography. It is a history of the immense growth in power and in purse of the American labor movement, collective and individual, in the past 20 years, when Sidney Hillman was labor's most important leader." Roland Sawyer

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 16 '52 550w

"A superb biography of a man and a movement, of far wider interest than simply that of those to whom Hillman was a great man and a great leader."

+ Kirkus 20:593 S 1 '52 400w

"Into this account has gone a vast amount of research which makes for a scholarly biography but not a very exciting one. Will interest those seeking facts more than those seeking insights." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 77:2004 N 15 '52 100w

"The legacy which he would most have liked to leave is skill and determination to carry on work of the same quality, a skill to the learning of which this book should make its contribution." George Soule

+ New Repub 127:18 D 22 '52 550w

"Not since 'The Robber Barons' has Mr. Josephson so effectively focused the complex political and economic pressures at work over several decades of American history. It is a happy choice of subject, executed with an accurate eye for detail and a persuasively lucid style." L. G. Reynolds

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 4 '53 750w

"In one chapter, the author cavalierly tosses in a parenthetical sentence imputing to President Truman initiation of the cold war. This erroneous political observation mars an otherwise excellent work—a work which will stand the test of time." Louis Stark

+ — N Y Times p10 D 7 '52 1000w

Reviewed by F. R. Dulles

+ Sat R 35:12 D 27 '52 480w

JOST, WILHELM. Diffusion in solids, liquids, gases. 558p il $12 Academic press

541.373 [541.341] Diffusion 52-5204

"The phenomena of diffusion concern not only chemists but also physicists and metallurgists. In this treatise by a professor of physical chemistry in the Technische Hochschule, Darmstadt, most of the space is given to diffusion processes in solids and across interfaces between bulk phases. However, there is a fair amount of discussion of diffusion in liquids and gases. The treatment is analytical, and the book is addressed primarily to physical chemists and others who are interested in diffusion from the research angle." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book will be useful to a wide range of scientific professions from chemical engineering to solid state physics. It is, however, essentially a reference book, being too voluminous to be useful as a text except in a highly specialized, advanced course. As a reference book, however, it is undoubtedly destined to be the classic in its field for many years to come." John Bowman

+ Chem Eng 59:359 S '52 170w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:37 My '52

JOUVENEL, BERTRAND DE. Ethics of redistribution [prepared for publication by Mrs Patrick Bury]. 91p $1.75 Cambridge

339.41 [339.2] Income, Social ethics

[52-8575]

"A critical examination of the socialist ideal of income redistribution, and of the actual effects of income redistribution on social values. Lectures delivered at Cambridge University in 1949." Am Pol Sci R

"Here is a man who stocks our intellectual streams with ideas. This book is an angler's delight. If some of de Jovenel's fish are too weak to survive shipment, so many others are vigorous that it would be a mistake to ask him to remain to care for them rather than make another trip for more." C. E. Lindblom

+ Am Econ R 42:920 D '52 450w

Am Pol Sci R 46:602 Je '52 30w

"The book is well written, and teachers of courses on current economic problems, contemporary economic systems, and the like will want to consider it for inclusion in their list of collateral readings." H. W. Spiegel

+ Ann Am Acad 282:171 J1 '52 450w

"Two thoughtful lectures." J. S. Earley

J Pol Econ 60:440 O '52 550w

Reviewed by E. Devons

Manchester Guardian p4 Ja 11 '52 270w

"This reviewer's disagreement with the author is obvious. None the less, M. de Jovenel has in brief space succinctly expressed doubts of great importance even to those of us who find government more benevolent and redistribution more desirable than he does. Undeniably there are dangers in a powerful government; surely the limits of redistribution remain unclear; and inevitably the outlines of the good society are mysterious. All this and more M. de Jovenel gracefully advances in prose whose style is as neat and concise as its contents are potent." Robert Lekachman

+ — Nation 174:583 Je 14 '52 1150w

Nations [London] Lit Sup p192 Mr 14 '52 370w

JOYCE, JAMES. Exiles; a play in three acts. ltd ed 127p $5 Viking

822

52-212

A new edition of Joyce's one play, with hitherto unpublished notes, discovered after the author's death, and an introduction by Padraic Colum.

Kirkus 19:626 O 15 '51 210w

"Joyce's single play has long fascinated his followers. Recommended for large drama and literature collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:362 F 15 '52 20w

"This by-product of Joyce's first ten years out of Ireland, when he was mainly engaged in writing 'Portrait of the Artist,' does not deserve the neglect it has often received. It represents an essential step, or misstep if you choose, in Joyce's development from 'Dubliners' to 'Ulysses.'" G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 16 '52 230w

"It is a beautifully written play—as anything Joyce put a mind to would be. . . . In a note he says: 'The greatest danger in the writing of this play is tenderness of speech and mood.' The tenderness is present all right, but it is tough too, tough-minded and tensile, and the third-act curtain is a first-rate example of Joyce not permitting you quite to melt, which makes for a good evening rather than a sticky one." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p15 D 16 '51 230w

"The notes are of particular interest because they discuss in unambiguous language the psychological relationships between the characters, which are not quite openly stated in the play. . . A glimpse of Joyce's clear, realistic, and completely logical mind working behind the scenes of one of his complex evocations."

JOYCE, JAMES—Continued

+ New Yorker 27:79 F 2 '52 140w

"The reissuing of this work is nothing short of a major event, because for the first time this three-act is accompanied by notes in which the author posed many of the problems of the drama." Richard McLaughlin

+ Theatre Arts 36:94 F '52 160w

JUDD, CYRIL, pseud. of CYRIL M. KORNBLUTH, and JUDITH MERRILL. Gunner Cade. 218p $2.75 Simon & Schuster

52-3697

Science-fiction novel.

Kirkus 20:431 J1 15 '52 70w

"Readers of Cyril Judd's recent and admirable 'Outpost Mars' are warned that this is a very different type of book—professional, readable and completely uncreative. . . though perhaps new readers, unfamiliar with the countless stories from which it stems, may find it enjoyable enough." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 28 '52 150w

"'Gunner Cade' is a first-rate melodrama of the neo-Graustarkian school which is one of the shapes of interplanetary fiction. For both action and literacy, this is a long way ahead of most." Basil Davenport

+ N Y Times p29 O 12 '52 240w

Reviewed by Don Fabun

San Francisco Chronicle p9 D 21 '52 140w

"Knock-out thriller." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R 35:43 O 18 '52 20w

JUDD, CYRIL, pseud. of CYRIL M. KORNBLUTH, and JUDITH MERRILL. Outpost Mars. 268p $2.50 Abelard

52-10246

Science-fiction novel.

Booklist 49:69 O 15 '52

"A trifle less sharply economical than the writing of either author alone and flawed by conventional drawing of its villains, it remains a moving and thoughtful study of future colonial problems—with a solution at once more surprising and more fairly planted than that of the average detective story." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J1 20 '52 200w

"The question of whether man can really survive on Mars as more than a visitor, as well as whether Sun Lake colony can survive in the face of persecution, are neatly solved in a story which has a good deal of depth." Basil Davenport

+ N Y Times p10 S 7 '52 140w

"All of this, the grim setting, the lonely colonists, the snooping journalist, strongly parallels 'Sands of Mars' by Arthur C. Clarke reviewed here last year. If anything, 'Outpost Mars' is a more human and compelling story, up to a point, and this point is by coincidence exactly the same place where 'Sands of Mars' fell down. Both novels use a deus ex machina in the form of a hitherto undiscovered race of Martians which arrives in the nick of time, just like the U. S. cavalry in a grade 'B' Western. Aside from this 'Outpost Mars' ranks among the best of the interplanetary novels." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 3 '52 350w

JUDD, DEANE BREWSTER. Color in business, science, and industry. 401p il $6.50 Wiley

535.6 Color

52-5853

"A technical treatise and reference book on color qualities and differences, color measurement, color standards, etc. The uses of such instruments as the spectrophotometer and the photoelectric colorimeter are discussed thoroughly. The Munsell Book of Color and other color standards are described." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 48:354 J1 1 '52

"This is the first time this information has been presented in book form and the extensive list of references will enhance its usefulness as an excellent reference text." R. O. Egerton

+ Chem & Eng N 30:3762 S 8 '52 250w

"The book will be invaluable to people in industry who are concerned with the specification or measurement of colors. The mathematics and technical terminology put it beyond the grasp of most readers without technical education." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:1210 J1 '52 80w

Management R 41:417 Je '52 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:37 My '52

JUDSON, MRS CLARA (INGRAM). George Washington; leader of the people; il. by Robert Frankenberg. 224p $3.50 Wilcox & Follett

B or 92 Washington, George—Juvenile literature 51-14416

A biography of George Washington for grades five to seven. It tells his story from the time he was eight years old until his death.

Booklist 48:161 Ja 1 '52

Bookmark 11:61 D '51

"Fine new life of Washington for young people. . . Robert Frankenberg's distinguished illustrations in full color and black and white augment a beautiful piece of book making." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 D 9 '51 250w

"Some of the language is stilted, but, on the whole, it is a live biography which will hold the interest of fifth graders and can be used through seventh grade." L. R. Markey

+ Library J 76:2123 D 15 '51 100w

"Mrs. Judson's book succeeds in giving a rounded portrait, and in making clear Washington's relation to the beginnings of our nation, and she does this in a readable story. Considered together with the pictures, it is a valuable item for the school library." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 D 16 '51 270w

"Although full treatment of [Washington's] public career is given here, the special contribution of this excellent biography is its vivid picture of Washington's youth and early manhood, stressing the youthful tastes and habits which were to form his character. Valuable, too, is the wealth of detail about everyday life in the Virginia of that time seen in revealing anecdotes that children enjoy." Irene Smith

+ N Y Times p26 Ja 6 '52 100w

Wis Lib Bul 48:40 Ja '52

JUDSON, MRS CLARA (INGRAM). Thomas Jefferson, champion of the people; il. by Robert Frankenberg. 224p $3.50 Wilcox & Follett

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas—Juvenile literature 52-3101

Fictionized biography of Jefferson for young people, emphasizing his political philosophy and his ideals of freedom and good government.

Booklist 49:38 S 15 '52

Bookmark 12:13 O '52 20w

"Mrs. Judson, with her usual courage, determination, and skill, has written another inspiring story of a great American. Selecting from his accomplishments and his philosophy the vital essentials in Jefferson's life, she has assembled them in a clearly told, straightforward account, of value to high school readers and adults as well." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 S 7 '52 300w

Horn Bk 28:416 D '52 80w

"A fine, warm biography worthy in personal feeling and contemporary background of its subject's place as a founder of ideals and a mover of men."

+ Kirkus 20:505 Ag 15 '52 110w

"This is a beautifully designed book that will be enjoyed by fifth-graders up. Recommended." C. W. Field

+ Library J 77:1665 O 1 '52 50w

"For the age that can read it with understanding, it is a fine book. Jefferson seems so much more contemporary than other American heroes, that it is important to introduce and discuss him, whether or not the age concerned is studying American history." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 28 '52 320w

JUDSON, LYMAN SPICER, and JUDSON, ELLEN. Your holiday in Cuba; il. by the authors with 52 original photographs and 31 maps and sketches. (Judson guides to Latin America) 306p $4 Harper

917.291 Cuba—Description and travel 52-5454

"This well-planned, economical guide not only covers Havana thoroughly but describes the main points of interest in Cuba's six provinces. Maps, photographs. Index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:295 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:181 My '52 20w

"The volume is invaluable for the first-time traveler. With it in hand the 'turista' can follow interesting routes around Havana, its nearby tropic beaches or other parts of the island with its endless scenery of towering palm trees, and fields of sugar cane. It includes accurate directions for such tours whether made on foot, by car, bus or train, giving streets to be traveled, what should be seen, interesting side trips, and all. For gourmets the book will whet appetites in more ways than one with its recommendations of favorite places for paellas, rich soups, succulent tropical fruits, dishes of mariscos (sea foods), arroz con pollo (chicken and rice), for example." R. M. Hallett

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 17 '52 800w

"Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:901 My 15 '52 70w

"This is not the Cuba of the hit-and-run tourist who comes over from Miami for night life and gambling. The authors recommend many hotels and restaurants, but list only four night clubs. It is the Cuba of wealthy Spanish settlers, of Cuban poets and artists, of revolutionary heroes, as well as a contemporary nation hard at work. . . The authors tell you how to get to all these, and more, by bus, plane, train or your own car, how much it will cost, where to stay and where to eat. They may be a little bit too thorough but they don't miss anything." Beach Conger

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 My 4 '52 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 4 '52 150w

JUNGE, WERNER. Bolahun: an African adventure; tr. by Basil Creighton [Eng title: African jungle doctor]. 248p il $3.75 Putnam 966.6 [916.66] Ethnology—Liberia 52-9340

The author, a German doctor, spent the years 1929 to 1940 in mission hospitals in Liberia, Bolahun, and at Cape Mount on the coast. In 1940 he was ordered back to Germany, and now practices medicine in Stuttgart, but he still dreams of his years in Africa.

"Recommended."

+ Kirkus 20:616 S 15 '52 220w

"Attempts by the publishers to equate the author with Albert Schweitzer are strictly balderdash. Let's read the book for what it is—an interesting tale of a competent (sometimes even heroic) doctor in an area badly in need of understanding and medicine." R. S. Taylor

+ Library J 77:1650 O 1 '52 90w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 28 '52 50w

Reviewed by Rebecca Reyher

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 O 19 '52 550w

"Africa was never able to exhaust Werner Junge. Having carved out medical stations in the forest, he built a new hospital at Mount Pleasant on the coast (mostly with his own hands), persuaded Negro mothers to exchange their dangerous midwives for his maternity wards, and trained native staffs to go out into the jungle on healing missions. . . It was a massive piece of pioneering, this, although you might never suspect it from the casual, matter-of-fact tone of Dr. Junge's story." John Barkham

N Y Times p6 O 12 '52 650w

New Yorker 28:188 N 15 '52 120w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 50w

JURJI, EDWARD JABRA. Christian interpretation of religion; Christianity in its human and creative relationships with the world's cultures and faiths. 318p $4.50 Macmillan

290 Christianity and other religions, Religions 52-10200

"The burden of this book is to sketch along Christian lines an interpretation of religion in its universal manifestations, taking into account the global crisis and the rising powers in Asia and the Middle East. . . With a panel of eight contributors, the author edited in 1946 The Great Religions of the Modern World, a symposium published by Princeton University Press [Book Review Digest 1946, 1947]. Like its forerunner, the present volume is addressed to the general reader, scholar, and layman, although it differs in being an attempt to depict the religions—extinct and living, primitive and advanced—in the light of the Gospel." (Pref) Index.

"The book is scholarly; but it can scarcely be said to make a scholarly appeal." W. D. Wallis

+ Ann Am Acad 284:210 N '52 230w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 7 '52 50w

Kirkus 20:347 Je 15 '52 160w

"Of some value in academic and public libraries." A. D. Osborn

+ Library J 77:1075 Je 15 '52 120w

JUSTUS, MAY. Children of the Great Smoky mountains; il. by Robert Henneberger. 158p $2.50 Dutton 52-7798

Sixteen short stories of children living in the Tennessee mountains. Many of the stories contain folk songs with music. Useful for story tellers.

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

+ Cath World 176:206 D '52 20w

"Her books are wise and tender in their understanding of a simple, kindly, hospitable people. They radiate humor and pathos and a warm love for children. This new collection of 16 typical stories makes fine reading aloud for the bed time hour, and if the reader can carry a tune, so much the better." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 S 14 '52 130w

"Good Americana."

+ Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 10w

"Recommended for classroom use in connection with study of mountain life. Suitable for reading aloud and informal dramatization." N. S. Zipt

+ Library J 77:1665 O 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p4 N 16 '52 20w

"No one knows the people and the place better than May Justus, and the children of these short, simple stories are self-reliant youngsters who solve their problems with ingenuity and goodwill. These are qualities admired by other youngsters, but unfortunately the children seem to be almost interchangeable and this makes for a certain monotony."

JUSTUS, MAY—Continued

E. L. R.

+ — N Y Times p48 N 30 '52 70w

K

KAEHELE, EDNA. Living with cancer. 160p $2 Doubleday

616.99 Cancer

52-10402

Nearly six years ago the author was told by cancer specialists that she could not live six months. Today, altho her case is not cured, she is courageously doing her own housework, she writes, and she runs a dog kennel. This is the story of how she reached her present state of life.

Booklist 49:62 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:53 D '52 20w

"In her will to live she found an antidote not to the disease, which is still active, but to the immediate death that science predicted, and faith refuted, and also found a way back to a life of reasonable activity. It is this which gives the book its importance and inspiration for the many who are facing a disease more frightening in its connotations than it need be."

+ Kirkus 20:436 J1 15 '52 220w

"The brave lady's own philosophy is to be recommended—despite science's present limitations in late cancer." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 77:1499 S 15 '52 80w

"Not only does she deliver a heartening message but she gives what she regards as practical advice to the unfortunate five out of ten [who will die of cancer], even though she violates the admonitions of the medical authorities when it comes to diet. It is the fear of death that must be fought, and she tells how she fought it successfully." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p6 O 26 '52 150w

KAGAN, HENRY ENOCH. Changing the attitude of Christian toward Jew; a psychological approach through religion. 155p 11 $2.75 Columbia univ. press

296 Jews—Political and social conditions. Psychology, Religious. Christianity and other religions—Judaism 52-114

"This is an account of a psychological experiment; namely, trying to change hostile attitudes toward Jews to friendly ones. The subjects were young people of high school age, the experimenter a rabbi who used teaching and private conference techniques. The enterprise was conducted in a summer church camp under Methodist and Episcopal auspices." (Chicago Sunday Tribune) Index.

Reviewed by E. R. Clinchy

Ann Am Acad 282:163 J1 '52 500w

+ Bookmark 11:156 Ap '52 20w

"Its splendid result in lessening religious tensions among diverse groups is promising for our democracy. The method employed seems far better than any other thus far devised." F. A. Levy

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Mr 23 '52 100w

"Aside from the fact that certain sections of this book may be a bit 'difficult' for the reader unacquainted with specialized scientific terms and techniques in psychology and sociology, everyone interested in a new and promising approach to the problem of Jewish Christian relations will be challenged and stimulated by Dr. Kagan's carefully documented experiments and by his clearly formulated conclusions."

K. M. Chworowsky

+ — Churchman 166:14 My 15 '52 120w

"This work shows great thoroughness and employs the latest and most adequate statistical and experimental devices... However, an explicitly stated 'important assumption in this experiment'—that religion can help to reduce prejudice—turns out to have only limited scope. The cathartic effect of free verbal expression of repressed hostility to an out-group and support from the in-group are much more important factors." A. R. Eckardt

+ — J Religion 32:292 O '52 280w

"At the level of psychological experiment and practical recommendations this study deserves high praise. It is also to be hoped that it will prove a pilot for others like it, on a larger scale." Paul Ramsey

+ N Y Times p13 Je 29 '52 600w

"Rabbi Kagan makes no claim for the effectiveness of his method in dealing with deeply prejudiced people. It is rather the professing, teen-age Christian whose prejudices are superficial who seems to benefit by the special technique employed by Rabbi Kagan." Julius Schreiber

Survey 88:231 My '52 460w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:181 Je '52 220w

KAHN, ELY JACQUES. Peculiar war; impressions of a reporter in Korea. 211p $2.75 Random house

951.9 Journalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Korean war, 1950- 52-5554

In his Preface the author explains that he "spent nearly three months in Korea as a correspondent for The New Yorker, arriving early in April, 1951, and departing late in June. This book is in no sense supposed to be a complete account of the war in Korea... It is, rather, a report on some of the things I saw and heard while there that interested me, and that I thought people at home might not otherwise know about and might be interested in, too."

Booklist 48:194 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:105 F '52 30w

"These impressions of a reporter in Korea are lively and sometimes amusing, but in the main it is thin stuff, as most newspaper reporting is apt to be, and attempts no synthesis of what has been observed." Titus Lord

Canadian Forum 32:119 Ag '52 70w

Reviewed by Robert Cromie

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 F 17 '52

400w

"Mr. Kahn's chronicle of his three months of covering the Korean war scene is a rather unusual approach to war reporting—one likely to be more appealing to some readers than the customary superdramatic presentation which too often focuses attention more on the personal experiences of the correspondent than the events he is reporting." Gordon Walker

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 12 '52 600w

Reviewed by P. V. Farrell

Commonweal 55:406 Ja 25 '52 550w

Foreign Affairs 30:684 J1 '52 40w

Kirkus 19:694 D 1 '51 220w

"Kahn has a sure eye for the off-beat incident and the revealing anecdote, and his articles are good reading."

+ Nation 174:161 F 16 '52 40w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 13 '52 650w

"'The Peculiar War' stops short of personal opinion, and in a way this is too bad. It is a little too good-natured, as though Mr. Kahn was incapable of getting mad at anything or anybody... Still, as an 'impression' of the Korean war (the author's own phrase), the book is vivid and alive and savvy. It tells a lot that the communiques don't." David Dempsey

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 13 '52 450w

"Mr. Kahn writes sharply and with exceptional clarity; he wouldn't be on The New Yorker's staff if he didn't. And he has a beautiful eye for the telling detail, for discovering the small incident from which a larger conclusion may be drawn. He takes pains to make his reporting suggest judgments, too, a technique that New Yorker writers have to learn since it is not the magazine's policy to let its reporters indulge in overt comment or opinion. What it adds up to is very good reading indeed as well as useful and valuable background against which any reader can evaluate news stories on Korea better than ever before." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 15 '52 850w

"E. J. Kahn, jr., who has been a soldier and knows enough of the technique of armies to write expertly of operations, has done a peculiar book on this peculiar war, and maybe that's what makes it something especially good." S. L. A. Marshall

+ Sat R 35:9 Ja 12 '52 1200w

KAMEN, IRA, and DORF, RICHARD H. TV and electronics as a career; contributing authors: William Hollander Bohlke [and others]. 326p il $4.95 Rider, J.F.

621.38 Electronics, Television 51-8598

Information on opportunities in television and electronics, and on preparation for careers in those industries. Contains biographical sketches of ten men who have been outstanding in these fields. Directory of technical schools and colleges in the United States offering television and electronics courses. Index.

Booklist 48:155 Ja 1 '52

"A good source of vocational guidance for high school students."

+ Bookmark 11:190 My '52 40w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:363 F 15 '52 80w

"A chatty but nevertheless informative survey of employment opportunities in the television and associated electronic industries... The book is slanted somewhat for junior—and high-school students, but it is intended for reading, not for use as a text."

N Y New Tech Bks 37:13 Ja '52

KAMERMAN, SYLVIA E., ed. Little plays for little players: fifty non-royalty plays for children. 335p $2.75 Plays

812.08 Children's plays

"The plays in this collection were originally published in plays, The Drama Magazine for Young People, and have been selected on the basis of production records showing which plays were the most popular and best satisfied the needs of the younger age group." Pref

Booklist 48:217 Mr 1 '52

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 13 '52 110w

"While the tendency is for children to make up their own plays these days, or to do free dramatizations of stories, there is some demand by church groups and children's groups for real plays. This book will be useful for them." Phyllis Fenner

Library J 77:540 Mr 15 '52 100w

KAMM, JACOB OSWALD. Making profits in the stock market. 157p $2 World pub.

332.67 Securities, Investments 52-5182

"An economist with many years of investment experience brings the reader succinct, essential information needed to gain a background sufficient to permit him to initiate an investment program on a sound basis." Charts. Index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:242 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 30w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:699 Ap 1 '52 40w

"Clearly-written little manual... Mr. Kamm has had considerable experience studying, teaching and writing about the stock market." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p32 Ap 20 '52 160w

KAMMERER, GLADYS MARIE. Impact of war on federal personnel administration, 1939-1945. 372p $6 Univ. of Ky. press

351.1 U.S.—Executive departments. Civil service—U.S. Public administration. U.S.—Politics and government—1933-1945

51-10526

"A thorough analysis of the effect of World War II on the handling of personnel in federal agencies from 1939-1945, by a professor of political science... Among other things, she discusses in a scholarly manner, the problems of recruitment, the inevitable relaxations of standards, some of the special problems of 'loyalty investigations,' and attitudes towards unions." (Library J) Index.

"The task Miss Kammerer set for herself in this study was a challenging one... [She] has achieved a desirable degree of perspective and her general treatment of the subject helps to round out the more limited, but sharper pictures which have been presented in numerous agency or functional case studies." E. B. Young

Am Pol Sci R 45:1190 D '51 850w

"Dr. Kammerer has chosen a significant indeed critical, period in federal personnel administration for her analysis... The study is based on an intensive analysis of the Commission's and other agency records and extensive firsthand observations of four major agencies: the War Department, the Navy Department, the Department of Agriculture, and the Office of Price Administration... Written with objectivity and insight—from a background of unusually thorough research and direct observation—this study is likely to remain for long the definitive study of federal personnel for this significant period." Phillips Bradley

+ Ann Am Acad 277:234 S '51 600w

Foreign Affairs 30:500 Ap '52 30w

"Much valuable data and some definite recommendations on which future procedures, both in and out of war times, can be based, are contained in this timely contribution to the problems of government labor relations." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 76:873 My 15 '51 130w

"It is a well-organized account, for the most part simply and clearly told. Any student of government will find it an invaluable record of what happened in personnel administration in our scheme of government. The broad issues still remain to be clearly enumerated and imaginatively explored." J. D. Millett

+ Pol Sci Q 67:154 Mr '52 390w

KANE, FRANK. Bare trap. 222p $2.50 Washburn

52-11465

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 17 '52 20w

"I still don't understand quite why I find Kane more readable than most of his fellow cliché-collectors. I think it's because he has a certain lightheartedness; he knows the whole thing's foolish and never inflicts Spillanian earnestness on you. His pace is rapid and his dialogue often funny—but I wish he'd keep Johnny in Manhattan." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 3 '52 170w

"Goings-on indistinguishable from the general hard-boiled formula; style employs commas instead of conjunctions to a maddening extent. C minus." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 10 '52 50w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:44 Ag 9 '52 30w

KANE, FRANK. Bullet proof. 192p $2.50 Washburn

51-12798

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:413 Ag 1 '51 60w

KANE, FRANK—Continued

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 O 14 '51
170w

"There's nothing distinctive about [the book], but it'll prove perfectly acceptable if you can't get enough of private eyes." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p32 O 14 '51 130w

"Most of Mr. Kane's works are neatly pressed into the mold of the hardboiled-New York-private-eye story. This one's no exception." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 14 '51
50w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS, and ARTHUR, ELLA BENTLEY. Dear Dorothy Dix; the story of a compassionate woman. 314p $3.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Gilmer, Elizabeth (Meriwether)
52-11003

A sympathetic, full-length biography of the New Orleans woman, who for over fifty years wrote a column of advice to the lovelorn and the perplexed.

Booklist 49:104 N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:79 Ja '53 30w

"Ella Bentley Arthur was Dorothy Dix's confidential secretary for 23 years and answered most of the letters containing stamped, addressed envelopes. She has thus been in a unique position to help Harnett Kane in this fascinating biography." Herma Clark

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 19 '52
230w

Kirkus 20:579 S 1 '52 260w

"Book crammed with homely detail, making it too long. Pedestrian writing; 'compassionate' attributes stickily handled. Those raised à la Dix may enjoy; thoughtful will be disappointed at surface treatment." Karl Brown

— + Library J 77:1898 N 1 '52 50w

"Appropriately, Mr. Kane's first literary triumph was the Dorothy Dix Prize, won when he was a sophomore at Tulane. He and Miss Dix were friends from that time on. But 'Dear Dorothy Dix' has much more than the warmth and affection a friend's biography should have. Insight, balance, the careful searching out and evaluation of facts, and good journalistic style are there too. Mr. Kane always tells a good story, but this is quite probably his best." Helen Arthur

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 O 26 '52
550w

New Yorker 28:155 O 25 '52 150w

"It is, of course, the humanity of Dorothy Dix that emerges from this biography which is the best thing Harnett Kane has done to date. Southerner though she was, she might have taken an observation made about Lincoln, says Mr. Kane, to be her guide. When she spoke, the common people heard themselves thinking out loud. People were never flends or morons to Dorothy Dix. They were human beings." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 O 26 '52
750w

"Harnett T. Kane is concerned with his subject as a hard-working newspaperwoman rather than as a shrewd purveyor of an approved formula. . . Her early trials and her assignment as an ace crime reporter on the New York Journal make an absorbing story. After her return to New Orleans as a grande dame secure in reputation and fortune, her biography loses in interest what it gains in treacle." Ray Pierre

+ — Sat R 35:41 O 25 '52 260w

KANE, HENRY. Corpse for Christmas. 216p $2.50 Lippincott

51-11787

Detective story.

Reviewed by Edith Fowke

Canadian Forum 32:118 Ag '52 30w

Kirkus 19:590 O 1 '51 60w

"Peter Chambers is an incorrigible comic and wry in the extreme. Readers with scruples will be interested to learn that he draws the line at eighteen year olds. He also, God wot, describes himself as 'a private richard with literary leanings.' Literary means you read a book once." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 16
'51 70w

"Like most adventures of Peter Chambers, it is occasionally amusing; but characterization and plotting are alike third-rate." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p11 D 23 '51 50w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 16 '51
90w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:33 Ja 5 '52 40w

Springf'd Republican p41A D 9 '51
60w

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Warwhoop. 246p $2.50 Random house

52-9578

Two short novels of the American frontier. The first: Behold the Brown-faced Men, is about Sioux warfare in Nebraska; the second: Missouri Moon, is the story of the love of a genteel girl for a "white" Indian.

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

"Versatile, prolific MacKinlay Kantor adds two more glowing tales to his repertory in 'Warwhoop.'" R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 S 21 '52
110w

Kirkus 20:356 Je 15 '52 160w

"Light summer reading." R. W. Henderson
Library J 77:1303 Ag '52 50w

"Comes a time when an author inevitably dips into the back-log of his magazine pieces to produce a book. Mackinlay Kantor has done just that in 'Warwhoop,' a double feature of ten-years-and-older novelettes, as slick and professional and cinematic as Hollywood."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 14 '52
150w

"Behold the Brown-faced Men' was disappointing to this reviewer. But 'Missouri Moon' is a vivid tour de force indeed." H. B.

+ — N Y Times p16 Ag 24 '52 170w

Sat R 35:49 O 4 '52 170w

KAPLAN, WILFRED. Advanced calculus. 679p $8.50 Addison-Wesley

517 Calculus 52-7667

"A college textbook for students who have completed courses in introductory algebra at the college level, analytic geometry and elementary calculus. Although fairly frequent discussions of applications—for instance the application of conformal mapping in hydrodynamics—indicate that the book is designed for engineering students rather than for mathematicians, the treatment is rigorous. Literature references accompany the chapters. The author is Assistant Professor of Mathematics in the University of Michigan." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1210 Jl '52 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:58 Jl '52

KARASZ, MARISKA (MRS D. A. PETERSON). How to make growing clothes for your baby. 63p il $3.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

646.4 [646.36] Sewing 52-9363

"A practical book adapted to the skills of the inexperienced seamstress, as well as to the needs of the infant, the toddler, and their harried parents. Where possible the patterns are shown full size, to be traced; in all other cases explicit directions are given for drawing them to scale. The cleverly designed clothes are attractive, easily cared for, easy to get on and off, and most of them can expand as the child grows." Booklist

Booklist 49:84 N 1 '52

"It is an excellent book and mothers will find it easy to follow instructions." Loretta Leitner

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 26 '52 80w

KAREL, LEONARD, and ROACH, ELIZABETH SPENCER, comps. Dictionary of antibiotics. 373p $8.50 Columbia univ. press

615 [615.329] Antibiotic substances 51-14323

"For the purposes of this dictionary the term antibiotic is defined as a substance derivable from living organisms and capable of adversely modifying the vital functions of specific microorganisms. The data included are arranged alphabetically and consist of (1) compilation of substances tested for antibiotic activity; (2) available information on source, extraction, chemical and physical properties, spectrum in vitro and in vivo, toxicological and pharmacological, clinical and experimental clinical results; and (3) enumeration of organisms (designated as test organisms) against which substances have been tested for antibiotic activity." Pref

"A reference book of incredible scope. . . The book will be invaluable in medical and pharmaceutical reference work in libraries and to scientific workers in the field." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:2119 D 15 '51 170w
Special Libraries 42:387 D '51 110w
U S Quarterly Bk R 8:103 Mr '52 160w

KARIG, WALTER, and others. Battle report; v6. The war in Korea; prepared from official sources. 520p il maps $6 Rinehart

951.9 Korea—History—War and intervention, 1950- (44-47969)

"Sixth volume in the series prepared from official sources recording the U.S. Navy's combat operation, 'related as far as possible in the words of the men who participated.' Maps, photographs. Appendix, index." (Bookmark) "Uniform with its predecessors in style, format and method, the new volume carries the story of the Navy and the Marines in the Korean War from the opening day down through the bitter and bloody retreat of the 1st Marine Division from North Korea in December, 1950, and the redeployment from Hungnam on Christmas Eve." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

Booklist 48:294 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:182 My '52 30w

Reviewed by Walter Simmons
Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 8 '52 360w

Reviewed by Gordon Walker
Christian Science Monitor p9 My 24 '52 400w

"It is a good book, though to some army veterans it might seem just another verse of the eternal anchors-aweth theme sung by the Navy, ashore or afloat or in the air. And to other readers, it would seem that semi-political observations, even in footnotes, are sadly out of order. But surely anyone will be moved by such a story as the of the Inchon preparations and operations." T. E. Cassidy
+ Commonweal 56:251 Je 13 '52 220w

Kirkus 20:179 Mr 1 '52 230w

"All things considered, it is a worthwhile series, ably presented." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 77:716 Ap 15 '52 130w

"The whole, illustrated with magnificent photographic sections (but provided with strangely inadequate maps) makes a fine and vivid picture of the Navy in Korea. There is little strategic or tactical analysis. Issues as to the military value of the air and ground, of interdiction or bombardment are largely left to others. But these are the stories of the men who had to do it and of the way it was done.

And a lot of them stick in the mind." Walter Mills

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 11 '52 850w

"The chief value of 'Battle Report' is in supplementing the day-to-day accounts given in the press at the time with eyewitness stories of those who took part, many of them told here for the first time." David Dempsey
+ N Y Times p14 My 11 '52 400w

Reviewed by S. L. A. Marshall
Sat R 35:64 My 10 '52 600w

"As is almost unavoidable in a book written about an event while it is still happening, the volume contains a considerable number of inaccuracies and other signs of hasty research and writing."

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:284 S '52 130w

KARN, HARRY WENDELL, and GILMER, BEVERLY VON HALLER, eds. Readings in industrial and business psychology. 476p $4.50; pa $3.50 McGraw

658.082 Psychology, Applied 51-12942

"A collection of 53 representative articles which point the way toward an identification and solution of the more pressing psychological problems in business and industry. Articles are presented in their original form, with only very slight editing and practically no abridgement. Each is an integrated presentation in itself and can be used without reference to the remainder of the book." Management R

Reviewed by J. E. Cross
Library J 77:1306 Ag '52 40w

Management R 41:771 N '52 30w
Special Libraries 43:418 D '52 60w

KATES, GEORGE NORBERT. Years that were fat; Peking, 1933-1940; with photographs by Hedda Hammer Morrison. 268p $3.75 Harper

951.156 [915.1156] Peking, China 51-11927

"The author, an American linguist, scholar, and traveller, spent seven years in Peiping during the nineteen-thirties, and this is his story of that tranquil time, written out of homesickness for a vanished way of life. He set up housekeeping in the Imperial City and proceeded to become as Chinese as he could, dressing, eating, and living in the local style, and spending his days learning the language. He also explored every accessible cranny of the ancient town." (New Yorker) The book describes his experiences.

Booklist 48:195 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 40w

"Mr. Kates really lived in the Chinese world, giving up the tight little western world of embassy people, business men, and missionaries, and interesting himself in his Chinese neighbors, in his servants and their families, as well as in distinguished representatives of the Chinese cultural sphere. The result is an informative and fascinating book." A. L. Bader
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 10 '52 380w

"All who have longed in vain to visit fabulous China in days before she vanished under the Red wave will find their desires delightfully, though vicariously, fulfilled in George N. Kates' joyous exploration of the Forbidden City. . . Though there is not a political allusion in this book, these interpretations of Chinese thinking make it of immeasurable value at a moment when understanding Asia may be the key to peace." Kathleen Cannell
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 14 '52 650w

Kirkus 19:673 N 15 '51 160w

"Old China hands will emerge from reading the book dewy-eyed with nostalgia; the average reader, with a fine knowledge of Chinese life and culture in bygone days." H. P. Linton

+ Library J 77:436 Mr 1 '52 110w

"Every one who ever stayed long in Peking is convinced that that city used to be one of the pleasantest places in the world to live. So, though no two of us will have precisely the same reasons for remembering it fondly and few may have had Mr. Kates' opportunities for knowing the city and people so thoroughly, every old resident will read this book with pleasure and be grateful to the author for an appreciation of its majesty, beauty and good humored gentility in a very pleasant style." Rodney Gilbert

KATES, G. N.—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 10 '52 800w

"The only criticism I have of the book is that at places it makes too much of the idea of face-saving. . . This book is well worth reading; its format, entirely consonant with its contents, is a tribute to the good taste of the publishers." J. C. H. Wu

+ N Y Times p3 F 3 '52 700w

"The narrative of [the author's] quiet adventures brings the reader very close to the Chinese character and is a delight."

+ New Yorker 27:76 F 2 '52 30w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 11 '52 750w

Reviewed by Robert Payne

Sat R 35:20 Mr 8 '52 700w

Wis Lib Bul 48:91 Mr '52

KATONA, GEORGE. Psychological analysis of economic behavior. 347p $5 McGraw

330.1 Economics 51-4286

"A technical but always interesting study of the basic factors which will determine the economic future. Using the provocative method of 'a psychological approach to economic analysis' the author uncovers some facts about both consumer and business behavior which would be of genuine use in management planning." Sat R

"This book represents a solid, sober, down-to-earth attempt to apply field theory and Gestalt psychology to economic problems. . . This book ought to have a decisive influence on economic theory, research, and teaching. It provides the systematic framework for a growing trend toward the consideration of subjective, psychological elements in the theory of consumers' behavior and of the firm. One may express the hope that it will become the focal point of a new discipline of psychological economics." W. A. Weisskopf

+ J Pol Econ 60:165 Ap '52 550w

Sat R 35:46 Ja 19 '52 30w

"Although not requiring of the reader technical competence in psychology or economics, this is not a book to be used as an introduction to either area."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:259 S '51 180w

KAUFMAN, LENARD. Diminishing return. 285p $3 Doubleday

52-5109

Dillard Crowley, an honest and expert novelist, but unhappily not a financial success, is driven by friends and relatives into a corner where he agrees to give up his life work and take a lucrative position in his brother-in-law's chemical factory. At the final moment another man's example of selfless devotion to art stops him and he returns to his writing.

"Mr. Kaufman, who has behind him three tautly written books which packed a powerful punch, has now turned in a querulous and unimaginative story. . . The best I can say for Kaufman's treatment of this subject is that it documents all the ills that beset the 'noncommercial' writer in America."

— + Atlantic 189:85 Mr '52 90w

Reviewed by John Farrar

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 F 10 '52 370w

Kirkus 19:640 N 1 '51 200w

"Mr. Kaufman is, to use the phrase of the other 'Tribune' reviewer about Crowley, 'a capable writer' . . . but the novel stands primarily on its theme of a writer's fight to keep his integrity in a world of temptations and coercions. That Dillard Crowley possessed this integrity comes out clearly enough. . . But the thing the portrait lacks is the one thing that is most difficult to achieve, but also fundamental in a book of this kind—the conveyance to the reader of the feeling that Crowley had the sheer ability, as well as other necessary virtues, to be a great writer." James Hilton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 10 '51 900w

"The defects of 'Diminishing Return' are inherent perhaps in so special a case of pleading. . . However, the real strength of this novel lies in the special literary point of view permeating it. Mr. Kaufman's ear is subtle and true. The attitudes, the literary prejudices, the frames of mind which constitute the world of a certain level of our literary brethren are here, and they are accurate." John Nerber

+ — N Y Times p5 F 10 '52 290w

New Yorker 28:91 Mr 1 '52 90w

"I'm sorry to have to say it. This is a well-done novel. It is a good story and it has a serious theme. But the depth the author can command, and has commanded in the past, is not here. This book lacks what Henry James called 'density.' Mr. Kaufman is rightly angry about some of the merchandising tricks of the book-publishing trade; he is doubly right about what Fadiman once defined as the general 'decline of attention'; he tells a great deal of truth about writing and publishing, and it's truth that needs telling. But he has written what is essentially a journalistic novel, to use the familiar term, and not the thoughtful, understanding, deeply felt kind of novel of which he has proved he is capable." J. H. Jackson

— + San Francisco Chronicle p28 D 10 '51 950w

"'Diminishing Return' will set tongues to wagging. It offers racy styled, volatile entertainment for those with a healthy curiosity about publishing's dirty linen and how it feels to be associated with an unsuccessful author." James Kelly

Sat R 35:21 F 16 '52 800w

KAUFMAN, MAX ZENN, and CONE, LESTER M. Successful prize contests. 567p il $7.50; to schools $5.65 Prentice-Hall

659.17 Prize contests. Sales management 52-6261

A study of prize contests as marketing tools. Partial contents: Why people compete; Who runs contests; Prize strategy; Promotion media; Cooperative and co-sponsored contests; Window display contests; Judging. Index.

Booklist 48:192 F 15 '52

"Useful volume. . . An appendix contains 44 case histories which should prove particularly valuable."

+ Management R 41:562 Ag '52 40w

KAUFMANN, RICHARD. Heaven pays no dividends; tr. from the German by Eric Mosbacher. 310p $3.50 Viking

52-11380

The story of Rodie Stamm who grew up in Germany after World War I. When the second World war came Rodie drifted into it, as he had drifted thru his earlier years. The postwar period found him without family or money, lacking an arm, and still drifting.

Reviewed by P. L. Adams

Atlantic 190:74 S '52 650w

Booklist 48:349; 49:13 Jl 1 '52; S 1 '52

"The author's grim humor and his uncompromising handling of character and situation give a uniform tone to the whole; his Private Stamm is the universal private soldier, and his picture of war rings true." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:151 N '52 250w

Reviewed by Fritz Richter

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 24 '52 250w

"Despite Kaufmann's occasional irony, subtlety, and symbolism, the book is not quite successful fiction. The translation, though decent, is undistinguished." F. X. Duggan

Commonweal 56:518 Ag 29 '52 450w

"The book gives a feeling of realism, of life going on, rather than being a book of either philosophy or policy; the rather reflective hero is reminiscent of Hans Castorp of Mann's Magic Mountain, though the author has none of the brilliance or depth of Mann to offset the slow pace of the book, suggestive of wearying inevitability."

+ Kirkus 20:354 Je 15 '52 210w

"Recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 77:1507 S 15 '52 130w

Reviewed by H. I. A. Pausset

Manchester Guardian p4 O 24 '52 120w

Reviewed by H. C. Webster

New Repub 127:22 D 15 '52 100w

"It is all refreshingly rational and civilized, but it would be much more convincing if only one could feel that Rodie Stamm was not too thin to cast a shadow." Milton Rugoff

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ag 24 '52 700w

"Rodie's spectator role, his ironic friendliness, his deft style make the book immensely enjoyable. Unfortunately, these very qualities turn out to be the book's handicaps, because as time goes on its subject-matter demands a more thorough, a more intense treatment." Richard Plant

+ N Y Times p12 D 21 '52 450w

"The tone of the writing is pleasant and ironic, with a gradual flattening out of energy and emotion as the writer reaches the end of what he has to say."

+ New Yorker 28:84 Ag 23 '52 120w

"There is a sense of fatalism in this unrolling of a life. Told with more depth than is obvious at first and with more compassion than personal involvement. Kaufmann has written an interesting account of a life in Germany which will be read with profit and enjoyment, but not with the suspense of other recent novels about spies, combat action or mad lieutenants." G. E. Arnstein

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 28 '52 600w

"That a novel so grim in its setting, so formidable in its moral implications, can at the same time be so wonderfully engaging, is a tribute to Mr. Kaufmann's skill. He has armed his hero with a perennially childlike resistance to ulterior motives, with an imperviousness to sophisticated compromise. The effect is not dissimilar to the one Mark Twain achieved when he let Huck Finn's gusty innocence loose upon life's devious rascalities... Mr. Kaufmann has applied a fresh, striking technique to a sore-ridden subject. It is good to see a wholesome talent like his emerge from Central Europe." Frederic Morton

+ Sat R 35:16 Ag 23 '52 750w

Reviewed by Paul Pickrel

Yale R n s 42:16 autumn '52 270w

KAUFMANN, WILLIAM W. British policy and the independence of Latin America, 1804-1828. 238p $3.75 Yale univ. press

327.42 Great Britain—Foreign relations—Latin America. Latin America—Foreign relations—Great Britain. Latin America—History 61-9564

"A survey of British policy toward Latin America... The most original part of this book is that which deals with the formative years. We see British foreign policy toward Latin America in the Napoleonic era in a new perspective in these pages. We gain a clearer impression of the importance to Britain of the trade with the Spanish colonies. We are made aware of the fact that in the fall of 1806, with the capture of Buenos Aires, British policy veered for a little toward an ambitious policy on the other side of the Atlantic and away from opposition to Napoleonic domination on the Continent. The change was short-lived, and ended with the defeat of General Whitlocke, but it was interesting, none the less." Am Hist R

"His work is clear and well-organized, and it is extremely well-written." Dexter Perkins

Am Hist R 57:714 Ap '52 650w

Am Pol Sci R 45:596 Je '51 20w

"Dr. Kaufmann has revealed no facts not already known by one or another of several living specialists; but it is likely that some of these numerous facts have eluded one or more of the experts, or have been known and then forgotten by them, and there is no doubt that many of the facts here assembled will be new to the general reader, who cannot fail to be intrigued by the author's clever style. Dr. Kaufmann has not only mastered the details; he has disclosed an attractive perspective and exhibited a fine sense for the dramatic." J. F. Rippey

+ Ann Am Acad 276:170 Jl '51 440w

"Most American works of diplomatic history are written in a heavy humourless style, as well as being too long. Mr Kaufmann has gone to the opposite extreme: he is almost too spritely and often so summary as to be cryptic. Still, this is a good fault. It is far better that the reader should be amused, even if he occasionally feels that the fireworks are being let off for no reason at all. An admirable feature of Mr Kaufmann's book is that it begins at the beginning; with the vague projects for conquering a new empire in South America, which led to the expedition to Buenos Aires in 1807." A. J. P. Taylor

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 11 '51 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p778 D 7 '51 950w

KAYE-SMITH, SHEILA (MRS THEODORE PENROSE FRY). Quartet in heaven. 279p $3.50 Harper

922.2 Saints

52-5455

Short biographies of four women who were raised to sainthood by the Catholic church. They are: Caterina Fiesca Adorna; Cornelia Connelly; Isabella Rosa de Santa Maria de Flores; Thérèse Martin.

Booklist 48:377 Jl 15 '52

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 175:398 Ag '52 290w

"If Sheila Kaye-Smith's novels are full of entertainment and wisdom, her religious books are an unfailing source of spiritual strength and insight. Quartet in Heaven is bathed in a lovely spiritual radiance; if my experience is any criterion, it will be loved as much by Protestants as by Catholics." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 11 '52 250w

+ Kirkus 20:150 F 15 '52 240w

"In Sheila Kaye-Smith's latest book the reader will find, along with deep religious feeling, the psychological insight and human appeal to be expected from this distinguished novelist." Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Je 15 '52 800w

Reviewed by Francis Sweeney

N Y Times p26 N 9 '52 270w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle

+ Sat R 35:21 My 10 '52 1000w

KAZEMZADEH, FIRUZ. Struggle for Transcaucasia (1917-1921) with an introd. by Michael Karpovich. 356p $5.75 Philosophical lib.

947.9 Transcaucasia

"Transcaucasia, including Armenia, Azerbaijan and Georgia, is an area much neglected by historians of recent times. This volume by Dr. Kazemzadeh fills a very important need by examining the political situation in this area at the height of the Russian Revolution. The pressure of power politics by Germany, Turkey, Britain and Russia, pressures from within by domestic Bolshevik elements and political and economic instability are studied as factors contributing to the failure of separatism in Transcaucasia." Current Hist

"Dr. Kazemzadeh's monograph fills an important gap in our knowledge of a significant

KAZEMZADEH, FIRUZ—Continued
period of Transcaucasian history." H. N. Howard

+ Ann Am Acad 282:175 J1 '52 480w
Current Hist 22:319 My '52 70w
Foreign Affairs 31:165 O '52 20w

"Kazemzadeh has written a solid rather than a brilliant account of a difficult period, with occasional errors in phrasing and spelling. The book's one large-scale map is lacking in detail; many of the places mentioned are not shown on it. These are minor flaws, however; the merits of the book far outweigh them." J. S. Curtiss

+ J Pol Econ 60:451 O '52 380w

"This well organized, fully documented and unbiased work is strictly factual account which does not give reader 'atmosphere' or any human touch. This together with a very detailed presentation will limit appeal to specialist; but for him it is indispensable. Valuable bibliography." H. H. Bernt

+ Library J 77:594 Ap 1 '52 120w

Reviewed by M. P. Price
Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 16 '52 1050w

KEAN, CHARLES DUELL. Inward cross. 61p
$1.25 Westminster press

232.95 Jesus Christ—Seven last words
51-14921

A series of meditations upon the Seven Last Words from the Cross, with a prefatory essay on The Tragedy of Human Pretension. The author is an Episcopal clergyman, now rector of Grace Church, Kirkwood, Missouri.

"These studies seem to the reviewer more appropriate for reading and study than for preaching to the ordinary congregation." W. L. Caswell

Churchman 166:17 Mr 1 '52 140w

"This series of meditations will be suggestive for preachers preparing their own Lenten and Good Friday sermons. They are deeply spiritual in tone and content and full of fresh insight into the meaning of the old, old story for today's Christians."

+ Kirkus 20:40 Ja 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 170w

KEENLEYSIDE, HUGH LLEWELLYN, and BROWN, GERALD SAXON. Canada and the United States; some aspects of their historical relations [2d] rev. and enl. ed. prepared by Hugh Llewellyn Keenleyside and Gerald S. Brown; introd. by W. P. M. Kennedy. 406p $6 Knopf 327.71 U.S.—Foreign relations—Canada.

Canada—Foreign relations—U.S. 51-13225

New edition of a work first published in 1929 (Book Review Digest 1929). "The new edition brings up to date the history of U.S.-Canadian relations to cover the period since first publication in 1929 and to incorporate into the original text new material and evaluations resulting from research of the last two decades. The collaborator in the revision is an American but the book retains the predominantly Canadian point of view of the original." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 48:341 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by C. P. Stacey
Canadian Hist R 33:285 S '52 650w

Reviewed by G. W. Mitchell
Christian Science Monitor p9 Je 4 '52 750w

Current Hist 23:63 J1 '52 60w

"The more people who read this book the better for our future. Librarians will be doing a service to the Republic by bringing it to the attention of the readers." W. B. Ready

+ Library J 77:1075 Je 15 '52 240w

"Both Mr. Keenleyside and Mr. Brown know Canada. Their work is a revised and enlarged edition of that written by Mr. Keenleyside alone in 1929. It is not only a fuller book but a more valuable one, for it deals with problems between the two countries during the difficult days of the 1930's and 1940's. It is as current as a careful, scholarly book can be." L. L. L. Golden

+ Sat R 35:15 Ag 2 '52 550w

KEISER, ALBERT. College names: their origin and significance. 184p $3 Bookman associates
378 Colleges and universities—U.S. 52-11160

"A reference guide explaining the names of American colleges listed alphabetically and drawn from the original records of the institutions." Publisher's note

Reviewed by J. T. McCutcheon
Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 O 5 '52 90w

Reviewed by Siegfried Mandel
Sat R 35:33 S 13 '52 20w
School & Society 76:79 Ag 2 '52 20w

KEISTER, WILLIAM, and others. Design of switching circuits. 556p il $8; text ed $6 Van Nostrand

621.317 Electric switchgear 51-7364

"Switching circuits constitute a highly developed area in telephone engineering, and the subject is becoming important in such other fields as the design of electronic computers. This book, written by members of the staff of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, Inc., is based upon telephone experience, but is a general and somewhat theoretical treatment slanted for use outside the telephone field. Though organized as a textbook and designed for upperclass engineering students as well as for practicing engineers, not much mathematics is employed." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 77:824 My 15 '52 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 37:4 Ja '52

"Although primarily intended for use in instruction at the graduate level, this work is suitable for individual study by any one with a modest grasp of direct- and alternating-current circuit theory, the operation of electronic tubes, and elementary transient theory. It should be valuable to engineers confronted with problems involving complicated switching circuits and to others with the required technical training, who may desire to gain an idea of the principles of modern apparatus such as circuits for counting, timing, calculating, and the like."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:100 Mr '52 180w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Key man. 215p $2.75 Harper

52-7288

Mystery story.

Kirkus 20:331 Je 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 J1 13 '52 80w

"Its greatest weakness is that its whole plot and motivation have nothing to do with the arbitrary television background. The writing is a mixture of crude melodrama and cloyingly quaint humor." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p19 J1 27 '52 110w

"All in all, it is no sillier than you'd expect." — New Yorker 28:132 S 20 '52 30w

"In a way it's refreshing to find villains so black and heroes so gleaming white as Kelland's." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p22 J1 13 '52 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:56 N 22 '52 20w
Wis Lib Bul 48:181 J1 '52

KELLEMS, VIVIEN. Toil, taxes and trouble; with an introd. by Rupert Hughes. 159p $2.50 Dutton

336.24 Income tax—U.S. 52-8834

An account of the author's legal war with the government over the federal withholding tax.

Reviewed by William Clark
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 11 '52 340w

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 9 '52 480w

Kirkus 20:270 Ap 15 '52 200w

"Recommended." Walter Hausdorfer
+ Library J 77:1075 Je 15 '52 130w

"A lively record of a lively brush with the law." Harry Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 18 '52 750w

Reviewed by G. A. Panichas
Springf'd Republican p4C Jl 6 '52 420w

KELLEY, EARL CLARENCE, and RASEY, MARIE I. Education and the nature of man. 209p $3 Harper

370.1 Education. Teaching 52-8479

A survey of what—especially in recent years—has been learned about human nature, and how this knowledge can be applied to methods of teaching.

Booklist 49:83 N 1 '52

Kirkus 20:360 Je 15 '52 140w

School & Society 76:112 Ag 16 '52 20w

"Prof. Rasey and Kelley have been courageous in their book and it deserves careful scrutiny from parents and neophyte teachers as well as from some of the 'teacher tyrants' and 'bad classroom actors' the authors write about." J. F. Rooney

+ Springf'd Republican p10D O 5 '52 470w

KELLEY, SAM. Adventures of Walter M. Duffie Duff; il. by Garry MacKenzie. 79p $2 Lothrop

52-13045

Walter M. Duffie Duff was a singing bear who came off a little boy's Christmas tree. He and Richard had good times at the zoo, at a birthday party, but the attack of measles was not so much fun. For ages 4 to 7.

"Garry MacKenzie gets right into the spirit of the thing with his 60 bewitching pictures that illustrate the text perfectly."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 16 '52 60w

Kirkus 20:681 O 15 '52 80w

"This is not an outstanding book but is worth adding to the collection for the four-to-sevens who like to have stories read aloud to them." M. C. Skinner

+ Library J 77:1906 N 1 '52 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p5 N 16 '52 50w

"For sober youngsters like Richard, a bear (or even two) may still be splendid companions, but most of our little roustabouts—even those who will enjoy hearing about Walter—care more about real playmates by the time they start kindergarten. Much of the humor is too adult for this interest group, but the art will please all ages." M. J.

+ — N Y Times pt2, p39 N 16 '52 100w

KELLEY, WALTER PEARSON. Alkali soils; their formation, properties and reclamation. 176p il $5 Reinhold

631.4 Alkali lands Agr51-526

"The reclamation of alkali soils is a matter of considerable economic importance in regions where crops are or may be grown under irrigation. The control of alkalinity in soils is fundamentally a chemical problem, and this book deals almost entirely with the chemical aspects. It is of interest to chemists doing laboratory research on the problems of alkalinity and also to soil chemists and agronomists working directly with soil reclamation or irrigated agriculture. The author is Professor Emeritus of Soil Chemistry at the University of California." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by H. B. Peterson

+ Chem & Eng N 29:4114 O 1 '51 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:94 N '51

"Well documented, this study provides an important source of information for students in this particular field of soil science."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:423 D '51 200w

KELLOGG, CHARLES EDWIN. Our garden soils. 232p maps $4 Macmillan

631.4 Soils 52-1530

An internationally known expert on agricultural soils discusses the general aspects of soils and gardening, fertilizers, barnyard manure, drainage, etc. for the amateur gardener. Index.

Booklist 48:314 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 20w

"A readable, reliable and useful book for amateur gardeners." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:904 My 15 '52 80w

"The gardeners of America are to be congratulated on the publication of this new book which wraps up in a single package all the soil know-how they need to make their gardens genuinely successful. Just as truly, the author deserves high credit for having presented a complex subject with consummate clarity, simplicity and sanely balanced judgment." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 My 11 '52 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 9 '52 70w

Sat R 35:21 Ag 2 '52 20w

KELLY, BLANCHE MARY. Voice of the Irish. 340p $4.25 Sheed

820.9 Irish literature—History and criticism 52-8362

A history of Irish literature, written from the Catholic viewpoint. Index.

"This book is a classic. It should be read and re-read, 'chewed and digested.' It is one of the most scholarly and fascinating works since the turn of the century on the history and culture of the Irish people." W. J. Tucker

+ Cath World 175:78 Ap '52 400w

"Despite criticisms the book deserves a wide circulation. Aside from de Blacam's First Book, which is much briefer, no other work essays the same breadth or makes available to a growing, interested audience a survey of Irish literature." Eoin McKiernan

+ — Commonweal 56:154 My 16 '52 390w

"A good solid study of Irish literary development that handles its rocky history with lucidity. Valuable for college courses as a text."

+ Kirkus 20:54 Ja 15 '52 150w

"Concise yet profound and scholarly. Professor Kelly is first, last and always a devout Catholic; her faith colors her every viewpoint and may account for the omissions and scanty mention of names that other writers have considered important to the Gaelic Renaissance. . . A book which belongs in any library that has a call for books on Irish literature." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 77:718 Ap 15 '52 130w

KELLY, FRED CHARTERS. Life and times of Kin Hubbard. 179p il $3 Farrar, Straus

B or 92 Hubbard, Frank McKinney 52-6982

Biography of the man who created Abe Martin, the Hoosier philosopher.

Booklist 48:359 Jl 1 '52

Bookmark 11:232 Jl '52 20w

KELLY, F. C.—Continued

"I recommend it highly because as I read I could see the famous little scrawly figure of Abe Martin sitting on a barbwire fence and making his comments on Hoosier folks." Herb Shriner

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 My 18 '52 600w

"A fond portrait which derives from personal friendship and admiration and brings back the shy, notional, occasionally odd genius who was the creator of the cartoon figure, Abe Martin."

+ Kirkus 20:183 Mr 1 '52 140w

"Fred C. Kelly's affectionate biography is really two books in one. As the title indicates, this is the chronicle of one man's life against an era. Hubbard was a warm, modest and lovable personality. The facts of his life were unspectacular, which goes for most of us. But the details are consistently amusing; here is the eccentricity of the average. A liberal amount of Abe Martin is included. That guarantees the book as a pungent piece of Americana." L. L. Engelking

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 8 '52 650w

Reviewed by Delancey Ferguson

N Y Times p15 Je 15 '52 480w

"This is a good-humored little book about a thoroughly likeable character, as entertaining and as sharp as his imaginary Abe Martin ever was. Those who grew up with that cartoon-feature as much a part of their lives as say, today's 'Grin and Bear It,' will be amused and maybe feel a pleasantly nostalgic pang or two—which also has its points from the reader's angle." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Je 27 '52 490w

"Call the nice job Mr. Kelly has done an appreciation with supporting factual data and samples from the middle of the barrel—just as sound as the good-ole stuff on top." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R 35:20 Jl 12 '52 550w

KELLY, MARIE NOELE (JOURDA DE VAUX) lady. Mirror to Russia. 248p il maps $4.50
British bk. centre

947 [914.7] Russia—Description and travel
[52-35544]

"Stalingrad, Kiev, Kharkov, Smolensk, Leningrad—goals of an Englishwoman's travel behind the Iron Curtain—are names rarely heard here since newspaper reports of the German armies' advance over the snow-covered wastes of Russia in World War II. The intrepid traveler was Lady Kelly, wife of the British Ambassador to Moscow in 1949 to 1951. Her sketches furnish the first detailed account of reconstruction of these cities and of rehabilitation of Czarist culture to fit Soviet theories. . . In her book she describes her experiences in vivid prose." Christian Science Monitor

"So great a part of the Russian artistic effort in past centuries was concentrated on churches, palaces, and monasteries that these figure largely in Lady Kelly's travel sketches. Her pen and her camera have recorded the remnants of the old Holy and Imperial Russia—icons, paintings, frescoes, and unbelievable hoards of priceless treasures left by kings and priests." Melita Knowles

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Jl 21 '52 850w

"Lady Kelly's book has the interest of any report from the great unknown; and since it also provides a wealth of well-observed detail and many photographs it is particularly illuminating." John Rosselli

+ Manchester Guardian p4 My 27 '52 480w

"As a guide she has superior qualities. There can be few Ambassadors breathing who wield a prettier pen. Some of her brief sketches of the Russian landscape are exquisite and she has the fresh lively eye of the traveller as opposed to the tourist. If now and again her views and conclusions seem a little trite, we can blame it all on her husband's position: to be orthodox and yet interesting is never easy. She is eager, fair and appreciative: she always remembers her manners: she is clearly an ornament of British diplomacy." Honor Tracy

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:738 Je 21 '52 300w

"Her book will be a precious record for anyone with interest in the architecture of old Russia and a useful statement of present-day conditions. For many readers the chapters on Moscow may be the most appealing. Yet her accounts of Zagorski; of Suzdal and Vladimir, of Uglich, where the young Czarevitch Dimitri was murdered; of Pskov and its churches, of Kiev, once the mother of Russian culture; of Tiflis in Georgia, of Astrakhan and the Volga—these, too, especially interesting. Many of these places are now out of bounds for foreigners, even such distinguished and intrepid foreigners as Lady Kelly." Lydia Kirk

+ N Y Times p41 O 5 '52 450w

Reviewed by Horace Sutton

Sat R 35:38 O 11 '52 1100w

"Her architectural descriptions are not too technical for the uninitiated, yet they are alive with an awareness of significant features. Possibly, however, Lady Kelly finally escapes the guide-book traps because she relates each building to its strange landscape; and she reveals a profound understanding of the limitless horizon." O. B.

+ Spec 189:200 Ag 8 '52 370w

"She describes what she saw and did with liveliness and enthusiasm. The book suffers from obvious limitations, as its author admits. Because of travel restrictions, only certain places could be visited: and that over a period of two years. . . The great monastery at Zagorsk and the catacombs of Kiev, for example are of extraordinary interest, but the same cannot be said of many other churches and palaces. Perhaps it is unfair to carp: for Moscow and the Soviet Union are hardly to be judged by normal standards. For students of medieval or Petrine Russia, Lady Kelly's account of her travels will be of inestimable value. . . The photographs, which are a feature of the book, are of a high standard, and a credit to the photographers, Lady Kelly and her son."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p394 Je 13 '52 700w

KELLY, MRS REGINA (ZIMMERMAN). Young
Geoffrey Chaucer. 170p il $3 Lothrop

B or 92 Chaucer, Geoffrey—Juvenile literature
52-10144

The story of the life of Geoffrey Chaucer from young boyhood to young manhood, told for grades 7 to 10.

Booklist 48:383 Jl 15 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 24 '52 200w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 14 '52 110w

Horn Bk 28:242 Ag '52 150w

"There is a certain charm in the writing, in the colorful detail, but somehow there is a sense of opportunity lost. While holding reasonably closely to the known facts of young Chaucer's life . . . the author fails to make her characters live."

+ Kirkus 20:325 Je 1 '52 260w

"Told with an authoritative ring stemming from the bits of Chaucer humor and poetry, the period incidents, and the atmosphere. A good love story, it may appeal to girls more than boys, although it should be used with both as an introduction to The Canterbury Tales." L. R. Markey

+ Library J 77:1082 Je 15 '52 100w

"The details of life under Edward Third are so richly poured out, and the story interest is so slight, that the book becomes a documentary source book of its period rather than one to be read for pleasure." L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Jl 20 '52 180w

"Teen-age readers will find the story entertaining and also a help in understanding an important period and personality." Elizabeth Hodges

+ N Y Times p16 Je 22 '52 170w
San Francisco Chronicle p11 D 21 '52 170w

KEMPTHORNE, OSCAR. Design and analysis of experiments. 631p $8.50 Wiley 311.2 Statistics. Biometry 51-13460

"This book complements Experimental Designs, by Cochran and Cox [Book Review Digest 1950]. It contains a much fuller expression of theory and also discusses in more detail the bases of experimental design. However, it is intended primarily for the same audience, that is, advanced college students and other persons whose interest in statistics is based on their concern with experimental investigation in some field of science. For many years the author was engaged in statistical work at Rothamsted Experimental Station in England. He is now Professor of Statistics at Iowa State College." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins
Library J 77:1516 S 15 '52 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 37:27 Mr '52

"Classroom students of mathematical statistics will be able to use the more elementary parts as a text; the book as a whole will serve as a reference tool for the design consultant and mathematical statistician. The working experimenter, unless he has an unusual knowledge of mathematics, will not find the book helpful."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:216 Je '52 180w

KENDRICK, BAYNARD HARDWICK. You diet today. 217p $2.50 Morrow 52-7500
Detective story.

"Novel murder device, unique fabric of alibis, deeply knotted puzzle, and engaging detection technique." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 N 23 '52 70w

Kirkus 20:576 S 1 '52 70w

"Mr. Kendrick's delineation of Maclain is careful and admiring and this tale has that neat sort of gimmick for accomplishing murder which has been apparent in all of his more enjoyable books. He postpones its unveiling past a number of lesser excitements to the special danger of the last chapter. It's all very competently managed." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 N 9 '52 130w

"It's much too long since we've had a novel about that magnificent blind sleuth, Capt. Duncan Maclain, and it's particularly interesting to see the captain with a blind client." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p32 N 16 '52 120w

"The really fine special detection of blind Duncan Maclain doesn't appear to its best advantage until the end of this yarn about a New York health farm." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 D 7 '52 60w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:36 D 13 '52 20w

KENMARE, DALLAS, pseud. Fire-bird. 81p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

821 Lawrence, David Herbert [51-7419]

An interpretative study of D. H. Lawrence as a lyric poet.

"In stressing Lawrence's positive value she at times over-simplifies the issues, but what she affirms in and through him is welcome and necessary." H. P. A. F.

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 Je 29 '51 210w

"The poems are copiously quoted, but one is not entirely convinced that they represent Lawrence's best writing, whatever they reveal of the profundities of his nature."

Nation 175:138 Ag 16 '52 120w

"Her otherwise brilliant and stimulating essay avoids the crucial question: did Lawrence succeed as an artist, or was he a genius who never discovered his true medium, but wrote novels that are too poetic and poems that are too prosaic?"

New Statesman & Nation 42:348 S 29 '51 300w

"At least this study is not that kind of hermetic critical writing that never sticks its neck out. Dallas Kenmare's neck is very much extended. The best thing about this volume is the very wonderful 'firebird' symbolic of Lawrence on the dust cover." L. F.

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ag 24 '52 250w

"Miss Kenmare's tone is often stridently evangelical, and she seems to confuse the writer of her book with its subject. She shares his ideas to such an intimate degree that one wonders whether that does not constitute a primary disqualification for the job of critic. . . . What saves the book are the generous quotations of Lawrence's poetry itself."

Sat R 35:31 Ag 23 '52 120w

"There is no doubt of Miss Kenmare's sensitive appreciation of Lawrence's best poems: her analysis of Bavarian Gentians, for example, is admirable. But she is impatient of critics and will not let herself remain one for long, preferring to expound."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p527 Ag 24 '51 550w

KENNAN, GEORGE FROST. American diplomacy, 1900-1950. (Charles R. Walgreen foundation lectures) 146p $2.75 Univ. of Chicago press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy 51-12883
For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"This is not a book in the ordinary sense, but a collection of lectures and magazine articles which, it is quite apparent, were not intended as parts of a single book. There is much that is interesting and stimulating, including information regarding matters on which the author should be an authority; but it is disappointing that we do not have more of a rounded and considered book on foreign policy from George Kennan after his years of experience as a diplomat and global planner, followed as they were by a period of detached contemplation. . . . American Diplomacy, 1900-1950 is a notable commentary, full of the wisdom of experience. Mr. Kennan's final advice to abandon the delusion of 'total victory' in the conduct of foreign relations and to pursue modestly the national interest, with decent motives, without rancor or arrogance points the way he would have us go. Deus vult." D. P. Myers

+ — Am Pol Sci R 46:225 Mr '52 3400w

Reviewed by F. M. Russell
Ann Am Acad 279:181 Ja '52 450w

"Kennan's book is a remarkable document showing dramatically the viciousness of unempirical morality and, at the same time, the serious confusion which arises when even a fine mind associates empiricism or 'realism' with an antitheory bias. For those who have pursued moral theory and who are trying to appraise the forces at work in international affairs, this book is, because of its content and the political role of the author, an instructive and provocative work" Herbert Fingarette
Ethics 62:219 Ap '52 950w

Foreign Affairs 30:333 Ja '52 60w

"Every one of Mr. Kennan's devastating criticisms of American foreign policy up to 1950 applies with much greater force to the period since his own doctrine was accepted and perverted. If Congressmen could read books, the author of American Diplomacy would be purged from the State Department as an arch-appeaser instead of being sent as Ambassador to Moscow. This brings me to my second criticism. Mr. Kennan himself admits that his 'realism' cannot be successfully applied under the existing American Constitution and in the present mood of American opinion. But, in that case, was it realistic to recommend it?" R. H. S. Crossman

KENNAN, G. F.—Continued

New Statesman & Nation 43:4 Ja 5 '52 1550w

"Where one finds Mr. Kennan's thesis exaggerated, one can often see how he has been led into excess by the contrary excesses of current popular, and some official, thinking, which he seeks to combat. The cool analytical approach, the plea for moderation in all things, the cold douche poured upon national and international self-righteousness are all things well worth expounding at the present time, not to Americans alone, but perhaps to Americans above all. Mr. Kennan says many things which are wise; and even where his wisdom is open to question, his honesty of purpose, his clarity of expression, and the challenge he lays down to our conventional thinking entitle him to the gratitude of everyone who seeks to find the true path through the jungle of international affairs." K. G. Younger

+ Pacific Affairs 25:80 Mr '52 1800w

"Mr. Kennan insists that the United States must substitute for the drift of foreign relations the drive of a foreign policy based upon her long-term interests calculated on the complex probabilities of international power. . . . What is disturbing about Mr. Kennan's admirable, if curiously un-American, stoicism is his assumption that this would involve a radical shift in American political habits. He has a justifiable faith in the long-term soundness of democratic opinion; but insists that short-term pressures should not be allowed to inhibit the skilled practices of professional diplomats. To ensure this would involve a marked change in American constitutional practice in the direction of parliamentary democracy. Is it not somehow quaint to discover an American hinting at a solution which, when suggested by visiting Englishmen, is invariably dismissed as unrealistic or even irrelevant?" Frank Thistlethwaite

+ Spec 188:238 F 22 '52 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p101 F 8 '52 4400w

"The book is much more than the conventional plea for power politics. Mr. Kennan has ideas of great value on the purpose of armed conflict, the nature of the police state, the Russia that may develop, and the reasons for and results of such meetings as that at Yalta."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:387 D '51 220w

Reviewed by C. J. Friedrich

Yale R n s 41:277 winter '52 500w

KENNAN, KENT WHEELER. Technique of orchestration. 321p il $7.50; to schools $5.65 Prentice-Hall

781.63 Instrumentation and orchestration 52-8604

"The present volume attempts to present practical fundamentals [of orchestration] as clearly and concisely as possible, in units that can be digested easily. After a brief introduction to the orchestra as a whole, the instruments of each section are taken up individually and then in combination; finally the sections are combined. No attempt has been made to give a detailed account of the construction of instruments, and historical background has been included only where it seemed essential to an understanding of the modern instruments—or of scores of an earlier period." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:29 S 15 '52

"Designed as a text for a year's course in orchestration at the college level, this volume is a good deal more. It brings pertinent information on individual instruments up to date, stresses scoring for American purposes (including a section on school orchestras), and qualifies in many ways as a reference book." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 77:1813 O 15 '52 50w

KENNEDY, CLIFFORD W. Inspection and gaging; a training manual and reference work that discusses the place of inspection in industry. 502p il $7.50 Industrial press

621.9 Engineering inspection. Gages 51-14649

"Introduction to the inspection procedures and instruments used in present-day precision manufacturing." N Y New Tech Bks

"A very practical book. Good descriptions are given of all the various types of gages and measuring equipment used in the inspection of metal parts and articles in present-day manufacturing." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:536 Mr 15 '52 80w

"For an introductory work, it is unusually comprehensive. For example, the reader is told not only how to use gages but how to check their accuracy. However, subjects such as quality control are only outlined. The book is well illustrated. It can be recommended to anyone from vocational school student to factory executive who is making his first acquaintance with inspection. It is well suited to home study."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:7 Ja '52

KENNEDY, MARGARET (MRS DAVID DAVIES). Troy Chimneys. 249p $3 Rinehart

52-9603

The diary and letters of a man who was a young M.P. in the early 1800's form the bulk of this novel of dual personality. His papers, found some sixty years later, show Miles Lutton had two distinct characters, as well as two romances, both of which ended unhappily.

Booklist 49:2; 105 S 1 '52; N 15 '52

"A diverting Restoration period piece."

+ Bookmark 12:34 N '52 30w

"Troy Chimneys is rich in comic invention, both in scene and character, because it was conceived and executed in terms of structure. Part of the comedy and much of the suspense lies in the fact that the author's story is given to us as a series of diaries, letters, and documents. From a multiple approach handled with great skill and ease, the author can give the reader information withheld from the characters themselves. At the same time, the characters hint at events and relationships revealed to the reader only at the end." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:311 Ja '53 300w

"'Troy Chimneys' is exquisite, beautifully written, and more than a little puzzling." Edward Wagenknecht

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 9 '52 450w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p5 D 24 '52 200w

"A novel that may baffle some who count on a straightforward job of story telling, but that others will find refreshingly new and different."

+ Kirkus 20:565 S 1 '52 200w

"The form makes it entertaining reading for leisurely reader who is waiting for something different. Only the subtle influence of one personality on another reminds reader of Margaret Kennedy's method. Doubtless she has enjoyed writing this novel; many will enjoy reading it." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:1656 O 1 '52 130w

"This is a quiet book the charm of which grows as one continues to read and in retrospect, after one has finished. . . 'Troy Chimneys' is not everybody's dish, but readers who prize Margaret Kennedy's subtlety, discrimination and humor will find it highly enjoyable."

Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 9 '52 470w

"The prose style is a brilliant tour de force. Miss Kennedy's flawless ear for language produces a text not only lucid and pure, not only as moving as poetry, but unobtrusively yet surely of another time. There has never been anything to match it for sheer perfection, with the single exception of Stevenson; and Stevenson's wit, though pawky, does not sparkle like Miss Kennedy's." Lillian De La Torre

+ N Y Times p6 N 9 '52 470w

"Miss Kennedy is so knowing and tongue-in-cheek about what she calls the dual personality of her subject that we leave the book understanding little about his real impulses. The form of presentation—a haphazard intermingling of letters, memoirs, and more or less direct narrative—does nothing to help."

New Yorker 28:170 N 8 '52 60w

"It is an extremely intricate and subtle technique, this telling of a story in flashback form, in a first person narrative, and Miss Kennedy handles it, as might have been expected, in a brilliant and expert manner." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R 35:17 N 22 '52 500w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Spring'd Republican p7C N 23 '52 100w

KENNEY, HAROLD EUGENE, and LAW, GLENN C. Wrestling. 171p il $3 McGraw

796.81 Wrestling 51-12620

"Two experienced coaches urge sponsor wrestling in colleges, pointing out its carry-over value as a means of keeping fit in post-college life. Designed for instructors, an excellent, detailed description of holds and throws, copiously illustrated. Chapters on injuries and building a wrestling program. Index." Library J

Booklist 48:355 J1 1 '52

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:1207 J1 '52 30w

KENYON, BERNICE LESBIA (MRS THOMAS WALTER GILKYSON). Night sky. 75p $2.50 Scribner

811 51-11497

A third book of poems by this New York-born poet. "Man's relation to nature and to his fellows and the meanings of life, love and death are Miss Kenyon's basic subjects." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

Booklist 48:7 S 1 '51

"Although sharpness of observation is often somewhat obscured by flabby phrasing and hoary poetical devices, the slow development, and graceful melody reveal an unusual lyric talent."

+ Kirkus 19:253 My 15 '51 130w

"Readers who prefer lyric poetry traditional in both form and theme will welcome Bernice Kenyon's new volume. 'Night Sky' offers none of the 'obscurities' said to mark, and even to mar, much modern poetry; nor is this collection tentative or experimental. Instead these poems are at once direct and accessible, bringing the poet's emotional and intellectual apprehension of experience to the reader in simple and familiar terms." Gene Baro

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p38 D 2 '51 270w

"It is a measure of her skill that her feeling for her subjects arises out of the scenes she draws and the music she creates, without explicit statement. . . And it is encouraging to find that such an urbane and pessimistic poet devotes more than half of her volume to poems in praise of love." John Brooks

+ N Y Times p35 O 7 '51 140w

"These poems display, together with the concision and purity of tone that one expects of a classical style, a richness of technical resources." G. P. Meyer

+ Sat R of Lit 34:12 D 29 '51 450w

KENYON, KATHLEEN MARY. Beginning in archaeology; with 8 pages of plates and diagrams in text. 203p $3.25 Praeger

571 Archeology 52-9403

Outlines the fundamental technique of excavation and the specialized methods used in excavating different types of sites. Illustrated with photographs and diagrams. Index.

Booklist 48:314 Je 1 '52

"Will be a valuable guide in methodology for those with some experience already, as well as for those starting from scratch." Olwen Brogan

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 8 '52 240w

"So far as I know, this beginner's manual of instruction in field archeology by Kathleen Kenyon, lecturer at the London University Institute of Archeology, is the first of its kind. The deficiency, of course, has not been widely deplored, for the art of digging up the past is not a popular pursuit. Still, the initiated are perhaps more numerous than one might suspect, and they, at any rate, will be delighted by Miss Kenyon's handbook." E. B. Garside

N Y Times p14 My 25 '52 480w

Reviewed by John Pfeiffer

Sat R 35:38 J1 5 '52 300w

"It is perhaps a little difficult to see to whom the book is addressed. The title implies that it is intended for aspirants to excavating work, but then it is filled with information about the work of the director of a dig. . . Then, again, a large part of the book is devoted to things that the apprentice learns from his seniors automatically and happily, hardly realizing that he is learning, whereas long descriptions of such things become wearisome and more likely to frighten him off than to attract him. . . Her book, however, does not impress upon the reader how good an excavator Miss Kenyon is."

Times [London] Lit Sup p283 Ap 25 '52 360w

KEPES, JULIET. Five little monkeys; il. by [the author]. 32p $2.50 Houghton

52-6898

Picture story book about five little monkeys living in the jungle who learn a valuable lesson thru their capture of Terrible, the Tiger Ages 4 to 8.

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52 60w

Commonweal 57:170 N 21 '52 10w

"The story of the mischievous monkeys in the jungle is lively enough to hold the children's interest but it is the pictures—many in full color—that are outstanding and make this one of the distinguished books of the fall." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:314 O '52 80w

"A delightful jungle episode."

+ Kirkus 20:598 S 15 '52 100w

"Though the pictures may seem at first glance rather startling, they capture the humor and vigor of the tale abundantly. Recommended." Mary Strang

+ Library J 77:1662 O 1 '52 30w

"Mrs. Kepes' prose is uneven, sometimes stilted, sometimes very expressive but it is her pictures which carry the fun and suspense of the story. Hers is a never-never jungle, as imaginative as Rousseau's, where lion and tiger, African tiger and Indian nilgai meet and all of them are portrayed with a brilliant handling of design and color." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p32 O 26 '52 100w

KEPLER, MRS HAZEL (CLOUGHLEY). Child and his play; a planning guide for parents and teachers; sketches by the author. 309p $3.75 Funk

649.1 Play. Child study 52-9723

After a few pages on the theory of child play, this book becomes a manual of practical advice and guidance for parents on such points as what toys to choose for children of various ages, books for children, what about the comics? keeping pets, etc.

Reviewed by F. A. Browne

Am J Pub Health 42:1010 Ag '52 170w

Booklist 48:314 Je 1 '52

"There are recipes, lists of toys, books, and play materials for different ages and many other practical aids to happy childhood. Sometimes, however, the advice is encumbered with unnecessary words and attempts at humor." P. D. Heron

KEPLER, H. C.—Continued

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 10 '52 60w

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 13 '52 130w

"Parents would find this book a practical guide and stimulating reading. It would help parents to help themselves in guiding play activities of children." E. M. Sunderlin

+ J Home Econ 44:351 D '52 250w

"An invaluable book." W. H. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 J1 20 '52 550w

KERENYI, KAROLY. Gods of the Greeks [tr by Norman Cameron]. (Myth and man) 304p il $4.75 Thames

292 Mythology, Classical 51-14117

"Translated from the German and attractively illustrated, this volume in the new 'Myth and Man Series,' is designed to present to the adult reader basic myths of various peoples and to show the 'vital relationship between the mythology and the society concerned.' For his volume, Professor Kerényi, an authority on Greek philology and ancient history, has gone directly to original texts and from them has pieced together the basic myths and their variations." Library J

"A highly concentrated, valuable manual for the scholar or adult seriously interested in mythology. It is not suitable for, or intended for, casual or immature readers. Recommended for university and large public libraries." R. B. Robertson

+ Library J 76:1931 N 15 '51 150w

"Professor Kerényi takes the view that the adult reader, whose understanding has been tempered by some knowledge of psychology, can see the material as its own justification, a compact image of Greek antiquity. Nevertheless, the work is too rich in content to be digested at once, and is rather a handbook to basic mythology, an introduction to Greek literature even. The illustrations from vase paintings are excellent, and the German text has been well rendered by Norman Cameron."

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:162 F 9 '52 270w

"For the curious adult Kerényi's book may be more satisfying, as it is more instructive than the conventional treatments, which are always prettified and frequently patronizing. But Kerényi's book cannot provide what Bullfinch or Kingsley provided—an introduction to the magic of ordered fantasy and to the special glories of classical antiquity. Mr. Norman Cameron deserves commendation for his skillful translation of a difficult text." Moses Hadas

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 20 '52 280w

Reviewed by L. V. Updegraff

N Y Times p34 D 2 '51 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p143 F 22 '52 420w

Reviewed by W. E. Brown

Yale R n s 41:471 spring '52 550w

KERR, WILLIAM SHAW, bp. Handbook on the papacy. 322p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

262.13 Papacy [51-18118]

"The author, who is the (Anglican) bishop of Down and Dromore, says at the outset that the claim of papal supremacy and infallibility is 'one crucial doctrine of Romanism.' . . . The purpose of the book is 'to investigate the validity' of this claim." Christian Century

"Ninety-five per cent of Bishop Kerr's book is pure history, and very sound history. . . . The book is written frankly and clearly, but calmly. There is little need of epithets or adjectives. The proper corrective for a 'historical lie' is historical truth. Here it is, well ordered and carefully documented." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 68:1162 O 10 '51 300w

"The Anglican bishop in northern Ireland . . . has produced a polemical manual which is a model of dispassionate but cogent historical argument. . . . The reviewer does not share Bishop Kerr's opinion that 'we can all endorse' that preeminence which the bishop of Rome took upon himself in the fifth century, natural though this was in the historical situation, but he both shares and endorses the temper and substance of the argument." T. G. Tappert

+ Crozer Q 29:242 Ap '52 210w

"It is a good solid Protestant book; the writer stands squarely against the Papacy. . . . The book reads also, solid Ulster and Protestant." W. B. R.

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 16 '52 190w

KERRISON, IRVINE L. H. Workers' education at the university level. 177p $3 Rutgers univ. press

378 Education of workers, Colleges and universities—Curricula 51-14170

"In essence, this book is a progress report on the trials, errors, and successes experienced by some fifty universities in offering programs in the field of workers' education. . . . The volume deals with such practical questions as whether courses should be full or part time, who should teach them, how they should be organized and financed, and how there can be a frank and fearless examination of the vested interests of labor and management and of other controversial matters without destruction of the mutual confidence upon which such a program rests." U S Quarterly Bk R

"A thorough survey. . . . Dr. Kerrison, associate professor in the Institute of Management and Labor Relations at Rutgers University, is well qualified by practical experience to discuss the various aspects of the question. . . . The bibliography and the various appendices add further value to this book which will prove of interest to all concerned with this aspect of the educational problems of our country." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 77:56 Ja 1 '52 140w

Reviewed by Theodore Brameld

Sat R 35:36 S 13 '52 700w

School & Society 74:319 N 17 '51 40w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:51 Mr '52 250w

KERTESZ, ZOLTAN IMRE. Pectic substances. 628p il $13.50 Interscience

664.2 Pectins 51-12053

"The pectic substances found in plant cells have been studied by chemists, botanists, and food technologists, and their research findings have appeared in a wide range of journals. The Pectic Substances provides both a review of the literature and a survey of the subject. The volume lists more than 2,000 papers, groups them according to their fields, and upon them bases a survey which shows not only what is known of various aspects of the pectic substances, but also those in which information is lacking. The material is presented in five Parts: chemistry, botany, biochemistry, manufacture, functions and applications." U S Quarterly Bk R

"It is the reviewer's opinion that both the student and the specialist will find in this book a valuable source of information on the subject matter." W. O. Winkler

+ Chem & Eng N 30:1034 Mr 10 '52 400w

"Probably the most comprehensive treatise on this subject that will be published in many years. The author states that it is not intended for specialists in the chemistry of pectics; but the book seems too comprehensive and too technical to be useful to non-specialists."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:90 N '51

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:430 D '51 200w

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). Steamboat Gothic. 562p $3.75 Messner

52-13868

The chronicle of a family thru three generations beginning with the romance of a wealthy reformed professional gambler and a well-born Southern belle. The great plantation house on the Mississippi river in Louisiana, is the scene of much of the novel. The time is from Civil war days until 1930, when the beautiful house called Cindy Lou becomes a Community Center in memory of the man who made it great.

Booklist 49:58; 105 O 15 '52; N 15 '52
Bookmark 12:56 D '52 40w

"'Steamboat Gothic' is the kind of book that readers of romantic novels find most satisfying. It is a period piece, it has a cast of characters to whom spectacular things happen—love triumphs idyllically, there are acid selfishness and grim tragedy to counter-balance the sweetness. It lacks only humor to give a reader full measure of emotion and event." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 9 '52
250w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p5 D 24 '52
140w

"Up to the point of the fire which wiped out most of the family and left baby Larry and Clyde alone, the story is tightly plotted and holding. The last section seems synthetic and contrived. But the things that will be held in remembrance long after the book is read are the intimate details of living."

+ Kirkus 20:687 O 15 '52 260w

"Panoramic, frankly sentimental love story, with an unconvincingly contrived plot. . . [Pays] meticulously accurate attention to its changing tastes and customs. Will be popular with the rental trade." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 77:1897 N 1 '52 40w

"Mrs. Keyes' characters are drawn with broad strokes that tend to make them unmitigated saints or sinners, heroes or villains, to a degree not always credible on sober afterthought. What, for instance, in Batchelor's checkered past prepared him for the exemplary role of family man and community pillar to which he switched on falling in love with Lucy's voice over a wall? . . . But while the panorama of events is unrolling so brightly, few readers will stop to ask such questions, and probably most of Mrs. Keyes' following would find them ungenerous even in retrospect." David Tilden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 9 '52
390w

"Mrs. Keyes is skilled in the art of satisfying the reader who wants to settle down to a 'good story' with no unsettling after-effects." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p48 N 16 '52 240w

"Mrs. Keyes deftly juggles numerous subplots, and lavishly describes the customs and manners of plantation and river life. On the debit side are a sentimental style and a heavily padded story. But the author's rich panorama undoubtedly will please her wide audience." Ray Pierre

+ Sat R 35:19 N 29 '52 170w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p5C D 21 '52
220w

Time 60:126 N 10 '52 340w

"Admiration, again, cannot be withheld from Mrs. Keyes's Steamboat Gothic, an indefatigably detailed account of what life may be supposed to have been like on the banks of the Mississippi at the end of the nineteenth century. . . Steamboat Gothic can hardly be criticized; it can only be enjoyed."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p577 S 5 '52
160w

KEYES, MRS LUCILE (SHEPPARD). Federal control of entry into air transportation. 405p
$6 Harvard univ. press

387.7 Aeronautics, Commercial. U.S. Civil aeronautics board 51-14742

"An analysis and evaluation of federal government policies under the Civil Aeronautics Act toward the entry and exit of firms engaged in the air-transportation business, in terms of economic performance, from the point of view of their effect on the functioning of the controlled markets, largely ignoring political and ethical considerations." Library J

"A little less attention to niceties of theory and more concern with the art of the possible would have improved her book." D. S. Watson
Am Econ R 42:993 D '52 300w

"Policies of the Civil Aeronautics Board have been much reviewed and criticized particularly in the legal periodicals, but nowhere have they been as thoroughly and competently examined from the standpoint of theoretical economics as in the present volume." D. P. Locklin

+ J Pol Econ 60:354 Ag '52 700w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:54 Ja 1 '52 80w

"In view of the current interest in its highly controversial subject, this study is timely, and should interest advanced students of economics and government and aviation officials."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:147 Je '52 340w

KEYSER, CARL ANTON. Basic engineering metallurgy; theories, principles and applications. 384p il $8; to schools $6 Prentice-Hall
669 Metallurgy 52-10310

"An introductory textbook for college students of engineering. Approximately one-third of the space is devoted to such theoretical aspects as the physics of the solid state. The remainder is divided between discussions of heat treatment, the engineering properties of particular metals and the chief processes of metal fabrication. The discussions are necessarily somewhat generalized, but in most parts they are sufficiently detailed to inform engineering students and engineers who are not specializing in engineering metallurgy." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Book covers a good deal of ground simply and informatively. . . The discussions of particular topics, for example, electroplating, are too short to take the place of a full-size book, but they do outline the principles and the chief techniques. There are a few footnote references, but the book is weak on bibliography." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:1210 Jl '52 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:59 Jl '52

KHADDURI, MAJID. Independent Iraq; a study in Iraqi politics since 1932. 291p $4.50 Oxford
956.7 Iraq—Politics and government 51-14943

"This volume traces political developments in Iraq from the termination of the British Mandate to the present. It is a picture of political turmoil, cabinet instability, military intervention in politics and a series of coups d'etat which prevented the development of normal democratic processes. Mr. Khadduri's personal observation of events and acquaintance with many Iraqi political leaders gives authority to his appraisal of the situation." Current Hist

Current Hist 22:103 F '52 50w

Foreign Affairs 30:507 Ap '52 40w

"An informative and well-documented account of Iraqi politics." P. J. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 1 '52 200w

"This is a lucid and sober account. . . Majid Khadduri, who holds the Chair of Middle East Studies at Johns Hopkins, taught in Baghdad and was a member of the Iraqi delegation to the San Francisco Conference in 1945. He is too moderate and too scholarly to paint a very bright picture of two difficult and discouraging decades in his country's history." Farnsworth Fowle

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 20 '52 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ja 27 '52
150w

KIDD, KENNETH E. Canadians of long ago; the story of the Canadian Indian; with ill. by Sylvia Hahn. 174p $2.50 Longmans

970.1 Indians of North America—Canada
52-7819

"Introduction to the early Indians of the Northwest Coast, of the Plains, and of the Algonquin and Iroquois tribes. The dress, dwellings, tribal rules, and social life of each group are described briefly. Four legends are related. The author, an authority on Indians of Canada, unfortunately writes stiffly for boys and girls. Black-and-white illustrations clarify and considerably enliven the text. Maps, bibliography." Library J

Booklist 48:325 Je 1 '52

"Recommended for junior high school pupils." Elizabeth Mitchell
+ Library J 77:729 Ap 15 '52 80w

KIEFFER, JOHN ELMER. Realities of world power; cartography by H. Garver Miller. 336p $4 McKay

909.82 World politics. Geopolitics 52-6250

"Applying Mackinder's celebrated theory of the Heartland, the book presents an informative panorama of strategic world areas and the logistics of America's power position vis-a-vis Soviet Russia." N Y Times

"On the whole, the author is at his best in the survey of the United States and of western and Central Europe. The farther he drifts from these well-charted regions, the more lightly does he tread on the dangerous ground of political problem-areas." Andrew Georgy

+ Ann Am Acad 281:203 My '52 550w

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin
Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Mr 30 '52 320w

Foreign Affairs 31:151 O '52 10w

"It is very impressive, done in a breezily 'popular' style with a ready wealth of all kinds of factual data. My trouble is that it is seldom clear how the deductions follow from the analyses, and even less how they fit into any consistent corpus of practicable American foreign policy." Walter Millis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Mr 16 '52 500w

"This is a fighting book and the author intended it to be just that, risks accepted. . . Unfortunately the author occasionally mars his objective presentation of valid geopolitical data with hot diatribe. Also unfortunately, the book lacks an index." E. A. Walsh

+ N Y Times p14 F 10 '52 470w

"Even though it is written in nontechnical language, any book dealing with the complexities of geopolitics can be very dry reading at times. This book is no exception but is well worth the work." J. E. C.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 F 24 '52 220w

"The bibliography is good, but hardly satisfactory. And, above all, there is no index. Yet, in spite of weaknesses, his is a volume which is a 'must' for all the instructors in international relations, modern world history, and current events. Kieffer, furthermore, has earned the thanks of all of those who have seen a definite value in 'geopolitics,' but have been on the defensive due to the resistance of academic circles to the 'Realities of World Power.'" J. S. Roucek

+ Social Educ 16:298 O '52 500w

KIELY, BENEDICT. Honey seems bitter. 252p $3 Dutton

52-10438

"A swiftly paced narrative of murder and off the record romances which take place in a sleepy Irish town about fifty miles from the city." Kirkus

"There is a self-consciously earthy quality about the story which becomes a little obvious after a while. It is all in character, as far as the gentle Donagh is concerned, but the air in the pubs gets a bit thick. A strong wind blowing would be a relief at times." Emmet Lavery

Commonweal 57:265 D 12 '52 270w

Kirkus 20:517 Ag 15 '52 150w

Reviewed by M. H. Zipprich

Library J 77:1656 O 1 '52 50w

Nation 175:534 D 6 '52 50w

"The idea of reporting 'ordinary' events through the eyes of an extraordinary onlooker is not altogether a new one, but Mr. Kiely interprets it with great delicacy and precision. His unhappy characters will haunt the mind outside of the Irish village where he has placed them." Sylvia Stallings

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 23 '52 550w

"Highly sophisticated and exceptionally well-written, Mr. Kiely's new novel may be something special in Irish fiction. This observation should be qualified at once by another, which is that the quality of much of Mr. Kiely's language, his admirable movielike transitions from action to narrative, and his emphasis on the sordidness of his minor characters strike one as coming from a writer more familiar with the current literature (and films) of this country than that of Ireland." James Stern

+ N Y Times p12 D 28 '52 400w

"There is far less redeeming pity here than in the two earlier novels—too little, in fact—and that is an artistic blemish on the record of a top-ranking Irish storyteller." A. F. Wolfe

+ Sat R 35:19 O 18 '52 500w

Springf'd Republican p7C D 7 '52 100w

KIERAN, JOHN. Introduction to wild flowers; ill. by Tabea Hofmann. 77p $2.50 Doubleday

581.97 Flowers 52-9333

"The more common and readily observed wild flowers, particularly those of New England, are presented in the order of their appearance in spring and summer. There are in the book 100 flower portraits, contributed by Tabea Hofmann, in full and accurate color." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"Delightfully informative. . . There are lovely illustrations in color by Tabea Hofmann. Because of the references, it could almost have been called 'Introduction to Spring.'" M. F. Kieran

+ Atlantic 189:87 Je '52 120w

Booklist 48:323 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:232 Jl '52 60w

Reviewed by Anna Campbell

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 25 '52 100w

KILANDER, HOLGER FREDERICK. Nutrition for health. 415p ill $3 McGraw

612.39 Nutrition. Diet 51-13041

"Dr. Kilander, the author of this textbook for high school students, is a specialist for health education in the United States Office of Education. The topics covered by the text, in addition to the functions of the various nutrients in the body and the use of the Basic Seven food groups as an aid in the selection of diets, include digestion, health as related to food, weight control, and the sanitary handling of food. The last chapter, entitled 'You Can't Believe Everything You Hear About Food,' deserves special mention. . . Study questions are provided at the end of each chapter." J Home Econ

"An ample number of excellent illustrations is used. The writing is clear and the organization of the material good." T. J. McMillan
+ J Home Econ 44:65 Ja '52 200w

"The author has an easy-to-read style of writing. He has accumulated an abundance of scientific and factual information in the field of nutrition. He has given his readers an opportunity to know sound nutrition and a yardstick by which to choose wisely in terms of their own dietary needs. Dr. Kilander shows clearly the relation of nutrition to well-being and its application to world problems." R. J. Frantz

+ School R 50:61 Ja '52 170w

KILLILEA, MRS MARIE (LYONS). Karen. 314p $2.95 Prentice-Hall

616.8 Paralysis, Cerebral. United cerebral palsy association, incorporated 52-10666

The mother of a handicapped child, Karen who was born with cerebral palsy, tells of Karen's first years, and of the battle her patient and loving parents fought to give their child a life worth living. Describes also the beginnings of the United Cerebral Palsy Association.

Booklist 49:44 O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 30w

"The story of all this she has woven with art, humor and pathos into the everyday happenings of the daily life of the family. Reading it, one regrets that there are not many households presided over by a Marie and a Jimmy Killilea." Edith Donovan

+ Cath World 176:78 O '52 300w

"It is a book of tremendous courage in which despair was never acknowledged. It should give hope anew to the parent of any afflicted child and fresh understanding to the parent of any able bodied child. A remarkable book, a remarkable child, and two remarkable parents who stole time from their own ordeals at home to spread the word abroad." Marcia Winn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 O 5 '52 500w

"A gallant account, in very human terms."

+ Kirkus 20:484 Ag 1 '52 230w

"Mrs. Killilea not only writes well, but presents a message of considerable merit." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:149 S 15 '52 120w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 S 21 '52 450w

"You'll want to read this book because it is a wonderful story of human courage, patience, and triumph." F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p10 S 28 '52 420w

"A touching, tenderly written and remarkably informative book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 O 2 '52 700w

"Mrs. Killilea has a natural storytelling gift, and her account of the endless daily routines, the small triumphs, the gradual progress, the accidents, always under emotional, physical and financial strain, becomes a moving human narrative. . . In a sorry world this book, which might so easily have been sentimental and painful, but is neither, is worth reading. Anyone who meets Karen, even on paper, will postpone resigning from the human race." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R 35:15 S 20 '52 400w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

Springf'd Republican p11C O 19 '52 380w

KIMBROUGH, EMILY (MRS JOHN WRENCH). Through Charley's door; drawings by Alice Harvey. 273p il $3 Harper

658.871 Field, Marshall, and company

51-11929

Charley's door was the carriage trade entrance to Marshall Field's in Chicago. Thru that door the author went in 1923 to get a job in the advertising department. Her book describes her four years there with its ups and downs, many of them humorous.

Booklist 48:137; 209 D 15 '51; Mr 1 '52

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 30w

"As a whole, the book will be pounced upon with gleeful cries and every line will be loved by everyone who has worked at Field's and by generations of shoppers who look to Field's to supply every personal and domestic need." Marge Lyon

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 17 '52 700w

"In gathering daily data for 'Little Things Noticed' for 'Fashions of the Hour,' the store magazine, Emily touches just about everything in the store with her delightful humor. Her vivid account of department store excitements fills her book in much the same way Marshall Field fills its niche by managing invariably to 'give the lady what she wants.'" B. E. S. Fisher

+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Mr 6 '52 340w

Horn Bk 28:188 Je '52 40w

Kirkus 19:697 D 1 '51 270w

"'Through Charley's Door' is pure Kimbrough; and an audience rivalling Marshall Field's customers in numbers and loyalty asks nothing more. The fascinating glimpses behind the scenes are lagniappe. Cite me not the sonnet or the triolet; a book you can send to somebody in the hospital is the most difficult art form of all, and Miss Kimbrough has it down to a fine point. Funny and nice, expert with the technique hidden, again, and more than anything, young and gay." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 17 '52 700w

"There is obviously nothing brittle about Miss Kimbrough's feeling for Marshall Field's. She still shares its famous esprit de corps and she has written as charming and lighthearted a love letter as was ever received by any dispenser of Ladies and Gents Apparel, also Home Furnishings." Jane Berry

+ N Y Times p30 F 17 '52 500w

"An entertaining piece of work, and a substantial one."

+ New Yorker 27:108 F 16 '52 140w

Reviewed by J. F. Rooney

Springf'd Republican p4D F 24 '52 170w

Wis Lib Bul 48:88 Mr '52

KING, CLARENCE. Your committee in community action. 114p $2 Harper

301.153 Committees 52-8480

"This handbook is intended for two persons: first, for the volunteer citizen who serves on a committee; second, for the professional executive who endeavors to lead the committee. It is in no sense an exhaustive, scientific treatise. It seeks to give some helpful hints as a result of the author's thirty years' experience as a professional executive and as a volunteer citizen." Pref.

Booklist 49:42 O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:78 Ja '53 20w

Reviewed by J. F. Rooney

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 24 '52 60w

Wis Lib Bul 48:212 S '52

KING, EARL JUDSON. Plant propagation. [2d ed] 264p il $4 Farrar, Straus

581.16 Plant propagation

"This comprehensive working manual by an English horticulturist deals with propagation by seeds and vegetative propagation, providing valuable ready reference to both amateur gardener and student. Drawings, Tables, glossary, index." Bookmark

Bookmark 11:232 J1 '52 20w

"If you have any pretensions toward the green thumb, even if you are the rankest of amateur with spade and hoe, or one of the more advanced gardeners with Latin names at your earthy fingertips, here is a book for your shelf. It will lead you down the garden path and point with numbered paragraphs [an excellent idea, by the way] to the answers for almost all of your plaguing questions." Gary Sheahan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 S 21 '52 140w

KING, ERNEST JOSEPH, and WHITEHILL, WALTER MUIR. Fleet Admiral King, a naval record. 674p il $6.75 Norton

B or 92 U.S. Navy. World war, 1939-1945—
Naval operations 52-13493

"This is Admiral King's story: the story of his boyhood, of his early career, of his forty-four years of service in the Navy, especially of his four wartime years in the combined posts of Commander in Chief, United States Fleet, and Chief of Naval Operations." (Publisher's note) Index.

"One is tempted to say—with due apology for frivolous exaggeration—that the Admiral won't talk and the Commander can't write. But to the student, amateur or professional, of naval affairs, this autobiography is obviously a document of first-rate importance. It furnishes a close-up of the U.S. Navy's growth since the turn of the century. . . . And it offers a uniquely comprehensive and authoritative account of the U.S. Navy's role in World War II." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 191:86 Ja '53 240w

Bookmark 12:54 D '52 50w

"'Fleet Admiral King' will undoubtedly occupy a place of importance in the library of every student of naval history. It is a significant work. On the debit side, it is slow, humorless reading—as precise and taut as Adm. King himself." Chapin Litten

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 23 '52 410w

Kirkus 20:626 S 15 '52 200w

"A valuable reference book for the study of the war and perhaps for sidelights on the developments of the navy since the turn of the century." H. L. Roth

+ Library J 77:2172 D 15 '52 120w

"It has been written during the subject's lifetime by a very competent historian in constant collaboration with the Admiral. This sort of treatment, partly biographical and partly autobiographical, had already been tried in the Henry L. Stimson and McGeorge Bundy book, 'On Active Service,' and is much better than employing a ghost writer." S. E. Morison

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 23 '52 1000w

"'Fleet Admiral King, A Naval Record' adds to the now stupendous archives of World war II, even though as biography or history or memoir it lacks sparkle and presents only half a portrait. But it does give to the public for the first time some idea of the fierce rectitude and integrity and unswerving purpose of the least known member of our wartime Joint Chiefs of Staff." H. W. Baldwin

+ N Y Times p1 N 23 '52 1400w

New Yorker 28:118 D 20 '52 220w

Reviewed by Jack Pegues

San Francisco Chronicle p12 D 14 '52 370w

"It is obvious that the reticence imposed by the autobiographic character of the book has resulted in toning down certain aspects of the King personality. Apart from that understandable deficiency the book is a rewarding contribution to American military history." C. V. Woodward

+ Sat R 35:26 N 22 '52 850w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springfld Republican p7C N 30 '52 480w

"Fleet Admiral King, like its subject, is heavy weather nearly all the way."

Time 60:114 N 24 '52 800w

KING, GERMAINE. Holland. (Lands and peoples ser) 88p il $1.50; text ed $1.20 Macmillan

949.2 Netherlands—Juvenile literature

[52-25590]

"Because of the scarcity of material on other countries, this travelog-styled, informative survey published in England in 1951 will be welcome in American libraries. Covers description of the country, history, customs and character, towns, costumes, sports and recreation, art and culture, industry and trade.

Additional items of information are contained in an appendix. Grades 5-8." Booklist

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

"Good photographs and color plates. Accurate and authentic. . . . Should be of use in classes where Holland is studied." Inger Boye

+ Library J 77:1666 O 1 '52 40w

"There is nothing subjective in this little volume. Its style is extremely simple, sometimes almost painfully naive, as if it had been written for children; but through it all, perhaps because of this very naivete, one catches a glimpse of the placid beauty of the Dutch countryside and the warm humanity of the Dutch people." J. M.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 9 '52 160w

KINGSLEY, SIDNEY. Darkness at noon; a play based on the novel by Arthur Koestler. 117p il $2.50 Random house

812

51-11137

A dramatic adaptation of Arthur Koestler's novel about the thoughts of a Russian revolutionist waiting in prison during the 1937 purge.

Booklist 47:378 J1 1 '51

Cleveland Open Shelf p27 N '51

Reviewed by Geoffrey Ashe

Commonweal 56:611 S 26 '52 400w

Kirkus 19:240 My 1 '51 30w

"Recommended for generous purchase for drama collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 76:1031 Je 15 '51 70w

Wis Lib Bul 48:32 Ja '52

KINNEY, LUCIEN BLAIR, and PURDY, C. RICHARD. Teaching mathematics in the secondary school [C. V. Newsom, consulting editor]. 381p $5 Rinehart

510.7 Mathematics—Study and teaching

52-5588

"Dr. Kinney, a leading American mathematician who is professor of education at Stanford University, and Dr. Purdy of San Jose State College insist that the teacher of mathematics must know not only his subject thoroughly but also the learning process and its implementation. Covering mathematics from arithmetic to solid geometry and trigonometry, they repeatedly show how application of the principles of educational psychology can make the learning situation enjoyable as well as fruitful." San Francisco Chronicle

"Because of its currency and its soundness, this text will be a boon to educators on all levels." A. F.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 21 '52 240w

School & Society 75:141 Mr 1 '52 20w

KIRK, LYDIA SELDEN (CHAPIN) (MRS ALAN G. KIRK). Postmarked Moscow. 278p $3 Scribner

947.085 [914.7] Moscow—Social life and customs 52-11084

Letters written while the author's husband was American ambassador to Russia, 1949-1951. They describe Mrs. Kirk's personal observations, the daily happenings in the diplomatic colony, and the difficulties of keeping house in Russia. Political events are not discussed.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:82 Ag '52 550w

Booklist 48:329; 376 Je 15 '52; J1 15 '52

Bookmark 12:81 Ja '53

"An intimate, informal, surprisingly revealing picture of everyday, contemporary Russian life and soviet-American relations." Fanny Butcher

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 J1 20 '52 750w

"Lydia Kirk's book gives you the feeling of attending an exciting play. . . . Almost everything anyone does in the Soviet Union turns out to be in the nature of an adventure, and lively Lydia Kirk is indefatigable in her sight-seeing quests." B. E. S. Fisher

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 J1 21 '52 650w

Reviewed by E. S. Skillin
Commonweal 56:469 Ag 15 '52 280w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 28:343 O '52 50w

"On the whole, she has given a vivid and human picture of a city and a people, of a deadly monotony of tempo, appearance, expression, from the stolid ugliness of the buildings, the general unkemptness, shabbiness, down-at-heel look, to the strange blankness and lack of emotion in the faces of the people."

+ Kirkus 20:311 My 15 '52 220w

"Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 77:1009 Je 1 '52 100w

"Possesses not only authenticity, but the straightforward, simple appeal of a mind which, while remaining essentially homespun, is informed by a wide experience of the world. . . Mrs. Kirk has no taste for generalizations or philosophizing. She neither seeks to interpret, speculate, or foretell. She keeps her account at the bedrock level of practical experience, and in the experiences themselves her judgment is implicit." Virgilia Peterson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 J1 20 '52 850w

"In spite of occasional flexing of claws, 'Postmarked Moscow' is solidly packed with interesting and authentic information. The author has obviously spent much time in research and many weary hours afoot making personal investigations around the ancient city." Oriana Atkinson

+ N Y Times p1 J1 20 '52 950w

New Yorker 28:66 Ag 2 '52 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 10 '52 200w

"These letters give one of the best pictures as yet available of life in the Soviet capital. . . Mrs. Kirk has produced a chatty, amusing, and honest book about Moscow's two worlds. A less urbane and well-balanced woman might have described these experiences in shrill and morbid tones, but instead one finds the grim Moscow scene transformed here into one which has comic as well as tragic aspects." Harry Schwartz

+ Sat R 35:19 J1 19 '52 800w

Time 60:76 J1 23 '52 480w

Wis Lib Bul 48:170 J1 '52

KIRK, RUSSELL AMOS. Randolph of Roanoke. 186p $3 Univ. of Chicago press

B or 92 Randolph, John. U.S.—Politics and government—1783-1865 51-12157

"This volume is subtitled 'A Study in Conservative Thought.' Kirk is not concerned with the minutiae of John Randolph's life. This is no attempt to supplant the biography by William Cabell Bruce or to correct the one by Hugh Garland. The author's concern is to trace Randolph's political ideas, to show how consistently and courageously from 1799, when he entered Congress, to 1829, when he retired from it, and to his death four years later, he stood for the republican principles on which our country was founded; to retell how he contended against the egalitarian and coercive practices which destroyed and replaced those early principles." Commonweal

Reviewed by F. M. Green

Am Hist R 57:693 Ap '52 550w

"We may well be grateful to Kirk for this more than competent reminder of the man, largely forgotten, who more than any other of his time stood for the liberty of individuals. . . He fought in vain, of course; but popularity is no sure test of the validity of a man's ideas. Randolph deserves reading and thought. He deserves to be rescued from the oblivion into which all the great conservatives are consigned by seducers of Demos." B. I. Bell

+ Commonweal 54:579 S 21 '51 900w

"Mr. Kirk's scholarship is admirable; he understands his man, handles him respectfully yet intimately, and is the clearest of his interpreters, Bruce and all." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 6 '52 500w

"The book does not reveal a profound insight into political philosophy or a full awareness of the implications of the subject, but it is a useful, if not a monumental, contribution."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:387 D '51 250w

"The present gifted author finds a congenial task in presenting and analyzing a clear-cut body of political thought that lay behind this extraordinary man, perhaps the most spectacular personality that ever sat in the Congress of the United States. And never has an historian of politics done a better job of this kind. All the way along he throws light ahead, even to our day." S. F. Bemis

+ Yale R n s 41:281 winter '52 650w

KIRK, SAMUEL ALEXANDER, and JOHN. SON, G. ORVILLE. Educating the retarded child. 434p $3 Houghton

371.921 Children, Abnormal and backward 51-12353

"The authors discuss the problem of mental retardation in some detail prior to presenting various types of programs and teaching methods. Two chapters deal with historical background, while two are devoted to programs for secondary schools and adjustment on the social and vocational level of postschool life." (School & Society) The authors are respectively professor and assistant professor of special education at the University of Illinois. Annotated bibliography. Index.

"While the book is written primarily for those who are interested in the education of mentally retarded children, it contains much that would be of value to all teachers. Every teacher will encounter these children in his own groups. If the teacher is unaware of special facilities which can be developed to meet the needs of such children, their problems will be ignored and the children neglected. This book should find its way into every school library." M. E. Black

+ El School J 52:303 Ja '52 600w

"This is indeed a valuable handbook of theory and practice in all respects—organization of content, summarization of research, and pedagogical aids. An exceptional feature is the 62-page selected and indexed bibliography with descriptive annotations. The general index is very functional even if not thorough." W. W. Brickman

+ School & Society 74:425 D 29 '51 130w

KIRKLAND, EDWARD CHASE. Business in the glided age; the conservatives' balance sheet. 59p $1.50 Univ. of Wis. press

650.4 U.S.—Industries and resources 52-9334

"Three lectures delivered to undergraduates, which attempt to recreate the world of business exploitation between the Civil War and the end of the century, as seen through the eyes of a Bureaucrat (Charles Francis Adams, Jr.), a Moralist (E. L. Godwin) and 'The Mirror,' i.e., business itself (Andrew Carnegie)." Library J

"Each of the three essays contains a number of fresh insights; particularly striking is the study of Adams, which emerges at once a treatment of the disillusionment of a bureaucrat and the story of a personal tragedy. Professor Kirkland's over-arching thesis places him among the less extreme of the new interpreters." E. F. Goldman

+ Am Hist R 58:194 O '52 200w

"Witty, marked by many a bon mot, distinguished by sympathy with the conservative viewpoint, these lectures make interesting reading." C. M. Destler

+ J Pol Econ 60:455 O '52 270w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1200 J1 '52 40w

KIRKLAND, ELITHE HAMILTON. Divine average; a historical novel on that period of Texas history when cow boy was a phrase with a controversial meaning and Texans a nationality. 378p $3.50 Little 52-6787

A novel of the Texas frontier during the last two decades before the Civil War. The chief character, Range Templeton, combines ability and success with arrogance and an intense hatred of Indians and Mexicans.

Booklist 49:48 O 1 '52

"An absorbing picture of Texas in the early 1800's."

+ Kirkus 20:304 My 15 '52 190w

"Interesting, off-the-beaten-track novel." R. H. Dillon

+ Library J 77:1195 J1 '52 90w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 7 '52 460w

"Elithe Kirkland, a Texas newspaper woman, has not written a bang, bang, shoot-'em-up romance of wavy-haired cowhand hero, but a serious and powerful historical novel on the tragic side. The strong plea against inhuman treatment of people of Mexican extraction is handled delicately and subtly." Lewis Nordyke

+ N Y Times p11 J1 6 '52 330w

"It is not a historical novel in the normal sense, nor a real novel of action, but rather a study of character and an interesting documentation of the old strife between the Gringo Texans and the Mexican Texans. . . Mrs. Kirkland has still written a worth-while story of the great collision of cultures in Texas and proves herself a welcome newcomer to the American literary scene." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 3 '52 150w

"Mrs. Kirkland has plotted her tale solidly and peopled it with a lot of interesting characters taken from Texas history. With her principal characters she is somewhat less successful."

+ — Sat R 35:29 J1 26 '52 170w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 17 '52 150w

KIRKUP, JAMES. Correct compassion, and other poems. 80p $2.25 Oxford 821 [52-4462]

A collection of some sixty poems by a young English poet.

Reviewed by L. F. Duchene

+ Manchester Guardian p8 N 28 '52 150w

Reviewed by G. S. Fraser

New Statesman & Nation 44:582 N 15 '52 500w

"James Kirkup is a young British poet gifted in taste, sensibility and wit. Yet he has taken refuge so cleverly in an eighteenth-century elegance that his own personality seems as remote as that time. A formal sonnet sequence of the four seasons addressed to Elizabeth Regina may fitly seem as abstract as the institution for which it speaks, but poems concerned with 'A Picture by Claude' or 'Puffin, a White Cat' cannot escape a mincing preciosity." Selden Rodman

+ — N Y Times p38 N 30 '52 390w

"Here there is a remarkable range of subject, but not enough variety of treatment. Too many of the poems seem to be no more than exercises in the Kirkup manner, lacking in intensity or unity of impact because the subject is insufficiently felt. But if few rise above a certain level of technique and imagination, few fall below it; and it is a high one." Ralph Abercrombie

+ — Spec 189:444 O 3 '52 220w

KIRSHENBAUM, ISIDOR. Physical properties and analysis of heavy water; ed. by Harold C. Urey and George M. Murphy. 438p il $5.25 McGraw

546.1 Deuterium oxide 51-8827

"The product of a concentrated effort, carried out at the SAM laboratories at Columbia University, to compile reliable data on the physical properties of the isotopes of hydrogen. In the course of this work, previously published data were critically evaluated and additional data were derived from new experiments. The work included the development of suitable procedures for the analysis of isotopes and these procedures are fully described. Each chapter has appended to it a list of references. These lists include numerous project reports as well as journal articles." N Y New Tech Bks

"The author is to be credited with a very useful compilation of data from the chemical literature, supplemented in turn by his own experimental procedures and by considerable heretofore unpublished research of the Manhattan Project done mostly at the SAM laboratories of Columbia University. The thorough treatment, generously illustrated and skillfully edited, will be appreciated by workers concerned with the application of isotopic analysis to specific problems." E. F. Westrum

+ Am Chem Soc J 74:4222 Ag 20 '52 300w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1079 Je 15 '52 70w

"An important contribution to the literature of isotopes."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 37:4 Ja '52

"While it is of primary interest to the limited number of specialists who use hydrogen isotopes in tracer and other studies, or who evaluate such studies, this work will reward the attention of the large number of workers engaged in other tracer studies or in mass spectrometric analysis."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:216 Je '52 190w

KISH, GEORGE. Yugoslavia; il. by Raffaello Busoni. (Lands and peoples ser) 24p $1.75; bds $1.25 Holiday

949.7 Yugoslavia—Juvenile literature 52-9566

"This volume is prepared by a professor of geography. It explains briefly Yugoslavia's history and geography in terms of its structure as a federation of six 'People's Republics.' It reveals the Roman and Byzantine influences that give it a varied pattern today; and presents the modern political situation following that break with Russia. Three-color pictures of country scenes and folk activity, a map and a chronology, of important dates add to the book's value." Horn Bk

Booklist 48:344 Je 15 '52

"Another clear and concise addition to the 'Lands & Peoples' series. . . It is useful as the only material available for children about this little-known region." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:244 Ag '52 110w

"Excellent classroom material. Drawings by Raffaello Busoni in blues, browns and reds, are vigorously flavorful representations of Yugoslavia's varied characteristics."

+ Kirkus 20:259 Ap 15 '52 130w

"Useful background about an important area for the eleven-and-up group." Virginia Haviland

+ Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 90w

Wis Lib Bul 48:178 J1 '52

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Trailing trouble. 219p $2.50 Holiday

52-3944

A sequel to A Nose for Trouble (Book Review Digest 1949). This time Tom Rainse, his pinto, Pete, and his hound Smoky get themselves into and out of trouble in the Gistache river region.

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

"This is a vivid and exciting story brightened with subtle humor and warmed with the author's intense love of the outdoors." Roberta Forsyth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 26 '52 80w

"A reliable on-the-trail story, filled with suspense and the kind of detecting that should give a ranger's manual a run for its money."

+ Kirkus 20:409 J1 15 '52 70w

"Well written, with strong accent on conservation and appreciation of woods lore and wild life. Recommended for readers 12-16." A. M. Wetherell

+ Library J 77:2079 D 1 '52 50w

"There are more chases here than in an old-time movie comedy, and the wind-up approaches sheer melodrama. However, breathless readers are not likely to object to the plot, for it produces plenty of suspense. The author writes smoothly, and he knows wilderness ways and backwoods people to a T." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 4 '53 100w

KLEIN, ERNEST L. What of the night? a review of world affairs. 268p $3 Farrar, Straus

909.82 World politics. U.S.—Foreign relations 51-7466

"Author, an American of German descent, educated in Europe, publisher and journalist, has served on advisory board of WPA and FERA. He circled globe in 1946 with U.S. Reparations (Pauley) Mission. This is a mélange of personal observations, opinion and reminiscence on world conditions growing out of 1946 trip." Library J

"The work evidences earnestness on the part of Dr. Klein. He attempts at all times to be clear, calm, and dispassionate. His enthusiasm and love for phrase making overtake him at times, as in the case of Israel." Walter Trohan Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 4 '51 320w

"Worth reading, though frequently controversial."

Kirkus 19:472 Ag 15 '51 160w

"Although treatment tends to oversimplification, it is not superficial." Harold Lancour Library J 76:1560 O 1 '51 100w

KLOOMOK, ISAAC. Marc Chagall: his life and work. 119p il $6 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Chagall, Marc 51-13959

"One of his closest friends retells the story of Chagall's life and work: of his childhood days at Witebsk, Russia . . . of his first encounter with the experimental, theory-charged groups around Guillaume Apollinaire in Paris; of his escape to the United States in 1941; of the death of his wife Bella, and of his final return to France after the end of the war." Commonweal

"If I could work up more enthusiastic admiration for Chagall's painting, I would feel more competent to write a review of this book about it. It is obviously a good book. . . Here undoubtedly is a thoroughly admirable and helpful instrument by which any interested person can arrive at an intelligent understanding of Chagall. Still, for my part, I don't like either his painting or his drawing."

+ Christian Century 69:249 F 27 '52 120w

"Well-documented, lavishly illustrated book. . . It is an eloquent account of a great man's struggle for self-expression, although the book suffers from the author's frequent attempts to impose his enthusiasms upon the reader." Hans Sahl

+ Commonweal 55:477 F 15 '52 600w

"Ecstatically enthusiastic, occasionally repetitious, this is nonetheless a thoughtful, broad analysis of the artist."

+ Kirkus 19:596 O 1 '51 180w

KNAUFF, MRS ELLEN (RAPHAEL). Ellen Knauff story [introd. by Arthur Garfield Hays]. 242,18p $3.50 Norton

325.73 U.S.—Emigration and immigration 52-8208

"Ellen Knauff's own thoroughly readable account of her three year fight to gain admission to the U.S. as a war bride of an American G.I. During these three years she was detained on Ellis Island on charges which were not revealed to her, and which were finally found baseless by the Supreme Court." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by P. M. Malin
Ann Am Acad 282:142 J1 '52 550w
Booklist 48:275 My 1 '52

Reviewed by L. T. Heron
Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 My 25 '52 180w

"For the American lawyer, The Ellen Knauff Story has a significance beyond its general reader interest. The bar has a traditional responsibility to protect the individual from arbitrary governmental action. This book serves a most useful purpose by bringing under the scrutiny of the bar an enlightening case study of the use of confidential information and of its inadequacy when subjected to the test of a hearing." El. J. Ennis

+ Columbia Law R 52:815 Je '52 1050w

Foreign Affairs 30:676 J1 '52 20w

"A story which deserves a hearing, wider than it will presumably achieve in print."

+ Kirkus 20:142 F 15 '52 170w

"Recommended." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:594 Ap 1 '52 100w

Nation 174:436 My 3 '52 150w

New Repub 126:21 Ap 21 '52 270w

Reviewed by Marcus Duffield
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ap 13 '52 550w

"Mrs. Knauff's story is actually a rather loosely written case history in the first person. It is not a profound nor even a particularly moving document, although her picture of Ellis Island as a high-class concentration camp within the shadow of the Statue of Liberty is not easily forgotten. However, unless one is captivated by the detailed convolutions of the legal battle she fought the reader may find the most interesting material in the book to be the full text of the final decision in Mrs. Knauff's favor." John Oakes N Y Times p36 Mr 30 '52 650w

"The book is written as it should be—in a factual, chapter-and-verse manner."

+ New Yorker 28:143 Ap 5 '52 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p31 Ap 20 '52 270w

Reviewed by Whitney Balliett
Sat R 35:19 My 17 '52 230w

KNIGHT, ADAM, pseud. See Lariar, L.

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Death and little brother. 224p $2.50 Dutton

Detective story. 52-6643

Kirkus 20:98 F 1 '52 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 8 '52 60w

"The California-Nevada background of Lake Tahoe is admirably portrayed; but the murder plot is badly padded and confusing, the deductive solution inconclusive." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p28 Ap 27 '52 40w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 20 '52 70w

"Plus mark." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:47 My 24 '52 30w

"A smart setting, an intricate plot and likable characters make 'Death and Little Brother' fine mystery fare." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p10D Je 22 '52 50w

KNIGHT, DOUGLAS. Pope and the heroic tradition; a critical study of his Iliad. 123p $3 Yale univ. press

883 [883.1] Homer. Pope, Alexander 51-14689

An interpretation of Pope's translation of the Iliad. "By examining Pope's view of Homer, and of the tradition of heroic poetry in Milton and in Dryden's Aeneid, Dr. Knight isolates those qualities which Pope wished to embody in his translation, which is at once Homeric though not Homer, a version though also an original modern poem." (U S Quarterly Bk R) The author is assistant professor of English at Yale. Index.

KNIGHT, DOUGLAS—Continued

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 6 '52
100w

"[The author's] reasoning is so close-packed and allusive that the book makes difficult, though rewarding, reading." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R 35:20 My 3 '52 160w

"Intelligent and sympathetic appraisal. . . The study is at its best in close analysis of language, imagery, metric, and characterization, and in relating these local aspects of the poem to the total structure of the Iliad as Pope understood it."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:27 Mr '52 200w

KNIGHT, EDGAR WALLACE. Fifty years of American education; a historical review and critical appraisal. 484p $4.75 Ronald

370.973 Education—U.S. 52-6198

"This book was prepared in order to tell the story of the growth of education in the United States during the first half of the twentieth century, a growth that was then more conspicuous than in any other period of the nation's history." (Pref) The author is professor of educational history at the University of North Carolina. Index.

Booklist 48:312 Je 1 '52

School & Society 75:286 My 3 '52 20w

"Everyone who desires a better understanding of the current American educational scene, and especially state officials, members of boards of education, trustees of colleges and universities, and others who have a direct responsibility for the control and support of education, will do well to know this book. For members of the teaching profession and those looking towards careers in education, it is well-nigh indispensable."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:27 S '52 170w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Death goes to a reunion. 192p $2.50 Doubleday

Detective story. 52-5961

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

Kirkus 20:169 Mr 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 My 4 '52 160w

"Completely readable and conventional." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p20 My 4 '52 120w

"An intricate and wildly improbable story, but told with Miss Knight's customary urbanity."

+ — New Yorker 28:144 My 10 '52 100w

"Elisha Macomber does well to limit the murder score. It's one of his best cases, and one of Mrs. Knight's most satisfactory books." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 My 4 '52 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:47 My 24 '52 20w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Valse macabre. 188p $2.50 Doubleday

Detective story. 52-11008

"Frail and strained plot puts this below average of Elisha Macomber's usually enjoyable exploits." Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 19 '52 60w

Kirkus 20:522 Ag 15 '52 60w

"Homey, folksy Penberthy Island is one of the last places you'd expect a show business murder to turn up; but in Valse Macabre we find a nightclub troupe rehearsing on Penberthy to the accompaniment of a strange Viennese mechanical organ. This about exhausts the novelty of the story; the rest is conventionably foreseeable." Anthony Boucher
N Y Times p27 N 2 '52 40w

"Plot follows established patterns, book is pleasantly characterized, readable. No shouts, no groans. B minus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 2 '52 70w

"Standard." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:47 O 25 '52 20w

KNIGHT, RUTH ADAMS (YINGLING) (MRS DICKSON JAY HARTWELL). Day after tomorrow. 219p $2.50 Doubleday

52-10127

"When he comes to New York where his father has a new job, Tom Briggs misses the friendliness of his little midwestern smalltown high school circle. . . Tom drifts into companionship with boys on his block, even though he has little admiration for them. They introduce him to a community club which is actually a front for the Young Communist League. Before Tom realizes it, he is deeply involved in such non-sports activities as distributing Communist literature, putting up posters, and fomenting trouble with police at meetings and rallies. Only after his own father becomes the victim of Communist tactics in his shop does Tom wake up." N Y Times

"Successful handling of immediate issues rarely approached in young people's books by an author who proved in her earlier It Might Be You that she feels youth is the period when such problems must be faced. Definitive and dramatic."

+ Kirkus 20:414 J1 15 '52 320w

"Recommended for grades 9-12." R. H. Urban

+ Library J 77:2189 D 15 '52 70w

"Plot unconvincing, characters unreal except for parents; purpose obvious. Not recommended." Siri Andrews

— Library J 77:2189 D 15 '52 70w

"It is a powerful, pitiful, exciting story, with a lonely boy new to the big city lured into a club whose real work and intentions dawn on him very slowly. . . Boys of high school age are searching for realism, and for explanation of the world today. Many who are not ready for longer adult books will welcome this as they have stories of 'hot rod' boys, teen-age dope users, and early marriage. It rates far above the average in boys' fiction." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p34 N 16 '52 270w

"In this book, as with most junior novels which are freighted with a social message, there is a tendency to stress lessons at the expense of characterization. Moreover, a hasty reader might draw the conclusion that all activity of liberal groups and all labor complaints are Communist-inspired. To balance those criticisms the book does present a readable explanation of Communist infiltration into youth groups and may serve as a warning to young readers to keep their wits and their independence about them." M. C. S.

+ — N Y Times pt2, p10 N 16 '52 170w

KNIGHT, RUTH ADAMS (YINGLING) (MRS DICKSON JAY HARTWELL). Halfway to heaven; the story of the St Bernard; ii. by Wesley Dennis. (Whittlesey House publication) 184p $2.75 McGraw

52-10848

The story of Canon Joseph who trained the first Barry, the famous St Bernard dog of the Hospice of St Bernard. For older boys and girls.

Booklist 49:127 D 1 '52

Horn Bk 28:417 D '52 120w

"The human side of heroism and sacrifice add their share to the splendid story of the vital years of the Hospice. Recommended for everyone."

+ Kirkus 20:462 Ag 1 '52 210w

"Recommended for ages 12-16." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 77:2187 D 15 '52 70w

"From its fine map endpapers on to the many able sketches, but chiefly in the vivid words, we see, feel and share life in the high Alps, the fearful cold, the dangers, the beauty. It is a book to own and to reread." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 30 '52 330w

"It is a serious, rather somber tale based, of course, upon historical research. It has value as a record. It has, too, a certain appeal. The drama of the Pass in winter, Joseph's passionate love for the dogs, his struggle to keep heart and mind and body strong for the work that he has chosen wakes and holds our interest and sympathy."

+ Sat R 35:60 N 15 '52 180w

KNIPSCHER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Iron virgin. 200p $2.50 Little 51-14224

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:502 S 1 '51 70w

"The calculated bounce of the whole thing is approximately as compelling as the calculated raciness of the prose." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 6 '52 150w

"A novice will spot the murderer far too soon, but even a veteran will admire the fine grisly new method of corpse-disposal." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p12 D 16 '51 100w

"Lots of color and life in these Fox items; this one's especially good, and contains a new and truly awesome way to dispose of dead bodies." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 16 '51 80w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff

Sat R of Lit 34:45 N 24 '51 30w

KNIPSCHER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Scarlet slippers. 214p $2.75 Little 52-5522

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:169 Mr 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 1 '52 30w

"The suspense and enjoyment are plentifully present in the novel itself, as one expects of Mr. Fox. . . John Marshall is as likable a detective as ever, and the telling is so lively and readable that one can forgive the tissue-thin basic coincidences." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p25 My 11 '52 400w

"More cluttered and less original than some other Fox items, this is still lively and readable. B minus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 11 '52 50w

"Pass mark—he's done better." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:31 Je 28 '52 20w

KNIPSCHER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Shroud for Mr Bundy. 218p $2.75 Little 52-9068

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:575 S 1 '52 80w

"Plotted smoothly and told by John somewhat less self-consciously than usual so that the consequence is tolerable and even amusing." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 O 26 '52 70w

"A pleasant book." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p33 O 26 '52 60w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 2 '52 60w

"Swell start, but plot rides off in all directions before hitting lively climax." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:47 O 25 '52 20w

KNOX, FRANK MARTIN. Design and control of business forms. 219p il $6.50 McGraw

651 Business records

51-12570

"First in a series of books promoted by the National Office Management Association to make available a formally organized body of knowledge as a step in establishing office management, on a professional basis. . . A treatment of business forms as an essential tool of management, covering the formal aspects of choice of materials, drafting and purchasing as well as the organizational control and tests of ultimate utility. Thoroughly and functionally illustrated by forms and equipment." (Library J) Index.

"A valuable work." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 77:896 My 15 '52 50w

"A 'must' for the executive and for the operating staff carrying out management's policies and procedures." E. B. Gage

+ Management R 41:707 O '52 500w

KNOX, JOE. Little Benders. 255p $3 Lippincott
52-9533

A series of stories of the life in a small isolated valley in the North Carolina mountains.

Booklist 49:32 S 15 '52

Reviewed by Marge Lyon

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 7 '52 370w

"These stories have a natural humor and an unreconstructed charm."

+ Kirkus 20:360 Je 15 '52 150w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:1405 S 1 '52 40w

"Through Jonathan's eyes, Mr. Knox gives us a light-hearted study of mountain life, and of the remarkable sophistication of its members. . . Mr. Knox, writing from Catawba County in North Carolina, understands Scots humor well and uses it skillfully to season his tales." Sylvia Stallings

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 31 '52 360w

"'Little Benders' may never reach a position of eminence on the best seller lists; but ten to one it'll provide a greater abundance of pleasant reading than many a book which has." Henry Cavendish

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 24 '52 440w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p16C S 14 '52 70w

KOCH, HAL. Grundtvig; tr. from the Danish with introd. and notes by Llewellyn Jones. 231p $3.50 Antioch press

B or 92 Grundtvig, Nikolai Frederik Severin, bp. 52-8928

Biography of the founder of the Danish Folk School, who is regarded in Denmark as the father of modern Denmark. Index.

Reviewed by Waldemar Westergaard

Ann Am Acad 282:181 Jl '52 650w

"Prof. Koch's book should help Grundtvig's fame. The book is not strictly a biography; it is a study. It is not an exposition of Grundtvig's mature views; it is a step by step scrutiny of their development." L. T. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Jl 27 '52 160w

"This book deserves to be read by Christians of all denominations, especially by those who are concerned about an ecumenical theology."

KOCH, HAL—Continued

Educators, sociologists, historians and political philosophers will find it permeated with creative ideas. The translator is to be congratulated for a job well done. In his own introduction he clearly shows the value of Grundtvig for us who live and work in America." E. D. Nielsen

+ Christian Century 69:670 Je 4 '52 850w

Reviewed by E. W. Harris
Churchman 166:17 My 1 '52 120w

"Professor Koch, who has given us this short biography, is a professor of church history and his emphasis is rather heavily on the religious aspect of Grundtvig's career. This may be useful for Danish readers who take so much of the great nationalist for granted, but it is rather a pity in a book for an American audience." Henry Commager

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 S 7 '52 1300w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey
N Y Times p35 O 5 '52 350w

School & Society 75:221 Ap 5 '52 20w

Reviewed by J. F. Rooney
Springfield Republican p8D My 11 '52 180w

KOCH, VIVIENNE. W. B. Yeats: the tragic phase; a study of the last poems. 151p $2.25 Johns Hopkins press

821 Yeats, William Butler [52-592]

"Miss Koch limits her attention to thirteen poems of Yeats' final period, seven of which, The Three Bushes and several songs by the Lady and the Chambermaid, form a cohesive group. About these poems Miss Koch has gathered all relevant material to be found in Yeats' unpublished prose and letters so that difficult or obscure passages may be clarified in terms of Yeats' life and vision, and not in relation to anything extraneous." New Repub

Manchester Guardian p4 J1 3 '51 150w
Nation 175:454 N 15 '52 130w

"In her book, but one half the size of that by Professor T. R. Henn of Cambridge University [Lonely Tower, Book Review Digest 1952], Miss Vivienne Koch of New York University manages to say twice as much, and to say it better. By limiting herself in theme and material, Miss Koch illuminates both in the light of a workable theory." Kimon Friar
+ New Repub 126:17 Ap 28 '52 700w

Reviewed by M. C. Bradebrook
New Statesman & Nation 41:658 Je 9 '51 550w

"The exegesis is generally shrewd, especially with regard to the series of lyrics that begins with 'The Three Bushes', but the author tends to give too much space to polemics. Often the pretentious tone of her writing weakens its persuasiveness." Babette Deutsch

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 24 '52 200w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 7 '52 120w

"Miss Koch comes to her specific task with a determination which induces confidence. She confines herself to the last book, published after the death of the poet and, from the 57 poems in it, selects 13 for examination. The method of approach which she suggests in her preface can be welcomed for its plainness." + Times [London] Lit Sup p339 Je 1 '51 340w

KOESTLER, ARTHUR. Arrow in the blue. 353p il $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-3443

This first volume of Koestler's autobiography takes him from his birth in Budapest in 1905 to his alliance with the Communist party in 1931.

"A remarkably successful synthesis of self-examination, political analysis, and lively chronicling." Charles Rolo

+ Atlantic 190:90 O '52 600w

Booklist 49:47 O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:32 N '52 30w

Reviewed by Frank Dell'Isola
Cath World 176:154 N '52 300w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 21 '52 340w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 25 '52 750w

"Written with much acute observation and a detached humor that is often engaging, and also (one must admit) unexpected. But though the narrative ranges far, most readers will construe it in terms of its bearing on a single topic. How did this prosperous and brilliant young journalist get entangled with Communism; and how did he then get disenchanted? Koestler offers some general remarks of very unequal value, and some illuminating disclosures about himself." Geoffrey Ashe

+ Commonweal 56:609 S 26 '52 1150w

"It will attract a thoughtful audience."
+ Kirkus 20:440 J1 15 '52 280w

Reviewed by J. H. Berthel
Library J 77:1301 Ag '52 300w

"His fertility of ideas is inexhaustible and his ability to make satisfying patterns in which he weaves himself into the yarn of society is so great that the reader is almost persuaded that Koestler symbolises something greater than himself. Yet this very fertility has the defects of its merits. It is the fertility of a brilliant journalist who can write a middle on any subject at the drop of a hat." Noel Annan

+ Manchester Guardian p4 N 25 '52 750w
Nation 175:364 O 13 '52 100w

"The value of this book, in itself and in relation to the author's fiction, is Koestler the unknown. . . . There is an infinite melancholy that plays over these precisely written pages." George Mayberry

New Repub 127:26 S 22 '52 500w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 44:550 N 8 '52 1800w

"In the presentation of both his outer and inner experiences, Mr. Koestler is at his best, and altogether captivating, when he is not treating his life as a 'cause,' as something to be pled, willy-nilly, and justified. He is deft, humorous and entertaining in the portrayal of his family—his parents strongly resembled the Micawbers." Marvin Lowenthal

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 21 '52 1000w

"There are many things to admire in this readable and often irritating autobiography: Mr. Koestler is penetrating, acute, humorous, fearless, adventurous and often amusing. What he lacks is simply the element of love and this makes his own personality seem a blank in the story of his life." Stephen Spender

+ N Y Times p4 S 21 '52 1500w

"This is not the autobiography of the writer who produced the magnificent political novel 'Darkness at Noon'. It is a pity, because one would give a great deal to know what fed that powerful imagination. The lesser figure Mr. Koestler chooses to offer as himself is not only a lightweight but something of a bore." Anthony West

— New Yorker 28:125 N 1 '52 700w

Reviewed by Maxwell Geismar
Sat R 35:10 S 27 '52 1000w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 189:606 N 7 '52 650w

"As a memoir, it is something of a disappointment. Koestler has not quite chewed his experience into the cud of wisdom, but has rather bolted it with philosophical reasoning, and washed it down with wit. Nevertheless, as a firsthand report from inside the holocaust, it is brilliant journalism."

+ Time 60:110 S 22 '52 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p706 O 31 '52 1000w

KOESTLER, ARTHUR. Darkness at noon; a play. See Kingsley, S.

KOFFLER, CAMILLA (YLLA, pseud). Cats; design by Bob Cato [foreword by A. D. Hippisley Coxel]. 71p $3.95 Harper
636.8 Cats—Pictures, illustrations, etc.

52-7303

Photographs of cats of many kinds in action and in quiet mood.

Booklist 49:100 N 15 '52

"These are fine character studies, showing the personality of each subject, never oversentimentalized, never prettified-up."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 14 '52
40w

"Highly recommended."

+ Wis Lib Bul 48:212 S '52

KOHL, WALTER HEINRICH. Materials technology for electron tubes. 493p il $10 Reinhold

621.384 Vacuum tubes 51-14262

"A systematic survey of the physical properties of the wide range of materials used in electron tubes. Considerable information is included on the manipulation and fabrication of these materials, but the book is not a treatise on manufacturing techniques. The treatment is technical, and the work is intended for scientists doing research in connection with the design and manufacture of electron tubes as well as for physicists interested in tube phenomena." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"The text is well documented with literature references and is supplemented by many tables of chemical, physical and mechanical data."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:86 N '51

"The tube engineer and the research worker in experimental physics and chemistry will find here a quite comprehensive store of factual information. An extensive bibliography is appended to each chapter."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:100 Mr '52 180w

KOHLER, JULILLY HOUSE. Boy who stole the elephant; il. by Lee Ames. 89p $2.50 Knopf

Elephants—Legends and stories 52-8162

"With the kindest of motives, 12-year-old Gyp steals the royal elephant Queenie from Mr. Catfish Williams, the villainous owner of a small one-ring circus. Against incredible odds, Gyp guides Queenie down the dusty roads of Kentucky to safety." (N Y Times) Based on a true incident which happened in Kentucky, fifty years ago. For ages 8 to 12.

Booklist 49:145 D 15 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 9 '52
140w

Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 20w

"Nicely done in a smooth text and appealing drawings by Lee J. Ames."

+ Kirkus 20:552 S 1 '52 100w

"Girls as well as boys 9 and 10 will find it an absorbing story." Averil Randall

+ Library J 77:1666 O 1 '52 80w

"Mrs. Kohler has us convinced of Gyp's friendship with the huge creature, and concerned for his fate. Boys of about ten to twelve will enjoy this even more than her very good first book, 'Daniel in the Boy Scout Den.' The many pictures are good, with eight in skillfully handled full color, and an elegant circus end-paper." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 12 '52
110w

"The fact that all this takes place at the turn of the century enables Mrs. Kohler to pull out the stops in a satisfying manner. No authorities inhibit Mr. Catfish's meanness and when Gyp is arrested nobody calls in the Children's Aid. He gets thrown into jail and fed on bread and water. This accentuates the motif of affection between boy and elephant and highlights the happy ending." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p32 O 26 '52 110w

"Boys—and girls—who read this admirable story will envy its hero, Gyp. He had a hard time, we admit, but his was the privilege of being 'elephant boy' to one of the nicest and most amusing elephants in fiction."

+ Sat R 35:53 N 15 '52 70w

Wis Lib Bul 48:219 S '52

KOHLER, JULILLY HOUSE. Harmony ahead; il. by Peter Burchard. 188p $2.50 Aladdin

52-12503

Based on the records of the journey of Robert Owen and his Boatload of Knowledge down the Ohio River to New Harmony, Indiana, in 1825. The hero of this story for ages 11 to 14 is fifteen-year-old Allan Ward, a spoiled unfriendly boy, who is helped by his experiences.

"Based on thoro research, this story for teen-agers is extremely well written and shows a fine feeling for the period." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 28 '52
190w

"A warm and mature story that reveals Owen's philosophies."

+ Kirkus 20:557 S 1 '52 130w

"Although occasionally slow moving because of the interpolation of discussions of the new philosophy of education, the book has value because of this material and for its picture of the period. . . Recommended." L. E. Cathon

+ Library J 77:1669 O 1 '52 80w

"The more serious readers of junior high age will find this a thoughtful sort of adventure story, with a background that is illuminating beyond that of the usual historical tale." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 N 23 '52
160w

Wis Lib Bul 48:220 S '52

KOLEHMAINEN, JOHN ILMARI, and HILL, GEORGE WILLIAM. Haven in the woods; the story of the Finns in Wisconsin. 177p $2.50 State hist. soc. of Wis.

325.2471 Finns in Wisconsin 51-62175

"A documented, living account of the advent of the Finns to [Wisconsin], their amalgamation with our people and even with other nationalities, and their successes in farming, mining, and lumbering. Further, it treats of their contributions to religious groups, temperance societies, and farmers' co-ops. The value of the book is enhanced by the inclusion of a working bibliography, tables of emigration by dates and localities, and a summary of Finnish institutional activity in Wisconsin." Wis Lib Bul

"Well-written and readable presentation by a historian and a rural sociologist." Eugene Van Cleef

+ Geog R 42:325 Ap '52 550w

"Appendixes provide statistical data that both laymen and scholars will find useful. Included are tables showing emigration from Finland, 1893-1945, charts giving emigration figures according to provinces of origin, tabulations of foreign-born Finns in Wisconsin by counties and cities, and figures summarizing institutional activities."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:78 Mr '52 170w

"Very readable and worth while."

+ Wis Lib Bul 47:247 N '51

KOLLER, LEWIS RICHARD. Ultraviolet radiation. 270p il $6.50 Wiley

535.6 Ultra-violet rays 52-8070

"A general survey in which is incorporated a wide range of scientific and technical data. It is addressed primarily to persons who have some familiarity with technical terminology, such as physicists, chemists, engineers, biologists and some laymen. . . Selected short lists of literature references are included. The author is a member of the staff of the General Electric Research Laboratory." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

KOLLER, L. R.—Continued

"The book is not intended to be all-inclusive but will serve as a valuable guide to those who are concerned with some phase of experimental work involving this spectral range."
F. C. Nachod

+ Chem Eng 59:350 N '52 70w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1516 S 15 '52 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:63 J1 '52

KOLODIN, IRVING, ed. See Saturday review home book of recorded music and sound reproduction

KOMROFF, MANUEL. Jade Star. 294p $3
Sloane

51-14944

Story of a Chinese girl, daughter of an obscure scholar, whose beauty and ambition brought her to the court of the Kublai Khan. Established as a favorite of her master's, she excites the jealousy of the empress, overreaches herself, and falls.

Booklist 48:171 Ja 15 '52

Bookmark 11:108 F '52 30w

"The story is not remarkable in terms of originality or complexity of plot, and neither, it must be added, are the characters particularly memorable. What distinction the novel possesses is a distinction of atmosphere. The bizarre mixture of barbaric Mongolian and refined Chinese culture that prevails at the Khan's court is beautifully and poetically rendered. It is in its resemblance to a colorful and exotic fairy tale that the book makes its appeal." A. L. Bader

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ja 20 '52 280w

"This story, two dimensional in its emotional values, is memorable for the skillful recreation of old Cathay, its strange mixture of a rich culture and ancient superstitions."
+ Kirkus 19:587 O 1 '51 250w

"The story of the rise and fall of Jade Star in all its major outlines is an over-familiar one. But it is adorned by Mr. Komroff with many of the knickknacks and baubles of history." F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 30 '51 400w

Reviewed by Richard Match

N Y Times p5 D 30 '51 650w

New Yorker 27:65 D 29 '51 60w

"It is a harmless conceit, with more plot than history in it, more tinsel than trappings."
N. L. Rothman

Sat R 35:31 Ja 26 '52 230w

KOMROFF, MANUEL. Marco Polo; il. by Edgard Cirlin. 171p $2.75 Messner

B or 92 Polo, Marco—Juvenile literature

52-12731

"Manuel Komroff gives in 160 pages of adventurous reading a condensation of the material of his adult book on the same hero. It is handsomely illustrated by Edgard Cirlin, and should appeal to junior high age." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 49:110 N 15 '52

"A biography that chooses wisely and colorfully from Polo's own accounts and when imagination needs suffice, makes firm connecting links."

+ Kirkus 20:508 Ag 15 '52 130w

"Highly recommended." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 77:2014 N 15 '52 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p11 N 16 '52 30w

"Though all of this is not so extraordinary as it once seemed, it still makes a good story."
N. K. B.

+ N Y Times pt2, p22 N 16 '52 160w

KORNBLUTH, CYRIL M. Takeoff. 218p $2.75
Doubleday

52-7206

Science-fiction novel.

Reviewed by Mark Reinsberg

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 S 7 '52 130w

Kirkus 20:269 Ap 15 '52 80w

"Magazine readers and anthologists have long known Kornbluth for his fine blending of fictional quality with accuracy of detail; his first hard-cover novel should establish him firmly among the topflight contemporaries in the field." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 15 '52 150w

"An impressively successful integration of thoughtful science fiction with an expertly constructed espionage melodrama is the achievement of this first novel." J. F. McComas

+ N Y Times p15 Ag 10 '52 250w

"A good novel in any league and, if anyone dared film it, would make one honey of a movie." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 J1 6 '52 180w

"Upper level thriller, negligible scientific content." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R 35:34 Ag 2 '52 20w

KORNBLUTH, CYRIL M. and MERRIL, JUDITH. See Judd, C., pseud.

KORNER, EMIL. Law of freedom as the remedy for war and poverty; with an introd. by Alfred Amonn; tr. from the German by H. Leigh Farnell. 2v 562;663p $9.50 British bk. centre

338.9 Economic policy. Liberty [51-6579]

"Expounding the doctrine of laissez-faire and calling for the protection of individual freedom, Dr. Korner decries state planning and the abolition of free economics. He attacks and refutes Marxist theory and Communist propaganda, stating that 'in common interest lies self-interest.' Volume I is an analysis of politics, ethics and psychology as the foundations of political economy; Volume II discusses specific problems of economic theory and political practice. The work as a whole is a theory of the philosophical and economic foundations of the world state as the only means of wiping out the threat of war and the abuses of poverty." (Special Libraries) Index of names.

Reviewed by Theo Surányi-Unger

Am Econ R 42:912 D '52 1050w

Am Pol Sci R 46:603 Je '52 40w

"Scholarly and closely-reasoned work."
Bruce Knight

+ Ann Am Acad 281:204 My '52 450w

"Limited appeal; recommended only for libraries with special collections on political economy." H. H. Bernt

Library J 77:49 Ja 1 '52 140w

Special Libraries 43:150 Ap '52 100w

KORNITZER, BELA. American fathers and sons. 316p $5 Hermitage

920 U.S.—Biography

52-9118

"In a series of essays on American fathers and sons, the author attempts to express the significance of the American way of life through the democratic make-up of the family, and the influence of fathers on their sons. Among the father-son combinations are such famous names as Truman, Roosevelt, Barkley, Baruch, Rayburn, Zukor, Vinson, Sarnoff, de Mille, Taft, Einstein. In some instances the father is the more famous, in others the son." Library J

Booklist 48:280 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:182 My '52 30w

"When a thesis is stretched to cover two continents, holes appear. The fathers of Einstein, Zukor, Baruch, and Sarnoff were European, not American. Also, any family regimen that could produce a freedom-lover like Mr. Kornitzer rather vitiates the argument. And then on our side we had Clarence Day's father, who could have given the Emperor Franz Josef leads in authoritarianism. However, Mr. Kornitzer has a point as well as an entertaining book." T. M. Longstreth

Christian Science Monitor p10 My 22 '52 500w

"Interpretation of material is inadequate. Yet for families interested in knowing more about prominent men and the family in America this will be an interesting and informative excursion. It is far from being a thorough social investigation."

Kirkus 20:174 Mr 1 '52 200w

"Author gained his information through personal interviews, question and answer method. Not too important." L. R. Etzkorn

Library J 77:589 Ap 1 '52 80w

KORNITZER, MARGARET. Child adoption in the modern world. 403p $4.50 Philosophical lib.

362.73 Adoption [52-2927]

"Intended to give prospective adopters some idea of the task to be undertaken and guidance toward its happy fulfilment and to serve as a concise handbook on the subject and as a survey of the status of adoption in present-day society. An appendix of statistical tables, a list of registered adoption societies throughout the world, a lengthy bibliography, and a thorough index complete the volume." (School & Society) The book originated in Great Britain.

"Here is a needed contribution in the field of child welfare. It will be highly valuable for the professionals and students; of less interest to the general reader." L. M. Brooks
+ Ann Am Acad 284:200 N '52 350w

Booklist 49:26 S 15 '52

"Except for her unaccountable omission of the text of the 1950 Act [English], she has packed in everything of relevance—without the slightest appearance of overcrowding or the smallest lapse into the fast-growing jargon of social science. Her book reflects an interesting personality; and what is of paramount importance in view of its purpose, its factual and legal references are careful and accurate."

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:84 Jl 19 '52 280w

"Miss Kornitzer's survey is written in a crisp and intelligent manner; it should be useful for parents as an aid in their thinking and to social workers as a handy guide and dependable source of information. It should be noted, however, that the book deals more thoroughly with English laws and agencies than with their American counterparts." S. R. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 N 9 '52 140w

School & Society 76:79 Ag 2 '52 70w

"This book, the most comprehensive so far on the subject in Britain, will at least make available in an easy form the current facts and opinions." Gwendolen Freeman

+ Spec 188:756 Je 6 '52 700w

"The book is full of valuable information. There are statistical tables, a good index, chapters on the legal position in different countries as well as in Great Britain, a note on the loopholes in the law where it fails to protect the child, and a chapter on the history of adoption. It is well and attractively written, with humour and without sentimentality. Sound knowledge and an objective point of view are bound to be valuable to intending adopters and to all who want information on the present state of the law."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p408 Je 20 '52 380w

KORTUM, GUSTAV FERDINAND ALBERT, and BOCKRIS, J. O'MARA. Textbook of electrochemistry. 2v v 1 $7; v2 $10 Elsevier

541.37 Electrochemistry A52-9231

"A treatment of the fundamentals of electrochemistry that will be of interest to graduate scientists engaged in either basic or industrial research. It is introductory in the sense that it starts with an historical survey and definitions of basic concepts, but current thermodynamic concepts are introduced in the second chapter and a mature level is maintained from that point onward. However, very difficult calculations, such as the application of the interionic attraction theory to conductance problems, are not included. The work is based upon the authors' Lehrbuch der Elektrochemie, of which the second German edition was published in 1949." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book should serve as an excellent text for students of theoretical electrochemistry, due to its clear comprehensive coverage of the topics discussed." H. B. Linford

+ Chem & Eng N 29:5286 D 10 '51 270w

Reviewed by Paul Fugassi

Chem & Eng N 30:4193 O 6 '52 140w

"The book should prove useful as a general reference text on electrochemistry." H. C. Miller

+ Chem Eng 58:337 D '51 280w

Reviewed by H. C. Miller

Chem Eng 59:340 Ag '52 280w (Review of v 2)

N Y New Tech Bks 36:86 N '51

KOTEN, BERNARD. Low-calory cookbook; non-fattening recipes for people who love good food; with a foreword by Donald B. Armstrong. 253p $2.95 Random house

641.56 Cookery. Diet 52-5140

The author is neither a doctor nor a professional cook. But he has been able to bring down his own weight from 240 pounds to 180 or 190. In this book he describes foods and meals which provide good meals without adding too many calories. Index.

Booklist 48:192 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:179 My '52 20w

"A sound book for the housewife who takes the problem of calories seriously."

+ Kirkus 19:698 D 1 '51 130w

"The author of 'The Low-Calory Cookbook' disclaims being a professional cook, but you need read only a few pages to realize that he must be a magician. Anybody who can take the average reducing diet and make it look better than a regular fattening diet has got something." F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p20 Ap 13 '52 130w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 28 '52 100w

KRAELING, CARL HERMANN. John the Baptist. 218p $2.50 Scribner

225.92 John, Saint, the Baptist 51-13626

"In these pages Dr. Kraeling presents the essential facts about John the Baptist's life, work and thought so far as they are known, and the impact made upon his contemporaries and later generations. They explain what the Baptist proclaimed and the purpose behind his exhortations. There are full discussions of baptism and its significance as a religious rite, the relations between John the Baptist and Jesus, and how the movement which the Baptist instituted was perpetuated." Publisher's note

"This reviewer laid down the book with a sense of admiration of the scholarly balance and richness of the lectures and with a feeling of satisfaction that there now exists in the English language a discussion of the problems involved that merits the term 'adequate.' The notes, which are gathered in the back of the volume, are especially valuable for those who wish to pursue further investigation." E. W. Parsons

+ Crozer Q 29:193 Ap '52 1350w

"The work as a whole is written with notable clarity. It restores our confidence that

KRAELING, C. H.—Continued
Synoptic study rightly conducted can yield historical results worthy of confidence." A. N. Wilder

+ J Religion 32:284 O '52 650w

"A definite contribution to the study of New Testament times."

+ Kirkus 19:565 S 15 '51 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 F 10 '52 100w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:41 Mr '52 270w

KRAMM, JOSEPH. The shrike. 198p il $2.50
Random house

812

52-7497

Drama about an over-possessive wife. The scene is the psychiatric ward of a city hospital, where the husband is placed after attempting to commit suicide. The action is concerned with the wife's battle to get her husband free, to be more than ever in her custody.

Booklist 48:293 My 15 '52

Kirkus 20:175 Mr 1 '52 40w

"Recommended for all drama collections."
George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1078 Je 15 '52 10w

"The play awakes pity and horror. Mr. Kramm appears to possess a talent of great promise." W. P. Eaton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 11 '52 160w

Reviewed by William Hogan

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 22 '52 40w

"The awarding of the Pulitzer Prize to Mr. Kramm for his first produced play may be disputed by those who expect more literary quality in a prize-winner, but 'The Shrike,' which in its finest moments is a stripping bare of our society's norms, certainly fits the current phrasing of the Pulitzer requirement, 'an original American play which shall represent the educational value and power of the stage, preferably dealing with American life.'" H. H.

+ Sat R 35:28 My 17 '52 230w

"All one need do is to read The Shrike to discover how thin and hastily written some of the scenes are. It often reads as though it were a rough first draft; too much seems to have been left to the interpretation of the actors and the director. Mr. Kramm was fortunate in finding actors like Mr. Ferrer and Judith Evelyn to make so much from so little." Richard McLaughlin

— Theatre Arts 36:4 J1 '52 190w

KRAUS, EDWARD HENRY, and others. Mineralogy; an introduction to the study of minerals and crystals. 4th ed 664p il $7.50
McGraw

549 Mineralogy. Crystallography 51-6517

"This well known and widely used introductory book has been somewhat revised and brought up to date through expansion in three of its 18 chapters, additional illustrations, extended bibliographic references, and some modernization in the tables. Although a textbook, the volume should have wide appeal with rock and gem fanciers. Clearly written, with a judicious mixture of theoretical and descriptive material." (Booklist) For third edition see Book Review Digest 1937.

Booklist 48:68 O 15 '51

"The popularity that has been so deservedly enjoyed by this book since its first edition in 1920 will certainly continue for this, the fourth edition. It is a textbook well suited to the needs of both teacher and student." J. J. Fahey

+ Chem & Eng N 30:560 F 11 '52 230w

"Present edition includes important new material on crystal structure, chemical composition, and on determination. A fair number of the 735 illustrations are new." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:1938 N 15 '51 80w

KRAUSS, RUTH (MRS DAVID JOHNSON LEISK). Hole is to dig; a first book of first definitions; pictures by Maurice Sendak. [48p] $1.50; lib ed $1.75 Harper

52-7731

Humorous, unexpected definitions of things and actions which have a place in the child's world. Samples: A hole is to plant a flower; A hole is to sit in; A mountain is to climb to the top; Dishes are to do; A nose is to blow; Steps are to sit on.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran

Atlantic 190:100 D '52 140w

Booklist 49:52 O 1 '52

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 176:204 D '52 30w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 D 21 '52 60w

"Entirely original in approach and content is this 'first book of first definitions' in which Miss Krauss, with the help of children themselves, gives us such gems as 'a seashell is to hear the sea'; 'cats are so you can have kittens.' The illustrations are perfect whether they are making it clear that, of course, 'buttons are to keep people warm'; or picturing the small boy who feels he has thought of an excruciatingly funny definition: 'A tablespoon is to eat a table with.' Like Ape in a Cape this can start children off on a fascinating game." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:315 O '52 60w

Kirkus 20:401 J1 15 '52 220w

"It seems young for school libraries." Phyllis Fenner

Library J 77:1818 O 15 '52 40w

"The tiny book with its hundreds of funny, tiny children, has immediate appeal to the eye. Perhaps its best listening audience is those a few years older who will be able to say what they would give as definitions." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p5 N 16 '52 180w

"A revelation to grown-ups as to children's impressions, this could also be the basis of a wonderful game of questions and answers which would set children thinking. Maurice Sendak has illustrated it with drawings bouncing with action and good humor." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p31 S 7 '52 160w

"This 'first book of first definitions' is a child's book, but it is also that rare and wonderful one that is genuinely original and imaginative."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 16 '52 140w

"It is what the children call 'a little book,' well-designed and bound. Little boys and girls will almost certainly love it."

+ Sat R 35:47 N 15 '52 50w

KROFSKY, JEAN. Gardener's cookbook; with eleven il. by Fritz Kredel; sponsored by Eastern states farmers' exchange. 150p $2.50
Crowell

641.5 Cookery (vegetables)

52-7037

"Tells how to prepare tasty vegetables from the home garden economically. Pest control chart, index." (Bookmark) Index.

Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 10w

"Besides many unusual and appealing recipes, the author has provided a plan for a model garden and chart to help control pests. It is a complete piece of work." Charlotte Turgeon

+ N Y Times p10 Je 29 '52 30w

"Sponsored by the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange, this volume, exclusively on the preparation of vegetables, will be the answer to many a housewife's prayer with its suggestions for unusual ways to present vegetables to her family."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 1 '52 30w

KROGDAHL, WASLEY SVEN. Astronomical universe; an introductory text in college astronomy. 599p il $6.25 Macmillan

523 Astronomy 52-8723

"The range of information in this work is unexpectedly large for an introductory text. Furthermore, many of the subjects are discussed at some length. The author has included many topics that not only illustrate the diversity of astronomy but also serve to kindle the reader's interest. Typical inclusions of this nature are the discussions of peculiar stars and of comets. Though organized and presented as a college text, the book is equally suitable for general readers who have more than a superficial interest in the subject. There are 275 illustrations." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:277 My 1 '52

N Y New Tech Bks 37:34 My '52

KROLL, ERNEST. Cape Horn, and other poems. 85p $2.75 Dutton

811 52-5289

"A first volume of poems. . . Whether Mr. Kroll is writing a mocking sketch of a Sunday driver or a meditation on the ambiguous rewards of public office, his work bears the impress of a deeply reflective wit." N Y Times

Bookmark 11:232 Jl '52 30w

"His verse, usually that of plain statement, is neat, lucid, and graceful. He has a happy gift as a writer of satiric light verse. But he can also write a beautiful and moving poem on death, like 'At the Adams Memorial.'" R. L. Lowe

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Mr 9 '52 80w

"Effective, and worthy more than a casual attention."

+ Kirkus 19:719 D 15 '51 150w

"Displays an extraordinarily rich and mature poetic talent. This is poetry that combines to a remarkable extent imaginative spontaneity and effortless control." Milton Crane

+ N Y Times p6 My 4 '52 350w

"This poetry has sinews which stretch the mind and the heart. It has strength and beauty. It is capable of sustaining itself without rhyme, and it seems best when it does. Mr. Kroll will undoubtedly be heard from again, in a still freer and fuller voice." Lawrence Ferling

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 9 '52 80w

KRON, GABRIEL. Equivalent circuits of electric machinery. 278p $10 Wiley

621.313 Electric machinery. Electric circuits, Equivalent 51-14324

"A book of interest to designers of electric machines and to other engineers who must have a fundamental knowledge of them. In it the electrical properties of rotating electric machines and groups of machines are reduced to stationary electric circuit models, which the author terms equivalent circuits. How the stationary models are constructed is shown step by step for most types of machines. Uncommon machines such as the Scherblus are covered, as well as more common types. The book is both original and important. The author is associated with the General Electric Company, and the book appears in the General Electric series." N Y New Tech Bks

"A valuable and highly original work." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:60 Ja 1 '52 130w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:5 Ja '52

"For the engineer or designer specializing in machine theory and performance, the time spent in becoming familiar with an unorthodox approach, such as Dr. Kron proposes, will be well repaid, since it greatly expands the analytical power of tools already in his possession."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:217 Je '52 200w

KRONENBERGER, LOUIS. Grand right and left. 217p $3 Viking

52-7513

A satirical extravaganza in which it is related how the wife of the richest man in the world helped to cure him of boredom.

Booklist 48:189; 215 F 15 '52; Mr 1 '52

Bookmark 11:158 Ap '52 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:153 My '52 120w

"Moderately entertaining reading [with] odd bits of surprisingly good writing." A. F. Otis
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Mr 9 '52 500w

Kirkus 20:10 Ja 1 '52 200w

"The matter in hand is a flat and rather foolish jest." G. D. McDonald

Library J 77:437 Mr 1 '52 90w

New Repub 126:22 Ap 14 '52 130w

"Do the many good and quotable passages in Mr. Kronenberger's frolic add up to a really satisfactory total performance? The publishers compare 'Grand Right and Left' with 'Zuleika Dobson,' and it certainly has one thing in common with Max Beerbohm's perhaps slightly over-esteemed novel—that the reader is sometimes not quite sure what the author is trying for—satire or pure fun. If the latter, perhaps 'Grand Right and Left' is simply not funny enough. It is witty, often and brilliantly, but the entirety is like a soufflé richly compounded that somehow sags in the oven." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 F 24 '52 750w

"If a funnier, more coruscating, bouncy, sardonic, urbane, elegant, irreverent, and pomp-busting farce has been published during the past fifteen years, this reviewer has neither read it nor heard of it." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p7 F 24 '52 750w

"Mr. Kronenberger, whose wit is singularly free of rancor, is a wonderful man to read around income-tax time, because he manages to make the possession of large sums of money seem synonymous with a dizzying boredom."

+ New Yorker 28:89 Mr 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by W. T. Scott

Sat R 35:14 Mr 1 '52 500w

Reviewed by Richard McLaughlin

Theatre Arts 36:4 Ap '52 160w

"It is entirely possible that Louis Kronenberger, critic, literary historian and theater editor of Time, has tucked an urbane moral or two into this story of compulsive acquisitiveness. But the moral never bulges the story out of shape. In an age of lugubrious fiction, Author Kronenberger has produced a deft and witty little novel in the best tradition of high farce."

+ Time 59:98 F 25 '52 400w

"A more successful humorous book." James Yaffe

+ Yale R n s 41:10 summer '52 160w

KRONENBERGER, LOUIS. Thread of laughter; chapters on English stage comedy from Jonson to Maugham. 297p $4.50 Knopf

822.09 English drama—History and criticism. Comedy 52-6421

"The gift of laughter that is peculiarly English nowhere finds better expression than in English stage comedy, and particularly in the comedy of manners, which Mr. Kronenberger holds in high regard. A critic who has judgment and knows how to give voice to it, he here deals refreshingly with a number of plays in this field, his discussion covering the period from Jonson to Maugham, with special emphasis on the works of the Restoration." New Yorker

Booklist 49:64 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:55 D '52 20w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 N 9 '52 200w

"A volume which savants of the theater will take pleasure in, which students of the theater will find of value, and which, in its careful evaluation of the comic sense and its practitioners, in its polished elegance of style, should have a literary audience."

KRONENBERGER, LOUIS—Continued

+ Kirkus 20:485 Ag 1 '52 210w

"Has an academic if still excellent critical flavor. It is highly recommended to university drama departmental libraries as well as theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1514 S 15 '52 30w

"A sound and entertaining book based upon lectures originally given at Brandeis University and the Graduate School at Columbia."

+ Nation 175:392 O 25 '52 130w

Reviewed by Maurice Valency

New Repub 127:21 O 27 '52 900w

"One must complain that Mr. Kronenberger sometimes allows himself to disfigure the bright surface of his writing with crude Chestertonianisms. . . This alloy in the wit and elegance of which he is at his best a master he should certainly work to eliminate. He is mixing two periods here, and in the early-twentieth-century period imitating a bad model. One may hope even that, in some subsequent book, he will be able to eliminate also the specifically eighteenth-century flavor, which makes his prose a little artificial, and write consistently, as he often does for pages, in a style that is contemporary and all his own." Edmund Wilson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 2 '52 550w

"This interesting analysis of English comedies is based upon lectures delivered in the graduate school of Columbia and at Brandeis University. Mr. Kronenberger disclaims both completeness and philosophical system but he has a point of view and something specific to say about a very considerable number of plays which have retained their power to amuse."

J. W. Krutch

+ N Y Times p26 S 28 '52 400w

"There is a good essay on John Synge, and another on Somerset Maugham, who brought something of the Restoration spirit back into English comedy. A stimulating volume."

+ New Yorker 28:115 S 27 '52 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 9 '52 40w

"The seventeen chapters of Mr. Kronenberger's treatise, which principally concerns the comedy of manners in English, are avowedly remade from college lectures, and very good lectures they are. I do not know how much revision they have undergone, though from the lurking presence of a few colloquialisms natural in the classroom I suspect they have not been radically altered. They show us how good college lectures can be as mature, provocative, and unified discourse." H. M. Jones

+ Sat R 35:24 O 18 '52 650w

"He is wonderfully learned in his subject and his mind is at the farthest remove from dull. Mr. Kronenberger is clearly entitled to his judgments—and that makes the pleasure of disagreeing with him all the keener. . . Mr. Kronenberger uses—or assumes—definitions which become straitjackets and account for some of the curious defects of the book. . . The book is top-heavy with the Restoration and post-Restoration dramatists." Joseph Carroll

+ — Theatre Arts 36:9 N '52 750w

Reviewed by Francis Ferguson

Yale R n s 42:289 winter '53 420w

KRONER, RICHARD. Culture and faith. 278p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

901 Civilization, Christian 51-7837

"This book, by a former German scholar now professor of the philosophy of religion at Union Theological Seminary, is another attempt to deal with the cultural crisis of our epoch. . . It is not a secular treatment in the manner of Mannheim, Kahler, Mumford, and Sorokin; it is rather a religious orientation in the tradition of Reinhold Niebuhr to whom the author admits discipleship. Refuting the conclusion that philosophy and theology are different 'sciences,' and hoping to achieve a 'new synthesis' of them, the author functions both as secular and theological philosopher." Ann Am Acad

"It is tightly reasoned work, persistent and consistent in the movement of its argument, and rich in the scope and quality of its scholarship. . . While the author doubtless wanted the book to be read as a whole and not for its details, in view of the richness of its scholarship and the wealth of superbly selected and developed concepts, it is a pity that there is no index." J. O. Hertzler

+ Ann Am Acad 279:226 Ja '52 600w

Reviewed by L. C. Porter

Churchman 166:15 Mr 1 '52 230w

"Provocative essay." G. W. Cunningham

+ Ethics 63:68 O '52 1350w

School & Society 74:383 D 15 '51 30w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:41 Mr '52 220w

KRUMBEIN, WILLIAM CHRISTIAN, and SLOSS, LAURENCE LOUIS. Stratigraphy and sedimentation. 497p maps $5 Freeman

551.7 Geology. Sedimentation and deposition 51-9360

"A substantial treatment, in the form of an upper-class college textbook, of two related fields of geology that do not get full-scale treatment in general texts. The order and relation of strata and the study of sedimentary rocks are important in applied geology, such as petroleum geology, as well as in numerous areas of historical geology. Current techniques such as the logging of samples from oil wells as they are drilled are discussed, but most of the book is devoted to the fundamental knowledge. The text is supplemented by a long bibliography that should be useful to graduate geologists." N Y New Tech Bks

"The value of the book is enhanced by remarkably clear and varied typography and aptly selected and well-drafted illustrations. The binding and paper are excellent; the pages can readily be laid open at any chosen point. A book hardly could be more enlightening and challenging to those who are to study or engage in stratigraphic geology." Marshall Kay

+ J Geol 60:200 Mr '52 1100w

"A useful addition to geological literature."

R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:524 Mr 15 '52 90w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:12 Ja '52

KRUSE, LOUIS FREDERIK VINDING. Community of the future [tr. by Ingeborg Lund and others]. 828p $12 Philosophical lib.

320.1 Political science A52-9836

"This work by the Professor of Jurisprudence at the University of Copenhagen, is a blueprint for an ideal society consisting of men of a new type and built up in accordance with the author's attempt 'to place morality and justice on a scientific basis.' . . After a rather lengthy discussion of various theories about the ultimate good, the author decides in favor of utilitarian ethics. . . There follows a study of the nature and purpose of the law through which the new community is to be engendered. . . The whole edifice is to be crowned by a new constitution. The author rejects both autocracy and democracy since they result in the rule of incompetent persons." Ann Am Acad

"Professor Kruse seems to ascribe to his plan universal validity. Though Scandinavian institutions and developments are in the forefront, long chapters are devoted to English, German, and American affairs. In the present reviewer's opinion, the author's conclusions express merely his personal predilections justified ex post facto by a vague and by no means original system of ethics." N. S. Timasheff

Ann Am Acad 283:231 S '52 410w

Reviewed by R. P. Bartolini

Library J 77:1009 Je 1 '52 120w

KRUTCH, JOSEPH WOOD. Desert year; decorations by Rudolf Freund. 270p $3.75 Sloane 574 Natural history—Southwest. Desert fauna. Desert flora 52-8150

Informal essays on the American Southwest desert country, the result of fifteen months' residence there by the author, a college professor, and an Eastern "city-man." The author's chief interests were in the animals and birds of the country.

Booklist 48:243 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:156 Ap '52 30w

Bookmark 11:238 Jl '52 10w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 23 '52 250w

Reviewed by R. R. Brunn
Christian Science Monitor p7 Jl 24 '52 330w

Reviewed by W. P. Sears
Churchman 166:16 My 15 '52 70w
Kirkus 20:102 F 1 '52 240w

Reviewed by Ruthven Todd
Nation 174:388 Ap 19 '52 750w

"The book is, to this reviewer's way of thinking, the finest literary work on the natural setting of the Southwest since the publication of Mary Austin's 'The Land of Little Rain,' half a century ago." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 2 '52 1050w

"With Mr. Krutch we make a journey into two places. One is the desert itself. The other is his civilized and charming mind. Together they make a country where many readers will be very content." Paul Horgan
+ N Y Times p3 Mr 16 '52 1200w

"This mild, good-natured persistence in, first, learning all he can concerning what lies about him in Nature, and, second, in turning the subject around and thinking aloud about it, is what makes this book (as it made his 'Twelve Seasons') a very readable bit of humanly put philosophizing. The author's point of departure may be anything at all—a bird new to him, the stars, so close in desert country, the shrewd adaptation of the cactus to its environment." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 4 '52 900w

Reviewed by Frank Waters
Sat R 35:50 Ap 19 '52 600w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Spring'd Republican p10D Ap 6 '52 250w

"Even though they have never been there, most laymen will delight in Mr. Krutch's descriptions of the desert and in his knowledge and curiosity concerning natural history. Readers interested in Thoreau and naturalistic philosophy will find many insights and the best sort of simplicity in this book."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:130 Je '52 210w

Reviewed by J. F. Dobie
Yale R n s 41:611 summer '52 280w

KRYLOV, IVAN NIKITITCH, pseud. Soviet staff officer; tr. by Edward Fitzgerald. 298p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

940.548 World war, 1939-1945—Russia. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, Russian 51-13334

"[A] personal memoir, spanning the period from May, 1940, to May, 1945, by a former member of the Red Army general staff. Krylov was a captain, in charge of the Balkan section of the military information service, until he was found guilty of a technical security violation by a court-martial and sentenced to be reduced to the grade of sergeant and sent to the front lines to redeem himself. After winning the Order of Lenin at the front, professional soldier Krylov regained his rank as a captain and returned to duty in Moscow before the war ended." San Francisco Chronicle

Am Pol Sci R 46:260 Mr '52 20w

"Most of the book is written in the form of conversation. This is a good style for enlivening, sharpening up, and personalizing the record, but it is of doubtful advantage in a field where accuracy is essential. Yet there is a ring of sincerity and authenticity throughout." P. B. Anderson

+ Ann Am Acad 281:251 My '52 600w

Foreign Affairs 30:504 Ap '52 40w

"The book is not well written, mixing military, political, and personal matters together. Nor is it wholly reliable, since some of the most interesting sections are 'hearsay' and others must have been reconstructed from distant memory. But the author does not, apparently, wish to grind any particular axe, and his story includes much material useful to anyone ready to hew it out." A. H.

Manchester Guardian p4 Jl 17 '51 650w

"Without the sensationalism of some of the other books written by disaffected Russians since the war's end, Krylov's book is important because of his position in the Soviet military structure which brought him in contact with Marshal Voroshilov and other brass of the Red Army, as well as members of the Politburo, and on one occasion, Stalin himself." J. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 13 '52 300w

"The work is chiefly valuable as the picture of the wheels within wheels within wheels, the constant intrigues that go on behind the front of a monolithic state, the card parties at which a few words dropped can mean lives or wars. For that matter, it would be a good book for the security boys in Washington to read and find out how much they are really concealing. This is how the E. Phillips Oppenheim business operates in real life and at the home office." Fletcher Pratt

Sat R 35:32 Ja 12 '52 270w

"The book is scrappy, but it is not this that gives the reader doubts. As an account of the Red Army staff it is vague. . . . As autobiography it leaves much to the imagination. . . . No; it is not the sins of omission that matter. What rings false is the actual account of what should come easiest of all to a staff officer's pen: the vast advances, retreats and recoveries of the Russian front. For all this is extraordinarily reminiscent of a previous book. This similarity starts with the outbreak of war, about one-third of the way through the book, and can be traced through whole paragraphs until 30 pages from the end. . . . All this, and the author too, may quite well be genuine. But such methods do not encourage the reader to believe it."

Times [London] Lit Sup p642 O 12 '51 850w

KUBASCHEWSKI, OSWALD, and EVANS, ELWYN LLEWELLYN. Metallurgical thermochemistry. 368p il $6 Academic press

541.36 Thermochemistry [52-2798]

"The preface states that, 'The present monograph is intended for two classes of metallurgical chemists: the research worker engaged in obtaining the fundamental information by laboratory experiments, and the process metallurgist who wishes to apply the data to the solution of practical problems.'" (Am Chem Soc J) "Part one consists of the necessary theory well treated from a practical point of view, assuming that the user is acquainted with the elements of chemical thermodynamics. The principles of the experimental techniques used to measure the thermochemical data are described in the second part. Some methods available for estimating thermochemical data are to be found in part three. . . . The fourth part contains tables of values of thermochemical constants for a large number of elements and compounds of possible metallurgical importance. The final part of the monograph contains a few practical examples of thermochemical methods applied to metallurgical problems." (Chem & Eng N)

"The book throughout is written in a readily comprehensible style, and, despite some faults, should be a handy addition to the library of any laboratory concerned with thermodynamics of inorganic substances." K. K. Kelley

+ Am Chem Soc J 73:5518 N '51 650w

KUBASCHEWSKI, OSWALD—Continued

"Each page of this monograph speaks with the authority borne of years of work in the field of thermochemistry. The book is addressed to those who have practical metallurgical problems to solve, and desire to employ the thermochemical approach." D. R. Stull
+ Chem & Eng N 29:3130 J1 30 '51 300w

KUBIE, NORA BENJAMIN. See Benjamin, N. G.

KUEHNELT-LEDDIHN, ERIK MARIA, ritter von. Liberty or equality; the challenge of our time; ed. by John P. Hughes. 395p maps $6 Caxton prs.

320.1 Democracy. Totalitarianism. Liberalism 52-5884

"The book is an exploration of certain interconnected hypotheses, of varying generality, about contemporary politics. The first set of propositions to be examined is: That the impulse of 'democracy' (popular government) is the pursuit of equality, and that this leads unavoidably (and has in fact led) to collectivism and on to oppressive totalitarianism; and that 'liberalism' is the pursuit of liberty and is an incompatible mate for 'democracy.' . . The second proposition: That 'monarchy' is a more serviceable manner of government than 'democracy' and likely to be more 'liberal.' . . The third: That the political temper of Catholic nations is more 'liberal' than that of Protestant nations." (Spec) Index.

"Let us hope that this volume will get the serious attention it deserves and that the author will be appreciated as he deserves to be for putting the light of great intelligence and learning on some of the most pressing problems of our day." J. K. Cartwright
+ Cath World 175:476 S '52 420w

"The book is uneven—sometimes naive, sometimes poorly thought-out, and sometimes exasperatingly repetitious. But its genuine insights make it worth reading, despite its weaknesses." W. P. Clancy
+ Commonweal 56:372 Je 18 '52 700w

Kirkus 19:627 O 15 '51 260w

"Author complains that Americans cannot understand monarchy. He shows a total lack of comprehension of American democracy. Not recommended." R. W. Henderson
— Library J 76:2000 D 1 '51 240w

"Interesting, learned, but sprightly book." Crane Brinton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 28 '52 700w

"Mr. Kuehnelt-Leddihn writes as a Roman Catholic, but without special pleading. His Catholicism is often responsible for his choice of hypothesis, but the exploration is the work of an unprejudiced scholar. . . But his weaknesses are a certain over-optimism (arising from an insufficient acknowledgement of the depth from which our difficulties spring and the advanced stage of our predicament. Is it possible to modify the course of 'democracy' without modifying the course of 'technology?') and a tendency to schematism. There are moments when, as a historian, he appears as a terrible simplifier." Michael Oakeshott
+ Spec 188:338 Mr 14 '52 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p346 My 23 '52 650w

KUGELMASS, JOSEPH ALVIN. Ralph J. Bunche, fighter for peace. 174p $2.75 Messner B or 92 Bunche, Ralph Johnson—Juvenile literature 52-13539

A biography for older boys and girls. It describes the life of Ralph J. Bunche, scholar, statesman, diplomat, and Nobel prize winner in 1950. Index.

Booklist 49:153 Ja 1 '53

Bookmark 12:35 N '52 10w

"The happenings in Ralph Bunche's life are dramatic enough in themselves to cause considerable marvel. The broad and solid treatment they receive here does justice to the man's calm, levelheaded personality, his wisdom and his commendable career."

+ Kirkus 20:662 O 1 '52 200w

"A vivid authoritative portrayal." Augusta Baker

+ Library J 77:2014 N 15 '52 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p32 N 16 '52 50w

"Mr. Kugelmass has written a short, tentative and apparently hurried biography. . . He has told the story in an expository, matter-of-fact style. Even so the story of Ralph Bunche commands attention." Arna Bontemps
+ N Y Times pt2, p20 N 16 '52 110w

KULL, IRVING STODDARD, and KULL, NELL M. Short chronology of American history, 1492-1950. 388p $6.50 Rutgers univ. press 973.02 U.S.—History 52-9371

"This short chronology is a selection of some ten thousand events in American history, arranged in sequence from 1492 through 1950. The book is designed to serve two purposes: by means of a complete index, to provide a quick reference to the date of any one of the events included; and to give the reader a sense of the developing pattern of history by placing the events in their chronological relationship to each other." Intro

"While some may quibble over the choice of events, none can deny the usefulness of this volume, for it will be the one volume that historians, librarians, and editors will pick up more than any other. The events are well indexed, which makes it more usable." J. W. Oliver

+ Am Hist R 58:191 O '52 240w

Booklist 48:294 My 15 '52

Bookmark 11:182 My '52 30w

Current Hist 22:378 Je '52 30w

"It is, of course, a reference book and one which every student of American history will be grateful for. . . Recommended." J. A. Borome

+ Library J 77:795 My 1 '52 130w

"In reference and research the book will have a multitude of uses; its influence could be most salutary in teaching, where the indispensable temporal framework of history has been too much neglected in recent decades. It also provides very pleasant browsing."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:340 S '52 170w

KURNITZ, HARRY (MARCO PAGE, pseud). Reclining figure. 245p $2.50 Random house

52-5145

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

Reviewed by Drexel Drake

Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 Mr 16 '52 120w

Kirkus 19:714 D 15 '52 80w

"Two murders, included more or less absent-mindedly, are not allowed to distract any one (even the people who might conceivably be disturbed by one or the other of them) for long from the fun and games. But except for this more or less necessary insensitivity, the consequences should please practically everybody." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Mr 16 '52 20w

"Like earlier Pages, this is a knowledgeable study of a special kind of skulduggery, the forgery of modern French paintings. The action is hard and violent, the telling literate and credible, and the character development and interplay well above the average—in all, a highly satisfactory item." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p27 Mr 23 '52 60w

"Lively and entertaining, though perhaps a little special."

+ New Yorker 28:124 Mr 15 '52 130w

"There's some fine stuff about painting, the action is fast and the wise-cracking dialogue genuinely entertaining. B plus." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 16 '52
80w

"Episodic treatment gives choppy effect, but technique stuff is convincing, dialogue sharp, and handling competent. Good." Sergeant Cuff
+ Sat R 35:68 Ap 19 '52 40w

Times [London] Lit Sup p813 D 12 '52
80w

KUTTNER, HENRY (LEWIS PADGETT, pseud). Man drowning. 215p $2.50 Harper 52-5458

A novel of suspense, the scene of which is the Arizona desert country. Among the assorted characters are several psychoneurotics.

Reviewed by Drexel Drake
Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 19 '52
90w

Kirkus 20:239 Ap 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 15
'52 120w

"Although there is some effective melodrama here, the humorless, somewhat pretentious writing, so far below Mr. Kuttner's best pulp work, failed to rouse my interest or belief in any of the people involved." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p11 Je 22 '52 50w

New Yorker 28:91 Ag 16 '52 40w

"A well-motivated if brutal story, unrelentingly told." L. G. Offord
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 22 '52
40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:40 Jl 5 '52 20w

"Mr. Kuttner writes powerfully and well of a man's moral deterioration into a pawn of murder with a skill which holds promise. 'Man Drowning' is packed with action and written with the clarity of a polished movie scenario." B. F. K.

+ Springfield Republican p4C Jl 6 '52 70w
Wis Lib Bul 48:181 Jl '52

KUTTNER, HENRY (LEWIS PADGETT, pseud). Robots have no tails. 224p $2.75 Gnome press

52-10383

Collection of science fiction tales about Gallagher who invents odd things when he is drunk, but cannot remember what they are for when he sobers up.

"While the stories lack contrast, and their dialog becomes repetitious, Gallagher and his robot are still the most memorable comic team in science-fiction." Mark Reinsberg

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 S 7 '52
100w

Kirkus 20:290 My 1 '52 90w

"You aren't apt to find another volume this year, and possibly for some years to come, that blends wild imagination, stringent logic, and absolute absurdity into such a joyfully intoxicating mixture." H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 29
'52 150w

"Unreal, true; farce, yes—but there's a chuckle on every page, and a belly laugh in every chapter. A worthwhile addition to any s-f connoisseur's library." Villiers Gerson
+ N Y Times p17 Jl 27 '52 120w

"The result is better than you'd think." Don Fabun
+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 Jl 6 '52
200w

"Books like this are all too rare." Fletcher Pratt
+ Sat R 35:34 Ag 2 '52 30w

KUTTNER, HENRY (LEWIS PADGETT, pseud). Tomorrow and tomorrow; and, The fairy chessmen. 254p $2.75 Gnome press

51-14785

Two science-fiction novels.

"Lewis Padgett, in particular, is a devout Carrollian; and rarely has he been more successful in giving a strange sort of quasi-scientific reality to the logic behind the looking glass than in 'The Fairy Chessmen.'" H. H. Holmes

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 D 23 '51
140w

"There's a sharp contrast in the quality of these two novels. Both deal with a not too remote future and with the impact of atomic warfare on human culture. But 'Tomorrow and Tomorrow,' while good, competent science fiction, offers nothing new on such fascinating themes as the idea of alternate worlds or the possibility of man mutating into superman. Happily, however, 'The Fairy Chessmen' gives us Padgett's imagination at its brilliant best." J. F. McComas

+ N Y Times p21 F 10 '52 150w

"Both short novels are excellent examples of what science fiction can be in the hands of an accomplished writer." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 16 '51
90w

KYRLE, ROGER ERNLE MONEY-. See Money-Kyrle, R. E.

L

LABANDE, YVONNE, and LABANDE, EDMOND RENE. Rome; tr. and adapted by Janet Hamilton. 249p il maps $5 McGraw 945.6 Rome (city)—Description. Art—Rome
52-8959

A guidebook and history of Rome which contains over 200 photographs. No index.

Bookmark 11:206 Je '52 20w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 17
'52 350w

Reviewed by Robert Payne
N Y Times p7 My 18 '52 60w

"A leisurely and literary guide."
New Yorker 28:140 My 3 '52 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 6 '52
180w

LA BRANCHE, GEORGE MICHEL LUCIEN. Dry fly and fast water; and, The salmon and the dry fly. 2v in 1 252p il $3.75 Scribner 799.1 Trout fishing. Salmon fishing. Fly casting 51-14564

"An American fly-fishing classic, published in 1914 [Book Review Digest 1914] is here expanded by the addition of a limited edition item, 1924, containing the often discussed but rarely seen chapter on Casting the Curve. Mr. LaBranche's special claim to fame. With plenty of personal experience and anecdotal material, he discusses dry fly fishing for trout and for salmon, with a good deal of technical how-to-do-it data thrown in for good measure." Kirkus

Booklist 48:232 Mr 15 '52

"There is plenty of timeless information here, as valuable today as when the book appeared."
+ Kirkus 19:599 O 1 '51 100w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 77:58 Ja 1 '52 30w

LAGERKVIST, PAR FABIAN. Barabbas; tr. by Alan Blair; with a pref. by Lucien Maury, and a letter by André Gide. 180p $3 Random house

Barabbas—Fiction 51-13110
For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Reviewed by Carlyle King
Canadian Forum 32:70 Je '52 190w

"Here are no dress-parades in the manner of Lloyd Douglas, or, on a higher level, so biological treatises in the manner of Asch or Mann. With a Northern sparseness that, true, does not always escape bleakness, Mr. Lagerkvist enters the unrevealed life of the acquitted thief Barabbas to re-create a time of hope." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 174:468 Mr '52 500w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Jenkins
Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 28 '52 120w

"Barabbas is by a man immersed in that European tradition which considers the artist's obligation to perfect each work a sacred delight. Though he is almost unknown in this country, Pär Lagerkvist's sparse, dissimilar, interrelated plays, poems, essays and novels have earned him a high place in the tradition he continues. Since I do not read Swedish and The Dwarf, his only other work translated into English, is no longer available, my generalizations depend on faith, yet I feel sure of them because I have read Barabbas in what seems an excellent translation." H. C. Webster

+ New Repub 126:20 Ja 21 '52 270w

"This book turns out to be far better than the conventional trumpetings on the cover would indicate. It is a short, moving tale, written in a deceptively simple style, about the man in whose place Jesus was crucified." John Raymond

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:326 Mr 15 '52 200w

"This brief story is told at a depth which can only come from a close and forgiving insight into the most ordinary and fundamental weaknesses of human nature. There is no rancour, but no ignorance." Tangye Lean

+ Spec 188:460 Ap 4 '52 420w

"The Passion of Christ is related with the vividness of an eye-witness, and Peter and other members of the primitive Church appear as living characters; Barabbas himself is a well-conceived figure, the strong man born with a grudge against the world."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Mr 14 '52 300w

Wis Lib Bul 48:37 Ja '52

LAIRD, CHARLTON GRANT, ed. World through literature. (National council of teachers of English. English monograph) 506p $3.75 Appleton

809 Literature—History and criticism 51-13984

"The book contains thirteen essays, each by an expert or experts, on a number of the world's great literatures. There is no discussion of English or American literature . . . and some other national literatures are omitted. There is an excellent study of primitive literature, and studies of the major Scandinavian and European literatures, those of Greece, Rome, India, the Far and Near East, the Slavic nations, and Latin America. The essays are studies, not encyclopedic articles. The contributors were asked to write 'the most penetrating statements they could about the fields of their special study,' and also 'to extract from the critical writings of the people concerned a coherent statement of their thought, temper, and essential nature.'" U S Quarterly Bk R

"The literary subject matter is substantial and concrete. . . Yet the book remains readable as well as rewarding to the student." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 69:283 Mr 5 '52 90w

School & Society 74:271 O 27 '51 60w

"The collection forms a coherent whole; inevitably the essays vary in merit, but each is well documented, and the level throughout is high. The brief bibliographies will be valuable aids to readers who wish to go further in extending their literary horizons."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:28 Mr '52 200w

LAIRD, EMMA. Of former love. 345p $3.50 Houghton

51-6722

The story of a compulsive love which took gently bred Kathy from her English husband and home, thru the depths of physical degradation and despair, as she followed her refugee lover to America.

"A titillating soul strip."

Kirkus 19:449 Ag 15 '51 190w

"Emma Laird tells Kathy's story directly, with a frankness that some readers will find disconcerting though none, I think, can say that she makes an irregular relationship inviting. There is, on the contrary, a painful fascination in watching Kathy's alienation from nearly everything that had been important to her, her descent, like that of a drunkard or a drug addict, into an inferno where she became almost a puppet." David Tilden

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 O 28 '51 600w

"Told swiftly with a fine sense of drama, dialogue and personality. However, it poses too improbable an argument between reason and sick emotion. If Kathy were less believable, her tragedy might be more so." Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p22 F 10 '52 280w

Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 9 '52 30w

LAMB, HAROLD. Theodora and the Emperor; the drama of Justinian. 336p $4.50 Doubleday Justinian I, emperor of the East—Fiction.
Theodora, consort of Justinian I, emperor of the East—Fiction 52-8750

"Beginning with the appearance in Constantinople about 500 A.D. of eighteen year old Peter Sabbatius, a barbarian peasant from Macedonia, full details of life in this Eastern capital of the Roman Empire are given down to the deaths of Justinian and Theodora and the end of the Ancient World." Library J

"Mr. Lamb sticks strictly to the historical record as far as characters, events, and incidents are concerned; but he uses a great deal of invented dialogue, and attributes to his people thoughts, feelings, and gestures, in the manner of a novelist dealing with his own creations. To my mind this fictional technique has a disconcerting effect: it vulgarizes and makes less convincing a book which, basically, is a seriously researched history and a carefully considered portrayal of an extraordinary human partnership. . . Mr. Lamb's book brings vividly before us the background and mores of the epoch." C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:82 Ag '52 450w

Booklist 49:33 S 15 '52

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 3 '52 390w

"The book does give clear glimpses of fragments of the century, and aspects of character, and phases of the imperial problem. But Theodora and the Emperor, as whole persons, escape in the mystery traditional to European historical writing, at least since the time of Gibbon's Decline and Fall. The pieces of the mosaic, brilliant and alluring as the author shows them to be, are unassembled, and many of them are lost." Philip Burnham

+ Commonweal 56:514 Ag 29 '52 600w

Kirkus 20:312 My 15 '52 190w

Reviewed by K. A. Shorey

Library J 77:1188 J1 '52 80w

"The method has certain weaknesses. Characters become puppets. Justinian and Theodora move woodenly through a world in which they seem to feel themselves perpetual strangers. Invented conversations do not always fit into the historical picture, but often tend rather to distract the reader's attention from the narrative. Yet these weaknesses are minor, and no 'psychological' biographer apparently takes the trouble to verify the mise en scène as carefully as Lamb has done. His attention to detail is really remarkable and seldom permits a major gaffe." W. F. Albright

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 3 '52 850w

"Told vividly, by this expert writer. . . The book's absolute accuracy is another matter. For one thing, Mr. Lamb must perforce rely heavily on Procopius, who is alternately a serious historian and a scandalmonger. For another his love of sprightly narrative has led him even oftener than usual into invented scene and dialogue. And while invention in a serious historical document is at least as old as Tacitus, it always should be used with discretion." T. C. Chubb

+ — N Y Times p7 Ag 3 '52 370w

"A scrap of popular history, too thick with facts to seem at all like a novel and too free-and-easy to be taken as pure history."

New Yorker 28:66 Ag 2 '52 60w

"An interesting, if not exciting, account of the first husband-and-wife team of history."

R. H. Dillon

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 18 '52 650w

"[This] result is half-fictionalized history, of the type at which Mr. Lamb excels, and it is written with his customary virtuosity and gusto. It is not, however, as entertaining as his short stories nor as well constructed as most of his historical narratives." Geoffrey Bruun

+ — Sat R 35:10 Ag 16 '52 450w

"Theodora and the Emperor is too glib to be taken with thorough seriousness, but it is thoroughly readable."

+ — Time 60:96 Ag 11 '52 370w

Wis Lib Bul 48:214 S '52

LAMBERT, JANET. Don't cry, little girl. 191p $2.50 Dutton

52-5298

Novel for teen aged girls about Tippy Parrish who lost her first love to the war in Korea, and went thru a readjustment period before she could accept Peter.

Reviewed by M. V. Greene

Library J 77:911 My 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 13 '52 160w

"In spite of its tragic theme and highly emotional style, the story lacks depth, and the ending seems too contrived. However, the plot moves smoothly along a course of junior college life and West Point parties, with an adroitly woven counterpoint of relationships with friends and family in the background. Older girls who enjoy teen-age romance will undoubtedly find this a satisfying addition to Janet Lambert's well-liked books." Eugenia Garson

+ — N Y Times p16 Je 1 '52 100w

Springf'd Republican p7D My 18 '52 100w

LAMBERT, SAM, ed. London, night and day; a guide to where the other books don't take you; il. by Osbert Lancaster. 100p $1 British bk. centre

914.21 London—Description [51-14263]

"A paperbound round-the-clock guide for tourists who wish to see the unusual. Illustrated by Osbert Lancaster." Library J

"He spells out almost innumerable fascinating walks. There are no maps, but quantities of illustrations by Osbert Lancaster. A big value for a dollar." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 F 10 '52 60w

"Osbert Lancaster's pithy and gently satirical sketches are nostalgic chuckle raisers for native Londoners. For visitors and armchair travelers, they add enchantment to this 'round-the-clock' arrangement of sight-seeing." N. E. Taylor

+ Christian Science Monitor p15 N 29 '51 240w

Reviewed by Harold Hobson

Christian Science Monitor p7 J1 17 '52 250w

"Of more value to tourists than libraries." W. K. Harrison

Library J 76:2118 D 15 '51 20w

"An informed, disinterested, companionable conductor to restaurants, churches, pubs, museums, night-clubs, walks, rides, concerts, Turkish baths, streets, shops, and houses. Here is a guide who is different, who can amusingly show one how to enjoy London at any hour, weekday or Sunday." J. S.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 19 '51 120w

"Paper-bound and pocket-size, this is one of the pleasantest little guides on London or anywhere else that has crossed this desk in many a moon."

+ Sat R 35:50 F 16 '52 150w

L'AMI, C. E. Green madonna. 302p $3.75 Westminster press

52-6522

A historical novel of England during the reign of Henry VI. "The hero, champion of the Lollards and the oppressed, is subjected to the charge of heresy, which he counters with a charge of grave corruption against the local abbot. He fights a good fight, using both physical and moral courage. The love affair of a local beauty who serves as model for the lord of the district (who is also an amateur artist) and wins his heart offers an attractive, if standardized, subplot." (N Y Times)

Booklist 48:229 Mr 15 '52

Reviewed by Larry Rogers

Canadian Forum 32:72 Je '52 130w

"Poorly written, it is nothing more than a bitter and tasteless attack, couched in absurd and inflammatory terms, on Catholicism." Riley Hughes

— Cath World 175:232 Je '52 240w

"The Green Madonna' is far from a great novel, but it is smoothly executed and makes interesting reading. However, it is not likely to remain in the reader's mind other than as a blur of tapestry. The complexity of plot is too great for a lasting and definite impact." Chad Walsh

+ — Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 27 '52 500w

Kirkus 20:44 Ja 15 '52 160w

"Colorful, exciting and vivid. . . Recommended." Katharine Shorey

+ Library J 77:433 Mr 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 16 '52 470w

"To the names of Margaret Irwin and Alice Harwood should now be added the name of C. E. L'Ami as a historical novelist who writes with distinction of that old England which was ruled by the Plantagenets and the Tudors." John Cournos

+ N Y Times p23 Mr 23 '52 250w

"Toward the end the plot goes slightly wild, what with tales of baby substitution, mistaken identities, and murders on dark nights. But this can be disregarded in view of the generally solid approach to an interesting period and the quiet excellence of the prose." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:64 Ap 12 '52 150w

LAMONT, CORLISS. Independent mind; essays of a humanist philosopher. 187p $2.75 Horizon press, inc, 63 W. 44th st, N.Y. 18 191 [144] Humanism 51-12311

"Here is a collection of five essays in three categories: first, a single essay devoted to a lucid exposition of the author's humanistic,

LAMONT, CORLISS—Continued
 nonmetaphysical philosophy; second, essays in defense of a broadly liberal attitude which would be acceptable to many who could not share Dr. Lamont's philosophy; and third, others more or less whimsical and autobiographical." U S Quarterly Bk R

"Mr. Lamont's tone is invariably generous and elevated; and the breadth of his sensitivity to nature and to art, and his sympathy toward the dignity and the suffering of persons, both in the abstract and within his own culture, deserves its full meed of praise." T. I. Cook
 Ann Am Acad 279:188 Ja '52 900w

"The style is agreeable, graceful, even poetic, especially in 'The Palisades of the Hudson,' the best pastoral essay Lamont has ever written. This is an important book by America's leading intellectual enthusiast for Communist Russia. . . Too often, though admittedly not always, Lamont portrays an aggressive, imperialistic semi-fascist West and a democratic, socialist, tolerant, peace-loving Soviet." Peter Viereck

N Y Times p6 S 23 '51 1850w

Sat R 35:35 My 10 '52 250w

Springf'd Republican p12A Ja 6 '52 380w

"Dr. Lamont's philosophical thought will be unacceptable to most religious believers and metaphysicians. He is severely critical even of a fellow-naturalist like Henry Nelson Wieman, who seeks to go beyond humanism. The author's mind is vivid and independent and never dull; his opinions are debatable and often better stated than defended. He represents the mood of a considerable group of people, and in this volume he makes a more popular appeal than in his earlier and more technical writing."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:348 D '51 200w

LAMOTT, KENNETH CHURCH. The stockade.
 217p $3 Little

52-5868

Story dealing with American soldiers who are under orders to guard some 5000 Okinawans and Koreans, once slave labor for the Japanese, on an island in the Pacific, during the early days after the end of the war.

"Lamott's fast-moving story is a timely minor drama symbolizing the nemesis that the white man's color prejudice invites in Asia."

+ Atlantic 189:84 Je '52 100w

Booklist 48:339 Je 15 '52

Reviewed by Walter Simmons

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 15 '52 300w

"A grim story told so quietly that it seems understressed. While the characters are effectively individualized, we recognize basic types in the British sergeant, the cruel commander, the defiant young officer, the weary doctor. The trial of men's souls emerges as a dominant note. Well done—in such a low key as to elicit a negative emotional response."

+ Kirkus 20:200 Mr 15 '52 230w

"An excellent novel." R. P. Bartolini

+ Library J 77:894 My 15 '52 90w

"Things happen in this book—there is mayhem, sadism, death—yet the total effect is curiously static. The emphasis on the 'cage' of insane prisoners, upon dissatisfaction in the stockade and resentment against their superiors among the army men leads us to expect a crisis that never quite comes, or rather when it comes does not seem adequate to the build-up. Yet Mr. Lamott's writing is natural, competent, professional. As a fictionalized report of what the islands were like during the first days of occupation, 'The Stockade' is successful. Perhaps this was all its author wanted it to be." Bradford Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 1 '52 400w

"Mr. Lamott's book, while refreshingly devoid of the much-abused flashback technique, is generally one-dimensional. His characters are incapable of any soul-searching that might explain their behavior and help paste them in the reader's mind. The Nisei soldier, Mike Murayana, on loan to the Marines, is perhaps the best defined. And yet, despite its novelistic weakness, 'The Stockade' will carry conviction not only with those who came through the Pacific War and its aftermath but with the reader who has kept abreast of Panmunjom and of the riots on Koje." Ray Falk

+ N Y Times p22 Je 8 '52 300w

"This is a novel involving both physical action and human motives, and Mr. Lamott keeps it balanced that way with exceptional adroitness. It's a rough tale; you don't write truthfully about a situation like this without being rough now and then. And some scenes are horrifyingly brutal. But in the end, Mr. Lamott has said something." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p9 My 30 '52 600w

"Mr. Lamott writes with considerable raw power and some tempered indignation. Individual scenes have force and impact. But his failure to provide more than a surface characterization of his characters, the lack of variety in tone, leave us finally with nothing more than a feeling of distaste for the violence he has depicted and for the book in which he has so scrupulously depicted it."

+ Sat R 35:45 Je 21 '52 180w

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Captain Apple's ghost; il. by Ninon MacKnight. 249p $2.50 Doubleday

52-10126

"A friendly ghost story. . . A Pacific Northwest sea coast town and an old mansion housing a Junior Natural Science Museum provide background for the story of how the children of the community meet the threat of losing the old house to the city." Kirkus

"A fine variety of characters, including a delightful hero in Capt. Apple—you don't often run across such a human and likable ghost. A wonderful imagination spiced with humor."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 16 '52 130w

Horn Bk 28:406 D '52 100w

"Humorous scenes between the people the Captain 'bothers' and the ghost himself—always unseen—something of the regional background and the Indian lore of the coast combine to make this pleasant reading for third and fourth graders, and not too juvenile for the next step up."

+ Kirkus 20:405 J1 15 '52 160w

Library J 77:1739 O 15 '52 40w

"Recommended." Virginia Russell

+ Library J 78:70 Ja 1 '53 80w

"The title is so exciting that children may be disappointed in the story which somehow lacks action. In spite of humorous situations caused by the ghost, the book as a whole lacks something, I don't exactly know what. Not recommended." Phyllis Fenner

+ Library J 78:70 Ja 1 '53 160w

"Here is an amiable little spoof that belongs high up on your shelf of children's ghost stories (friendly division)." S. C. G.

+ N Y Times pt2, p36 N 16 '52 140w

New Yorker 28:195 D 6 '52 80w

"Evelyn Sibley Lampman scores again with this little book. With great skill she contrasts the versatility and industry of young people in the captain's 1890's with the different virtues praised in 1952. This story will interest boys and girls from the ages 9 to 12 who like ghosts who are not spooks and who respond to and learn from the sort of challenge the children of Meadowland readily accepted."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 16 '52 180w

"This is an original, amusing tale."

+ Sat R 35:50 N 15 '52 170w

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Rogue's valley, by Lynn Bronson [pseud]. 214p $2.50 Lippincott

52-7464

Life in Oregon in 1850 is the background for this story of gold miners, settlers, and Indians. For ages 11 to 16.

Booklist 49:93 N 1 '52

Bookmark 12:13 O '52 20w

"Robust vigor and suspense characterize this story. . . Recommended as a good adventure story and to show that Indians and whites alike were to blame for the massacres in those early days." Harriet Morrison

+ Library J 77:1826 O 15 '52 40w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p16 N 16 '52 20w

"Well-written tale that catches the reader's interest on the first page and never afterward allows it to flag." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p48 O 19 '52 130w

Sat R 35:60 N 15 '52 60w

LAMSON, MRS. MARY DEPUTY. Garden housekeeping; il. by Jessie Robinson. 167p $3.50 Oxford

635 Gardening 51-12343

Advice on how to keep the grounds of a small place looking as tidy as a good housekeeper keeps her house. Contents: Housekeeping outdoors; Fall housecleaning; Getting ready for winter; Spring housecleaning; Staking and labeling; Pruning; Feeding plants; Outdoor enemies; Watering; Terraces, drives, walks; Lawns; Routines of special gardens; Tools; Garden housekeeping calendar. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 48:62 O 15 '51

"This is a Must book for the gardenless garden, and the author, in competent fashion, handles the problems we all face of planning, organizing and effecting upkeep of walks, drives, lawn, tool space, flower and vegetable garden."

+ Kirkus 19:603 O 1 '51 170w

"Taking as her cue the fact that the principles of good modern housekeeping indoors are equally applicable to the outside grounds, Mrs. Lamson has evolved a book which, for downright common sense and explicit practical guidance, has seldom been equaled in the gardening field." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Ap 13 '52 190w

"For a useful guide to what to do—and when to do it—in your garden, this is a good buy." R. H. D.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 18 '51 160w

Sat R 35:21 Ag 2 '52 10w

LANCASTER, BRUCE. Secret road. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 259p $3.50 Little

52-6785

Historical novel about the Revolutionary war. It deals with the activities of General Washington's secret service on and around Long Island Sound in the year 1780.

Booklist 48:360 J1 1 '52

Bookmark 11:235 J1 '52 40w

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 Je 29 '52 370w

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon

Christian Century 69:1288 N 5 '52 80w

"The whole is lively, well written, and has an unobtrusive air of authenticity." Ruth Chapin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '52 60w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:341 O '52 40w

Kirkus 20:287 My 1 '52 200w

"Mr. Lancaster writes extremely well and his historical backgrounds are accurate and convincing without imposing a burden of useless detail. The love interest, though of secondary importance, does not follow the stereotypes of the current historical novel. Recommended." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:1012 Je 1 '52 80w

"The novel has suspense and interest as a picture of war-time life in our country, in particular, life under the British occupation. The fictional romances of Lt. Grant Ledyard and two very different young ladies seem contrived and might better have been played down." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 22 '52 460w

"The historical novels of Bruce Lancaster have always managed to ring a refreshing variation on familiar material. Dealing, for the most part, with some aspect of our home-grown wars, they have never failed to enlarge the reader's perspective on those conflicts. 'The Secret Road,' his ninth novel, is an example of a veteran craftsman at the top of his form." Melville Heath

+ N Y Times p5 Je 15 '52 650w

"Mr. Lancaster portrays the real heroes of the American Revolution very well, though not thoroughly enough. Robert Townsend is the exception though; for all the talk about the grave risks he took to supply Washington with information while apparently a loyal and harmless society reporter, he appears only as a rather foppish dilettante when described. The dashing wit of Major Andre is exceedingly well established, and indeed, is the one source of comic relief in this action-filled novel. The impact of the early sacrifice of Nathan Hale on the fighting Americans is also well done." B. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 7 '52 400w

"Mr. Lancaster has used the right historical sources well and lovingly. He is really excited about this phase of Revolutionary history, and he communicates his excitement. His pictures of Townsend and Andre—real men—are careful and convincing, and the finest things in the book. He is not so interested in his fictional characters. . . But the book has value because it brings authentic history to the impatient reader who will never take it a slower way." Shirley Barker

+ Sat R 35:18 J1 5 '52 450w

Springf'd Republican p5D J1 20 '52 300w

LANCASTER, OSBERT. Alarms and excursions of Lady Littlehampton. 77p il $2.75 Houghton

741.5 Humor, Pictorial 52-568

In line drawings and verse describes the adventures of Lady Maudie Littlehampton in New York and Washington, and "back home" in England, with a few "excursions" to the Continent.

Reviewed by J. A. May

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 14 '52 200w

Reviewed by George Conrad

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 3 '52 450w

"What unity the book has is the direct and unadulterated result of Mr. Lancaster's gentle lyricism. And though Lady Littlehampton isn't the main thing, she isn't second-class either. She is good fun in America, and is first-class fun back in England." Harvey Breit

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 20 '52 450w

"The drawings are in the finest Lancastrian tradition, and the humor is as good as The New Yorker. The author's preface is very nearly worth the price of the book. In short, cartoon books don't come much funnier than this." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 23 '52 110w

LANDAU, MARK ALEKSANDROVICH (M. A. ALDANOV, pseud). To live as we wish; tr. from the Russian by Nicholas Wreden. 512p $3.95 Dutton

52-8256

"Novel written in an ironical vein to expose the confusion in the minds of the international set of intellectuals, writers, businessmen, and their followers who are as much at home in Rome or the Riviera as they are in Paris. All of the men and women of his exotic cast of characters are headed in one way or another for the luxuries, the freedom, and the opportunities of America. Yet half of them are glancing back over their shoulders at the vague Communist dream of a kindly dictator who would organize all their lives." Sat R

LANDAU, M. A.—Continued

"This new novel has a large canvas, it is often refreshed by his wit, and by a quality of gentle satire and restrained irony." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 9 '52
300w

Kirkus 20:573 S 1 '52 190w

"Not too coherent, sometimes rather lengthy story. Strong in characterization, weak in plot. Suitable as light reading." H. H. Bernst

+ Library J 77:1653 O 1 '52 70w

"Mr. Aldanov's novel is long and close-packed, notable for countless small insights as well for the larger conspicuous. . . Even if it reads in places as if Oswald Spengler had collaborated with Aldous Huxley with some assistance from Maurice Dekobra, its total picture nevertheless comes out clean and sure." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 9 '52 600w

"It has been said that the successful novelist is one who can circulate his essence from the head to the heart. Mr. Aldanov can write rings around a score of novelists I could name, but their infinitely cruder characters have a red-blooded vitality lacking in his own bleached figures. Indeed, an atmosphere of wordy irresolution hangs over the whole novel like a cloak. This is a disappointing report to make on so high-minded a book, but Mr. Aldanov must be judged by his own rigorous standards." John Barkham

N Y Times p6 N 9 '52 650w

New Yorker 28:170 N 8 '52 160w

"The reader might be more easily persuaded to follow this satirical fantasy to the end if Mr. Aldanov had not been induced to include the entire text of two plays written by Yatsenko, alias Walter Jackson. Together they fill 125 pages of text, and anyone who has the patience to read them can only assume that as a producer Mr. Pembroke is losing his grip." Oliver Harrison

Sat R 35:53 N 8 '52 600w

"The weird one-dimensional men and women who move through the book's pages have all confused liberty with license, and if Mr. Aldanov has intended to write a satire, as the jacket states, the result is dismally lacking in the brilliant incisiveness which is a prerequisite of genuine satire." L. S. Munn

— Springf'd Republican p35A N 16 '52 140w

LANDECK, MRS BEATRICE. Children and music; an informal guide for parents and teachers. 279p $3.50 Sloane

780.7 Music—Instruction and study 52-10202

"A detailed guide for parents, especially mothers, and teachers, based upon the author's experience with her two youngsters as well as with the hundreds of others she knew while on the teaching staff of New York's Little Red School House among other posts. Her chief concern is with encouraging all youngsters to make music rather than with the special problem of the highly gifted child. For her the answer to good music for the young lies in folk song. Bibliographies, Discographies." Library J

Booklist 48:356 J1 '52

Bookmark 11:234 J1 '52 20w

"A warm, sincere, and highly readable book." Theodore Berg

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 1 '52 50w

"After the first few over-enthusiastic, overselling pages, this book should delight parents and a goodly number of teachers—who are eager for happy, productive relations between children and music."

+ Kirkus 20:109 F 1 '52 170w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 77:899 My 15 '52 140w

"The cause of children and music is being served with distinction by Beatrice Landeck. She has been a teacher for many years, has published three collections of folk songs, has supervised a series of recordings, and has done much incidental writing such as book reviews. This is her first book, and an excellent one it is." Virginia Cunningham

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:621 S '52 370w

New Repub 126:23 Je 30 '52 250w

"A lively, sensible approach to music for adults who either have children or teach them, to encourage many more and easier kinds of music participation. . . Every home with young children should have this book, or get it from the library as soon as possible." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 29 '52 300w

"Parents who hope to encourage a taste and liking for music in their children will find much sound advice in this book by Mrs. Landeck. . . And there is pertinent information on how parents and teachers may co-operate so the home and the school can provide the best that is musically possible for the children." H. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 J1 20 '52 90w

"Her faith in the children's natural feeling for music in all its forms gives her book warmth and authority."

+ Sat R 35:68 N 15 '52 80w

LANDON, JOSEPH. Angle of attack. 254p $2.75 Doubleday

52-5535

Story of an air bomber crew which violated one of the rules of "civilized" warfare and was made a primary objective of the enemy's vengeance.

Booklist 48:297 My 15 '52

Kirkus 20:11 Ja 1 '52 180w

"Mr. Landon writes of the air war only as a man who had been through it can write about it. His prose is graceful and rich and his men, representing the usual cross section of America, are always believable. If one were to take issue with the author, it would be in his conception of the protagonist, Lt. Win Helman." Louis Falstein

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Mr 16 '52 750w

"A well-written story. . . There are developments which add irony to the story, and some unnecessary melodrama and extraneous incidents which other novelists have handled more effectively. In its air combat passages 'Angle of Attack' is excellent." Herbert Mitgang

+ N Y Times p23 Mr 16 '52 360w

"Three quarters of the novel will keep readers glued to the pages. The actual flying scenes are fearfully convincing; the central problem sticks in the reader's mind throughout. But, to my mind, about 25 per cent of the author's careful reflection of Helman's tortured thoughts might have been left out. I haven't a doubt that the character could indeed have had exactly such thoughts, and would have. But when Mr. Landon puts in so much of this side of it, the reader is likely to feel that two kinds of novel have somehow got themselves mixed into one book." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 25 '52 550w

"Joseph Landon has neatly and persuasively fused his scenes of combat action with his treatment of his hero's developing inner conflict. His writing is authoritative and his insights deeply moving. Only at the end does he betray the hand of the contriving novelist. The irony which has the hero of a war novel conveniently killed just as he has resolved his problems and the book is about to close is getting tired from overwork." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:44 Mr 22 '52 320w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert

Springf'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 150w

LANE, CARL DANIEL. Black tide; il. by the author. 221p $2.75 Little

52-5013

Three high school boys, caught in a fight between rival oil companies for off-shore oil deposits in the Gulf of Mexico, spend an exciting summer on their beloved sloop. The autumn finds them back at school with enough money for college from their summer's work.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran

Atlantic 189:87 Je '52 60w

Bookmark 11:164 Ap '52 30w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 3 '52 180w

"It is refreshing to have a good combination of story interest with the ever recurrent problem of summer earnings. . . . An added attraction for sailing enthusiasts lies in the meaty substance on ships and sailing and the author's many diagrams."

+ Kirkus 20:2 Ja 1 '52 150w

"Again, Carl Lane has written a story that is as instructive as it is exciting. . . . Recommended for grades 7-10." L. T. Bulman

+ Library J 77:802 My 1 '52 80w

"Here is a book which unsuccessfully mixes story with factual information on seamanship. . . . Because of these conflicting elements, this book is not recommended." A. B. McCreary

— Library J 77:802 My 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 My 11 '52 190w

"As in several previous books Mr. Lane successfully combines information with a well written story." F. C. Smith

+ N Y Times p18 Je 15 '52 180w

"It is a good story, not only in itself but for the great amount of information it gives about boats, navigation, and the technique of off-shore oil drilling. There are many excellent diagrams that will interest modern boys."

M. P. Allen

+ Sat R 35:58 My 10 '52 140w

LANE, FERDINAND COLE. Story of trees. 384p il $5 Doubleday

582.16 Trees. Forests and forestry 52-10994

"Dr. Lane's story of trees is complete, right down to the smallest detail. The book is neatly and systematically arranged, with its 18 sections and 89 chapters each treating the subject from a different angle. Here paleontology, geology, botany, history, present conditions, and a glimpse of the future are interwoven to produce a fabric of unbelievable beauty." (Springf'd Republican) Index.

Booklist 49:119 D 1 '52

"Not for the serious forester except perhaps as a gift, but a goldmine for the amateur enthusiast who wants variety with his facts."

Kirkus 20:584 S 1 '52 120w

"Told in a manner so entertaining that the reader scarcely realizes what an amazing variety of facts he has absorbed until after he has reluctantly come to the end and asks himself, or better yet has someone else ask him, questions of all types concerning these wonderful plants. . . . Many good books have been written about trees but Dr. Lane's 'The Story of Trees' is in my opinion the most interesting and comprehensive of them all." L. D. Otis

+ Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 230w

LANE, FRANK WALTER. Animal wonder world; a chronicle of the unusual in nature [Eng title: Animal wonderland]. 310p il $4 Sheridan

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of

51-14565

Anecdotes and observations of queer or remarkable happenings in nature. Partial contents: Danger! flying birds; Animal accidents; Why animals act "dumb"; The mystery of bird anting; Bird hitch hikers; How the passenger pigeon became extinct; How the buffalo was saved, Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:167 Ja 15 '52

Reviewed by M. D. Read

Library J 77:366 F 15 '52 50w

"Unlike some other collectors of the Astounding, Mr. Lane is well grounded in science, is a scrupulously careful fact-checker with many scientific colleagues, and has a pleasant gift for making his astonishing facts into readable and genuinely instructive chapters." Alan Devoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Ja 27 '52 270w

"So wide is the scope of this amazing book that it answers scores of questions concerning almost all varieties of animal life. I know of no other single source in the whole long list of natural science books that offers so much unusual information concerning so many different living creatures." L. D. Otis

+ Springf'd Republican p4D Ja 27 '52 480w

LANE, FREDERIC CHAPIN, and others.

Ships for victory; a history of shipbuilding under the U.S. Maritime commission in World war II; charts by Joseph T. Reynolds. 881p il $12.50 Johns Hopkins press

623.8 Shipbuilding. U.S. Maritime commission 51-5081

"A fully documented account of a shipbuilding program that produced 5,777 ships, some of them at incredible speeds such as four days for the complete assembly of a Liberty ship. Most of the emphasis is on the organization, administrative and labor aspects, but there is some material on technical matters. For example, there is a whole chapter on welding troubles that caused some ships to break up after launching." Library J

"It is an excellent study, solid and scholarly; and, so thoroughly is it packed with lessons in shipbuilding during an emergency, it once again underscores the contention that such investigations are as essential to national security as tanks and bullets." J. A. Isely

+ Am Hist R 57:759 Ap '52 380w

Reviewed by L. W. Koenig

Am Pol Sci R 46:251 Mr '52 430w

Foreign Affairs 30:500 Ap '52 30w

"The organization of such a detailed historical account, with its great variety of topics, was undoubtedly a difficult problem. Lane has chosen a compromise between chronological and topical treatment that is on the whole successful. There are, however, points at which it is somewhat difficult to follow either the narrative thread or the development of a particular topic. An excellent index helps to overcome this difficulty." J. W. Frederickson

+ — J Pol Econ 60:176 Ap '52 650w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:61 Ja 1 '52 90w

"Although the general reader may not want to read all of this book, it is, in the history of the economic organization and efforts of societies at war, a monumental contribution."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:379 D '51 200w

LANE, FRONA. Third eyelid. (New poetry ser) 44p $2 Swallow, A.

811

52-6321

A first collection of poems by an American writer.

"Miss Lane carries the compactness pretty far, relying, for effects of wryness and terseness, on omission of articles and considerable use of the imperative mood." Rolfe Humphries

Nation 174:113 F 2 '52 140w

"This is very uneven, very sensitive verse. Its images are often arresting, its packed lines often of an intensity reminding us of Activist tenets. There are poems which are small, beautiful cries of passion; there are other pieces which fall as poetry. The basic conceits, usually of a metaphysical nature, are original but not particularly inspiring." Lawrence Ferling

LANE, FRONA.—Continued
+ San Francisco Chronicle p30 F 3 '52
90w

"Miss Lane is too much of an intellect to be content with the lyric cry. Her work, to judge from this small book, is characterized by images which are, often enough, individual to the point of a determined oddity. . . All in all, 'The Third Eyelid' sizes up as multum in parvo." G. P. M.
Sat R 35:40 Mr 15 '52 320w

LANG, MONICA. Invitation to tea. 284p $3.50
World pub.

B or 92 India—Social life and customs
52-8432

"Account of 25 years as a tea planter's wife in northern India, the author writes of everyday life in the jungles, discussing personal details of her marriage and problems of house-keeping, and describing encounters with elephants, pythons, and tigers. Although this is a feminine treatment of romance and adventure in a strange country, it avoids sentimentality." Booklist

Booklist 49:213 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:79 Ja '53 40w

"A womanly account that is filled with personal and intimate details of a happy marriage and a satisfying sense of life in strange parts." + Kirkus 20:529 Ag 15 '52 220w

"She tells this story with good natured detail and much of it is fascinating. But chiefly one is interested because, contrary to the usual picture of ladies who are wilted or corrupted by the tropics, this one remained throughout simple, happy and feminine." + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 16 '52 340w

"'Invitation to Tea' is as British as the traditional English club in any outpost, but Mrs. Lang writes dramatically and well of yesterday's life of the Mem-Sahib in Assam." M. J. Tweedy
+ N Y Times p18 Ja 4 '53 350w

LANGDON, GRACE, and STOUT, IRVING W.
Discipline of well-adjusted children. 244p $3.75 Day

649.1 Children—Management 52-6176

Companion volume to the author's These Well-adjusted Children (Book Review Digest 1951). This presents the results of interviews with 414 parents, with the accounts of their methods of dealing with children and young people, ranging in age from 5 to 22. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:351 J1 1 '52

Bookmark 11:234 J1 '52 20w

"This reviewer feels that this is a book to be highly recommended to parents of school-age children." L. R. Schulz
+ J Home Econ 44:738 N '52 300w

Kirkus 20:214 Mr 15 '52 180w

"Represents careful studies made by graduate students under direction of the authors, both experts in the field of child-parent relationships. The first already has achieved a wide audience of parents, teachers, social workers and others who will receive this volume eagerly." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 77:787 My 1 '52 130w

"It is the historical framework which gives the book its continuity and demonstrates the lessons which may be drawn from it. In spite of the publisher's statement that the authors have rigidly abstained from pressing their own ideas, the authors, fortunately for the reader, do inject their own, sensible and contemporary knowledge." S. R. A.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 J1 20 '52 210w

Wis Lib Bul 48:211 S '52

LANGER, WILLIAM LEONARD, and GLEASON, SARELL EVERETT. Challenge to isolation, 1937-1940; pub. for the Council on foreign relations (World crisis and American foreign policy). 794p $7.50 Harper

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. World war, 1939-1945—Diplomatic history 51-11932

"This book, published under the auspices of the Council on Foreign Relations, is the first of several planned volumes on American foreign policy before and during the Second World War. . . The authors were able to use unpublished letters, diaries and notes as well as State Department files. As a result the book is extraordinarily well-documented 'by the superabundance and variety of records' and, together with the future volumes, should form the basic (though unofficial) history of the subject." (Library J) Index.

"None will question that this is the most thorough, detailed, and systematic account of United States foreign policy for the years 1939-1940 that has yet been written." M. B. Travis
+ Ann Am Acad 282:120 J1 '52 440w

Booklist 48:191 F 15 '52

Reviewed by H. E. Barnes

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 F 10 '52 1400w

"Those who wish to know not only what happened to American foreign policy in the first year of World War II, but why and how it happened, will find no better book than this. It is written by two sound professors of history who have also had the advantages of intelligence service during the war plus unusual opportunities to examine official records. Some of the material has never been published before." Donovan Richardson
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 24 '52 800w

Current Hist 22:376 Je '52 150w

"This impressive study is easily the most complete and authoritative account of American diplomacy from President Roosevelt's 'quarantine' speech to the destroyer deal." + Foreign Affairs 30:498 Ap '52 100w

Kirkus 19:670 N 15 '51 190w

"Recommended." R. S. Taylor

+ Library J 77:142 Ja 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor

Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 8 '52 650w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn

New Repub 127:22 Ag 18 '52 500w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman

New Statesman & Nation 44:17 J1 5 '52 1050w

"'The Challenge to Isolation, 1937-1940,' like the first of the Churchill series, is an introduction, a prologue to Armageddon. Though it lacks the personal eloquence of Churchill, it has the same panoramic sweep, the same grasp of global politics. It is more tightly written, more precisely documented, more dispassionate. And more detailed." Geoffrey Bruun
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ja 20 '52 1300w

"When I remarked to a friend that I was reviewing this eventful publication, he asked: 'What is its thesis?' It has no thesis. It is an objective, uncolored study one could also say without literary color. It is history for historians. It is a most important landmark in the diplomatic history of Europe, Asia, and America." S. F. Bemis
+ N Y Times p6 Ja 20 '52 1100w

"It is easily the most thorough book of its kind and the most impressively documented, drawing on both official and unofficial sources." + New Yorker 27:76 F 2 '52 200w

"As a study in diplomatic history, this may be expected to stand the test of time. Concerned primarily with an American problem—the challenge to isolation—of necessity the book deals also in large part with the record of European developments (to a lesser extent with Far Eastern) and that part also constitutes a record of the first order of quality." René Albrecht-Carrié
+ Pol Sci Q 67:454 S '52 850w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 17 '52
600w

Reviewed by A. A. Berle
Sat R 35:13 Ja 19 '52 1500w

Reviewed by Max Beloff
Spec 188:622 My 9 '52 650w
Times [London] Lit Sup p259 Ap 18
'52 2150w

"The study makes use of all the available published material, and much that is unpublished from records in government departments, papers of diplomats and other officers, and consultations with them. The result is an authoritative and balanced account of American foreign policy necessary for those who seek a basic understanding of the position of the United States in the world today."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:161 Je '52 240w

"Recommended for larger libraries."

Wis Lib Bul 48:86 Mr '52

Reviewed by Charles Griffin
Yale R n s 42:127 autumn '52 1000w

LANHAM, EDWIN MOULTRIE. One murder too many. 184p $2.50 Harcourt

52-11343

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:477 Ag 1 '52 70w

"The arm of coincidence dangles literally from its socket. But the melee of sea and storm is good accompaniment to the coils of investigation." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 28
'52 80w

"It's all as smoothly readable as you'd expect from a Post serial—and quite devoid of originality, subtlety, or depth." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p39 O 5 '52 40w

"Incredible, but readable. B minus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 5 '52
60w

"Good." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:42 O 13 '52 20w

Springf'd Republican p9D S 28 '52 60w

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH CARLETON (HUBBARD). Pony that kept a secret; il. by Barbara Cooney. 117p $2 Crowell

Horses—Legends and stories 52-7862
Story of two children living on a farm, their pets, their pastimes, a little mystery, and the excitement of the County Fair. For ages seven to ten.

Booklist 49:145 D 15 '52

"Such natural children with their spontaneous outdoor play and a sympathetic hired man are fun to read about." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:322 O '52 70w

"Lots of enthusiasm and swift executions of brilliant ideas make this excellent reading for summer reminiscences."

+ Kirkus 20:405 JI 15 '52 130w

"Recommended." Mary Strang

+ Library J 77:1666 O 1 '52 40w

"Nice family story, good to read aloud to six and seven-year-olds." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p10 N
16 '52 30w

"Mrs. Lansing, a good story-teller, writes with a refreshing minimum of adjectives and a maximum of verbs. I have yet to find youngsters objecting to that." Pat Clark

+ N Y Times pt2, p38 N 16 '52 160w

"The author recognizes the seriousness of losing such a treasure as an old cut-glass doorknob and knows how to weave a winning story about it."

+ New Yorker 28:195 D 6 '52 70w

LAPORT, EDMUND ABNER. Radio antenna engineering. 563p il $9 McGraw 621.3843 [621.384135] Radio antennas

51-12624

"A treatise on the practical aspects of radio antenna engineering and related transmission lines. Mainly it is devoted to the basic theory and to the computations that the engineer must make in order to design antenna with desired characteristics. Actual construction techniques are not covered, but the illustrations include many photographs that show structural details. The author is Chief Engineer of the RCA International Division." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1210 JI '52 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:34 My '52

LAPP, CHARLES L. Personal supervision of outside salesmen; making salesmen more productive. 320p $4 Ohio state univ. Bur. of business res.

658.81 Commercial travelers

"The findings of a comprehensive, three-year survey are summarized in this study made with the cooperation of The National Sales Executives, Inc. Present supervisory methods are investigated and discussed and recommendations are proposed for the improvement of supervisory practices. The questionnaires used and a selected bibliography are included." Special Libraries

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:1200 JI '52 30w

"This book is strong, perhaps harmful, medicine for those who theorize on supervision. In practical hands, it should be helpful." L. M. Powell

Management R 41:552 Ag '52 200w

Special Libraries 43:221 JI '52 50w

LARDNER, JOHN. Strong cigars and lovely women; drawings by Walt Kelly. 127p $2.50 Funk

817

51-14397

"Not quite serious commentaries on baseball, wrestling and similar topics, gathered from Lardner's 1949, 1950, and 1951 sports columns in Newsweek." Booklist

Booklist 48:141 D 15 '51

"Besides being able to read and write, which are rare accomplishments in his field, Mr. Lardner is a bonafide authority on many subjects." Red Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 30
'51 650w

"'Strong Cigars and Lovely Women' is John Lardner at his best, and Mr. Lardner at his best is very good, indeed." Richard Maney

+ N Y Times p15 D 30 '51 600w

"Readers who generally skip through the sports pages may be puzzled here and there as to just what is going on, but those who know their way around the paddock and the locker room and speak the language will have a high old time."

New Yorker 27:176 D 8 '51 100w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE. Day I died. 240p $2.75 Appleton

52-2936

Story of a man who, being indifferent to life, arranges with an underworld tycoon to have his life insured in return for $10,000 for a last fling. When life becomes more desirable Coyle is put to it to escape his lot.

Kirkus 20:477 Ag 1 '52 110w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 S 21
'52 150w

"Lariar's writing, even in his treatment of sex and sadism, is restrained and controlled as never before; and the suspense, as the four months draw to a close, builds to an impressive pitch. The only weakness is that Lariar has, in the beginning, drawn his hero too well: this is so obviously an all but psychopathic death-wisher that his conversion later into straight hero is unbelievable. Love may conquer all, but it is dubious if it can so simply take the place of psychoanalysis." Anthony Boucher

LARIAR, LAWRENCE.—Continued

+ — N Y Times p16 S 14 '52 140w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 28 '52 70w

"Wordiness sets drag on plot that strains credulity; stock characters largely on un-nice side. Fantastic." Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:40 S 13 '52 20w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE. Sunburned corpse [by] Adam Knight [pseud]. 215p $2.50 Crown
Detective story.

52-10773

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 N 23 '52 30w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p58 N 9 '52 30w

"While this story isn't as filthy as some other Knights, the empurpled abandon of the style may yet turn your stomach." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 9 '52 40w

"Not top-of-the-barrel." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:37 D 6 '52 20w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE. You can't catch me. 208p $2.50 Crown

51-14225

Detective story.

Kirkus 19:588 O 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 D 2 '51 140w

"Without a hint of distinction in plotting or style, it remains passably fast-paced and a trifle less revolting than the stories which Mr. Lariar turns out under the name of Adam Knight." Anthony Boucher

+ — N Y Times p12 D 16 '51 30w

"The only difference between this book's detective, Mike Wells, and about 25 other tough private eyes, is that Wells has some knowledge of painting and drawing." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 9 '51 60w

LARKIN, SARAH. Joan of Arc. 50p $2.75
Philosophical lib.

811 Jeanne d'Arc, Saint—Poetry 51-8788

"In her dark prison cell awaiting execution, the thoughts and experiences of the maid of Domrémy are recalled in [this] narrative poem. Emphasis is on what might have been Joan's own interpretation of what she accomplished and why she felt the compelling need to fight to save France." Springf'd Republican

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 9 '52 100w

Springf'd Republican p8D F 8 '52 70w

LARKIN, THOMAS OLIVER. Larkin papers; personal, business, and official correspondence of [the] merchant and United States consul in California; 10v; v. 1, 1822-1842; ed. by George P. Hammond; pub. for the Bancroft library. 352p $10; subs $9 Univ. of Calif. press

B or 92 California—History—Sources

The first volume in a series of the papers of Thomas Larkin, merchant and naval agent, who went to California in 1832. He shortly became the most influential merchant in Mexican California, and was the first and only United States consul in California.

"Dr. Hammond, the Bancroft Library, and the University of California Press are to be congratulated for this attractive and worthy first volume in a monumental series." D. E. Clark

+ Am Hist R 58:133 O '52 600w

Reviewed by Oscar Lewis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 J1 6 '52 480w

"The volumes to come are likely to contain material of more specific historical importance. . . It is this which will make this series of 'Larkin Papers' volumes a significant contribution to the knowledge of California's earlier period, and it is the reason why students and collectors will want to be sure they have the 10 volumes on their shelves. Because this is true, it may be worth while to note here that the 'Papers' are to be printed in an edition of 1000 copies only." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 F 24 '52 1100w

"The volume, financed in part by a subsidy from university funds, is a fine, almost an elaborate, example of the bookmaker's art. . . Except for the editor's excellent introduction and less than twenty footnotes of minor importance, most of which relate to textual details, the volume contains no editorial notes, comments, or explanations of any kind. The unhappy scholar, unless exceptionally well trained in this particular period of California history, will consequently find himself wandering among the scores of unidentified names and references which appear in the text, as lost and bewildered as a traveler who ventures without a guide or compass into an immense forest of unblazed trees." R. G. Cleland

Sat R 35:42 Je 14 '52 700w

"The launching of such an important project justifies some critical appraisal of the editorial policies decided upon. Unfortunately, these leave much to be desired. As exemplified in this volume, most serious is the omission of letters to or from Larkin not in the Bancroft Library. . . Surely the greater usefulness of a complete edition of the Larkin papers would more than justify the expense of searching for them. Also annoying is the failure to provide any documentation whatsoever."

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:158 Je '52 700w

LARKIN, THOMAS OLIVER. Larkin papers; personal, business, and official correspondence of [the] merchant and United States consul in California; ed. by George P. Hammond. 10v v2, 1843-1844; pub. for the Bancroft library. 362p $10; subs $9 Univ. of Calif. press

B or 92 California—History—Sources

The second volume of the correspondence of Thomas Larkin covers from the beginning of 1843 to the close of 1844. "In it California's astute and industrious merchant, journalist and United States Consul conducts his involved business affairs, looks after the interest of United States citizens within the province and, in a steady stream of letters to friends, dispatches to newspaper editors and official reports to the State Department, discusses political and economic trends on the west coast and shrewdly analyzes their significance." (N Y Herald Tribune Bk R)

"This printing of the voluminous Larkin manuscripts, now preserved in the Bancroft Library at Berkeley, is a major publishing venture. When it is completed it will run to ten volumes and make available to scholars and readers in general a mass of interesting and historically valuable material bearing on events in California during the action-packed decade of the 1840s." Oscar Lewis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 S 7 '52 150w

"In one notable respect the Larkin papers are a curiosity among manuscript collections. Larkin rarely bothered to make copies of the letters he wrote, save those relating to his duties for the United States Government. Since the Bancroft Library's collection was originally Larkin's own file, these papers, therefore, consist principally of incoming letters rather than of Larkin's own outgoing correspondence. . . This lack of balance makes one wonder whether Mr. Hammond was wise in deciding to print only the papers in Larkin's file, instead of instituting a search for all extant Larkin materials, wherever found today. . . A further question as to editorial policy stems from the fact that the documents are not annotated. A very helpful introduction to each volume gets the reader off to a good start, but thereafter he is on his own." R. W. Paul

N Y Times p16 S 7 '52 650w (Review of v 1-2)

"As with the earlier volume—and as will be the case with those to come—this is just the material of which history is put together. This volume carries as illustration a frontispiece reproduced from a lithograph of one of two water-color sketches of Monterey painted for Larkin in 1842 at the time of Commodore Jones' visit. As Dr. Hammond notes in his excellent introduction, the picture has added interest because Larkin himself made a numbered key for it, giving the names of many residents and the location of their homes." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 J1 13 '52 900w

LARRICK, NANCY. See for yourself; a first book of science experiments; il. by Frank Jupio. 47p $2.50; bds $2 Aladdin

507 Science—Juvenile literature 52-9335

Easy experiments for the six-to-nine-year-old. All the experiments have to do with air and water.

Booklist 48:363 J1 1 '52

Reviewed by R. C. Cowen

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 15 '52 40w

"A practical and interesting addition to our growing list of science books." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:184 Je '52 60w

Kirkus 20:281 My 1 '52 220w

"For many who have searched for diagrams and directions on how to make a pin wheel, this book will fill that need, too." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 77:907 My 15 '52 50w

Reviewed by B. D. Hurley

N Y Times p16 Ag 17 '52 60w

LARSEN, EGON. Men who changed the world; stories of invention and discovery. 224p il $3 Roy publs.

926 Inventors 52-11610

Contents: Alexander Graham Bell; Thomas Alva Edison; William Friese-Greene; Charles A. Parsons; John Boyd Dunlop; Guglielmo Marconi; Wilbur and Orville Wright; Henry Ford; Lord Rutherford; John Logie Baird; Sir Frank Whittle; Sir Robert Watson-Watt. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:73 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:416 J1 15 '52 130w

"This absorbing British import tells the stories of a dozen inventors. The setbacks of Bell and Edison are made engagingly laughable; their achievements and those of Marconi and the Wright brothers are both human and dramatic. . . Egon Larsen sometimes neglects dates and needed facts. . . And the absence of such basic modern inventions as electric and gasoline engines, the blast furnace, dynamo and vacuum tube makes the volume seem hastily thrown together. However, teen-agers not yet deep in science will enjoy it." Tom Galt

+ N Y Times pt2, p22 N 16 '52 170w

Sat R 35:72 N 15 '52 150w

LA RUE, MRS MABEL SCUDDER (GUIN-NIP). Tiny Toosey's birthday; pictures by Mary Stevens. 128p $2 Houghton

"A day's adventure for the large and amusing Toosey family is the subject of this latest addition to the publisher's Easy Reading Series. Jolly Mother Toosey takes all seven little Tooseys to the city to celebrate Tiny's birthday. It is an eventful day." N Y Times

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran

Atlantic 189:85 Je '52 130w

Booklist 48:237 Mr 15 '52

Kirkus 20:225 Ap 1 '52 120w

"Not for its literary value, but because beginning readers can handle this amusing story independently, this supplementary primer is recommended for libraries in need of easy reading material." H. E. Walker

+ Library J 77:539 Mr 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bachtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 11

'52 120w

"The book is practical and appealing. . . The entertaining story uses a scientifically tested vocabulary on the 6- and 7-year-old reading level." C. E. Van Norman

+ N Y Times p30 Mr 30 '52 140w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. Reflections on the constitution; the House of commons, the cabinet, the civil service. 220p $3 Viking

342.42 Great Britain. Constitution. Great Britain—Politics and government [51-6321]

"Shortly before his death in 1950, Professor Laski delivered the Simon Lectures at Manchester University. In these lectures, now published for the first time, he discussed the House of Commons, the Cabinet and the Civil Service, and this volume thus contains the final comments of a great political scientist and the only Socialist who has yet entered the first rank of analysts of the British Constitution." (New Statesman & Nation) Index.

Reviewed by Elaine Windrich

Am Pol Sci R 46:587 Je '52 250w

"The lectures that Professor Laski delivered at Manchester University in the month before his death have been published as they stood, and although some repetitions and awkwardnesses and one wrong date might have been removed in a revision of the text the decision was a proper one. For, in a way a more formal publication could not, they serve to remind us of the man as well as of his work." Max Beloff

Manchester Guardian p4 O 2 '51 360w

"Sometimes the logic is too sharp. . . He does, however, make a number of valuable suggestions of his own. I think he makes his case for a greater measure of parliamentary supervision of nationalised industries, by means of permanent committees of the House with statutory powers of enquiry." Norman MacKenzie

New Statesman & Nation 42:162 Ag 11 '51 850w

Reviewed by R. L. Schuyler

N Y Times p14 Ja 20 '52 480w

Times [London] Lit Sup p171 Mr 7 '52 550w

LASKI, MARGHANITA. Mrs Ewing, Mrs Molesworth and Mrs Hodgson Burnett. 121p $1.50 Oxford

928.2 Ewing, Juliana Horatia (Gatty). Molesworth, Mary Louisa (Stewart). Burnett, Frances (Hodgson) [51-5923]

"Discusses three writers of children's books. Their works, in the latter half of the nineteenth century, succeeded in delighting—as well as instructing—little Victorian boys and girls on both sides of the Atlantic. As background for the three ladies' careers Miss Laski sketches the growth of the tradition of children's reading in its four forms: the fabulous, the fantastical, the adventurous, and the didactic. It was the last of these genres that the three ladies (and their champion) are concerned with." Sat R

LASKI, MARGHANITA—Continued

Booklist 48:10 S 1 '51

"Here in a small capsule, is much food for thought. The main chapters are delightful biographical essays which present three Victorian writing ladies most humanly. . . One longs to quote at length and to answer at length. For Miss Laski's bitterness and satire are much needed yet she also needs to know better the wide and healthy and surely in part, non-materialistic range of the best American bookmaking for children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ja 20 '52 180w

"Crisply written little book. . . Miss Laski's account is consistently enjoyable as reading and as instruction. She is, however, over-emphatic on two counts—in the opinion of this reviewer. She assumes that the moral virtues inculcated through a child's reading will help him lead a virtuous life; but, alas, his experience in a world of men who do not inhabit story books probably exerts a far more powerful effect. Then too, she has an exalted opinion of the literary stature of her three ladies." Robert Halsband

+ — Sat R 35:33 Mr 29 '52 230w

LASKI, MARGHANITA. The village. 280p $3 Houghton

52-1234

Present-day England is the scene of this novel of snobbery. The Trevors, members of the professional class, were bitterly poor and had two daughters to educate. The Wilsons had much more money, but Mrs Wilson had once worked for the Trevors. When the Trevors' older daughter fell in love with the Wilsons' only son, there was opposition on both sides. A piece of well-timed advice saved the day for the young people.

"As a love story, Miss Laski's novel is rather small beer; but as a study of mores at the beginning of Britain's social revolution it is moderately interesting. The plot moves along in a pleasant, crisply competent way, and you find yourself getting quite steamed up over the drama of love versus caste."

+ — Atlantic 190:88 J1 '52 150w

Booklist 48:257; 265 Ap 15 '52

Bookmark 11:210 Je '52 20w

"The Village is a most perceptive comedy of manners in the English tradition. It delineates, quite without the waspishness and rancor of so many current novels from England, the quiet but implacable social revolution which is now taking place within that tradition." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:474 S '52 360w

Reviewed by V. P. Hass

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 1 '52 270w

Kirkus 20:167 Mr 1 '52 200w

"Miss Laski skillfully epitomizes, in a portrayal of post-war village life, problems of English class consciousness. . . Obviously 'angled' leftward, nevertheless provocative and interest-sustaining." R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:791 My 1 '52 130w

"A great success," Elizabeth Jenkins

+ Manchester Guardian p4 F 1 '52 100w

"Marghanita Laski has made an excellent picture of England in transition and of an English social class caught slipping and falling into the class below. Besides that, 'The Village' offers a pleasant and appealing story of young love." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Je 15 '52 600w

"On the whole Miss Laski's reporting is objective, although the sturdy common sense of the Wilsons rises triumphantly over all the other forces in the book. If the author started out to prove that England belongs to the Wilsons, she has made an effective and delightful case for them." Isabelle Mallet

+ N Y Times p5 Je 1 '52 480w

New York 28:96 My 31 '52 50w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 3 '52 450w

"There are some entertaining scenes in the book, reminiscent at times of Angela Thirkell or even of the famous Lucia stories of E. F. Benson; but Miss Laski has not the wit nor indignation of Mrs. Thirkell, nor the scrupulous, scientific curiosity of Mr. Benson. She does not, indeed, seem very interested in her own puppets; she may have studied English village people, but she writes about them as a foreigner on a visit, politely treated but never really accepted by these difficult, doughty natives." R. E. Roberts

Sat R 35:36 J1 19 '52 450w

"How powerful is snobbery today? Miss Laski shows us a life poisoned by it, and the generic title of her book would seem to imply that she regretfully looks on her Wendy as a type. . . Miss Laski nowhere suggests that she approves of this attitude, and her Wendy is, except in the first chapter, cheap, unpleasant and stupid. What troubles me is that I have no means of judging how real the theme is. . . The book is beautifully written, faithful in detail, and Miss Laski has a lovely ear for dialogue. . . I daresay I am being obtuse about the theme. If so, I point in excuse to the title. If the book was called 'One unpleasant woman in one unpleasant village,' my perplexity would disappear." L. A. G. Strong

Spec 188:152 F 1 '52 550w

Springf'd Republican p6D J1 27 '52 70w

"It is all rather lacking in understanding of how life is lived in the country."

Times [London] Lit Sup p89 F 1 '52 240w

Wis Lib Bul 48:173 J1 '52

LASSAIGNE, JACQUES. Spanish painting; [v. 1] From the Catalan frescoes to El Greco; tr. by Stuart Gilbert. 138p 71 col il $15 Skira

759.6 Painting, Spanish 52-10110

"The first of two volumes on Spanish painting. Richly illustrated with 71 reproductions in full color, volume one begins with Romanesque art of mural painting. Text and illustrations treat the primitive frescos which adorned early churches and chapels of Catalonia. The limitations and formalizations of the Byzantine tradition prevailed amongst the Spanish artisan-painters. They illustrated Scripture with graphic clarity. Subsequently, painting responded to observations of the real world, and influences shifted from monastic to secular. . . The Renaissance reaches a culmination in the mastery of that Spaniard by adoption, El Greco." Christian Science Monitor

"Like its predecessors, Italian Painting of the Middle Ages and of the Renaissance, this latest Skira art book is unusual for the number of its excellent reproductions, its scholarly historical text and its wealth of biographic detail and bibliographic reference." J. K. Sharp

+ Cath World 175:397 Ag '52 340w

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow

Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 12 '52 350w

"In general the tones of the plates are too strong but otherwise relatively accurate. Most of the work is reproduced here in color for the first time, and except for the El Grecos few color plates of even similar things have been available. The contribution is therefore considerable, particularly as Spanish art has too long been neglected as a merely provincial echo of other schools. . . The text by Lassaigne, which is well translated, gives a useful summary of the history of the subject. It is almost devoid, however, of original observations." S. L. Paison

+ — Nation 175:156 Ag 23 '52 600w

"Of 'Spanish Painting,' first in a two-volume survey of the field projected by the publishers, the high quality of its color plates is but one of many merits. Another is the freshness of the material presented. It is not altogether clear whether the author, a noted European art authority, is himself in large measure responsible for the vast amount of original research which distinguishes the book, or whether his was primarily the task of a scholar assembling and correlating the available information. In any event it is information so recently uncovered that most of it, even to students and teachers of art, will prove both new and stimulating." Emily Genauer

+ N Y Herald Tribune BK R p6 Ag 10 '52 700w

Reviewed by V. J. Papanek

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ag 17 '52 350w

"The present work is so remarkable for its illustrations that it might be reviewed on the sole basis of these extraordinary color plates. The preceding volumes on art history that the firm of Skira has published set a new standard for efficiency in color printing, especially as regards the greatly reduced scale necessitated by the size of books. This one outdoes its predecessors in the matter of accuracy and attractiveness. Though I retract nothing from warnings I have previously given as to the danger of judging from reproductions, I can state that this volume marks the nearest we have yet come to giving the effect of originals." Walter Pach

+ Sat R 35:37 J1 5 '52 700w

LATHAM, EARL. Group basis of politics; a study in basing-point legislation; published for Amherst college. 244p $3.75 Cornell univ. press

338.523 Prices 52-$890

"This book is a study of the struggle in the Eightieth and Eighty-first Congresses to enact legislation dealing with the basing-point system of quoting delivered prices, which has been widely practiced in industries producing fungible goods, bulky in character, and normally delivered by railroad. The struggle to enact such legislation did not end with these sessions, but the principal alignments were marked out at this time, and the chief arguments for and against were stated." (Pref) Index.

Foreign Affairs 31:157 O '52 30w

"The book is a valuable study of the political life of one group, containing a very good analysis of the Cement Institute as a private government and a useful account of a legislative battle in its behalf in the Congress of the United States. However, when Mr. Latham attempts to generalize he goes little beyond saying that organization is power and there is no power without organization." D. H. Riddle

+ — Nation 175:136 Ag 16 '52 800w

"As a case study, the book has value for all those concerned with understanding the governmental process. Since it moves from generalization to concrete analysis, the study should, incidentally, be of special interest to foreign observers hopeful of comprehending the intricacies of American politics."

+ U S Quarterly BK R 8:170 Je '52 250w

LATHAM, EDWARD, ed. Crisis in the Middle East. (Reference shelf, v24) 189p $1.75 Wilson, H.W.

956 East (Near East). International relations 52-6760

"Another in the series of Reference Shelf books, this little volume summarizes the various problems of the Middle East: its relations with the West, the menace of the Soviet Union; internal problems; Israeli-Arab relations, and inter-Arab relations. As usual varying points of view are presented, some of them highly controversial, giving a necessarily brief but comprehensive picture of the situation." Current Hist

Booklist 49:34 S 15 '52

Current Hist 23:272 O '52 40w

LATHAM, FRANK BROWN. Jed Smith, trail blazer; il. by Frank Murch. (American heritage ser) 192p $1.75; school ed $1.59 Aladdin

R or 92 Smith, Jedediah Strong—Juvenile literature 52-11819

"The true story of famous Jed Smith among whose firsts were the entry into California from the East and journey outward over the Sierra Nevadas, and the crossing of the Great Salt Lake. His sufferings, hardships and quiet leadership receive a reliable treatment here." (Kirkus) Ages 10 to 12.

+ Kirkus 20:557 S 1 '52 60w

"Good format, good sound ethics, simply, but well written. Recommended for all libraries, especially for slow readers." Harriet Morrison

+ Library J 77:1823 O 15 '52 40w

"If you have no other life of this pioneer, this one will do as introduction. There is a fine, adequate map on the endpapers." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 S 28 '52 30w

Reviewed by M. P. Allen

Sat R 35:45 O 11 '52 40w

LATHAM, PHILIP, pseud. See Robinson, R. S.

LATOURETTE, KENNETH SCOTT. American record in the Far East, 1945-1951. 208p $3 Macmillan

950 Eastern question (Far East). U.S.—Foreign relations—Asia 52-12394

"Drawing upon a scholar's background of teaching in both China and the United States, Professor Latourette has analyzed United States policy in Asia in a book which he describes as being written for the amateur. . . He has come forward with an analysis which cuts through the confusion and emotion of debate over Asian policies and which offers much to be weighed and understood by both amateur and expert." Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 49:87 N 1 '52

Reviewed by Walter Simmons

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 5 '52 50w

"The author has tackled one of the most difficult and controversial subjects connected with United States foreign policy. He has handled his subject matter with rare perspective and refreshing courage." Gordon Walker

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 9 '52 800w

Kirkus 20:295 My 1 '52 240w

"This survey is one of the neatest jobs on the market. . . Very highly recommended as a sane, objective appraisal." H. P. Linton

+ Library J 77:1009 Je 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by C. M. Wilbur

Nation 175:610 D 27 '52 500w

"This is admittedly a book for the general reader, not the expert. . . Unfortunately it is written in a rather limp prose. Too often it merely poses, with however admirable a humility, alternative explanations or possibilities without thoroughly analyzing their respective merits or shortcomings; as a result, the reader is sometimes left to make his own choice without being given enough data on which to base it. For all that, however, it is an honest and informative book." H. C. Hinton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 21 '52 550w

"It is a book for all those who want a fair, unimpassioned and entirely objective presentation of the facts about our Far Eastern policy, and that is exactly what all American citizens should be seeking." E. O. Reischauer

+ N Y Times p6 S 14 '52 800w

"Though it is tempting to quote at length, that would be unfair to the writer, whose book deserves wide and thoughtful reading. . . Dr. Latourette supplies us with cold, quiet, objective, solid facts, well indexed, with helpful chapter bibliographies, if we really seek to know the record." E. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 S 28 '52 420w

LATOURETTE, K. S.—Continued

"Aloof and eminently fair summary of the events in the Far Pacific since the Japanese surrender." Hallett Abend

+ Sat R 35:27 O 4 '52 700w

Reviewed by Rupert Emerson

Yale R ns 42:284 winter '53 500w

LATROBE, BENJAMIN HENRY. Impressions respecting New Orleans; diary and sketches, 1818-1820; ed. with an introd. and notes by Samuel Wilson, jr. 196p il pl col pl $8.75 Columbia univ. press

976.335 [917.6335] New Orleans 51-8408

Latrobe was an English-born architect and engineer who was responsible for the Greek revival in building in the United States in the early nineteenth century. In 1818 he went to New Orleans to finish a project started by his oldest son. Intrigued by all he saw he began writing his impressions and making sketches in a series of little notebooks. In 1820 he died of yellow fever, and all but one of his notebooks were preserved by his family. This book is a new edition of these notebooks with explanatory notes by the editor.

Reviewed by Ella Lonn

+ Am Hist R 57:1063 J1 '52 400w

"These impressions respecting New Orleans are too keen to be buried in the bookshelves of our antiquarians. If the America of a century and a half ago is worth understanding, Latrobe is worth reading, not by scholars alone, but by what should be a larger audience." Wayne Andrews

+ Commonweal 55:453 F 8 '52 750w

Kirkus 19:477 Ag 15 '51 180w

"Recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 77:1198 J1 '52 70w

"Mr. Wilson, a New Orleans architect who lectures at Tulane, has done a splendid job, conscientious and intelligent, making a useful index and voluminous footnotes. These represented a considerable extra undertaking and took him well out of his field, but the mistakes are very few. His biographical preface is also excellent. Even in the illustrations Mr. Wilson has hewed close to his originals, usually retaining the size and colors and reproducing not only the charming formal drawings Latrobe made in New Orleans but the quick, rough sketches with which he spattered his written word." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ja 20 '52 700w

"The volume, a handsome one, is admirably illustrated by offset reproductions of the diarist's own sketches. They provide in themselves a unique record of the old city as it appeared on the eve of its greatest development. . . The diary was first printed forty-six years ago, but that incomplete version has long been out of print. The present printing will remain the standard edition." M. B. Davidson

+ N Y Times p5 D 16 '51 1000w

"His reflections are those of a mature, distinguished and magnanimous mind. In detail, they reflect the spirit of the time and in the larger issues their application is universal. The reproduction of Latrobe's sketches adds greatly to the charm of the book." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 F 17 '52 240w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:7 Mr '52 250w

LAUER, BYRON ELMER, and HECKMAN, RUSSELL F. Chemical engineering techniques. 496p il $6 Reinhold

660.28 Chemical engineering 52-8167

"An unusual treatment in which methods and equipment for handling materials, measuring and proportioning them, separating them, and packaging them are covered rather than unit processes. The expository matter is practically all descriptive and is almost devoid of mathematics and chemical formulas. Types of equipment are described in general and a selected few are shown in the illustrations, but the authors have not attempted to describe particular makes or even typical installations. The book is suitable for use as a supplementary text in college courses and as a general survey for manufacturers and graduate chemical engineers." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by W. L. Badger

Chem & Eng N 30:4308 O 13 '52 170w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1516 S 15 '52 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:51 J1 '52

LAUFERTY, LILIAN (MRS JAMES WOLFE).

God keeps an open house. 246p $3 Bobbs

248 Psychology, Religious 52-6642

"The basic affirmation of the author is that the finding of God will bring 'spiritual truth and material happiness.' The three steps in attaining these goals are: first, build a philosophy of life on the recognition that God is good and God is all; second, reject belief in any malicious power working in opposition to God; and third, remember that God is 'always positive, never negative, always creative, never destructive.' . . . In the better known aspect of her authorship Lilian Lauferty is Beatrice Fairfax, famous for her 'advice for the love-lorn.'" Christian Century

Christian Century 69:925 Ag 13 '52 80w

"The very chattiness of the book offers something of a pitfall. So diverting and sparkling is the writing that the actual depth and implications of her ideas might easily be skimmed over by the superficial or indiscriminating reader." DeWitt John

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 My 1 '52 700w

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 24 '52 240w

LAURENCE, JOHN, pseud. See McCauley, L. J.

LAURENT-CELY, JACQUES (CECIL SAINT-LAURENT, pseud.) Caroline chérie; tr. from the French by Lawrence G. Blochman. 314p $3.50 Prentice-Hall

52-1578

"The narrative carries blue-eyed and blonde Caroline de Bièvre, of aristocratic antecedents, through the maelstrom of social change in France from around 1788, eve of the Revolution, to 1794, approximate end of the Terror." N Y Times

"As the dust jacket puts it, Caroline 'takes her place in the select company of Amber, Kitty and Duchess Hotspur.' This is a book of filth; there is no other word for it." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:394 Ag '52 120w

Reviewed by Richard Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 My 11 '52 260w

Kirkus 20:132 F 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by Henry Cavendish

N Y Times p15 Je 1 '52 160w

Time 59:108 Ap 28 '52 330w

LAVER, JAMES, ed. Costume of the western world. See Costume of the western world

LAVER, JAMES. Drama: its costume and décor. 276p il $5.75 Studio

792.02 Costume, Theaters—Stage setting and scenery [52-7386]

"The author is a member of the staff of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London, where much of the finest theatrical material in the world is collected. He presents a scholarly description of the development of costuming and scenery from its origin with the Greeks and the Romans to the latest and most modern trends. Some 200 plates illustrate the text, and in themselves constitute a history of theatrical décor." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:225 Mr 15 '52

Reviewed by Harold Hobson
Christian Science Monitor p5 D 27 '51
10w

"Recommended for large university and public collections only." George Freedley

Library J 77:721 Ap 15 '52 70w

Sat R 35:28 Jl 5 '52 20w

"In all, this book brings forward an array of over 200 illustrations, and the fact that they are so widely representative of the theatre's history testifies amply to the immense resources, both in original material and in photographic reproduction, of the collections in the Victoria and Albert—from which the majority are taken. Many of them have never been hitherto reproduced, and for these illustrations alone this 'Studio' volume would be a valuable contribution to the theatre's record." Allardyce Nicoll

+ Spec. 188:51 Ja 11 '52 850w

"An excellent book." Richard McLaughlin

+ Theatre Arts 36:4 Ap '52 250w

"When Mr. Laver has stated his case and comes to the business on hand—the historical pageant of costume and stage design—we feel that we are in the hands of an able and trusted guide. . . His erudite and beautiful book makes it clear that there is nothing new—or unattainable—under the limelight."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p834 D 28 '51
800w

LAVRIN, JANKO. Nikolai Gogol, 1809-1852; a centenary survey. 174p $2.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Gogol', Nikolaï Vasil'evich

[52-8882]

"Professor Lavrin has collected the various essays he has written on Gogol during the last twenty-five years, and added some new material, for this short centenary volume. It is a useful and precise consideration of Gogol's mysterious character, his growth as a novelist and playwright and the final confusion and calamity." New Statesman & Nation

"As a tribute to the genius of Gogol, a hundred years after his death, Professor Lavrin's brief survey of his life and work is welcome since it is almost the only notice anyone has taken of the event. It is welcome also in that it raises the number of books in English about Gogol to almost half a dozen." Hubert Creekmore

+ Nation 174:587 Je 14 '52 410w

Reviewed by Edmund Wilson
Nation 175:520 D 6 '52 1850w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 43:468 Ap 19 '52 850w

"Mr. Lavrin displays a fine understanding of Gogol's conflict, and he describes the events so vividly that his book, aside from its value as literary criticism, is a moving document of human frailty and grandeur." Rene Fuelleop-Miller

+ N Y Times p6 Je 1 '52 750w

"The criticism and biography are exceptionally well integrated, without the lumpiness that often spoils studies of life and works. Part of this comes from Gogol's own integration (a paradox of disintegration), but most of it comes from Professor Lavrin's literary and critical skill." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R 35:31 Ag 23 '52 270w

Time 59:114 Ap 21 '52 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p140 F 22 '52
1850w

LAWFORD, GIOVANNA CALASTRI. Human frame; with a foreword by Margaret Mead. 95p il $3 Duell; Little

611 Anatomy, Human. Bones 52-5861

Simple line drawings and non-technical text describes the various bones of the skeleton and how they are united. The author is a Florentine, daughter of a sculptor, who married an American architect and came to this country in 1932. This book was written especially for the instruction of her two daughters.

"Admirable for use with any age from eight or nine up. We think young would-be doctors will be fascinated." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p30
N 16 '52 40w

"The drawings [are] done with a beautiful simplicity of line that would do credit to an Italian master of the Renaissance. . . Students of art or anatomy will appreciate Mrs. Lawford's book, and, as she intended, it is especially suited for the instruction of children." J. A.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 9 '52
80w

School and Society 75:110 F 16 '52 10w
Wis Lib Bul 48:88 Mr '52

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. The later D. H. Lawrence; with introductions, by William York Tindall. 449p $5 Knopf

51-11982

A collection of stories and essays written during the last six or seven years of Lawrence's life, including the novels: St. Mawr, and The Man Who Died; the short stories, The woman who rode away, and Sun; and stories and essays from Mornings in Mexico, Assorted Articles; and Reflections on the Death of a Porcupine.

Booklist 48:297 My 15 '52

Kirkus 20:12 Ja 1 '52 100w

"Much that Lawrence has written is now out of print, so this will give libraries a good chance to acquire a representative volume of his work. Recommended." Shirley Barker

+ Library J 77:431 Mr 1 '52 110w

Reviewed by Mark Schorer
New Repub 126:17 Ap 7 '52 1150w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 Ap 27 '52 270w

"Unfortunately, this book does not represent the actual 'best' of Lawrence's fourth and final period, for Mr. Tindall has not drawn upon several important works of that phase. . . However, except for neglecting 'Pornography and Obscenity,' Mr. Tindall has done valuable resurrectionary work in his own publisher's boneyard. Mr. Tindall's introductions, to the book itself and to its five sections, are for the most part neatly informative, with useful observations on myth and symbols in Lawrence." H. T. Moore

+ — N Y Times p5 Mr 9 '52 550w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Je 16 '52
600w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R 35:43 My 10 '52 320w

LAWRENCE, ISABELLE. Night watch; adventure with Rembrandt; il. by Manning de V. Lee. 272p $2.75 Rand McNally

Rembrandt Hermanszoon van Rijn—Juvenile literature 52-7502

Story of Amsterdam in the days of Rembrandt's rise to fame, and his happy marriage to Saskia. It is told thru the experiences of two of Rembrandt's young apprentices, and tells about their rescue of a little English girl whose father was in Holland on a secret mission. For grades 7-9.

Booklist 48:384 Jl 15 '52

"This is a long, full tale and a good one." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Je 15 '52
230w

"Out of an abundance of sharp and homely details the period is vividly reconstructed, with Rembrandt's happy home life, his intense concentration in painting, and some of his advice on art presented naturally." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:240 Ag '52 120w

LAWRENCE, ISABELLE—Continued

"Accurately detailed, romantically stylized."

+ Kirkus 20:282 My 1 '52 170w

"The story has value in its excellent characterization and vivid picture of the social and political happenings of the day." Elizabeth Burr

+ Library J 77:1212 Jl '52 60w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p16 N 16 '52 50w

"For some reason stories about famous artists (and biographies, too) are rather rare in juvenile literature. It is seldom, indeed, that we have as full-bodied a story of this kind as Isabelle Lawrence's story of Rembrandt and his household. It is, perhaps, just a little too full-bodied in that it is overlong for the average young reader and the complicated plot turns too often on coincidence, but it is a vigorous tale, warmly human and richly colored." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p18 Je 29 '52 200w

Wis Lib Bul 48:179 Jl '52

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE (MRS ARTHUR PLATZ). Song in the night. 348p $3.50 Morrow

52-7498

Lissa Miller had lost one son in World war II, and is faced by the possibility of losing the second. As she is praying at a Christmas mass in the Episcopal church, certain words of the priest give her inspiration to work for peace in her own family.

Booklist 48:298 My 15 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:315 Jl '52 110w

Reviewed by K. Smith

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 29 '52 240w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '52 20w

Kirkus 20:137 F 15 '52 170w

"The peculiar limitations of 'Song in the Night' arise out of the fact that Miss Lawrence, apparently eager to be of use to women who crave peace in the midst of war and feel, helplessly, that there is nothing they can do, is in altogether too purposeful a mood to produce truly good fiction. One other, minor complaint . . . the novel is so chock full of small, familiar domestic items calculated to please women readers that . . . 'Song in the Night' bears more resemblance to an attractive gift shop crowded with sentimentally appealing objects than it does to an authentic house of life." F. H. Bullock

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 My 18 '52 700w

Reviewed by Nancy Lenkeith

N Y Times p16 Je 29 '52 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p28 My 25 '52 350w

"Miss Lawrence continues in her latest novel to handle the problems of people in the world of today with a brisk matter-of-fact efficiency that is refreshing even if it sometimes makes everything work out a little too neatly and too easily."

+ Sat R 35:19 My 10 '52 150w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p4C Ag 31 '52 170w

Reviewed by M. J. Butcher

Survey 88:230 My '52 290w

LAWRENCE, MRS MILDRED. Crissy at the wheel; il. by Marvin Bileck. 200p $2.50 Harcourt

52-6904

A story for girls about the early days of the automobile, based in part on the author's memories of her home town, Flint, Michigan.

Booklist 49:52 O 1 '52

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 176:205 D '52 20w

Commonweal 57:171 N 21 '52 30w

"Crissy's tomboyish sense of humor and her ingenuity as Papa's assistant salesman give fresh twists to a story that holds enlightening fun for the granddaughters of that generation." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:322 O '52 50w

Kirkus 20:601 S 15 '52 80w

"Good characterization and enough humor to make an appealing story for girls of 12-14." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 77:1910 N 1 '52 40w

"This is a lively story based on facts which do not get in the way of the action. Marvin Bileck's drawings are free in execution and accurate in detail." Marjorie Fischer

+ N Y Times p32 S 21 '52 180w

"It paints an important era in American history with humor and understanding. Crissy herself, like 'Tallie,' is a thoroughly satisfying heroine."

+ Sat R 35:56 N 15 '52 200w

LAWRENCE, THOMAS EDWARD, later THOMAS EDWARD SHAW. Essential T. E. Lawrence; selected, with a pref., by David Garnett. 328p $3.75 Dutton

B or 92

51-14418

"Mr. Garnett has arranged this selection from T. E. Lawrence's work biographically; letters, diaries, memoranda and so on intersperse passages from The Seven Pillars of Wisdom and The Mint. The emphasis is thus on Lawrence as a personage rather than on Lawrence as a writer, and this emphasis is undoubtedly correct; it was Lawrence's character that made his prose interesting, and not the other way round." Spec

Booklist 48:158 Ja 1 '52

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett

New Statesman & Nation 41:480 Ap 28 '51 2450w

"The object of the work is to explain and portray Lawrence in his own words, with a little assistance from outside commentators. If this aim has not been completely realized, the book is nevertheless the clearest picture of him yet achieved."

New Yorker 27:74 Ja 5 '52 190w

Reviewed by Edward Hodgkin

Spec 185:528 Ap 20 '51 750w

Time 58:112 D 10 '51 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p340 Je 1 '51 2750w

LAWSON, ROBERT. Edward, Hoppy and Joe; il. [by the author]. 122p $2.50 Knopf

52-8590

Amusing story about the education of a young rabbit, who had to learn the hard way. For ages six to ten.

Booklist 48:303 My 15 '52

Boonmark 11:186 My '52

"This is Robert Lawson at his very best, giving us in an engaging story with inimitable pictures more unforgettable animal characters to place alongside those in 'Rabbit Hill.' Loveable, mischievous and wise—they will be loved by small children everywhere. And their elders will find this a fine book for reading aloud." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Ap 6 '52 220w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 15 '52 40w

"Mr. Lawson will probably never create another rabbit to equal his Georgie of Rabbit Hill, but Edward is a lively fellow in his own right; and the story of his education (which proves to be anything but monotonous) will delight six-to-ten-year-olds." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:107 Ap '52 100w

Kirkus 20:224 Ap 1 '52 180w

"A wonderful read-aloud book. Recommended." N. L. Rathbun

+ Library J 77:907 My 15 '52 70w

"It is a book funny and purposeful, rabbitly and human, a neat mixture with plenty of those satiric touches on the young level which Mr. Lawson knows so well how to do. The pictures are this favorite artist at his best, which is to say they are wonderful. Parents will enjoy reading it aloud, and boys and girls of about eight to ten will chuckle over it alone." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 My 11 '52 200w

"Obviously, Edward and his family are kin to the memorable inhabitants of 'Rabbit Hill.' Their story isn't so poetic as was that earlier one, but it has its own pleasant absurdity, underlaid with sly humor, and is, of course, illustrated in Mr. Lawson's usual sprightly style." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p22 Ap 13 '52 150w

Sat R 35:38 Ag 16 '52 120w

"Although purposeful, the book is funny, knowledgeable about wildlife, and different in tone from other talking animal stories."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:260 S '52 90w

Wis Lib Bul 48:174 Jl '52

LEA, TOM. Wonderful country; with drawings by the author. 387p $3.75 Little

52-9093

When the hero, Martin Brady, fled from his native Texas as a boy because he had killed his father's murderer, he found sanctuary in Mexico, where he grew up. Later he turned Texas Ranger and became his own man again. The time is some seventy years ago.

"There are qualities in this book which make it an exceptional Western. . . Secondly, I am much taken with the Remington-like brush strokes of Mr. Lea's prose as he draws the vast, colorful background of the Mexican province of Chihuahua. . . Last, but not least, are the superb black-and-whites in which the author has depicted the great horse Lágrimas, the character of Puerto, the little border town, and those symbols of Mexico which so long held Martin captive." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 190:100 N '52 340w

Booklist 49:81; 105 N 1 '52; N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:56 D '52 40w

"In the beginning the simplicity of the style almost suggests that one is reading a juvenile. But a bit later frank language and one or two briefly described situations indicate that The Wonderful Country is intended for an adult audience. This is the second novel by an artist turned writer, and again the author's illustrations carry authority and flavor." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 176:314 Ja '53 200w

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 16 '52 280w

"That it will have the commercial success it deserves with the audience addicted to superior adventure and Western yarns is undoubted, but that it is also a satisfying think-piece and solid enjoyment for a more discriminating audience is pure gravy and a free gift from a fine writer." John McKeon

+ Commonweal 57:147 N 14 '52 800w

Kirkus 20:565 S 1 '52 200w

"An innocuous piece of writing which permits little to be said either for or against it. . . The author is at his best when describing the Mexican countryside or scenes of action. His plot however, is weak and of little consequence." J. E. Brown

Library J 77:1897 N 1 '52 40w

"It will be a rare experience for the young person who reads it, come what may."

+ Library J 77:2189 D 15 '52 60w

"He has been studying the art of writing, which he took up so recently, and has considerably increased his technical range. . . 'The Wonderful Country' is packed with action. There is some lively and credible combat in it. There are real characters. There are passages of splendid writing." Oliver La Farge

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 16 '52 360w

"Mr. Lea knows the country well and writes beautifully of it from love and an identification with it. . . Mr. Lea's own extremely skillful black-and-white drawings decorate his book." Harry Sylvester

+ N Y Times p7 N 16 '52 600w

New Yorker 28:185 N 15 '52 800w

"It may be that this is a man's book chiefly. There is a love story, but it is no more than suggested—a concession, perhaps, to tradition in story telling. But there is marvelous action throughout; the Apache fight, for example, is tremendous. What it amounts to, really, is an extraordinarily well written costume-piece of 'Western' in essence, but far and away past what one has come to think of as a 'Western.'" J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 11 '52 900w

"No one can read Tom Lea's second novel understandingly without sharing this exhilarating, indeed this magical, feeling for life. For Tom Lea is the Cézanne among our current novelists: he sees deeply, and he sees the mystery that underlies all patterns." Lon Tinkle

+ Sat R 35:13 N 15 '52 700w

Time 60:122 N 17 '52 240w

LEACH, JOSEPH. Typical Texan; biography of an American myth. 192p il $5 Univ. press in Dallas

976.4 Texas. Folklore—Texas 52-11833

"It was early writers [about Texas] says Joseph Leach, who made culture heroes of Crockett and Bowie and Bigfoot Wallace and thereby created the 'typical Texan.' Mr. Leach, who is on the faculty of Texas Western College in El Paso, presents his case by quoting at length from early histories, novels, biographies, long-forgotten melodramas, and the 'Davy Crockett Almanacks' wherein one finds the genesis of Texas brag, the original tall tales in which the true Texan delights." N Y Times

"Although Mr. Leach's method is not analytical, he is admirably thorough in bibliography and documentation. It is not likely that he has missed any important items of comment upon Texan character before the Civil War."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p32 D 7 '52 250w

"Excellent contribution to the lore of [the author's] native state." Hoffman Birney

+ N Y Times p22 O 19 '52 260w

"This book is recommended as complementary reading with Edna Ferber's recent violent reaction to the American myth of the typical Texan." W. H. Hutchinson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 2 '52 300w

LEACH, MARIA. Turnspit dog; il. by Winifred Bromhall. [43p] $1.75; lib ed $2.25 Aladdin

Dogs—Legends and stories

Story of Puritan New England. The turnspit dog was the dog who turned the wheel of the spit on which meat was roasted. Abiah, the little eight-year-old girl of the family wanted the little dog for her own, and this book for ages 6 to 9 tells how she succeeded in having her way.

Booklist 48:345 Je 15 '52

"A delightfully childlike and simple story, with a background of colonial living that is pleasingly illustrated on every page." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:239 Ag '52 100w

Kirkus 20:279 My 1 '52 130w

"Delightful easy-to-read Pilgrim story." Helen Perdue

+ Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 80w

"It is a charming introduction to the ways of long-ago America for readers of about nine, with the big type arranged in easy-reading pattern." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 8 '52 100w

LEACH, MARIA—Continued

"The slightly 'period' style is not too hard for second-graders to assimilate, and the illustrations are appropriate in their quiet simplicity." Miriam James

+ N Y Times p28 My 25 '52 130w

LEARSI, RUFUS, pseud. See Goldberg, I.

LEASE, RUTH, and SIKS, GERALDINE BRAIN. Creative dramatics in home, school, and community. 306p $4; college ed $3 Harper

371.33 Drama in education 51-11933

"This volume for parents, teachers and community workers interprets the philosophy of dramatic play and explains the techniques of creative teaching. Material for dramatization, dramatic play and pantomimes, bibliography, index." Bookmark

Booklist 48:242 Ap 1 '52

"Original and suggestive."

+ Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 30w

Reviewed by F. D. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 23 '52 80w

"A fine chapter on the leader, and helpful lists of material for dramatization round out the subject."

+ Christian Science Monitor p23 D 6 '52 120w

"Anyone who is in contact with children will appreciate reading this volume and will find it useful as a handbook in helping children to learn to live together." C. S. Stillman

+ El School J 53:119 O '52 440w

"Recommended for children's and theatre collections." George Freedy

+ Library J 77:534 Mr 15 '52 30w

School & Society 75:94 F 9 '52 20w

LEAVITT, DOROTHY. Adventure on the Tennessee. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 195p il $2.75 Little

52-5022

The Cabitor children, who appeared in Adventure on the Potomac (Book Review Digest 1949) now explore the TVA with their Congressman father. They learn about the TVA dams and how they have helped the farmers, have a glimpse of life in the mountain regions, and travel down the Tennessee on a packet boat. For ages 10 to 14.

"The children are stock models of eager front row scholars, and what story interest there is seems thinly dispersed. Competent presentation of the salient facts."

+ Kirkus 20:31 Ja 15 '52 210w

"Not only pleasant reading for 10-14-year-olds, but contains much information about interesting people and places along the route. . . Recommended." Averil Randall

+ Library J 77:602 Ap 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 13 '52 40w

"The material is interesting and authentic, but the book reads, for the most part, like a guidebook. It should be helpful to tourists and as background for social studies projects." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p24 My 18 '52 70w

LEE, ALFRED MCCLUNG. How to understand propaganda. 281p $4; text ed $3 Rinehart

301.152 [301.154] Propaganda 52-5610

"A thoughtful probing of modern propaganda—what it is, how it can be recognized, and how it affects present day society. The author, a former director of the Institute for Propaganda Analysis, does not adhere to the popular conception of propaganda as being all evil, but he does envisage the techniques of propaganda as producing a dangerous state of orthodoxy wherein the individual is unable to think for himself. The book is addressed to consumers of propaganda, and is profusely illustrated with excerpts from the popular press." (Library J) Index.

"This is a probing, well-documented study of the build-up and impact of propaganda as it is used to achieve both good and bad political, economic, and social ends and enhanced sales of products." D. D. Bromley

+ Ann Am Acad 284:183 N '52 300w

Booklist 49:42 O 1 '52

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 9 '52 80w

"It will appeal primarily to students of psychology and sociology, rather than to the casual reader." J. E. Brown

Library J 77:1658 O 1 '52 90w

LEE, CLARK GOULD, and HENSCHEL, RICHARD. Douglas MacArthur. 370p il $6 Holt

B or 92 MacArthur, Douglas

52-6147

An informal biography of Douglas MacArthur from birth to his dismissal, supplemented with over 130 pages of photographs, illustrating every phase of his life. Index.

Booklist 48:153; 184 Ja 1 '52; F 1 '52

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 40w

"Of all the MacArthur books, this certainly is the biggest, the most fairly balanced, and the best." Walter Simmons

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ja 27 '52 500w

Reviewed by S. R. Davis

Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 31 '52 130w

Kirkus 19:693 D 1 '51 230w

"In a relaxed and even breezy style, Mr. Lee ranges over the high points of his subject's career, discussing the general's family background and the career of his father (which was, like his son's, replete with triumphs and controversy). . . Informality, however, also has its disadvantages. It has led Mr. Lee to adopt a scheme of organization for this volume which involves a good deal of jumping around in time and a degree of repetition which leaves a total impression of looseness and haste." G. A. Craig

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 F 3 '52 1350w

"This book is actually two in one—a popular biography (the best one yet) and a picture-life of General MacArthur in about 300 excellent prints with extensive captions. Many of the general's admirers will want it for the pictures alone. . . We can thank Mr. Lee and Mr. Henschel for much new information. And we can especially thank them for their portrayal of a famous living character." J. I. Greene

+ N Y Times p3 Ja 27 '52 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 2 '52 190w

"Clark Lee of the Associated Press wrote some of the most distinguished dispatches to come out of the Pacific in the 1940's. No correspondent was closer to MacArthur over so long a period. Such an association gives much of Mr. Lee's share in this book the authenticity and importance of primary source material. Much of what he writes he was and saw. Within these boundaries, he is, if not wholly objective, at least not unrestrictedly partisan." J. T. Winterich

Sat R 35:49 Mr 15 '52 190w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:118 Je '52 280w

LEE, MRS EDNA L. (MOONEY), and LEE, HARRY. All that heaven allows. 312p $3.50 Putnam

52-5267

Story of the love affair of a widow of forty-two, well-to-do and with two grown children, and a man, somewhat younger, who has worked as a gardener on her estate.

Booklist 48:281 My 1 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 175:393 Ag '52 120w
Reviewed by Jane Cobb
N Y Times p25 Ap 20 '52 180w

LEE, IRVING J. How to talk with people; a program for preventing troubles that come when people talk together. 176p $2.50 Harper 177 Discussion 52-5459
"In this book Dr Lee explains and illustrates sources of misunderstanding and other troubles, and suggests specific ways of promoting harmony and preventing breakdowns in communication." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 48:275 My 1 '52
Bookmark 11:234 Jl '52 10w

"Everybody who works with committees or any groups can learn from this book. Many far weightier volumes tell far less." H. W.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 20 '52 200w

"How to talk with people should be of major value not only to executives and human relations practitioners but to everyone who 'talks with people'—and who doesn't?" R. W. Peters
+ Management R 41:547 Ag '52 500w

Springf'd Republican p8D My 11 '52 170w

LEEK, JOHN HALVOR. Government and labor in the United States. 336p pa $3 Rinehart 331 Labor laws and legislation—U.S. 52-5589
"Summary of legislation, administration, and major court decisions by University of Oklahoma political scientist. Emphasis is national with occasional references to the states." (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. B. Catlin
Am Econ R 42:1000 D '52 1200w
Am Pol Sci R 46:899 S '52 20w

"The author's research method largely excluded such sources as manuscript correspondence, newspaper editorials, interviews with surviving participants, nearly all union journals, and both trade papers and the radical press. Without liberal doses of the spoken and written word in direct quotes historical writing can be somewhat soporific stuff. Government and Labor in the United States belongs on appropriate collateral reading lists, nevertheless, because it provides on the whole a reliable introduction to its subject." V. D. Bornet
Ann Am Acad 283:195 S '52 450w

LEEMING, JOHN FISHWICK. Natives are friendly [Eng title: Always to-morrow]. 222p $3 Dutton

940.547 World war, 1939-1945—Prisoners and prisons, Italian. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, English 52-6649

Personal account of a British officer's three years in Italy as a P.O.W.

Booklist 48:357 Jl 1 '52
Bookmark 11:232 Jl '52 40w

Reviewed by Seymour Korman
Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Je 22 '52 380w

"An ingratiating narrative of a very comfortable captivity."
+ Kirkus 20:253 Ap 1 '52 180w

"Nice humor and expected restraint." R. P. Bartolini
+ Library J 77:1009 Je 1 '52 100w

"This is an amusing and good-natured book, without malice towards friend or foe." N. S.
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 17 '51 200w

"Men who were taken prisoner in World War II customarily write grim and dramatic books. To write an entertaining book about a three-year imprisonment would seem highly unlikely. But Mr. Leeming has done it. This reviewer, skeptical at the start, soon caught himself grinning, and then chuckling aloud. Mr. Leeming's humor is not of the bright-crack variety, but is a mellow and superb sensing of the ridiculous, and his account of his career as a British prisoner of war in the hands of the Italians is a joy." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 8 '52 420w

New Yorker 28:118 Je 14 '52 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 31 '52 350w

Springf'd Republican p5C Jl 13 '52 180w

Time 60:100 Jl 14 '52 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p490 Ag 3 '51 750w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Real book about easy music-making; il. by Jeanne Bendick. (Real bks) 192p $1.25 Garden City bks.

780.77 Music—Instruction and study 52-12429

"A collection of rudimentary instructions on how to play practically every instrument in the symphony orchestra. . . Musical ABC's, notes, clefs, keys, scales and a little harmony are clearly explained before the listings of families of instruments and how to play the most important ones—piano, ukulele, guitar, violin, clarinet, saxophone, traps, and on down to the ocarina. Each set of instructions involves a description of the instrument, what it sounds like, how it is tuned, its range, how it is played. Though omissions like the all important mellowing function of vibrato in the violin family, are sometimes noticeable, this is adequate for the amateur or one who wants to know a little bit about a lot of instruments." (Kirkus) Originally published with title: It's Easy to Make Music (Book Review Digest 1949).

Booklist 49:77 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:373 Jl 1 '52 160w

"Anyone who could teach 'the ABC's of music' and relate reading music to the piano keyboard, all in twenty pages, would be a miracle teacher, and perhaps Mr. Leeming is. But the major part of the book is the introduction to twenty-six instruments, soundly and cleverly done, and fine to lure young people into wider experiments with instruments, both in their school orchestras and in small groups." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 N 2 '52 160w

LEESTON, ALFRED MAX. Magic oil, servant of the world. 237p $3.75 Juan Pablos bks, 1330 Commerce st, Dallas 1

338.27 Petroleum industry and trade 52-25

"This book gives an up-to-date survey of the world petroleum situation. It is primarily an economic and financial treatment and avoids technical details. It has extensive and up-to-date statistics on production and reserves of petroleum in different producing areas, and discusses the political conditions which bear on petroleum operations. The treatment of the Middle East is particularly well done." Chem & Eng N

"There are excellent descriptions of social, governmental, geographic, and climatic conditions in various producing areas, which make interesting reading for both oil men and laymen. This book will be a worth-while addition to petroleum and general libraries. Its abundance of statistical information will be particularly valuable to those concerned with the details of the petroleum industry." Gustav Egloff

+ Chem & Eng N 30:1574 Ap 14 '52 240w
Foreign Affairs 31:153 O '52 50w

"This is a well organized, readable, aggressively up-to-date, and magnificently documented survey of the world oil industry. The reviewer knows of no other source which in so short a space furnishes so many authentic answers to urgent questions regarding the current oil situation in every part of the world." E. V. Zimmermann

LEESTON, A. M.—Continued

+ Sat R 35:15 Ag 2 '52 750w

LE GRAND, pseud. See Henderson, L.

LEHMANN, JOHN, ed. Best stories from New writing. See New writing (periodical)

LEHMANN, JOHN. Open night. 128p $3 Harcourt

820.4 English literature—History and criticism. Literature—History and criticism

52-3755

Critical essays on a number of poets and other writers (who have "endeavoured in prose to solve . . . a poet's problems") all of whom have died during the author's lifetime. The writers discussed are: James Joyce, Rainer Maria Rilke, Virginia Woolf, Joseph Conrad, Henry James, Marcel Proust, the Greek poet Demetrios Capetanakis, the war poets Alun Lewis, Wilfred Owen, and Edward Thomas.

"These short essays read like superior contributions to a discussion at a literary society: impromptu in tone, familiar in style, undogmatic, sensitive, and always suggestive rather than final. This is a refreshing combination of qualities in an age of critical pontificating; but some sharpness of thought has been sacrificed to achieve this conversational simplicity." David Daiches

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 10 '52 350w

"Mr. Lehmann misdirects the reader and does himself a disservice by adding a pretentious prologue, The Search for Myth, and an epilogue, The Poet in the Modern World, to a group of sensitive impressions about those writers who have died in his lifetime and have most moved him." Kimon Friar

+ New Repub 127:20 D 1 '52 650w

Reviewed by John Raymond

New Statesman & Nation 43:650 My 31 '52 150w

"There are passages here that make exhilarating reading, if there are also some that give one a sense of déjà vu. None of these studies is exhaustive and several can be of interest only to readers intimately acquainted with their subject matter. But whatever the flaws in this little book, it is on the whole a heartening performance." Babette Deutsch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Ja 4 '53 800w

Sat R 36:41 Ja 10 '53 250w

Reviewed by Joanna Richardson

Spec 189:168 Ag 1 '52 480w

"The essay on Yeats is, for a modern essay on poetry, both extremely short and extremely unpretentious; yet all the points it makes are so sound that the reader finds himself wishing that Mr. Lehmann's method had allowed him to expatiate, to linger in more detail over particular favourite poems. Yet these rapid surveys of Mr. Lehmann's, if they leave the reader, as after a brilliant lecture, wishing that there had been more time to go into things, do in compensation very firmly and clearly outline a point of view. Their surface simplicity is deceptive, for the point of view is subtle and complex; and Mr. Lehmann's attitudes are those of an admirably humane and civilized mind."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p370 Je 6 '52 650w

LEHRMAN, HAROLD ARTHUR. Israel: the beginning and tomorrow; map by Rafael Palacios. 358p $3.75 Sloane

956.94 Israel

52-238

"To world observers or readers who stand on the sidelines, Lehrman, well-known journalist and authority, discloses how the sovereign State of Israel (created May, 1948) 'runs with the ball.' He makes a preliminary analysis of available evidence on the evolving political, social, economic, and religious patterns. Here one finds an honest appraisal of judges, policemen, parties, elections, salaries, the Arab dilemma, foreign relations, investment dollars, 'Church' vs. State, and other related items." (Library J) No index.

Reviewed by Solomon Grayzel

Ann Am Acad 282:187 J1 '52 550w

Booklist 48:194 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:105 F '52 30w

"This sane, solid, sober evaluation of this tiny, but mighty bastion of democracy in the middle east is one of the most valuable guides to a clear comprehension of the terrific problems as well as gigantic achievements of an extraordinary people to be found on the book mart today. Lehrman brings to his work a keen reportorial eye that seems to see all and know all, a remarkable capacity for the organization and interpretation of varied and conflicting material, and the unusual ability to appear unbiased in the expression of opinions and suggestions." Louis Binstock

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 F 10 '52 390w

"This latest book on the world's youngest republic is not an easy one upon which to express an opinion. For it has much to recommend it: maturity, impartiality, exactness, color, and readability. On the other hand, it also has a number of glaring omissions which make it impossible to term it a definitive or complete picture of Israel today." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 26 '52 300w

"Lehrman's book is an excellent effort. A former teacher of history, he has studied the successes and the failures of Israel and is not afraid to uncover the difficulties of the venture in a particularly factual way." Max Fischer

+ Commonweal 55:475 F 15 '52 1100w

Foreign Affairs 31:165 O '52 40w

"An interesting, fast moving and well informed study."

+ Kirkus 19:652 N 1 '51 270w

"Recommended." J. M. Scherr

+ Library J 76:2001 D 1 '51 130w

"Mr. Lehrman's book is lively, tart, and eminently readable. He analyzes the major problems besetting the new state, such as party conflicts, church versus state, the Arab dilemma, and so on, in a workman-like fashion, shrewd and informative. . . Mr. Lehrman states his credo in a sentence which recurs with variations throughout the study: 'The truth, as usual, lay in between.' This elaborate and hypothetical impartiality constitutes the book's weakness rather than its virtue." Marie Syrkin

+ Nation 174:158 F 16 '52 600w

"Hal Lehrman has done an extremely skillful and solid job. This reviewer cannot help wishing that he had sought to explain more fully the men and women who make up the hard core of Zionism in Israel—those who came not as refugees but as pioneers so consumed by an idea that they gave up their homes to take up life in a desolate and forbidding corner of the world. To understand what is extraordinary in the Israel story, it is necessary to understand these people." Gerold Frank

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 13 '52 600w

"Altogether, the book leaves out nothing of immediate importance about Israel. It is a scholarly, serious study and the reader who seeks full and accurate information will certainly find it here. In Israel, there is a habit of judging everything that comes along by the measure of 'Is it good or bad for the Israelis?' Mr. Lehrman provides a worth-while service both to his readers and to the country about which he is writing by eschewing this narrow test." Sydney Gruson

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 27 '52 600w

"If the reader of Mr. Lehrman's book can, until he finishes it, abate the severity of his criticism (because I warn him he will be, at the very least, shocked at some of the things Mr. Lehrman says) and read it, having in mind that Mr. Lehrman writes as a candid friend, he will be well rewarded." B. C. Crum

Sat R 35:15 F 9 '52 850w

LEICESTER, HENRY MARSHALL, and KLINKSTEIN, HERBERT S. Source book in chemistry, 1400-1900. (Source books in the history of the sciences) 554p il $7.50 McGraw 540.8 Chemistry—History—Sources 51-12625

"An anthology of well-selected writings that bear on the development and history of modern chemistry. Altogether, selections from eighty-two authors ranging in time from Biringuccio (1480-1539) to Marie Curie (1867-1934) are included. In most instances an author is represented by a single paper which may be complete in itself, but is more often an excerpt from a longer work. Great chemists, for instance Lavoisier, are usually represented by several selections. The words of each author are preceded by a short essay on his contributions to chemistry, and at the end of the book there is a bibliography of biographies to be found in both books and periodicals." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 49:7 S 1 '52

"This is a valuable addition to the source books in the history of the sciences." Harrison Hale

+ Chem & Eng N 30:3470 Ag 18 '52 270w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1517 S 15 '52 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:52 J1 '52

LEIGH, MARGARET MARY. Fruit in the seed; chapters of autobiography. 128p $2 Sheed

B or 92 Catholic church—Converts 52-10611

"Fifteen years ago Miss Leigh published Highland Homespun which, written on the kitchen table after hard days' work, recorded a year's progress on a croft in Wester Ross. It remains one of the very best books about the Highlands. Now, in her new book, she charts another, longer progress—from a Church of England home in pre-1914 Oxford to the Carmelite convent which she entered in 1950." New Statesman & Nation

"A book rich in meaning out of all proportion to its size." Alban Baer

+ Commonweal 56:638 O 3 '52 600w

"The reader is left with the impression of human failure rather than of divine pursuit, for Miss Leigh does not manage to convince us, as she herself is convinced, of a purpose at work in all [her] frustrations and false starts. We can understand the human feelings and reasons that led her to this step more easily than the sense of superhuman compulsion. But she does convince us that for her, as things turned out, the life of a contemplative Carmelite could offer a fulfilment and content which she had never found as daughter, don, or farmer."

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:192 Ag 16 '52 270w

"Miss Leigh's choice of the severe discipline of the Carmelites is to be respected. It may provide for her just what is lacking. In spite of many gifts she will not achieve either the accuracy of history or the imagination of literature until she has assimilated some of the qualities they have to teach."

Times [London] Lit Sup p664 O 10 '52 290w

LEIGH-FERMOR, PATRICK. Traveller's tree; a journey through the Caribbean Islands; il. by A. Costa. 403p $5 Harper

972.9 [917.29] West Indies—Description and travel 51-13811

"The Caribbean, with its spectacular tropical decor of volcanic peaks and sumptuous forests, its dramatic history of the coming and going and warring of idyllic Arawak Indians, man-eating Caribs, flamboyant Conquistadores, tough English and French settlers, tougher buccaneers, and luxurious slave-owning planters has inspired, from the seventeenth century onwards, some of the most arresting of all travellers' tales. In this book we are shown the region in its modern phase; overrun by the exuberant gimcrack civilisation of the descendants of the enslaved Negroes, a civilisation which finds its most vital expression in the extraordinary mystical-artistic African renaissance of Haiti." New Statesman & Nation

Booklist 48:170 Ja 15 '52

Bookmark 11:80 Ja '52 20w

"Uninhibited in any direction, Mr. Fermor plunges into his subject with verve and enthusiasm that is likely to stimulate business at the travel agencies. But his indefatigable curiosity, which frequently takes him off the beaten path into many odd nooks and crannies of the old Spanish Main, makes this more important than just another Baedeker." R. M. Hallett

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 D 4 '51 650w

"This is one of the most rewarding travel books published in many years." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 76:2117 D 15 '51 110w

"One of those pleasantly rambling books—almost notebooks—in the tradition of some of the best of English travel literature. Mr. Fermor's account of his journeyings is easy to read and conveys a good deal of knowledge to the reader."

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 13 '51 60w

"His account of Voodoo is the most intelligent I have read on the subject. . . Having so much material to assemble within the pages of one volume he has wisely left out the less exciting parts of his journey. As a result, the narrative is sometimes jerky; the book would have gained, I think, if a little more space could have been found for connecting links between the incidents. The style, too, is uneven. . . But at his best Mr. Leigh Fermor writes a lively and suggestive prose, with a disarming wit and a use of metaphor which is often brilliant." Dorothy Carrington

+ New Statesman & Nation 41:46 Ja 13 '51 650w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ja 20 '52 750w

"Patrick Leigh Fermor serves up the history and background he absorbed in that literate, polished style for which the current British school of travel writers seems to have the exclusive franchise. The illustrating photographs are disproportionately uninspired." P. J. C. Friedlander

+ N Y Times p7 Ja 6 '52 190w

Reviewed by James Pope-Hennessy

Spec 184:765 D 29 '50 900w

"So many and so stimulating are the trains of thought that this book provokes that one is apt, on closing it, to forget the many beautiful descriptions of natural scenery which it contains. Whether he sees it from an aircraft, from a train or from the back of a pony, Mr. Leigh Fermor catches the quality of the landscape before him and sets it down so that the reader, if ever he visits the Caribbean, will greet these scenes with cries of recognition."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p829 D 29 '50 1750w

Wis Lib Bul 48:33 Ja '52

LEIGHTON, MRS MARGARET (CARVER). Secret of Bucky Moran; il. by Mary Leighton Thomson. 216p $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

52-9053

Mystery story for the 7 to 11 group.

Bookmark 12:12 O '52 10w

"All the desirable elements of suspense are here, with a background of happy family life." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:323 O '52 40w

Kirkus 20:552 S 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 77:1666 O 1 '52 50w

"Readers will be clever indeed if they unriddle Bucky Moran's secret before the family does. Like 'The Secret of the Old House,' in which the Hill children first appeared, this is not only a lively mystery but also a story of mutual trust and loyalty in a large, closely knit family." S. C. G.

+ N Y Times p24 D 14 '52 130w

LEIGHTON, M. C.—Continued

"This has a nice little twist and some believable characters, and is slanted toward younger fans." L. G. Offord
 + San Francisco Chronicle p7 N 16 '52
 60w

LEIGHTON, MRS MARGARET (CARVER). Story of Florence Nightingale; il. by Corinne Boyd Dillon. 180p $1.50 Grosset

B or E2 Nightingale, Florence—Juvenile literature 52-11074

This fictionalized biography for young people, covers mainly the early years of Florence Nightingale's life, the story closing, except for a brief chapter, with her return from the Crimean war in 1855.

Reviewed by Helen Boyd

Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 16 '52
 40w

"The style in Nightingale biographies changes with the times. Here is less sentiment about the Lady with the Lamp and more detail on her hard work."

+ Commonweal 57:175 N 21 '52 20w

"A simply written, much fictionalized, and warmly sympathetic account." Virginia Haviland

+ Library J 77:1908 N 1 '52 40w

New Yorker 28:205 D 6 '52 30w

LEISK, DAVID JOHNSON (CROCKETT JOHNSON, pseud). Who's upside down? pictures by [the author]. [22p] $1.75 Scott, W.R. 52-8837

"If the world is round, why does no one fall off? Do people living 'underneath' walk on their heads? . . . In this simple tale Crockett Johnson tackles the question of gravity and in a few words, with pictures, gives an easy-to-grasp answer to the perplexities it raises." N Y Times

"An excellent book." Marcia Winn

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52
 40w

Commonweal 57:170 N 21 '52 10w

Kirkus 20:401 J1 15 '52 70w

"Children will be delighted with the mother kangaroo who gets all mixed up on the subject and with the baby kangaroo's proof that she is always right side up." Lois Palmer

+ N Y Times p52 N 9 '52 70w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 30w

LEMMON, ROBERT STELL. Best loved trees of America; intimate close-ups of their year-round traits. 254p $3.50 Am. garden guild, 444 Madison av, N.Y. 22; for sale by Doubleday

582.16 Trees—U.S. 52-8048

Includes 59 species of trees, all of them native to America, except for the horse chestnut. Each tree is described fully, and photographs show the tree in summer and in winter, with smaller pictures of bark, flowers, seeds, etc. Index.

Booklist 49:7 S 1 '52

+ Bookmark 12:6 O '52 20w

"It is a truly fascinating work." Anna Campbell

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 S 7 '52
 120w

"Descriptions of the trees are given that aptly tell of habitats, characteristics, usefulness; and always Mr. Lemmon writes with the accuracy of the naturalist and the response of the poet. Splendid photographs are an integral part of the book." E. Y.

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 14 '52
 130w

Kirkus 20:254 Ap 1 '52 120w

"Mr. Lemmon has the rare gift to understand what our old friend Average Reader really wants to know about trees. In this casually chatty but encyclopedically informative book he has provided a handy guide which almost any of us who belong to the broad middle bracket, between simpletons and dendrologists, will be delighted to have for our libraries." Alan Devoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Ag 31
 '52 220w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p15 J1 10 '52
 50w

LEMMON, ROBERT STELL. Birds are yours; with il. by Don Eckelberry. 121p $2.25 Macmillan

593.2 Birds 51-14819

A series of brief essays on interesting facts about birds. Included is information about how long birds live, which birds mate for life, how fast they fly, why some birds hop and others walk, etc.

"No prior knowledge is assumed, but much knowledge is to be gleaned from this bird miscellany. Every essay is illustrated by a full page black and white illustration by one of the best bird artists." A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 D 30 '51
 60w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:59 Ja 1 '52 20w

"Without being technical, the author tells us why birds sing and how they use inherited knowledge, or what some naturalists call a 'wild knowing,' to build nests, migrate and perform other remarkable feats, without instruction. Don Eckelberry's beautiful black-and-white drawings of forty-four species of birds add considerably to the appeal of this attractive little book." J. K. Terres

+ N Y Times p13 D 16 '51 180w

LEMMON, ROBERT STELL. Our amazing birds; the little-known facts about their private lives; with 102 paintings in black and white by Don R. Eckelberry. 239p $3.95 Doubleday

593.2 Birds—North America 52-8068

A bird book for the general reader. It describes the breeding, ranges, and habits of 102 North American birds, a few of them extinct. Contains drawings in black and white. Index.

Booklist 49:62 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:31 N '52 10w

"Lemmon writes with the informed enthusiasm characteristic of his current 'Best Loved Trees of America.' Each entry is a genial essay, in which much sound and curious information is informally conveyed." A. C. Ames

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 O 19 '52
 220w

Kirkus 20:396 J1 1 '52 70w

"Not a guide book, but an excellent supplementary title." V. K. Fitch

+ Library J 77:1910 N 1 '52 40w

"Mr. Lemmon's choices are admirably made to enlist the interest of the Middle Reader in the nature-field, the reader who is neither a nature-ignoramus nor a learned expert. . . Don Eckelberry's paintings are sensitive, scientifically excellent, and altogether charming."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 N 9 '52
 200w

"Don Eckelberry's illustrations in black and white are fairly detailed, particularly the drawings of the smaller birds, and comprise almost as much of the volume as the text. Beginners may be encouraged by this fascinating study to go on to more exhaustive and scientific books on birds." Thomas Foster

+ N Y Times p14 O 12 '52 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 21 '52
 160w

LENCZOWSKI, GEORGE. Middle East in world affairs. 459p maps $6 Cornell univ. press

953 East (Near East) 52-10742

"Begins with a quick review of the break-up of the Ottoman and Persian Empires down to World War I. The author next shows how the war and the peace settlement shaped the history of the individual states that emerged, and traces the development of each to World War II. Out of this conflict came the Middle East as it generally looks today. Mr. Lenczowski concludes with lucid discussions of the Turkish Straits and the Suez Canal, the Arab League, and the interests of Britain, Russia and the United States in the Middle East." N Y Times

Foreign Affairs 31:165 O '52 20w

"Professor Lenczowski is a trained diplomat and political scientist with years of field experience in the Middle East. . . A political and diplomatic study, to be sure, should strike a fine balance between fact and interpretation, event and analysis. It is to the author's credit that he is ever on his guard against subjective opinions. . . Dr. Lenczowski's contribution should find many grateful users even though it fails to furnish a reasonably integrated picture." E. A. Speiser

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 J1 13 '52 1250w

"Mr. Lenczowski's achievement is no mean one. He has tried hard, and with unusual success, to be objective about an area that easily arouses passions. His objectivity does not consist merely in the effort to present facts fully and impartially. This is a difficult enough task in itself, but Mr. Lenczowski is bolder: he tries to give balanced interpretations of these facts upon the basis of reasonable standards consistently applied. The result is a pretty sordid record of power politics in which few persons and countries emerge as honorable or wise. Mr. Lenczowski's judgments—perhaps even his recital of the facts—will not satisfy the extremists on all sides. But he does, however, give reliable guidance through the political and diplomatic maze." Morroe Berger

+ — N Y Times p3 J1 27 '52 600w

"Naturally, a work of this sort cannot be expected to provide new insights or to be one of original research. There are some errors of fact, or, at least, some unfortunate typographical errors. But these are small matters; generally the author's judgments appear sound and balanced and responsible."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 8:284 S '52 220w

LENORMAND, HENRI RENE. The rising; tr. from the French by Lothian Small. 270p $3 Thames

52-3414

"Tells the story of a French administrator in Algeria who loses faith in himself. The beautiful Bolshevik Natalie, who poses as a professor of ethnography while stirring the nomadic tribes to revolt, is an extravagant and quite unnecessary part of the story, but the rest is a remorseless and horrifying study of a mind defeated by doubt and pity under an alienating desert sun." Spec

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle

Commonweal 57:18 O 10 '52 1100w

Kirkus 20:421 J1 15 '52 190w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p4 J1 4 '52 150w

"The objectivity of the author is unflinching, and that alone would make this novel notable. It has other valuable qualities; it is instructive on a number of levels, and beautifully written. Treated with talent, and without timidity, it could be translated into a wonderful film or play." S. M. Fitzgerald

+ New Repub 127:18 D 22 '52 1000w

Reviewed by Frederic Morton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 S 7 '52 500w

"First-class reportorial skill has gone into this grimly detailed account of a small Algerian uprising against French authority in the Thirties." Gerald Sykes

+ N Y Times p4 S 7 '52 280w

"The tone of the book is sombre, and the arguments are sincere but confused."

New Yorker 28:153 O 25 '52 110w

"It is regrettable that Lenormand came to the novel so late. We might expect of a dramatist excellent structure and dialogue. Where Lenormand surprises is in his scenes of the Arab uprising, panoramas of carnage worthy of Delacroix. The book suffers some mutilation in translation, but not enough to jeopardize its very real qualities." Laurence LeSage

+ — Sat R 35:12 S 6 '52 600w

Reviewed by R. D. Charques
Spec 189:78 J1 11 '52 110w

"A rather improbable story about French North Africa, some years before the war, the translation of which at times leaves something to be desired."

Times [London] Lit Sup p433 J1 4 '52 130w

LENS, SIDNEY. Counterfeit revolution. 272p $3.50 Beacon press

335.4 Communism 52-5247

"An attempt to find the answer to the greatest political paradox of our time: the voluntary espousal of Stalinist Communism by millions of Idealistic Europeans. . . Mr. Lens, an American Federation of Labor official in Chicago, has recently studied the problem in Europe, and his conclusion is that the free world—and especially the United States—is letting the Kremlin win by default." (New Yorker) Index.

"Sidney Lens is certainly not the first to state that to become really efficient the struggle against Communism must be inspired not by anti-Communism alone but also by 'pro-Something'. However, this statement has rarely been presented backed by such a penetrating analysis and such an abundance of supporting evidence as it is in this book. Some of the author's observations and conclusions may appear controversial, but they are always at least stimulating, and most of the book makes fascinating reading." George Denicke

+ Ann Am Acad 282:140 J1 '52 340w

Booklist 48:373 J1 15 '52

"This is a hard hitting book and as an estimate of the world political situation from the standpoint of the noncommunist left, it possesses value and interest. But the book has defects with its qualities. Mr. Lens is a man very much in a hurry and sometimes gives the impression that he doesn't quite know what he wants—and won't be happy until he gets it." W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 13 '52 350w

Foreign Affairs 30:676 J1 '52 60w

Kirkus 20:220 Mr 15 '52 240w

New Yorker 28:137 Ap 12 '52 130w

"Mr. Lens's inquiry into the appeal of Communism is neither very systematic nor very profound. . . Yet, if his discussion adds little, it does bring the information together in a convenient and understandable way. . . The fact is that the real bottleneck in our foreign policy has been the Congress of the United States. Mr. Lens's book is to the good if it helps build fires under the Congress. It is bad insofar as it contributes to the impression, so fashionable in certain liberal quarters, that the makers of American foreign policy are a gang of dunderheads, reactionaries, and militarists." Arthur Schlesinger, jr

+ — Sat R 35:16 My 10 '52 1100w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Peanuts for Billy Ben; ll. by [the author]. (Roundabout America ser) 128p $2 Lippincott

52-5103

Story of Billy Ben, aged six, who did his part on the family peanut-growing farm in Virginia.

Booklist 48:269 Ap 15 '52

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 25 '52 90w

Kirkus 20:29 Ja 15 '52 90w

"Recommended for fourth and fifth grades." N. S. Zipf

+ Library J 77:603 Ap 1 '52 80w

LENSKI, LOIS—Continued

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 18 '52 90w

"For all the hard work, it is a merry story, too, as the gay verses between chapters indicate. It is essentially a family story because everyone works together." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p30 Mr 30 '52 120w

Reviewed by C. E. Zagat

Sat R 35:52 My 10 '52 90w

School & Society 75:159 Mr 8 '52 20w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). We are Thy children; music by Clyde Robert Bulla [il. by the author]. 32p $2.75 Crowell 783.9 Children's hymns

Twenty-nine original hymns for children, the text by Lois Lenski and the music by Clyde Robert Bulla. Some of the hymns are paraphrases of Biblical verses, others incorporate themes of a child's world today.

Booklist 49:146 D 15 '52

"Here is a song-picture book of unusual merit." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52 130w

"To be welcomed, for Protestant Sunday Schools as well as home use."

+ Kirkus 20:656 O 1 '52 90w

"The music for the hymns composed by Bulla is simple yet interprets the mood and meaning of the lyrics. . . Recommended for Protestant children 8-12." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 77:2012 N 15 '52 60w

"So little is available in conventional hymn books suitable for small children that this book will be widely welcome." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 30 '52 140w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). We live in the South; il. by [the author]. (Roundabout America ser) 128p $2 Lippincott 52-5104

Four short stories about children in different parts of the southern United States. For grades two to four.

Booklist 48:269 Ap 15 '52

Kirkus 20:29 Ja 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson

Library J 77:729 Ap 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 18 '52 90w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p30 Mr 30 '52 120w

Reviewed by C. E. Zagat

Sat R 35:52 My 10 '52 100w

LENT, HENRY BOLLES. From trees to paper; the story of newsprint. 149p il $2.75 Macmillan

674.2 Lumbering. Paper making and trade 52-9147

Popularly written account, for young people, of the various operations by which the trees of the forest of Quebec are converted into newsprint for Americans' daily papers.

Booklist 48:303 My 15 '52

"Written primarily for young people, here is a book to be read by anyone interested in this fascinating enterprise. Plentiful, well chosen photographs are a valuable addition to the text." P. G.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 Ap 27 '52 260w

"A book that will prove interesting because of its direct and informal approach, its up-to-date information, and illuminating photographs." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:247 Ag '52 80w

Kirkus 20:73 F 1 '52 120w

"Recommended for junior high." Elizabeth Mitchell

+ Library J 77:911 My 15 '52 80w

"Boys of twelve up will enjoy it as an unusually adventurous, factual book. It will make them long to see this country and the skilled lumberjacks at work." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 My 11 '52 80w

"In his usual brisk fashion Mr. Lent laces many colorful details through a solid background of information. There are fine photographs here, too." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p16 Je 1 '52 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 11 '52 170w

"It is an exceptionally interesting, well-told story illustrated with informing photographs." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R 35:47 S 20 '52 40w

Wis Lib Bul 48:220 S '52

LEONARD, BURGESS. Phantom of the fountains. 184p $2.50 Lippincott 52-7455

"Mickey Barton, turned down by the big basketball colleges because of his lack of height, goes to a small college which has hired his old high-school coach and proves that height isn't everything in basketball." Library J

"Patterned story, characters all rather low types of humanity, but exciting basketball."

+ Kirkus 20:459 Ag 1 '52 120w

"Satisfactory main plot, poor sub-plots, excellent basketball. Since it has good, suspenseful sports action, which counts most in these stories, this is recommended for boys 12 to 16." Lillian Morrison

+ Library J 77:1827 O 15 '52 60w

"This is a rather poorly-told tale of the game as the South plays it. It tries, unsuccessfully, it seems to me, to white-wash many of the practices engaged in by some colleges in desperate search of a winner. This reader found it neither revealing nor entertaining." J. H. Marsh

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 O 26 '52 40w

"The game scenes, which are skillfully made integral parts of the plot, are Grade A." W. C. F.

+ N Y Times pt2, p26 N 16 '52 60w

Springf'd Republican p13C D 14 '52 40w

LEONARD, LEONARD LARRY. International organization. 630p il $6 McGraw

341.11 International agencies. International cooperation 51-12918

"A detailed study of the development of international organizations as a means of implementing the conduct of foreign relations on the part of sovereign states. The volume is divided into several sections, the first dealing with the framework, including the historical development of concerted international action. The structure of the United Nations is discussed, including the Assembly, the Security Council, specialized agencies, the national delegations and the Secretariat. Within this framework comes the operation of the political activities, comprising the second section of the book. . . Part three deals with economic and social activities in international organizations. . . Part four discusses colonial activities under international cooperation, including the mandate system of the League and trusteeship under the United Nations." Current Hist

Reviewed by W. W. Kaufmann

Am Pol Sci R 46:265 Mr '52 150w

Reviewed by H. R. Winkler

+ Ann Am Acad 280:166 Mr '52 600w

Booklist 48:61 O 15 '51

Current Hist 22:35 Ja '52 200w

School & Society 75:31 Ja 12 '52 40w

LEONARD, VIVIAN ANDERSON. Police organization and management. 507p il $5 Foundation press

351.74 Police

51-6283

"Police techniques of six countries form the material drawn upon by Dr. Leonard for his 500 pages on how to organize, select, train, and conduct an efficient police department. . . The author, who himself has done 14 years of police work, heads the department of political science at the State College of Washington." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Am Pol Sci R 46:253 Mr '52 10w

"It is so clear, coherent, and penetrating in its analysis as to constitute the best treatment of the subject that we have seen." Bruce Smith

+ Ann Am Acad 281:211 My '52 370w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 21 '51 80w

LEONARDO DA VINCI. Landscapes and plants; ed. by Ludwig Goldscheider. 17p 70pl $5.95 Phaidon

759.5 Drawings. Paintings, Italian

52-10531

Reproductions from the drawings and paintings of Leonardo da Vinci demonstrating his treatment of landscapes and plants. It shows geological, botanical, and meteorological details, as well as artistic ones. Brief text by the editor.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 24 '52 70w

"[The] well-chosen plates and a brief but informative commentary deal competently with this aspect of Leonardo's work." V. J. Papanek

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ji 20 '52 180w

"One of the merits of the book is that the relevant details of paintings and drawings are juxtaposed, and though it is not in an academic sense complete (the most notable omission is that of detail photographs of the 'Ginevra dei Benci'), it offers a useful record of this aspect of Leonardo's work."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p448 Ji 11 '52 180w

LEPAGE, WILBUR REED, and SEELY, SAMUEL. General network analysis. 516p $8 McGraw

621.319 Electric distribution 51-12551

"A textbook designed for use in engineering colleges. It is introductory to the subject and so written that it is suitable for both students of communications engineering and power engineering. The authors are members of the Department of Electrical Engineering in Syracuse University." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1079 Je 15 '52 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:20 Mr '52

LERNER, ALAN JAY. Paint your wagon; a musical play in two acts; lyrics by [the author]. 140p $2.75 Coward-McCann

812

A musical comedy telling the story of California's gold rush days.

Booklist 48:374 Ji 15 '52

Reviewed by William Hogan

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 22 '52 70w

LERNER, DANIEL, ed. Propaganda in war and crisis; materials for American policy. 500p il $4.75 Stewart

301.1523 Propaganda. Psychological warfare 51-11562

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The reviewer feels that a description of the structure and work of the OWI, even in condensed form, would have added greatly to the book and would have removed one important omission. . . The five chapters of Part II subtitled 'The German Case' are well chosen as far as they go. But the editor has seemingly overlooked the inclusion here of a study showing that fatal German error in psychological warfare in utterly failing to capitalize on the deeply rooted internal antipathy throughout many parts of Russia to the Stalin regime, an error which proved ruinous in the end. . . The reviewer feels further that a 'post-mortem' on the psychological warfare of Japan, similar to that presented in 'The German Case,' would have been most desirable, for purposes of both contrast and comparison. Despite these reservations, most university, college, and reference libraries of size will want to stock a copy of this book. Its value lies in the fact that scholars have access here, in usable and compact form, to twenty-seven contemporaneous essays on psychological warfare from widely divergent sources, authoritatively, and for the most part interestingly, written." Cedric Larson

+ Am Hist R 57:477 Ja '52 700w

Reviewed by Harold Elsten

Am Pol Sci R 46:265 Mr '52 550w

Foreign Affairs 30:497 Ap '52 20w

"It is useful to have these papers brought together for study in one convenient volume. In the latter part, the appraisal by Padover, P. R. Sweet, and L. F. Gittler—'Report on Aachen'—is especially valuable. Too much of the rest sounds like reports to touchy business executives on how to sell more cigarettes or cosmetics. Somehow American policymakers must learn that international ideological warfare is a much more serious matter than competing for a soft drink market and a very different one." A. M. Lee

+ Social Forces 31:174 D '52 650w

"The anthology is particularly good because it is up to date, including some 1951 articles as well as others since Pearl Harbor. Lerner has contributed an introduction to each of four parts of the book." Hillier Kreighbaum

+ Survey 88:46 Ja '52 70w

LERNER, DANIEL, and LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT, eds. Policy sciences; recent developments in scope and method; with the editorial collaboration of Harold H. Fisher [and others]. 344p $7.50 Stanford Univ. press

308 Social sciences

51-13465

"The first full-length volume of Hoover Institute Studies, this book on recent developments in scope and method in the Policy Sciences has contributions by 17 social scientists who indicate how problems of human relations can be investigated and measured by scientific methods, and how national and international policy-makers can benefit by joint thinking of the Policy Sciences. These social sciences—psychology, anthropology, sociology, political science, history and economics—are discussed by the contributors who show how the tools and data from their fields can be used constructively in policy formation." San Francisco Chronicle

"The book is valuable in that it projects an orientation which may prove of great value, in that it presents the most advanced thinking in fields of major importance, in that it includes numerous suggestions stimulating to research, and in that it provides bibliographical references in footnotes and a twenty-six page list of books and articles useful for further investigation in the fields it touches. The main criticism which occurs to the reviewer is that which normally must be directed at any symposium. The organization is not always clear, and the viewpoint is not always consistent." Quincy Wright

+ Am Pol Sci R 46:234 Mr '52 2200w

"The Policy Sciences will be valuable in informing political and civic leaders of the kind of services which the social sciences especially are now prepared to furnish, in carrying out policies already adopted as well as in the formulation of new policies. There is a good bibliography and a poor index." G. A. Lundberg

+ Am Soc R 17:114 F '52 1550w

Reviewed by P. S. Broughton

Ann Am Acad 280:183 Mr '52 500w

"This is not an easy book to read, but reading it is well worth the effort."

+ Current Hist 22:104 F '52 80w

LERNER, DANIEL—Continued

Reviewed by G. C. Homans
New Repub 127:22 J1 21 '52 450w

"As a whole, the symposium is a major study of the procedures of modern social research and their use in policy-making concerned with the fields which contribute to understanding of human relations and social actions." I. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 25 '51 250w

"The valuable, comprehensive view this volume affords of the new dimensions, conceptions, and methods of American social science is further enhanced by an excellent bibliography."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:401 D '51 200w

LESIAU, WOLF, ed. and tr. Falasha anthology; tr. from Ethiopic sources; with an introduction. 222p il $4 Yale univ. press

296 Falashas. Ethiopic literature 51-7505

"This volume offers for the first time to readers in English an opportunity to become familiar with the literature of the Falashas, a population of Jewish faith living north of Lake Tana in Ethiopia. . . The texts ably translated by Dr. Lesiau are: The Commandments of the Sabbath, the Book of Abba Elijah, the Book of the Angels, the Christian text of the Apocalypse of Baruch, the Apocalypse of Gorgorios (dependent on the two preceding texts), the Testament of Abraham, the Death of Moses, and various prayers." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Glossary. Index.

Reviewed by Marvin Lowenthal
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 9 '52 140w

"The introduction is outstanding, containing a description of the author's own trip among this historic people and providing a fascinating reading experience describing the ways of life of the Falashas." G. A. P.

+ Springfield Republican p28A N 25 '51 90w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:42 Mr '52 180w

LESLIE, ANITA. Love in a nutshell. 208p il $3 Greenberg

910.45 Voyages and travels. Galway Blazer (ketch). West Indies—Description and travel 52-8122

Account of a cruise in a 35 foot ketch, among the islands of the Lesser Antilles. The author her husband, and their son, aged less than one year, were passengers and crew. Maps on end papers. Photographs.

Bookmark 12:32 N '52 20w

"It's a really unusual story of family life on a small craft, skilfully and colorfully told with charm, human warmth, and understanding." Al Chase

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 S 14 '52 150w

Kirkus 20:482 Ag 1 '52 130w

Library J 77:1761 O 15 '52 30w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 21 '52 210w

"A pleasant account. . . [The author's] story of their casual encounters, especially those with the West Indians, and her evocation of the lurid past of the islands make a very attractive book. The humor is disciplined—more so than the writing and certainly more so than the proofreading."
+ New Yorker 28:134 N 1 '52 90w

LESLIE, JEAN. Intimate journal of Warren Winslow. 188p $2.50 Doubleday

52-10998

Mystery story.

"Writing has sophisticated charm, and plot of pathetic tragedy is adroitly developed." Drexel Drake

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 O 5 '52 120w

Kirkus 20:477 Ag 1 '52 60w

"It is a worthy enough undertaking but the man [the author] gives us in his own words has neither distinction of manner nor any stature as a person. The consequence is the sort of painful case history best handled through two paragraphs in a textbook of abnormal psychology." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 5 '52 90w

"Jean Leslie has attempted the all but impossible task of presenting, in first-person diary form, a writer of major stature. His position in letters she never quite makes convincing, but she does succeed admirably in portraying his disintegration into a near-paranoid sot, incapable of creation but dangerously capable of murder." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p31 O 12 '52 110w

"The ending is melodramatic, which is a pity, because the story is honest enough to deserve better treatment. Roger is not a very impressive figure, but Mr. Leslie, a cheerful, intelligent writer, seems to know this and not to mind, being apparently more interested in getting some ideas off his chest than in creating a hero."

+ New Yorker 28:130 N 1 '52 160w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 26 '52 60w

"Emotional situation overdone; diary medium seems unfortunate choice." Sergeant Cuff

— Sat R 35:46 O 11 '52 20w

LESLIE, WARREN. Best thing that ever happened. 293p $3.50 McGraw

52-9454

"Double-barreled story of a young Marine who goes AWOL from a Marine boot camp, and the effect of that act on his mother back in New York. During his flight, Marine Roger Lawford II is set upon by thieves, badly beaten, and makes his way to Sarahbelle Jones who nurses him back to health just a few miles from the boot camp. His mother, once she gets used to the idea that Roger has done the thing-that-isn't-done, builds an independent life for herself. The above describes the kickoff of the story which ends with Roger shot by Sarahbelle's neighbors who didn't like his relationship with her, and his mother's new husband getting the story from the private detective Roger's mother had hired to find him." Library J

Kirkus 20:422 J1 15 '52 250w

"There's a lot more to this book than the story. It really is concerned with the individual's need to build his own integrity in a world where there isn't too much integrity around. As such, it is an adult and thought-provoking novel, a good story, and to me a satisfying book to read. Recommended." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 77:1401 S 1 '52 160w

"This is a poignant novel, surprisingly effective considering Mr. Leslie's somewhat undisciplined manner as a storyteller. . . Mr. Leslie's greatest asset is his style. It is straightforward, fresh, disarming. Not one affected phrase, not a single superfluous metaphor clutters the narrative. It is the persuasive simplicity of the prose which makes the reader admit on the last page: This has happened to one of us—in our time." Frederic Morton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 19 '52 850w

"It is the way this story is told that is important; it is developed gently and firmly as a love story, full of the practical awareness and necessities of two people in close proximity, but full too of a different kind of awareness, intimate, transforming, ineffable. It is managed with authority, without being either sentimental or mawkish, or overstated. In this sense it is a memorable novel and wise beyond Mr. Leslie's years. It would seem to indicate that he is a born novelist." John Nerber

+ N Y Times p24 O 12 '52 470w

Reviewed by Nathan Rothman

Sat R 35:16 D 27 '52 240w

Spring'd Republican p7C N 23 '52 70w

LESSER, MILTON A. Earthbound. 208p $2
Winston

52-5493

Science-fiction novel.

Booklist 48:384 J1 15 '52

Kirkus 20:228 Ap 1 '52 60w

"Acceptable." B. W. Schein

Library J 77:1213 J1 '52 70w

Reviewed by H. H. Holmes

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 J1 6 '52

70w

"It's good old cops-and-robbers melodrama dressed up in a space suit, and handsomely dressed, too, so far as the details are concerned." E. L. Buell

N Y Times p15 Je 22 '52 60w

LESSING, MRS DORIS MAY. This was the old chief's country. 256p $3. Crowell

Ten short stories, all of them having South African farm life as background.

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

"Mrs. Lessing's stories are harsh with the red earth of its plains and the green of its valleys; she sees its tragedy in terms of the Englishmen who can not and will not understand the new country, and of the black men who are at one with their land but must submit to the standards of their new masters." Sylvia Stallings

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Je 22 '52 600w

"Her first novel, 'The Grass Is Singing,' marked Doris Lessing as one of the most talented younger British writers of the last decade. This first collection of short stories reaffirms her talent; if seriousness of purpose and exceptional literary ability determined commercial success, 'This Was the Old Chief's Country' would be a best seller for a long, long time." William Peden

+ N Y Times p16 J1 13 '52 450w

"Mrs. Lessing is no polemicist. She is a storyteller and a good one. There is tension and immediacy in all of her tales. She is entangled with a major theme. This volume is a brilliant statement of variations upon it. Its further development in future writing should be watched for." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:19 Ag 2 '52 380w

"Miss Lessing's work arises directly from her quality as a human being. She would write well about anything that inspired her. . . . These short stories fulfil the promise of The Grass Is Singing and establish her as a writer of real importance." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 185:598 Ly 4 '51 180w

"Miss Lessing's 10 short stories are so essentially readable and entertaining that it is hard to realize that they are only her second published book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p289 My 11 '51 150w

LESSNER, ERWIN CHRISTIAN. At the devil's booth. 630p $4.95 Doubleday

52-5548

"Two years of bitter history are pictured in this gigantic novel, a panorama of Europe drifting toward World War II. Its hero is a Viennese newspaper publisher and soldier who refused to submit to totalitarianism in any form and, after his own world had surrendered to the Nazis, carried on his personal fight in Czechoslovakia, Finland, and Norway." Publisher's note

"The most successful parts of the book are the descriptions of the various countries at the time of his stay there. His descriptions of Vienna and Prague are vivid. The chapter on Russia, however, is so obvious a caricature that someone who had never been there might have written it. At the end of this long story the reader wonders what the portrait of Rudolph Hossmann would look like if it were added to the large row of paintings in the family gallery." Fritz Richter

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ap 6 '52 280w

"There are moments when the story gives off a Hairbreadth Harry tone but these are infrequent. Lessner does not transform his material, he does not universalize the incidents or the characters the way a Silone does. Nevertheless his excellent journalism gives many valuable insights into the brutal, craven mentalities which came to the surface in the days when Hitler was marching. Many of his images elicit pity and terror and remain vivid for a long time." George Miles

Commonweal 56:227 Je 6 '52 750w

"Its aura of hopelessness and horror lend a certain comparison with Out of the Night and The Twenty-Fifth Hour, but there is a doubtful market for an unrelieved war novel such as this."

Kirkus 20:91 F 1 '52 100w

"Here we have a man half Austrian cousin to Lanny Budd, half latter-day Ulysses. It is characteristic of 'At the Devil's Booth' that his story must be described in terms of plot action instead of an over-all theme. There isn't any. Nor has Mr. Lessner created a consistent emotional tone that would hold the various great chunks of Hossmann's life together. Yet the book's photography is unerring. It gives us hundreds of sharp close-ups of embattled Europe, each bristling with spine-chilling authenticity." Frederic Morton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 27 '52 1000w

"To be truthful, the baron is a little too good to be true—a too-common fault in many panoramic protest-novels. He is not only fearless, he is always on the side of the angels. Like an Austrian Lanny Budd, he foresees Hitler's Scandinavian invasion just as he spots the weak points of the Soviet strategy in Finland, and he even risks his life in a foolhardy attempt to help a victim of Stalinist justice in Vladivostok. It might be this somewhat unreal quality of its hero that creates the book's basic flaw; or it might be the fact that Erwin Lessner has given us not really fiction but the stories behind yesterday's headlines." Richard Plant

N Y Times p5 Mr 30 '52 750w

"This book will serve its purpose as a vivid reminder of horrors lived through by uncounted men, and as a warning against threatening new horrors. In fact, a certain amount of skillful telescoping which the author employs in describing his protagonist's experiences in the Soviet Russia of 1940 point in the latter direction." Anthony Green

+ Sat R 35:37 My 10 '52 240w

LESTER, NANCY. Stranger in Angel Town; il. by the Strimbans. 312p $3 Dodd

52-10160

Novel about a young teacher's first year at her new profession. Jan Geddes, from New Jersey, was not particularly well trained to teach school in a small Colorado town, but she managed to stay thru one year anyway.

Booklist 49:48 O 1 '52

"Nancy Lester is herself attractive, young and a schoolteacher. She has thinly dressed her first book in novel form, but one senses that a large part of it is autobiographical, and this is unfortunate for though she writes with freshness and charming detail, she clings almost too faithfully to picturing a routine, day-by-day existence instead of giving her novel a core."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 S 21 '52 370w

"Miss Lester's use of the diary form to report on all this, although it seems a lazy method of avoiding the technical problems of a connected story, does not detract from the appeal of her engaging book." R. P.

+ Sat R 35:48 O 11 '52 250w

LETHBRIDGE, THOMAS CHARLES. Boats and boatmen; with forty-one drawings by the author. (Past in the present ser) 199p $3.50 Thames

623.8 Ships. Shipbuilding 52-2867

"Mr. Lethbridge deals with boats of western Europe, with emphasis on those of England. . . There are technically competent chapters on fishing boats, origins and development of the boats of the west, propulsion, oar, sail and engine. Pen drawings and gravure plates." Library J

LETHBRIDGE, T. C.—Continued

Reviewed by F. L. Oliver
Christian Science Monitor p7 J1 29 '52
500w

"Scholarship, technical knowledge, good historical background and unusual chapters on 'Superstition and Ritual' and the influence of 'Beach and Estuary' on boat design enhance this volume." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 77:529 Mr 15 '52 90w

"Mr. Lethbridge has plenty of scope for original ideas in his admirable survey, one of a series intended to demonstrate the influence of the past on the things and actions of the present. He is an enthusiast both for boats and for archaeology, and makes the most of a fascinating subject."

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:282 Mr 8 '52 240w

"Mr. Lethbridge's latest book, for 'Boats and Boatmen' is so simple and unostentatious a work that the average reader might fail to suspect the erudition and experience that lie behind its deceptively simple statements." W. M. Whitehill

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 Ap 27 '52 850w

"It is a fascinating story as Mr. Lethbridge tells it. He is an archaeologist and has a lifelong experience of boat-sailing, even in distant waters, and is always on the watch for clues."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p381 Je 6 '52
300w

LEVERSON, ADA. Bird of paradise. 288p $3
Norton

52-6916

Novel of life among some upper class families in Edwardian England.

Reviewed by Milton Crane

Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 16 '52 270w

"Like all successful comedies of manners, 'Bird of Paradise' is intensely of a place and a moment in time, but has something of fundamental humanity in it, too." Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p7 F 28 '52
350w

Kirkus 20:9 Ja 1 '52 190w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier

New Statesman & Nation 43:16 Ja 5 '52 400w

"'Bird of Paradise' is not quite so neat a piece of work as 'The Limit,' the first of Mrs. Leverson's novels to appear in this country. But it has the same Edwardian charm, and it pictures London's fashionable world with a sparkle and kindly ridicule that is highly diverting." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Ap 13 '52 400w

"Our laughter at this mannered comedy may now be double-edged, but the fundamental good sense beneath the absurdities, the shrewd judgment of character, the appreciation of changeless values, endow this writer's work with the true quality of timelessness." Nancie Matthews

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 2 '52 350w

"Mrs. Leverson's novel, first published in 1914, is like an old music box that often creaks and sometimes stops altogether but still produces sounds we like to hear."

+ New Yorker 28:118 Mr 15 '52 60w

"Only occasionally do the wit-deep characters and the delightfully improbable actions of her novels make you feel; their function is to amuse, to save you from the one great fear of her day—the fear of being bored." 'Bird of Paradise' is neither as well-integrated nor as consistently charming as 'The Limit.' Nevertheless, the style that is the woman makes it a delight to read." H. C. Webster

+ Sat R 35:15 Mr 1 '52 600w

"Witty, mannered, a sort of social cream puff for the jaded literati to sing wild praise about, there is nonetheless a certain enchantment in all the quaint antics of the haut monde viewed as though under a glass bell on the whatnot."

Richard McLaughlin

+ Theatre Arts 36:78 Ap '52 170w

Reviewed by James Yaffe

Yale R ns 41:20 spring '52 120w

LEVIN, HARRY. The overreacher; a study of Christopher Marlowe. 204p $4 Harvard univ. press

822 Marlowe, Christopher 52-9392

"Mr. Levin presents a reassessment of the playwright and poet in the light of a generation of researches which have filled in the biographical portrait of Marlowe and supplied much information regarding the texts. . . The introductory chapter provides background from the history of ideas, and sketches the history of the theater and the development of blank verse. A series of further chapters is devoted to rounded interpretations of Marlowe's major works, stressing the leading ideas and the poetic and dramatic technique. The final chapter sums up the patterns of Marlowe's work in a kind of critical portrait." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

"Some lack of rigor, some misplaced respect for a casual kind of dash, is at work in both the style and the argument of Professor Levin's book and limits its effectiveness. In allowing it to do so, he is most unjust to himself, for no man in our generation of scholars is more learned or more capable, if he would get down to it, of the kind of critical imagination which is needed to make Marlowe and his contemporaries available to us once more." Arthur Mizener

+ New Repub 127:22 D 8 '52 1450w

"To his reviewer, the discussion of 'Hero and Leander,' like all other criticisms of the poem, fails to do justice to Marlowe's urbanity and his increasing skill in satire; and I think the author overestimates the relative importance of 'Edward II' in the development of the history play. In other respects, however, the book is admirable, and readers will not only understand and enjoy Marlowe as never before but will sense more keenly his kinship with our own times." J. G. McManaway

+ N Y Times p10 O 26 '52 600w

LEWELLEN, JOHN BRYAN. You and American life lines; a story of transportation; pictures by Karl Murr. 60p $1.50 Childrens press

385 Transportation—Juvenile literature 52-7557

A brief history of all types of cargo transportation in the United States from the early trails to the present. For grades five and six.

Booklist 48:253 Ap 1 '52

"Recommended." Helen Perdue

+ Library J 77:540 Mr 15 '52 80w

Wis Lib Bul 48:177 J1 '52

LEWELLEN, JOHN BRYAN. You and your amazing mind; il. by Winnie Fitch [and] Joe Phalen. 58p $1.50 Childrens press

150 Mental hygiene—Juvenile literature 52-11546

"An introductory book which sets forth ideas to help the reader understand personality problems of others and lead him toward a well-adjusted maturity. The simple but effective treatment of the principles of mental hygiene and the attractive format should stimulate further thought and reading. The book is an outgrowth of the recordings, Meet your mind, that the author made with Dr. William Menninger." Booklist

Booklist 49:16 S 1 '52

"This is a strange sort of 'primer of psychiatry' to offer any age except adults, and even they could easily be mentally upset by the appalling pictures." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p30 N 16 '52 60w

"Unfortunately the treatment of these important subjects is so sketchy and brief that young people are likely to become more rather than less confused about motives behind their own actions. The illustrations are confusing, too, rather than enlightening or artistic." B. J. Hurley

— N Y Times p26 O 12 '52 140w

LEWIS, BEN WILLIAM. British planning and nationalization. 313p $3 Twentieth century fund

338.942 Great Britain—Economic policy. Government ownership 52-10145

"A cautious, restrained, yet sympathetic appraisal of the nationalization of basic industries and the development of social services in Great Britain from 1945 until the defeat of the Labour Party in 1951." Booklist

"As a picture of the problems and solutions of the postwar Labour government it has very serious weaknesses. . . The whole social security program is not even mentioned. The issues of state support of private monopolizations involved in the highly significant semi-nationalization of food imports, and the elaborate controls extended over various sections of the food distribution industries are mentioned without being incorporated into the general conclusions which summarize the volume. Even more important, no attention is paid to the overseas nationalization, public projects, and development programs. . . These omissions do not detract from the quality of such summaries as are given in this volume. But there is a class of omissions which seems to me to seriously limit its value." R. A. Brady

Am Econ R 42:954 D '52 600w

Booklist 48:332 Je 15 '52

"About as severely factual as anything of its kind could well be. This clearly constitutes his study's chief and very genuine merit. With the aid of travel and study in Britain on a Twentieth Century Fund Grant, and his long experience in the study of British economy, the author, who is Professor of Economics at Oberlin College, compiled an impressive body of useful information, organized it logically, and presented it clearly." K. C. Clark

+ Pol Sci Q 67:631 D '52 450w

"The book is indispensable to an understanding of what is going on in Britain."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:275 S '52 210w

LEWIS, BERNARD, and VON ELBE, GUENTHER. Combustion, flames and explosions of gases. 795p il $13.50 Academic press

541.3 Combustion. Gases 51-6842

"In 1938, the authors of the present work published one bearing the same title, which has been widely accepted as a standard treatise on gaseous combustion. They explain in their Preface that 'the present work cannot properly be labeled a second edition inasmuch as the text is entirely new with the exception of a few brief subjects that had already been well explored at that time.' Like its predecessor, the present work develops its subject in four parts: Chemistry and Kinetics of the Reactions Between Fuel Gases and Oxygen; Flame Propagation; State of the Burned Gas; Problems in Technical Combustion Processes." U S Quarterly Bk R

Reviewed by H. A. Taylor

Am Chem Soc J 74:1620 Mr 20 '52 700w

"The value of the book to students and research workers is enhanced greatly by inclusion of 355 figures; over 600 references to source material; and appendices giving limits of inflammability; flame temperatures, and data for thermochemical calculations." E. F. Flock

Chem & Eng N 29:5184 D 3 '51 360w

"Much of the material is considered in exhaustive detail. This, of course, is desirable for a specialist in the field, but also has a disadvantage in that it becomes difficult for a casual reader to find a unifying train of thought. The authors continue their private convention of regarding increases in a property as algebraically negative, and hence must read from right to left the chemical equation representing equilibrium." G. F. Kinney

Chem Eng 59:333 Ja '52 320w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:823 My 15 '52 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:85 N '51

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:431 D '51 280w

LEWIS, SIR CLINTON GRESHAM, and others, eds. American Oxford atlas. 80,xxvi,96p maps $10 Oxford

912 Atlases

Map 51-1555

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The American Oxford Atlas is not a duplication of other atlases in new dress. It is truly a 'new' atlas. It is unusually valuable for serious study, and the foreign maps with their generous scales are valuable for reference. Coverage of certain parts of Asia and Africa in particular is far superior to that found in comparable atlases. American maps are not sufficiently detailed for many purposes, but practically all American libraries are already well supplied in this field. The American Oxford Atlas is recommended for all types of libraries."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 23:29 J1 '52 1800w

LEWIS, CLIVE STAPLES. Voyage of the Dawn Treader; il. by Pauline Baynes. 210p $2.75 Macmillan

52-4219

Two of the Pevensie children, Edmund and Lucy, with their cousin, Eustace, go voyaging with King Caspian of Narnia "to explore the unknown Eastern Seas beyond the Lone Islands." This story of their adventures is the third in a series beginning with The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe, and Prince Caspian (Book Review Digest, 1950, 1951).

Booklist 49:146 D 15 '52

"A beautifully written, highly imaginative tale."

+ Commonweal 57:172 N 21 '52 40w

"Fine fantasy."

+ Kirkus 20:451 Ag 1 '52 180w

"It is a complicated, different sort of fairy tale, exciting and beautiful. It can be read independently of the other Narnia books. Those who like one are apt to read all. . . The brew is stronger than that of Miss Goudge or of George MacDonald. The strange symbolism will not often be understood, but is well worth that place at the back of the child's mind where it will linger until suddenly it is clear." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p3 N 16 '52 250w

"My favorite was the first book of the trilogy—indeed, it seems destined to become a modern fairy-tale classic. The second was, by comparison, a let-down. The present book is better than its immediate predecessor, though perhaps not up to the very high level of 'The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe.'" Chad Walsh

+ N Y Times pt2, p37 N 16 '52 240w

"A juvenile odyssey that in excitement and beauty surpasses even the preceding volumes."

+ New Yorker 28:194 D 6 '52 80w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 9 '52 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p7 N 28 '52 140w

LEWIS, LANGE. Passionate victims. 288p $2.50 Bobbs

52-8312

Detective story.

"Effortful but still within the bounds of readability." James Sandoe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p11 Je 22 '52 200w

"Detailed perception of character and background lead one to expect something on the Millar-Davis-Disney level when suddenly Uncle Mordecai enters. Sententious, pretentious, and infinitely garrulous, psychologist Mordecai

LEWIS, LANGE—Continued

Fentwill seems a pasteboard parody of every quaint professor-turned-amateur-detective in mystery history." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p22 Je 29 '52 100w

"This well-written yarn may be overcrowded with sleuths and psychology, but Uncle Mordecai's theories make refreshingly good sense." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 22 '52 40w

"Worthwhile." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:33 Ji 26 '52 30w

LEWIS, NORMAN. Golden earth; travels in Burma. 270p il $4.50 Scribner

959.1 [915.91] Burma—Description and travel 52-13925

"Mr. Lewis, whose account of his experiences in French Indo-China showed him to be a tireless, resourceful and perceptive traveller, went in 1951 to Burma. Here he found travel in the interior, which was and is racked by civil war and dacoity, to be on paper impossible: a discovery which he very sensibly put in perspective by making a picaresque progress from Mandalay through the Shan States to Lashio, Bhamo and Myitkyina, afterwards returning by steamer down the insurgent-dominated Irrawaddy as far as Mandalay, whence he completed the journey to Rangoon by a railway subject to daily sabotage and frequent ambush." Spec

Booklist 49:155 Ja 1 '53

Reviewed by Percy Wood

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 D 14 '52 180w

"High recommended." W. K. Harrison

+ Library J 77:2181 D 15 '52 50w

"It is hard to remember any better travel book published during the last twenty years than Mr Norman Lewis's Golden Earth." Derrick Sington

+ Manchester Guardian p4 S 9 '52 220w

"There are excellent descriptive passages; and the work is solidified, not padded, by excursions into Burmese history. Eighteen handsome photographs, taken by the author, provide the crowning touch to a book so enjoyable that one might, if all else failed, even go out and buy it." Honor Tracy

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:354 S 27 '52 650w

"A highly diverting travel book in which politics and economics are kept in the background and ordinary (and extraordinary) human beings emerge on every page." Margaret Parton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 N 23 '52 470w

"The author is at his best in brilliant descriptive passages that give the feel and flavor of Burma and his refreshingly undramatized accounts of brushes with bandits and Communist rebels." Richard Tregaskis

+ N Y Times p16 N 9 '52 290w

"Mr. Lewis, who is an excellent observer and, what is more, an excellent writer, has ventured into a part of the world where it is becoming increasingly risky to go, and the result is a superb travel book."

+ New Yorker 28:202 N 22 '52 110w

Reviewed by Peter Fleming

Spec 189:368 S 19 '52 750w

"Three months is short indeed to render an account of this erupting scene, but it is not too short for Mr. Lewis, who observes neatly and quickly and brings a wealth of historical reading to sort out what he sees."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p662 O 10 '52 650w

LEWIS, NORMAN. How to get more out of your reading. 425p $3.95 Doubleday

028 Reading 51-14246

Guide to reading for enjoyment. Includes examples and texts. No index.

"Valuable guide to self-training for enjoyable reading."

+ Bookmark 11:82 Ja '52 20w

"Not a short cut. This demands close concentration, and a determination to learn how to get more out of your reading. An essential book for remedial reading—at the teacher level in undergraduate work, at the student level in colleges and thereafter."

+ Kirkus 19:514 S 1 '51 160w

"Highly recommended, primarily, though not exclusively, for groups."

+ Wis Lib Bul 48:28 Ja '52

LEWIS ROGER, pseud. See Zarchy, H.

LEWIS, SINCLAIR. From Main Street to Stockholm; letters of Sinclair Lewis, 1919-1930; ed. and with an introd. by Harrison Smith. 307p $5 Harcourt

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-6449

Letters written by Sinclair Lewis to his publishers, Harcourt Brace, with a few from the first Mrs. Lewis. The period covered is from 1919 to Lewis' break with his publishers in 1930. Index.

Bookmark 12:80 Ja '53 30w

"'From Main Street to Stockholm' is chiefly a self-portrait of Sinclair Lewis. It reveals a man of great gifts and of painful frailties. Shrewd, acquisitive, generous, often idealistic, restlessly ambitious—he sought the Pulitzer prize in order to reject it, and for years he promoted himself for the Nobel prize. Most clearly it shows him a homeless and unresting man." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 23 '52 410w

Kirkus 20:672 O 1 '52 160w

"Pungent and amusing stuff, especially letters dealing with England and the Pulitzer jury, discreetly and accurately edited and annotated." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 77:1999 N 15 '52 130w

"Harrison Smith has put together the office files of this correspondence. It doesn't tell the whole story. But perhaps it tells the story all the more dramatically, because the crises come in like claps of thunder. They are not great letters in any literary sense, but they are an astonishing revelation of that fascinating, exasperating, cantankerous, and deeply lovable figure who was Red Lewis." Perry Miller

+ Nation 175:531 D 6 '52 700w

"The most obvious defect of the book is the inclusion of quite so many letters written by the publishers themselves to Lewis. However helpful they may be in establishing context and atmosphere, they are too numerous and lengthy not to detract more than they add to the interest of the book." Ramon Guthrie

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 N 16 '52 1000w

"Of this fascinating and puzzling character we get tantalizing glimpses rather than a full account in these letters. . . . Even though Lewis appears to have been, as authors go, only moderately difficult, you end up by wondering why a man stays in a business that requires such unremitting tact as Harcourt's. If these letters showed us nothing else—and they show us much else—they would be fascinating on this account alone." Arthur Mizener

+ N Y Times p7 N 16 '52 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 19 '52 800w

"The letters are filled with fascinating side-lights and glimpses of the artist who was hidden away beneath all this." Maxwell Geismar

+ Sat R 35:24 N 15 '52 900w

LEWIS, WYNDHAM. Revenge for love. 341p $3.50 Regnery

52-12706

An American edition of a novel first published in England in 1937. The story deals with a group of Englishmen who become involved with Communists at home and in Spain.

"Mr. Lewis never quite achieves an aesthetic or moral distance from which to view the morass of muddy clichés and murky action which surrounds his characters; hence his book is chiefly notable as an atypical period piece." Riley Hughes

Cath World 176:234 D '52 170w

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 23 '52 420w

"Such views are not very original today, but in the Popular Front period they were. It may be hard to like Mr. Lewis; it is impossible not to respect him." Geoffrey Ashe

Commonweal 57:338 Ja 2 '53 600w

Kirkus 20:473 Ag 1 '52 150w

"Recommended for limited purchase." Beatrice Libaire

Library J 77:1656 O 1 '52 120w

"Lewis must once have had talent, for shards of it lie scattered through the book. His invective can be amusing in a coarse sort of way; his eye for fakes is sharp; he has a knack for evoking the nauseating sides of a physical experience. Once or twice he recalls Celine; both look upon art as a ceremony of regurgitation. But Celine was lucky enough to avoid ideology in his novels and therefore could release his disgust with spontaneous purity, while Lewis, who can think better than Celine but has no better thoughts, feels obliged to labor his crankiness on every page." Irving Howe

— + New Repub 127:27 O 20 '52 750w

"Apart from the political angle 'Revenge for Love' would be worth reading for its rough-hewn prose and flashes of wit, and for a sort of snarling zest that keeps it hot even when, so to say, there are no customers. Mr. Lewis hates well and cleanly, and sometimes when he is not hating anything special at the moment, the painter in him takes possession and he can make vivid word pictures." James Hilton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 D 28 '52 550w

"Mr. Lewis' prose flutters, often failing to roost. Some of his scenes are belabored and drained of significance. In tossing big ideas and words around, his aim frequently suffers from the fact that he stands upon a fairly rickety soapbox. Quite a few of the most telling passages of 'Revenge for Love' have the reminiscent air of champagne the next morning. But its darting wit and sardonic insight, its venom-tipped barbs at cartoonable Britons, and its tumultuous riches piled in disorderly heaps, provide a sparkling entertainment. Nothing austere, stark, or respectful mars its off-beat charm." James Kelly

— + N Y Times p4 O 19 '52 600w

"An admirably prejudiced novel. Mr. Lewis hits his mark particularly well when he blasts the phony pinks who enjoy 'infantile extra-territoriality.' . . . Yet 'The Revenge for Love' is not a totally satisfactory book. Bred in hate, never emphatic about the love that is revenge's opposite, this novel does not show us the typical Communists of the Thirties as wisely or as accurately as Alistair Cooke's 'A Generation on Trial,' Dos Passos's 'Adventures of a Young Man,' Malraux's 'Man's Hope,' or Hemingway's 'For Whom the Bell Tolls.'" H. C. Webster

+ — Sat R 35:22 O 25 '52 550w

Time 60:108 O 27 '52 460w

LEWIS, WYNDHAM. Rotting Hill. 265p $3
Regnery

52-8209

A satirical account of life in England under the socialist government. The scene of these episodes is the section of London in which the author lives, and his characters express his own political views.

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:234 Je '52 250w

Reviewed by Paul Engle

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 13 '52 490w

Reviewed by Robert Conover

Christian Century 69:782 Jl 2 '52 400w

"These pieces are half-essay, half-story. All of them are written with distinction and closely woven wit and intelligence. As a whole, though, they are rather monotonous and this reviewer cannot help but feel that they were published in the United States for the sake of their politics rather than for their literary interest." William Pfaff

Commonweal 56:181 My 23 '52 140w

Kirkus 20:195 Mr 15 '52 180w

"Of the stories contained in this volume, only two can be said to possess characters who exist to some extent in their own right. In the others the characters are all humorously sardonic pretexts for political discussion, of which 'My Fellow Traveller to Oxford' is an extreme example. For the traveller only exists to interject laconic remarks while Mr Lewis expounds his views on human rights. But as political discussion, plausibly dressed in the clothes of fiction, this is a very stimulating and often entertaining volume." H. I. A. Fausset

+ — Manchester Guardian p4 D 7 '51 240w

"Rotting Hill is an irritating book in which there is much silliness as well as some saeva indignatio, much crochetedness as well as some compassion, and much pamphleteering as well as some creation. There will be people who will try to shrug it off, but no one who cares for writing will be able to do so. Take it as it is, then; its basic weakness is its emptiness, its finally negative quality, its uncertainty despite its knowledge that much is wrong, of what is really wrong, and what is most wrong." J. D. Scott

+ — New Statesman & Nation 43:18 Ja 5 '52 800w

"This volume of sketches and stories is, unfortunately, not on a par throughout with Lewis' most acute work. His scalpel frequently seems blunted. The gesture with which he wields it is of a lesser stylist. The author himself insists too often on blustering argumentatively in a tone that is more disgruntled than satirical. Yet the book has passages that bring back to our ears the early Lewis of 'the controlled explosion and the steel edge'—the pamphleteer, the fighter and hard stylist of twenty-five years ago." J. J. Sweeney

— + N Y Times p5 Ap 13 '52 950w

New Yorker 28:145 Ap 19 '52 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 18 '52 80w

"As a whole the book is so poorly focussed that all it is likely to do to most readers is to make them feel vaguely troubled about whatever optimism they've mustered and slightly inclined to look at the ideas of the Social Creditors for whom Mr. Lewis reserves his unique (though limited) gesture of approval." H. C. Webster

— Sat R 35:40 My 17 '52 460w

Reviewed by Tange Lean

Spec 187:832 D 14 '51 170w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p7D My 18 '52 320w

"Wyndham Lewis has written better books than Rotting Hill, but these stories show that he has lost none of his genius for laying a horny forefinger on his subjects. They are full of the 'tense and angular entity' of reality, and they are also the work of a man who, exiled to what he calls 'the land of blindman's buff,' has taken his humor and courage along."

+ — Time 59:114 Ap 14 '52 1350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p777 D 7 '51 1000w

LEWITON, MINA (MRS HOWARD SIMON).
First love; il. by Howard Simon. 166p $2.75
McKay

52-12663

"The heroine is Alys, daughter of a famous actress and the composer, Edward Monterey, whose strange disappearance casts a shadow over Alys's childhood. A choice between two suitors, Ernest, who arrives from abroad in search of her father's music; and Andy, a young artist, who wanders into Clove Hollow

LEWITON, MINA—Continued
and stays to build a theater for her mother in the Monterey's stone barn, provides suspense." Horn Bk

Booklist 49:91 N 1 '52

"As soon as I began to read this I was impressed by the quality of the author's writing. She has a gift for creating atmosphere and picturing people and places in the fewest possible words. It is a charming story." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:330 O '52 100w

"In spite of a briskness that often telescopes and confuses events, this novel deals with problems more basic to life than those found in most fiction for young adults."

Kirkus 20:662 O 1 '52 240w

"A novel as frankly sentimental as its title, as romantic as the name of its heroine. . . Girls will follow with interest Lyssie's first encounter with the problems of adult life, and will sympathize with her in the difficult choice she has to make." Alberta Elseman

N Y Times p48 O 19 '52 170w

"'First Love' is a transitional book to adult fiction. It is leisurely and ordered in style, quietly descriptive, impressionistic—a love story rather than a romance. The girl who is reading her last teen-age novels will do well to look into this one, since it is the kind of book that will make her demand more from her subsequent readings." B. B. Thorpe

+ San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 16 '52 50w

LEYS, WAYNE ALBERT RISSER. Ethics for policy decisions; the art of asking deliberative questions. 428p $6.35; to schools $4.75 Prentice-Hall

171 Ethics 52-8388

"In the first part, he has examined a variety of ethical idea-systems. He states clearly that his aim in this reexamination was not to give an account that would satisfy his fellow philosophers. Instead, he has examined philosophers like Bentham, Plato, Kant, The Stoics, Hobbes and others in terms of the ethical questions which they raised, rather than in terms of the answers which they offered. . . But the test of Professor Leys' approach is contained in the second part of his book in which he has examined a number of Policy Studies. The examples range widely, from family problems to race relations, from problems in union-management relations to issues of national and international politics." Am Soc R

Reviewed by Reinhard Bendix

Am Soc R 17:638 O '52 400w

"The conception underlying this book is eminently sane and stimulating; and despite some limitations in execution, it supplies much genuine illumination on the role of theoretical ethical analyses in the settlement of complex practical issues." Ernest Nagel

+ Ann Am Acad 284:209 N '52 350w

School & Society 75:238 Ap 12 '52 20w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. Mantis, the mantis; il. with photos. by the author. 62p $2.50 Dutton

595.72 Mantis—Juvenile literature 52-8245

In story form with many full page photographs, the author describes the life and habits of a praying mantis.

Booklist 49:112 N 15 '52

"Excellent beginning nature material."

+ Kirkus 20:657 O 1 '52 80w

"It is a brief, true story, accompanied by twenty-five of the best nature photographs this reviewer has seen since the Harnett Kane picture books. A good gift for nature lovers and gardeners of any age over eight." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p28 N 16 '52 50w

"The text is personal rather than scientific in tone, occasionally sentimental, but informative. Although a few of the photographs are indistinct, the majority are very handsome." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p36 S 28 '52 150w

LIANG, YEN. Dee Dee's birthday. [32p] il $1.75 Oxford

52-11194

Picture-story book about a little Chinese boy's birthday, showing how he celebrated the day, and the presents he received. For ages 3 to 6.

Booklist 49:52 O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:11 O '52 10w

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 O 12 '52 50w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Yates

Christian Science Monitor p11 S 11 '52 70w

Horn Bk 28:315 O '52 40w

"Fetchingly told birthday doings of a small Chinese boy."

+ Kirkus 20:449 Ag 1 '52 40w

"While written for children 5-6 years old, the story could be used in social studies throughout the primary grades. Recommended." H. E. Walker

+ Library J 77:1410 S 1 '52 40w

"A truly delightful small picture-book for small children." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 14 '52 200w

"The narrative is very simple in structure but its pace matches the continuous excitement of the day." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p32 S 21 '52 180w

LIBBY, WILLARD FRANK. Radiocarbon dating. 124p il $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press 539.752 Radioactivity. Chronology 52-8364

"After describing the principles of the method, discussing the world-wide distribution of radiocarbon, and presenting critically the measurements of its half-life, the author describes in detail the practical procedure for preparing samples for measurement, and the technique of measurement. This is followed by a tabulation of results obtained up to the fall of 1951 on a large number of samples very diverse in age and place of origin. The final chapter in the book, written by Frederick Johnson of the Robert S. Peabody Foundation for Archaeology, contains a critical discussion of the importance and significance of radiocarbon dating for archaeology and geology." (Chem & Eng N) Indexes.

"Important book. . . The radiocarbon method has by no means reached a final stage of development. . . It may be anticipated that the method will become more accurate and usable over a longer time span (perhaps 30,000 years), and that greater insight will be gained into the biological and chemical problems of sample reliability. For an understanding of these future developments Libby's book is basic." Donald Collier

+ Am Anthropol 54:558 Jl '52 600w

"Since it is written by the discoverer of the method of dating ancient materials containing carbon, this is an authoritative treatise, and since it is the first and only book on the subject, it is indispensable to any person who has more than a passing interest in this important new method." E. R. Caley

+ Chem & Eng N 30:2932 Jl 14 '52 130w

"Most of the book is written in the style of a research paper, and considerable knowledge of nuclear physics and geochemistry is required of the reader; not everyone interested in this fascinating field, therefore, will find the book easy to read."

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:209 Je '52 240w

Reviewed by Irving Rouse

Yale R n s 41:639 summer '52 500w

LIDDERDALE, DAVID WILLIAM SHUCK-BURGH. Parliament of France, 296p $4.75 Praeger

328.44 France. Assemblée nationale A52-10002

"A survey of the organization, rules of debate, committees, and legislative and financial activities of the National Assembly. Treatment of the Council of the Republic is appropriately restricted to a single chapter. First comes a thirty-eight page survey of the States General and legislative assemblies since 1789. Analysis of the present parliament then proceeds . . . under dozens of important sub-heads, and the volume ends with a useful glossary of parliamentary terms. Documentation is amply provided through footnotes, and there is an index. While many features of French procedure have been carried over from the Third Republic, Lidderdale is the first to explore the whole field and to bring us as nearly down to date as the process of book-publishing permits." Am Pol Sci R

"One of the very best descriptions so far produced of the operation of a fundamental institution of the Fourth Republic. The book will probably receive the rating of indispensable by serious students of comparative government." J. G. Heinberg

+ Am Pol Sci R 46:257 Mr '52 100w

"Well written and well documented work recommended for students of French political life. Extensive, useful glossary of French Parliamentary terms." H. H. Berni

+ Library J 77:1658 O 1 '52 130w

"The work is a feat of factual exposition; a wealth of technical data, the fruits of painstaking research and careful condensation, is presented in well-organized form. For reference purposes especially it is invaluable, and a glossary of French parliamentary terms adds to its attractiveness for prospective visitors to the Palais Bourbon." F. S. Burin

+ Pol Sci Q 66:626 D '51 700w

"This is by far the best book on French Government that has appeared, either in French or in English, for a long time." David Thomson

+ Spec 185:692 My 25 '51 600w

"Mr. Lidderdale has had the admirable idea of explaining in detail how the French Parliament works; and he has admirably executed his project. Though his book is in the form of a dry manual, it is full of fascinating points and will instruct, as well as enlighten, even the best-informed student of French affairs."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p463 J1 27 '51 600w

LIEBLING, ABBOTT JOSEPH. Chicago: the second city; drawings by Steinberg. 143p $2.50 Knopf

977.311 [917.7311] Chicago—Description 52-8506

Three articles, embodying the author's thoughts and ideas on Chicago, which first appeared in the New Yorker. An introduction, notes, and illustrations have been added.

Booklist 48:358 J1 1 '52

Kirkus 20:294 My 1 '52 180w

"This is surface journalism which can be most effective when it highlights a revolting situation vividly and wittily, and can be appallingly obtuse when it touches unfamiliar territory. Mr. Liebling writes well, in the New Yorker's well-known neutrally satiric vein, and Steinberg's drawings strike home hilariously to help the book give a final knife-twist to 'the second city.'" M. L. Rosenthal

+ New Repub 127:21 Ag 4 '52 1000w

"This is not intended to be a balanced analytical report on Chicago. If it were, charges of omissions would have to be entertained. As the impressions of one man, embittered or otherwise, Mr. Liebling's entertaining book can be highly recommended." Luke Carroll

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk p4 Je 22 '52 650w

"Mr. Liebling's total product makes for good entertainment. The book is attractively designed, the illustrations are first-rate and Mr. Liebling can write. The book will annoy many Chicagoans but will provide much diversion for those New Yorkers who, in their smugness, are convinced that any city west of the Hudson is, ipso facto, second rate." Ernest Von Hartz

N Y Times p3 Je 22 '52 550w

"Mr. Liebling may have been influenced by the 'firstness' of his own New York; many critics of his Chicago remarks made that point with some validity. But he has sensed something here, I believe. And he has shown his readers in his lively, sardonic style exactly the split-personality city that he feels Chicago to be." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 J1 2 '52 700w

"The aroma, faint and far, of something fairly fishy in its inventiveness, is redeemed by the book's careless humor." Nelson Algren

+ Sat R 35:37 Je 21 '52 750w

LIETZMANN, HANS. Era of the church fathers; tr. by Bertram Lee Woolf. (History of the early church, v4) 212p $4 Scribner

270.2 Church history—Primitive and early church. Fathers of the church

"The fourth and concluding volume of the History of the Early Church by the great German authority in this field. The author was the successor of the great Harnack at the University of Berlin and his contributions to church history have been as outstanding. This volume deals with the history of the church during the fourth century beginning with the reign of Jovian. Among the church fathers whose life and work is described are Basil of Caesarea, Gregory of Nyssa, Gregory of Nazianzus, John Chrysostom and Ambrose." (Kirkus) Bibliography. Index.

"Lietzmann's work, though compact, is rich in details relating to doctrine, religious life, monasticism and worship, as well as the development of the power and structure of the church, and it is richly documented. Unfortunately it does not extend to a consideration of either Jerome or Augustine." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 69:724 Je 18 '52 450w

"It is seldom that one finds a scholarly work in which mastery of material and clarity of style are so effectively combined."

+ Kirkus 20:347 Je 15 '52 170w

"Readers in search of a fresh and penetrating account of the thought and doings of the early Christians will receive this volume with regret equal to their satisfaction. They will rejoice in the shrewdness and originality of its author's judgments, even when they do not themselves agree with his conclusions."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p841 D 28 '51 800w

LILJE, HANNS, bp. Luther now; tr. by Carl J. Schindler. 190p $2.25 Muhlenberg press

270.6 Luther, Martin. Reformation 52-9119

An interpretation of Martin Luther, which attempts to show the relevance of the Reformation to our time. The author is "one of Germany's most gifted churchmen." No index.

"Luther Now is at its best on Erasmus, the church, and the impact of the Reformation on subsequent centuries. The greatest weakness of the book lies in the realm of the political, which is judged largely on the basis of the moral standards of the theologian rather than on historical sources. The author overestimates Charles V far beyond his just due, while Henry VIII is not given credit for his actual accomplishments." E. G. Schwiebert

+ Am Hist R 58:96 O '52 500w

Reviewed by E. T. Bachmann

Christian Century 69:669 Je 4 '52 1150w

LILLY, VIRGIL GREENE, and BARNETT, HORACE LESLIE. Physiology of the fungi. 464p il $7.50 McGraw

589.2 Fungi

51-12078

"This book of 18 chapters deals with the important phases of fungus physiology. Much attention is given to factors affecting growth and enzyme activities including consideration of essential metallic and nonmetallic elements, carbon and nitrogen sources, hydrogen ion concentration, vitamins, and growth factors. The reproductive activities of fungi, including sporulation, dissemination, and germination are reviewed, and special chapters are devoted to metabolic antagonists, action of fungicides, parasitism, and physiological variation and inheritance." Chem & Eng N

"Although replete with selected examples this book is of particular interest in bringing together in one place a general survey of fungus activities which has hitherto been lacking. The book is well written and free of gross errors, although omission of decimal points in the pH legend for the figure on page 155 was noted." L. A. Underkoffer

+ — Chem & Eng N 29:5388 D 17 '51 260w
U S Quarterly Bk R 7:408 D '51 270w

LIN, YU-T'ANG. Famous Chinese short stories; retold. 299p $3.50 Day

52-6175

"The stories selected by Lin Yutang for translation and adaptation are all from the older, classical Chinese literature, chiefly of the Tang and Sung dynasties. In form they are tales rather than short stories. . . The tales themselves are of various types and subjects. There are stories of adventure. . . There are stories of love, licit and illicit. . . Among the most novel to western readers are the ghost stories." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 48:321 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:235 J1 '52 20w

"An unusual and fascinating anthology."

A. L. Bader

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 25 '52 170w

"Lin Yutang's reverence and honesty, his deep lying need to identify his culture in fellowship with humanity result in an entrancing volume."

+ Kirkus 20:238 Ap 1 '52 100w

"As retold by Lin Yutang, the stories are, of course, expertly done, catching the easy, chatty tone of the storyteller. There are a few disturbing mannerisms: certain phrases of whimsy and clichés reminiscent of the silent movies which startle the reader into wondering whether they are the translator's. On the whole, however, this is good reading, and this reader found 'The Cricket Boy' and 'Curly Beard' especially flavorful, moving and genuine." Mai-Mai Sze

+ — N Y Times p4 My 18 '52 190w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p19 J1 6 '52 160w

"These stories, written in a prose as fresh and clean as a mountain stream, are a timeless combination of sophistication and naivete, of good story telling and acute characterization." William Peden

+ Sat R 35:15 J1 19 '52 500w

LINCOLN, FREDERICK CHARLES. Migration of birds; il. by Bob Hines. 102p $1 Doubleday

598.2 Birds—Migration

52-5234

Facts on the migratory habits of birds, with maps showing breeding ranges, winter ranges, and migration areas of various types of birds. Bibliography. Index.

"Should be helpful for conservation, bird-study classes and individuals concerned."

Bookmark 11:133 Mr '52 20w

Reviewed by A. C. Ames

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Mr 30 '52 220w

"Mr. Lincoln's approach is objective, but at the same time one that is fully responsive to the fascination of his subject." R. O'B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 16 '52 160w

Reviewed by C. H. Woodward
Sat R 35:36 Ag 2 '52 20w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 9 '52 230w

LINCOLN, JAMES FINNEY. Incentive management; a new approach to human relationships in industry and business. 280p $1 Lincoln electric co, 22801 St Clair av, Cleveland 17

658 Business management. Industrial relations 51-14761

"According to Mr. Lincoln, president of the Lincoln Electric Company, there hasn't been a work stoppage or an hour lost in thirty years at his plant because of individual grievances. In [this book] he explains the practical applications of incentive management, step-by-step details of how it is used, and the results achieved." (Sat R) No index.

"Certainly Mr. Lincoln has a remarkable achievement from which to prescribe. His prescription, however, impressed this reader much as those advanced for the remaking of society 150 years ago by that successful cotton spinner of New Lanark, Robert Owen, who, too, did not hesitate to urge that the world should be remade according to his philosophy." J. N. Thurber

Ann Am Acad 282:145 J1 '52 450w

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 77:830 My 15 '52 30w

"This is a book by a man who practices what he preaches with excellent results. This reviewer believes that the emphasis Mr. Lincoln places on developing the individual is the major key to his success. All managers, foremen, union and government leaders should read this book. It is well worth the nominal price asked for it." Phil Carroll

+ Management R 41:202 Mr '52 470w

Sat R 35:54 Ja 19 '52 40w

LINCOLN, ROBERT PAGE. Black bass fishing; theory and practice [il. by Steve Miller]. 376p $5 Stackpole co.

799.1 Bass fishing

52-9608

"A comprehensive work, by an outstanding authority, covering all types of bass, and methods of catching them, with a Who's Who in bass fishing." Library J

"A 'must' in the library of every rod and reel fan." Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 S 28 '52 70w

Reviewed by George Strickler

Chicago Sunday Tribune p43 D 7 '52 30w

"Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1207 J1 '52 20w

LINDEY, ALEXANDER. Plagiarism and originality. 366p $5 Harper

808.06 Plagiarism

51-11934

"Continuing his studies, the author of 'Hold Your Tongue!' and other books in the field of literary law here offers a rich treatise on plagiarism, mainly in its legal aspects. He probes other matters, too, such as the debt all artists owe to the great corpus of their art, the line between research and theft." (N Y Times) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 48:317 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:232 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 J1 20 '52 60w

"The Lindy book is stimulating and educational reading and, at the same time, a source of valuable practical and historical information for all those interested in this particular aspect of copyright law." W. J. Derenberg

+ Columbia Law R 52:821 Je '52 550w

"An excellent and interesting coverage of the fine points of plagiarism, infringement, borrowing, similarity, copyright, parallels and the principles of litigation."

+ Kirkus 20:182 Mr 1 '52 200w

Reviewed by Harold Lancour

Library J 77:1075 Je 15 '52 120w

Nation 175:393 O 25 '52 30w

"Mr. Lindey, who is himself a lawyer, writes a brisk, non-judicial prose which he supports with abundant notes and appropriate legal citations (these latter are essential, otherwise one would be tempted to accuse him of making up some of his cases). There is a good bibliography, not merely to prove that Mr. Lindey has consulted a lot of authorities but to give the reader leads for further explorations along the murky and melancholy path down which Mr. Lindey has pointed him. There is an index of more than two thousand headings which turns an entertaining and absorbing book into an invaluable reference manual." J. T. Winterich

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 18 '52 850w

"To his task [the author] brings a readable style, refreshing brevity and a wide background, perhaps the outstanding value of the book. Yet he does not assume, as so many writers do, that background alone is enough, for his knowledge is skillfully channeled, leading to things he examines exhaustively." J. M. Cain

+ N Y Times p16 My 18 '52 470w

"The book is brightly written but it is also a scholarly, documented work."

+ New Yorker 28:139 Je 7 '52 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 18 '52 600w

"There is no page of 'Plagiarism and Originality' where you cannot put in a thumb and pull out a plum of practical legal advice, crisply told anecdote, or delightful humor. In advising writers as to their literary rights and safeguarding them against the wolves that cluster downwind of a best seller or a smash hit, Mr. Lindey is a master of compression. He even provides generous documentation, an index, and an invaluable bibliography." H. C. Wolfe

+ Sat R 35:14 Jl 12 '52 450w

"The subject is examined from nearly every possible angle. Mr. Lindey, who has been practicing law in New York for twenty-five years and is a specialist in the laws pertaining to literary, artistic or musical theft, has produced a volume that will appeal to the lay reader as much as to scholars and attorneys."

Richard McLaughlin

+ Theatre Arts 36:12 Ag '52 650w

"In attempting to produce a semipopular book, Mr. Lindey has included several chapters on the history of borrowing in the various arts, particularly literature. The result is not happy. . . The incautious reader may well conclude from the chapters on this subject that most of the great artists of history were unscrupulous appropriators of other men's work. They were, of course, nothing of the sort."

— U S Quarterly Bk R 8:298 S '52 200w

LINDGREN, MRS ASTRID (ERICSSON). Bill Bergson, master detective; tr. from the Swedish by Herbert Antoine; il. by Louis S. Glanzman. 200p $2 Viking

52-12922

The story of Bill who wanted to be a detective, and two friends who also lived in a small town in Sweden. For ages 9 to 13. Translated from the Swedish.

Booklist 49:129 D 1 '52

"An unusually well-worked-out mystery story full of ingenuity and hilarious situations. There is nothing run-of-the-mill about it." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:325 O '52 100w

Kirkus 20:411 Jl 15 '52 120w

"The humor is delightful and the children very convincing. Not another Pippi Longstocking, but good." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 77:1908 N 1 '52 70w

"This book comes from Sweden, where the author is probably the most popular writer for children. The characterization and the setting are good, the episodes credible. The book is distinguished by an atmosphere of high good humor which invests every aspect of the story."

L. R. D.

+ N Y Times pt2, p35 N 16 '52 140w

"Perhaps the funniest part of the story lies in Bill's imaginary conversation with his admiring public. The grownups in the story are as amusing and satisfying as the three children."

+ Sat R 35:54 N 15 '52 50w

LINDMAN, MAJ JAN. Holiday time [pictured by the author]. [32p] $1.50 Whitman, A.

52-8929

To celebrate Flag Day in Sweden, Per and Stina go to the Park and visit the zoo where they see the seals and the bears, ride on ponies, have lemonade and rolls at a table, and join the folk dancers in a merry circle.

Kirkus 20:257 Ap 15 '52 50w

Reviewed by D. M. Blasco

Library J 77:798 My 1 '52 40w

"A satisfying, instructive story, beautifully illustrated." J. F. S.

+ Spring'd Republican p9D My 25 '52 50w

Wis Lib Bul 48:174 Jl '52

LINDOP, AUDREY (MRS DUDLEY GORDON LESLIE). Out of the whirlwind. 414p $3.50 Appleton

52-8831

"The saga of Minnie Ball, a music-hall singer of the 1870s, who fought her ruthless way to respectability and ruined the lives of three generations and her devoted and exploited little maid Violet." Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 48:321 Je 1 '52

"A thoroughly comfortable cup of tea of English origin, this balances evil against good, not in blacks and whites, but soft grays."

+ Kirkus 20:196 Mr 15 '52 200w

"There is nothing admirable about Minnie, but her exploits make an easy-to-read lending-library dramatization of the life and times of a fast-moving lady buccaneer. The author exhibits an easy, first-hand knowledge of her milieu; her background color, in fact, is more interesting than her rather stereotyped character drawing." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p11 Jl 6 '52 170w

"In her latest novel Miss Lindop essays the difficult task of making a nasty, avaricious, calculating, destructive, and beautiful woman the focus of our interest for more than four hundred pages. Despite the display of considerable inventiveness in situation she doesn't quite bring it off."

Sat R 35:29 Jl 26 '52 170w

Times [London] Lit Sup p716 N 9 '51 50w

LINDSLEY, MARY FLORA. Grand tour, and other poems. 128p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

811

52-11764

"Miss Lindsley chooses the most diverse subjects; life as viewed from a window overlooking New York entitled 'Rooftop in Babylon'; a long narrative of a Catholic martyr in sixteenth century Cornwall; a little Negro child awaiting adoption at the New York Foundling Hospital; sketches of London and of Italian cities and scenes. Different as they are, she brings to all a timelessness and beauty which reflects a mind receptive to the inner meaning of experience and phenomena." Cath World

"If imagination arises to some extent in the subconscious it may be that poetry and music are the means by which it is captured and given substance. Mystical experience is not often successfully translated into language, but when it is, as in some of these verses, we have true poetry." Robert Wilberforce

LINDSLEY, M. F.—Continued
+ Cath World 176:237 D '52 150w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 175:218 S 13 '52 40w

Reviewed by Lawrence Ferling
San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 7 '52
90w

LINFORD, DEE. Man without a star. 312p $3.50
Morrow 52-9701

A tale of the American West in the 1880's and of a young man's coming of age in those difficult days.

Booklist 49:90 N 1 '52

Kirkus 20:427 J1 15 '52 160w

"A well told yarn which has caught the flavor and mood of the Western frontier, without resort to the clichés and standard situation of the 'western.' . . The picturesque and earthy language of the cowboys is frequently employed, but it is never forced and should offend only the most squeamish of readers."
J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:1809 O 15 '52 60w

"The author manages to tip the scales in favor of his book through his completely credible handling of the frontier characters and his considerable skill with dialogue—gamy, natural and frequently very funny."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 O 26
'52 50w

"The story is a simple straightforward narrative that sticks close enough to the historic to give it the ring of reality. The simplicity and restraint in the telling make it a tale far above the bang-bang bedlam of the usual
Western." Lewis Nördyke

+ N Y Times p30 O 26 '52 320w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Spring'd Republican p11C O 19 '52
100w

LINKLATER, ERIC. Laxdale Hall. 301p $3.50
Harcourt 52-9852

"The story of a somewhat eccentric community of Scots and Southerners who fight for their right to flourish in their paths of eccentricity. . . The fate of Laxdale Hall, although it is the main theme, does not really interest us as much as the score of minor dramas which unfold themselves by instalments so cunningly interwoven that until the last few pages we continue to have no fewer than twenty motives to read on to the end."
Spec

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:10 O '52 40w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 J1 27 '52
360w

"Despite all the inventiveness and neatly packaged commotion, Laxdale Hall is only fitfully amusing. It relies on the inherent absurdity of the shenanigans to carry it off, and somehow the farce fails flat. Mr. Linklater is too busy being literate and keeping a poker face to add the necessary spark of humor.
He doesn't have the affection, either, to make this a warm-hearted tribute to his indomitable individualists." C. H. Weiss

+ Commonweal 56:420 Ag 1 '52 350w

Kirkus 20:378 J1 1 '52 200w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p4 N 16 '51 60w

"I found this an enjoyable and amusing novel, and I admired the professional competence with which it is written." Jocelyn
Brooke

+ New Statesman & Nation 42:648 D 1
'51 240w

"One's care not to take Mr. Linklater too seriously is no reason why one should not take him seriously enough. He is an excellent writer of a school and generation to which excellence in writing means civilization in writing, and to which seeing the funny side of things is part of the civilized outlook." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 J1 27 '52
700w

"Laxdale Hall is a masterpiece of inventiveness. From first to last, the story never lags or, for all its improbability, strikes a false note." Nancie Matthews

+ N Y Times p5 J1 27 '52 420w

"A pleasant Scottish novel. . . The writing is easygoing, if a trifle talky."
+ New Yorker 28:88 Ag 16 '52 90w

"The intertwining of the disparate plots, and the glorious farce which results, offers a fine specimen of British-type slapstick." L. G. O.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p27 S 14 '52
300w

"Captious readers may feel he has piled in too many plots, but he keeps them moving fast and has a genuinely witty style with enough bite in it to keep you reading. Those who are allergic to the dialect of the Scots or to generous descriptions of Highland weather should be warned that these are here aplenty." E. J.
Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:33 Ag 16 '52 170w

Reviewed by Tangye Lean

Spec 187:684 N 16 '51 270w

Time 60:76 J1 28 '52 550w

"An agreeable light comedy. . . Much of Laxdale Hall is very pleasantly and intelligently frivolous; but perhaps it is a pity that Mr. Linklater did not content himself on this occasion with pure Peacockian frivolity, leaving the problem of Mr. Pettigrew for another book."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p761 N 30 '51
400w

Wis Lib Bul 48:215 S '52

LINTON, RALPH, and LINTON, MRS
ADELIN SUMNER (BRIGGS) HOHLFELD.
Lore of birthdays; il. by Bunji Tagawa. 116p
$2.50 Schuman

133.5 Astrology. Birthdays 52-8093

"This little book tells what people have thought about birthdays and how they have observed them since ancient times. It explains name days, birthstones, superstitions, and religious ideas affecting birthdays, all in a brief and popular manner." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 48:242 Ap 1 '52

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p9 Ap 6 '52
30w

"A specialized reference book for public libraries."

+ Kirkus 20:55 Ja 15 '52 190w

"A pleasant bit of entertainment, the little volume carries much learning." Ellis Tinkham
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p25 N 16
'52 220w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ap 20 '52
40w

LIPKIND, WILLIAM (WILL, pseud). Boy with a harpoon; il. by Nicolas Mordvinoff. 58p
$2.25 Harcourt 52-6911

Story of a little Eskimo boy who wanted to be permitted to hunt whales with the men of the village. For ages 7 to 10.

Booklist 49:146 D 15 '52

Commonweal 57:170 N 21 '52 20w

"Good for reading aloud from seven up, though the subject matter will not be appealing to all children."

Kirkus 20:681 O 15 '52 90w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner

Library J 77:1908 N 1 '52 70w

"A delightfully told factual story." L. S.
Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p7 N
16 '52 70w

+ N Y Times p20 Ja 4 '53 90w

New Yorker 28:197 D 6 '52 70w

Spring'd Republican p8C N 9 '52 40w

LIPKIND, WILLIAM (WILL, pseud). Even Steven, by Will; [il. by] Nicolas. [39p] $2.25 Harcourt

52-6905

Even Steven was the smallest horse on the Yates ranch, but he was "smart as a spur," so Hobie chose him for his own. This picture storybook shows how Even Steven proved his worth to the ranch and to the small boy who loved him.

Booklist 49:74 O 15 '52

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 176:204 D '52 20w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52 100w

Commonweal 57:170 N 21 '52 20w

Horn Bk 28:397 D '52 60w

"A charmer of a first horse and cowboy story."

+ Kirkus 20:654 O 1 '52 80w

"Nicolas' highly individual drawings and his daring use of color make this an outstanding picture book." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 77:1819 O 15 '52 80w

"The clever title points to a simple story point, not too exciting. Most libraries will want it as an example of the artist's work; how small boys will like it is a question." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p5 N 16 '52 50w

"A picture story which stresses the warm friendship between a boy and a colt. The Western-range setting and the rough-and-ready quality of the text and the striking pictures make it especially suitable for boys of 5 to 9 years of age." C. B. Gilbert

+ N Y Times pt2, p38 N 16 '52 90w

New Yorker 28:191 D 6 '52 60w

"It is a perfect Christmas present for any little boy in all the world."

+ Sat R 35:46 N 15 '52 120w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 9 '52 40w

LIPPMAN, CARO WOLFRAM, and LIPPMAN, MARGARET. Understanding your migraine headache. 150p $2.50 Greenberg
616.8 Headache 52-5621

A California doctor and his wife describe the various types and symptoms of migraine, and give one chapter on treatments for this very common, but often unrecognized disease. No index.

Booklist 48:209 Mr 1 '52

"The value of this [book] to the migrainoid is that, after he has read [it] he will never again think himself singled out by Fate for persecution. To be sure, the authors note that no one can fully understand a migrainoid excepting another migrainoid, and there's certainly something in that. But the sufferer, once he has read this admirably detailed and sensible book, will immediately realize that there are millions of others who share his trouble and that one can learn to live with the problem." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 14 '52 900w

LIPPMANN, WALTER. Isolation and alliances; an American speaks to the British; introd. by the Earl Spencer. 56p $1.50 Little

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations 52-11961

"At Oxford, Cambridge, and in London last spring, Walter Lippmann delivered a series of lectures in response to an invitation extended by the Sulgrave Manor Board. Two of these have now been made available to an American audience in this slender volume. In the first lecture Mr. Lippmann discusses 'the traditional American foreign policy,' attempting 'to show how it has persisted in this century in the form of the Wilsonian ideology.' In the second he deals with some of the elements of 'the situation in which we now find ourselves.'" Sat R

Reviewed by Walter Trohan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 N 2 '52 220w

Current Hist 23:393 D '52 140w

Kirkus 20:615 S 15 '52 200w

Reviewed by Michael Straight

New Repub 127:26 O 20 '52 900w

Reviewed by Frank Altschul

Sat R 35:20 N 15 '52 700w

"Terse, provocative addresses." J. F. S.

+ Springf'd Republican p9C N 2 '52 160w

LISKE, THOMAS V. Effective preaching. 293p $3.50 Macmillan

251 Preaching

51-14326

"Author is professor of speech at Quigley Seminary, Chicago. While the book is addressed to priests of the Catholic church, it contains instruction and counsel worthy of the attention of preachers of all churches, and indeed of all public speakers. The author groups his material under three headings, the delivery of the sermon, the voice, and the prepared speaker." Springf'd Republican

"The material is so well classified that it might well be used as a text book on homiletics. The material is simply written, the chapters are not too long, and stimulating examples are larded in from Fulton J. Sheen, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Winston Churchill and others." O. L. Ice

+ Churchman 166:17 Ja 1 '52 90w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton

Crozer Q 29:248 Ap '52 150w

"A good book for its purpose."

+ Kirkus 19:611 O 1 '51 70w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich

+ Springf'd Republican p30A D 2 '51 140w

LISSITZYN, OLIVER JAMES. International court of justice; its role in the maintenance of international peace and security. (United Nations studies) 118p $1.75 Carnegie endowment

341.63 International court of justice

52-1468

"This monograph describes the origins and history of the International Court of Justice, its functions in the development of international law, its functions in the settlement of international disputes, and its possible activity in connection with the enforcement of peace under the Charter of the United Nations." U S Quarterly Bk R

"A scholarly and intelligent monograph."

+ Foreign Affairs 30:494 Ap '52 20w

"The work is admirably compressed, and is followed by a carefully chosen bibliography. Dr. Lissitzyn has been ably assisted by Professor Hersh Lauterpacht, who provided the interesting and valuable Foreword."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:388 D '51 170w

LITTLE, ARTHUR. Christ unconquered; il. by Fritz Kredel; introd. by Fulton Oursler. 232p $4.50 Prentice-Hall

821 Jesus Christ—Poetry

52-7584

A narrative poem in blank verse describing the passion and death of Christ.

"A forceful narrative poem in blank verse."

F. D. Heron

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Mr 16 '52 40w

"If you like your New Testament done over in Miltonic blank verse that rolls with the sonorous rhetoric of another age, you will enjoy Father Little's impressive achievement. . . . Fulton Oursler congratulates the author on his courage in choosing the most important theme in the universe for his epic. All will admit the courage, but some will question the prudence. . . . We should add, however, that some passages of pure invention that awaken no disturbing memories are not with-

LITTLE, ARTHUR—Continued
out a certain charm and dignity." R. I. Gannon
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 9
'52 180w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 90w

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE,
GWENYTH. Black dream. 191p $2.50 Doubleday

52-8752

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:331 Je 1 '52 50w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 3 '52
50w

"You may not believe a word of the solution; but you may well, like me, find this by far the best of the Littles' nineteen novels."
Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p19 Jl 27 '52 50w

"Plot and general attitude are better than in some other Littles, but the total effect is still irritating." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 3 '52
40w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:35 Ag 16 '52 30w

LITTLEDALE, HAROLD AYLMEY. Mastering your disability [il. by the author]. 224p $2.75
Rinehart

362.43 Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. 52-8734

"Written especially for the orthopedically disabled, this handbook was edited and arranged from the anonymous contributions of the disabled by a man who discovered how few provisions for planned rehabilitation existed after he became suddenly crippled in a plane accident. This guide tries to cut down some of the wasted motion the author went through in his own case by giving a thorough coverage of the problems of psychological and social adjustment, equipment, clothing, hobbies, employment, travel, and marriage." Booklist

Booklist 49:83 N 1 '52

Bookmark 12:32 N '52 20w

"In direct and definite terms, this is a handbook of practical value and application for this specific market."

+ Kirkus 20:494 Ag 1 '52 160w

"A much needed book in all libraries, this is both a valuable handbook for disabled persons, and a contribution to the rehabilitation literature." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:1650 O 1 '52 80w

LIVERIGHT, ALEXANDER ALBERT. Union leadership training; a handbook of tools and techniques. 265p il $3.50; pa $2.50 Harper

331.88 Trade unions 51-5176

"A handbook of informal adult education techniques for union officers and education directors. Conscientious union leaders will learn a great deal from this systematic and thorough—and sometimes dull—coverage of the material." (San Francisco Chronicle) Index.

"Mr. Liveright and his staff have worked closely with 20 different international unions in both the CIO and AFL and with many universities. He personally has participated in more than 50 educational programs for union leaders. From his inside experience, he has built a handbook which the Industrial Relations Center of the university describes as the first comprehensive treatment of the problems, methods, and techniques of training union officers. The center hopes it may be used by thousands of local unions which have an interest in developing a more alert, better informed, and capable leadership corps." F. W.
Carr

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 21 '52
600w

"It should also prove very practical for clarifying shop stewards' duties, collective bargaining negotiation preparation, and internal efficiency of union operation."

+ Kirkus 19:222 Ap 15 '51 200w

"Mr. Liveright, of the University of Chicago, has written a book that will be welcomed by all interested in furthering workers' education in this country. . . . Scattered throughout the book are suggested sources and resources for help in setting up or carrying out any one of the many possible procedures. While these suggestions are for the most part fairly complete, it seems unfortunate that the author's lack of faith in the reading habits of trade unionists has led him to pass over the place of the public library in this whole movement with such a casual reference. Of use to others interested in leadership training and to those in the labor movement." D. K. Oko

+ Library J 76:1339 S 1 '51 150w

"His realistic, down-to-earth approach extends even to an appraisal of the value of bull sessions in the learning process. Bull sessions must be spontaneous and can't be planned, comments the author sagely, but programs can be so planned as to encourage such sessions.
Those who wish to keep abreast of new thinking in the field of leadership training cannot afford to miss this book." Hubert Clay

+ Management R 41:544 Ag '52 500w

Reviewed by Malcolm Wood
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 6 '52
30w

LIVINGSTONE, SIR RICHARD WINN. Education and the spirit of the age. 114p $2 Oxford

370.4 Education—Philosophy. Civilization,
Modern [52-11081]

"Sir Richard Livingstone's short book, containing lectures he delivered recently in America, gives a description of the ills of our time which he traces to the solvent effect of liberalism and rationalism on accepted beliefs and standards. He has two main recommendations to make, both at University level: to break the ascendancy of the analytical approach to studies which pervades arts as well as scientific faculties, and to give every undergraduate some philosophy, on the presumption that he will then see the necessity of grounding his conduct in principle." New Statesman & Nation

"In the most recent of his works on education Sir Richard Livingstone has, as always, important truths to convey, and states them with his usual persuasive charm." R. H.
Tawney

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 26 '52
400w

"His book is full of learning lightly worn, it is persuasive not controversial, and has none of the other's restless worrying of the truth, a sign of the very analytic spirit he rejects."
T. J. O. Hickey

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:190 Ag
16 '52 150w

School & Society 76:15 Jl 5 '52 20w

Times [London] Lit Sup p496 Ag 1 '52
200w

LOCHLONS, COLIN, pseud. See Jackson, C. P.

LOCKE, HARVEY JAMES. Predicting adjustment in marriage; a comparison of a divorced and a happily married group. 407p
$5; text ed $3.50 Holt

301.426 [392.5] Marriage 51-4445

"This text adds new knowledge to our understanding of marital adjustment and maladjustment. Using statistical material and life-history documentation, the author presents for the first time a comparative study of happily married and divorced groups deriving from the same population. The added measure of control over factors impinging on marriage which comes from such a procedure is obvious.
Much time and care have gone into securing a representative sample in each instance, which procedures are described in detail. The book outlines clearly the techniques for developing a marriage prediction test and for testing the statistical significance—by use of critical ratios—of determinants of adjustment or maladjustment." Am Soc R

Reviewed by A. L. Beeley
Am J Soc 57:610 My '52 800w

"Although the text is chiefly a statistical report and interpretation, it is written in a readable style which will be appreciated by those not conversant with the terminology of technical statistics, sociology, and psychology. It should be useful to persons who attempt counselling in marital adjustment—ministers, social workers, physicians, teachers, etc. . . The book should also prove to be a valuable reference for students in college classes who seek more specific knowledge of factors that aid or hinder adjustment in marriage." C. E. King
+ Am Soc R 16:885 D '51 400w

"The book is a must for persons interested in working in family sociology as either teachers, counselors, or researchers. However it raises a number of statistical, or logical, problems of a high order. Does simple correlation mean cause, or, at any rate, approach the understanding of such? . . . Finally, much of the analysis seems involved about inner or spurious correlation." C. C. Zimmerman
+ — Ann Am Acad 278:219 N '51 450w

Reviewed by G. A. Douglas
Social Forces 30:362 Mr '52 320w

LOCKHART, SIR ROBERT HAMILTON BRUCE. Scotch; the whisky of Scotland in fact and story. 184p $3.25 British bk. centre
663.5 Whisky [51-14860]

"Sir Robert Bruce Lockhart, who was born in the highlands near Balmenach, Glenlivet, Glenfiddich and Craigellachie, tells of the ups and downs of what Burns called 'the poor man's wine.' He gives short biographies of Scotland's production giants—the Haigs, the Dewars, the Walkers—the effects of English taxation and American Prohibition on the industry, and, a happy recaller of days spent in his grandfather's distillery at Balmenach, he writes an interesting passage on how malt whisky is made." (N Y Times) Index.

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 77:145 Ja 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
N Y Times p20 Ja 13 '52 280w

"A chatty, readable account of how Scotch used to be made. . . Along with this wealth of fact and information, the reader who favors Scotch as his drink will discover all manner of odds and ends, anecdote, story and the like, which will keep him interested." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 31 '51 600w

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Dead as a dinosaur. 185p $2.50 Lippincott 52-5631

Detective story.

Booklist 48:322 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:236 Jl '52

Kirkus 20:203 Mr 15 '52 70w

"A pleasant enough assembly if all a little pale and resembling a detective story more or less coincidentally." James Sandoe
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 18 '52 160w

"There's an ingenious plot of psychological persecution; a great deal of fascinating stuff about paleontology . . . and a strange elaborate chase scene in a dark museum which keeps verging on farce while remaining strictly chilling. All, of course, as highly readable as you expect from two of the smoothest professionals in the field." Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p37 My 25 '52 120w

"The wonderful background, with a fine chase finish and some unusually good detection by the Norths, makes one of the best Lockridge items in a long time. B plus." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 1 '52 70w

"Sprightly." Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:31 Je 28 '52 30w

LOCKSPEISER, EDWARD. Debussy. (Master musicians: new ser) 3d ed 304p il $2.50 Pellegriani & Cudahy

B or 92 Debussy, Achille Claude

"This title is now in its third revised edition (first: 1936; second: 1944). In the next years more Debussy material will undoubtedly come into the hands of his biographers and critics—letters, memoirs, etc.—but, as of early 1952, this modest volume makes use of the maximum now available and is the only biography to be thus au courant." (Library J) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1936.

"So far-reaching have been the impressions made by recent material upon Mr. Lockspeiser that he has been impelled to rewrite the critical section, approximately half of the volume. He continues to write objectively and in a balanced, lively fashion. A fine chronology, catalog of the works, and bibliography are appended." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 77:362 F 15 '52 130w

"The account of Debussy's life in Lockspeiser's book is essentially the same as in the earlier edition. The critical section, however, has been carefully and completely rewritten, and the bibliography brought up to date. A comparison with the earlier volume indicates that the composer has grown considerably in his biographer's estimation during the past fifteen years. The analyses of compositions tend toward the interpretative and descriptive rather than the technical, but the musical examples are well-chosen and plentiful, if slightly less extensive than in the first edition." Minnie Elmer

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:418 Je '52 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Mr 16 '52 100w

"It is, in fact, the best book in English on Debussy's music—but one still susceptible of improvement. Stylistically the author often goes off the deep end. . . Here, in sum, is an excellent introduction to Debussy which points the way to the exhaustive study still to be written." Roland Gelatt

+ — Sat R 35:21 Mr 29 '52 300w

"In the critical chapters Mr. Lockspeiser has transformed not only his opinions in detail but his whole angle of approach. Where he formerly took a detached and critical, even on occasion a summary, attitude towards Debussy's music, he now emerges as an impassioned advocate prepared to defend his client against the lightest whiff of criticism, even from so sympathetic an observer as Léon Vallas. This seems a doubtful service to a composer now everywhere accepted as a classic."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p800 D 14 '51 450w

LOEWENGARD, HEIDI HUBERTA (FREYBE) (MARTHA ALBRAND, pseud). Hunted woman. 250p $3 Random house 52-7132

A novel of suspense. A beautiful Czech refugee is the hunted woman. She is attempting to get from Switzerland with her child when she meets the shy young American student who is instrumental in saving her and her son.

Booklist 49:68 O 15 '52

"This is smoothly written, action packed, romantic melodrama."
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ag 7 '52 40w

"The smooth Albrand touches for contemporary romantic melodrama."
Kirkus 20:356 Je 15 '52 140w

"Quick action, heroism, plots and counter-plots, love, of course, and enough excitement to keep the reader goggle-eyed and gasping till the last page." R. W. Henderson
Library J 77:1302 Ag '52 70w

LOEWENGARD, H. H. F.—Continued

"A very drab proceeding, physical action being subordinate to the remarkably uninteresting reflections of its pale people about matters current and vital. They all sound a little like tired editorial writers and as the machinery of the thriller is rather sparse, this amount of editorializing is a leaden distinction." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 14 '52 180w

"Given an idea, Miss Albrand can supply the right words. But one must cheerlessly report that these scenes are separated by artless passages which seem to have been tossed in just to keep the kettle boiling—and a melodrama mellow." James Kelly

N Y Times p52 N 23 '52 250w

"The scene is Switzerland, background that of international intrigue, and the villains so coldly amoral that the dilemma faced by the chief characters seems insoluble—mark of the true suspense novel. Writing excellent, naturally." L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ag 24 '52 60w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:56 N 22 '52 20w

LOEWY, HERTA. Retarded child; a guide for parents and teachers. 160p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

371.921 Children, Abnormal and backward 52-6680

An English woman who has devoted her life to teaching mentally retarded and defective children here gives suggestions and outlines methods for the care and training of such children.

"The author of this little volume is a British teacher who has for many years been occupied with the education of mentally backward children. It is a wellmeaning, friendly, chatty advice book for parents and teachers of handicapped youngsters." A. R. Mangus

+ Am Soc R 17:394 Je '52 250w

"The techniques described will probably be of the greatest value to parents in helping them to meet most pressing needs. The Retarded Child is a worthy addition to the undernourished literature in this field." E. L. Johnstone

+ Ann Am Acad 282:154 J1 '52 350w

"A book which is intended, and highly recommended, for parents as well as professionals, and which should be of welcome assistance."

+ Kirkus 19:722 D 15 '51 170w

School & Society 75:64 Ja 26 '52 10w

"For parents of retarded children, it will be difficult to apply much in this book pertaining to method but there will be renewed hope, strength, and courage from reading it and learning what may be accomplished by proper training." Hannah Kahn

Survey 88:233 My '52 100w

LOFTING, HUGH. Doctor Dolittle's Puddleby adventures; il. by [the author; ed. by Josephine Lofting]. 241p $3 Lippincott

52-7457

Eight Doctor Dolittle stories about his animal friends. "It opens, after an introduction to the Puddleby family, with a series of dog stories—'after-dinner tales' from the residents of the Home for Crossbred Dogs. Chapters with African adventures, business with Cheap-side the Sparrow and with the Dolittle Circus follow earlier books." (Horn Bk)

Booklist 49:112 N 15 '52

Bookmark 12:83 Ja '53

Reviewed by Milton Crane

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 16 '52 110w

"As full of nonsense and superb characterization as its well-loved predecessors, this volume is equally good for reading aloud." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:320 O '52 120w

"A delightful round of adventures in the gently enduring Lofting sense of humor."

+ Kirkus 20:366 J1 '52 130w

"Here are all the charm, whimsy, and humor which have made Lofting such a favorite for generations. Recommended for grades 4-6." E. J. Bowland

+ Library J 77:2077 D 1 '52 80w

"Most Dolittle fans will like 'The Sea Dog,' 'Dapple,' 'The Dog Ambulance,' and 'The Stunned Man,' with its dog detective. They may not care so much for the latter half of the book, with the stories about birds, a maggot, and a lost boy at the London Zoo. For continued interest, the long story of 'Doctor Dolittle and the Green Canary,' the other posthumous book, is far better." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 N 9 '52 210w

"The Puddleby adventures ought to divert any child from 6 on up and serve either as an introduction or a supplement to the whole series." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times pt2, p36 N 16 '52 270w

"Though they are not quite up to the good Doctor's best, they will undoubtedly be received with rapture by his many young followers."

+ New Yorker 28:194 D 6 '52 40w

+ Sat R 35:51 N 15 '52 90w

LOFTIS, JOHN. Steele at Drury lane. 260p $4 Univ. of Calif. press

792 Steele, Sir Richard. London. Theatre royal, Drury lane 52-7954

Study of Sir Richard Steele's theatrical activities. The author is assistant professor of English at the University of California, Los Angeles. Index.

"Recommended for large theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:721 Ap 15 '52 10w

"Any account of Steele's association with Drury Lane Theatre is necessarily involved. It is to Mr. Loftis' credit that he carries the narrative through triumphantly and presents a convincing and readable account of this tangled and obscure period in Steele's career and in that of the eighteenth-century theater." D. F. Bond

+ Mod Philol 50:64 Ag '52 1900w

"For painstaking method, thorough background, and impartiality the book is a valuable contribution to our knowledge of Steele and the stage of his day."

+ Sat R 35:59 Je 14 '52 280w

"A remarkably clear and illuminating account of a vexed and complex subject."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:133 Je '52 240w

LOGAN, HARLAN DE BAUN, ed. How much do you know about glass? designed by Barbara Elwood. 191p il $3 Dodd

666.1 Glass 51-11297

A history of glass, methods of processing glass both in the past and at present, and a discussion of various types and uses of glass. Illustrated. Index.

Booklist 47:397 J1 '51

"This popular-priced volume is unique. It offers the lay reader a wonderful story and challenges his knowledge of that indispensable boon to modern civilization—glass. More than 250 striking illustrations include actual operations and applications, drawings, old prints, historical photographs, sketches, silhouettes, cartoons. The editors and illustrators are to be congratulated on their valuable gift to the manufacturer, to the technologist, to the artist, and above all to their fellow men." Alexander Silverman

+ Chem & Eng N 30:560 F 11 '52 370w

"This book is well illustrated, and is an entertaining glimpse into the many recesses of an old but vigorous industry." Russell MacFall

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 S 9 '51 200w

LOGGINS, VERNON. The Hawthornes. 365p
$5 Columbia univ. press 920 Hawthorne, Nathaniel. Hawthorne family 51-12495
For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The author is to be complimented for his power of selection, and his style, in spite of the fact that the story he had to tell is dreary." Stewart Mitchell

+ Am Hist R 57:765 Ap '52 270w

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 20w

"The Hawthornes' is a unique blend of biography and social and literary history. Based upon a great deal of scholarly research, and correcting as it does certain errors and misconceptions in earlier accounts of Hawthorne and his family, it is nevertheless entertaining and readable, its people have the ring of authenticity, and its recreation of the old city of Salem is at once both factual and vivid." A. L. Bader

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p12 Ja 27 '52 350w

"Mr. Loggins, by orderly, vigorous, experienced writing, keeps the genealogy from swamping the narrative." W. K. Rugg

+ New Eng Q 25:106 Mr '52 550w

"Dr. Loggins puts us in his debt by opening up with immense industry and sympathetic judgment [his] ancestral history. Hawthorne himself has given glimpses of it. Here we have it well documented, without dullness; the dark background into which—and further than which—Nathaniel Hawthorne looked."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p110 F 8 '52 750w

"Mr. Loggins makes the most of the picturesque and dramatic elements in his narrative, and lapses a little too easily into some of the conventional tricks of the so-called popular historian. Although precise scholars may question a few statements of fact and some interpretations of evidence in it, the book is based on extensive research which has brought to light some useful material. The chief interest for many readers will be the insights provided into the familial past and into the hereditary influences that may have affected Nathaniel Hawthorne's point of view and his choice of themes, particularly the theme of evil."

+ — U S Quarterly Bk R 7:340 D '51 250w

LONDON, ANNE, pseud. See Gordon, R. I.

LONG, BRYANT ALDEN, and DENNIS, WILLIAM JEFFERSON. Mail by rail; the story of the postal transportation service. 414p il $4.95 Simmons-Boardman

333.1 Postal service—U.S. Railway mail service 51-10531

History of the carrying of mail by railway in the United States and Canada. Contains information on the informal vocabulary used by the Railway Post Office workers. Index.

"A readable and fairly detailed history."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 36:43 My '51

"About all there is to know concerning railway mail service the world over is in this book, put there by men who are enthusiasts, and knowledgeable ones."

+ Sat R of Lit 34:48 D 8 '51 230w

LONG, EDWARD LEROY. Religious beliefs of American scientists. 168p $3 Westminster press

215 Religion and science 52-9193

"A study of the religious convictions of contemporary scientists. The author begins with scientific knowledge and seeks to show its relation to religion as exemplified by the men he studies. The second part of the book reverses the process." Churchman

Booklist 48:289 My 15 '52

"Marked by clear thinking this is an excellent reference book." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 166:12 S '52 80w

LONG, LAURA. George Dewey, Vermont boy; il. by Harry H. Lees. (Childhood of famous Americans ser) 184p $1.75 Bobbs
B or 92 Dewey, George—Juvenile literature 52-5821

Biography of the hero of Manila Bay, written for boys and girls. Most of the book is devoted to Dewey's boyhood.

"A pleasant but undistinguished story." M. C. Skinner

Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 30w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 4 '52 20w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p18 Jl 13 '52 20w

LONGSTREET, STEPHEN. Beach house. 366p $3.50 Holt

52-6630

"Mike Zelsmith is many things, all of them at one time. He is a successful producer of motion pictures and a man of rigid integrity, but his success stems, not from an ability to join art and commerce but from a fanatic resolve that the two shall never meet. 'The Beach House' is mainly the story of his attempt to produce a picture, 100 per cent commerce, in order to acquire capital for another, which is to be all art." N Y Times

"This novel turns out to be fairly good, altho for the first two-thirds of it the reader refuses to take seriously the problems with which the principal characters are faced. It seems too plain that these characters could easily solve their problems by resolving to stay sober at least a few hours each day and by devoting one minute once a week to read the Ten Commandments." Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Je 1 '52 230w

Kirkus 20:236 Ap 1 '52 170w

"It is as superficial a novel as a super deluxe film and will probably end as such. . . There is material here for a brilliant satiric novel but the author has failed to write it. It should have some popular success because Mr. Longstreet has used enough explicit words to attract paid circulation. Otherwise, only large collections of fiction dealing with the screen should purchase." George Freedley

— Library J 77:1012 Je 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Jl 6 '52 270w

"In 'The Beach House,' Stephen Longstreet demonstrates again that no American writer, save perhaps O'Hara, has a better ear for the language as he sets down the uncompromising truth about his people with a genuine compassion the reader cannot but share." Don Mankiewicz

N Y Times p5 Je 1 '52 430w

"A banal and pretentious novel."

— New Yorker 28:139 Je 7 '52 80w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 11 '52 1050w

"The book has its flaws. At times the writing is so garbled as to make me suspect the printer and proofreader of sabotage. . . The neat ending—Mike's reconciliation with his wife—is grossly out of key with the rest of the story. But aside from all this, 'The Beach House' is an engrossing book, and markedly superior to what literary people quickly, and I think rightly, dismiss as 'just another Hollywood novel.'" W. R. Burnett

+ — Sat R 35:17 My 31 '52 460w

Time 59:105 Je 23 '52 400w

LONGSTRETH, THOMAS MORRIS. Elephant toast; il. by Heman Fay, jr. 221p $2.50 Macmillan

52-8094

Keets had planned a hitch hiking summer, but his parents had other ideas, and he was sent to a boys' camp in his native Maine. It was a "camp with a difference" and Keets

LONGSTRETH, T. M.—Continued
and the elephant he bought for five cents certainly kept up its intentions. For ages eleven to fourteen.

Booklist 48:303 My 15 '52

"It is clear that the author, and his camp directors, know boys. There are, also, a remarkable cook (the inventor of delicious elephant toast) and an unfriendly neighbor who stirs up plenty of trouble by her unreasonable demands. Teen-age readers and younger will follow with eagerness the teasing, the plotting and the espionage carried on by these highly individual characters." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:179 Je '52 160w

Kirkus 20:75 F 1 '52 120w

"Consistently amusing." R. M. McEvoy

+ Library J 77:730 Ap 15 '52 80w

"Some of the circumstances are fantastic, but, with the boys, we gather a growing feeling of respect for and interest in the two men in charge. And the original six boys, so purposely varied, are cleverly handled in relation to each other. The emphasis is on humor and action, but the underlying character changes in the boys are well done too. The rather tough portrait sketches are right up the alley of boys from eleven to fourteen." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 27 '52 200w

"Told in the words of Keets, this is a light and laughable tale—one part mystery, one part adventure, and two parts, humor. The story line is refreshingly unpredictable. An effective and satisfying change of pace." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p29 Je 8 '52 140w

"A tale that never lacks for ingenuity and rare forms of suspense. The humor is abundant and the characters are well developed. As relief from the endless stream of adventure and sports stories it is worth the price." M. P. Allen

+ Sat R 35:56 My 10 '52 90w

Springf'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 110w

LONN, ELLA. Foreigners in the Union army and navy. 725p $8.50 La. state univ. press 973.743 U.S.—History—Civil war—Foreign participation. U.S. Army. U.S. Navy 51-14622

"A companion to the author's Foreigners in the Confederacy [Book Review Digest 1940]. The author has studied the composition of the foreign-born in the country when the war broke out, the reasons for their coming to these shores, the places where they settled, their feelings about the war and their actions during the war. She has also included those Europeans who came over just to fight in the war. Foreign enlistments accounted for a fifth of the Union forces, and many of these served in all-German, all-Irish or all-French regiments." Current Hist

"Professor Lonon has done an excellent job—it will not need to be done again, and indeed few would have the temerity to undertake it. The Louisiana State University Press has also done its part but the devotion of its editorial staff to parentheses mars nearly every page." Brainerd Dyer

+ Am Hist R 58:139 O '52 550w

Reviewed by J. C. Bodger

Canadian Hist R 33:297 S '52 210w

+ Current Hist 22:319 My '52 150w

"This is a valuable reference work which may be safely called definitive. Its cloggy detail, however, makes for dull reading. Surely no one will attempt to do again what Miss Lonon has done so prodigiously; but others, less restrained by canons of traditional scholarship, may find here suggestions for lively books." J. M. England

+ Sat R 35:46 Je 14 '52 290w

"The book is evidently the definitive treatment of its subject, and will be valuable to historians. To persons in other countries, and to those of recent foreign origin in the United States, the book should prove an interesting and reasonable guide to the contributions made by their countries to the military effort of the American Civil War."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:162 Je '52 210w

LOOS, AMANDUS WILLIAM, ed. Religious faith and world culture [by Harry Emerson Fosdick, and others]. 294p $5 Prentice-Hall

261.6 Civilization, Christian. Faith 51-8314

"This book is a sort of symposium in which men and women, in essays and one poem, each describe some facet of the critical situation which now confronts the entire world, and offer proposals for the pursuit of a more satisfying life. The theses come out of the varied backgrounds of educators and economists, social philosophers, religionists, humanitarians and a psychologist, and present such diverse fields of inquiry as the Russian Revolution and Sovietism, the Far East, India, individualism, democratic development, man's place in society, and his relation to God." (Survey) Bibliography. Index.

Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 30w

"In discerning and discriminating fashion, Dr. Loos has given real content and authentic meaning to a symposium which has been edited with skill, sensitivity, and artistry." C. H. Voss

+ Churchman 166:17 Mr 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by J. W. Krutch

Nation 174:479 My 17 '52 650w

Reviewed by J. A. Pike

N Y Times p17 My 11 '52 470w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 F 17 '52 150w

School & Society 75:110 F 16 '52 30w

"This book should be welcomed by all who are interested in today's critical issues and who seek further knowledge concerning problems which beset the peoples of Asia, Africa, and India, as well as the problems within their own spirits." K. N. Rhoades

+ Survey 87:546 D '51 550w

"This symposium contains encouragement for those whose confidence in ideals is waning; it faces facts realistically. What is lacking here is a clear program of what to do when spiritual ideals confront opposing force; specifically, of what to do when East and West confront each other in combined misunderstanding and contradiction. It is of value to arrive at agreement about goals and about facts, but more is needed to develop a world culture based on religion, or, for that matter, on irreligion."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:42 Mr '52 200w

LOOS, ANITA (MRS JOHN EMERSON). Gigi; dramatized from the novel by Colette. 169p il $2.50 Random house

812

52-6902

Dramatization of a novel by the French authoress, Colette, about a young girl who does not choose to follow in the footsteps of her female relatives, all belonging to a certain profession.

Booklist 48:375 J1 15 '52

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 77:1078 Je 15 '52 20w

"The scene is Paris, the time 1900. There is no faintest echo of the wars. Just good, unclean fun!" W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p29 My 11 '52 140w

Reviewed by William Hogan

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 22 '52 80w

Dramatic criticism by J. M. Brown

Sat R 34:32 D 15 '51 700w

Sat R 35:28 My 17 '52 30w

LO PINTO, MARIA. Art of making Italian desserts. 223p $2.95 Doubleday

641.8 Desserts. Cookery, Italian 52-10047

Over 250 recipes for concocting Italian desserts and drinks. The recipes use American measurements. Index.

Booklist 49:62 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:441 J1 15 '52 40w

"There is little doubt that her spumoni (made in the refrigerator), apricot brandy whip and crema di more (blackberry heaven) will delight the calorie carefree—but give me a little fruit and a spot of cheese after a real Italian meal." Charlotte Turgeon
N Y Times p41 O 19 '52 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 23 '52 40w

LO PINTO, MARIA. New York cookbook; il. by Susan Foster. 250p $3 Wyn

641.5 Cookery 52-6929

"Three hundred international recipes for food that may be eaten in New York are included here arranged under the groups of people who make up the city—beginning with the Earliest Settlers and ending with Harlemites." Library J

Reviewed by Morrison Wood

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 J1 13 '52 50w

"For those who don't want to go in for a whole shelf of specialty cookbooks, this affords a good compromise. For those who have gone into it more deeply, the omissions seem more evident than inclusions. The general effect is fairly substantial, down-to-earth home cookery, rather than the exotic specialties and the frills."

+ — Kirkus 20:314 My 15 '52 270w

"A good index makes the book practical. It has a pleasant historical flavor but the recipes are well stated by a woman who loves New York and knows cooking. The variety of foreign 'quarters' in New York City may surprise some cooks." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 77:1202 J1 '52 70w

"The simple historical sketches of how New York gradually opened its doors to the world is charmingly told and may keep the reader glued to his armchair, but the recipes, supplemented by menus and other practical suggestions, will lure him to the stove." Charlotte Turgeon

+ N Y Times p12 J1 27 '52 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 1 '52 50w

LORAC, E. C. R., pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

LORAINÉ, PHILIP, pseud. Nightmare in Dublin [Eng title: Dublin nightmare]. 247p $3 Mill

52-9693

Story of a photographer-journalist who goes to Dublin to add to his series of books on famous cities, and there meets with adventure, mystery, and romance.

Booklist 49:15 S 1 '52

Kirkus 20:386 J1 1 '52 80w

"It is difficult to be specific about the book's weaknesses without talking about its plot indiscreetly, but it is not too much to say that its crises are all familiar already, that the author's eclectic skill has made them lively enough to keep one at it anyway until the deflating revelation of the climax." James Sandoe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 31 '52 400w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p19 Ag 24 '52 90w

"The chief secret, though perfectly developed, echoes the John Buchan tradition so strongly that it seems hackneyed. The writing, however, has power and charm and the thrill quotient is satisfactory. B plus." L. G. Oxford
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 7 '52 40w

"Atmosphere clogs story, which shuttles from routine to razzle-dazzle. No world-beater." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:40 S 13 '52 10w

LORANT, STEFAN. Lincoln; a picture story of his life. 256p il $6; ltd ed $10 Harper

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham—Pictorial works 52-8481

"Contains the largest number of pictures relating to Lincoln ever put between covers (there are five hundred in all). They are accompanied by commentary, derived mostly from original sources—letters and diaries and such. In addition to the sketches, photographs, cartoons, and personal documents that one might expect, there are facsimiles, never published before, of the final drafts of all Lincoln's major addresses and of a number of his letters." New Yorker

"Stefan Lorant's Lincoln may well remain the definitive pictorial biography of Lincoln. . . The pictures have been imaginatively grouped, and the expert combining of pictures with a substantial text results in a dynamic narrative." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 190:95 D '52 80w

Booklist 49:88 N 1 '52

Bookmark 12:32 N '52 30w

"Stefan Lorant is to be congratulated on two counts: first for his excellent volume, and, second, for his amazing absorption of American history—he has been in this country only 12 years." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 5 '52 260w

"Mr. Lorant's Lincoln is the definitive book in the field and will be an important acquisition for all libraries." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:1903 N 1 '52 120w

"In general, the mirror which Mr. Lorant has fashioned is without distortion. Those who read Lincoln will want to watch him, too." O. C. Mearns

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 O 19 '52 400w

"A proven master of the picture-book technique, Stefan Lorant turns again to the life of Abraham Lincoln. (His first venture in the field, 'Lincoln: His Life in Photographs,' came out in 1941). This time there will be no need for a revision and no place, at least in the foreseeable future, for a comparable book by anyone else." P. M. Angle

+ N Y Times p3 O 5 '52 480w

"Superlative volume."

+ New Yorker 28:153 O 11 '52 120w

Reviewed by Austin Blair

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 9 '52 320w

"Mr. Lorant is to be commended for his treatment of Brady's technique, his study of similar pictures to determine whether they are identical, his searches into the papers of the artist F. B. Carpenter, and his exposing of 'fakes.' Despite its defects and occasional errors the book will be welcomed for the amplitude, richness, and excellence of its pictorial content." J. G. Randall

+ — Sat R 35:18 N 8 '52 360w

Spring'd Republican p9C N 2 '52 600w

Time 60:134 N 10 '52 30w

LORENZ, KONRAD Z. King Solomon's ring; new light on animal ways; il. by the author, and with a foreword by Julian Huxley [tr. from the German by Marjorie Kerr Wilson]. 202p $3.50 Crowell

591.5 Animals, Habits and behavior of 52-7373

A famous naturalist recounts his experiences with and observations on the behavior of animals and birds, among them fish, water-shrews, grey-lag geese, dogs, and jackdaws. Index.

Booklist 48:354 J1 1 '52

Bookmark 11:232 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:343 O '52 20w

"Perfectly delightful book." M. D. Read

+ Library J 77:1525 S 15 '52 30w

"Julian Huxley's foreword in no way exaggerates the value of this charming book."

LORENZ, K. Z.—Continued

The author's attractive marginal sketches display a pleasant sense of humour similar to that in the text." A. W. Boyd
+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ap 18 '52
240w

"Perhaps the most fascinating section of an entirely fascinating book is the long account of the jackdaw colony which Herr Lorenz has maintained for the last twenty-five years at Altenberg on the Danube. . . . No brief review can convey the quality of this book nor the character of its author. One can only ask for more. . . . Herr Lorenz is master of a most attractive English style and his book is wittily illustrated by his own marginal drawings." Geoffrey Taylor

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:502 Ap 26 '52 600w

"It is an absorbing and beautiful book." Alan Devoe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 29 '52
350w

"As a scientist he has avoided the pitfall of anthropomorphism, which vitiates so much of the writing about animal behavior, and at the same time as a sensitive man, he has side-stepped 'mechanomorphism,' the opposite tendency to regard the activities of wild creatures as a mere system of reflexes. As a writer he is endowed with a fine sense of humor, a quality too frequently missing in the writing of scientists, and he writes of his long and intimate association with the birds and beasts with charm, lightness and a felicity of style that carry the reader along with sustained and fascinated attention." Thomas Foster

+ N Y Times p6 Jl 27 '52 360w
San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ag 17 '52
200w

"Here is a thoroughly delightful and charming book about animal behavior—and human behavior, too." Marston Bates

+ Sat R 35:14 Ag 9 '52 700w
Time 59:58 My 19 '52 700w

"Dr. Lorenz has been known for many years as one of the foremost authorities in the study of animal behaviour. He has worked, mostly in Austria, on almost all groups of animals, but his name is particularly associated with research in the behaviour of waterfowl. He has now made available in English a most readable popular account of some of the projects on which he has been engaged over the past 30 years." Times [London] Lit Sup p364 My 30 '52 480w

LORIE, JAMES HIRSCH, and ROBERTS, HARRY V. Basic methods of marketing research. 453p $6 McGraw

658.83 [658.8072] Market research 51-7105

"A treatment of the fundamental concepts underlying market research, maintained at a high level of generalization, in the belief that the understanding of very general principles of analysis is an essential prerequisite to the solution of particular problems. The emphasis is on 'What should be done?' rather than 'How should things be done?'" (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by J. E. Cross

Library J 76:1934 N 15 '51 130w

"The most helpful comment a reviewer can make about this book is to stress its very limited scope. There is an extreme discrepancy between the promise of the title and the subject matter. This most emphatically is not a book about the basic methods of marketing research; rather, it is a book about some phases of a basic method—the survey method." R. D. Crisp

+ Management R 41:133 F '52 1100w

LOTHROP, ELEANOR (BACHMAN). Sing for your supper. 311p $3 Rinehart

52-8741

A novel which deals with the problem of the childless women of forty or over who are divorced. It destroys the myth of the "glamorous divorcee" and presents the unvarnished facts of the lives of three divorcees.

Booklist 49:105 N 15 '52

Kirkus 20:428 Jl 15 '52 100w

"Not recommended." H. R. Forbes

— Library J 77:1505 S 15 '52 60w

"There is nothing strikingly new in 'Sing for Your Supper.' Mrs. Lothrop suggests no easy solution to a difficult, increasingly familiar modern problem. But she does write skillfully if without special distinction, setting forth her premises by colorful example and indicating the direction in which this or that or the other choice leads. Here is authentic observation fictionalized with serious intent. 'Sing for Your Supper' holds the interest well." Margaret Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 28 '52
360w

"This is a sincere and unfrivolous first novel. It concerns itself with problems of interest to a great many women in America, and deals with them in terms understandable to all. Motives, reactions, personalities, are all recognizable, even warmly familiar. Mrs. Lothrop has cased the field (almost like a good social worker) for typical examples of marital and extra-marital difficulties. And she has examined them with considerable objectivity and thoroughness." Gertrude Buckman

+ N Y Times p5 S 28 '52 310w

"Mrs. Lothrop's round-up of this sorry situation is pleasantly competent, seriously intentioned, eminently readable." E. J. F.

+ Sat R 35:34 N 15 '52 90w

LOUGHLIN, MRS. KATARYN (GERIN-LA JOIE). Miss Abby Fitch-Martin. 179p $3 Coward-McCann

B or 92 Fitch-Martin, Abby 52-8028

"Abby Fitch-Martin's fixation began when her father took a second wife—a cousin. The old, ingrown upstate New York family had a skeleton in the closet; there was Indian blood a few generations back, and Abby hated the thought. She hated her half-brother and half-sister too. And when the half-sister died, leaving her young children—the author and a sister—in Abby's care, that incredible woman had her chance for revenge. This document is the story of how Aunt Abby made those children's lives one constant, long round of fear and hate." San Francisco Chronicle

Booklist 49:11 S 1 '52

"A true-story, first person confessional which is absorbingly poisonously horrible."

Kirkus 20:358 Je 15 '52 240w

"There is no doubt such psychopathic persons exist and that a good biography could be written about such a character. However, the author fails in her purpose, as stated in the preface, of explaining the reasons for the fixations which brought about Abby Fitch-Martin's machinations. And she is so busy relating all the awful things perpetrated on her own person that she loses sight of the possibilities of her story. May be of interest in the area around Utica, N.Y. because of the setting." M. P. McKay

Library J 77:1010 Je 1 '52 90w

"Mrs. Loughlin writes calmly though graphically, with humor and what, at least to an outsider, appears amazing fairmindedness. Her book gives a graphic picture of life in a prosperous village in the early decades of this century and a fascinating and, I hope, unique story of a family." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Jl 13 '52
850w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe

N Y Times p12 Ag 10 '52 180w

"Incredible as it seems in the reading, one must believe it; the narrative carries its own conviction. As for why such a book should be read—well, one aspect of arriving at maturity is the awareness that Evil is co-existent with Good as a force in the world. There is indeed such a thing as pure evil, pure malice, cruelty for cruelty's sake, little as most of us like to believe it in our hearts. This shocking narrative reveals that truth in one phase at least.

And if it can carry over to a few readers the realization that pure Evil does exist and is a force to reckon with, that's a healthy corrective." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p17 J1 7 '52 600w

"The book is full of repetitious charges and rambling, bitter nonsense. It may all be true and if so I trust the author at least achieved some measure of catharsis from its recital. It reads more like the book which many children in moments of temper or distress dream of writing about their parents."

— Sat R 35:19 Ag 9 '52 250w

Wis Lib Bul 48:214 S '52

LOUIS FERDINAND, prince of Prussia. Rebel prince; memoirs; introd. by Louis P. Lochner. 356p il $3.95 Regnery

B or 92

52-13202

Memoirs of a grandson of William II of Germany, who is the present head of the house of Hohenzollern. Photographs. Index.

"As a human document this book is attractive but as commonplace as its author. As a historical document it is virtually without value. Most of the facts which it reports may signify something for the family and its friends or perhaps for the admirers of monarchy." H. J. Morgenthau

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 2 '52 180w

"He adds some valuable footnotes to the record of the anti-Hitler conspiracy and to the cultural history of the Weimar Republic. But his basically conventional and occasionally erroneous views on political and social questions make it seem unlikely to at least one reader that the 'Rebel Prince' will persuade intelligent republicans to advocate the restoration of abolished monarchies." E. S. Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p9 D 26 '52 600w

Kirkus 20:541 Ag 15 '52 160w

"His colorful memoirs, to which his friend Louis P. Lochner wrote introduction, should have fairly wide appeal as a human document. Recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 77:1806 O 15 '52 120w

"Louis Ferdinand has no sensations or state secrets to tell, but he gives an honest and attractive account of his life with all its many ups and downs." F. E. Hirsch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 O 26 '52 550w

Reviewed by W. L. Shirer

N Y Times p7 O 26 '52 600w

Time 60:110 N 3 '52 450w

LOUTHAN, DONIPHAN. Poetry of John Donne; a study in explication. 193p $3.50 Bookman associates

821 Donne, John

51-5475

"The stated purpose of this study is to examine the body of Donne's poetry, to explicate a select group of his more difficult short poems, and to arrive at a general evaluation of Donne's work." (U S Quarterly Bk R) Bibliography. Index.

"It was characteristic of the 17th century 'metaphysical poets,' with their addiction to 'conceits,' to anatomize a metaphor into its minutest parts and (as it seems to us) to ride a good simile to death. Only in the hands of master could this usage escape falling into absurdity; and John Donne was a master." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 68:1223 O 24 '51 700w

"Louthan's study of Donne's poetry is an addition to the numerous Donne critiques which combine purposefully scholarship and ingenuity."

+ Sat R 35:32 Mr 29 '52 320w

Times [London] Lit Sup p238 Ap 4 '52 150w

"To this ambitious and exacting task, Dr. Louthan brings a thorough acquaintance with Donne's prose as well as his verse, and a solid knowledge of the large body of often widely contradictory biographical and critical commentary already published."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 7:353 D '51 240w

LOVELACE, MRS MAUD (HART). Betsy and the great world; il. by Vera Neville. 305p $2.50 Crowell

52-8657

This latest volume in the Betsy-Tacy series, takes Betsy to Europe for a year to gather materials for her writing career. The time is 1913-1914 and at the end of the story Betsy is returning home after war has broken out in Europe.

Kirkus 20:685 O 15 '52 120w

"A thoroughly good story for girls of 12-16." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 77:2014 N 15 '52 40w

"A wide age range of Betsy-Tacy fans will enjoy it." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p24 N 16 '52 130w

Reviewed by B. B. Thorpe

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 16 '52 20w

LOVRIEN, RUTH ELLEN (MRS FREEMAN S. CHURCH) (MARY MEADE, pseud). Mary Meade's magic recipes for the electric blender. 256p $3 Bobbs

641.5 Cookery

52-10689

Over 500 recipes especially adapted to the electric blender. The author has been home economics editor of the Chicago Tribune since 1936. Index.

Booklist 49:119 D 1 '52

"I could go on for pages and pages, so, why don't you add this excellent book to your kitchen library?" Morrison Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p24 N 16 '52 210w

"No rival to this." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 77:2073 D 1 '52

LOWANCE, MRS KATHLEEN BOWDEN. Much ado about music; a road to happy listening; il. by John Anderson. 241p $3.50 Tupper

780.15 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation—Juvenile literature 52-9357

A music appreciation text in fictional form for teen ages. Some of the contents were dramatized over an Atlanta radio station. Contains a list of recordings and an index.

"An excellent introduction to music."

+ Kirkus 20:284 My 1 '52 180w

"Not a necessary first purchase, but might be useful as supplementary text for junior high school music courses." C. A. Hulton

Library J 77:1213 J1 '52 90w

"It is worth attention, for its content of music information is very rich. . . If it was a success on radio, it probably has an audience, but we wish the information had been given in half the space without the story." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Je 29 '52 180w

LOWELL, JOAN. Promised land; drawings by Barbara Corrigan. 215p $3.50 Duell; Little 981.7 [918.17] Brazil—Description and travel. Frontier and pioneer life—Brazil 52-5524

"How the author of Cradle of the Deep and her husband, former captain of a luxury passenger liner, found a new frontier in Central Brazil, opened a road through the jungle and lived the life of 'twentieth-century pioneers' is zestfully related." Bookmark

Booklist 48:279 My 1 '52

+ Bookmark 11:182 My '52 40w

"Joan Lowell is adept at telling stories of her adventures, as everyone who was reading books in 1929 well remembers. She was the author of a fabulously successful one, 'Cradle of the Deep.' Fanny Butcher

LOWELL, JOAN—Continued

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 20 '52 650w

Reviewed by R. M. Hallett
Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 27 '52 190w

+ Kirkus 20:147 F 15 '52 200w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 My 11 '52 600w

"A natural-born story teller, Miss Lowell has not always in the past kept that gift within bounds of strict accuracy. Those who remember her successful (but controversial) book, 'The Cradle of the Deep' may wonder if she is not leaning backward here to escape the charge of writing fiction. The sobriety with which she tells this story suggests that she has tried hard to stick to the facts. This, however, has had its cost. Although a new mellowness has enhanced her reporting her over-scrupulousness has stifled the writing talent that made 'Cradle' such rollicking reading. Since her book is also pedantic and occasionally mawkish in the telling, it may prove somewhat dull to those who have not traveled over the dusty, red road that Miss Lowell helped to build." W. W. White

+ N Y Times p14 My 4 '52 480w

"The author is an uncommonly vivacious writer, who, while not one to make light of her exploits, sets them down with many a girlish gurgle."

New Yorker 28:146 Ap 19 '52 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 11 '52 370w

Sat R 35:31 J1 19 '52 220w

Wis Lib Bul 48:170 J1 '52

LOWRIE, DRUCELLA. Restyle your hats [il. by Helen Disbrow]. 119p $2.95 Studio

646.5 Millinery

"Tells how to freshen different-shaped hats, make and put on trimmings, choose matching colors and use veils with effect. Illustrative drawings." Bookmark

Booklist 48:374 J1 15 '52

Bookmark 11:206 Je '52 20w

LUBELL, SAMUEL. Future of American politics. 285p $3.50; college ed $2.75 Harper

973.92 [973.918] U.S.—Politics and government—1945- 52-5462

"General analysis of American politics of the Roosevelt Revolution and the Fair Deal." Sat R

"This is perhaps the most penetrating and most readable analysis of recent and current American politics that has appeared for some time. It is replete with pungent and quotable passages, yet manages to achieve a commendable degree of balance, restraint and objectivity." R. V. Shumate

+ Ann Am Acad 283:190 S '52 360w

Booklist 48:278 My 1 '52

Bookmark 11:182 My '52 40w

"Mr. Lubell's book is a lively, informative and highly original investigation of contemporary politics." R. L. Weaver

+ Canadian Forum 32:163 O '52 550w

"The book is more effective in pointing to dangers than suggesting remedies. . . But in the field covered it is an extremely wise and stimulating work, attractive to novices and experts alike." Donovan Richardson

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ap 16 '52 850w

Foreign Affairs 30:673 J1 '52 80w

"A lively and fresh analysis of the American political puzzle which will probably receive considerable attention from those in doubt about the 1952 elections."

+ Kirkus 20:144 F 15 '52 270w

"Strongly recommended for anybody interested in our political life." H. H. Bernt
+ Library J 77:589 Ap 1 '52 130w

Manchester Guardian p4 N 4 '52 220w

Reviewed by H. H. Wilson
Nation 175:93 Ag 2 '52 2100w

Reviewed by Richard Strout
New Repub 126:18 Ap 28 '52 1100w

Reviewed by Norman MacKenzie
New Statesman & Nation 44:551 N 8 '52 800w

"An exceedingly welcome book in this year of decision. Would that every one of the fifty million voters, more or less, who will go to the polls next November to perform their duty as citizens in a free society, might read and ponder well Mr. Lubell's pages. For here is as useful a book on politics as 1952 is apt to produce. It is wise and sophisticated, always readable, and continuously stimulating." R. K. Carr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p1 Ap 13 '52 1400w

"This is an energetic and hard-headed book, filled with important fact and penetrating observation. There are occasional uncertainties and inconsistencies in the argument. . . Still, the book will make everyone interested in American politics re-examine his assumptions."

Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 13 '52 1200w

New Yorker 28:86 J1 12 '52 170w

"Some of Lubell's generalizations are not novel . . . some are open to dispute . . . some are spelled out brilliantly such as those relating to the inner dynamics of the Democratic coalition. But there are scores of them here, and it will be a remarkable reader who fails to be enormously stimulated by The Future of American Politics." H. F. Graff

+ Pol Sci Q 67:623 D '52 500w

"Mr. Lubell's travels led him to the slums, to the wheat fields, to Cleveland's labor wards, to the growing 'best' neighborhoods of Southern cities. In his work Mr. Lubell represents something of a combination of the contemplative scholar of breadth and perspective and the skilled research technician. The merger of these skills results in a book that will not be soon surpassed in its fields." V. O. Key

+ Sat R 35:31 Ap 12 '52 900w

"Although dealing with a profound and complex subject, Mr. Lubell has written with simplicity and clarity, so that his book can be read and understood by nearly everyone of ordinary intelligence. As an apparently unbiased, and unusually lucid examination of an important subject, it deserves a cordial reception by the public at large, and seemingly should be on the 'must' list of every practicing politician." H. H.

+ Spring'd Republican p5D J1 20 '52 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:299 S '52 240w

Wis Lib Bul 48:172 J1 '52

LUCAS, EDNA LOUISE, comp. Harvard list of books on art. 163p pa $2.25 Harvard univ. press

016.7 Art—Bibliography 52-5400

This is a selected list of "a few thousand titles basic to the study of art history. . . Although English texts, and editions still in print, have been chosen when available, language has not been a primary criterion for choice. So far as possible the date of the latest imprint has been used rather than the date of copyright to indicate availability. Good illustrations, regardless of text, have been a determining factor in many instances. In general, books published since 1950 have not been included. . . The emphasis is on architecture, sculpture, painting, and drawing. It deals with books on the history of art; intentionally, the so-called minor arts and the how-to-do-it publications are sketchily treated or conspicuously missing. Classification of titles in such a list is necessarily arbitrary, but the index of authors and artists has been planned to facilitate cross reference." (Pref)

"A tool of prime importance for the librarian and a first aid for anyone with a thirst for knowledge of art." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 77:1510 S 15 '52 140w
Schools Arts 52:adv O '52 120w

LUCAS, WALTER ARNDT, ed. Popular picture and plan book of railroad cars and locomotives. 288p il $5.95 Simmons-Boardman
625.2 Locomotives. Railroads—Cars 51-6913

"A collection of photographs and plans taken from the 1947 and 1950 editions of the Locomotive Cyclopedia and the 1949 Car Builders' Cyclopedia. Locomotives and other rolling stock now in use are covered. The photographs are clear enough to supply information on general appearance and large details, and they are supplemented by dimensioned elevations and plans that show smaller details clearly. The book is intended for model makers and railroad hobbyists, and it should be a treasure trove for both groups. There is no index." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 48:140 D 15 '51

N Y New Tech Bks 36:93 N '51

LUCCOCK, HALFORD EDWARD. Marching off the map, and other sermons. 192p $2.50 Harper
252 Sermons 52-5463

Twenty-two brief sermons by a professor at Yale Divinity School.

Booklist 48:310 Je 1 '52

+ Bookmark 11:207 Je '52 30w

"It is a book that should have a wide appeal to alert ministers."

+ Kirkus 20:345 Je 15 '52 160w

LUCE, MRS CLARE (BOOTHE), ed. Saints for now. 312p il $3.50 Sheed
922.22 Saints 52-10608

The editor asked twenty of her personal friends each to depict the life of a saint who, in the writer's opinion, had a message for the world today. Partial contents: St John, by Alfred Noyes; St Helena, empress, by Evelyn Waugh; St Augustine, by Rebecca West; St Benedict, by Whittaker Chambers; St Hilda of Whitby, by Sister M. Madeleva; St Francis of Assisi, by Paul Gallico; St Thomas More, by Barbara Ward; St Pius V, Pope, by D. B. Wyndham Lewis; St John of the Cross, by Thomas Merton.

Cath World 176:159 N '52 110w

"A delightful departure from the cloyingly pietistic school of hagiography which portrays the saint as a superhuman character who is indeed constantly assaulted by temptation but is constitutionally unable to yield to it. It is a sheer invention of religiosity, as Mrs. Luce points out in her introductory chapter, to depict a saint as a human being who does deeds of spiritual derring-do of which no mere mortal is capable." J. A. O'Brien

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 28 '52 450w

"I am resentful when Mrs. Luce—whose editorial direction is, on the whole, to be complimented—makes the ultimate irrelevance, that same Jeanne D'Arc as symbol of legitimacy and law-and-order, a saint for the cold war. The essays which concern themselves chiefly with saints as something else than their sanctity are valuable on their own terms. But what makes the book worth while—and it is—are those essays on saints as saints: Lamb's Simeon, Merton's John of the Cross, Heard's Francis de Sales, Sheean's Francis of Assisi, above all, Karl Stern's Therese of Liseux." Michael Harrington

+ Commonweal 56:633 O 3 '52 1150w

"Every Catholic should be proud to possess this book and non-Catholics too will find it inspiring for these saints belong to all of Christendom."

+ Kirkus 20:633 S 15 '52 160w

"By far the best chapter is the work of Sister M. Madeleva, a nun, who delivers herself of a piece on St. Hilda of Whitby which combines biography, meditation and interpretation. This essay, along with Alfred Noyes' thoughtful probing of St. John and D. B. Wyndham Lewis' stylistic comment on St. Pius V, gives the book a tone and a spirit to which the rest of the material does not attain, though the book as a whole achieves its purpose." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 O 12 '52 600w

"All things considered, this is a remarkable collection indeed. . . 'Saints For Now' is surely a promising book, but I am afraid that it comes off a little like an all-star charity game—glamorous and exciting, of course, but never wholly satisfying. In clusters individual stars seem to lose some of their special magic. This is not meant as a complaint but rather as a warning to those who, seeing the stellar lineup, may be expecting too much from 'Saints For Now.'" John Cogley

+ N Y Times p18 S 28 '52 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 N 23 '52 220w

Springf'd Republican p9C N 2 '52 160w

LUCKHARDT, MRS MILDRED MADELEINE (CORELL). Merry we roll along; il. by Harve Stein. 64p $1.50 Messner
52-9338

Tells of Ricky's visit to an aunt and uncle who run a roadside diner, catering mostly to truck drivers. Ricky learns to help in the diner and outside it, and learns a lot about trucks besides. Grades 3 to 5.

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 J1 27 '52 50w

"A valuable book in its illumination of a little exploited subject, Harve Stein's drawings are graphic and pleasing."

+ Kirkus 20:226 Ap 1 '52 100w

"Recommended as social studies material for grades 3-5." Grace Shakin

+ Library J 77:907 My 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 My 11 '52 60w

Reviewed by C. E. Van Norman

N Y Times p16 Je 1 '52 40w

LUMMIS, CHARLES FLETCHER. Land of poco tiempo [foreword by Paul A. F. Walter]. 235p $3.50 Univ. of N.Mex. press
978.9 [917.89] New Mexico—Description and travel 52-9029

"A reissue under new imprint brings back to print an old stand-by on life in New Mexico. Originally published in 1884 the book is interestingly written and still has value for its picture of Indian customs." Booklist

Booklist 49:71 O 15 '52

"The project was well worthwhile, for there must be thousands of readers today who never knew Lummis or even know of him, and many of these will find in his book all the fascination it held for Americans of two generations ago." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ag 17 '52 550w

LUSSI, GUSTAVE, and RICHARDS, MAURICE. Championship figure skating; the famous system of Gustave Lussi; il. by Sidney d'Avignon. 142p $3.75 Barnes, A.S.
796.91 Skating 51-14788

The author, born in Switzerland, has been teaching figure skating in United States and Canada for more than thirty years. The book contains a chapter on the history of figure skating, and information on tests, as well as material on teaching and acquiring techniques. Index.

Booklist 48:156 Ja 1 '52

LUSSI, GUSTAVE—Continued

"Basic book. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
 + Library J 77:59 Ja 1 '52 50w
 "Recommended for high-school age and up." Lillian Morrison
 + Library J 77:150 Ja 15 '52 80w

LUSTGARTEN, EDGAR MARCUS. Game for three losers. 211p $2.50 Scribner

52-11397

The three losers are a brilliant M.P., his beautiful recently acquired secretary, and the villainous blackmailer whom the secretary loves. The plot is concerned with the diabolically contrived plot against the M.P. and the effects it had on the three.

Booklist 49:69 O 15 '52

"A precise examination of the pathetic lunacy of the damned, this offers intelligent interpretation of the results of crime on the victim and the criminals."

+ Kirkus 20:308 My 15 '52 150w

"Accepted on Mr. Lustgarten's terms, this is steadily interesting and suitably framed to the promise of its title. But one wishes that the M. P.'s discretion had reached further or that his determination had stuck sooner since his innocence is very hard pressed and, in the light of the evidence, either furtive or foolish. Called to account, the crook's malice is exceptional and a part of the rather determined calculation of the whole, which is, I'm afraid, rather sleek than memorable because the author has not faced the fact that his hero needs to be a little blacker or his crooks a little whiter." James Sandoe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J1 20 '52 190w

"There is no murder here and no mystery—and yet a fascinating study in the nature and relation of criminal and victim. . . This sharply economical novel is at once a story of people and of the law. The legal aspects are handled with an accurate wit recalling the wonderful 'Uncommon Law' cases of A. P. Herbert." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p16 Ag 3 '52 300w

"A fine job. . . . Not quite up to 'Verdict in Dispute' and 'Defender's Triumph,' which were criminal journalism of a very high order, but still worth attention."

+ New Yorker 28:68 Ag 2 '52 80w

"This might have been better and it might have been worse. Mr. Lustgarten has some good scenes, and he does fairly well with the suspense involved. With the central idea, he might have written a really topnotch short novel, however, and this he has not managed. It's rather too bad, but there it is." J. H. Jackson

— + San Francisco Chronicle p15 J1 22 '52 450w

"Story too contrived to make characters quite real, not up to author's swell factual work." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:44 Ag 9 '52 20w

LWOFF, ANDRE, ed. Biochemistry and physiology of protozoa. 2v v 1 434p il $8.80 Academic press

593.1 Protozoa. Physiological chemistry

(51-6338)

"This work is an attempt to bring together in the form of a two-volume collection of original papers, the current knowledge of the subject, even though in some areas this information is still meager. The papers, written by recognized authorities, are addressed to other professional workers in biochemistry. Each is accompanied by a substantial bibliography." N Y New Tech Bks

"Generally speaking, the book is well written, though there are a certain number of typographical errors. . . . There is a voluminous knowledge concerning the biochemistry and the nutritional requirements of protozoa. This information is rarely needed by a clinician or an undergraduate student of parasitology; therefore we recommend this book to investigators in the fields of biochemistry and nutrition, the screening of drugs or antibiotics as well as to graduate students in biochemistry, bacteriology, and parasitology." Harry Seneca

 Chem & Eng N 30:457 F 4 '52 470w
 N Y New Tech Bks 36:82 N '51

LYNCH, PATRICIA. Grania of Castle O'Hara; profusely ill. by Elizabeth Rivers. 298p $2.50 Page

52-8720

Grania, a young Irish girl, had only one desire—to be an artist. This story for ages eleven to fourteen describes how Grania went to live with her relatives, "the wild O'Haras," and how she finally got her wish.

"Although there are neither fairies, talking animals nor magic in this book, it has nevertheless the eerie, other-world atmosphere that seems to belong with old castles. It has Irish warmth and friendliness, too, and a happy picture of Grania." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:241 Ag '52 60w

"An unusually well-written, romantic tale for age twelve and over." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 My 11 '52 50w

"The story is long, loosely constructed, sometimes wordy, but it has a charm which should endear it to girls just growing out of the fairy-tale age." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p18 Je 15 '52 170w

LYNDE, H. H., pseud. See Huntington, H.LYNSKEY, ELIZABETH MARY. Government of the Catholic church; introd. by John J. Meng; with a foreword by George N. Shuster. 99p $2 Kenedy

262 Catholic church—Government 52-11496

"Book considers forms and functions of Church government, local, national and international. Limited to general information about central lines of Church authority and administration; omits faith, dogma and morals. Author, editor, and contributor of foreword Catholics on Hunter College faculty in positions of political science and history professors, and president of College. Therefore theological concepts of Church underlie all statements." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Eva-Maria Jung

Cath World 176:79 O '52 320w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 S 14 '52 90w

"This is an important book in view of the current controversy about the role of the Catholic church in national and world affairs and, in particular, concerning the proposal to send an American ambassador to Vatican City. . . . The book brings to bear upon this acute problem Catholic scholarship of the highest order."

+ Kirkus 20:346 Je 15 '52 220w

"Short, factual and scholarly. . . . Catholics will be surprised and non-Catholics informed. A valuable and much-needed work." R. J. Hurley

+ Library J 77:1403 S 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by J. P. Rooney

+ Springfield Republican p6D Ag 17 '52 140w

LYON, ELINOR. House in hiding. 218p il $2.50 Coward-McCann

51-8072

Mystery story for ages 10 to 14. The scene is the west coast of Scotland.

Kirkus 19:390 Ag 1 '51 100w

"Recommended for boys and girls of 11-12." V. A. Russell

+ Library J 76:2123 D 15 '51 70w

"The mystery element is very slight and easy to guess in this tale of a brother and sister who camp out on the west coast of Scotland, but the story has a great deal of charm." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p24 F 3 '52 90w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p4 N 11 '51
70w

LYTLE, CHARLES WALTER, and GOULD, ARTHUR FREEMAN. Manufacturing equipment and processes. 3d ed 759p il $6.50 Int. textbook

621.75 Machine shop practice. Factory management 51-7363

"A general survey of metal forming and fabricating techniques with emphasis on the machines used in large scale manufacturing. It is heavily illustrated and is equipped with selected bibliographies. Though organized and used mainly as a textbook, it is useful also as a reference book on such questions as the appearance and use of thread-rolling machines." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:61 Ja 1 '52 120w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:88 N '51

M

MAAS, HENRY S., ed. Adventure in mental health. 334p $4.50 Columbia univ. press

940.47 World war, 1939-1945—Medical and sanitary affairs 51-11214

"Psychiatric social work with the armed forces in World War II, a symposium by Betty P. Broadhurst; Irving Brodsky; Elwood W. Camp; Almena Dawley; Ethel L. Ginsburg; Irving Greenberg; Frank T. Greving; Sidney Hechter; Alfred J. Kahn; Henry S. Maas; Daniel E. O'Keefe; Daniel L. Prosser; Myron J. Rockmore; Elizabeth H. Ross; Forrest H. Whitney; Imogene S. Young." Subtitle.

"This book not only is a history of psychiatric social work in World War II but also demonstrates the adaptability of social work to a great variety of settings. In addition, it provides a very real expression of the validity of the teamwork concept in which psychiatrists, psychiatric social workers, and psychologists work together to meet the needs of the emotionally disturbed." L. L. Robbins
+ Survey 87:493 N '51 300w

"The complete story of the methods used and of specific accomplishments of the psychiatric social work in the military establishment during World War II is, of course, not given here. The volume does, however, have value as a preliminary and general survey of the functioning of psychiatric social workers in connection with the war effort."

U S Quarterly Bk R 7:395 D '51 160w

MAASS, ARTHUR. Muddy waters; the army engineers and the nation's rivers; foreword by Harold L. Ickes. 306p maps $4.75 Harvard univ. press

358.2 U.S. Army. Corps of engineers. Hydraulic engineering. U.S.—Public works 51-13265

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"It is deserving of high points for its objectivity and for the careful documentation of the raw material and original sources on which it is based. Yet it may well be remembered primarily as a first-rate pamphlet which is of significance in a political controversy of no mean proportions." J. H. Rowe

+ Am Pol Sci R 46:571 Je '52 1450w

"Muddy Waters is unquestionably an outstanding contribution to the study of public administration and public policy, and it is very provocative of thought and discussion." Norman Wengert

+ Ann Am Acad 280:203 Mr '52 260w

Reviewed by L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p10 Ja 13 '52
90w

"The book is a study, not a propaganda piece. It will be of solid value in educating a generation. It appears that only long-run education can diminish the power of this gigantic logrolling procedure." R. R. Brunn

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 F 9 '52
410w

Reviewed by Ernest Kirschten

New Repub 126:20 Ja 14 '52 350w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:73 Mr '52 180w

MACARTHUR, DAVID WILSON. Traders north; il. by William Stobbs. 246p $2.50 Knopf 51-11071

In his Preface the author says "This book tells the story of the first two voyages of the Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson Bay. The story is based upon the records of those voyages; only the hero is fictitious, so that the adventures that befell those pioneers of the great Northwest may be seen as a consecutive narrative; the 'local color' derives from my own experiences in the Hudson Strait and Hudson Bay, and I have sought to make the account of those vital early years as complete and as authentic as possible."

Booklist 48:345 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

"A real contribution to Canadian historical fiction. The only thing I missed was a map." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:241 Ag '52 60w

Kirkus 20:128 F 15 '52 160w

"Excellent companion book to Louise Thorp's Company of Adventurers." Elizabeth Burr

+ Library J 77:801 My 1 '52 90w

"The historical facts all are exact. The style is good. We welcome the fine pictures by William Stobbs with his powerful real faces and interesting details of weapons, ships, etc." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 My 11 '52 130w

"Mr. MacArthur tells an absorbing story of stubborn courage and high adventure. Michael, the only fiction character in the book, is convincingly portrayed and the colorful heroes of the northern fur trade are memorable." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p30 Mr 30 '52 200w

"A little more attention to the 'feel' of the country, a bit of humor now and then and less overstarched conversation might be wished for. However, it is a sincere and authentic account of how the greatest of all fur companies came into being." M. P. Allen

+ — Sat R 35:56 My 10 '52 160w

Wis Lib Bul 48:179 J1 '52

MACARTHUR, DOUGLAS. Revitalizing a nation; a statement of beliefs, opinions and policies, embodied in the public pronouncements of [the author] correlation and captions by John M. Pratt; introd. by Norman Vincent Peale. 96p il $2; pa $1 Heritage foundation, inc. 75 E. Wacker drive, Chicago 1; for sale by Garden City bks.

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. U.S.—Politics and government 52-9996

"This volume makes no pretense of biography. . . It is intended to provide accurate, concise yet comprehensive statements, in his own words, of the beliefs, aspirations and policies of General of the Army Douglas MacArthur. These are recorded in Part One of this book. In Part Two will be found the visual evidence of the warmth of the reception tendered General MacArthur by the American people and the acceptance accorded the inspired and dynamic message which he brought to them." p. 9

Reviewed by Joseph Hearst

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 My 18 '52 280w

MACARTHUR, DOUGLAS—Continued

"While such books [as this] undoubtedly cut publishing costs and give employment to editors, it is questionable whether they do fairly by the purchaser or the original thoughts thus strung together. For one thing, speeches like these are delivered at separate points in time; and marriage of their paragraphs may be accomplished smoothly, as they are here, but their original meaning and nuances are invariably isolated."

Sat R 35:38 J1 19 '52 280w

"Some of the MacArthur speeches are familiar to American readers but there are also many comments and items of correspondence that are brought out and grouped in a way to be of value. The inside story of the transformation of Japan after the war is especially interesting." J. W. C.

+ Springfield Republican p10D Je 22 '52 100w

MACAULEY, ROBIE. Disguises of love. 282p $3 Random house

52-10602

"Involves the intricate interweavings of the streams of consciousness of a professor of psychology, his wife and his son who pretends he likes comic books and secretly reads the best literature he can find. Substantially it is about the usual triangle. . . But the book's intricacy, which suggests the assimilated influence of Virginia Woolf, is necessary and effective and the plot escapes triteness because of Mr. Macauley's genius for making the ordinary appear extraordinary." N Y Times

Reviewed by Nicholas Joost

Commonweal 57:202 N 28 '52 450w

Kirkus 20:572 S 1 '52 190w

"Robie Macauley has managed to disguise love very effectively indeed in his account of the unhappy extra-marital affair of a pallid psychology professor with a campus Cleopatra. The result is pretentious and hollow and might better have been entitled, 'The Revelations of Immaturity.'" J. H. Raleigh

— New Repub 127:28 D 8 '52 120w

"In writing his story on a plane of artistic detachment, of letting each of the three major characters speak for himself, Mr. Macauley somehow robs his work of emotional impact." Rose Feld

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 N 9 '52 650w

"A good many readers, one fears, will find Robie Macauley's excellent first novel either too subtle or too trite." H. C. Webster

+ — N Y Times p6 N 2 '52 650w

Reviewed by Anthony West

New Yorker 28:114 D 20 '52 1950w

"An exceptionally good novel, a treatment of an old enough theme which nevertheless brings to that theme something fresh and wise and warmly human. In a season not notable for genuinely good novels, this one is well worth noting." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 D 12 '52 750w

"Robie Macauley has made of superficial and commonplace matters a novel of a peculiarly fine and absorbing texture. . . Mr. Macauley, whose critical work on the fiction of Ford Madox Ford has served him well, has worked very commonplace materials into an extremely good novel through the exercise of an interplay of points of view, primarily those of the three members of the family." F. J. Hoffman

+ Sat R 35:17 N 22 '52 600w

MCCANN, KEVIN. Man from Abilene. 252p $2.50 Doubleday

B or 92 Eisenhower, Dwight David. Campaign literature, 1952 52-6738

A study of Eisenhower's personality and philosophy written by one who has served as the general's assistant from 1946 to 1951.

Booklist 48:337 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:231 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 18 '52 300w

Reviewed by E. D. Canham

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 19 '52 450w

Kirkus 20:244 Ap 1 '52 240w

"This book may be labelled a 'campaign biography' but it is an important volume to make available to the American voter in this election year. Recommended." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:787 My 1 '52 100w

"Mr. McCann mulls over the essential facts, seasons them with some of the General's own observations on the world, and gives us a dry and almost wholly uninformative biography." Norman MacKenzie

New Statesman & Nation 44:326 S 20 '52 50w

"Unpretentious, revealing book. . . Mr. McCann was an assistant to Gen. Eisenhower when he was chief of staff in Washington after the war, and continued as his assistant during Eisenhower's civilian years at Columbia University; then accompanied him, a general once more, to his foreign assignment, to SHAPE. A year ago Mr. McCann resigned to become president of Defiance College in Ohio. The enthusiastic loyalty which Mr. McCann feels for Eisenhower is reflected in his book." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 My 18 '52 900w

Reviewed by E. D. Canham

N Y Times p3 My 18 '52 650w

New Yorker 28:141 Je 7 '52 120w

"Kevin McCann has compiled excerpts from the general's correspondence and speeches over the years into a neatly edited volume that provides a definitive picture of the 'Man From Abilene.' Mr. McCann disclaims any intention of providing this definitive picture, but his judicious editing has nevertheless done so." W. H. Baker

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 1 '52 950w

"The prose in this book is competent enough, but it's so utterly different from that of the Herald Tribune's newspaper syndication as to make one wonder if both versions were produced by the same writer. Undoubtedly the book's chief value lies in the quotations from Eisenhower's speeches and letters, several of them hitherto unpublished, which make up fully half of the volume's total wordage." K. S. Davis

Sat R 35:18 Je 7 '52 1100w

Springf'd Republican p9C Je 8 '52 180w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:237 S '52 160w

MCCARTHY, MARY THERESE. Groves of Academe. 302p $3.50 Harcourt

52-7255

Satirical novel based on the struggle between the president of Jocelyn College and an unpleasant professor on his staff. The novel is an expansion of a short story which appeared in the New Yorker.

"Miss McCarthy is a brilliant writer with a rare talent for corrosive satire, but in this novel her acid touch has become extreme acidosis. She appears to revel in making every character contemptible or ludicrous, in making every aspect of the academy's life in some way nauseating."

Atlantic 189:86 Ap '52 150w

Bookmark 11:159 Ap '52 30w

"The Groves of Academe is more an essay (actually, a New Yorker short story blown up) than a novel, yet the passages of exposition of Academe's little wars have the brilliant movement of ideas in action. And the comedy reaches a high and delightful point when Jocelyn holds a poetry conference and the poets and the faculty carry on a war to the knife." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:73 Ap '52 220w

Reviewed by Richard Sullivan

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 9 '52 170w

Reviewed by Ruth Wales
Christian Science Monitor p7 F 28 '52
380w

Reviewed by Richard Hayes
Commonweal 55:570 Mr 14 '52 600w

"An incisive, intellectual exercise, although for some Miss McCarthy's cataloguing of personal and ideological foibles may become monotonous."

Kirkus 20:84 F 1 '52 180w

"Highly recommended for college and larger fiction collections." Herbert Cahoon
+ Library J 77:361 F 15 '52 100w

Reviewed by Howard Doughty
Nation 174:280 Mr 22 '52 600w

"Such writing as this may be as witty, nasty, brilliant and precise in characterization as you please, and Mary McCarthy's has a good measure of these qualities; but it cannot be successful satire. It is much too dependent on the object of its own ridicule, it derives from and always returns to the institutions it would like to destroy. And what satire fails in its attempt to destroy, it tends to strengthen and preserve." Isaac Rosenfeld

+ New Repub 126:21 Mr 31 '52 800w

"The neat phrase is, of course, Miss McCarthy's strong point. She can also hit off a milieu in a few words. . . In spite of the fact that her gift is primarily that of an essayist this story manages to keep pretty consistently alive as well as sharp and amusing." J. W. Krutch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 F 24 '52
1150w

"Miss McCarthy's satiric manner is based on a stunning, narrowly aimed accuracy rather than on exaggeration. While she provides her specimens of men and mores with few softening extra-curriculum features, neither does she deny them their humanity by making caricatures of them. Miss McCarthy's report on the Jocelynians . . . is fierce and faithful. And, for anyone interested in the conduct of our least orthodox campuses, mortally entertaining." Alice Morris

+ N Y Times p7 F 24 '52 900w

"Funny, cruel, and relentlessly unpleasant. It marks a big advance in scale and completeness over her previous novel, 'The Oasis,' which trailed off into silence just as it promised to become most interesting. The new novel is a brilliant whole, with Attic echoes not merely in its title, where they are bitterly tongue-in-cheek, but in its relish for sudden reversals of fortune and for strictness of form. . . But, alas, the outcome of the struggle leaves us unmoved." Brendan Gill

+ New Yorker 28:106 F 23 '52 950w

"In many ways Miss McCarthy's book is fresh and new. She regards her characters with the gay detachment of the old comedy (that of Molière and Congreve), and not with the sentimentalism that is often substituted for it. If to understand all is to pardon all, she is so intent—and so successful—in understanding her characters that her compassion for them is implicit. No label can describe her book. It is the product of one of the most stunning talents today." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R 35:13 Mr 8 '52 500w

School & Society 75:383 Je 14 '52 20w

"Mary McCarthy is wickedly knowing and witty, she has an acute eye for the absurdities and pretensions of the intellectual, be he modern scholar or poet, and she has a sense of high comedy. It would be wished, however, that she were less interested in the exhibition of wit, less anxious to attack the good will of the liberal, and ready to exercise a greater breadth of humanity."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:138 Je '52 240w

Wis Lib Bul 48:94 Mr '52

Reviewed by James Yaffe

Yale R n s 41:10 summer '52 250w

MCCAULEY, LAURENCE JAMES. Single woman, by John Laurence [pseud]. 267p $3.50
Duell; Little

301.424 [396] Spinsters 52-6797

"From his years of counseling both single and married women, a Catholic priest draws these conclusions on the reasons for spinsterhood, attitudes toward it, and the ways in which the single woman may adapt herself to her status in a society which makes such adaptation difficult." Booklist

Booklist 49:26 S 15 '52

"This analysis of spinsterhood was written neither for would-be saints nor for those to whom education has given sound moral principles and a desire for constructive living. The author, a priest, is nonetheless to be commended for the attention and sympathy he has devoted to the study of an awkward position and the women ill-equipped to cope with it."

Cath World 176:160 N '52 90w

"Assurance, rather than the more decorative self-assurance of Marjorie Hillis, etc., are sober comfort in philosophic and spiritual terms."

+ Kirkus 20:483 Ag 1 '52 160w

"This type of book is in demand in most libraries; and librarians should purchase this volume on the basis of fitting it into their existing collections." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:1500 S 15 '52 130w

MCCAUSLAND, ELIZABETH. Marsden Hartley. 80p il pa $2.50 Univ. of Minn. press
759.13 Hartley, Marsden 52-7483

"A monograph on the American painter who was given recognition for his work—most of it inspired by his native Maine background—only shortly before his death. A check list, chronology, and bibliography are appended. The 44 illustrations are in black and white." Booklist

Booklist 48:374 Jl 15 '52

"A useful and careful book about the man whose 'tears were true, whether for drowned fisherman or dead plover.'" A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 77:1511 S 15 '52 50w

MCCLAIN, CLIFFORD HENDERSON. Fluid flow in pipes; a clear-cut summary of modern theory in the flow of liquids and gases through piping and ducts, with practical applications and detailed worked-out examples. 123p $3 Industrial press

532.5 Hydromechanics 52-7641

"A practical exposition of a subject that is of interest to all engineers who design piping and duct systems. A long preliminary chapter is devoted to relevant units and dimensions. Other chapters deal with viscosity, turbulent flow, friction and design practices. Selected bibliographies are included, but there is no index. A book for self-instruction and review rather than reference." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:537 Mr 15 '52 40w

"The basic phenomena and theory are covered rather thoroughly, from the standpoint of design. Though much of the exposition is expressed mathematically, the mathematics is relatively simple. Twenty worked examples are included at appropriate points to assist the engineer or plumbing contractor who studies the book by himself."

N Y New Tech Bks 37:23 Mr '52

MCCLANE, ALBERT JULES. Spinning for fresh and salt water fish of North America. 280p il $4.95 Prentice-Hall

799.12 Fishing 52-9374

"Spinning with fixed spool reels is a rapidly growing method of catching fish that now has a tremendous following of rod and reel fans in the middle west. The author tells the reader how to catch various kinds of game fish with the unusual reels, whippy rods and small light lures used in spinning. There even is a chapter for the fisherman who wants to use live baits with a spinning rod." Chicago Sunday Tribune

Booklist 48:316 Je 1 '52

Reviewed by Bob Becker

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 My 18 '52
60w

MCCLANE, A. J.—Continued

Reviewed by George Strickler

Chicago Sunday Tribune p42 D 7 '52
20w

"Excellent instruction based on author's experience on spinning." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 77:441 Mr 1 '52 30w

"It is questionable if spinning will ever become a popular method of fishing. For those who are inclined to study it, Mr. McLane's book will be valuable because it describes in detail the rods, reels and lures that are used. In explaining the method, the author relates many interesting experiences in salt and fresh water." Edmund Gilligan

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 S 7 '52
190w

MCCLOSKEY, ROBERT. One morning in Maine [pictures by the author]. 64p $2.50
Viking

52-6983

Picture-story book about one morning in Maine, as it was spent by Sal, a little girl who that day lost the first of her baby teeth, made a wish which came true, and took a trip across the bay to help father do the family shopping.

Booklist 48:200 F 15 '52

Bookmark 11:186 My '52

"The story is warm and sunny, and the large double spread lithographs printed in dark blue to suggest the sea are so lovely and so true that you can almost sniff the salt and feel the Atlantic breezes in your hair. A grand book for the picture book age and for their parents to enjoy with them." Polly Goodwin
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 My 4 '52
220w

Reviewed by E. C. Ince

Christian Science Monitor p9 My 15 '52
80w

Commonweal 57:170 N 21 '52 40w

"Children will be delighted by the story and pictures of the eventful morning. . . Grownups—especially those who know Maine—cannot fail to be impressed by the real feeling of the coast and the sea in the beautiful, double-page spreads." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:97 Ap '52 80w

Kirkus 20:123 F 15 '52 70w

"A must for all libraries especially those in New England." A. W. Wetherell
+ Library J 77:908 My 15 '52 80w

"A fine new picture book." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 My 11
'52 220w

"Mr. McCloskey has written a homely, funny little story around this important event in the life of his small daughter, now three years older than when she first appeared in 'Blueberries for Sal.' His big pictures, printed in dark blue amplify the story with interesting details which draw one back for further looking and enjoyment." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p30 My 4 '52 180w

New Yorker 28:188 D 6 '52 20w

"As we follow the story of Sal and her lost tooth we feel as refreshed as though we had spent a day with them on their island. Beauty and humor and the integrity of an artist who is always close to the thing that he dramatizes make this one of the outstanding picture books of this year—and perhaps of many years." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R 35:48 My 10 '52 230w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:260 S '52 120w

Wis Lib Bul 48:174 J1 '52

MCCLOSKEY, ROBERT GREEN. American conservatism in the age of enterprise: a study of William Graham Sumner, Stephen J. Field and Andrew Carnegie. 193p $3.25
Harvard univ. press

320.973 Conservatism. Sumner, William Graham. Field, Stephen Johnson. Carnegie, Andrew 51-13468

"A study of the intellectual and political devices used to defend economic privilege, in the name of laissez-faire, during a period extending from the close of the Civil War to World War I. After presenting these devices the Harvard-trained author then proceeds to demolish them by analyzing three of their leading spokesmen: the theorist William Graham Sumner, the jurist Stephen J. Field, and their actual practitioner, the industrialist Andrew Carnegie." (N Y Times) Index.

"Until recently it has been fashionable to characterize the decades of American development following the Civil War as the era of the 'robber barons.' A reaction to that stereotype has now set in as scholars more adequately assess the social and economic achievements of those years and the significance that they hold particularly for the conservative traditions of our own period. To this reevaluation McCloskey's slim yet compactly written volume is a significant contribution and one to which economists will be in debt." E. A. Engelbert
+ Am Econ R 42:418 Je '52 550w

"Well-written, interesting, and even inspiring book." Fritz Redlich
+ Am Hist R 57:707 Ap '52 850w

Reviewed by G. H. Dodge

Am Pol Sci R 46:561 Je '52 470w

"The descriptions of the lives and ideas of these three men are stimulating reading. It is still not entirely clear as to just why the new conservatism emerged when it did, and perhaps the very type of approach gives an unintended impression of oversimplification in the historical process. However, clearly Professor McCloskey is not writing history, but using history to make the point that democracy is concerned primarily with humanity and not with business, that democracy need not be identified with an unregulated economic order." W. L. Thorp

+ Ann Am Acad 280:189 Mr '52 340w

"This is a solid and well-documented study." Peter Viereck
+ N Y Times p3 O 28 '51 650w

"In this volume perceptive and well-written studies of the ideas of William Graham Sumner, Stephen J. Field and Andrew Carnegie are made the vehicle of an interesting and important thesis about the development of the democratic tradition in America. . . It is a work not only of good scholarship but of disciplined thinking and rare moral substance." Richard Hofstadter

+ Pol Sci Q 67:129 Mr '52 550w

School & Society 74:415 D 22 '51 30w

MCCLUNG, ROBERT M. Spike; the story of a whitetail deer; il. by [the author]. 63p $2
Morrow

Deer—Legends and stories 52-5936

Easy-to-read story for ages 6 to 8, describing the first year in the life of a whitetail deer.

Booklist 49:20 S 1 '52

"The author's illustrations are at times out of scale but have qualities of depth and softness which enhance the deer world."

Kirkus 20:367 J1 1 '52 140w

"This is as valuable to children's collections as the author's earlier books." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 77:1823 O 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p28
N 16 '52 20w

+ Sat R 35:66 N 15 '52 40w

Springf'd Republican p8C N 9 '52 50w

MACCOLL, RENE. Assignment stuffed shirt [Eng title: No idea!]. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 249p $3 Little

52-5002

A satirical novel about the adventures of the British Fruit and Vegetable Processing Mission, sent to the United States to study American canning methods.

"Putting the 'Innocents Abroad' theme into reverse, MacColl has come up with a summery novel that is fresh, fast, and sometimes very funny." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 190:87 J1 '52 550w

Reviewed by Paul Engle
Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Ag 10 '52
240w

Kirkus 20:287 My 1 '52 140w

"René MacColl introduces five English characters who make an immediate appeal to risibility. But when he starts moving them about in scenes and incidents designed to expose the foibles and stupidities of the press, the radio, the secret service, foreign missions to America, he frequently loses contact with his reader. Mainly his weakness lies in crowding his stage with extravagances and repetitions which destroy the bloom of his jest." Rose Feld

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 J1 13 '52 440w

"To call this a light novel is not to condescend to it, but to be a little more than just, for its buoyancy is something less than constant. Part of the difficulty probably lies in the author's determination to be as satirical as possible in every paragraph. . . Part of the difficulty is that the author has seriously overloaded his prose." Ted Robinson

+ N Y Times p17 Je 29 '52 280w

"Mr. MacColl keeps his story light and lively; it is full of hustle, hi-jinks, and hilarity, a summer diversion that for once is genuinely made for the hammock. Insubstantial, yes—but so are sunlight and a smile." Charles Lee

+ Sat R 35:18 J1 19 '52 360w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p5D J1 20 '52
200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p357 My 30 '52 50w

MCCONNELL, FRANCIS JOHN, bp. By the way; an autobiography. 286p il $3.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Clergy—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-402

Informal autobiography of Methodist Bishop McConnell who has worked for half a century for church union. Index.

Booklist 48:246 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 30w

Reviewed by K. B. Cully
Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Mr 16 '52
350w

"Those who want an intimate look at one of the towering personalities in the churchmanship of our times will not be disappointed. This is more than an autobiography; it is the very essence of McConnell." Paul Hutchinson

+ Christian Century 69:279 Mr 5 '52 900w

Kirkus 20:117 F 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 77:436 Mr 1 '52 80w

"If one is interested in the Methodists with whom Bishop Francis McConnell has been so long identified, or American Protestantism which he has influenced, or the contemporary life of American churchmen, he will find the Bishop's autobiography a useful and readable document, told with humor and simplicity." Brooks Hays

+ New Repub 126:22 Mr 31 '52 550w

"The narrative abounds in keen observations on life and religion in many lands and in generous and revealing tributes to comrades in service." F. E. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 Mr 9 '52 400w

"'By the Way' is as humble and unpretentious as both its author and its title. Bishop McConnell has given us an almost haphazardly chatty memoir about the various stages of his life and particularly the people, great and small, he has encountered." F. T. Schumacher

+ N Y Times p28 Mr 2 '52 270w

Time 59:79 F 18 '52 850w

MCCORD, DAVID THOMPSON WATSON. Camp at Lockjaw. 94p il $1.75 Doubleday

817 52-5285

Humorous description of a city-loving bachelor's trip to the Maine camp of his friends, enthusiastic campers with two horrible children. Illustrated by Gluyas Williams.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 190:72 S '52 180w

Bookmark 11:208 Je '52 30w

Reviewed by A. F. Otis

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Je 1 '52
120w

Kirkus 19:588 O 1 '51 100w

"Most of the fun is in Mr. Snivvelly's aversion to every phase of camp life and it's all the merrier because he must keep his venomous thoughts to himself. Mr. McCord's humor is dry but sharp, a comedy of situation. Gluyas Williams rounds out the narrative with his deft and uncluttered art." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 Je 1 '52
210w

"Mr. McCord has presented an amusing, if occasionally slight, chronicle of one noble savage's adventures in the wilds of Maine. Mr. Snivvelly's discomfiture is well delineated by Gluyas Williams." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p14 Je 1 '52 250w

New Yorker 28:99 My 31 '52 70w

"Mr. Snivvelly and his hosts, the nature-loving Sunwises, are caricatures which, like all good caricatures, bear essential truths in their spare and unsparring lines. We have known them both, perhaps we've been them both. In any event, 'The Camp at Lockjaw' is a delightful and laughter-provoking book, but a guest who gives it as a bread-and-butter present may not be invited again." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R 35:33 J1 19 '52 410w

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 29 '52 60w

MCCORD, DAVID THOMPSON WATSON. Far and few; rhymes of the never was and always is; drawings by Henry B. Kane. 99p $2.50 Little

811 Children's poetry 52-8336

Poems for children, mostly about country things, birds and insects, fruit and flowers, and simple joys of child life.

Booklist 49:20 S 1 '52

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 N 16 '52
40w

Commonweal 57:174 N 21 '52 30w

"Love of poetry is born and bred and nourished by such a book as this and the drawings, whether of 'The Grasshopper,' 'The White Ships' or 'Cocoon,' are in the mood of rhymes which range from pure nonsense to pure beauty. There is but one thing to say of Far and Few, it is indispensable for a children's library." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 28:310 O '52 80w

Horn Bk 28:332 O '52 80w

Kirkus 20:450 Ag 1 '52 100w

"A completely welcome collection of verse whose strong, individual, fresh rhythms are sure to appeal to the ear, and children will be captivated by the highly contemporary images in certain poems. There is considerable variety of word and technique, ranging from sheerest nonsense to lovely quiet lyric. The author achieves the unusual success of children's poetry that is never cute and never dilutes its meaning; it is clear and fresh and altogether delightful." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 77:1521 S 15 '52 50w

"Mr. McCord is a good poet. He has the requisite wonder, sympathy, tenderness of impression, gayety, fancy and imagination. If sometimes he strives too subtly, for this reader, to implant a between-the-lines suggestion, if sometimes his whimsicality seems very determined, he reports well his notes on life and the world." Morris Bishop

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 7 '52
300w

"This little book will undoubtedly please many children and perhaps more adults, but to this reviewer it is disappointing. There is a certain fierce relevance in the vagaries of children's minds which gives to the idiom in which they declare themselves a quality of surprise which is close to the core of poetry. It never seems contrived, always inevitable. The author of 'Far and Few' in his attempts to match this aspect of the unsophisticated mind of a child seems often to lose himself in artifice and contrivance. He does, however, manage in ten or a dozen poems, to present something quite perfect and, when he does, it is apparent that his success comes from falling into the same attitude of spontaneity which governs a child's laughing repetition of sounds by which it is fascinated." Raymond Holden

MCCORD, D. T. W.—Continued
+ — N Y Times p12 S 7 '52 190w

"Adult admirers of Mr. McCord's light verse will be glad to find that children enjoy the sixty of his poems that have been brought together in this book."

+ New Yorker 28:202 D 6 '52 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 D 21 '52 120w

"Mr. McCord has been fortunate in his illustrator. The drawings are beautiful. They give the same sense of beauty and rhythm that we find in the verse. It is a heartening thing to have a collection of fresh, new poems for the children as good as these."

+ Sat R 35:68 N 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by G. P. Meyer

Sat R 35:20 D 27 '52 230w

MCCOY, HORACE. Scalpel. 373p $3.50 Appleton

52-10495

In a first person narrative this novel tells the story of a middle-aged surgeon, who, except for lowly origins, has everything to make him self-satisfied—an army commission, success in his work, a way with women, a fine taste in art, music and good food. Nevertheless he is beset by feelings of self-doubt and guilt until the opportunity comes for him to rescue a coal miner and thereby become a hero in his home town.

Booklist 48:360 J1 1 '52

Kirkus 20:289 My 1 '52 210w

"Vivid, readable, and not a little specious, this is also a good shooting script for a film play." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 77:1196 J1 '52 90w

"Horace McCoy has written a fast-paced story filled with incident, including some fist fights and a mine disaster. It has not only action but suspense and pretty good character drawing, but is written in such a self-consciously terse style—a Hemingway-Cain-Chandler mixture—that it is much harder to read than it should be."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 S 7 '52 200w

"A highly interesting work of fiction." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p14 Je 22 '52 350w

"Of most current novels it can be said that there is less in them than meets the eye; with Mr. McCoy's novel it is definitely the reverse; and what is below the surface is the most important; but the difficulty seems to be that Mr. McCoy can never quite succeed in making us understand precisely what it is."

W. R. Burnett

Sat R 35:23 Je 21 '52 600w

MCCRACKEN, HAROLD. Flaming Bear. 222p $2.50 Lippincott

Bears—Legends and stories

51-11173

Story of a young son of an Aleut Chief in the Aleutians, and his brave, lonely hunt for a great bear, reported to be living on an island in the Bering Sea. According to legend the bear flames like a torch. In this story for junior and senior high schools, the young hunter proved the truth of the legend.

Booklist 48:174 Ja 15 '52

Bookmark 11:134 Mr '52

"This haunting story will delight all lovers of adventure. It captures the spirit of the cold north country, and it captures a reader's imagination." W. H.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p18 N 11 '51 150w

"The author's knowledge of northern wilderness enhances the story's dramatic reality and will let no reader leave the book unfinished." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:37 F '52 90w

Kirkus 19:442 Ag 15 '51 100w

"An absorbing adventure story. . . Recommended for junior high school and up." E. H. Speer

+ Library J 76:2126 D 15 '51 100w

"It is an exciting tale of a strange, dangerous, lonely hunt." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 11 '51 60w

"A story of genuine distinction. Mr. McCracken's imaginative blending of ancient legend and present-day adventure is heightened by vivid descriptive touches." Howard Boston

+ N Y Times p20 D 16 '51 140w

MCCRACKEN, HAROLD. Portrait of the Old West; with a biographical check list of western artists; foreword by R. W. G. Vail. 232p 11 pl 10 McGraw

759.13 Painters, American. West—Views

52-9455

"Harold McCracken, author of 'Frederic Remington, Artist of the Old West' [Book Review Digest 1947] now offers us a more comprehensive book containing nearly 40 color plates, more than 40 black and white plates, and many smaller illustrations. The book is 8½ by 11 inches, and the color plates, many of them full page, include reproductions of the better paintings of Charles M. Russell, George Catlin, Albert Bierstadt, George de Forest Brush, Thomas Moran, Frederic Remington, Alfred Jacob Miller, Charles Schreyvogel, Charles Wimar, Karl Bodmer, Friedrich Kurz, Henry F. Farny, and others. . . The author accompanies his pictures with a commentary, particularly valuable for the biographical sketches of the artists included, and quotes freely from their journals." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"As is natural in such a comprehensive discussion, there are a number of minor errors scattered thru the text, but these are hardly important for the rich enjoyment which any lover of the west and its artists will receive." Stanley Vestal

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 9 '52 200w

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 18 '52 140w

Nation 176:17 Ja 3 '53 300w

"Mr. McCracken's book must be judged on the level of the holiday gift-book trade, not as a historical or critical study of its subject. As a gift book it is eminently successful. . . Mr. McCracken's text consists mainly of biographical sketches, short, chatty, interesting, superficial, and almost devoid of critical comment. Since most of it rests on the accepted authorities it varies in quality, excellent when it is based on such men as Tuckerman and Bushnell. . . Clearly, his book is not for students, though the check list of Western artists will be useful." Bernard DeVoto

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 D 14 '52 600w

"Mr. McCracken presents a wide and colorful panorama, although it is sad to note, in passing, that the color plates generally bear small resemblance to the original paintings. Mr. McCracken has not attempted a critical monograph on Western history or Western art. He passes few judgments on the material he presents but allows it to speak for itself, by and large, in the hope that it will thereby find a brighter place in the public domain." M. B. Davidson

N Y Times p7 N 2 '52 600w

"Artistically, this book is a sound expression of one man's opinion. Historically, it seems written for the Hudson River School of readers. It is unfortunate that by the personal litmus paper test the two ingredients are not the same stuff." W. H. Hutchinson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 N 23 '52 800w

MCCRACKEN, ROBERT JAMES. Questions people ask. 188p $2.50 Harper
252 Sermons 51-8607

"The pastor of the Riverside Church in New York City answers basic inquiries in these 'life-situation' sermons which apply Christian insights to contemporary moral and religious difficulties." Bookmark

Bookmark 11:58 D '51 30w

"The reviewer made this book assigned reading for his class in homiletics, whose members were studying the various types of preaching. There was universal agreement among these critical young theologues that in Dr. McCracken's volume was life-situation preaching at its best." Vaughan Dabney
+ Crozer Q 29:224 Ap '52 600w

"These sermons by Dr. McCracken [were] preached in New York City's Riverside Church. Called to succeed the eminent Dr. Fosdick [Dr. McCracken] has brought with him all the vivid phrasing and fervent power of the traditional Scottish divine." F. T. Schumacher

+ N Y Times p29 Ja 13 '52 180w

MCCRONE, GUY. Hayburn family. 279p $3
Farrar, Straus 52-5795

Continues the story of the Moorhouse family begun in Red Plush and Aunt Bel (Book Review Digest 1947, 1949). The time is 1900, and Robin Hayburn is the central figure. Robin is too delicate to follow his father's ambition and enter the family business. During a convalescence on the Riviera he finds love and encouragement in his attempts to write before he succumbs to tuberculosis.

Booklist 48:229 Mr 15 '52

"Readers of Red Plush and Aunt Bel will enjoy this slight, charming vignette, complete in itself."

+ Bookmark 11:133 Mr '52 70w

"This is an old fashioned novel, moving in a straight line, with several subplots neatly joined to the central problems." Walter Havighurst

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 9 '52 320w

"A dramatic, exciting, and sensitively-written book, a good old-fashioned family novel that takes us into another world of real people, real places, and romance—with an author who has a keen sense of humor and an ability to write swift-moving narrative with affectionate understanding." Elisabeth McLaughlin

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 F 28 '52 330w

Kirkus 19:686 D 1 '51 200w

"Many of the characters from the earlier books become more and more stereotyped; the plot is factitious, the whole decidedly diluted as compared with the rich flavor of Red Plush." R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:143 Ja 15 '52 130w

"The family has run out. But even sadder to report the robustious imagination of novelist Guy McCrone seems to have run out, too." Margaret Evans

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Mr 16 '52 550w

"Mr. McCrone is at his best when describing family gatherings, but in 'The Hayburn Family' he never grapples with the familiar conflict he sets up. His old story remains a thin one, which would be very dim indeed were it not that he manages a little turn-of-the-century flavor and just enough quiet characterization to keep the sketchy scenes breathing." Wilmott Ragsdale

N Y Times p23 Mr 30 '52 240w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ap 6 '52 210w

Reviewed by E. J. Fitzgerald
Sat R 35:38 My 3 '52 190w

MCCUTCHEON, HUGH. Murder at the Angel [Eng title: Angel of light]. 264p $2.50 Dutton 52-10601

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:522 Ag 15 '52 80w

Library J 77:1760 O 15 '52 50w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 7 '52 70w

"A mildly readable book, with an illusion of better quality than its content justifies." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p18 Ag 17 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p23 Ag 24 '52 40w

"Naively amiable." Sergeant Cuff

Sat R 35:38 Ag 23 '52 20w

Springf'd Republican p16C S 14 '52 80w

MCDEVITT, JEAN, No, no, Taffy! pictures by Flavia Gág. 47p $2.50 Doubleday

Dogs—Legends and stories 52-9276

"About a little brown dog who was naughty only because he didn't understand. More puzzling to him than anything else were milkmen, paper boys and bicycles; and it took him a long time to learn that all three contributed to his and his family's happiness." Horn Bk

Booklist 49:74 O 15 '52

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 N 16 '52 70w

"Short sentences with much repetition indicate that this was written with beginning or retarded readers in mind; but the liveliness of story and pictures saves it from being 'just another easy book.'" J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:318 O '52 70w

Kirkus 20:545 S 1 '52 50w

"Format of this attractive book, with its humorous, action-filled illustrations by Flavia Gág, is that of a picture book. The text, however, is geared to second- and third-graders' reading ability, which spoils it for reading aloud. Recommended in spite of these shortcomings." Claire Nolte

+ — Library J 77:1818 O 15 '52 80w

MACDONALD, MRS BETTY (BARD) HESKETT. Nancy and Plum; il. by Hildegard Hopkins. 190p $2.50 Lippincott

52-7456

Story of Nancy and Plum who were boarders at Mrs Monday's boarding house for orphans. The story is of what happened one Christmas when the children rebelled.

Bookmark 12:12 O '52 20w

"An old fashioned, sentimental, preposterous story, with overdrawn characters? Maybe, but as Betty MacDonald tells it, with loving tenderness for her small heroines and righteous wrath for her villains, and an over-all bouncy good humor and much lively incident, no little girl will be able to resist it." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 N 9 '52 160w

"Betty MacDonald has a gift of story telling and a gift of laughter, and both combine here in a story that reveals the philosophical phases of children's thinking."

+ Kirkus 20:369 Jl 1 '52 200w

"Betty ('Egg and I') MacDonald writes in a lively fashion, and her two little sisters are real, spirited, amusing, interesting. A sympathetic teacher and a clever librarian prove good friends; the conversation is real and amusing." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 O 12 '52 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 30 '52 150w

MACDONALD, GRACE LOIS (MARGARET GRAHAM, pseud). Swing shift. 494p $3 Citadel

51-14553

"In novelized form, Margaret Graham has here attempted a left-facing history of the American labor movement from the closing years of the last century up to the opening of World War II. Her protagonist is one Ed

MACDONALD, G. L.—Continued

McCaffrey, son of a coal miner. For her purposes Miss Graham has put him through a rather full set of paces." N Y Times

"The writing is very uneven, at times too detailed and often very dull. There are some very stirring events and some excellent insights into individual episodes which would make this good labor fiction if it were not for the weaknesses noted above. Recommended for purchase where these faults will not become a problem." D. K. Oko

— + Library J 77:440 Mr 1 '52 90w

"The bulky narrative is jam-packed with a wealth of detail and an almost stupefying plethora of scenes. Miss Graham's controversial point of view apart, her novel is somewhat tough going. Her characters seldom achieve roundness, partly because of an irritating habit of making speeches at each other at every opportunity. The strength and sincerity of her convictions are the chief virtues of a novel that rarely rises above the level of pedestrian exposition." E. J. Fitzgerald

— + N Y Times p23 Ja 6 '52 220w

"Miss Graham's story might have made exciting reading, but she does not know how to write fiction. Her narrative line balks again and again at the insuperable load of facts and figures it is asked to carry." Whitney Balliett

Sat R 35:15 Ja 12 '52 230w

MACDONALD, JOHN ROSS, pseud. See Millar, K.

MACDONALD, WILBERT LORNE. Pope and his critics; a study in eighteenth century personalities. 340p il $4.50 Univ. of Wash. press

821 Pope, Alexander. Literary criticism. [51-4218]

"Mr. MacDonald has examined and sifted all that was written about Pope as man and poet in the eighteenth century by critics, editors, and biographers. The personal factor, as he shows, seldom fades into the background, and it was only during the last half of the century that the verse was considered for its own sake." Manchester Guardian

"The subject matter, retelling and re-evaluating the views of men long dead on a subject long forgotten is dismaying . . . even forbidding, for the average reader. Yet for him Professor Macdonald has made the way as painless as possible with his good humor, common sense and lusty curiosity. For the student of literature, however, the book has a special significance. The high quality of the author's scholarship and his keen and sensitive judgment of men and poetry has made this a valuable addition to the history of criticism." S. E. Maley

+ Canadian Forum 31:209 D '51 350w

"The industry and scholarship revealed in his book are outstanding and the human interest is as great as the literary. Equally as a commentary on Pope and on his age it is richly informing." H. I. A. F.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Je 12 '51 240w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband
Sat R 35:20 My 3 '52 180w

MACDONALD, ZILLAH KATHERINE. Cap for Corrine. 184p $2.50 Messner

52-8391

The romance of a fine nurse, written for older girls. Besides the story of Corrine's career, and her love for one of the doctors at St Agatha's, there is also a mystery.

Reviewed by M. F. Kieran
Atlantic 189:87 Je '52 50w
Bookmark 11:211 Je '52

"Pictured honestly, with difficulties and drawbacks, as well as reasonable successes and rewards. Discussion of the problem of career versus marriage and convincing scenes of hospital and home nursing, including a major city catastrophe, give validity to Corrine's decisions." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:110 Ap '52 50w

Kirkus 20:79 F 1 '52 150w

"Good treatment of nursing as a career. Format good, and style makes for easy reading. Recommended for older girls." R. C. Buell

+ Library J 77:801 My 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ap 13 '52 100w

N Y Times p16 Jl 20 '52 80w

MACDOUGALL, CURTIS DANIEL. Understanding public opinion; a guide for newspapermen and newspaper readers. 698p $5 Macmillan

301.154 Public opinion 52-658

"Public opinion, says MacDougall, is 'the expression on a controversial point within an interest group.' Around this definition he centers his discussion of public-opinion—its major principles, relation to culture, and media. [The author is] professor of journalism at Northwestern University and formerly a reporter, editor and editorial writer." (Christian Century) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 46:603 Je '52 10w

"I do not feel that this book will be of much help to newspapermen, newspaper readers, or anyone else." R. A. Inglis

— Am Soc R 17:642 O '52 330w

Reviewed by Richard Hooker

Ann Am Acad 282:133 Jl '52 390w

Booklist 48:312 Je 1 '52

"Understanding Public Opinion is interesting, helpful and comprehensive. As students of Dr. MacDougall, many of us appreciated his irenic disposition and broad background. Through his new book, others may experience his rich personality and keen mind." J. W. Carty

+ Christian Century 69:561 My 7 '52 800w

School & Society 75:110 F 16 '52 40w

MACE, KATHERINE KEELER, and MACE, HARRY. Mr Wiggington joins the circus. [36p] il $2 Abelard

52-2419

The story of poor Mr Wiggington who had such big feet that he could not keep a job until he joined the circus, where he was immediately at home. For ages 5 to 8.

Bookmark 12:11 O '52 20w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Ag 3 '52 30w

"This story about Mr. Wiggington and his difficulties holding a job seems to have the makings of a favorite. . . Mr. Mace's light and lively pictures spark the story nicely." M. L. Krupka

+ N Y Times p10 Jl 6 '52 110w

MACE, WYNN. Tennis techniques illustrated; designed and il. by Tyler Micoletau. 96p $1.50 Barnes, A.S.

796.34 Tennis 52-8938

A simply written book on tennis technique for beginners. The author is a Southern California tennis coach; the artist is a sports artist.

Booklist 48:380 Jl 15 '52

"An excellent handbook for beginners." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1408 S 1 '52 10w

"For anyone whose cheerful 'Anybody for tennis' is met with thundering silence, this book should come in handy. And even if the game doesn't improve much, the glossary should enable one to talk a better game of tennis with offhand references to the American twist, seeding, chop, job, and the finer points of strategy and tactics as followed at Wimbledon or Forest Hills." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 21 '52 120w

MCELWEE, WILLIAM LLOYD. Murder of Sir Thomas Overbury. 280p il $4.50 Oxford

B or 92 Overbury, Sir Thomas 52-14560

A retelling of a Jacobean "true" murder story. It is a recounting in semi-fiction form of the poisoning of Sir Thomas Overbury in the Tower of London during the reign of King James I. Index.

Nation 176:17 Ja 3 '53 60w

"It is a little misleading to suggest that The Murder of Sir Thomas Overbury has either the construction of a novel or the suspense of a detective story. It stands on its own merits as a readable piece of historical reconstruction—good wine, which, despite its author's anxieties, needs no fictional bush."

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:51 Jl 12 '52 170w

"This isn't everybody's specialty. But anyone with a liking for true murder cases, anyone with any feel for Seventeenth Century England, and in many cases anyone with an interest in the law and its workings in those days, will find it fascinating." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p31 D 11 '52 750w

Reviewed by Maurice Ashley

Spec 188:862 Je 27 '52 750w

"Mr. McElwee has made ample use of his ingredients. He has written a thriller and a documentary, and let the characters speak for themselves. Based on contemporary documents, his book is of interest to connoisseurs of historical crime."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p416 Je 27 '52 1000w

MCGAW, HOWARD FRANKLIN. Marginal punched cards in college and research libraries. 218p il $4.50 Scarecrow

025.073 Punched card systems—Libraries 52-7846

"A guide to the uses of the hand-operated, marginal punched card system in libraries and a descriptive review of routines involved. Valuable for those libraries considering installation of a punched card system, it may also offer new suggestions to libraries already using punched cards." Booklist

Booklist 48:370 Jl 15 '52

"The McGaw book will probably have a wider interest for librarians [than Parker, R. H. Library Applications of Punched Cards] since it discusses 'marginal' punched cards which are manually sorted and do not involve the costs required by machine sorted cards. . . [It] should be studied by any librarian who wishes to systemize library procedures." Foster Mohrhardt

+ Library J 77:1284 Ag '52 270w

MCGEEHEE, FLORENCE. Please excuse Johnny. 242p $3.50 Macmillan

371.52 School attendance. Migration of workers 52-13927

A school attendance officer in California writes of her experiences with migrant workers and their children, and includes case histories.

Booklist 49:57; 98 O 15 '52; N 15 '52

"A sob sister accounting which is however solid in the sociological and educational problems involved."

+ Kirkus 20:542 Ag 15 '52 160w

"This volume, intelligently conceived and excellently done, will be a worthy addition to the literature of juvenile delinquency and rehabilitation." E. P. Nichols

+ Library J 77:1807 O 15 '52 90w

"Instead of chronological narrative, Mrs. McGehee gives us humorous sketches of individual young truants or of family groups, which read like cleverly turned short stories. . . Mrs. McGehee can write with great effectiveness [as] is attested by stories such as 'Sixteen Candles.'" Frances Witherspoon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 N 16 '52 550w

"These case histories—flavored with a dash of imagination—have charm although some of them tend to be tearful. They are marred by the ineffectiveness with which they are tied together and by the lack of social background."

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 16 '52 500w

"It's a fascinating story Mrs. McGehee tells, and an authentic one. She has captured the feeling of hopelessness and resentment in the crowded, filthy farm labor camps. Her dialogue mirrors the sympathy-seeking paranoid thought pattern typical of the habitually indigent family." Maxine Skuse

+ Sat R 35:32 D 27 '52 280w

School & Society 76:287 N 1 '52 20w

Springf'd Republican. p35A N 16 '52 80w

MCGERR, PATRICIA. Death in a million living rooms. 184p $2.50 Doubleday

51-14398

Detective story.

Bookmark 11:85 Ja '52

"Lots of inside details of procedure, inside tracks on inter-cast rivalries and backbitings, will give this an extra filip for the television audience."

+ Kirkus 19:543 S 15 '51 70w

"Miss McGerr has done especially well by her Svengali Scottie and the wretchedly successful Podge. Her sharp reporting of the stresses in the compilation of that lunatic weekly show make even murder a little anticlimactic. She has the whole thing observed and related by Melissa Colvin, a 'researcher' from a pompous monthly called 'Enterprise' and this may suggest the general topic inclination of the whole bright, brisk excursion. Take it in one gulp and it goes down very easily." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 D 16 '51 180w

"An unsensational, if neatly contrived, puzzle." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p14 D 30 '51 130w

"Neat, authentic and different." L. G. Offord
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 6 '52 60w

"Specialty number." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R of Lit 34:38 D 22 '51 30w

MCGRAW, ELOISE JARVIS. Moccasin trail. 247p $2.75 Coward-McCann

52-12371

Jim Keath had lived six years as a Crow Indian when he learned that his two younger brothers and a sister were coming West to take up land. The four orphans settle in the Willamette valley, and the story describes Jim's attempts to re-orient himself as a white man and to help his family. For junior and senior high schools.

Booklist 49:75 O 15 '52

Commonweal 57:176 N 21 '52 40w

Horn Bk 28:414 D '52 110w

"More sensitive than some of the pioneer stories we've been reading lately."

+ Kirkus 20:558 S 1 '52 100w

"Despite a surfeit of historical books on the opening of the West, this should be a first purchase for any library. . . The grueling hardships on the journey to Oregon and in making a home provide exciting reading. Characters are portrayed so fully and sympathetically they might be alive today. Will be read from sixth grade up and should be popular in young people's collections." A. B. Martin

McGraw, E. J.—Continued

+ Library J 77:1828 O 15 '52 90w

"It is a long, satisfying story, full of dramatic incident and rich in interesting detail about Indian and pioneer ways." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p18 N 16 '52 260w

"This is a first-rate adventure story; it is also a novel [about] real teen-agers who seem basically much the same in 1844 as they are in 1952." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Times pt2, p10 N 16 '52 170w

"Jim always is a strong and often deeply appealing character. It is little Daniel who finally brings him back into the normal relationship with Jonathan and with Sally. The tie between Jim and Daniel is shown with real power and restraint. This is, on the whole, an outstanding story of the Far West in the middle part of the nineteenth century."

+ Sat R 35:47 O 11 '52 220w

McGUIRE, FRANCES. Secret of Barnegat light; il. by Albert Orbaan. 128p $2.50 Dutton

52-5294

Mystery story for ages eight to twelve.

"Though there is no detection involved, this will help satisfy the demand for mysteries."

+ Bookmark 11:162 Ap '52 70w

"The villain is too easily spotted, even to putting his picture at the crucial page. However, the thrill of the capture is well done, and Johnnie's reward is unique and satisfying." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ap 20 '52 100w

"Smart young detectives will probably be a jump ahead of Johnnie in fathoming the mystery, but the unusual, well-described background gives special interest to the story." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p24 Mr 16 '52 150w

MACHADO DE ASSIS, JOAQUIM MARIA. Epitaph of a small winner; tr. from the Portuguese by William L. Grossman; drawings by Shari Frisch. 223p $3.50 Noonday press, 77 Irving pl, N.Y. 3

52-36198

"An ironic and humorous novel by the nineteenth-century Brazilian, Machado de Assis, a mulatto who rose to be the friend of statesmen and president of the Brazilian Academy of Letters. . . The present novel is presented as the irreverent memoirs of a ghost—Braz Cubas was his name on earth, and although he rose to be a deputy he owed his comfortable life to the invention of the Braz Cubas Plaster. Wealthy and successful enough, he was also blessed—if blessing it was—with the love of his best friend's wife. . . When, after his own death, he balanced the books of his life he found that the good and the bad mostly canceled each other except for one item—I had no progeny, I transmitted to no one the legacy of our misery." Nation

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 176:312 Ja '53 200w

"The novel well deserves its established place in world literature and we cannot but thank Mr. Grossman for making it available to the English-speaking. Without Portuguese, it is impossible to judge the translation as translation, but one can say truthfully that Mr. Grossman presents a superb English version of a peculiarly Iberian attitude and style. . . The line drawings by Shari Frisch are all beautifully to the point: chaste and austere, amusing and mildly abstract, related as they are to both contemporary 'line sculpture' and the typographical school of poster design." Frank Getlein

+ Commonweal 56:417 Ag 1 '52 1000w

"The influences of Voltaire, Montaigne, and Laurence Sterne are clear, but Machado de Assis is by no means a poodle who learned from foreign masters how to stand on his hind legs and dance. What gives his writing force as well as form is his own character moving within that strain of realism and irony which is seen in Portuguese literature as early as the fifteenth century." Mildred Adams

+ Nation 175:95 Ag 2 '52 600w

"The wit with which the tale is told has a severity behind it. Machado de Assis belongs to that order of moralists, such as I. Compton-Burnett and Evelyn Waugh, whose comic invention and style briefly disguise the rigor of their judgments. But the value of this is diminished by the note of cheap nihilism on which he ends his book." S. M. Fitzgerald

+ New Repub 127:20 S 15 '52 480w

"With William L. Grossman's splendid translation of 'Memórias Póstumas de Braz Cubas,' 'Epitaph of a Small Winner,' Machado de Assis is represented by one of his most characteristic novels. His style is lean and simple, quite astonishing in a country that revels in stylistic fatness." Angel Flores

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 24 '52 230w

"The title is a brilliant hazard of the translator, the original being 'Posthumous Memoirs of Braz Cubas' and it is clearly one of those books which we can call definitive. It is there, complete, done: a study of ironic disillusionment couched in the most delicate suavity of despair. . . It is the comédie humaine in its fullest immediacy. There are remarkably few flaws. The most serious is formal: an odd kind of echoing Sterne, the typographical and syntactical tricks of 'Tristram Shandy'—thus, we have a page of nothing but periods, exclamation points and marks of interrogation; and the whimsically brief chapters (there are more than 150 in a short novel) with the intrusive comments of Braz, seem uneasily derivative." Dudley Pitts

+ N Y Times p4 Jl 13 '52 450w

"'Epitaph of a Small Winner' has the experimental and inventive vitality that one associates with the writing of the twenties, and it seems to belong much more in spirit to that lively period than to the eighties, in which it was first published. If it has to be given a category, it should be placed alongside such successful modern jeux d'esprit as Hemingway's 'The Torrents of Spring' and Montherlant's 'Pity for Women'—jokes that are all the better for being savage and, like all good jokes, wholly serious." Anthony West

+ New Yorker 28:71 Ag 9 '52 1800w

"De Assis has somehow managed to make 'Epitaph of a Small Winner' both original and delightful. Although the frequent gaiety of his wit and the voluptuousness with which he greets despair often prevent us from taking him as seriously as I think he intended to be, and although there are occasions when he imitates Sterne too slavishly, nevertheless this novel makes one think about the human condition that has altered so unremarkably since 1880 and hope that more of his books will be introduced into this country, where he is almost unknown." H. C. Webster

+ Sat R 35:9 Jl 26 '52 600w

"Many will no doubt find the author's method obscure and intrusive, but a sly sense of humor and an ironic turn of mind are part of his book's charm." J. F. Rooney

+ Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 17 '52 110w

Time 60:102 Jl 21 '52 480w

MACHETANZ, SARA (MRS FREDERICK MACHETANZ). Rick of High Ridge; il. by Fred Machetanz. 177p $2.50 Scribner

52-12924

"The problems and the satisfactions of Alaskan homesteading are made clear in this absorbing story of young Rick and his family during their months of settling into the Matanuska Valley. Rick expected to return 'outside' in the fall, to his old school and his friends, but the adventure, the beauty, and the new self-importance he found in the Alaskan environment proved a stronger call." Horn Bk

Booklist 49:130 D 1 '52

"The illustrations by the author's husband are beautiful, reproduced nicely, and fit perfectly in a well-designed book." B. J. R.
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 N 16 '52 90w

"Based on the experiences of the author and illustrator." V. H.

Horn Bk 28:325 O '52 100w

"Excellent regional novel of homesteading in Alaska."

+ Kirkus 20:558 S 1 '52 110w

"The characterization and portrayal of rigorous life in modern rural Alaska is excellent. Fine black-and-white illustrations by Fred Machetanz. Excellent format. About 6-8-grade reading and interest level. Recommended." N. S. Zipp

+ Library J 77:1908 N 1 '52 80w

"Alaska was really home at the end. This is a vividly real tale, based on the experiences of this author and artist. The many pictures are stunning and very well printed." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p7 N 16 '52 110w

"The grandeur of Alaskan scenery and the friendliness of community life in the Last Frontier are well portrayed by a couple of veteran homesteaders." Phyllis Krasilovsky
+ N Y Times pt2, p34 N 16 '52 110w

MCHOSE, ELIZABETH. Family life education in school and community. 182p $3.50 Teachers college

371.76 [612.6] Family. Sex instruction 52-11435

"Based on the principle that education for personal and family living should be the shared responsibility of the home, the church, the school, and the community, this book presents the findings of a searching study of this phase of education as it is actually carried on in various kinds of schools and communities today." (Publisher's note) Bibliography.

"The style of the author is interesting. Her simplicity, gained by the use of the conversational technique, makes the material particularly usable. The presentation of a summary at the end of each discussion makes the work academic but not too pedantic for the layman. The limitation of the book concerns the narrow interpretation of family-life education." C. A. Rockwood
+ — EI School J 53:120 O '52 360w

School & Society 76:48 J1 19 '52 10w

MCILROY, ROBERT JOSEPH. Plant glycosides. 133p $3.25 Longmans

547.2 [547.3] Glucosides [51-13834]

"A convenient summary of the current knowledge of a group of substances that are of much interest in biochemistry and pharmacology. For each compound included, information on chemical properties and structure, significant reactions, and whether it has been synthesized, is presented. References are given to the source articles for the properties and also for the syntheses. The book will be useful mainly to professional chemists engaged in pharmacological and biochemical research." N Y New Tech Bks

"It is not intended that the work should be treated as more than an up-to-date summary for convenient reference. Inasmuch as no review of the entire field of plant glycosides has appeared in the past fifteen years, Dr. McIlroy's work furnishes a valuable tool with which to supplement the earlier more comprehensive reviews." R. C. Elderfield
+ Am Chem Soc J 74:3967 Ag 5 '52 150w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:87 N '51

MCILVAINE, MRS JANE (STEVENSON). Copper's Chance; il. by Paul Brown. 232p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

Horses—Legends and stories 51-14006

A combination of love story and the story of a horse. Copper Shannon is given her chance to train an outlaw horse. She succeeds very well in her project. But when she falls in love she finds growing up a difficult problem. For older girls.

Booklist 48:173 Ja 15 '52

Kirkus 19:535 S 15 '51 160w

"Recommended for older girls who can take a wealth of horse lore." K. H. McAlarney
+ Library J 77:70 Ja 1 '52 70w

"A romantic story, distinguished by vivid descriptions of good horsemanship." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p13 D 30 '51 180w

MCILVAINE, MRS JANE (STEVENSON). Sea Sprite. 204p $2.50 Macrae Smith co.

52-10364

"Moving back to her ancestral home after five years in Europe, Callie Prichard longs to be accepted by the group of teen-agers whose summer obsession is sailing. Her unusual experiences and luxurious surroundings set her apart. Actually shy and lonely, she is thought of as spoiled and vain, and only gradually does she win a somewhat grudging place for herself." (N Y Times) For teen aged readers.

"Jane McIlvaine's third junior novel is written just as warmly and skillfully as the first two." Lucile Pannell

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 16 '52 90w

"A lively and convincing story. The description of sailing techniques and racing is an important and readable part of the book." V. H.
+ Horn Bk 28:414 D '52 100w

"Slick writing, and questionable standards of value characterize a thoroughly readable young romance about an ambassador's daughter in an eastern seaside resort."

+ — Kirkus 20:415 J1 15 '52 150w

"Although slight and too pat at times, this is well written and will appeal." B. W. Schein
+ — Library J 77:1910 N 1 '52 80w

"The happy summer life of sailing and dances and picnics is appealingly set forth." F. N. Chrystie

+ N Y Times pt2, p18 N 16 '52 120w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON, ed. Conflict of loyalties; a series of addresses and discussions. (Inst. for religious and social studies. Religion and civilization ser) 150p $2 Harper

177 [172] Political ethics. Loyalty 52-7640

"Eleven timely, provocative articles by intellectual leaders that help to clarify the issues involved in the age-old problem of clashing loyalties. List of contributors." (Bookmark) Index.

Am Pol Sci R 46:602 Je '52 20w

Reviewed by Seba Eldridge

Am Soc R 17:632 O '52 390w

Booklist 48:241 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:156 Ap '52 20w

"A well-written and timely book which may very likely appear on church and other reading lists. Highly recommended for all libraries." E. M. Lilley

+ Library J 77:529 Mr 15 '52 140w

"It is a pity that these essays and lectures are so brief and disconnected. They introduce various aspects of the problem, but they fail to come to grips with concrete issues, and they lack the continuity and integration requisite to sustained interest. Some of them are so abstract that the ordinary reader may be forgiven if he finds them altogether wanting in focus." Alan Barth

Nation 175:97 Ag 2 '52 600w

School & Society 75:127 F 23 '52 30w

Spring'd Republican p10D Ap 20 '52 110w

MACIVER, R. M.—Continued

"The little book is bigger than you might think, for it grapples effectively with the crucial problem of how to achieve security with freedom. Matters of public responsibility and private aims, the 'higher law' and patriotism, institutionalism versus anarchy, the nature of truth, conflicting theories of education, the pros and cons of civil disobedience and related matters are handled without gloves. No resolutions are drawn up but there is a good deal of material that ought to help formulate an intelligent creed for a democratic society." J. P. Jones

+ Survey 88:230 My '52 500w

"Although most of the contributors tend to emphasize the side of private conscience in the conflicts between personal and public standards, their conclusions are in every case temperate and qualified by an awareness of the complexities of the problems and the futility of expecting any 'simple and soul-satisfying answers.' The book should be of great help to any reader concerned with the dilemmas implicit in the theory and practice of democracy."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:142 Je '52 220w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON. Democracy and the economic challenge. 86p $2.50 Knopf

338.9 Industry and state. U.S.—Economic policy 51-13213

"Five lectures delivered on the William W. Cook Foundation at the University of Michigan, December 1950." (Subtitle) Contents: Public and private economic power; The rise of private economic power; The portent of Karl Marx; Democracy and the planned economy; The meaning for America. Index.

"This reviewer cannot remember ever having seen so much wisdom and understanding of the present-day world compressed into so small a space—and, what is more, compressed without harmful elision and without making the reader uncomfortably aware of being fed a highly concentrated diet." J. P. Warburg

+ Ann Am Acad 282:126 Jl '52 500w

Booklist 48:290 My 15 '52

Current Hist 23:64 Jl '52 90w

"Maciver has restated the libertarian thesis. These lectures deserve attention because they are a wise and sophisticated elaboration of the thesis. . . Unfortunately, foundation lectures are better suited to diagnosis than to prescription. As so often happens, the speaker in his final appearance ('The Meaning for America') falls back upon moral exhortation." Donald Dewey

+ J Pol Econ 60:357 Ag '52 480w

"There is not much of value toward problem solving here but it's a good credo for Americans who think a little beyond the level of a Legionnaire."

Kirkus 20:148 F 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by R. A. Lester

New Repub 126:17 My 12 '52 400w

"Engaging and important little book by Columbia University's dean of political philosophers." J. K. Galbraith

+ N Y Times p6 Je 29 '52 1000w

"The author is one of the ablest of the older sociologists in the country and his writing is forceful, concrete and sensible." I. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p24 My 4 '52 160w

"The social wisdom of this little book, with its clear distinctions between the welfare state and capitalism on the one hand, and communism and democracy on the other, deserves to be widely read as an enlightening tract for the times in this year of political controversy and decision. . . Compactness of statement, clarity of style, and non-technical treatment of theme conspire to make this little book a distinctive contribution to social education." H. E. Jensen

+ Social Forces 31:173 D '52 550w

MACKEN, WALTER. The bogman. 316p $3.50 Macmillan

52-9517

Story of Cahal Kinsella, who went to live with his grandfather in a small Irish community. When it was too late he realized he was in love with Máire Brodel, altho he had married a much older woman.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 189:78 Je '52 330w

Booklist 48:273; 321 My 1 '52; Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:210 Je '52 30w

"Mr. Macken's eye for simple country things and his ear for the fresh word are as keen as ever. But he has plot trouble again; half way through his book he seems to fear that he is doing nothing but presenting vignettes and sketches, so he switches to events which permit a melodramatic close. In The Bogman he contradicts his own premises roundly."

Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:313 Jl '52 270w

Reviewed by Frank O'Connor

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 18 '52 360w

Reviewed by Ruth Chapin

Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 26 '52 130w

"There is less of warmth and humanity in his people of the bogs than there was in the life of the fishing grounds—less immediate appeal in Cahal than in Mico of the earlier book. But again, a born story teller has shared his seeing and feeling in words that sing to his readers."

+ Kirkus 20:196 Mr 1 '52 200w

"In many ways this is a grim and painful story but it has the ring of truth in it. There is laughter and music, but it is the realism that stays with one. . . Highly recommended." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 77:894 My 15 '52 120w

"Mr. Macken tells this story of a man who refuses to be cheated out of his most cherished dream with lyric intensity, and in developing the bitter conflict between Cahal and the people of the village he displays rare dramatic skill and a deep understanding of the human heart. . . 'The Bogman' proves that he merits a place in the very first rank of modern Irish story tellers." Richard Harriety

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 My 18 '52 450w

"By steadying his romantic attitude toward action with a realistic attitude toward feeling, Macken here makes the best of fiction's two possible worlds. This combination results in a story which both entertains the reader and helps him toward an understanding of himself." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p4 My 18 '52 380w

"Mr. Macken has a loose, rather over-romantic style, but there is a hard core to his story, and he brings it to an honest and even a courageous end."

New Yorker 28:137 My 10 '52 70w

"It is the essence of romance. . . Eire has long needed a romantic writer who can combine realism and reality, now that those staples of Irish literature, the beautiful colleen and the fairy-tale, have lost their appeal. It has found him in Mr. Macken." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R 35:14 My 17 '52 600w

"Mr. Macken's new novel has, as they say, everything, or at least everything that could properly be expected from a novel of Irish rural life at the present time. The story, comic and touching by turn, always keeps a surprise or two up its sleeve; the dialogue—decked out in discreet phonetic spelling—is free and flowing and so spontaneously Irish as to seem almost stage-Irish; the anecdotes glide as smoothly as summer streams; the farming scenes are vividly done; the emotional passages often carry a warm pathos, and altogether Mr. Macken has acquitted himself bravely and well in the vein of quasi-poetic Irish realism that stems from Synge." R. D. Charques

+ Spec 188:654 My 16 '52 250w

Springf'd Republican p10D Je 22 '52 120w

"There is a certain uneasiness in the way that the villagers' shift of feeling about Cahal is handled, but The Bogman is an interesting novel, and at times a moving one."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p350 My 23 '52 200w

MCKENNEY, RUTH (MRS RICHARD BRANSTEN). All about Eileen; il. by H. Lawrence Hoffman. 283p $3.50 Harcourt

817

52-6445

Selections from four previously printed books about the author's sister and various other members of her family, with about 60 pages of new material.

Booklist 48:359 J1 1 '52

Bookmark 11:232 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:256 Ag '52 10w

Kirkus 20:313 My 15 '52 160w

"This single volume holds in essence one of the most unforced humorous sagas of our time." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p9 Ag 3 '52 320w

"During the past fifteen or twenty years an incalculable number of people have written genial little memoirs about their relatives, but unlike most of the devotees of this form of belles lettres Ruth McKenney is very good at it. She has incorporated her sister into the American Legend (pretty girl division), and it is fine to have a new book containing the best Eileen stories. There couldn't have been a more fitting memorial to Eileen." Jane Cobb

+ N Y Times p12 My 18 '52 390w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 J1 27 '52 150w

Springf'd Republican p8D Je 29 '52 40w

Wis Lib Bul 48:213 S '52

MCKEON, RICHARD PETER. Freedom and history; the semantics of philosophical controversies and ideological conflicts. 95p $2.50 Noonday press

191 Semantics

52-9518

"This is a study of the meanings which important words carry over from the systems of philosophers into ordinary speech." School & Society

"This is semantics at its best and philosophical analysis at its best." J. A. Mourant

+ Ann Am Acad 283:216 S '52 440w

"Though its length is inversely proportioned to its intrication, Freedom and History contributes more to the theory of history than any work since Collingwood's Idea of History." Arthur Child

+ Ethics 62:304 J1 '52 180w

School & Society 75:400 Je 21 '52 20w

MCKEOWN, MRS MARTHA (FERGUSON). Alaska silver; another Mont Hawthorne story. 274p $4 Macmillan

979.8 [917.98] Hawthorne, Mont. Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska 51-13802

"This is volume three in a series featuring [the author's] Uncle Mont [Hawthorne], and it tells of his adventures while erecting and operating salmon canneries. The 'silver' in the title refers not to metal in the earth but to the glittering scales of fish in the fjords and inlets off Alaska." N Y Times

Booklist 48:77; 99 N 1 '51; N 15 '51

Kirkus 19:473 Ag 15 '51 130w

"'Alaska Silver' is the very readable kind of history that comes told in the first person, with a definite point of view, accuracy, plenty of general significance, and a wealth of fresh and exciting detail." R. G. Lillard

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ja 20 '52 650w

"One of the best things about this book is that its setting comprises the labyrinth of wooded islands that form southeastern Alaska. The Aleutians and the areas around Fairbanks and Nome have been done to a fare-thee-well, but the realm of forests and salt water between Prince Rupert and Juneau has been largely neglected by writers. Mrs. McKeown and her Uncle Mont finally do it justice in a lively story of the salmon and the men who put them in cans." R. L. Neuberger

+ N Y Times p46 N 25 '51 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 13 '52 240w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p4D Ja 27 '52 100w

MCKIE, DOUGLAS. Antoine Lavoisier; scientist, economist, social reformer. (Life of science lib) 440p $6 Schuman

B or 92 Lavoisier, Antoine Laurent 52-13428

Biography of one of the victims of the French Revolution's Reign of Terror, a scientist and social reformer whose connection with the Ferme Général (tax collecting body) was his undoing. The author is reader in the history of science at the University of London. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:104 N 15 '52

"This is a sober, readable, accurate account of a very great scientist. Personal aspects of his life are meagre and passed over superficially. For scientific libraries, serious students of science, persons curious about the lives of great men will find this an adult but not a colorful account of Antoine Lavoisier."

+ — Kirkus 20:397 J1 1 '52 150w

"This volume provides a thoroughly readable yet detailed account of the life, work and tragic death of the founder of modern chemistry. It deals primarily with Lavoisier's achievements in chemistry, and his applications of science to industry and manufacture. However, considerable attention is given to Lavoisier, the economist and social reformer, from which we obtain an excellent account of social life in France during those troubled times. Recommended." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:1301 Ag '52 120w

"Mr. McKie goes into all the phases of Lavoisier's kaleidoscopic life in considerable detail. What is more he places Lavoisier against the social background of his time in the way that good biographers now adopt. If no new facts have been revealed about Lavoisier as a man of wealth, as a scientist and as a friend, it is because there are none. But we do get an appraisal of a great man's thinking and work. There are other biographies than Mr. McKie's in English but it is safe to say that his is likely to be the one that historians will turn to most frequently when the occasion arises, particularly when it comes to a discussion of Lavoisier's scientific work." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p22 N 9 '52 950w

"Dr. McKie has made of the life of Lavoisier a book at once accurate and eminently readable alike for the chemist, the historian and the general public."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p788 D 5 '52 600w

MACKIEWICZ, JOSEPH. Katyn Wood murders; with a foreword by Arthur Bliss Lane. 252p il $3 British bk. centre

940.54 World war, 1939-1945—Atrocities

51-38993

A former member of the Polish underground, who went to Katyn while the Polish Red Cross was investigating the discovery of the mass graves, describes his experiences and his beliefs about the crime.

+ Ann Am Acad 283:220 S '52 460w

"The book is as fascinating as a detective story and deserves the widest possible audience as a final, conclusive exposure of soviet responsibility for an atrocious butchery. This responsibility was hushed up far too long because of the supposed necessity of appeasing Stalin during the war years." W. H. Chamberlin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ap 13 '52 360w

MACKIEWICZ, JOSEPH—Continued
 San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 13 '52
 140w

"Joseph Mackiewicz's book [is] written in a lucid, vivid style, without emotional overtones, sometimes as dramatic as a spy story."
 H. B. Kranz

+ Sat R 35:36 My 17 '52 650w

"His account contains some useful information, though little of it is new; but it is written with such obvious prejudice and lack of method that much of its value is lost. At the end one is left unconvinced that Russian responsibility can be finally proved, though it is incontrovertible that the Soviet authorities 'lost' 15,000 officers and men. Even if the 5,000 men found at Katyn were killed by the Germans, what happened to the others?"

Times [London] Lit Sup p658 O 19 '51
 120w

MACKINNON, ALLAN. Murder, repeat murder. 189p $2.50 Doubleday

52-5851

Detective story.

"A step up from his earlier work."

+ Kirkus 20:99 F 1 '52 100w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Ap 20 '52 180w

"Wit and charm, good detailed police work, lively depiction of Greater London and the fringes of the British film industry all add up to one of the best of leisurely Scotland Yard novels; but the motive for the crimes is so peculiar and the murderer so inadequately (or even inaccurately) characterized that the denouement comes as an incredible thud."
 Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p33 Ap 20 '52 120w

"This one is of the pleasing British school, neatly plotted and told with easy humor."
 L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ap 20 '52 70w

"Cops and civilians real people; treatment pleasant, but script is overpopulated and effect too panoramic." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:47 My 24 '52 20w

MACKINTOSH, ELIZABETH (GORDON DAVIOT, JOSEPHINE TEY, pseud.). Daughter of time, by Josephine Tey. 204p $2.50 Macmillan

Richard III, king of England—Fiction

52-7599

Detective story, in which an English police inspector, laid up in the hospital, spends his time studying the case of Richard III, in an effort to decide whether he had murdered the Little Princes, or not.

Booklist 48:215 Mr 1 '52

Bookmark 11:159 Ap '52

Reviewed by E. S. Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p15 Ap 3 '52 430w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:188 Je '52 50w

+ Kirkus 19:688 D 1 '51 110w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor

Library J 77:144 Ja 15 '52 90w

"This is the sort of especially satisfying book we have been led to expect from Miss Tey . . . and it gains its delight principally in the warmth and discernment of her observation of people and things. It is a rather special gift and if a more enchanting book comes my way this year I shall be surprised." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 F 24 '52 300w

"[The author] not only reconstructs the probable historical truth, she re-creates the intense dramatic excitement of the scholarly research necessary to unveil it. . . The relative lack of contemporary action may put a few readers off this book; but most will, I trust, like this reviewer, clasp it to their hearts as one of the permanent classics in the detective field." Anthony Boucher

+ N Y Times p31 F 24 '52 450w

"On the whole Miss Tey has written an original and absorbing book. A genealogical table is provided to help the reader with the enormously complicated family relationships involved, but a certain amount of concentration is still required."

+ New Yorker 28:112 F 23 '52 160w

Reviewed by L. G. Offord

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 2 '52
 70w

"For upper I.Q.s." Sergeant Cuff

+ Sat R 35:45 Mr 22 '52 40w

Springf'd Republican p21A Mr 23 '52
 60w

"Miss Tey, as might be expected, accomplishes her task, whether of whitewashing or creative reconstruction, with agreeable zest and the genuine entertainer's wish to please."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p545 Ag 31 '51 280w

MACKINTOSH, ELIZABETH (GORDON DAVIOT, JOSEPHINE TEY, pseud.). The privateer. 279p $3.50 Macmillan

Morgan, Sir Henry—Fiction

52-12235

A novel based on the life of Sir Henry Morgan, the famous privateer of the Caribbean.

Booklist 49:13 S 1 '52

Bookmark 12:82 Ja '53 30w

Reviewed by R. L. Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 31 '52
 280w

"Gordon Daviot obviously wanted to redeem, once and for all, the reputation of her hero, and this she has done. That she has made ideal rental library material out of what might have been something more is disappointing."

+ Kirkus 20:353 Je 15 '52 220w

"Recommended as good reading and as tempting the reader to read the history of the time." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 77:1191 Jl '52 40w

"Her four short paragraphs at the end, entitled 'Author's Note,' are worth the reading of all embryo and many practising historical novelists."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Ag 24 '52 250w

"Spanking good yarn of Privateer Morgan and his progress from bondsman to knighthood." James Kelly

+ N Y Times p17 Ag 24 '52 500w

Reviewed by W. H. Baker

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 26 '52
 800w

"An action-packed adventure story in which [the author] combines her interest in historical material with the sharp novelistic skill she demonstrated with her detective stories." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:31 S 6 '52 200w

"The Privateer is plain sailing from start to finish, and it was a pleasure to be swept with such conviction into piracy and conquest in the Caribbean before the idea of Dominion Status." Tangey Lean

+ Spec 188:186 F 8 '52 70w

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 24 '52
 150w

"There is rather too much of the old Kingsley-Froude propaganda in what is nevertheless an absorbing story."

Times [London] Lit Sup p137 F 22 '52
 50w

MCKNIGHT, JOHN P. The papacy, a new appraisal. 437p $5 Rinehart

262.13 Papacy

52-5567

A treatise on the papacy by an American Protestant liberal who as a newspaper man in Rome had a personal acquaintance with the present pope. In his foreword he states: "It is my chief purpose to study the impact and influence of the Roman Church and her papacy, and especially of the present Pope, on our times. Thus I propose to examine their political, rather than their religious, aspects and effects, their temporal manifestations rather than the faith qua faith." Index.

Booklist 48:371 J1 15 '52

"This book is both a sign of the widespread interest in the Holy See outside Catholic ranks and a timely reminder of the vast ignorance on that subject and on Catholic teaching and practice that still exists among millions of people in this country. As a specimen of the effects of prejudice and misinformation on the mind of an unmalicious critic it would be hard to beat, and we must hope that no finer example ever comes along. The author differs from Blanshard in the absence of malice and in the candid statement of his own views on religion and politics." F. D. Cohalan

+ Cath World 175:394 Ag '52 450w

Reviewed by Chad Walsh

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 J1 6 '52 350w

"To the non-Roman Catholic one of the most serious defects in this book is the author's acceptance of certain premises which are untenable to the Protestant. . . On the whole, however, Mr. McKnight has written a book which discusses the Papacy from a fresh and unbiased viewpoint. While this in itself does not make a book authoritative, it has produced in this instance one which throws additional light on a vast and complicated subject." J. G. Harrison

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 O 6 '52 650w

Reviewed by Joseph Fletcher

Churchman 166:17 O 15 '52 180w

"The Papacy exemplifies much of the writing about Catholicism by non-Catholics that is inaccurately dismissed by too many Catholics as the fruit of anti-Catholicism. . . But these writers are not bigots; they hate no one. They are uninformed, misinformed, misguided discussers of matters they know little or nothing about. And they lack enough knowledge of, and respect for, the requirements of scholarship to do a workmanlike job. Their weakness is not bigotry; it is pretension to scholarship." J. M. O'Neill

+ Commonweal 56:416 Ag 1 '52 500w

"His book reveals the extent of his reading, the catholicity of his interests, but he is not a scholar, and those who can claim that title will be quick to point out the deficiencies and inaccuracies of his presentation—and yet this is a good book that needed to be written and should be widely read."

+ Kirkus 20:347 Je 15 '52 200w

"Recommended for college and public libraries which aim at balanced coverage of religious topics." F. B. Hirsch

+ Library J 77:1010 Je 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by Philip Burnham

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 J1 13 '52 1000w

"Readers will agree or disagree with various elements of this analysis depending on their respective presuppositions; but all careful readers will cavil at a good deal in the book." J. A. Pike

+ N Y Times p7 Je 22 '52 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ag 17 '52 260w

MACLAURIN, JOHN, pseud. United nations and power politics. 468p $5 Harper

341.13 United nations (organization). International relations 51-6388

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"This is by all odds the most vital and pungent book yet to appear about the United Nations. It gets in behind the facade of formal debate and constitutional procedure to expose the political motivation of national governments as they have argued and decided the manifold issues which have come before the international organization. In the process, MacLaurin (a pen-name) provides a remarkably detailed and factual account of the evolution of United Nations' operations from its inception to the end of 1950 on social and economic, as well as political, questions." P. E. Jacob

+ Ann Am Acad 279:182 Ja '52 800w

Reviewed by Albert Vilon

Christian Century 69:673 Je 4 '52 550w

Current Hist 22:35 Ja '52 140w

Foreign Affairs 30:494 Ap '52 30w

"This is by far the best book on the U.N. which this reviewer has read, and his reading has been fairly extensive in this field. It is a vivid and searching analysis of the United Nations, its program, its progress, its problems, and its potentialities." L. S. Kenworthy

+ Social Educ 16:47 Ja '52 320w

"This is a book designed to be read easily and with understanding by the layman. Experts in the field of international relations are not, of course, unaware of the problem which the book outlines. Even so, it is a book which even the experts might well read to advantage."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:72 Mr '52 230w

MACLEISH, ARCHIBALD. Collected poems, 1917-1952. 407p $4 Houghton

811

52-6083

"This volume, covering the work of thirty-five years, shows the direct, wiry and forceful nature of MacLeish's talent and will be indispensable to the full understanding of his life. He has an Elizabethan sort of exuberance which has been exercised on nonliterary fields as well as on poetry and prose." N Y Times

Booklist 49:138 D 15 '52

Bookmark 12:54 D '52 20w

"The reader of his thirty-five years' work is at many points bewildered by a profusion of poetic riches, by technical expertness, and by ability to cast enchantment over commonplace experiences. . . Too often in his lyrics—and Mr. MacLeish's real forte is the lyric—he gives the impression of impatience to get the poem completed so that he may go on to other reappings of his 'teeming brain.' . . There are two notable deficiencies in the man as poet: despite his facility with lines that sing, he shows singularly little feeling and very few traces of recognition that poetry is itself an activity of the spiritual man in a supernatural universe." J. G. Brunini

+ Cath World 176:318 Ja '53 240w

Kirkus 20:674 O 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald

Library J 77:2175 D 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by Kimon Friar

New Repub 127:19 D 15 '52 800w

"'Conquistador' is much the best of MacLeish's long poems, which tend to be discursive and to fall away toward the close, a fault from which the lyrics are not always free. Sometimes a poem is overwhelmed by his pleasure in the music of it, sometimes by a blurring wistfulness. The wistfulness is natural to a man who is obsessed by the sense of time in perpetual motion and so by the irrecoverability of experience. Where he is able to subdue his feeling to the requirements of the piece in hand, even when that piece deals with the passage of time and the transmutations of experience, the questions cease and the poem abides." Babette Deutsch

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 N 23 '52 750w

"Archibald MacLeish's 'Collected Poems' is a major achievement in American letters. The author shows better in this full, massive appearance, where each work may be assigned to the place one gives it, than in single volumes. There is something basically lithe, wiry, direct and clear-seeing about his talent. We feel him as distinctly American." Richard Eberhart

+ N Y Times p5 N 23 '52 1250w

"The 'Collected Poems' of Archibald MacLeish is a major work, even if it does not include his most exciting radio play, 'The Fall of the City.' It is a major work despite the appearance of poems that have a biographical literary interest and monologues of no great moment." I. L. Salomon

+ Sat R 35:18 D 27 '52 750w

MACLEISH, ARCHIBALD. Freedom is the right to choose; an inquiry into the battle for the American future. 186p $2.50 Beacon press

973.9 U.S.—Civilization 51-14419

A collection of essays, dealing with public affairs. The earliest date is 1943. Contents: Thirteen candles: one for every state; The unimagined America; Notes on the image of man in these mornings; The definition of victory; The definition of peace; Indian summer; The conquest of America; The revulsion of decency; The sense of American purpose; The power of choice; The belief in man; The act of faith; To make men free. Index.

Am Pol Sci R 46:275 Mr '52 70w

"In this collection of essays Archibald MacLeish offers an eloquent statement of the liberal analysis of the crisis of our time—a highly useful statement for helping us understand the strength and weakness of that position." Austin Ranney

+ Ann Am Acad 280:186 Mr '52 400w

Booklist 48:142 D 15 '51

Bookmark 11:103 F '52 20w

Reviewed by R. R. Brunn
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ap 9 '52 700w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 62:225 Ap '52 150w

Reviewed by R. V. Holt
Hibbert J 50:302 Ap '52 220w

"This may provide a lift for those in the morasses of political despair, but for most readers it will seem vague, imageless and tautological."

+ Kirkus 19:510 S 1 '51 150w

Reviewed by Max Beloff
Manchester Guardian p4 O 22 '52 110w

Reviewed by David Spitz
New Repub 126:17 Ja 21 '52 360w

"[The essays] are more than beautifully written, they are filled with the ardor of a firm conviction supporting a high ideal. They are genuinely eloquent." G. W. Johnson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 16 '51 360w

Reviewed by Irving Babow
San Francisco Chronicle p26 F 3 '52 150w

MCLELLAND, ISABEL COUPER. Hi! teacher; il. by Mary Stevens. 212p $2.50 Holt

52-9041

Story of a young woman's first year of teaching, in a one-room school in a small community in the Pacific Northwest. For older girls.

Booklist 49:36 S 15 '52

"Girls will like this story because of its human qualities, its suspense, and because of the simple love story that is unfolding as the book ends." A. B. McG.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 N 16 '52 120w

"A warming story for any girl starting on a career of her own."

+ Kirkus 20:414 J1 15 '52 150w

"A thoroughly good story for girls of 13-16." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 77:1524 S 15 '52 70w

"Depth is added by good character study of several children and by use of a tragedy in one home which Alison and her father resolve. The wind of the Pacific blows through, and there is a slight mystery, all giving life to a well thought out pattern." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p34 N 16 '52 170w

"This book has all the direction and follow-through of a diary. But two things redeem it: the fact that the people are variegated, and a certain reassuring quality which can benefit timid older girls. As to background, the author is good, the illustrator competent." B. F.

+ Sat R 36:45 Ja 10 '53 160w

MACLIESH, ARCHIBALD FLEMING. Eye of the kite. 243p $3 Random house

52-5151

An assorted group of persons, an American big-business man, a noted socialite, an actor, a scientist, a pilot and his wife, and the co-pilot, after a round of the bars of New York set off in a private plane for the West coast. The only survivor of the crash in the western mountains that follows, tells the story of what went before in the personal lives of each of the victims.

"Although the device of isolating for study a group of social caricatures has a well-worn post-Huxlian precedent, the author has created a memorable gallery, and the narration of the plane trip vibrates with tension and suspense. In fact the diatribe against Koenig-ism and the rage that such gods are tolerated and worshipped are subordinate in effect to the skilled narration and character invention. A compelling indictment."

Kirkus 20:43 Ja 15 '52 230w

"'The Eye of the Kite' is taut with excitement from first page to last, it fuses its diverse elements—character, pilot, and moral significance—into an achievement both impressive and utterly contemporary." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Mr 16 '52 750w

Reviewed by John Brooks
N Y Times p15 Je 22 '52 280w

"Mr. MacLiesh does very well at depicting the tension and rage of this atmosphere, and his account of the race from one bar to the next is properly feverish and disconnected. He knows about the people he is dealing with, but he is a little more heavyhearted about them than he need be, and for this reason indulges too often in strenuously labored passages of lament and contempt."

New Yorker 28:123 Mr 8 '52 140w

"'The Eye of the Kite' is overwritten. It is on the lush side. It contains some excellent scenes and some really startling ones. It is not a good novel, but the story of a flight which is woven through it and forms a sort of separate unit of its own is splendid." Oliver La Farge

+ Sat R 35:24 Ap 12 '52 350w

MACLINN, WALTER ARNOLD. Rutgers food saver. 127p $2.95 Rutgers univ. press

641.4 Food 52-4271

A book of value in the average home, gives data on how to store foods, how long they will keep, how to detect spoilage, how to handle highly perishable foods, etc. Index.

Booklist 49:119 D 1 '52

Reviewed by Mary Meade
Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 2 '52 40w

"An excellent handling of information which should be a must in domestic science courses and well worth its price in private practice in the savings, and safety effected."

+ Kirkus 20:445 J1 15 '52 240w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis
Library J 77:2073 D 1 '52 20w

MACMAHON, BRYAN. Children of the rainbow. 512p $3.95 Dutton

52-5297

A picture of life in a tiny Irish village in the 1920's. The succession of episodes, gay, tragic, romantic, are told in the words of young Ches Macnamara who senses the conflict between the town's past and its future.

"This is a book, as one Cloonie says of their lives, 'thronged with small beauties.' I have two reservations about it. The episodes are so disconnected that it is perhaps stretching a point to call the book a novel. The Irishness, a quality I'm very partial to, is so thickly laid on that I sometimes felt the people were concerned with nothing so much as being picturesque Irish."

+ Atlantic 189:83 My '52 160w

Booklist 48:229 Mr 15 '52

Bookmark 11:159 Ap '52 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 175:151 My '52 470w

Reviewed by J. M. Flynn
Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 Mr 16 '52 320w

Kirkus 19:642 N 1 '51 200w

"An enchanting story, with a sound, underlying philosophy. Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:49 Ja 1 '52 110w

"Mr. MacMahon is a man of rare talent with one of Ireland's richest and purest voices and it is regrettable that he has allowed flaws in story telling to mar what might otherwise have been a perfect gem of a book." Richard Harrity
+ N Y Herald Tribune BK R p5 Mr 23 '52 1100w

"Although 'Children of the Rainbow' is less a novel than a series of short stories strung together, to read it is a worthwhile experience. The dialogue is a delight. . . Mr. MacMahon is good enough to be judged by the highest standards. If he will stop exploiting his Ireland and let it speak for itself, he may do great things." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p4 Mr 2 '52 650w

"Mr. MacMahon's book is so obtrusively and insistently Irish that it is hard to see what other qualities it has, if any. The narrator, Ches Macnamara, and his friends use a language that sometimes sounds like speech, but more often sounds like blustering heroics."

New Yorker 28:118 Mr 15 '52 100w

"[The author] has caught the sense of wonder, the beginning-of-adventure feeling that belongs to all youth everywhere and (apparently) especially to the youth of a quarter of a century ago in Ireland, when it seemed that youth and strength and simplicity were all proof together that the possessors thereof were 'children of the rainbow, dwellin' always in the mornin' of the world.'" J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 17 '52 900w

"It is three years since Kerryman MacMahon charmed his way into the top rank of Irish storytellers with his first volume of tales, 'The Lion Tamer.' In his first novel he has not let us down. Though the prose of 'Children of the Rainbow' is less limpid and the mood less innocent, these annals of a simple, faith-borne people search the recesses of the heart." A. F. Wolf

+ Sat R 35:15 Mr 8 '52 600w

Reviewed by B. F. King
Springf'd Republican p10D Mr 30 '52 300w

Time 59:106 Mr 10 '52 550w

"Mr. MacMahon writes of courting and salmon-fishing, of a wedding, a wake and a fair, and he often shows a fine feeling for the pleasures of physical action: but his characters trail too many clouds of glorious language around with them, and Children of the Rainbow is a collection of lively scenes rather than a coherent novel."

Times [London] Lit Sup p350 My 23 '52 140w

MCMEEKIN, MRS ISABEL (MCLENNAN).
Ban-Joe and Grey Eagle; il. by Corinne Boyd Dillon. 229p $2.50 Watts, F.

Horses—Legends and stories 51-8553

"About a century ago, in Kentucky, there was a real race horse named Grey Eagle, whose fortunes, good and bad, and whose great race with Wagner, are part of the living lore of horse lovers down there. Mrs. McMeekin, whose husband is in charge of racing at Churchill Downs, weaves into this true story that of a boy of eleven who comes to Louisville an orphan seeking a job, and at last finds one in the livery stable where Grey Eagle is kept." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 48:162 Ja 1 '52

Bookmark 11:134 Mr '52

"The author, a Kentuckian herself, gives a grand, colorful picture of her state back in the year 1839, and the illustrator has captured the spirit of her story and characters to perfection." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 O 28 '51 170w

"The book has real regional flavor, well-depicted children and grownups and a story full of interest. Mrs. Dillon has made fine pictures." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:29 F '52 90w

+ Kirkus 19:438 Ag 15 '51 120w

"Useful as well-rounded picture of horse racing and Kentucky in 1839." N. S. Zipf

+ Library J 77:214 F 1 '52 70w

"Here is a horse story offering bits of race-track background on the level of young readers, with appealing characters and a fine atmosphere. It has not, for this reader, quite the thrill of her 'Kentucky Derby Winner,' but it is far above most horse stories for this age in actual horse background, and is very good reading." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p16 D 9 '51 200w

MACMILLAN, ROBERT HUGH. Introduction to the theory of control in mechanical engineering. 195p $6 Cambridge

621.8 Control equipment 51-8030

"From the thermostat that controls the heat in our homes to the automatic pilot that takes over an airliner in order to forestall fatigue on the part of the human pilot, our modern lives are much affected by automatic control. This work by a member of the faculty of the Engineering Department of the University of Cambridge deals with the fundamentals of the problems that must be solved by engineers who design automatic controlling systems. It is devoted mainly to mathematical theory; but the elements of servomechanisms, relays, etc. are discussed also." Library J

"From the standpoint of American readers, the book is valuable because it illustrates the British approach to control problems." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 76:1231 Ag '51 140w

N Y New Tech Bks 36:77 S '51

MCNEER, MAY YONGE (MRS LYND KENDALL WARD). Up a crooked river; il. by Lynd Ward. 222p $2.50 Viking

52-13713

"When the four Renfroe children started up the river in Florida in The Palmetto Queen they were bound for their father's new plantation and under the care of Aunt Mattie. Aunt Mattie was a very conventional lady and it was 1870. . . On board with them, beside the Captain and the crew, were an Italian lady opera singer and two gentlemen who proved to be rather weak reeds to lean on when trouble came, that is, when The Palmetto Queen got stuck in the mud after all the water ran out of a lake." Sat R

+ Horn Bk 28:411 D '52 90w

Kirkus 20:506 Ag 15 '52 80w

"Beautifully illustrated by Lynd Ward, well written, with good print, this book is a delight." A. B. McCreary

+ Library J 77:2077 D 1 '52 70w

"A book as light-hearted and also wildly adventurous as this seldom comes our way." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p7 N 16 '52 160w

"This is a dramatic and dangerous adventure, and it is a hilarious one. The characters might be standard types, but they are quite human. Many of the scenes are worth reading aloud as well as re-reading just for sheer fun." G. C. C.

+ N Y Times pt2, p35 N 16 '52 120w

"The contrast between the manners and costumes of the 1870 ladies in the scene when the thugs try to board the boat is very funny indeed. It is a gay, funny, rather exciting story with excellent illustrations by Lynd Ward."

+ Sat R 35:56 N 15 '52 160w

MACNEICE, LOUIS, tr. See Goethe, J. W. von. Faust

MACPHERSON, MARGARET LOUISE (MRS W. T. ALBERT). New Zealand beckons; il. by A. S. Paterson. 248p $2.50 Dodd

52-7339

Two American children, Janie and Jed, fly to New Zealand with their father. Their experiences with the Maori, and in learning about the new country, are here related for ages 10 to 14.

"This author, for years a New Zealand newspaper woman, offers much unusual travel information with great charm. There are many clever, humorous sketches by A. S. Paterson." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 J1 13 '52 60w

"Janie and Jed are bright, lively children, but it is hard to believe that they are really as interested in New Zealand government, education, agriculture and public health measures as their conversation is supposed to indicate. . . A. S. Paterson's comic illustrations add entertainment, but on the whole the book reads a good deal like an old-fashioned travelogue—instructive rather than entertaining." E. L. Buell

+ — N Y Times p22 Mr 9 '52 130w

MACRAE, DAVID. Americans at home. 606p $4.50 Dutton

973 [1917.3] U.S.—Description and travel. U.S.—Social life and customs. National characteristics, American 52-5290

This is the first American edition of a work published in Great Britain in 1871. Dr Macrae was a Scotch clergyman who made an extensive tour of the North American continent in the late 1860s. This book on his travels devotes a great deal of space to the condition of the post-war South and the Negro question. American manners and customs and American methods of travel and scenery are also given due, if less, attention.

Am Hist R 57:1047 J1 '52 140w

Booklist 48:267 Ap 15 '52

Bookmark 11:239 J1 '52 70w

"Witty, entertaining informative reading. The author had a keen eye for detail and sensed the forces at work that were to make America what it is today." R. L. Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 2 '52 420w

"A piece of authentic Americana." John Cournos

+ Commonweal 55:574 Mr 14 '52 460w

"Heartily recommended for public libraries large and small." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 77:436 Mr 1 '52 90w

"A keen reporter with a pleasant sense of humor, his observations still make interesting reading. But his most valuable contribution is his account of the South, then in the throes of reconstruction." Keith Hutchison

+ Nation 174:389 Ap 19 '52 600w

"Intelligent, sympathetic, outgoing, with no American involvements and no ax to grind. Mr. Macrae was able to give us (for instance) an amazingly fair picture of Reconstruction and of the recollected war. Even now we Americans both Northern and Southern, have not sufficiently rearranged our prejudices to be able to evaluate our Negro problem. Mr. Macrae did in 1866 a job of sociological reporting which Dr. Myrdal could respect." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p7 Mr 23 '52 290w

"The Americans at Home," based as it is on a relatively brief visit, often is lacking in depth and discrimination. But Macrae's honesty, shrewdness, breadth of interest, sensitivity to detail and skill as a writer give his work a degree of charm and authenticity rarely found in travel accounts. The value of the book would have been enhanced by an introductory sketch of the author and an index." B. I. Wiley

+ — N Y Times p18 F 24 '52 550w

"An acute power of observation, a refreshing openmindedness, an attitude of tolerance, and a sharp sense of humor make this a wholly estimable book."

+ New Yorker 28:75 Ag 9 '52 200w

"By and large his book is a far better piece of work than nine out of ten British observers have ever written about the United States. Writers like Dennis Brogan and Robert Waithman—and perhaps one or two more, including Rebecca West—are the only visitors from Great Britain who have come anywhere near estimating this country as sensibly, or half as amusingly. This is well worth bringing back into print, as a piece of thoroughly entertaining and valuable Americana." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 25 '52 600w

Springf'd Republican p22A Mr 2 '52 450w

MCVEY, FRANK LE ROND, and HUGHES, RAYMOND MOLLYNEAUX. Problems of college and university administration. 326p $3.50 Iowa state college press

378.1 Colleges and universities—Administration 52-8365

Covers all the assorted subjects which face the president of a university. Partial contents: The president and the trustees; Problems of administration; Campus, buildings and plans; The president and the faculty; The status of students and their relation to the college; The president and the alumni; College chapel, the library, and other matters. Index.

"The study will interest many educators." A. P. Lowe

+ J Home Econ 44:813 D '52 250w

"It is informal, practical, personal, and down-to-campus-parallel analyses and comments that occasionally take on the flavor of a good-natured debate." Harlan Hatcher

+ Sat R 35:16 J1 26 '52 280w

School & Society 75:222 Ap 5 '52 20w

MADARIAGA, SALVADOR DE. Bolívar. 711p il $10 Pellegrini & Cudahy

B or 92 Bolívar, Simón [52-3675]

"With this study of Bolívar, Salvador de Madariaga completes the New World trilogy which he began with his biographies of Colón and Cortés. . . Bolívar appears as a Creole Napoleon with a touch of Don Quixote." (New Statesman & Nation) "In his previous volumes on the rise and fall of the Spanish American Empire, Don Salvador de Madariaga, a Spaniard, argued—and with considerable justification—that the Spanish rule in the New World was not as black as it was painted by Latin American and British commentators, all of whom had their own patriotic, ideological and economic reasons for building up the leyenda negra. In the present book the author has set out to debunk the most celebrated of all the Liberators. The Spanish version of this massive and lavishly documented work, published in Mexico a year or so ago, has caused great offence in Latin America." (Spec) Index.

Booklist 49:47 O 1 '52

Reviewed by J. F. Rippey

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 S 14 '52 450w

"A scholarly and brilliant attempt to penetrate the regular net of defensive works" which surround the glory of the Liberator. Señor Madariaga has combined keen historical scholarship and lucid writing in presenting his interpretation of Bolívar." J. N. Goodsell

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 20 '52 550w

Reviewed by E. A. Peers

Manchester Guardian p4 S 16 '52 450w

"This is an over-lengthy but fascinating study of Bolívar, which employs every conjectural device to establish its conclusions. . . Señor de Madariaga loves historical puzzles of this kind. He has ransacked the most remote public and private archives from Popayán to Puerto Cabello. . . There is so much conjecture in the 'may haves' and 'must haves' of Señor de Madariaga's argument that the case is still not proven. Not sufficient emphasis is given to the monarchical susceptibilities of the European countries whose sympathy Bolívar was anxious to secure. What does become clear beyond all doubt from this study is that the Liberator was never at any time a convincing Liberal." Asa Briggs

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:76 J1 19 '52 600w

"Madariaga's account is restrained. Although he has no lack of admiration for his hero's deeds, he has a realism often lacking in the books about that perplexing figure. . . There is still shelf room for a great book on Bolívar. But Mr. Madariaga's contribution is a grateful one." Hubert Herring

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 21 '52 1150w

"'Bolívar' is a brilliant achievement, charming in style, penetrating in its interpretations of men and motives. Though the myths are destroyed, the real man emerges still, one of the most dramatic and fascinating figures in the history of the Western Hemisphere." C. G. Bowers

+ N Y Times p4 S 14 '52 750w

"A biography of Simón Bolívar that, in spite of some highly controversial views the author expresses about him, must rank as a major work."

+ New Yorker 28:154 O 11 '52 180w

"Bolívar is a brilliant tour de force, backed by an impressive display of erudition. It is full of good things; but it is a malicious essay rather than an objective biography. In spite of the long list of authorities, it is no more a piece of sound historical research than was Lytton Strachey's Queen Victoria. The hero—always a renegade to Sr Madariaga—is dissected with a scalpel of Toledo steel, and without mercy. The author has travelled extensively in South America, but he has not lived there for any length of time, and it seems that he had decided on his thesis before completing his investigations." George Pendle

+ Spec 189:28 J1 4 '52 800w

"The author has the courage of his convictions, and argues his reading of character and events with such a wealth of telling detail and such skill in the marshalling of evidence as will make it impossible henceforth, however much his book may be attacked, to ignore it. In particular, there can be no praise too high for his dexterity in weaving into one gripping narrative the complicated, interlocking uprisings of a whole continent."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p515 Ag 8 '52 750w

MADDOW, BEN. Forty-four Gravel street. 254p $3.50 Little

52-5506

"Returning home from a trip, Andersen finds his wife gone, their apartment sublet, and the money in their joint account withdrawn. His only clue is the address 44 Gravel Street which he finds on the back of an envelope. By the time he discovers what has happened to his wife, he has been drawn into the life of a teaming boardinghouse where a suicide occurs; he's fallen under the spell of the boy, Jamie; met a revivalist preacher; and fallen in love with Elizabeth." Library J

Kirkus 20:92 F 1 '52 190w

"Recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 77:719 Ap 15 '52 110w

Reviewed by Ruthven Todd
Nation 175:17 J1 5 '52 90w

"'Forty-four Gravel Street' is a hard novel to assess; occasionally it is overwritten and the images strain at the leash; the characters seem swung this way and that by the pendulum of Andersen's distracted mind. Mr. Maddow's previous writing has been of movies-scripts, and he was not uninfluenced, we may suppose, while he was working on stories by Carson McCullers and William Faulkner. One thing, however, can be guessed with conviction—that he did not write his own novel with one eye on Hollywood." James Hilton

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p27 My 11 '52 650w

"Mr. Maddow, a Hollywood script writer, tells in a depressing way about depressing people. He wallows in sordidness for the sake of shock. His book is full of sensation—touch, taste, smell—and almost every one is unpleasant." R. L.

N Y Times p25 My 4 '52 410w

"Maddow has produced a novel which all but the squeamish will find one of the most fascinating and vital of many seasons." L. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 25 '52 470w

MAGARSHACK, DAVID. Chekhov, the dramatist. 301p il $4.50 Auvergne pubs. 1081 Jerome av, N.Y. 52

B or 92 Chekhov, Anton Pavlovich

[52-1416]

A biography of Chekhov, and a critical analysis of his works, by a Russian-born English critic and historian.

"This is vital, controversial, exciting, and frequently beguiling. . . Highly recommended for theatre, drama, Slavonic, and general literature collections in all medium-sized university and larger public libraries." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:900 My 15 '52 40w

Reviewed by Gerard Fay

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 7 '52 130w

"Mr Magarshack does his best. . . All the relevant material is here, and there are some excellent photographs. Yet the mass of details never quite falls into a pattern, and the lack of force in Mr Magarshack's narrative style seems to emphasise the scattered nature of the story." David Daiches

+ Manchester Guardian p8 N 28 '52 360w

Reviewed by Eric Bentley

New Repub 127:23 J1 7 '52 350w

Reviewed by G. W. Stonier

New Statesman & Nation 43:352 Mr 22 '52 600w

"There is no denying that Mr. Magarshack's book is a valuable aid to anyone reading or seeing a Chekhov play." Henry Hewes

+ Sat R 35:32 My 24 '52 140w

"Recently, rustling through a naïve and gloomy three-act anecdote, lifted from The Seagull and entitled October Grotto, I felt again the need of a book which would explain to young dramatists, once and for all, why Chekhov is inimitable. Mr. Magarshack has not really written the book I had in mind, but his finger in the dyke is better than none." Kenneth Tynan

Spec 188:408 Mr 28 '52 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p202 Mr 21 '52 650w

"His book has many virtues, and should earn him no little gratitude. Thorough in scope and orderly in arrangement, it brings together a fair amount of additional information disclosed in recently published reminiscences as well as in the letters, and makes fuller use than earlier biographies in English of material that has long been available. . . The work is very loosely documented, however, and there is little or no indication of the authority for some of Mr. Magarshack's surprising statements."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p785 D 5 '52 2500w

MAGAZINE OF FANTASY AND SCIENCE FICTION. Best from Fantasy and science fiction; ed. by Anthony Boucher [pseud] and J. Francis McComas. 213p $2.75 Little

Short stories—Collections 52-5510

Contents: Huge beast, by Cleve Cartmill; John the revelator, by Oliver La Farge; Gavagan's bar, by L. Sprague de Camp and Fletcher Pratt; The friendly demon, by Daniel Defoe; Old man Henderson, by Kris

MAGAZINE OF FANTASY—Continued

Neville; The threepenny-piece, by James Stephens; No-sided professor, by Martin Gardner; The listening child, by Idris Seabright; Dress of white silk, by Richard Matheson; The mathematical voodoo, by H. Nearing, jr; The hub, by Philip MacDonald; Built up logically, by Howard Schoenfeld; The rat that could speak, by Charles Dickens; Narapola, by Alan Nelson; Postpaid to paradise, by Robert Arthur; In the days of our fathers, by Winona McClintic; Barney, by Will Stanton; The collector, by H. F. Heard; Fearsome fable, by Bruce Elliott.

Booklist 48:361 J1 1 '52

Kirkus 20:47 Ja 15 '52 110w

"The anthology, like the magazine its stories are drawn from, proves that some of the best imaginative literature in the field of fantasy is being produced either by new writers or by authors whose names are almost completely unknown in the field itself." Don Fabun

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p19 Mr 23 '52 180w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

N Y Times p19 J1 13 '52 100w

"This volume contains 19 stories, none of which has appeared in book form before and all of which are distinguished by a literary quality that is higher than is usually expected in this field." Don Fabun

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 30 '52 130w

Wis Lib Bul 48:93 Mr '52

MAGER, NATHAN H., and MAGER, S. K., eds. American household encyclopedia; what to do, how to do it. 627p il $2.95 Pocket bks, 18 W 48th St, N.Y. 19

640.3 Home economics 51-14946

"Simple, concise summary of hints for house-keeping and homemaking arranged in 12 sections: good housekeeping, home decorating, lawn and garden, painting, home repair, mending, shopping, food selection and buying, entertainment, medical guide, family business and legal guide, and household almanac. Numerous charts and illustrations; bibliography of government documents. Double-columned page, wider than high." Booklist

Booklist 48:167 Ja 15 '52

"With more than 1,000 charts and illustrations and answers to 10,000 questions, any member of the family can while away interesting hours and pick up a lot of valuable information." William Yates

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 F 10 '52 220w

"In a few spots, out-dated information is presented, but most of the facts are valid and practical. A bargain for housewives and small libraries." R. R. Hawkins

+ Library J 77:537 Mr 15 '52 70w

MAGNIN, EDGAR FOGEL. How to live a richer and fuller life. 186p $2.95 Prentice-Hall

150.15 Psychology, Pastoral 51-6950

"The rabbi of Wilshire Boulevard Temple, Los Angeles, points out techniques for self-discovery, stressing the importance of faith as a positive force in living." Bookmark

Bookmark 11:32 N '51 20w

"Superficial."

Kirkus 19:564 S 15 '51 130w

Reviewed by Lucy Freeman

N Y Times p16 N 25 '51 160w

"Its title describes it exactly. Advice of this kind is bound to be better—and is listened to more willingly—when it comes from a man who has spent many years showing that everything he says in his book has applied to his own full, rich, and busy life." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 D 24 '51 950w

MAHLER, HELEN A. Empress of Byzantium [tr. by the author with the assistance of Leona Nevler]. 376p $4 Coward-McCann

Eudocia, Aelia, Augusta, consort of Theodosius II, emperor of the East—Fiction

52-8027

Historical novel of the Eastern Empire in the fifth century. The chief characters are the emperor, Theodosius II, his sister and co-ruler Pulcheria, his friend Paulinus, the Lord Chamberlain, and Athenais, the Greek girl who becomes the Empress Eudocia.

"The story has its full quota of excitement, daring, and bedroom adventures, and should delight even the most hard to please followers of historical romance." R. L. Blakesley

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 O 26 '52 140w

"An honest attempt to re-evaluate history through Freudian insights, this is serious in its intentions although the sensationalism which results may attract a certain kind of popular audience."

+ Kirkus 20:472 Ag 1 '52 180w

"In depicting her characters and their background, Helen Mahler has done an excellent piece of work both historically and in characterization." E. L. Acken

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p24 N 23 '52 380w

"Miss Mahler has made the character of Theodosius a convincingly distasteful study that would have delighted Freud. With scenes De Mille would envy and others the Johnston office would blue-pencil, lending library readers will avidly follow the 'Empress of Byzantium' down the road to Rome." Andrea Parke

N Y Times p23 D 14 '52 200w

"Miss Mahler's use of this material is to be lamented. This is too bad, because it was not easy to write so large a book with such a wealth of background detail, and it is distressing to see it add up to nothing." Edmund Fuller

— Sat R 35:30 N 1 '52 400w

"A Byzantine mishmash is served with neither taste nor savor in Helen A. Mahler's 'Empress of Byzantium'." L. S. Munn

— Springf'd Republican p7C N 23 '52 90w

MAHNER-MONS, HANS. Sword of Satan; tr. by Richard Hanser. 308p $3.50 McKay

52-12738

A novel about the French revolution, the hero being Charlot, hangman of Paris.

Kirkus 20:471 Ag 1 '52 150w

"Check for offense to some readers but recommended in spite of this." K. A. Shorey

+ Library J 77:1505 S 15 '52 80w

"Mr. Mons has not left out a single cliché—there is even the old soothsayer who while telling the fortune of Mme. Du Barry shudders when opening the last deck of cards. There are arrests, escapes by night, entrancing girls (whose beauty is only matched by the speed with which they surrender to the hero's melancholy charms) and there is torture. Here the author seems to have overreached himself." Richard Plant

— N Y Times p37 O 5 '52 320w

"Enough blood is spilled on the pages of 'The Sword of Satan' to make Mickey Spillane pale with envy, and I'm afraid it's to the same purpose as if Mr. Spillane had done it. Certainly M. Mons has nothing very edifying to say about the French Revolution, the Terror, or the various historical characters who parade through his pages to their sanguinary ends." E. J. F.

— Sat R 35:38 O 18 '52 170w

MAIER, NORMAN RAYMOND FREDERICK. Principles of human relations; applications to management. 474p il $6 Wiley

658.3 Industrial management 52-7008

"This book is written for persons who are interested in human relations problems, and as such it concerns itself with overcoming communication barriers, preventing misunderstandings, and developing the constructive side of man's nature. The examples and applications are pointed toward industry, but the principles apply to all situations where leaders must deal with groups or individuals." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"Though noting the need of winning higher management to practice the behavior it approves for first-line supervision, Professor Maier hardly shows how this goal can be achieved and his cases at these managerial levels depict only problems from an office and a restaurant. He also appears to over-simplify the process of democratizing industry. . . These criticisms cannot obscure the fruit of Maier's years of professional contact with industry." Melville Dalton

Am Soc R 17:796 D '52 550w

"As a handbook covering the rationale and use of the Group Decision method of training and, to a lesser extent, role playing, interviewing, and non-directive counseling, Principles of Human Relations makes a very worthwhile contribution to the literature." R. N. McMurry

+ Ann Am Acad 284:194 N '52 550w

"Recommended for general purchase and particularly for business collections." Phyllis Osteen

+ Library J 77:1407 S 1 '52 140w

MAJOR, HARLAN. Fishing behind the eight ball; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies; photographs by [the author]. 254p $5 Stackpole co.

799.1 Fishing 52-12270

"A collection of fish stories, some of them tall, from fisherman Major's travels over a good part of the world. . . Harlan Major will be remembered by many a G. I. as the sponsor of a World War II project to furnish free tackle to service men away from home." San Francisco Chronicle

"Well written, amusing, and authoritative, it is a book any angler will enjoy." Bob Becker
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p15 N 9 '52 60w

Reviewed by George Strickler
Chicago Sunday Tribune p43 D 7 '52 40w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 77:1904 N 1 '52 40w

Reviewed by Jack Pegues
San Francisco Chronicle p19 S 28 '52 50w

MALAMUD, BERNARD. The natural. 237p $3 Harcourt 52-9853

"The story follows Roy Hobbs and his record-shattering baseball career, and the bizarre company: Pop, the canny manager of the Knights; Otto Zipp, the monomaniacal nidget; the Judge, owner of the Knights; and Max Mercy, the coolly suspicious sportswriter." Publisher's note

Reviewed by Robert Cromie
Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 S 14 '52 270w

"A strange and arresting story which men, even those who never get further than the newspaper, should enjoy."
+ Kirkus 20:420 J1 '52 170w

"A sardonic view of players and fans. For mature readers." R. W. Henderson
Library J 77:1408 S 1 '52 20w

"Sooner or later, I suppose, some one of our generation had to attempt to write a serious novel about baseball. . . I think, therefore, that it is unfortunate that 'The Natural,' which is a serious novel about baseball, should have been written by a man who seems to be completely a captive of the present fashionable cult of the obscure. Bernard Malamud's novel is a troubled mixture of fantasy and realism in which the fantasy is fantastic enough, but the realism is not very real." J. J. Maloney

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 24 '52 1050w

"It's an unusually fine novel although I don't know how the professionals are going to take it. For Bernard Malamud's interests go far beyond baseball. What he has done is to contrive a sustained and elaborate allegory in which the 'natural' player—who operates with ease and the greatest skill, without having been taught—is equated with the natural man who, left alone by, say, politicians and advertising agencies, might achieve his real fulfillment. . . A brilliant and unusual book." Harry Sylvester

+ N Y Times p5 Ag 24 '52 400w

"A book about a baseball player, related in a thin and ingenuous voice that seems to indicate that the writer would like to have us search beneath the surface of his story for the meanings he has hidden there."

New Yorker 28:117 S 6 '52 100w

— San Francisco Chronicle p13 O 19 '52 260w

"Bernard Malamud has taken some potentially exciting material and gone all mystical and cosmic on it with somewhat unhappy results. . . Despite some sharp observation, nice sardonic touches, and an ability to write individually biting scenes he doesn't quite bring it off." E. J. Fitzgerald

+ Sat R 35:32 S 6 '52 180w

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 24 '52 260w

Time 60:122 S 8 '52 460w

MALAPARTE, CURZIO. The skin; tr. from the Italian by David Moore. 344p $3.50 Houghton 858 52-8275

"Further highly colored observations by the author of Kaputt. Here he relates some of his experiences while serving as Italian liaison officer with the 5th Army." Library J

"Malaparte's emotional tone is consistently inflated. And all in all, it might be said that he has a genius for creating disbelief. But while one can seldom accept his reporting as literal truth, it is often highly arresting in a nightmarish way and it makes one original and worth-while contribution. . . The Skin is not as interesting a book as Kaputt, but it has the same element of nightmarish truth and some of the same shock effect." C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 190:108 N '52 430w

Booklist 49:68 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:526 Ag 15 '52 220w

"One can't deny the factual content of the book, and if the recording of obscenities is of constructive value, then perhaps this book is an important one. Libraries should inspect carefully before purchasing." W. K. Harrison
Library J 77:1500 S 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by Sylvia Sprigge
Manchester Guardian p4 N 11 '52 300w

Nation 175:363 O 18 '52 270w

"The Skin is on one level one of the pleasantest and most complimentary pictures of the American Army yet to come out of Europe, pleasanter by far than anything, except in recruiting posters, that has come out of America; yet, in another sense, it is profoundly if understandingly critical." J. H. Raleigh
+ New Repub 127:27 N 17 '52 900w

Reviewed by J. D. Scott
— New Statesman & Nation 44:489 O 25 '52 260w

"His last book, 'Kaputt,' described his experiences earlier in the war with Hitler's armies. The two books are similar in their tone of perverse and willful horror, cynicism and despair. It is self-humiliation of the most unrelieved kind. . . Furthermore, in this book (as in 'Kaputt') we are regaled with story after story of the most complex and perverse horror, and we are asked to believe them as facts. . . The book is extravagantly overwritten, like all that he does, and he cannot observe the simplest sunset without dragging into it allusions to everything from Homer to Jean-Paul Sartre." Vincent Sheean

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 21 '52 1050w

MALAPARTE, CURZIO—Continued

"A fairly traditional kind of adventurer, Curzio Malaparte is like most of the breed a convinced exhibitionist. The result is that the present book, supposedly a piece of reportage on Naples after the Allied landings in 1943, really has Mr. Malaparte as its subject. This is not uninteresting up to a point. In the end, however, he becomes tiresome, for, in the style of the adventurer, he is alternatively fawning and aggressive, and much given to exaggeration." William Barrett

— + N Y Times p5 S 21 '52 450w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Yorker 28:123 N 1 '52 1250w

"Some readers may be disgusted by the sickening irresponsibility of an imagination that can use the real sufferings of the present world for tales that are often funny in their grisly way. But it is Malaparte's very excessiveness that makes him bearable. For he is not a very serious writer despite his pretenses to pity and moral significance." D. H. Webb

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 12 '52 450w

Reviewed by P. M. Pasinetti
Sat R 35:25 N 22 '52 600w
Time 60:120 O 13 '52 500w

MALCOLM-SMITH, GEORGE. Square peg; pictures by Carl Rose. 245p $2.75 Doubleday 52-6368

A gangster leader hires a personnel expert to test the members of his organizations. This satirical light novel describes the results.

Booklist 48:360 J1 1 '52

Kirkus 20:199 Mr 15 '52 160w

"'The Square Peg' is flippant and funny, a light jab at a serious problem. It is somewhat in the vein of Clarence Budington Kelland's studies of wordly innocence in a den of thieves, and Carl Rose's illustrations point up the hilarity." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 S 21 '52 240w

"Here is perfect summer reading, light as spun candy on a circus lot." Meyer Berger

+ N Y Times p16 Je 29 '52 240w

"Mr. Malcolm-Smith's writing is brisk if not, say, brash. He has supplied a good quota of cracks and thought up enough lively situations to keep things moving. . . The whole thing gets a little wearing as far as its situation is concerned, once the nature of the situation has been revealed."

+ — Sat R 35:55 Je 7 '52 140w

MALCOLMSON, MRS ANNE (BURNETT), and MCCORMICK, DELL J. Mister Stormalong; il. by Joshua Tolford. 136p $2.25 Houghton

398.2 Stormalong, Alfred Bulltop. Legends, American 52-7196

A retelling of the legends dear to the heart of sailors, concerning the Paul Bunyan of the seas, Albert Bulltop Stormalong.

Booklist 48:237 Mr 15 '52

"Rich in salty language and sea lore and with a generous provision of vigorous pictures, this is a fine contribution to our treasury of American tall tales." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:108 Ap '52 80w

"Not since Irwin Shapiro gave us the folk character of Stormalong in his How Old Stormalong Captured Mocha Dick, have we had as zestful a recounting of these entertaining adventures."

+ Kirkus 20:30 Ja 15 '52 110w

"This is probably the most complete collection of strange and astounding adventures of Alfred Bulltop Stormalong yet published. Over a period of years Mr. McCormick collected the tales from previously published accounts and from deep-water men. Miss Malcolmson is well qualified to prepare the legends for publication. . . Will be welcomed in school and public libraries. Recommended for sixth grade up." O. R. Way

+ Library J 77:541 Mr 15 '52 90w

"An astounding book. It will thrill all lovers of the sea and increase the stature of a tall-tale character who is as New England as the right sort of clam chowder." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 11 '52 400w

"It's a grand collection, told in the traditional deadpan style of the American whopper." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p26 Mr 2 '52 190w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:261 S '52 120w

MALET, ORIEL, pseud. See Vaughan, A. R. M.

MALKUS, MRS ALIDA SIMS. Little giant of the North; the boy who won a fur empire; il. by Jay Hyde Barnum. 178p $1.50 Winston

Kelsey, Henry—Juvenile literature 52-5895

Only slightly fictionized and based on the hero's journals, this is the story of Henry Kelsey, a bound boy who landed on the shores of Hudson's Bay in 1684, and a few years later became a valuable agent in winning the fur empire for Great Britain.

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ag 3 '52 30w

"Some odd colloquialisms in narrative and descriptive passages make Alida Malkus' style irritating at times, but her mastery of her material is a compensation."

+ — Kirkus 20:261 Ap 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Mitchell

Library J 77:1080 Je 15 '52 80w

"It is a well written, exciting Indian story, but of less historic impact to Americans than some other books." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 My 11 '52 30w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p26 Je 8 '52 50w

Reviewed by Eleanor Breed

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 16 '52 120w

Sat R 35:45 O 11 '52 20w

MALLARME, STEPHANE. Poems; tr. by Roger Fry; with commentaries by Charles Mauron. 312p $2 New directions 841 51-14119

"The Fry-Mauron versions of twenty-nine Mallarmé poems were first published in England in 1936. This new volume, by including thirty-five additional poems in the original French, presents all of Mallarmé's poetry as it appears in the standard French editions, and adds the long poem 'Un Coup de Dés' in its original experimental typographical form." New Yorker

"M. Mauron's introduction is excellent; his remarks on obscurity in general, and Mallarmé's peculiar kinds of obscurity in particular, are very much to the point. His commentaries, however, serve to confuse the average reader, meaning in this case me, or to lead him up the garden of literary scholarship. . . If Mr. Fry has not translated Mallarmé as well as Mr. Watkins has Heine, it must be said, of course, that the task was enormously more difficult." Rolfe Humphries

Nation 174:283 Mr 22 '52 450w

"Fry's struggles with Mallarmé's peculiar syntax and elusive meaning are often successful as straight prose renderings; Mauron's comment alternates between making things more clear and making them more complicated. But this book, as revised by Mauron and Julian Bell, is undoubtedly the best introduction to the great French symbolist available in English."

+ — New Yorker 28:139 Ap 12 '52 130w

"The translator, Charles Mauron tells us, had no object in mind but to give others a share of his own pleasure in Mallarmé. He has succeeded in giving us the least obscure English text of Mallarme this reviewer has seen." L. F.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 13 '52
110w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R 35:34 F 9 '52 140w

MALLEN, FRANK. You've got it coming to you; the guide for families, servicemen, veterans. 242p $3 McKay

355.11 Veterans 52-10961

A lieutenant colonel in the United States Marine Corps reserve has written this guide to the eligibility of service men to the benefits to which they are entitled. No index.

Booklist 48:373 J1 15 '52

"The author has done an exhaustive job of assembling information on rights and the conditions that affect them. . . This mass of material, however, is not organized for ready comprehension. The language in places is difficult, sometimes introducing agglomerations of unexplained initials. There is no index." L. T. Heron

Chicago Sunday Tribune p2 J1 27 '52
130w

Reviewed by R. E. Kingery
Library J 77:1507 S 15 '52 80w

"It is said to be the first time such data has been assembled within the covers of a single volume. The author asserts that thousands of persons are losing out on benefits because of failure to understand what it's all about or lack of knowledge regarding eligibility."

+ Springfield Republican p4C J1 6 '52 90w

MALLESON, LUCY BEATRICE (ANTHONY GILBERT, pseud) Case for Mr. Crook. 237p $2.50 Random house

52-7153

Detective story.

Kirkus 20:478 Ag 1 '52 70w

"Mr. Crook is a pleasure to have around and not least because he uses his shrewd wits and rarely has occasion to use his fists." James Sandoe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p20 O 19 '52
170w

"The plot offers a good background of spivory, plentiful suspense, and one unexpected scene of pure hilarity, when a city-bred killer finds himself frustrated by a sportive bull."

Anthony Boucher
+ N Y Times p51 O 19 '52 30w

"Good adventure and detection in this one, plus the joyful bounce and vitality that make Gilbert a delight to read." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 26 '52
70w

"Good." Sergeant Cuff
+ Sat R 35:47 O 25 '52 20w

MALLET, FRANÇOISE. The illusionist; tr. from the French by Herma Briffault. 250p $3 Farrar, Straus

52-12277

"A short, hushed novel, translated from the French, about a fifteen-year-old girl who falls in love with and is seduced by her father's mistress." New Yorker

Kirkus 20:328 Je 1 '52 160w

"Not for general purchase because of subject matter and frankness of treatment." W. K. Harrison

Library J 77:1192 J1 '52 40w

Reviewed by S. M. Fitzgerald
New Repub 127:19 N 24 '52 950w

"The Illusionist' centers in a relationship that must generally be considered unnatural and for Tamara is frankly perverse. Francoise Mallet writes about it with a directness and simplicity that few, I think, will find offensive and many, moving and enlightening. . . The Illusionist' deals with experience that fortunately is, at least at this extreme, off the beaten track, but the sincerity of the young author and the effectiveness of her narrative give her theme general interest and importance." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 S 7 '52
360w

Reviewed by Nancy Lenkeith
N Y Times p48 D 7 '52 310w

"Mme. Mallet, who is barely out of the teens herself, does a craftsmanlike job, of recounting this modest success story, but for some reason the book fails to hold one's interest. Maybe there is something wrong with the subject."

New Yorker 28:144 S 13 '52 30w

"In spite of her obvious craftsmanship and real talent, Mlle. Mallet has muddled the strong lines of her narrative through some deficiency in perspective that time and experience will, no doubt, soon remedy." D. H. Webb

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 28 '52
270w

"Young Mme. Mallet—she is only twenty—has a straightforward style of exceptional precision and clarity, and she puts her heroine through the tortures of her affair with a sure skill that is remarkable. . . Apart from her skill in writing and story construction Mme. Mallet doesn't have much new to say on her special subject, though she is rather more free with physical details than is customary." E. J. F.

Sat R 35:42 S 20 '52 180w
Time 60:117 O 13 '52 550w

MALONE, DUMAS. Jefferson and his time; 4v; v2 Jefferson and the rights of man. 523p il $6 Little

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas (48-5972)

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"While the author is consistently friendly and partial to Jefferson, he nevertheless maintains the standard of scholarship set in the first volume, and it may be expected that the complete series will rank among the best of all biographies of distinguished Americans. A select critical bibliography, two 'long notes' on special topics, and a useful index enhance the value of the work." Christopher Crittenden

+ Am Hist R 57:690 Ap '52 800w

Reviewed by C. M. Wiltse
Am Pol Sci R 46:253 Mr '52 220w

"This volume is the sequel to Jefferson the Virginian in Dumas Malone's 'Jefferson and His Times,' a work originally projected as a four-volume biography, but one which will be extended to include a fifth. The thoroughness and skill of Dr. Malone probably will make this the most important biography of Thomas Jefferson in our generation." R. L. Hilldrup

+ Ann Am Acad 279:190 Ja '52 420w

"Mr. Malone is equal to his theme at all points, but he is at his best where the progress is roughest and there is most need for his rigorous historical technique and delicate insight into the workings of Jefferson's mind." George Genzmer

+ Nation 174:188 F 23 '52 230w

Reviewed by Adrienne Koch
New Repub 126:19 Ja 28 '52 750w

"Professor Malone's extensive research, evident throughout the volume, is unobtrusive; the sound scholarship and balanced judgments merit the highest praise."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:8 Mr '52 200w

Reviewed by L. H. Butterfield
Yale R n s 41:442 Spring '52 350w

MALVERN, GLADYS. Tamar; decorations by Corinne Malvern. 211p $2.50 Longmans

52-5737

Story of life in Capernaum in the time of Christ. It is woven around Tamar, the daughter of Jairus, who was raised from the dead by Jesus, thus paving the way for the family's conversion to Christ's teachings. For older girls.

Booklist 49:36 S 15 '52

MALVERN, GLADYS—Continued

"Girls will find good reading in the stirring events and in the growing attraction between Tamar and a young Roman who, like her, came to believe in the Messiah." V. H.
+ Horn Bk 28:330 O '52 60w

"A colorful, sensitive novel. . . With handling that plays on modernistic chords of feeling towards religion but which in many respects is harmonious with the period, this rings true as a worthy young people's Quo Vadis or The Robe."
+ Kirkus 20:341 Je 15 '52 200w

"A tender, moving story." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 77:1523 S 15 '52 80w

"Along with an interesting story, 'Tamar' gives a full and detailed picture of life in Capernaum and Jerusalem immediately before and after the Crucifixion. However, the teachings and life of Jesus are treated too matter-of-factly to be completely satisfying." Marjorie Burger
+ — N Y Times p36 S 28 '52 130w

School & Society 76:128 Ag 23 '52 20w

MANDEL, GEORGE. Flee the angry strangers. 480p $3.75 Bobbs

52-5811

"Set in the lower reaches of Greenwich Village, shutting in and out of all-night diners and cafeterias . . . Mr. Mandel's intensive probing of the lives of many Village 'characters'—wayward girls, prostitutes, drug pushers, addicts, and unhappy artists, the disillusioned, the disappointed, the defeated, on the lunatic fringes of a corrupted modern world—produces a new Inferno such as no other contemporary novel has quite envisaged." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

"A one-track story of such unrelieved grimness would have gained in impact, I think, if its 480 pages had been somewhat pared down. As it stands, the book documents very vividly a sector new to the novel—its jazzy lingo, its weird loyalties, its chaotic habits and surrealistic horrors."
Atlantic 190:88 J1 '52 160w

"'Flee the Angry Strangers' is a potent novel written—with but little relief—at a sustained level of horror and obscenity. One emerges from it with a sense of pollution somewhat akin, perhaps, to the feeling Diane had of being somehow 'dirty' after she had injected into her veins the contents of a capsule of heroin." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 My 18 '52 600w

Reviewed by John Brooks

N Y Times p25 Ap 27 '52 350w

"Mr. Mandel may have captured the true accents of dope, bebop and bohemia, but he has unfortunately failed somehow to create characters which engage our belief or concern." L. V.

— San Francisco Chronicle p12 J1 27 '52 250w

"To have any artistic meaning, this nightmare world would have to be set in some revealing relationship to the world outside. It is not. How these people got that way needs to be shown, with at least some recognition of personal responsibility. It is not done. Some scale of values related to right and wrong, or good and evil, is needed. There is none." Edmund Fuller
— Sat R 35:36 J1 19 '52 420w

"Immersed in the jazzy, sometimes obscene argot of the addicts and spiced with lurid episodes, Flee the Angry Strangers packs documentary punch but lacks point. Diane and her friends may need analysis; they need spunk and a spanking more."
— Time 59:118 My 5 '52 300w

MANDELBAUM, DAVID GOODMAN. Soldier groups and Negro soldiers. 142p $2.75 Univ. of Calif. press

301.451 [325.26] Soldiers. Negroes as soldiers 52-10600

"In this two-part book, Mr. Mandelbaum explores the development of Army friendships and their value to the military organization as a whole. He writes of the typical behavior patterns and attitudes shared by men in uniform and of how each group responds to the various stresses of a new life. . . In the second half the author discusses the effects of racial segregation within the Army ranks. He is against it, and makes a good and temperate case why. The author is Professor of Anthropology at the University of California." San Francisco Chronicle

"An extremely enlightening study of some of the fundamental facts of military life." Francis Russell
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ag 21 '52 500w

"An important work in the field of social psychology this should be read by the educated layman for its application to himself and his fellows in daily association. Not for the small library. Recommended." M. S. Byam
+ Library J 77:1010 Je 1 '52 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 10 '52 160w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:309 S '52 200w

MANDL, MATTHEW. Television servicing. 421p il $5.50 Macmillan

621.3883 Television apparatus—Repairing 52-8530

"A compactly written, practical book for men in the trade of installing and servicing television receivers. Its chief intended use is as a textbook in trade-school classes, but it contains enough specific information on everyday servicing to make it useful to men already at work in the industry. Most of the book is taken up with the descriptions of systems and other elements of television receivers and with testing and servicing operations. The author is associated with the Technical Institute of Temple University." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:723 Ap 15 '52 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:46 My '52

MANGUM, CHARLES STAPLES. Legal status of the tenant farmer in the Southeast. 478p $7.50 Univ. of N.C. press

333.5 Land tenure—South 52-9491

A statement of the law relating to landlord and tenant, as it exists in the following states: Alabama; Arkansas; Florida; Georgia; Kentucky; Louisiana; Mississippi; North Carolina; South Carolina; Tennessee; and Virginia. Index.

"This book is an excellent exposition of the intricacies of property rights. Its value to sociology is potentially great particularly to rural sociology." O. D. Duncan
+ Am J Soc 58:319 N '52 800w

"A clear, careful, detailed statement." Harold Lancour
+ Library J 77:890 My 15 '52 120w

"This thorough study of the intricate problems of tenancy with suggestions of needed statutory action will be useful to agricultural economists, sociologists, lawyers, and judges, and to state legislators and legislative-research groups."
+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:299 S '52 200w

MANN, ARTHUR WILLIAM. Bob White: bonus player. 207p $2.50 McKay

52-9483

Story of a high school baseball player who made such a good record that all the major leagues were interested to acquire his services. After graduation he decided to play for the minor leagues. For ages fourteen and older.

Kirkus 20:283 My 1 '52 130w

"The baseball is good, the values are excellent, and the whole, if a bit pat, should delight younger boys. Recommended for most children's rooms." M. D. Read
+ Library J 77:1017 Je 1 '52 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 My 11
'52 50w

"The diamond scenes are tense and exciting—there might well have been more of them."
Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p18 J1 27 '52 70w

MANNEL, ELISE. Leathercraft is fun. 92p il
$2.50 Bruce pub.

745.5 Leather work 52-8930

Illustrated directions for making twenty-five articles of leather—purses, stampbooks, luggage tags, mending kits—possible for the beginner and suitable for gifts.

Booklist 48:334 Je 15 '52

Bookmark 11:232 J1 '52 20w

"The book is well planned and the diagrams and directions clear." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 28:181 Je '52 50w

"Beginners in leathercraft will find all they need to know, in this new little book." + School Arts 52:8a O '52 80w

MANNING, CLARENCE AUGUSTUS. Siberian fiasco. 210p $3.75 Lib. pubs.

940.42 [940.4385] Russia—History—Allied intervention, 1918-1920 52-9526

A Columbia professor reviews the events and policies of the American intervention in Siberia in 1918-1920, with the purpose of counteracting Bolshevik propaganda and distortions concerning it.

"Two years ago Princeton published John Albert White's excellent book, The Siberian Intervention. Unfortunately Professor Manning's little volume is not its equal. The Siberian Fiasco gives every evidence of having been hastily written and hurriedly published, it presents no new material, and its major points are blurred by an awkward and cumbersome style." Pauline Tompkins
— Am Hist R 58:117 O '52 550w

Reviewed by L. M. Sears
Ann Am Acad 283:188 S '52 460w

Foreign Affairs 30:683 J1 '52 30w

Reviewed by H. H. Bernt
Library J 77:589 Ap 1 '52 140w

"Mr. Manning has done a valuable service in helping to set the record straight. But in addition he has painted a picture of ignorance, confusion and conflict in American policy making which deserves study by those who would avoid similar episodes in the future. His book deserves a wide reading both here and abroad—if only to dispose of an international myth, once and for all, at a time when clear thinking is urgently needed." Harry Schwartz
+ N Y Times p13 Je 1 '52 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Ag 17 '52 180w

"Unfortunately, Professor Manning's book is a disappointment. It is not well enough written to be of much interest to the general reader, and as a scholarly work it is far inferior to John Albert White's study, The Siberian Intervention." H. C. Hinton
— + Sat R 35:10 Ag 23 '52 650w

MANNING, LAURENCE. How and why of better gardening. 239p il map $3 Van Nostrand
635 Gardening 51-12769

Discussion of the reasons behind better gardening: soils; climate; the plants themselves; etc. The author is a nationally known nurseryman, whose company, Kelsey nursery service, supplies home and professional growers in the United States and Canada. Indexes.

Booklist 48:167 Ja 15 '52

"Into this substantial, informative background book Lawrence Manning has poured all the plant knowledge which he has gained through many years of successful nursery practice. To its writing he has brought a unique combination of horticultural facts, deep personal interest in the processes of plant growth and behavior, and a flair for originality of thought and expression that is delightful." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p28 My 11 '52 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 7 '51 70w

Reviewed by C. H. Woodward
Sat R 35:20 Ag 2 '52 50w

MANTOUX, ETIENNE. Carthaginian peace; or, The economic consequences of Mr Keynes; with an introd. by R. C. K. Ensor; and a foreword by Paul Mantoux. 210p $3 Scribner 330.9 Keynes, John Maynard Keynes, 1st baron. European war, 1914-1918—Economic aspects 52-3202

"In this study Étienne Mantoux undertakes a systematic examination of J. M. Keynes' Economic Consequences of the Peace. Mr. Mantoux advances facts and figures to show how disastrously that book misinterpreted the effects of the Versailles Treaty and established an erroneous theory of Allied responsibility for Germany's political and financial collapse and subsequent military recovery." (Publisher's note) Index.

Kirkus 20:432 J1 15 '52 170w

Reviewed by George Soule
N Y Times p6 Ag 31 '52 700w

"M. Mantoux, a Frenchman, wrote this book in English in 1941, at the age of twenty-eight; four years later, he was killed in action with the French Army in Bavaria. The political sagacity, the humanity, and the wit he displays here make it clear that his death was a most tragic loss to literature and the free world."
+ New Yorker 28:90 Ag 16 '52 200w

MAO, TSE-TUNG, and others. Mao's China; party reform documents, 1942-44; tr. and introd. by Boyd Compton. 278p $4.50 Univ. of Wash. press

329.951 Communist party of China 51-12273

A translation of the Communist Party Reform Documents, 1942-44, which constitute the official party handbook of the Chinese communists. No index.

Booklist 48:191 F 15 '52

Foreign Affairs 30:683 J1 '52 20w

Reviewed by H. P. Linton
Library J 77:50 Ja 1 '52 130w

Reviewed by J. K. Fairbank
Nation 174:480 My 17 '52 1200w

"From this material emerges a clear picture of what the leaders of Chinese communism wanted their party to be in the days before it assumed power. And there is nothing in the documents to indicate that the picture has changed today." Harry Schwartz
N Y Times p3 F 10 '52 650w

"It makes instructive reading for Westerners, although its phraseology is exasperating, for the Chinese Comrades have taken enthusiastically to Russian circumlocution, obscurantism, double-talk, and the rest of the Marxist pudding. However, important questions are answered about the organization, intentions, and discipline of the Party, and about its closeness to Stalin."

New Yorker 28:98 My 31 '52 130w

"This book is an important source for an understanding of the Chinese Communist Party."

+ Pacific Affairs 25:410 D '52 1350w

"The ideas of Communism cannot be effectively fought until they are understood, and toward that understanding this book will be of help." E. B.

San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 23 '52 120w

"The bulk of this book is made up of accurate and readable translations from the Chinese. Valuable as are these materials, their usefulness is greatly enhanced by Mr. Compton's excellent and comprehensive introduction."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:171 Je '52 220w

MARAINI, FOSCO. Secret Tibet; tr. from the Italian by Eric Mosbacher; foreword by Bernard Berenson; ill. with seventy phot. by the author. 306p $6.50 Viking

951.5 [915.15] Tibet—Description and travel
52-13545

An account of the author's trip to Tibet in 1950, in which he combines anecdotes of travel with more serious comment on the life and culture of the Tibetans.

"Almost anybody can grind out a book about picturesque scenery and quaint barbarians, but the ability to describe an alien world in solidly human terms without drifting into condescension or losing the charm of strangeness is very rare. Secret Tibet ranks high on the list of genuine magic carpets."

+ Atlantic 190:112 N '52 160w

Booklist 49:123 D 1 '52

Bookmark 12:80 Ja '53 20w

Reviewed by Mason Warner
Chicago Sunday Tribune p21 N 16 '52
370w

"One of the year's most absorbing and at the same time most significant travel-adventure books." Gordon Walker

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 6 '52
500w

Kirkus 20:591 S 1 '52 150w

"Highly recommended." W. K. Harrison
+ Library J 77:2181 D 15 '52 60w

"He accompanies his pictures with a vivacious travel diary which is perhaps meant to echo Jacquemont's diary in India. This does not constitute the merit of the book, but it contains some pleasing stories." G. W.

+ Manchester Guardian p4 O 14 '52 160w

"Presumably the original Italian language of the book is of high poetic quality, but it cannot have suffered much, if any, in Eric Mosbacher's translation, which is rich in vocabulary, sensitive, and lively. The author's seventy illustrations, of scenery, habitations, people, religious edifices, works of art, are of the highest technical competence and superbly enrich the text." W. N. Brown

+ Nation 175:609 D 27 '52 600w

"I have described Signor Maraini as an artist; and no disrespect is intended to his ample and lively text when I say that the chief merit and beauty of his book are to be found in the sixty magnificent plates which illustrate it... When he lays aside the pen and takes to the camera, however, he reveals a quality of perception higher than that emerging from his careful and intelligent prose." Honor Tracy

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:642 N 29 '52 350w

"Fosco Maraini has an enviable gift for the use of language and a fine esthetic sense. The translation by Eric Mosbacher is so good that one forgets the book was originally written in Italian. I have never seen more excellent photographs of Tibet... There is so much good in this book that one hesitates to point out any defect. In my opinion, however, there is a fault of organization; the long dissertations on Buddhism and religious subjects interrupt the narrative." R. C. Andrews

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 N 9 '52
400w

"The author of 'Secret Tibet' is not a sociologist; and he seems hardly aware of economic conditions or political influences. He is a romanticist and writes of Tibet from that viewpoint. He must write beautifully in Italian, for some passages in English are close to poetry... But there is much that the author did not seem to learn... These shortcomings do not destroy the literary value of the book nor subtract from the beauty of the magnificent photographs that illustrate the text. But they drastically limit its usefulness." W. O. Douglas

+ N Y Times p3 N 9 '52 500w

New Yorker 28:118 D 20 '52 150w

MARCEL, GABRIEL. Homo viator; introduction to a metaphysic of hope; tr. by Emma Craufurd. 270p $3.50 Regnery

111 Hope. Existentialism, Metaphysics
A52-4482

Essays by a leading exponent of Christian existentialism. Contents: The ego and its relation to others; Sketch of a phenomenology and a metaphysic of hope; The mystery of the family; The creative vow as essence of fatherhood; Obedience and fidelity; Value and immortality; Dangerous situation of ethical values; Being and nothingness; The refusal of salvation and the exaltation of the man of absurdity; Rilke: a witness to the spiritual.

"An important book for college and university libraries; also for public libraries interested in existentialism and Rilke." A. D. Osborn

+ Library J 77:209 F 1 '52 60w

Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ap 11 '52
500w

MARCH, HAROLD. Gide and the Hound of heaven. 421p $5 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Gide, André Paul Guillaume
52-8931

"A study of Gide, self-revealed in his writings, with particular attention to the inconsistencies in his life and writings, and an attempt at an explanation. This study is an extension of Professor March's earlier The Two Worlds of Marcel Proust." Library J

"Professor March's is an extremely searching study which contributes much to a fuller understanding of Gide's complex, elusive personality and to a more precise awareness of the issues at stake in his work... Having made clear my regard for Professor March's study, I must add that it has, to my mind, certain shortcomings of some consequence." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 189:83 Je '52 550w

"Probably the most useful study now available of the author and his works. Essential supplement to the works of Gide." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 77:793 My 1 '52 60w

Reviewed by Ramon Guthrie
N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Jl 6 '52
700w

"This spiritual and critical biography of Gide by a Swarthmore professor represents academic criticism at its very best. It is a book of broad interest, devoid of all pedantry, written with skill and grace, which communicates the results of much knowledge and much reflection to the cultured—and, let us hope, in no way mythical—general public which American scholars should win to the enjoyment of literature." Henri Peyre

+ Sat R 35:27 Je 14 '52 850w

"This biography is both soundly conceived and well written; it is among the best introductions to Gide for the informed general reader."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:237 S '52 200w

MARCH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Campbell, W. E. M.

MARCOSSON, ISAAC FREDERICK. Marse Henry; a biography of Henry Watterson; with a foreword by Arthur Krock. 269p il $4 Dodd

B or 92 Watterson, Henry
51-13630

The first biography of Henry Watterson, editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal for fifty-one years. He was "the last and most picturesque survivor of what his biographer well terms 'the heroic age of editorial writing.' Master of 'fluent, rippling English,' set down in handwriting almost as unintelligible as a Pali manuscript, he could epitomize an issue in phrases which either bit like acid or soared like an eagle. Triumph or disaster, he 'treated those two imposters just the same.' His editorial creed was to 'print nothing of a man I would not say to his face.'" (N Y Times) Index.

"Of course the narrative of such a man's life makes excellent reading, especially when it is handled by as competent a craftsman as Marcossion. One may enjoy the story without necessarily accepting the writer's estimate of the subject. . . . One does wish, however, that the proof-reading had been a little more competent." G. W. Johnson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 D 23 '51 950w

"Marcossion has written an engaging biography of one of the most engaging figures between the ends of the Civil War and World War I." S. T. Williamson

+ N Y Times p30 O 21 '51 600w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:8 Mr '52 160w

MARDEN, CHARLES FREDERICK. Minorities in American society. 493p $4.50 Am. bk.

301.45 Minorities

"This textbook deals with the relationships between minority peoples in the United States and the norm-setting 'native' group with which they interact. The interactional process is conceived as one between subordinate and superordinate groups occupying inferior and superior statuses in the larger, total society by virtue of the differential degrees of power that each commands. The development of the process is through various stages toward assimilation, and the method of treatment is therefore historical." (Ann Am Acad) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"On the whole, this is not a bad or insignificant book, and many instructors will probably use with profit its richly filled pages. On the other hand, its several weaknesses and limitations make it, in the eyes of the reviewer, a distinctly less satisfactory book than certain ones already on the market." H. S. Jacoby

+ — Am Soc R 17:518 Ag '52 750w

"Until a more unified method of social science inquiry has come into being, Minorities in American Society must be judged a useful and lucid text, the democratic direction of which is always supported by close attention to facts and a genuine effort at conceptual comprehensiveness." E. J. Shoben

+ Ann Am Acad 283:207 S '52 550w

School & Society 76:239 O 11 '52 50w

MARIANA, pseud. See Foster, M. C.

MARIN, JOSEPH. Engineering materials, their mechanical properties and applications. 491p il $8.70; to schools $6.50 Prentice-Hall 620.11 Strength of materials 52-9061

"An introduction for engineering students to the fundamental aspects of engineering materials and to testing machines and instruments used in the determination of the properties of specific materials. Special attention is given to such aspects as creep that have assumed new importance in present-day engineering design. The author is Research Professor of Engineering Materials at Pennsylvania State College." Library J

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:905 My 15 '52 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:43 My '52

MARINO, NICK, pseud. One way street. 208p $2.50 Holt 52-6631

Detective story.

"A distasteful dish."

— Kirkus 20:239 Ap 1 '52 70w

Reviewed by James Sandoe

— N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p12 Je 1 '52 40w

Reviewed by Anthony Boucher

— N Y Times p21 Je 15 '52 30w

"It's still boloney, sliced fairly thick. C minus." L. G. Offord

— San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 15 '52 40w

MARITAIN, JACQUES. Man and the state. 219p $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press

320.15 State, The. Democracy, Church and social problems 51-555

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"It is grievous to see even a professional apologist rely upon words like 'natural law' to beg questions that are important controversies between honest and intelligent men. It is grievous to see the presumptuous logic of sacerdotal monism masquerading as value pluralism, to see articulated the provincial prejudice that the spiritual life is confined to religion, to see strategically maintained the sectarian claim that any one church has primacy over several hundred other churches, equally honorable." T. V. Smith

— Am J Soc 57:613 My '52 1100w

Reviewed by R. A. Tsanoff

Ethics 62:144 Ja '52 450w

"The book as a whole is very reassuring and refreshing because it emanates from a distinguished Catholic who endorses the democratic faith, seems fairly well satisfied with the American variety of the separation of church and state, does not clamor for the substitution of parochial for public schools, commits himself wholeheartedly to the principle of religious liberty, and, while admitting that some restrictions may be placed upon the expression of opinions, would trust rather to persuasion than to constraint." R. H. Bainton

+ Pol Sci Q 67:127 Mr '52 1050w

"In general, M. Maritain's new book seems altogether less rewarding than such of its predecessors as 'Scholasticism and Politics' or 'Redeeming the Time.' The excessive abstraction and dogmatism of his method emerge here more clearly than in the earlier essays and convey a discouraging effect of unreality to the reader." C. H. Wilson

Yale R n s 41:289 winter '52 700w

MARKS, RICHARD LEE. March of the hero. 338p $3.50 Appleton 52-12290

"In a South American dictator country, where he works on La Luz, organ of the passive opposition party, American war veteran Leo Nyberg arrives at a turning point in his career when he is faced with the choice of further passivity or violent action. With the assassination of Dictator Caballero, Leo chooses action. Thereupon begins an ironic sequence of events which lead straight to the violent death of the head of Leo's own party." Chicago Sunday Tribune

"The novel has movement and color, beauty and violence. The dilemma of human temptation and the corruption of conscience in our time have seldom been so well done. Moreover, it has a peculiar timeliness; it has come most naturally from the events of our own period in history, and, insofar as it illumines those events and the little men caught in them, it has enduring strength and memorable power." August Derleth

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 21 '52 370w

Kirkus 20:566 S 1 '52 180w

"Recommended for collections which aim to include current fiction of serious intent." R. E. Kingery

Library J 77:1812 O 15 '52 100w

"It is a sign of Mr. Marks' unusual ability as a novelist that his theme never overwhelms his characters, and that it is absorbed by the reader through exciting incident."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p18 S 21 '52 350w

"The author of this compelling first novel has lived in both Peru and Argentina on a level of intimacy with the people seldom attained by norteamericanos. The great truth which he presents with exciting and shaming clarity is one that is overlooked in nine-tenths of what is written, spoken or even thought about Latin America." Milton Bracker

+ N Y Times p30 S 21 '52 460w

MARKS, R. L.—Continued

"On the whole, Mr. Marks's first novel seems more like a strenuous ode to ethics than an effort to write fiction. But Mr. Marks displays, in a few controlled moments, a talented eye and ear." Frederic Morton

— + Sat R 35:19 O 11 '52 600w

MARNAU, ALFRED. Free among the dead. 279p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy

A52-982

"Translated from the German, Der steinerne Gang, 1948. Time is before World War II. There is no point in attempting to describe this plot except to say that it concerns a group of young people who are caught in the growing evil of the times. The book suggests that the only defense against this evil is a return to the spirituality of former days." Library J

"This is a brilliant book, brilliantly written. It belongs in all collections which intend to include top-level current fiction." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 77:210 F 1 '52 100w

"Apart from the jerkiness in structure it is the author's strident, metaphysical lyricism (accentuated no doubt by the difficulties of translation) which does the book the greatest damage. On the credit side, Mr. Marnau is most successful in his handling of the humorously bizarre. . . Random chuckles, however, cannot cure the novel's basic incredibility." Frederic Morton

— + N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 F 10 '52 750w

"The author is a word painter and a deeply religious man. His descriptions of an Austrian landscape, or a castle near Florence prove his lyrical talent. But the more successful he seems with isolated scenes, the more apparent becomes his failure as a novelist. He is never on firm ground." Richard Plant

N Y Times p32 F 17 '52 290w

Reviewed by Anthony West
New Yorker 28:85 Mr 1 '52 750w

"Mr. Marnau's symbolism, religious and poetic, is a little too special, his characters a little too far out of this world, and the philosophy that emerges a little too close to quietism to satisfy this reader. But he writes a graceful prose and has a gift for gentle comedy and a light touch which contrasts rather oddly with the dark setting of his fable."

+ — Sat R 35:19 My 10 '52 180w

MARQUARD, LEOPOLD. Peoples and policies of South Africa. 258p maps $3.50 Oxford

963 South Africa—History. South Africa—Race question 52-12568

"Though this book begins with a thumb-nail sketch of the history of South Africa, it is, in the main, a description and explanation of much that is now going on in that country as seen by a well-informed Afrikaner, who is a Liberal for all that he lives in Stellenbosch, the Mecca of intellectual Nationalism." Spec

"His argument, which flatly contradicts the thesis of apartheid, is well put. It is worth considering whether it applies with the same force farther north." P. J. M.

Manchester Guardian p4 S 9 '52 150w

Reviewed by R. W. Logan
Nation 175:450 N 15 '52 290w

Reviewed by Leo Silberman
New Repub 127:22 N 24 '52 180w

"A great many facts are here, and a great many implications: but the writer seems seldom prepared to draw and drive home his conclusions. This is the more a pity because there are some points at which he shows that he has lost none of his old clear-sightedness and courage."

+ — New Statesman & Nation 44:527 N 1 '52 300w

"I found Mr. Marquard, as have many others, a walking encyclopaedia. His book is like him, slow-paced, scholarly, packed with comprehensible data. If you can afford to buy only one book on South Africa, about which every one is beginning to think and talk, then this is the one to get. It may not be the easiest or the most entertaining to read, but it is an excellent reference book, containing all the indispensable and necessary facts." Rebecca Reyher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p22 N 23 '52 550w

Reviewed by John Barkham
N Y Times p21 O 12 '52 300w

"The concluding chapters should do much to explain some of the Union's difficulties to overseas readers. In his level-headed account of 'Politics, Policies and Parties,' the author admits frankly that the main parties agree on most points, and that, where they differ, they do so in degree rather than in kind, on methods rather than on ends." E. A. Walker

+ Spec 189:370 S 19 '52 900w

"It is a relief in these days, in which almost every discussion of South African affairs turns into a controversial prize-fight, to meet an author who does not write at the top of his voice. Mr. Marquard is an exception to the general rule that neither South Africans nor visitors to the Union can, at the moment, keep calm in debate."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p550 Ag 22 '52 420w

MARRIOTT, ALICE LEE. Indians of the Four Corners; a book about the Anasazi Indians and their modern descendants; drawings by Margaret Lefranc. 229p $2.75 Crowell
970.1 Pueblo Indians 52-8655

A study of the Pueblo Indians, descendants of the Anasazi, who settled long ago where four states meet: Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, and Arizona. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 49:112 N 15 '52

Kirkus 20:508 Ag 15 '52 100w

"For the student of American history Alice Marriott has done a fine job. . . Their daily life, customs, and their contributions to the white men are so vivid and detailed that the reader is constantly aware of the author's familiarity with these peoples."

+ Library J 77:1756 O 15 '52 30w

"Will be read from sixth grade up and will be helpful for reference with almost any age." A. B. Martin

+ Library J 77:2187 D 15 '52 80w

"This makes good reading for any age over fourteen and is an important library reference book. It is also fine background reading for winter travelers to our west." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p30 N 16 '52 50w

MARRIOTT, HENRY JOSEPH LLEWELLYN. Medical milestones; foreword by Sir Alexander Fleming. 293p $3.50 Williams & Wilkins

616 Therapeutics. Medicine—History 52-6430

A discussion of some of the medical developments that have occurred during the last few years. Partial contents: The mold era—early antibiotics; First and still foremost—penicillin; A truce with typhus and typhoid—chloromycetin; Blue babies to pink—and other developments in heart surgery; Goiters slowed down—the anti-thyroid drugs; Hormones and cancer—chemical warfare on malignancy; Hope for the rheumatic—cortisone and ACTH; Once biting, twice shy—insects and DDT; Mal de mer—dramamine. Index.

Booklist 48:180 F 1 '52

"Written especially for the layman, this book is clear and enlightening. It might have been even more thought-provoking if Dr. Marriott had analyzed more than he does the changes in medical ideas following the new discoveries." Ralph Colp

+ N Y Times p24 Ap 13 '52 450w

"'Authoritative and balanced,' certainly, and 'in readable form.' All well educated people will delight in the honesty and forthrightness of this careful author who believes that patients as well as doctors of medicine should know the truth about their ailments and the resources for remedy." Haven Emerson, M.D.

+ Survey 88:240 My '52 290w

MARSH, GWEN. Land of No Strangers; with il. by Jean Garside and music and songs by Victoria de Bray. 80p $2 Oxford

[A53-9812]

"Cast in much the same pattern as the traditional fairy tale, this is the story of David, a Welsh boy who sets out to find a mysterious inheritance from his grandmother. A musician and the grandson of a musician, David sings and fiddles his way through strange adventures in Eastern Europe. . . Along the way he learns the old folksongs of Yugoslavia, Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Russia, the words and music of which are given here." N Y Times

"The twenty-one songs, compiled here from sources not widely available, have value as a collection, but their appeal is more to adults than to children and their hand-drawn piano and voice arrangements not simple enough for general use with children. Designed in England with great care, the volume is distinctive in appearance, with numerous small sketches breaking the text and sixteen pages of brilliant full-color Eastern scenes of home life, work and dancing, with elaborate costumes shown in detail." V. H.

Horn Bk 28:183 Je '52 100w

"Excellent supplementary reading."

+ Kirkus 20:125 F 15 '52 130w

Reviewed by Naomi Lewis

New Statesman & Nation 42:508 N 3 '51 80w

"The whole book, with its sixteen wonderfully well-printed color pictures of peasant life, and many sketches, was made in Great Britain. Measuring 7 by 9½ inches, with board sides, it is an unusual gift for any one interested in handsome bookmaking or in unusual folksongs." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p10 Mr 30 '52 160w

"The story is vividly told, brightly illustrated. Its theme is essentially ageless, like the folk songs which David learns." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p22 Mr 9 '52 120w

MARSH, IRVING T., and EHRE, EDWARD, eds. Best sports stories, 1952; a panorama of the 1951 sports year, and a sports record book, including the review of the sports year, and the 1951 champions of all sports; with thirty of the year's best sports pictures. (V8) 336p $3.50 Dutton

796 Sports (45-35124)

The eighth annual edition of the "best" sports stories. Partial contents: The defensive platoon, by Art Rosenbaum; "Nefarious Ralph Kiner," by Tim Cohane; But Robinson looked, by Bill Roeder; The lip and the face, by Walter Stewart; World series fever, by Harry Paxton and Bill Dickey; Football family, by Bill Rives; Joe Louis was knocked out last night, by J. C. Nichols; Rockinghorse park by Jerry Prior; Fancy diving only looks like fun, by Al Stump; The brave kids, by Bill Ballantine.

Booklist 48:333 Je 15 '52

"Like its forerunners, a pleasant anthology of pieces concerning such commendable pastimes as baseball, football, boxing, tennis, diving, swimming, basketball, and horse racing. . . Our own favorite is a tremendously fine story about Al [Bummy] Davis, onetime prizefighter who was killed when he refused to be intimidated by four young hoodlums."

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Jl 13 '52 120w

Kirkus 20:212 Mr 15 '52 160w

"A splendid summary of the year's sport. Should be in all libraries." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:1207 Jl '52 30w

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Jl 6 '52 130w

MARSHALL, EDISON (HALL HUNTER, pseud). Bengal tiger. 319p $3.50 Doubleday 52-6357

Novel of adventure and intrigue in India about the time of the Sepoy rebellion.

Booklist 48:321 Je 1 '52

"A beautifully written story of loyalty, tension, and heroism. The author's mature grasp of characterization is reminiscent of Edison Marshall's excellent 'Love Stories of India,'" Richard Blakesley

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 18 '52 350w

Kirkus 20:197 Mr 15 '52 150w

"This is a much better than average novel of its kind, and by that very superiority, a little disappointing. It starts out with drama and humor to illustrate the middle-class snobbery of the Anglo-Indians, using well drawn characters, but becomes more and more a plain adventure tale, losing the intensity that characterization, consistently carried out, adds to physical incident." E. L. Acken

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p31 My 11 '52 250w

"A first-rate tale of adventure and romance." Charles Lee

+ N Y Times p21 My 11 '52 190w

Reviewed by J. G. Hitrec

Sat R 35:15 My 17 '52 600w

Spring'd Republican p10D Je 22 '52 140w

MARSHALL, ROBERT K. Julia Gwynn; an American Gothic tale. 228p $3 Duell; Little 51-10424

Second novel by the author of Little Squire Jim (Book Review Digest 1949). The locality is the same, the North Carolina hills near the Virginia border. This is the story of eccentric Julia Gwynn and the strange things that happened at the Gwynn Place both before and after her nephew, Little Squire Jim, was killed.

Reviewed by Fanny Butcher

Chicago Sunday Tribune p7 Ap 13 '52 370w

Kirkus 20:12 Ja 1 '52 160w

"Recommended for libraries having rental collections." H. R. Forbes

Library J 77:528 Mr 15 '52 80w

Reviewed by Sylvia Stallings

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 Jl 13 '52 400w

"Here mystery and expert characterization are blended in an exciting novel of suspense." Charlotte Capers

+ N Y Times p22 My 18 '52 150w

"It is only fair to point out that Mr. Marshall makes no provision in 'Julia Gwynn' for the reader who missed his first novel. He blandly assumes a foreknowledge of Jim Boyden's story, which makes it a little rough on those who do not have that knowledge. But this is a minor flaw in an otherwise brilliant novel." V. P. Hass

+ Sat R 35:24 Ap 12 '52 550w

MARSHALL, MRS ROSAMOND VAN DER ZEE. Jane Hadden. 278p $3 Prentice-Hall 52-215

"A rowdy romp through eighteenth century England and the servant-girl success story of Jane No- Name, who goes to London and becomes the maid (downstairs and upstairs) of drinking, writing Capper Castain, with whom she falls in love, and whose manuscripts she completes." Kirkus

"Vulgar, preposterous, and farcical." Riley Hughes

+ Cath World 175:76 Ap '52 100w

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 F 10 '52 100w

"Not quite the full undress performance of Kitty and Duchess Hotspur, this still brawls and sprawls its way with an abandon which is suspiciously naive."

Kirkus 19:682 D 1 '51 160w

"The author of 'Duchess Hotspur' and similar romps is in the groove again."

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p14 F 17 '52 150w

"As in 'Kitty' and 'Duchess Hotspur,' Miss Marshall does not hesitate to drag in the big-wigs of the era to keep her story moving. The Great Cham himself is there to give Jane a hand-up with the publishers and the critics . . . and Bozzy is on hand as well, only to be turned back on the threshold of his hostess' boudoir. . . Jane describes all this—and much more besides—with a breathless, impromptu gusto that will disarm most readers in advance. At times, the stylistic margin between her own adventures and the penny-dreadfuls she concocts seems slight indeed. But that is a captious criticism, after all." James MacBride

MARSHALL, R. V.—Continued

N Y Times p22 F 3 '52 470w

Sat R 35:44 F 16 '52 150w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p8D Mr 9 '52 80w

MARSHALL, ROY KENNETH. Sun, moon, and planets; with il. by the author. 129p $2.50 Holt

523 Astronomy 52-9046

"While serving as director and lecturer at the Fels Planetarium in Philadelphia and, later, at the Morehead Planetarium in Chapel Hill, I sensed a repetition of questions about astronomical matters. A series of leaflets was prepared for sale at the Fels Planetarium and the chapters of this book are based largely on these leaflets. So Sun, Moon, and Planets should serve fairly well to answer the questions of planetarium visitors and others who unfortunately do not have opportunities to visit these exciting and inspiring institutions." (Pref) No Index.

Booklist 49:84 N 1 '52

Kirkus 20:527 Ag 15 '52 150w

"Descriptions of how astronomers arrive at their conclusions are particularly well done." J. E. Brown

+ Library J 77:1500 S 15 '52 60w

"The result is a kind of sub-primer. Mr. Marshall ornaments it with quotations and anecdotes, and he does this rather well. His language is simple and clear. He supplies excellent diagrams to explain such things as the phases of the moon. He knows what he is talking about, and he makes no obvious mistakes. This sort of book has its value, but its bare-bones simplicity carries a heavy penalty." J. N. Leonard

+ N Y Times p40 N 23 '52 320w

MARTIN, ARCHIBALD EDWARD. Curious crime. 189p $2.50 Doubleday

52-11009

Detective story.

Bookmark 12:57 D '52

Kirkus 20:523 Ag 15 '52 80w

"Curious and not very compelling." James Sandoe

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p26 O 26 '52 110w

"Using a shifting first-person technique (well enough, though hardly threatening Kenneth Fearing's reputation as Master), he starts off beautifully with a murder trial seen through the strange eyes of the half-mad defendant. But this off-trail approach soon gives way to a routine whodunit, the least individual of Martin's books, with a strained and hard-to-believe solution." Anthony Boucher

N Y Times p27 N 2 '52 50w

"The story is told, in rotation, by the five people most deeply involved in the case—a device that succeeds chiefly in making a relatively simple chain of events sound tortuous."

New Yorker 28:156 O 25 '52 50w

"Easy reading but unconvincing." L. G. Offord

+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 N 9 '52 70w

Reviewed by Sergeant Cuff
Sat R 35:43 N 1 '52 20w

MARTIN, ASA EARL. After the White House. 464p il $4 Penns valley publishers, Inc, 121 S Frazier St, State College, Pa.

923.173 Presidents (United States) 52-91

Biographies of the twenty-five presidents of the United States who outlived their terms of office. Each biography covers only the subject's post-White House years. No index.

Booklist 49:156 Ja 1 '53

"Highly entertaining, informative collection of short biographies." R. L. B.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 13 '52 150w

"This book is the fascinating answer to a thousand questions. It enables one to compare the conduct of two dozen celebrities who had much in common but were actually very different. It can be read as history, biography, character study, drama, as glorified gossip, or as a collection of curious facts. Here is a source book for legitimate and baffling quizzes." T. M. Longstreth

+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Je 12 '52 360w

"Dr. Martin, professor emeritus of American history at Penn State, writes not only with authority but with much charm; and the drawings by Florence Starr Taylor not only adorn but frequently illuminate the text."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Mr 16 '52 230w

MARTIN, EDWIN THOMAS. Thomas Jefferson; scientist. 289p il $4 Schuman

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas 52-7559

"Mr. Martin, who teaches English at Emory University, catalogues Jefferson's scientific interests—meteorology, paleontology, ethnology, archaeology, astronomy, chemistry, agriculture, geology, exploration, botany, medicine, invention. In them Jefferson's pure joy of knowing was coupled with a search for everyday applications of knowledge for the betterment of life." N Y Times

Booklist 48:280 My 1 '52

"This well written little book is welcome both to students of Jefferson and to those interested in the history of science. Altho scholars have investigated special aspects of Jefferson's relation to science, this is the first time anyone has brought the material together and placed it properly in the general cultural setting of the time." Merle Curti

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 Ap 20 '52 350w

"Since the author is neither a scientist nor an historian some of his treatment may lose interest for specialists, but for the general reader of American biography his work is of real value and interest." Joseph Fletcher

Churchman 166:17 Ap 1 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:60 Ja 15 '52 230w

Reviewed by J. E. Brown

Library J 76:2111 D 15 '51 110w

Nation 175:57 Jl 19 '52 90w

"Scholarly and delightful book. . . Mr. Martin follows Jefferson in each of his scientific pursuits. His is a book of the most careful research, but it rests lightly on the page in prose whose felicity often approaches Jefferson's." Colman Rosenberger

+ N Y Times p6 Mr 16 '52 750w

"Mr. Martin's book should prove of value to anyone who wishes to know in what areas Jefferson's scientific curiosity led him, how much he actually knew, and what he read. Details are provided concerning his many inventions and his ideas about the usefulness of science in the Baconian sense." I. B. Cohen

+ Sat R 35:17 Jl 5 '52 600w

"This vignette of Thomas Jefferson, a profile of a single but important side of his nature, has long been needed. . . It is a very readable, well-documented account, presenting Jefferson as he was: essentially an amateur, but with encyclopedic knowledge, wide interest, and an analytical and inventive turn of mind."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:118 Je '52 220w

MARTIN, JOHN BARTLOW. Adlai Stevenson. 175p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Stevenson, Adlai Ewing. Campaign literature, 1952 52-9759

A biographical sketch of the presidential candidate which concentrates on his public career, but gives some material on his family background.

Booklist 49:1; 47 S 1 '52; O 1 '52

Bookmark 12:4 O '52 20w

Reviewed by George Tagge

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 S 14 '52 300w

"At the end Mr. Martin seeks to delineate the character of Adlai Stevenson as a man and a public official. This may be considered the most interesting part of the book, for the Governor is still an unknown quantity in many minds. . . It will be a most useful campaign document." R. R. Brunn

+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 17 '52 500w

Kirkus 20:524 Ag 15 '52 240w

Manchester Guardian p4 O 22 '52 70w

"When you finish Mr. Martin's painstaking biography you are apt to feel that, while you now know a lot about Adlai Stevenson you don't know him any better. And that for a true insight into his heart and mind you must continue to read his amazingly self-revealing speeches. The book is well worth the price, however, if only for a fascinating chapter that tells how Stevenson got into politics." Lowell Mellett

New Repub 127:30 S 22 '52 900w

"This is a well-written book. . . Mr. Martin has done a calm and competent job on Gov. Stevenson, combining for the purpose some plain but painstaking reporting with some concise history and biography into which he seems to have put a good deal of honest research." Robert Waltham

+ N Y Herald Tribune BK R p6 S 14 '52 1000w

"Mr. Martin has put together an interesting, inevitably limited book, but it is not so good a book as Noel F. Busch's 'Adlai E. Stevenson of Illinois.' Both failed to do the simplest, most rewarding job of all: they didn't publish the text of Mr. Stevenson's main speeches, articles and veto messages over the last four years. These might have produced a best-seller for their humor alone." James Reston

N Y Times p12 S 14 '52 370w

"Mr. Martin obviously likes his man very much, but he keeps a cool head in sizing him up."

+ New Yorker 28:117 S 27 '52 100w

"Mr. Martin's book, an affair of some 175 pages only, is filled with facts, abounds in judgments. The latter are worth considering, moreover, since Mr. Martin is an experienced, newspaper-backgrounded reporter, a man who has seen a lot of them come and go, and one who is far less likely than most to be impressed by anything like a false front." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 S 18 '52 650w

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

Sat R 35:30 S 20 '52 430w

Springf'd Republican p11C O 19 '52 390w

Times [London] Lit Sup p703 O 31 '52 500w

Wis Lib Bul 48:214 S '52

MARTIN, JOHN BARTLOW. My life in crime. 281p $3 Harper

364.1 Crime and criminals—U.S. 51-11937

Purports to be the biography of a criminal who has committed most of the crimes mentioned in the criminal records. His operational sphere has been Chicago, the Pacific coast, and one adventure in the South. The author, who took down his story, has written many articles on crime and criminals.

Reviewed by Lee Shassere

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 My 4 '52 250w

"A frank, and quite frankly fascinating first person story of a criminal career."

+ Kirkus 20:150 F 15 '52 240w

"John Bartlow Martin describes himself as a police reporter and readers of his 'Butcher's Dozen' (1950) should know that he is one of the ablest and most scrupulous in the country. This speaks for the accuracy of his presentation of this autobiography of the crook he calls 'Gene.' It is an absorbing record and, Martin assures us, an essentially unedited exposition of a criminal life."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 My 18 '52 230w

"Gene's story makes rather gripping—if sometimes repetitious—reading. The most arresting feature of the book is the inventiveness of the criminal mind of this man who successfully operated in so many diversified kinds of upper-drawer roguery." Frank O'Leary

+ N Y Times p29 Ap 27 '52 400w

"It is a fascinating document. . . Whether the author is writing about a man he actually knows—as he says he is—or has just created a composite underworld type, he has done an engrossing and villainously informative job."

+ New Yorker 28:151 Ap 26 '52 200w

"I don't know whether there has ever been published a book quite like 'My Life in Crime.' If there has ever been one, I've never read it. Here is the whole story of a professional American criminal, a man in his middle forties who has spent his entire adult life in crime, told unreservedly and with complete frankness (or almost complete frankness)." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 28 '52 800w

"Now there are crook autobiographies and crook autobiographies. This is a somewhat special item. Its transcriber is John Bartlow Martin, whose 'Butcher's Dozen' of two or three years ago raised him to a high place on the roster of factual crime writers. . . 'My Life in Crime,' is not one of those case-history things, any more than it is merely an exciting story. . . Gene appears never to have worked east of the Indiana line. Wherever he went, he found all the women, all the liquor, all the cars he could use. He also got enough money to keep him going. All went fast. So does his story." J. T. Winterich

Sat R 35:35 Ap 26 '52 460w

Reviewed by U. K. Alpert

Springf'd Republican p7D My 18 '52 160w

MARTIN, JOHN JOSEPH. World book of modern ballet. 191p il $6 World pub.

792.8 Ballet 52-8420

"For those interested in the world of ballet, here is the story of this art from the time of Diaghileff's death in 1929, when an old world ended. The 'Monte Carlo Renaissance', the ballet in London and Paris, are discussed, but the bulk of the book is devoted to ballet in America when Balanchine came to the country, a fertile 'barbarian' field, just as Diaghileff had invaded Paris. The results, the effect of America on Balanchine and Balanchine on America and its artists are detailed. Here we witness the forming of companies, and here is a critical survey of the ballet repertoire. The book shares familiarity with the important people, companies, and compositions in the field." Kirkus

"Pointed, fascinating review of developments in the art of ballet since Diaghileff by the dance critic of The New York Times. Small quarto with distinguished selection of illustrative photographs."

+ Bookmark 12:7 O '52 30w

"Martin writes critically and from a vast fund of knowledge and experience. Lack of an index reduces somewhat the potential usefulness of the volume." Edward Barry

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 31 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:310 My 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by George Freedley

Library J 77:1814 O 15 '52 50w

MARTIN, J. J.—Continued

"His book can be criticized for sins of omission: no index; overcompression of British and French sections; a controversial baleful backward glance at Diaghilev; no German, Scandinavian, Russian sections. It remains, nevertheless, unique in its field, not so much a 'world book of modern ballet' as 'John Martin's World Book of Modern Ballet.'" Leo Lerman

+ — N Y Times p13 Ag 3 '52 300w

"Mr. Martin's assessment of the work of the various directors, choreographers, and dancers who have had a part in this change in emphasis is always kindly—even, on occasion, a shade overcharitable—and he provides excellent summaries of all the outstanding ballets of the era. The layman, for whom this book is obviously intended, may well find the lack of an index exasperating, however."

+ — New Yorker 28:120 S 6 '52 190w

Reviewed by R. H. Hagan

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 3 '52 400w

"What Mr. Martin discusses, he discusses fairly, critically, and with the authority that is behind his years of looking, listening, analyzing, and writing. . . . He writes well, with a wonderful avoidance of many of the joy-words that creep into the critical jargon of so many of his contemporaries. . . . The many illustrations (some in color) are well chosen. But when will the author be represented in a book with more Martin and less pictures—a thoughtful book that will sum up the esthetics and philosophy of the dance that Mr. Martin is so well equipped to offer?" Rosalyn Krokover

+ — Sat R 35:19 Ag 30 '52 600w

MARTIN, PETER. The landmen. 367p $3.75 Little

52-6799

"Concerns nineteen poverty-ridden, persecuted Jewish families in the tiny Czarist Russian village of Golinsk interweaving the stories of Yeersel, the tailor; Maisha, the holy man; Laib, the musician; Nochim, the dairyman; Berel, the water-carrier; Shim, the older brother of Laib; Laib-Shmul, the ceremonial butcher; Tzippe-Sora, the alcohol maker, and Mottel, the outcast who walks in and out of all their lives." (Library J) The time is the late 19th century.

"The humor and the heartaches of the oppressed group are sympathetically depicted and the roots of many Jewish Americans revealed in an unusually humane and sensitive, first volume of a projected trilogy."

+ Bookmark 12:10 O '52 50w

"It isn't often that a struggling reader comes upon a novel so compelling and human, so dramatic and thoughtful, so altogether rich and right as 'The Landmen.' And the fact that this is its author's first novel is likely to increase the reader's feeling of discovery, as well as to intensify both his appreciation of present achievement and his expectation of work to come." Richard Sullivan

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 10 '52 270w

"The book is overlong and repetitive; possibly some of its effectiveness lies in this very repetition. But the theme is not one that will appeal to a wide circle of non-Jewish readers, and despite a possible critical acclaim, we question its saleability."

Kirkus 20:351 Je 15 '52 330w

"Excellent first novel. . . . A distinguished, memorable novel. . . . Recommended for general purchase." F. A. Boyle

+ Library J 77:1190 Jl '52 60w

"'The Landmen' is no orthodox novel, but a rich, exuberant pastoral that needs no plot." Frederic Morton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Ag 10 '52 700w

"There may be critics who will find flaws in this unusual novel, even as learned astronomers find black spots in the shining sun, but this reviewer must confess herself bewitched by 'The Landmen.' . . . It seems incredible that the author, up to now a journeyman in radio and television fields, should have produced a novel with this fresh weave of allegory, romance, bitter humor and folk wit." Anzia Yezierska

+ N Y Times p4 Ag 10 '52 900w

"Mr. Martin has applied a good poetic technique—we remember it best in Edgar Lee Masters—toward binding up his materials. In each section of the book another person speaks. . . . But those brief flashes of vision did not need to be differential in tone; their author's personality was necessarily dominant in a work of lyric and reflective poetry. . . . One other carping note, about the title. The word landsleit, which Mr. Martin has translated, badly I think, as landmen, means something quite different. . . . Mr. Martin's book is, beyond these minor cavils, an appealing re-creation of the life of the Jews in a Russian village eighty years ago. It will have a special and, again, nostalgic claim upon those who have intimate knowledge of these things, of the ringed life of the captive Jew in Europe." Nathan Rothman

+ — Sat R 35:18 Ag 9 '52 500w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p6D Ag 24 '52 230w

MARTINDALE, CYRIL CHARLIE. Queen's daughters; a study of women saints. 253p $3 Sheed

922.22 Saints 51-13726

"In his study of more than three-score canonized saints, and many other 'holy women,' C. C. Martindale stresses their differences—of temperament, time and estate. For although all virtues of a woman are feminine, yet here are examples of girls as passionate as Catherine of Siena, as prudent as Rose of Lima. There are saints of the second century, from Lyons and Carthage, and from the sixteenth; saints from the New World, saints from the Old; saints of today, like St. Frances Cabrini, and uncanonized mystics like Sister Marthe-Marie Chambon, the daughter of poor agricultural laborers near Chambéry." (N Y Times) Index

Cath World 174:479 Mr '52 90w

"Full of good stories, this book would have been better with a more complete index." Anne Fremantle

+ — N Y Times p24 N 18 '51 190w

"This work is detailed, affectionate, amusing and full of human understanding."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p753 N 23 '51 550w

MARTINDALE, DON ALBERT, and MONA-CHESI, ELIO DAVID. Elements of sociology. 724p il $5 Harper

301 Sociology 51-1538

This book is designed as a basic text for courses in introductory sociology. The authors are members of the faculty of the University of Minnesota. Index.

"Certain features of the book seem to be weaknesses. Students will spend a large part of the semester on preliminaries before getting down to substantive sociology. The obverse of the book's emphasis on theory is a serious neglect of empirical materials. Many chapters are largely taken up with a history of theories, especially those on the sociological viewpoint and on specific institutions. Several of these chapters seem to come out nowhere, except negatively. Students may very easily come to the conclusion that sociology is a brand of armchair philosophy and a rehash of ideas derived from other disciplines. Finally, this text will rank among the more difficult for the student to grasp." R. H. Turner

Am J Soc 58:127 Jl '52 400w

Reviewed by C. L. Lastrucci

Am Soc R 17:121 F '52 650w

Reviewed by J. A. Kinneman

Social Educ 15:305 O '51 230w

"In general the book is of the synthetic type, reporting via profuse footnotes on the social theories of a great number of persons. It is not clear whether the footnote references are intended as tools for the student, or documentations for a specific scholarly point of view, which in itself shows no little evidence of inability to take a decisive position between the mechanistic positivism of Chapin and Lundberg on the one hand, and the functional analysis of Parsons and Weber on the other. There is a good treatment of German theorists and philosophers, and it seems probable that a re-writing of the book as an advanced text in the elements of sociology would make it a more useful volume. At such a time perhaps materials on the professional role of the sociologist can be included." M. F. Lewis

+ — Social Forces 30:473 My '52 440w

"The book as a whole is well written. Though the product of two authors the material is very well integrated. . . Those who are looking for a text with a systematic approach to the subject should find this text to their liking. It should be especially valuable to first year graduate students and to those who seek a more systematic approach than can be provided by the usual undergraduate course." M. S. Greth

+ — Social Studies 43:90 F '52 600w

MARVELL, ANDREW. Poems; printed from the unique copy in the British Museum, with some other poems by him; ed. with an introd. by Hugh Macdonald. (Muses' lib) 206p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

821

[52-32067]

"This volume is a reprint of the copy of Marvell's Miscellaneous Poems 1681, with his verses to Lovelace and two other poems added. The text used is that of the copy now in the British Museum which contains an Horatian Ode and the two additional poems on Cromwell which were cancelled in ordinary copies of the Folio. . . Mr. Hugh Macdonald has provided an introduction and full notes." Publisher's note

Reviewed by J. T. Winterich

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p36 O 12 '52 400w

Times [London] Lit Sup p450 J1 11 '52 800w

MARX, HERBERT LEWIS, ed. Gambling in America. (Reference shelf) 222p $1.75 Wilson, H.W.

177 [174.6] Gambling

52-6759

"[This volume in the Reference Book series] lays open the pattern of gambling in the United States and its effect on American life and sets forth some contrasting points of view." School & Society

Booklist 48:266 Ap 15 '52

"A great part of the book is factual and descriptive rather than argumentative. The argument is implicit in the facts." W. E. G.

Christian Century 69:619 My 21 '52 140w

Current Hist 23:64 J1 '52 50w

School & Society 75:208 Mr 29 '52 30w

MASANI, MINOCHEHER RUSTOM. Growing human family; il. by C. G. H. Moorhouse [Eng title: Our growing human family]. 127p $2.50 Oxford

301 Sociology

51-14457

"Here we have the story of developing human relationships from prehistoric days when each person stood alone, through the centuries when people learned to live together in family groups or tribes, gradually organized to live with others, first in cities, then states and nations, and finally developed the larger concepts of a League of Nations and a United Nations." Horn Bk

Booklist 48:106 N 15 '51

"This is a successful cultural history of mankind which can be read with understanding by anyone of twelve or thereabouts, and will be illuminating also to most adults." S. M. A.

+ Horn Bk 27:405 D '51 90w

Kirkus 19:536 S 15 '51 190w

"Effective picture graphs by C. H. G. Moorhouse are an aid to clarity and interest. Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 76:1816 N 1 '51 100w

"Written clearly, concisely and with great sincerity it should appeal to adults as well as teen-agers." C. E. V. N.

+ N Y Times p23 Ja 13 '52 180w

Wis Lib Bul 47:261 N '51

MASEFIELD, JOHN. So long to learn. 181p $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 52-7822

A partial autobiography of Masefield. The author says in part: "Some of my life I have told elsewhere in stories published; the rest of it I am writing in work still unfinished. In these pages, I have told all that has seemed important to me in my effort to become a writer and teller of tales."

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 189:80 Je '52 260w

Booklist 48:246 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:156 Ap '52 30w

Reviewed by Clorinda Clarke

Cath World 175:316 J1 '52 180w

Reviewed by Edward Wagenknecht

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Mr 16 '52 550w

"England's poet laureate has set down his vivid recollections in this delightful account of his development as one of the century's great story tellers." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 166:17 Ap 1 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:25 Ja 1 '52 290w

"Young writers and those who must tell stories or recite verse before audiences will gain most from reading this testament." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 77:359 F 15 '52 140w

Reviewed by H. I. A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p4 Mr 18 '52 200w

Reviewed by Ruthven Todd

Nation 174:408 Ap 26 '52 700w

New Statesman & Nation 43:355 Mr 22 '52 310w

"A gracious, gentle assemblage, revealing no new personality (for the poet has already made himself known in his many works of prose and verse) but amplifying and annotating with a sort of sage randomness. The opening sentence—'Now that I am coming to an end, I wish to try to set down what matters have been helpful to me in the work of my choice that has filled my days'—sets a quiet key for the warmhearted modulations that are to follow." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Mr 23 '52 900w

"A memorable book, which will suggest to the proper and I hope young reader all sorts of openings of delight. It is strongest in its memories of a glorious childhood." Christopher Morley

+ N Y Times p1 Mr 16 '52 1450w

New Yorker 28:130 Mr 29 '52 180w

Reviewed by Louis Simpson

+ Sat R 35:17 Mr 29 '52 600w

"To read this tranquil and gracious book is like walking by an English riverside in the autumn. . . The clangour, the fretfulness and alarms of our modern strife are far distant, and we are in another world; the world of books and of poetry, of story-telling and of bright imagination." C. E. Vulliamy

+ Spec 188:372 Mr 21 '52 500w

Springf'd Republican, p7D Ap 13 '52 500w

MASON, BRIAN HAROLD. Principles of geochemistry. 276p $5 Wiley

551 Geochemistry

52-5955

"Geochemistry is a relatively new field of knowledge that is concerned with the abundances of the elements and their isotopes in the earth, their distribution and migration in the atmosphere, hydrosphere, etc. Its importance derives largely from the light that chemical laws shed on the evolution of the earth. This book, written by a member of the faculty of the Department of Geology of Indiana University, is an introductory treatment designed primarily for students of geology." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

MASON, B. H.—Continued

"A distinguishing characteristic of Mr. Mason's book is its freedom from speculation and special pleading for particular theories. He has written more in the spirit of a text book than of a special treatise, and it appears to the reviewer that it would serve as an excellent text for a course in geochemistry." W. F. Libby
+ Am Chem Soc J 74:4983 O 5 '52 410w

"Despite the increasing interest in geochemistry, especially during the past decade, a reasonably short, readable, general discussion of the field has not been available. This book by Dr. Mason admirably fills the need. For a person working in the field the book serves as an excellent, modern, summary; for chemists unacquainted with geochemistry it is recommended as the only available general introduction; and for students it can serve as a text in a course in geochemistry or for collateral reading." E. F. Osborn

+ Chem & Eng N 30:3124 J1 28 '52 210w

+ Chem Eng 59:409 J1 '52 260w

Reviewed by R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:905 My 15 '52 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:40 My '52

"Principles of Geochemistry is written primarily for geologists, but it is also directed to chemists and physicists. It will, in addition, throw light on many problems of zoologists, botanists, and agriculturists."

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:330 S '52 240w

MASON, CHARLES RUSSELL. Picture primer of attracting birds; il. by Bob Hines. (Picture primer ser) 30p $2.50 Houghton

598.2 Birds 52-7643

Describes in detail how to attract birds. Contains information on bird baths, feeders, houses, food, ground covers and desirable trees, shrubs, and vines for nest-building.

Booklist 48:243 Ap 1 '52

"Here is a very attractive book. . . The text is replete with practical and useful information. . . Altogether it is an invaluable little book." Anna Campbell

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 30 '52 80w

"The lists of shrubs, trees, and favorite food-bearing plants are especially valuable. Illustrations by Bob Hines are unusually colorful and exciting. Unfortunately, most children under high-school age will have difficulty with the vocabulary." N. S. Chasteen

+ Library J 77:604 Ap 1 '52 90w

"An intimate and irresistible volume." C. H. Woodward

+ Sat R 35:36 Ag 2 '52 30w

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Broomtail, brother of Lightning; il. by William Moyers. 135p $2 Macmillan

Horses—Legends and stories 52-12587

"Broomtail, a wild colt with brightly flashing tail, had enjoyed freedom on the wide open plains, escaping animal enemies and men, only to be caught finally with his herd by a band of Indians. There is a real sense of prairie wild life and of the untamed drive of free ponies." Horn Bk

Booklist 49:93 N 1 '52

Reviewed by Polly Goodwin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p11 N 2 '52 80w

"The many children who have enjoyed A Pony Called Lightning [Book Review Digest 1948] will like equally well this fast-moving story of Lightning's brother." V. H.

+ Horn Bk 28:318 O '52 50w

+ Kirkus 20:452 Ag 1 '52 90w

"Easy vocabulary and large, readable print make this another good story for horse lovers of grades 3-4." Inger Boye

+ Library J 77:1823 O 15 '52 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p10 N 16 '52 20w

"Entertaining, simply-written narrative of early life on the Western plains." Jeanne Massey

+ N Y Times p24 N 2 '52 90w

Springf'd Republican p10D O 5 '52 50w

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Young Mr Meeker and his exciting journey to Oregon; drawings by Sandra James. 168p $2 Bobbs

52-5822

Story of a family of western pioneers who had to wait for young Mr Meeker to arrive before they could leave Iowa to travel along the Oregon trail. After the mysterious young man had joined the party, the tale relates how his presence made the going easier.

"The wonderful thing about Miriam Mason is that, altho her books are simply enough written for beginner readers to manage—and love—they are so entertaining they can be read and enjoyed by parents, and, so, make fine family reading. This pioneer tale with its highly original slant is one of her best." Polly Goodwin

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p16 Ap 20 '52 200w

"Miss Mason is an expert at telling stories so simply that second and third graders can read them; yet they are never stilted but always have life and color. I particularly enjoyed this one for its original approach." J. D. L.

+ Horn Bk 28:102 Ap '52 130w

"Recommended." L. E. Cathon

+ Library J 77:909 My 15 '52 80w

"Never before have we taken to the trail with a covered wagon train whose 'leader' was a new little baby boy. It all did happen, apparently, for there are records of Ezra Meeker's pioneer journey, but we long to know whether Mrs. Mason really found a place in his diary where his young wife wrote in, 'Mr. Meeker now has teeth.' In any case, the story is delightful, combining a novel sort of humor with the grim realism of the heroic journey." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 My 11 '52 250w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p26 Je 8 '52 30w

Springf'd Republican p9D My 25 '52 110w

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Yours with love, Kate; il. by Barbara Cooney. 277p $3 Houghton

B or 92 Wiggin, Kate Douglas (Smith)

—Juvenile literature 52-5907

A biography of Kate Douglas Wiggin for ages twelve and older.

Booklist 49:112 N 15 '52

"Absorbing reading. The beautiful design of the book with Barbara Cooney's quaint illustrations seems unusually fine." A. B. McG.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 N 16 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:684 O 15 '52 160w

Reviewed by Virginia Haviland

Library J 77:2187 D 15 '52 50w

"Girls will be delighted with the stories of her two happy marriages. . . The title comes from several letters quoted. Our only complaint is we wish more had been quoted from letters, books, articles, and less fictionalized. Also, the Cooney pictures seem to us too young in appeal to the age which would be most interested." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p14 N 16 '52 200w

"If Kate Douglas Wiggin had written this book herself, she could scarcely have done it with more zest and charm. It is a delightful story." Isabelle Lawrence
+ N Y Times pt2, p20 N 16 '52 90w

MASON, VAN WYCK. Himalayan assignment. 282p $3 Doubleday

52-5116

A Colonel North story of adventure and international intrigue in the Himalayan mountains.

Reviewed by R. L. Blakesley
Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 Ja 20 '52 240w

Kirkus 19:668 N 15 '51 60w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p13 Jl 13 '52 120w

"A medium-grade North adventure which will not be likely to disappoint regular fans or cast a spell over newcomers." James Kelly

N Y Times p21 Ja 20 '52 500w

"The complications get a little thick at times, and sometimes it's hard, even with a scorecard, to tell which side the players are on. But Colonel North straightens everything out finally." E. J. Fitzgerald

Sat R 35:35 F 9 '52 140w

"It's a very timely story and a remarkably fine adventure yarn." R. F. H.

+ Springfield Republican p8D F 17 '52 90w

MASSEE, WILLIAM EDMAN. Art of comfort; il. by Dorothy Ivens. 253p $2.75 Bobbs

747 House decoration. Architecture, Domestic 52-10281

Houses should be designed for comfortable living, is the thesis the author builds on with these chapters on planning space for living—including places for sitting, enjoying fireplaces and views, eating, cooking, sleeping and bathing, storing things and keeping things clean and orderly.

Booklist 49:29 S 15 '52

Reviewed by Anne Douglas
Chicago Sunday Tribune p17 S 14 '52 190w

"Possibly much of the author's stormy theories about comfort can be discovered best in some of his aversions: Glittering chromium, washable paper napkins, venetian blinds, poor heat, worse light, bad ventilation and the ugly looks of today's average dwelling, which is dangerously dirty and dismal 'because it ignores our animal needs, and squeezes all the juices out of living.' On the positive side, it is a rare dwelling that will not sharply benefit by his endless suggestions for introducing comfort—even if it flaunts the machine-made taste of the Joneses." D. A. P.

San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 5 '52 210w

MASTERS, JOHN. The deceivers. 237p $3 Viking

52-1198

A historical novel of India in the nineteenth century. It relates the story of the part played by an English civil servant in uncovering the infamous cult of Kali whose devotees were the Thugs practicing murder and robbery as part of their religion.

Booklist 48:248 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:185 My '52 40w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes
Cath World 175:233 Je '52 200w

"A fine story, well and tightly told." Percy Wood

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ap 6 '52 230w

Kirkus 20:96 F 1 '52 180w

"Although the background of the story, with its weird mysticism and terrible practices is basically authentic, The Deceivers is an expertly written super-thriller, packed with excitement and hair raising incident, rising to a tingling climax. Probably a best seller." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 77:591 Ap 1 '52 90w

"Ostensibly a simple adventure story, it reveals so much of India that the fearsome narrative becomes largely an illustration of the worship of the goddess Kali. But Mr Masters's Englishman, who is so possessed by Eastern religious impulses that he even experiences ecstasy in the moment of accomplishing the strangler's art, is less convincing than the descriptive writing." H. I'A. Fausset

+ Manchester Guardian p4 Ag 29 '52 90w

"The Deceivers has pace and excitement though the hero's psychology, by period standards, seems strangely awry. When the book occasionally flags it is because the writer is attempting to put far more into his novel than it is capable of holding." John Raymond

+ New Statesman & Nation 44:246 Ag 30 '52 430w

"This is a frightening book, frightening in the ordinary sense and fit to produce the standard symptoms. . . But it is frightening in another way, taking the reader for an unbelievable moment into the intoxication of killing. A man may find that reading it reveals to him aspects of his own character which he did not suspect. But he will not find himself dropping off to sleep, catnapping between pages, laying the book aside to be finished another day. 'The Deceivers' is not that kind of book; so much is sure." B. A. Williams

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Ap 6 '52 450w

"Mr. Masters seldom allows the deeper conflicts of the human soul to overtake his adventure story nor his adventure to intrude too far on inner conflict. In the end we have only an unfocused work that never comes to grips with its material." Edward Parone

N Y Times p24 Ap 27 '52 290w

"Mr. Masters is a straightforward, honest-sounding writer who is usually effective."

+ New Yorker 28:145 Ap 19 '52 100w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith
Sat R 35:15 Ap 5 '52 750w

"This tale of an imaginary William Savage . . . comes dangerously close now and then to nonsense. Still, ignore probability, psychology and the rest, and the raw excitements of the tale remain." R. D. Charques

+ Spec 189:310 S 5 '52 170w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p7D Ap 13 '52 150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p561 Ag 29 '52 130w

MASTERS, KELLY R. (ZACHARY BALL, pseud). Swamp chief. 212p $2.50 Holiday

52-9567

Another story about Joe Panther, the young Seminole Indian. The setting is Miami and the Gulf, and the struggle of Joe between two loyalties—to his own people, and to his friend Captain Harper—is the theme of the story. For ages 12 to 16.

Booklist 48:362 Jl 1 '52

+ Kirkus 20:158 Mr 1 '52 120w

"A likeable hero, a tropical setting, good writing, and a plot that holds one's attention add up to a book recommended for boys 12-16." A. B. McCreary

+ Library J 77:1018 Je 1 '52 80w

"To combine an adventure story, fine sport at deep sea fishing, and some serious modern sociology about the adjustment of the Seminole Indians to the modern world in one book is quite a feat. This able writer handles all three factors in his tale with telling power."

L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p23 My 11 '52 160w

Reviewed by H. B. Lent

+ N Y Times p28 Je 8 '52 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R 35:47 S 20 '52 70w

MASTERSON, VINCENT VICTOR. Katy Railroad and the last frontier. 312p il $4 Univ. of Okla. press

385 Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad company 52-12734

"A business-like account of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad system and its trials and tribulations, written largely from the original records of the Company. It is a case study of mid 19th Century American railroad rivalry when, with almost no holds barred, the tough, aggressive little 'Katy' road battled its competitors for high stakes. . . Illustrated with photographs." Library J

Reviewed by William Leonard

Chicago Sunday Tribune p8 O 5 '52 120w

"Mr. Masterson's book both instructs and entertains. He writes a lively style, dramatizing the facts which he has dug out of the original company records, building suspense, keeping a sharp eye for character and incident. He has written a friendly book about a friendly railroad." Horace Reynolds

+ Christian Science Monitor p5 D 24 '52 850w

"More attention is paid to railroad business-history than to the frontier and, possibly, some of the interesting characters and events of the old Oklahoma and Texas country could have been highlighted more." R. H. Dillon

Library J 77:1500 S 15 '52 150w

"Mr. Masterson has written a careful and interesting and loving account of a pioneer railroad that survived hard times and is very much a going concern. The illustrations are conventional. The maps are both good and numerous and they are needed to follow the complicated progress of the Katy on its way from deepest Kansas to the Gulf and to St. Louis." Stewart Holbrook

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p44 D 7 '52 600w

"All of this is well told except the part relating to the Indian Territory. Here the writer is completely lost. This gap in knowledge—or rather this extensive misinformation—mars what could have been an excellent history of an important Southwestern development. Even so, the author has written an interesting book." Angie Debo

+ N Y Times p33 S 28 '52 500w

MATHEWS, MITFORD MCLEOD, ed. Dictionary of Americanisms on historical principles. 2v $50 Univ. of Chicago press

427.9 Americanisms. English language—Dictionaries. English language—Terms and phrases 51-1957

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"Dictionary of Americanisms is a new work of sound authoritative scholarship, presenting a thorough treatment of American English. It is recommended for public libraries, university and college libraries, and for school libraries and home use when the price will not be prohibitive."

+ Subscription Bks Bul 23:37 J1 '52 950w

MATTSCHAT, MRS CECILE (HULSE), comp. See American boy (periodical). American boy adventure stories

MATSUOKA, YOKO. Daughter of the Pacific. 245p $3 Harper

E or 92 Japan—Social life and customs 51-11938

The author was born in 1916, daughter of educated, liberal Japanese middle-class parents. Her father had been educated in America, and Yoko herself graduated from Swarthmore in 1938. Her book recalls her childhood, her years abroad, her marriage and the war years and their aftermath.

Booklist 48:245 Ap 1 '52

Bookmark 11:182 My '52 30w

"This is one of the most arresting books to come out of postwar Japan." Takashi Oka
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Mr 15 '52 600w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 28:183 Je '52 60w

"The author's virtue and often unmistakable prudery seem to prevent a true understanding of her own people, to make extraordinary rather than ordinary her valuable learning and adoption of Christian principles. Hardly worth more than a dipping into."

— Kirkus 20:52 Ja 15 '52 160w

"'Daughter of the Pacific' is a straightforward and convincing story of a young woman who thinks and feels in terms very like our own as she writes about a land and people with which we are inevitably much concerned. It is an unusually interesting book from the standpoint of both private lives and public questions." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p4 Mr 2 '52 650w

"Miss Matsuoka is most successful in the first two-thirds of her book where our interest is focused on her personal reaction to events. It is when attention shifts from her personal life to events of world importance that her autobiographical approach becomes inadequate." Trudi Osborne

+ N Y Times p16 Mr 2 '52 450w

New Yorker 28:119 Mr 15 '52 190w

"Sketchy in places, odd of emphasis (one page to the destruction of Tokyo, one paragraph to Hiroshima), her story is an informative account of the bewildered liberal, uncertain where to take a stand when times are tough." E. D. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 Mr 23 '52 440w

"Whether she is recalling her delightful childhood in Tokyo, her school days in Korea and the United States, her travels in Europe and Asia, or her life as a young wife and mother, Miss Matsuoka combines a spiritual approach with the charm of uncynical candor. In 'Daughter of the Pacific' this child of the East and foster-child of the West makes a simple, earnest plea for the preservation of human values all over the world." A. F. Wolfe

+ Sat R 35:38 My 17 '52 250w

Wis Lib Bul 48:171 J1 '52

MATTFELD, JULIUS, comp. Variety music cavalcade, 1620-1950; a chronology of vocal and instrumental music popular in the United States; with an introd. by Abel Green. 637p $10 Prentice-Hall

781.97 Music, Popular—Bibliography 52-8607

An earlier version of this book was serialized in Variety, which accounts for the title. It is a compilation of the popular songs used in the United States from 1620 to 1950, arranged by year. Entries include composer, author of words, publisher, copyright information, etc. Accompanied by brief resumes of political, cultural, social events, etc. for each period. Indexed by song titles.

Reviewed by William Leonard

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 J1 27 '52 100w

Kirkus 20:270 Ap 15 '52 60w

"Indispensable for directors of plays, films, and programs involving U. S. history and the music Americans love; for people who throw 'Gay Nineties' parties and such; for writers, critics, researchers, etc. Compiler is Music Librarian of WCBS, New York." C. K. Miller

+ Library J 77:1205 J1 '52 110w

"As it stands, the book is indispensable for librarians, for the film industry, for radio or TV, for school or community entertainment, writers, critics, and those working in the field of American history. It will also be highly entertaining to all those who love American songs." M. M. Mott

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 9:608 S '52 360w

Reviewed by R. H. Dillon

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 18 '52 80w

MATTHIAS, ARTHUR JOHN. How to design and install plumbing; materials and methods of standard practice; 3d ed. rev. by Esles Smith, sr. 444p il $3.95 Am. Tech. soc.

696.1 Plumbing

"The third edition differs from the first and second primarily in the addition of much new material bringing design and code adoptions up to date. A practical volume intended to serve architects, tradesmen, and students with details on design principles and their practical execution." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

Booklist 48:381 J1 15 '52

"This book has enjoyed wide use as a text in trade schools and as a source of information for home mechanics. It is written in simple language and is moderately well illustrated. It would be pleasant to say that it has been thoroughly revised in this edition. However, although the old-fashioned ice box waste is still described, there is nothing specific on how to connect up a gas refrigerator. . . The book must still be supplemented by an instructor who is familiar with present-day plumbing practices." R. R. Hawkins

Library J 77:1079 Je 15 '52 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 37:61 J1 '52

MATTHIESSEN, FRANCIS OTTO. Responsibilities of the critic; essays and reviews; selected by John Rackliffe. 282p $5 Oxford

810.4 American literature—History and criticism 52-12569

"Selection of fifty critical essays and reviews by the late F. O. Matthiessen of Harvard. . . Ignoring chronology, the editor has grouped his selections according to what he conceives were Matthiessen's dominant themes: the American past, modern poetry, and critics and historians of our literature." N Y Herald Tribune Bk R

Booklist 49:64 O 15 '52

Kirkus 20:670 O 1 '52 210w

"Recommended for all American literature collections." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 77:1807 O 15 '52 80w

"One of Matthiessen's most valuable technical assets was his ability to distill the distinctive qualities of a writer into a memorable sentence or phrase or epithet. Yet these brilliant condensed judgments were not tossed into a review at random. They are climactic and are always completely prepared for by the preceding exposition and casting up of accounts." Willard Thorp

+ New Repub 127:19 O 27 '52 850w

"[The arrangement] enables us to compare Matthiessen's opinions of such giants as Hawthorne and Mark Twain, of poets from Emily Dickinson to Allen Tate, and critics from Margaret Fuller to Paul Rosenfeld, but makes it difficult to follow any changes in attitude and awkwardly juxtaposes views expressed as much as twenty years apart. Despite this and the fact that some of these pieces are plainly ephemera, there is hardly a page here that does not hold some reward for the student of literature." Milton Rugoff

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 O 19 '52 600w

"This selection of the uncollected essays and reviews of the late Harvard professor, Jamesian scholar and author of 'American Renaissance,' bears witness once more to F. O. Matthiessen's unique position in contemporary criticism, and our loss." Selden Rodman

+ N Y Times p5 D 14 '52 500w

New Yorker 28:174 N 8 '52 140w

MAUDSLAY, ROBERT. Texas sheepman; the reminiscences of [the author] ed. by Winifred Kupper; il. by Hilda Wilcox Phelps. 138p $3 Univ. of Tex.

B or 92 Frontier and pioneer life—Texas. Sheep 51-13259

Reminiscences of an Englishman who came to Texas in the 1880's to make his fortune as a sheepman. He never made the fortune, but his letters about his life, written to one niece and edited by another, give graphic descriptions of life in Texas seventy years ago. Index.

"It is good, solid and exciting history for three reasons: first, it gives a clear picture of the developments of Texas as the nation's biggest producer of sheep; second, it presents the Englishman's amusing view of wild-and-woolly Texas rather than the Texan's scorn of a foreign greenhorn; third, it skips the eternal theme of war between sheepman and cattle king." Lewis Nordyke

+ N Y Times p7 N 18 '51 350w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 13 '52 170w

"Told largely through anecdote, the narrative combines most happily a subtle and classical English prose with the wry sense of an Englishman for the spirit of the American frontier. The author had no thought of publication, but wrote merely to satisfy the request of a niece who sought to preserve some of his tales which had delighted her in her younger days. The letters he sent to her are now collected in this informal, charming, and informative small book."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:9 Mr '52 240w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. Encore; original stories [with] screenplays by T. E. B. Clarke [and others]. 156p $2.75 Doubleday

Moving picture plays 52-8052

Short stories by Maugham with movie scripts based on them by other writers. Contents: Ant and the grasshopper; Winter cruise; Gigolo and Gigolette.

Booklist 48:356 J1 1 '52

"The stories are not among Maugham's best; interestingly enough the screen play, in every instance, is more subtle and convincing in characterization than the original story." Riley Hughes

+ — Cath World 175:474 S '52 140w

Kirkus 20:267 Ap 15 '52 160w

"Recommended for all cinema and theatre collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1814 O 15 '52 30w

Reviewed by Bosley Crowther

N Y Times p10 J1 6 '52 440w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. Jane [dramatization] See Behrman, S. N.

MAULDIN, WILLIAM HENRY. Bill Mauldin in Korea [il. by the author]. 171p $2.95 Norton

951.9 Korean war, 1950- 52-12878

The author visited the war front in Korea in the winter of 1952. His report is here embodied in a series of letters written by Joe (one of the characters in his earlier war cartoons) to Willie, his side kick. Joe has become a war correspondent and as such sees not only the private soldiers but also the officers of army, navy and marine commands.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 190:102 N '52 130w

Booklist 49:64 O 15 '52

Bookmark 12:32 N '52 30w

Reviewed by J. H. Thompson

Chicago Sunday Tribune p6 O 5 '52 250w

Kirkus 20:581 S 1 '52 110w

"Well, Joe's trip to Korea was richly worth while. And it's a fine thing he took Bill Mauldin along, because he is at his best in these drawings—which constitute almost a quarter of the book—and at drawing a war, who is better than Mauldin? Mauldin intrudes with a bit of editorializing, but only in the foreword." Marcus Duffield

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 23 '52 800w

"When he is with an infantry company, Mauldin is a sharp reporter. He also includes a report from Tokyo, which is kittenish and uninformative compared to the job he did on the rear base in Naples, and a visit to the truce talks at Panmunjom, which adds little to daily reports. With the Navy on shipboard and the Marines on a mountain, though, Mauldin again is in his element." Herbert Mitgang

MAULDIN, W. H.—Continued

+ — N Y Times p37 S 28 '52 700w

New Yorker 28:180 O 18 '52 90w

Reviewed by William Hogan

San Francisco Chronicle p9 O 19 '52 460w

Reviewed by Martin Blumenson

Sat R 35:49 N 22 '52 270w

"The letters, some of which have been printed in Collier's are in Mr. Mauldin's cheerful style, which guarantees amusement. They also are very penetrating and understanding, and while Mr. Mauldin doesn't gloss over what he saw there is an underlying optimism that makes the reader begin to feel better about everything." R. F. H.

+ Springfield Republican p11C O 19 '52 130w

MAURELLO, S. RALPH. Commercial art techniques; a practical self-instruction course and reference handbook; over 500 il. of methods and procedures. 126p $3; pa $1 Tudor

741.67 Art, Commercial 52-7830

"This book gives the methods and procedures used in modern commercial art work. In many ways, it's a course of instruction in basic commercial techniques and media. There are 500 or more drawings and photographs which clearly illustrate steps in producing well designed and salable commercial art work." School Arts

Booklist 48:244 Ap 1 '52

"More than 500 'show-how' illustrations of special competence in the commercial art field make this an invaluable handbook and reference manual. More than anything, it demonstrates the vast scope of commercial art, far afield from illustration, which most lay persons regard as the chief element in a most exacting field of art." D. A. P.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Mr 16 '52 100w

"For the experienced teacher, commercial artist, and allied fields it offers excellent refresher material on modern methods and procedures."

+ School Arts 51:adv Je '52 100w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. The loved and the unloved; tr. by Gerard Hopkins [with a postscript]. 153p $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy

52-10290

"Marie and Gilles, two young lovers in a provincial French town, are fatuously devoted to each other. All that keeps them apart is the snobbery of Marie's parvenu mother. They contrive to meet with the help of an ugly and impoverished aristocrat named Agathe, who has been reduced to working as Marie's governess. Agathe realizes she is being used, but she has a design of her own—to snare Gilles' brooding young friend Nicolas. . . Mauriac contrasts the fortunes of the two couples. Marie and Gilles, the fortunately average characters, glide happily into marriage. Agathe and Nicolas mentally torture each other until Nicolas blurts out the truth that he has never loved her." Time

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 191:84 Ja '53 300w

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 176:232 D '52 220w

"This novella remarkably combines economy and intensity. In barely more than 30,000 words Mauriac relates a complex tale, deploying sharply etched provincial characters in shifting involvements, and also saturates every passage with the sense of human emotions." Warren Beck

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 O 12 '52 370w

Reviewed by J. A. Lynch

Commonweal 57:177 N 21 '52 550w

Kirkus 20:566 S 1 '52 120w

Reviewed by S. M. Fitzgerald

New Repub 127:19 N 24 '52 800w

"The author and the translator seem to be at cross purposes. Rightly or wrongly, Gerard Hopkins has attempted to attenuate the severity of the French writer's style by making not a translation but a breezy, whimsical, mildly hilarious paraphrase of the original. The sedate dialogue of Mauriac takes on a Dogpatch intonation in the best manner of Al Capp. Possibly it is an improvement on the original, but it is not a rendering that would give the English-speaking reader any valid idea of the spirit and flavor of Mauriac's work." Ramon Guthrie

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p17 N 30 '52 250w

"A sordid little story. . . If M. Mauriac had only been able to love his sappy young lovers and the physically repellent Agathe as much as Nicolas thought he did, perhaps the reader might have been converted too." Anne Fremantle

N Y Times p5 O 5 '52 400w

"This thin novel reads as though it had been published half-finished, or as though it was only a sketch for a longer and more nearly complete work."

New Yorker 28:171 N 8 '52 120w

"Like most highly accomplished works of fiction, 'The Loved and the Unloved' can be accepted on terms other than the author intended. One does not need to find the world of physical desire as meaningless or disgusting as Mauriac finds it to appreciate his mastery of technique and the precision of his insights into the waywardness of the human mind." D. W.

San Francisco Chronicle p29 N 23 '52 210w

"The narrative is pursued with the classic brevity and concentration Mauriac has acquired during his long and productive career. . . His triumph here is a crowning achievement and makes this last book of his a perfect specimen of his work." Laurence LeSage

+ Sat R 35:21 O 25 '52 350w

"The book is written in a style that is almost spectacularly gaunt. In tone it resembles a medieval morality play; in shape, a modern dance, confined to anguished and angular gestures."

Time 60:106 O 6 '52 320w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. Stumbling block. 83p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

230.2 Catholic church—Doctrinal and controversial works 52-8393

"This is an eloquent exposition of Mauriac's radical Christianity, which is not the same as Christian radicalism. The book is at once an attack on 'the pious Barnums of the Holy Church,' a criticism of those Catholics whose 'spiritual state is not so very different from that of the members of the Jockey Club,' a plea that atheists not reject Christ because of their dislike of the temporal Church, a polemic against Mariolatry, a defense of democratic Christianity, and a movingly honest revelation of Mauriac's own religious life." New Repub

"It is hard to know the value of this seventy-nine page examen, with its alternating moods of attraction and repulsion, accusation and withdrawal, querulousness and tenderness. The Church is the 'stumbling block' which Mauriac confronts in his declining years, not so much as a critic, but as an exasperated lover. It is an uneasy book because the author is himself uneasy, and he is never quite sure of why he has written it or whether it should have been written at all." J. W. Simons

Commonweal 56:123 My 9 '52 400w

Reviewed by D. W. Brogan

Manchester Guardian p4 My 2 '52 110w

Reviewed by Irving Howe

New Repub 126:19 Ap 7 '52 190w

Sat R 35:35 My 10 '52 200w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. The weakling; and The enemy; tr. by Gerard Hopkins. 2v in 1 219p $3 Pellegrini & Cudahy

52-5923

Two short novels translated from the French. The Weakling is a story of hatred which ends in tragedy; The Enemy is a story of the love of an adolescent boy and an older woman. The Enemy appeared in France in 1935 as Le Mal.

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:151 My '52 300w

"These are brilliant novels—and Christian ones." Edmund Fuller

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 23 '52 450w

"These two works are highly sensitive companion pieces. Innocence and guilt, good and evil, sin and sanctity are all interwoven. The regeneration of man through the plumbing of the depths of despair is a theme that challenges the Christian artist. Surely Mauriac and Greene are the contemporary masters of this challenge." T. E. Cassidy

+ Commonweal 56:20 Ap 11 '52 600w

Kirkus 20:88 F 1 '52 170w

"The Enemy is a competent fiction, suavely faithful to the French prescription for illicit love, persuasive in its study of the boy's emotions. Unfortunately, however, the two parts of the story remain unfused. . . The Weakling is an impressive work of art because it surmounts categories and, despite Mauriac's doctrinal bias, can be 'translated' into any serious mode of thought or feeling. If there is to be a religious fiction in our time worthy of serious respect, I think it will take this form: brusquely allegorical, harshly written, almost uncouth in its disregard for the usual decor of the novel." Irving Howe

New Repub 126:18 Ap 7 '52 700w

Reviewed by Ramon Guthrie

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p3 Je 8 '52 600w

Reviewed by Francis Sweeney

N Y Times p4 Mr 23 '52 500w

"In expressing the loathing of the feminine principle that inspires almost every page of his writings, M. Mauriac seems to express a loathing of life itself. It is hard to see how writing, even though rich and elaborate, that is in favor of negation and sterility and that has, in the long run, nothing more to offer than a cry of protest against the nature of man's physical being can have any real value." Anthony West

New Yorker 28:129 Ap 12 '52 2700w

Reviewed by Laurence LeSage

Sat R 35:16 Ap 5 '52 600w

Time 59:108 Mr 24 '52 500w

"Nothing could be less humorous than these two studies in sin, corruption, and the ruthlessness of Fate. There are Mauriac's perennial themes, and if he ever allows himself to smile over them it is only very briefly—and always ironically. Yet the stories are first-rate work." James Yaffe

+ Yale R n s 41:6 summer '52 250w

MAXWELL, GAVIN. Harpoon venture [Eng title: Harpoon at a venture]. 304p il $4.75 Viking

639.27 Shark fishing 52-10565

After the war the author realized a long-felt ambition and bought an island in the Outer Hebrides. Looking for a business there he developed a project for hunting and processing the basking shark, the second largest fish known. Tho the business was a failure, the author had many adventures now set forth in this book.

Booklist 48:273; 333 My 1 '52; Je 15 '52

Bookmark 12:7 O '52 40w

Reviewed by Al Chase

Chicago Sunday Tribune p3 Ag 17 '52 90w

"An excellent man's book."

+ Kirkus 20:255 Ap 1 '52 280w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 77:890 My 15 '52 150w

Manchester Guardian p4 J1 29 '52 140w

"Major Maxwell writes as one who sees with the poetic eye of a naturalist and as a man who belongs as organically to the sea and islands he describes, as do the birds and fish that teem in its waters." Kathleen Raine

+ New Repub 126:21 Je 16 '52 600w

"His book is a detailed factual record of something pregnant with symbols and, unlike many other pioneers, he is deeply aware of the symbolism. But he is never woozy, being protected against the D. H. Lawrence virus by his professionalism as a shark-fisher, by some five years of injections of cold fact, by the only too persistent memories of only too prosaic problems. It is the dry enumeration of these problems which, as with Robinson Crusoe, makes half the charm of this book." Louis MacNeice

+ New Statesman & Nation 43:681 Je 7 '52 600w

"An excellent book. . . The author was sensitive to the beauty and wonder of the birds and fish and of the islands and waters they inhabited. The hunt for the shark caused him to philosophize upon pain and the consequences of inflicting it. His contacts with humanity in connection with the fishery, the factory that was built on Soay to handle the catch and the assorted trades and government agencies that became involved in the enterprise were varied and illuminating." H. W. Baehr

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p5 Je 15 '52 400w

"Maxwell writes with a comprehending eye for the racy beauty of the Hebrides and their profuse sea and bird life." Wilmot Ragsdale

+ N Y Times p12 Je 29 '52 450w

"On the whole, if only because of the novelty of the subject, an interesting book."

+ New Yorker 28:91 Je 28 '52 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 10 '52 230w

"What the Major lacks as a businessman and a zoologist he makes up for as a storyteller and he need not be criticized for a few slips—he gives a misleading, if not positively incorrect, definition of plankton, the food of his sharks—when he gives the reader so much." Raymond Holden

+ Sat R 35:14 J1 26 '52 600w

"Failure makes an unsatisfactory ending to any undertaking, but it does not spoil Harpoon at a Venture as a book, since it has been largely confined to the seafaring, shark-catching side of the business at which they grew increasingly skillful. The author writes well, and manages to convey the excitement of fishing for shark. He also finds time to stop and remember the beauty of the island-studded waters in which it all took place, and has collected over eighty photographs of outstanding quality." G. P. Griggs

+ Spec 189:74 J1 11 '52 700w

Time 59:86 Je 30 '52 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p394 Je 13 '52 1000w

MAXWELL, JAMES ACKLEY. Federal grants and the business cycle [ed. by Martha Anderson]. 122p $2 Nat. bur. of economic res.

336 Business cycles. Finance—U.S. 52-7401

"This little book brings together and up to date a great deal of factual material on the grant structure in this country with particular emphasis on the responsiveness of grants to business fluctuations. The data presented in 37 tables and 11 charts largely speak for themselves." (J Pol Econ) Index.

"The work is admirably equipped with tables and diagrams. It is a worthy addition to the impressive National Bureau list, both in content and in style." K. E. Boulding

+ Ann Am Acad 284:189 N '52 360w

"The events of the past few years should have clearly demonstrated the problem of avoiding one-way flexibility in any counter-cyclical fiscal program. . . It seems unfortunate that Maxwell has seen fit to include a discussion of his favorite grant-in-aid scheme in this otherwise excellent work." J. M. Buchanan

MAXWELL, J. A.—Continued
+ — J Pol Econ 60:457 O '52 470w

MAY, ARTHUR JAMES. Hapsburg monarchy, 1867-1914. 532p $6 Harvard univ. press
943.6 Austria—History. Hungary—History 51-7368

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

"The chapters on domestic politics are the most successful. They give a sound account of political developments in both halves of the monarchy, though without much discrimination. There are no serious errors, though Mr. May does not seem to have grasped the intricacies of Taaffe's fall. . . In truth, if we are to make sense of the history of Austria-Hungary, we need fewer facts and more figures. Mr. May's book is good old-fashioned literary history, with agreeable phrases instead of statistics." A. J. P. Taylor

+ — Am Hist R 57:669 Ap '52 500w

"Among the numerous books which are now being published about the Hapsburg Monarchy, Professor May's comprehensive study is certainly one of the best. Thanks to its high literary qualities that big volume is eminently readable." O. Halecki

+ Ann Am Acad 280:235 Mr '52 340w

Current Hist 22:36 Ja '52 70w

"We do not wish to dwell on minor blemishes or enumerate details which should be corrected. Professor May endeavored to distribute fairly the light and shade. But he has written, perhaps unwittingly, an apologia of the Dual system and of its functioning. His book is unduly optimistic and contributes comparatively little to the knowledge of the causes of the gradual disintegration of the Hapsburg Empire and of its ultimate collapse in the autumn of 1918." Otakar Odložilík

Pol Sci Q 67:464 S '52 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 13 '52 220w

Reviewed by W. C. Langsam

Sat R 35:52 Ap 19 '52 290w

Times [London] Lit Sup p536 Ag 15 '52 1100w

"One of Europe's most complicated social and political structures is here given both lively and discerning treatment. Professor May provides a clear, interesting, and well-balanced picture of the multinational empire of Austria-Hungary as it existed under the tragic monarchy of Francis Joseph, from the constitutional agreement of 1867 to the collapse of 1914."

+ U S Quarterly Bk R 8:58 Mr '52 200w

MAY, HERBERT GORDON. Our English Bible in the making; the word of life in living language; published for the Cooperative publication association. 154p $2.75 Westminster press

220.52 Bible. Whole—History 52-8858

The story of the making of the English Bible, from its earliest beginnings to the Revised Standard Version. Index.

Booklist 49:41 O 1 '52

"Here is one of the most informing books on the English Bible that a person is likely to pick up and read." Clarence Seidenspinner
+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p14 O 5 '52 250w

"From Tyndale to R.S.V., Dr. May's story of Bible translation is clear, continuous, accurate, and as complete as most readers will need. It has an advantage over the many previous excellent books on the same subject in that it brings the record down to date."

+ Christian Century 69:1322 N 12 '52 170w

+ Kirkus 20:637 S 15 '52 230w

"Recommended for all types of libraries." O. G. Lawson

+ Library J 77:1398 S 1 '52 170w

Sat R 35:30 D 20 '52 150w

MAYER, HERBERT CARLETON. New Footprints of the Trojan horse; the communist program to conquer the world; il. by Jack Betts; introd. by Lucius D. Clay; pub. for Am. viewpoint. 99p $1.75 Farrar, Straus

947.085 [947.084] Communism. Propaganda, Russian 52-6975

A brief, simplified statement of the case against communism, beginning with the Marx-Lenin-Stalin combination and showing the Communist infiltration techniques.

Reviewed by W. H. Chamberlin

Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ap 13 '52 20w

Kirkus 19:671 N 15 '51 80w

"By its very brevity and simplicity it has an effectiveness that more formal studies often lack." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p21 Mr 23 '52 170w

School & Society 76:15 Jl 5 '52 20w

MAYER, KURT BERND. Population of Switzerland. 336p maps $5 Columbia univ. press

312 Switzerland—Population 52-6700

"Beginning with a judicious treatment of fragmentary materials on population growth before 1800, the monograph takes up successively recent increase, the balance of natural increase and migration, social and economic characteristics, emigration and immigration, internal migration and urbanization, future population, and population policy." Am J Soc

"A valuable study in the sociology of population, rather than a mere formal demography." O. D. Duncan

+ Am J Soc 58:217 S '52 300w

"This volume should serve not only as a valuable help in understanding Switzerland but as an example of the type of study which could be made of other countries as an aid to international understanding." M. C. Elmer

+ Ann Am Acad 282:179 Jl '52 160w

Times [London] Lit Sup p511 Ag 8 '52 100w

MAYNARD, THEODORE. Saints for our times. 296p $3.50 Appleton

922.22 Saints 52-6723

Contents: Francis of Assisi; Antony of Padua; Elizabeth of Hungary; Thomas Aquinas; Catherine of Siena; Joan of Arc; Thomas More; Ignatius Loyola; Philip Neri; Francis de Sales; Vincent de Paul; Rose of Lima; Isaac Jogues; John Mary Vianney; John Bosco; Mary Bernard Soubirous; Frances Xavier Cabrini; Thérèse of Lisieux.

Booklist 48:320 Je 1 '52

Bookmark 11:131 Mr '52 40w

"All in all, this is an intelligent and sound, as well as timely, work."

+ Cath World 175:160 My '52 130w

Reviewed by Edward Barry

Chicago Sunday Tribune p4 Mr 16 '52 190w

"As always, Theodore Maynard writes interestingly and with a clear grasp of historical facts. A book of especial interest to Catholics, but it should have a wider appeal."

+ Kirkus 20:35 Ja 15 '52 180w

"Mr. Maynard writes as a believing Catholic who finds in the saints' lives the same spiritual meaning that was clear to their contemporaries. And that, after all, is the saint's real importance in history. . . Even those who regard sanctity as no more than a psychosis will admit that not to know the saints is to be ignorant of the past. Mr. Maynard has provided a gracious and interesting introduction." John Cogley

+ N Y Times p14 Mr 16 '52 370w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ap 6 '52 160w

"One can't help wishing that Dr. Maynard, with his real gift for interesting writing, had fulfilled more adequately the promise of the title and pointed out at greater length the significance of these saintly personages for our own times." K. D. Miller
Sat R 35:40 Mr 1 '52 180w

MAYORGA, MRS MARGARET (GARDNER), ed. Best one-act plays, 1951-1952. 299p $3
Dodd

812.08 Dramas—Collections (38-8006)

Contents: The least one, by E. P. Conkle; Paradise Inn, by Theodore Apstein; In darkness, by Howard Stein; Hugh of the Glen and his clogs are all one, by P. J. Stephens; The shadow of the cathedral, by Eric Kocher; Tour of duty, by Arthur Kelley; Glory day, by Goldie Lake; The safecracker's pride, by Nicholas Bela; The happy housewife (a television script) by Hedda Rosten; Sun deck, by Stanley Richards. Bibliographies of plays available for American production and anthologies of one act plays are included.

Booklist 48:357 J 1 '52

"Highly recommended for theatre and drama collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 77:1208 J 1 '52 130w

Sat R 35:26 S 27 '52 200w

MAYS, DAVID JOHN. Edmund Pendleton, 1721-1803. 2v 385;462p il $15 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Pendleton, Edmund 52-5036

A long, scholarly biography of a Virginian jurist who was active in political affairs both before and after the American revolution.

"Mr. Mays's flowing narrative easily disposes of the impression that a lawyer's view of history must make technical and dull reading. His extensive researches add new meaning and interest to some of the most crucial moments of the Revolution by going behind the outstanding leadership to uncover the contribution of other participants who must be counted the true backbone of the American struggle for independence." Henry Sowerby

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 11 '52 500w

Current Hist 23:190 S '52 50w

"This set is an important reference work and is recommended for purchase by college libraries and by American history collections." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 77:1398 S 1 '52 130w

Nation 175:364 O 18 '52 40w

"There is no use pretending that a two-volume biography of Judge Edmund Pendleton—whose great Virginian contemporaries are better theater, and upstage him—is a book of universal appeal. Yet even the non-lawyers, who do read it, will be impressed. It is one of the most eminent books to appear in our time, just as Judge Pendleton was one of the most eminent jurists and patriots of his." E. H. Smith

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p6 S 7 '52 1000w

"We do not even have a good portrait of one who was described in his own day as notably handsome; and we have long needed a full-length study of him as a lawyer, a statesman and a human being. Mr. Mays, a lawyer who is steeped in history, is just the sort of person to give it to us. He has been engaged on this task as a labor of love since 1924, and these two rich and authoritative volumes are the result." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p6 S 7 '52 1100w

"This scholarly, detailed and exceptionally thorough biography of Virginia's great local leader was some 28 years in preparation, largely because so few of the records pertaining to Pendleton's life were readily available. . . Edmund Pendleton was preeminently the good citizen, willing to devote the major part of practically all his adult years to the highest type of skillful participation in public affairs. He, his State, those who may heed his splendid example, and history itself have all been particularly well served by this conscientious and able biography." C. W. Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 S 21 '52 650w

MAYSE, ARTHUR. Desperate search. 216p $3
Morrow

52-5060

Two children, a boy of eight and his baby sister, are the only survivors when an airliner crashes in a mountain wilderness. In alternating chapters this story tells of the children's experiences and of those who sought them and finally found them.

Booklist 48:215 Mr 1 '52

Reviewed by Riley Hughes

Cath World 175:76 Ap '52 90w

"There are a few too many coincidences in the story itself. . . But the pace, the skill of the writer as a story teller, and his message transmitted thru the story, make the novel not only absorbing reading, but good reading." Olive Carruthers

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p13 Mr 23 '52 460w

"A superficial but sure handling of some moments of obvious excitement and emotion, this qualifies for an evening of escape."

Kirkus 20:8 Ja 1 '52 170w

"Slick and sometimes maudlin, but a very competent piece of cliff-hanging." E. F. Walbridge

Library J 77:361 F 15 '52 130w

"Language is a little rough in spots, but older boys and girls will enjoy the adventure and love story." M. D. Read

Library J 77:366 F 15 '52 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p15 Ap 6 '52 170w

"As the search lengthens, the children are stalked by an old tom cougar who hasn't had a good meal in days. Author Mayse, who knows his wild life (and his children) somehow contrives to make the animal one of the most appealing and believable characters of his book; these three are easily the most interesting personalities of the story. The others are, for the most part, familiar slick-paper characters. . . What lifts 'The Desperate Search' a healthy notch above routine fiction is Mayse's superior descriptive powers and sure footing in the woods. His solution of the cougar-vs.-children conflict builds with commendable restraint to a suspenseful and gripping climax." Stuart Keate

+ N Y Times p22 F 24 '52 380w

"Mr. Mayse has kept his story-line efficiently simple. But his characterizations are a little too pat, his plot turns a little too well-machined and predictable quite to sustain at novel length the suspense he strives for."

Sat R 35:34 Mr 8 '52 140w

MAZOUR, ANATOLE GRIGOREVICH. Russia, past and present. 785p il maps $9 Van Nostrand

947 Russia—Civilization. Russia—History

51-4505

History of Russia in which the topical instead of the chronological treatment has been adopted. The author, who is associate professor of history at Stanford university, was born in Russia. Bibliography. Chronology. Index.

"The book will be helpful to students of the modern history of Russia, but we still need a good English survey of medieval Russian history and civilization and of the Russian Church." F. Dvornik

+ Ann Am Acad 282:172 J1 '52 550w

Booklist 48:47 O 1 '51

Foreign Affairs 30:504 Ap '52 20w

"This book sorely needs one more rewriting from start to finish in order to bring its approaches into harmony with each other in a single framework of historical generalization and moral evaluation. But pending that, those who want to get a sound historical background for understanding the overmastering problem of our day will still have to be referred to the

MAZOUR, A. G.—Continued
 prolix Pares or the admirably objective 'Short History of Russia' by Sumner, which is so hard for the novice to read because, chronologically speaking, it was written backwards." E. D. Wolfe

+ — Sat R of Lit 34:11 D 22 '51 700w
 School & Society 74:415 D 22 '51 20w

MEAD, EDWARD SHEPHERD. How to succeed in business without really trying; the dastard's guide to fame and fortune; il. by Claude. 143p $2.50 Simon & Schuster

817 52-12031

"The author follows his hero from job interview in front of the Old Man's desk to his seat behind it. On the way, there is advice as to how to leave meetings, how to dispose of rivals, how to get the right office; what methods, secretaries, and hobbies to choose. This will relieve (or further!) office tensions." Kirkus

Booklist 49:59 O 15 '52

"If you have ever worked in any office, you will find fun in this book. Its satire is so sprinkled with truth, and you will find so much of it fitting your own experience, that you may be a little grim as you read it. But your grimness may be wholesome." A. F. Otis

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p5 Ag 31 '52 350w

Reviewed by Godfrey Sperling
 Christian Science Monitor p7 S 29 '52 500w

Kirkus 20:362 Je 15 '52 90w

"Light entertainment." J. E. Cross
 Library J 77:1660 O 1 '52 40w

"Mr. Mead's handy little guide is a good deal more compact than its title, and it is filled with useful information derived, one presumes, from long study and laboratory tested." Herbert Kupferberg

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R p8 Ag 31 '52 220w

"The book will be welcomed by tycoons and tyros alike. The former will discover not only how to stay at the top of the heap but how they happened to reach there in the first place; for the latter it is an invaluable vade mecum, covering the special language of the business world. . . A funny, informative book." Rex Lardner

+ N Y Times p14 S 14 '52 300w

San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 21 '52 90w

"It should help a person enormously in his career—if he can stop laughing long enough to read it all. Incidentally, you'll be amazed at the people you know who match the acquisitive career of Pierrepont Finch, who went from mail room to president's office 'without really trying.'" J. F. S.

+ Springfield Republican p16C S 14 '52 120w

MEAD, MARGARET (MRS GREGORY BATESON). Soviet attitudes toward authority; an interdisciplinary approach to problems of Soviet character. 148p $4 McGraw

914.7 National characteristics, Russian. Authority 51-12890

For descriptive note see Annual for 1951.

Reviewed by John Golden

Am Anthropol 54:414 Ap '52 500w

"All in all, this book, though interesting, even stimulating, is unreliable in its basic assumptions, methods, coverage, and conclusions." Corliss Lamont

+ Ann Am Acad 280:227 Mr '52 460w

Foreign Affairs 30:339 Ja '52 40w

"Richly documented book. . . The material is fresh, the treatment original, and the result a worth-while contribution to our understanding of the 'Sovietman.'" I. H. Siegel

+ J Pol Econ 60:183 Ap '52 500w

"The book is full of imaginative insights and analysis. . . When it comes to estimating the effect of Soviet attitudes and techniques on party members and the masses, the study is less convincing. . . However, the study's basic conclusions appear sound and of major importance: that the contradictions in Soviet society and the harshness of the state's hand upon the individual are such that the regime must, sooner or later, offer its population higher living standards and less repression or find its own leadership weakening." Alexander Klein

+ — New Repub 126:19 Mr 17 '52 400w

"This scholarly study contains many valuable insights into the Soviet regime, and helps to explain the behavior of the Communist Party and its leaders. It makes many interesting observations on the stability, strength, and inherent weaknesses of the Bolshevik dictatorship. It should prove very helpful to all teachers and students who are trying to understand contemporary developments in Soviet Russia." R. H. Bauer

+ Social Studies 43:262 O '52 360w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:79 Mr '52 280w

"This reviewer feels that the study exaggerates the 'religious' nature of Soviet ideology and—still more—of Soviet practice. . . More fundamentally, the study lacks focus. No unified approach is applied to the various areas examined. There are many internal contradictions. Terms are loosely defined. Above all, the tone is dogmatic in generalizations about the past, but, considering the avowed purpose of the work, disappointingly tentative and brief regarding present and future problems and their possible solutions. Much remains to be done before the approach suggested in this work can be said to have been applied fruitfully in a predictive or 'operational' sense. But a start has been made and Soviet studies are the richer for it." F. C. Barghoorn

+ — Yale R n s 41:318 winter '52 900w

MEAD, MARGARET (MRS GREGORY BATESON), and MACGREGOR, FRANCES M. (COOKE). Growth and culture; a photographic study of Balinese childhood; with photographs by Gregory Bateson. 239p $7.50 Putnam

136.7 Children in Bali. Bali (island) 51-14875

"This study of the growth and development of eight Balinese children is particularly concerned with the patterns of motor behavior in which these children from a different cultural setting, but with the same original capabilities, differ from the children in Dr. Arnold Gesell's New Haven series. Dr. Gesell and his staff collaborated with the authors." Booklist

Reviewed by R. J. Havighurst

Am Soc R 17:395 Je '52 200w

Booklist 48:178 F 1 '52

School & Society 75:79 F 2 '52 50w

U S Quarterly Bk R 8:145 Je '52 220w

MEADE, JAMES EDWARD. Balance of payments [issued under the auspices of the Royal inst. of int. affairs]. (Theory of international economic policy, v 1) 432p $5.50 Oxford

382 Balance of trade 51-13339

"[Treatise] on the 'closely related problems of preserving a balance in the financial payments between nations and, at the same time, of maintaining full employment domestically within each nation.' The present volume is designed as the first of a series by the author on the theory of international economic policy." Foreign Affairs

"In this book, Professor Meade has, by closely reasoned argument, done much indirectly to support the free-trade view, but his main conclusions on policy alternatives will be valuable to students and policy makers alike, whatever their position in the great debate on freedom vs. control. They may find it advisable to attempt short stretches at a time; for even a deliberate reduction of hypotheses to 'likely' situations means ringing the changes on a disconcerting number of parameters as Professor Meade proceeds with his argument." D. B. Marsh

+ Am Econ R 42:191 Mr '52 2250w

"A very important and comprehensive treatise."

+ Foreign Affairs 30:496 Ap '52 50w

Reviewed by Ragnar Nurkse

Pol Sci Q 67:604 D '52 850w

"This first volume has a well-defined scope, and would retain its place as our most authoritative and comprehensive treatise on its subject, not likely for long to be superseded, even in the unhappy event of the second volume never seeing the light."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p562 S 7 '51 1300w

MEADE, MARY, pseud. See Lovrien, R. E.

MEADER, STEPHEN WARREN Fish hawk's nest; il. by Edward Shenton. 236p $2.50
Harcourt 52-10065

"Stephen Meader's new story is set in Southern New Jersey at and near Cape May. The time is 1820... Andy Corson helps to expose a band of Spanish 'cut-throats' who are smuggling illicit goods along the Jersey coast into Philadelphia." Sat R

Booklist 49:93 N 1 '52

"Might well appeal to more reluctant readers since it has unusually large print and is very readable."

+ Bookmark 12:13 O '52 20w

"Mr. Meader has woven all the elements of a thrilling adventure story together so skillfully that older boys, and girls, too, are going to say [as they always do about his books], 'This is the best one yet!'" R. F.

+ Chicago Sunday Tribune p20 N 16 '52 130w

Kirkus 20:603 S 15 '52 80w

"Characterization is good, and the tale is permeated with the flavor of the sea and the historical period. . . Recommended." L. E. Cathon

+ Library J 77:1910 N 1 '52 70w

"It is not top-layer Meader, but it has color and a ring of reality, especially in the long journey to old Philadelphia." L. S. Bechtel

+ N Y Herald Tribune Bk R pt2, p18 N 16 '52 120w

"A good, rousing adventure tale with an admirable hero."

+ Sat R 35:62 N 15 '52 40w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 30 '52 90w

MEANY, THOMAS WILLIAM. Baseball's greatest pitchers; foreword by Billy Evans. 326p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

796.357 Baseball—Biography 51-14916

